¹¹But when the inhabitants of Jabesh-gilead heard what the Philistines had done to Saul, ¹²all the valiant men set out, traveled all night long, and took the body of Saul and the bodies of his sons from the wall of Beth-shan. They came to Jabesh and burned them there. ¹³Then they took their bones and buried them under the tamarisk tree in Jabesh, and fasted seven days.

^a Heb plural

17.23; 1 Kings 16.18; Mt 27.5. 9–10: The Philistines humiliate Saul's corpse and credit their gods with the victory. Astarte, a Canaanite goddess. 11–13: The men of Jabesh are likely moved to rescue Saul's body because of his rescue of their city at the beginning of his reign (10.27b–11.15). Cremation (vv. 12–13) was not practiced by the Israelites. They may have burned the bodies in this case to avoid further desecration of them by the Philistines. They fasted seven days apparently in mourning for Saul and his sons.

2 SAMUEL

NAME AND LOCATION IN CANON

First and Second Samuel were originally a single work, so that much of the information in the Introduction to 1 Samuel (pp. 399–400) pertains to 2 Samuel as well. The name of the book (as relating to the prophet Samuel) is even less appropriate for 2 Samuel, since Samuel dies before 1 Samuel ends and is never mentioned in 2 Samuel.

The division between 1 and 2 Samuel is artificial and was apparently based on considerations of length when it was first made in the LXX, where 2 Samuel bears the title 2 Kingdoms or 2 Reigns.

AUTHORSHIP AND DATE OF COMPOSITION

Since Samuel dies in 1 Sam 25.1, 2 Samuel was traditionally ascribed to Nathan and Gad based on the mention in 1 Chr 29.29 of the “records” of these two prophets. Modern scholars typically regard the Former Prophets in the Hebrew Bible (Joshua through 2 Kings, without Ruth) as the work of the Deuteronomistic Historian(s) or Dtr(s).

Scholars disagree about the number of editions and their dates for the Deuteronomistic History, though it is clear that the work was not completed before the Babylonian exile (586 BCE).

LITERARY HISTORY

The major critical issues in 2 Samuel revolve around chs 9–20. These chapters (or in some views chs 13–20), together with 1 Kings 1–2, have been dubbed the “Court History” or “Succession Narrative” (after their perceived intention of dealing with the question of who would succeed David as king). Many scholars have viewed this proposed source document as almost contemporaneous with the events it narrates. However, the extent and early date of this hypothetical source have been called into question because it is impossible to extract these chapters cleanly from the surrounding narrative and to see them as a separate source; there are, for example, ties between chs 9–20 and chs 2–4, such as the description of Mephibosheth’s injury in 4.4 and 9.3 and the importance of the “sons of Zeruiah,” Joab and his brothers. Questions of literary history also loom large in the consideration of ch 7, with its unconditional promise of a dynasty made to David. While scholars generally recognize this as a Deuteronomistic composition as it now stands, many of them think that underlying it is an older version of God’s promise to David.

STRUCTURE AND CONTENTS

Second Samuel can be divided into four sections.

Section one (1.1–5.5) describes how, after Saul’s death (ch 1), David becomes king first of Judah (2.1–4a) and then, after a civil war that included the assassinations of Abner (ch 3) and Ishbaal (ch 4), of all Israel (5.1–5).

Section two (5.6–12.31) tells of David’s annexation of Jerusalem (5.5–6.23), his interest in building a temple there resulting in the divine promise of a dynasty (ch 7), and his victories over surrounding peoples (chs 8–12), which are interrupted by the story of his affair with Bathsheba (11.2–12.25).

Section three (chs 13–20) recounts Absalom’s revolt and that led by Sheba (ch 20).

Section four (chs 21–24), often considered an appendix, is a miscellaneous collection of narratives, military lists, and poems.

INTERPRETATION

Scholars and other readers disagree about the perspective on David in these chapters. Some contend that the pro-Davidic, apologetic character of 1 Samuel continues, as those who stand in David’s way perish, though never by his own hand or order. Joab and the “sons of Zeruiah” are often blamed for the murders of David’s enemies—Abner (3.26–30), Absalom (18.1–15), and Amasa (20.4–10)—while David is too tender for such deeds (3.39; 16.10; 19.22) and is deeply grieved by their deaths (3.31–37; 18.22–19.8). In this reading, the annihilation of Saul’s line (recounted apologetically in 21.1–14, which once preceded ch 9) secures David’s hold on the throne. Only Mephibosheth, Jonathan’s crippled son, remains alive, and David keeps a watchful eye on him by bringing him to the royal court (ch 9). Even when David commits adultery with Bathsheba and arranges for the death of her husband, it has been argued, David’s repentance is exemplary and is immediately accepted (12.13). However, other readers point precisely to David's adultery and his inability to control his children as evidence that the Court History paints both David and the monarchy in a very negative light. It is fair to say that 2 Samuel in its current form depicts David as a complex, highly ambiguous character who is blessed by the LORD.

GUIDE TO READING

As with 1 Samuel, the story in 2 Samuel is best read sequentially. Characterization exemplified by deeds and speeches is even more significant in 2 Samuel than in 1 Samuel. The array of characters can bewilder new readers, so that keeping tabs on the identities of characters and their relationship to David can be useful. Minute, seemingly insignificant details in the narrative are worthy of note as they often signal points of historical or literary significance beneath the surface. Readers do well to ask which characters—especially David—benefit from events that are reported and whether those characters may have been responsible for bringing them about. As in 1 Samuel, a narrative that “protests too much” may lead the critical reader to question whether apologetic interest has replaced historical accuracy. For example, David benefits from Abner's death (3.20–39), and the narrative's repeated assertion that David dismissed Abner in peace and knew nothing about Joab's plan to murder him may lead one to suspect that the narrator is trying to counter just such a charge and even to speculate that David had some role in Abner's death.

The final four chapters of 2 Samuel contain six passages arranged in symmetrical order: narrative, list, poem, poem, list, narrative. The list (23.1–7) provides David's “last words,” in the tradition of other leading biblical characters.

Steven L. McKenzie

1 After the death of Saul, when David had returned from defeating the Amalekites, David remained two days in Ziklag. ²On the third day, a man came from Saul's camp, with his clothes torn and dirt on his head. When he came to David, he fell to the ground and did obeisance. ³David said to him, “Where have you come from?” He said to him, “I have escaped from the camp of Israel.” ⁴David said to him, “How did things go? Tell me!” He answered, “The army fled from the battle, but also many of the army fell and died; and Saul and his son Jonathan also died.” ⁵Then David asked the young man who was reporting to him, “How do you know that Saul and his son Jonathan died?” ⁶The young man reporting to him said, “I happened to be on Mount Gilboa; and there was Saul leaning on his spear, while the chariots and the horsemen drew close to him. ⁷When he looked behind him, he saw me, and called to me. I answered, ‘Here sir.’ ⁸And he said to me, ‘Who are you?’ I answered him, ‘I am an Amalekite.’ ⁹He said to me, ‘Come, stand over me and kill me; for convulsions have seized me, and yet my life still lingers.’ ¹⁰So I stood over him, and killed him, for I knew that he could not live after he had fallen. I took the crown that was on his head and the armlet that was on his arm, and I have brought them here to my lord.”

¹¹Then David took hold of his clothes and tore them; and all the men who were with him did the same. ¹²They mourned and wept, and fasted until evening for Saul and for his son Jonathan, and for the army of the LORD and for the house of Israel, because they had fallen by the sword. ¹³David said to the young man who had reported to him, “Where do you come from?” He answered, “I am the son of a resident alien, an Amalekite.” ¹⁴David

1.1–16: David learns of the death of Saul and Jonathan. Some scholars think this is a separate tradition of the account in 1 Sam 31, with which it disagrees. Another possibility is that the man who brings the news to David changes the story for his own benefit. 1.2: Tearing clothes and scattering dust on the head were conventional signs of mourning. 6: The young man's claim that he happened to be on Mount Gilboa in the heat of battle is probably a lie (see v. 10). 8: Amalekite, David has just come from successfully pursuing Amalekites (1 Sam 30), who are depicted as scavengers. It is ironic that an Amalekite killed Saul, who (according to 1 Sam 15) lost his kingship because he did not kill off the Amalekites. 10: The Amalekite stripped Saul's corpse and brought the crown and said to him, “Were you not afraid to lift your hand to destroy the LORD’s anointed?”¹⁵ Then David called one of the young men and said, “Come here and strike him down.” So he struck him down and he died.¹⁶ David said to him, “Your blood be on your head; for your own mouth has testified against you, saying, ‘I have killed the LORD’s anointed.’”

¹⁷David intoned this lamentation over Saul and his son Jonathan.¹⁸ (He ordered that The Song of the Bow^a be taught to the people of Judah; it is written in the Book of Jashar.) He said:

¹⁹Your glory, O Israel, lies slain upon your high places!

How the mighty have fallen!

²⁰Tell it not in Gath,
proclaim it not in the streets of Ashkelon;
or the daughters of the Philistines will
rejoice,
the daughters of the uncircumcised will exult.

²¹You mountains of Gilboa,
let there be no dew or rain upon you,
nor bounteous fields!^b
For there the shield of the mighty was defiled,
the shield of Saul, anointed with oil no
more.

²²From the blood of the slain,
from the fat of the mighty,
the bow of Jonathan did not turn back,
nor the sword of Saul return empty.

²³Saul and Jonathan, beloved and lovely!
In life and in death they were not divided;

they were swifter than eagles,
they were stronger than lions.

²⁴O daughters of Israel, weep over Saul, who clothed you with crimson, in luxury,
who put ornaments of gold on your apparel.

²⁵How the mighty have fallen in the midst of the battle!

Jonathan lies slain upon your high places.

²⁶I am distressed for you, my brother Jonathan;
greatly beloved were you to me;
your love to me was wonderful,
passing the love of women.

²⁷How the mighty have fallen,
and the weapons of war perished!

2 After this David inquired of the LORD, “Shall I go up into any of the cities of Judah?” The LORD said to him, “Go up.” David said, “To which shall I go up?” He said, “To Hebron.”² So David went up there, along with his two wives, Ahinoam of Jezreel, and Abigail the widow of Nabal of Carmel.³ David brought up the men who were with

^a Heb that The Bow

^b Meaning of Heb uncertain

armlet, symbols of kingship, to David hoping for a reward. 12: Fasting was another sign of mourning. 13–16: As a resident alien, the Amalekite was subject to the same laws as an Israelite citizen, and therefore David holds him responsible for killing the LORD’s anointed.

1.17–27: David’s elegy over Saul and Jonathan. Many scholars consider plausible the text’s attribution of authorship to David himself. 18: Song of the Bow, the Hebrew has simply “bow.” If not a copyist’s mistake, this may refer to a type of song or a title. Book of Jashar, a lost collection of poems (see Josh 10.13). 19: Your glory, an allusion to Saul and Jonathan. 20: Gath, Ashkelon, Philistine cities. Uncircumcised, a disparaging term for the Philistines. 21: Mountains of Gilboa, the site of the battle where Saul and Jonathan were killed. Shields were made of leather and were anointed with oil to keep them battle-ready. 24: Saul’s reign brought prosperity to Israel. 26: Passing the love of women expresses the closeness of David’s relationship to Jonathan but does not necessarily imply a sexual relationship.

2.1–11: David becomes king of Judah. 1: Inquired, probably by means of the ephod and Urim and Thummim (1 Sam 14.3,41; 28.6; 30.7–8). Hebron, principal city of the Calebites (see Josh 14.13; Judg 1.20), the leading clan in Judah and also the traditional site of the tombs of Israel’s ancestors (Gen 23.19; 25.9; 49.29–32). 2: Ahinoam of Jezreel, Abigail the widow of Nabal of Carmel, see 1 Sam 25, esp. v. 43. Both women were from the Calebite region.

him, every one with his household; and they settled in the towns of Hebron. ⁴ Then the people of Judah came, and there they anointed David king over the house of Judah.

When they told David, “It was the people of Jabesh-gilead who buried Saul,” ⁵ David sent messengers to the people of Jabesh-gilead, and said to them, “May you be blessed by the LORD, because you showed this loyalty to Saul your lord, and buried him! ⁶ Now may the LORD show steadfast love and faithfulness to you! And I too will reward you because you have done this thing. ⁷ Therefore let your hands be strong, and be valiant; for Saul your lord is dead, and the house of Judah has anointed me king over them.”

⁸ But Abner son of Ner, commander of Saul’s army, had taken Ishbaal^a son of Saul, and brought him over to Mahanaim. ⁹ He made him king over Gilead, the Ashurites, Jezreel, Ephraim, Benjamin, and over all Israel. ¹⁰ Ishbaal,^a Saul’s son, was forty years old when he began to reign over Israel, and he reigned two years. But the house of Judah followed David. ¹¹ The time that David was king in Hebron over the house of Judah was seven years and six months.

¹² Abner son of Ner, and the servants of Ishbaal^a son of Saul, went out from Mahanaim to Gibeon. ¹³ Joab son of Zeruiah, and the servants of David, went out and met them at the pool of Gibeon. One group sat on one side of the pool, while the other sat on the other side of the pool. ¹⁴ Abner said to Joab, “Let the young men come forward and have a contest before us.” Joab said, “Let them come forward.” ¹⁵ So they came forward and were counted as they passed by, twelve for Benjamin and Ishbaal^a son of Saul, and twelve of the servants of David. ¹⁶ Each grasped his opponent by the head, and thrust his sword in his opponent’s side; so they fell down together. Therefore that place was called Helkath-hazzurim,^b which is at Gibeon. ¹⁷ The battle was very fierce that day; and Abner and the men of Israel were beaten by the servants of David.

¹⁸ The three sons of Zeruiah were there, Joab, Abishai, and Asahel. Now Asahel was as swift of foot as a wild gazelle. ¹⁹ Asahel pursued Abner, turning neither to the right nor to the left as he followed him. ²⁰ Then Abner looked back and said, “Is it you, Asahel?” He answered, “Yes, it is.” ²¹ Abner said to him, “Turn to your right or to your left, and seize one of the young men, and take his spoil.” But Asahel would not turn away from following him. ²² Abner said again to Asahel, “Turn away from following me; why should I strike you to the ground? How then could I show my face to your brother Joab?” ²³ But he refused to turn away. So Abner struck him in the stomach with the butt of his spear, so that the spear came out at his back. He fell there, and died where he lay. And all those who came to the place where Asahel had fallen and died, stood still.

^a Gk Compare 1 Chr 8.33; 9.39: Heb Ish-bosheth, “man of shame”

^b That is Field of Sword-edges

Nabal had been a leading Calebite, and marriage to his wife strengthened David’s claims to the throne of Judah. 4: David’s gifts to the elders of Judah (1 Sam 30.26–31) further helped his bid to be their king. Jabesh-gilead, see 1 Sam 11; 31.11–13. 5–7: In wooing Jabesh-gilead, David is seeking to win over the strongest enclave of support for Saul. His overture to Jabesh is likely what sparked the military response by Abner (v. 12). 8: Ishbaal (Heb “Ish-bosheth”), pious scribes substituted the word “boshet,” meaning “shame,” for the name of the Canaanite god Baal. But Heb “ba’al” can also simply mean “lord” and might have been an epithet for Yahweh. The original form of the name, Ishbaal (a difference of a single letter in Heb), is preserved in 1 Chr 8.33; 9.39 and in some early Greek translations. Mahanaim was east of the Jordan in Gilead. Abner was forced to go there because the Philistines controlled the territory west of the Jordan. 9: This list of Ishbaal’s domains is idealistic at best considering the Philistine domination. “Ashurites” should probably read “Geshurites.” Geshur was the region north of Gilead.

2.12–32: War between Israel and Judah. 14–17: This contest, the exact nature of which is unclear, quickly turned to war. 18: Zeruiah, David’s sister, according to 1 Chr 2.16. 19–23: Asahel’s death provides the motive for

²⁴But Joab and Abishai pursued Abner. As the sun was going down they came to the hill of Ammah, which lies before Giah on the way to the wilderness of Gibeon. ²⁵The Benjaminites rallied around Abner and formed a single band; they took their stand on the top of a hill. ²⁶Then Abner called to Joab, “Is the sword to keep devouring forever? Do you not know that the end will be bitter? How long will it be before you order your people to turn from the pursuit of their kinsmen?” ²⁷Joab said, “As God lives, if you had not spoken, the people would have continued to pursue their kinsmen, not stopping until morning.” ²⁸Joab sounded the trumpet and all the people stopped; they no longer pursued Israel or engaged in battle any further.

²⁹Abner and his men traveled all that night through the Arabah; they crossed the Jordan, and, marching the whole forenoon,^a they came to Mahanaim. ³⁰Joab returned from the pursuit of Abner; and when he had gathered all the people together, there were missing of David’s servants nineteen men besides Asahel. ³¹But the servants of David had killed of Benjamin three hundred sixty of Abner’s men. ³²They took up Asahel and buried him in the tomb of his father, which was at Beth-lehem. Joab and his men marched all night, and the day broke upon them at Hebron.

3 There was a long war between the house of Saul and the house of David; David grew stronger and stronger, while the house of Saul became weaker and weaker.

²Sons were born to David at Hebron: his firstborn was Amnon, of Ahinoam of Jezreel; ³his second, Chileab, of Abigail the widow of Nabal of Carmel; the third, Absalom son of Maacah, daughter of King Talmai of Geshur; ⁴the fourth, Adonijah son of Haggith; the fifth, Shephatiah son of Abital; ⁵and the sixth, Ithream, of David’s wife Eglah. These were born to David in Hebron.

⁶While there was war between the house of Saul and the house of David, Abner was making himself strong in the house of Saul. ⁷Now Saul had a concubine whose name was Rizpah daughter of Aiah. And Ishbaal^b said to Abner, “Why have you gone in to my father’s concubine?” ⁸The words of Ishbaal^c made Abner very angry; he said, “Am I a dog’s head for Judah? Today I keep showing loyalty to the house of your father Saul, to his brothers, and to his friends, and have not given you into the hand of David; and yet you charge me now with a crime concerning this woman. ⁹So may God do to Abner and so may he add to it! For just what the LORD has sworn to David, that will I accomplish for him, ¹⁰to transfer the kingdom from the house of Saul, and set up the throne of David over Israel and over Judah, from Dan to Beer-sheba.” ¹¹And Ishbaal^b could not answer Abner another word, because he feared him.

¹²Abner sent messengers to David at Hebron,^d saying, “To whom does the land be-

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Heb And he

^c Gk Compare 1 Chr 8.33; 9.39: Heb Ish-bosheth, “man of shame”

^d Gk: Heb where he was

Joab’s murder of Abner in 3.26–30. 29: Arabah, the rift valley of which the Jordan valley is a part.

3.1–5: David’s sons. 1: The suggestion that there was a long war indicates that Saul and his family received more popular support than the book of 1 Samuel might imply. 2: Amnon, see ch 13. Ahinoam, see 1 Sam 25.43; 2 Sam 2.2. 3: Nothing more is known of Chileab, who apparently died young; in the LXX his name is Dalouia, and in 1 Chr 3.1 he is called Daniel. Abigail, see 1 Sam 25. Absalom, see chs 13–18. Geshur, see 2.9n. David’s marriage to Maacah indicates that he had a political alliance with her father, King Talmai. 4–5: Adonijah, see 1 Kings 1. Shephatiah and Ithream are mentioned only here and in 1 Chr 3.3.

3.6–39: Abner’s death. 7: Concubine, a woman (usually a slave) acquired for sexual purposes. To sleep with a member of the royal harem was to claim the throne (see 16.21–22; 1 Kings 2.13–25). Hence, Ishbaal’s question is tantamount to an accusation of treason. 8: Dog’s head, used only here in the Bible, this expression is obviously reproachful, but its origin is unknown, although comparison to a dog or a dead dog is a frequent form of self-deprecation (see 9.8; 2 Kings 18.3). Abner does not deny Ishbaal’s accusation but is contemptuous. Although the power is his (2.8–9), he has been loyal to Ishbaal. 10: From Dan to Beer-sheba, the traditional northern and southern limits of Israel. 12: Abner offers to join David and bring the army with him. The author thereby shows that David had no motive for killing Abner. 13: David demands the return of Saul’s daughter Michal because long? Make your covenant with me, and I will give you my support to bring all Israel over to you.”¹³ He said, “Good; I will make a covenant with you. But one thing I require of you: you shall never appear in my presence unless you bring Saul’s daughter Michal when you come to see me.”¹⁴ Then David sent messengers to Saul’s son Ishbaal,^a saying, “Give me my wife Michal, to whom I became engaged at the price of one hundred foreskins of the Philistines.”¹⁵ Ishbaal^a sent and took her from her husband Paltiel the son of Laish.¹⁶ But her husband went with her, weeping as he walked behind her all the way to Bahurim. Then Abner said to him, “Go back home!” So he went back.

¹⁷ Abner sent word to the elders of Israel, saying, “For some time past you have been seeking David as king over you.¹⁸ Now then bring it about; for the LORD has promised David: Through my servant David I will save my people Israel from the hand of the Philistines, and from all their enemies.”¹⁹ Abner also spoke directly to the Benjaminites; then Abner went to tell David at Hebron all that Israel and the whole house of Benjamin were ready to do.

²⁰ When Abner came with twenty men to David at Hebron, David made a feast for Abner and the men who were with him.²¹ Abner said to David, “Let me go and rally all Israel to my lord the king, in order that they may make a covenant with you, and that you may reign over all that your heart desires.” So David dismissed Abner, and he went away in peace.

²² Just then the servants of David arrived with Joab from a raid, bringing much spoil with them. But Abner was not with David at Hebron, for David^b had dismissed him, and he had gone away in peace.²³ When Joab and all the army that was with him came, it was told

Joab, “Abner son of Ner came to the king, and he has dismissed him, and he has gone away in peace.”²⁴ Then Joab went to the king and said, “What have you done? Abner came to you; why did you dismiss him, so that he got away?”²⁵ You know that Abner son of Ner came to deceive you, and to learn your comings and goings and to learn all that you are doing.”

²⁶ When Joab came out from David’s presence, he sent messengers after Abner, and they brought him back from the cistern of Sirah; but David did not know about it.²⁷ When Abner returned to Hebron, Joab took him aside in the gateway to speak with him privately, and there he stabbed him in the stomach. So he died for shedding^c the blood of Asahel, Joab’s^d brother.²⁸ Afterward, when David heard of it, he said, “I and my kingdom are forever guiltless before the LORD for the blood of Abner son of Ner.²⁹ May the guilt^e fall on the head of Joab, and on all his father’s house; and may the house of Joab never be without one who has a discharge, or who is leprous,^f or who holds a spindle, or who falls by the sword, or who lacks food!”³⁰ So Joab and his brother Abishai murdered Abner because he had killed their brother Asahel in the battle at Gibeon.

³¹ Then David said to Joab and to all the people who were with him, “Tear your clothes, and put on sackcloth, and mourn over Abner.” And King David followed the

^a Heb Ish-bosheth

^b Heb he

^c Heb lacks shedding

^d Heb his

^e Heb May it

^f A term for several skin diseases; precise meaning uncertain

it is through her that he claims a right to Saul’s kingdom. 14: See 1 Sam 18.20–29. 15: It is not clear why Ishbaal returns Michal to David. Some scholars have suggested that he was under legal obligation. Paltiel, or Palti (1 Sam 25.44). 17: The elders of Israel, the tribal leaders. 18: The Philistines, Israel’s principal enemy in 1 Samuel, whose defeat of Saul (1 Sam 31) meant that they were still a problem for David, which he will resolve in 5.17–25; cf. 21.15–22. 19: Benjamin, the tribe of both Saul and Abner; they would be the most reluctant to make David, a non-Benjaminite, king. 21: In peace, repeated in the following verses; the writer emphasizes (perhaps too much) David’s noninvolvement in Abner’s death. 25: Comings and goings, military maneuvers. Joab accuses Abner of spying. 26–27: The writer stresses that Joab, seeking to avenge his brother (2.18–23), acted alone. Some have suggested that Joab also feared losing his position as army commander to Abner (see 19.13; 20.8–10). 29: While David curses Joab, he does not now punish him (but see 1 Kings 2.5–6). Spindle, better: “crutch.” 30: Abishai is not mentioned in the story but may have helped Joab plan Abner’s murder. 31: Sackcloth, material worn by bier.³² They buried Abner at Hebron. The king lifted up his voice and wept at the grave of Abner, and all the people wept.³³ The king lamented for Abner, saying,

“Should Abner die as a fool dies?”

³⁴ Your hands were not bound,
your feet were not fettered;
as one falls before the wicked
you have fallen.”

And all the people wept over him again.

³⁵ Then all the people came to persuade David to eat something while it was still day; but David swore, saying, “So may God do to me, and more, if I taste bread or anything else before the sun goes down!”³⁶ All the people took notice of it, and it pleased them; just as everything the king did pleased all the people.³⁷ So all the people and all Israel understood that day that the king had no part in the killing of Abner son of Ner.³⁸ And the king said to his servants, “Do you not know that a prince and a great man has fallen this day in Israel?³⁹ Today I am powerless, even though anointed king; these men, the sons of Zeruiah, are too violent for me. The LORD pay back the one who does wickedly in accordance with his wickedness!”

4 When Saul’s son Ishbaal^a heard that Abner had died at Hebron, his courage failed, and all Israel was dismayed.² Saul’s son had two captains of raiding bands; the name of the one was Baanah, and the name of the other Rechab. They were sons of Rimmon a Benjaminite from Beeroth—for Beeroth is considered to belong to Benjamin.³ (Now the people of Beeroth had fled to Gittaim and are there as resident aliens to this day).

⁴ Saul’s son Jonathan had a son who was crippled in his feet. He was five years old when the news about Saul and Jonathan came from Jezreel. His nurse picked him up and fled; and, in her haste to flee, it happened that he fell and became lame. His name was Mephibosheth.^b

⁵ Now the sons of Rimmon the Beerothite, Rechab and Baanah, set out, and about the heat of the day they came to the house of Ishbaal,^c while he was taking his noonday rest.⁶ They came inside the house as though to take wheat, and they struck him in the stomach; then Rechab and his brother Baanah escaped.^d Now they had come into the house while he was lying on his couch in his bedchamber; they attacked him, killed him, and beheaded him. Then they took his head and traveled by way of the Arabah all night long.⁸ They brought the head of Ishbaal^c to David at Hebron and said to the king, “Here is the head of Ishbaal,^c son of Saul, your enemy, who sought your life; the LORD has avenged my lord the king this day on Saul and on his offspring.”

⁹ David answered Rechab and his brother Baanah, the sons of Rimmon the Beerothite, “As the LORD lives, who has redeemed my life out of every adversity,¹⁰ when the one who told me, ‘See, Saul is dead,’ thought he was bringing good news, I seized him and killed him at Ziklag—this was the reward I gave him for his news.¹¹ How much more then, when wicked men have killed a righteous man on his bed in his own house! And now shall I not require his blood at your hand, and destroy you from the earth?”¹² So David commanded the young men, and they killed them; they cut off their hands and feet, and hung their bodies beside the pool at Hebron. But the head of Ishbaal^c they took and buried in the tomb of Abner at Hebron.

^a Heb lacks Ishbaal

^b In 1 Chr 8.34 and 9.40, Merib-baal

^c Heb Ish-bosheth

^d Meaning of Heb of verse 6 uncertain

mourners. 33: Fool (Heb “nabal”) recalls the story in 1 Sam 25. 35–39: These verses continue to stress (perhaps too strongly) David’s lack of involvement in Abner’s death.

4.1–12: The assassination of Ishbaal. Here too the author stresses that David was in no way involved in the death of his enemy. 3: An explanation of how Beeroth came to be considered a Benjaminite city; the event referred to here is otherwise unknown. 4: Mephibosheth, the original form of the name was Merib-baal (1 Chr 8.34; 9.40), cf. 2.8n. 7: Arabah, see 2.29n. 8: The assassins bring Ishbaal’s head to David, expecting a reward for killing his enemy. 9–10: See 1.1–16. 11: A righteous man, David does not recognize Ishbaal’s kingship and therefore does not call him the LORD’s anointed. 12: Execution of this nature was reserved for traitors.

The kingdom of David according to Second Samuel. The dashed line shows the approximate boundary of the kingdom at its greatest extent.

5 Then all the tribes of Israel came to David at Hebron, and said, “Look, we are your bone and flesh.”² For some time, while Saul was king over us, it was you who led out Israel and brought it in. The LORD said to you: It is you who shall be shepherd of my people Israel, you who shall be ruler over Israel.”

³ So all the elders of Israel came to the king at Hebron; and King David made a covenant with them at Hebron before the LORD, and they anointed David king over Israel. ⁴ David was thirty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned forty years. ⁵ At Hebron he reigned over Judah seven years and six months; and at Jerusalem he reigned over all Israel and Judah thirty-three years.

⁶ The king and his men marched to Jerusalem against the Jebusites, the inhabitants of the land, who said to David, “You will not come in here, even the blind and the lame will turn you back”—thinking, “David cannot come in here.”⁷ Nevertheless David took the stronghold of Zion, which is now the city of David. ⁸ David had said on that day, “Whoever would strike down the Jebusites, let him get up the water shaft to attack the lame and the blind, those whom David hates.”^a Therefore it is said, “The blind and the lame shall not come into the house.”⁹ David occupied the stronghold, and named it the city of David. David built the city all around from the Millo inward. ¹⁰ And David became greater and greater, for the LORD, the God of hosts, was with him.

¹¹ King Hiram of Tyre sent messengers to David, along with cedar trees, and carpenters and masons who built David a house. ¹² David then perceived that the LORD had established him king over Israel, and that he had exalted his kingdom for the sake of his people Israel.

¹³ In Jerusalem, after he came from Hebron, David took more concubines and wives; and more sons and daughters were born to David. ¹⁴ These are the names of those who were born to him in Jerusalem: Shammua, Shobab, Nathan, Solomon, ¹⁵ Ibhar, Elishua, Nepheg, Japhia, ¹⁶ Elishama, Eliada, and Eliphelet.

¹⁷ When the Philistines heard that David had been anointed king over Israel, all the Philistines went up in search of David; but David heard about it and went down to the stronghold. ¹⁸ Now the Philistines had come and spread out in the valley of Rephaim.

¹⁹ David inquired of the LORD, “Shall I go up against the Philistines? Will you give them into my hand?” The LORD said to David, “Go up; for I will certainly give the Philistines into your hand.”²⁰ So David came to Baalperazim, and David defeated them there. He

^a Another reading is those who hate David

5.1–16: David becomes king of all Israel and conquers Jerusalem. 1: All the tribes of Israel, the northern tribes, excluding Judah where David is already king (2.4). 2: Led out and brought . . . in are idioms for military leadership. Shepherd, a common metaphor for kings. Ruler, “king designate” (translated “prince” in 7.8). 3: Elders, senior tribal leaders. 4: Forty years, a round number for a generation. The actual length of David’s reign is not certain, but scholars have proposed ca. 1005–965 BCE as likely dates. 6–8: Exactly how David conquered Jerusalem is not clear. The parallel in 1 Chr 11.5–6 leaves out these verses, perhaps indicating that the Chronicler found them confusing. The account may be an etiology for the saying in v. 8. 6: Jebusites, one group of pre-Israelite inhabitants of the land; see Gen 15.21; Ex 3.8; etc. 7: Zion, one of the hills on which Jerusalem stood; it becomes a name for the city as a whole. 8: One scholar has argued that get up the water shaft means “strike at the wind pipe” so as to kill the enemy rather than leaving any wounded (blind and lame). The saying may refer to the prohibition in Lev 21.18. 9: City of David, Jerusalem’s location between Israel and Judah was ideal for a neutral capital in David’s effort to unite the two. Millo, meaning “fill,” apparently refers to a landfill or artificial platform created near the stronghold. 11: Tyre, the capital of Phoenicia, the country north of Israel. Cedar, a luxury item for which Lebanon in Phoenician territory was renowned. 13–16: A large harem was a sign of royal prestige. Marriages were also a way of sealing treaties with foreign powers. Solomon is born later (12.24); these verses are an anticipatory summary. Alternatively, the mention of Solomon here may suggest that the material has been organized thematically rather than chronologically. A list of sons born to David in Hebron was given in 2 Sam 3.2–5.

5.17–25: War with the Philistines. 17: David’s defeat of the Philistines (see 3.18n.) probably preceded his conquest of Jerusalem, since they stood between Hebron and Jerusalem and would have resisted the unification of Israel and Judah. The stronghold, probably Adullam (see 1 Sam 22.1), not Jerusalem. 18: The valley of Rephaim, said, “The LORD has burst forth against^a my enemies before me, like a bursting flood.”

Therefore that place is called Baal-perazim.^b

²¹ The Philistines abandoned their idols there, and David and his men carried them away.

²² Once again the Philistines came up, and were spread out in the valley of Rephaim.

²³ When David inquired of the LORD, he said, “You shall not go up; go around to their rear, and come upon them opposite the balsam trees.”

²⁴ When you hear the sound of marching in the tops of the balsam trees, then be on the alert; for then the LORD has gone out before you to strike down the army of the Philistines.” ²⁵ David did just as the LORD had commanded him; and he struck down the Philistines from Geba all the way to Gezer.

6 David again gathered all the chosen men of Israel, thirty thousand. ² David and all the people with him set out and went from Baale-judah, to bring up from there the ark of God, which is called by the name of the LORD of hosts who is enthroned on the cherubim. ³ They carried the ark of God on a new cart, and brought it out of the house of Abinadab, which was on the hill. Uzzah and Ahio,^c the sons of Abinadab, were driving the new cart ⁴ with the ark of God;^d and Ahio^c went in front of the ark. ⁵ David and all the house of Israel were dancing before the LORD with all their might, with songs^e and lyres and harps and tambourines and castanets and cymbals.

⁶ When they came to the threshing floor of Nacon, Uzzah reached out his hand to the ark of God and took hold of it, for the oxen shook it. ⁷ The anger of the LORD was kindled against Uzzah; and God struck him there because he reached out his hand to the ark;^f and he died there beside the ark of God. ⁸ David was angry because the LORD had burst forth with an outburst upon Uzzah; so that place is called Perez-uzzah,^g to this day. ⁹ David was afraid of the LORD that day; he said, “How can the ark of the LORD come into my care?” ¹⁰ So David was unwilling to take the ark of the LORD into his care in the city of David; instead David took it to the house of Obed-edom the Gittite. ¹¹ The ark of the LORD remained in the house of Obed-edom the Gittite three months; and the LORD blessed Obed-edom and all his household.

¹² It was told King David, “The LORD has blessed the household of Obed-edom and all that belongs to him, because of the ark of God.” So David went and brought up the ark of God from the house of Obed-edom to the city of David with rejoicing; ¹³ and when those who bore the ark of the LORD had gone six paces, he sacrificed an ox and a fatling. ¹⁴ David danced before the LORD with all his might; David was girded with a linen ephod. ¹⁵ So David and all the house of Israel brought up the ark of the LORD with shouting, and with the sound of the trumpet.

^a Heb paraz

^b That is Lord of Bursting Forth

^c Or and his brother

^d Compare Gk: Heb and brought it out of the house of Abinadab, which was on the hill with the ark of God

^e QMs Gk 1 Chr 13.8: Heb fir trees

^f 1 Chr 13.10 Compare QMs: Meaning of Heb uncertain

^g That is Bursting Out Against Uzzah

probably located southwest of Jerusalem. 19: David inquired, see 2.1n. 20: An etiology explaining the name Baal-perazim (see note b); Yahweh and Baal are here equated. 21: A victorious army typically captured the religious symbols that its opponent brought to the battlefield to show the superiority of its own gods; this is an ironic reversal of 1 Sam 4.5–11. 24: The one marching is the Divine Warrior—the LORD—coming out to fight on Israel’s behalf. 25: From Geba near Jerusalem all the way to Gezer near the border of Philistine territory.

6.1–23: David brings the ark to Jerusalem. 1: Thousand probably designates a military unit of much smaller size. 2: Baale-judah, another name for Kiriath-jearim, according to Josh 15.9, where the ark was left in 1 Sam 7.1. The ark of God was viewed as the throne of the LORD. Having it in Jerusalem would make the city the religious as well as the political capital. Cherubim, mythical griffins that often guarded temples and palaces (see 1 Sam 4.4n.). 6–8: Uzzah’s death shows the awesome holiness of the ark, which was not to be touched, even with the best intentions. The story is also an etiology explaining the name Perez-uzzah (“Uzzah’s breach”). 10: Obed-edom the Gittite (i.e., from Gath) was apparently among the Philistines who followed David from his days with Achish (1 Sam 27; 29). 13–14: He sacrificed, David officiates as a priest here, which was not unusual for kings in the ancient Near East (8.18; 1 Kings 3.15; 9.25; Gen 14.18). Linen ephod, an apron typically worn by priests (1 Sam

¹⁶As the ark of the LORD came into the city of David, Michal daughter of Saul looked out of the window, and saw King David leaping and dancing before the LORD; and she despised him in her heart.

¹⁷They brought in the ark of the LORD, and set it in its place, inside the tent that David had pitched for it; and David offered burnt offerings and offerings of well-being before the LORD. ¹⁸When David had finished offering the burnt offerings and the offerings of well-being, he blessed the people in the name of the LORD of hosts, ¹⁹and distributed food among all the people, the whole multitude of Israel, both men and women, to each a cake of bread, a portion of meat,^a and a cake of raisins. Then all the people went back to their homes.

²⁰David returned to bless his household. But Michal the daughter of Saul came out to meet David, and said, “How the king of Israel honored himself today, uncovering himself today before the eyes of his servants’ maids, as any vulgar fellow might shamelessly uncover himself!” ²¹David said to Michal, “It was before the LORD, who chose me in place of your father and all his household, to appoint me as prince over Israel, the people of the LORD, that I have danced before the LORD. ²²I will make myself yet more contemptible than this, and I will be abased in my own eyes; but by the maids of whom you have spoken, by them I shall be held in honor.” ²³And Michal the daughter of Saul had no child to the day of her death.

7 Now when the king was settled in his house, and the LORD had given him rest from all his enemies around him, ²the king said to the prophet Nathan, “See now, I am living in a house of cedar, but the ark of God stays in a tent.” ³Nathan said to the king, “Go, do all that you have in mind; for the LORD is with you.”

⁴But that same night the word of the LORD came to Nathan: ⁵Go and tell my servant David: Thus says the LORD: Are you the one to build me a house to live in? ⁶I have not lived in a house since the day I brought up the people of Israel from Egypt to this day, but I have been moving about in a tent and a tabernacle. ⁷Wherever I have moved about among all the people of Israel, did I ever speak a word with any of the tribal leaders^b of Israel, whom I commanded to shepherd my people Israel, saying, “Why have you not built me a house of cedar?” ⁸Now therefore thus you shall say to my servant David: Thus says the LORD of hosts: I took you from the pasture, from following the sheep to be prince over my people Israel; ⁹and I have been with you wherever you went, and have cut off all your enemies from before you; and I will make for

^a Vg: Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Or any of the tribes

2.18). Apparently David is wearing little else (see v. 20). 20: Michal accuses David of fraternizing with the lowest element of society, implying that he is not dignified enough to be king. 21–22: David replies that he has been humbling himself before the LORD and that the LORD was pleased enough with him to make him king in place of her father, Saul. 23: Michal . . . had no child, probably because David had no relations with her since her children would have been Saul’s heirs and a threat to David’s rule.

7:1–29: A dynasty for David. This chapter with the LORD’s promise to David of an eternal dynasty is a key passage in the Deuteronomistic History. It combines the themes of Jerusalem as the divinely chosen center for worship and the Davidic line as the chosen dynasty in Judah. God’s promise of an eternal dynasty (vv. 13–16) explains Judah’s survival beyond the destruction of the Northern Kingdom of Israel in 722 BCE. The language and style of the chapter are thoroughly Deuteronomistic, although many scholars believe one or more older oracles underlie vv. 1–7. This promise is reflected in various forms in the Deuteronomistic History and in Pss 89 and 132, as well as in Chronicles. Some of these texts temper the unconditional, eternal nature of the promise. 1: The LORD had given him rest from all his enemies around him, this statement is inconsistent with the accounts of David’s wars in chs 8–20 and with 1 Kings 5.3–4, which says that rest came only to Solomon. It is also inconsistent with v. 11, which indicates that the “rest” lies in the future. It is not in the parallel in 1 Chr 17.1. 2: In a tent, the tabernacle. 4–17: The LORD’s promise to David. 5–7: The house (“bayit”) David proposes to build is a temple. The LORD says instead (v. 11) that he will build David a house (“bayit”), that is, a dynasty. The claim in vv. 6–7 that the LORD has never had a house (i.e., temple) seems to overlook the temple in Shiloh (1 Sam 1–3). 8: Following the sheep, see 1 Sam 17.15, 34. Kings in the ancient Near East were often described as shepherds; see 24.17;

you a great name, like the name of the great ones of the earth. ¹⁰ And I will appoint a place for my people Israel and will plant them, so that they may live in their own place, and be disturbed no more; and evildoers shall afflict them no more, as formerly, ¹¹ from the time that I appointed judges over my people Israel; and I will give you rest from all your enemies. Moreover the LORD declares to you that the LORD will make you a house. ¹² When your days are fulfilled and you lie down with your ancestors, I will raise up your offspring after you, who shall come forth from your body, and I will establish his kingdom. ¹³ He shall build a house for my name, and I will establish the throne of his kingdom forever. ¹⁴ I will be a father to him, and he shall be a son to me. When he commits iniquity, I will punish him with a rod such as mortals use, with blows inflicted by human beings. ¹⁵ But I will not take^a my steadfast love from him, as I took it from Saul, whom I put away from before you. ¹⁶ Your house and your kingdom shall be made sure forever before me;^b your throne shall be established forever. ¹⁷ In accordance with all these words and with all this vision, Nathan spoke to David.

¹⁸ Then King David went in and sat before the LORD, and said, “Who am I, O Lord God, and what is my house, that you have brought me thus far? ¹⁹ And yet this was a small thing in your eyes, O Lord God; you have spoken also of your servant’s house for a great while to come. May this be instruction for the people,^c O Lord God! ²⁰ And what more can David say to you? For you know your servant, O Lord God! ²¹ Because of your promise, and according to your own heart, you have wrought all this greatness, so that your servant may know it. ²² Therefore you are great, O LORD God; for there is no one like you, and there is no God besides you, according to all that we have heard with our ears. ²³ Who is like your people, like Israel? Is there another^d nation on earth whose God went to redeem it as a people, and to make a name for himself, doing great and awesome things for them,^e by driving out^f before his people nations and their gods?^g ²⁴ And you established your people Israel for yourself to be your people forever; and you, O LORD, became their God. ²⁵ And now, O LORD God, as for the word that you have spoken concerning your servant and concerning his house, confirm it forever; do as you have promised. ²⁶ Thus your name will be magnified forever in the saying, ‘The LORD of hosts is God over Israel’; and the house of your servant David will be established before you. ²⁷ For you, O LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, have made this revelation to your servant, saying, ‘I will build you a house’; therefore your servant has found courage to pray this prayer to you. ²⁸ And now, O Lord God, you are God, and your words are true, and you have promised this good thing to your servant; ²⁹ now therefore may it please you to bless the house of your servant, so that it may continue forever before you; for you, O Lord God, have spoken, and with your blessing shall the house of your servant be blessed forever.”

8 Some time afterward, David attacked the Philistines and subdued them; David took Metheg-ammah out of the hand of the Philistines.

^a Gk Syr Vg 1 Chr 17.13: Heb shall not depart

^b Gk Heb Mss: MT before you; Compare 2 Sam 7.26, 29

^c Meaning of Heb uncertain

^d Gk: Heb one

^e Heb you

^f Gk 1 Chr 17.21: Heb for your land

^g Cn: Heb before your people, whom you redeemed for yourself from Egypt, nations and its gods

1 Chr 11.2; Ps 78.70; Isa 44.28. Prince, “king designate” (translated “ruler” in 5.2). 10: Place in Hebrew may mean a shrine or place of worship. Here it refers to the Jerusalem Temple. 11–12: See vv. 5–7n. 13: David’s son, Solomon, will build the temple. Forever here (and in v. 16) characterizes the dynasty as enduring but does not necessarily mean for all eternity. 14: Father . . . son, a king was often described as the (adopted) “son” of God; see, e.g., Pss 2.7; 89.26–27. 15: Steadfast love, another form of the promise; see Ps 89.1,24. 16: Cf. 1 Sam 25.28. 18–29: David’s prayer to the LORD. Compare Solomon’s prayers in 1 Kings 3.6–9 and 8.22–53. 23: Redeem . . . driving out refer to the Exodus from Egypt and the conquest of Canaan. The language is Deuteronomistic. 24: Cf. Ex 6.7; Deut 29.10–15. 27–29: Your servant, a way of referring to oneself before a superior.

8.1–18: David’s wars. 1: This verse represents David’s decisive defeat of the Philistines, the archenemies of ²He also defeated the Moabites and, making them lie down on the ground, measured them off with a cord; he measured two lengths of cord for those who were to be put to death, and one length^a for those who were to be spared. And the Moabites became servants to David and brought tribute.

³David also struck down King Hadadezer son of Rehob of Zobah, as he went to restore his monument^b at the river Euphrates. ⁴David took from him one thousand seven hundred horsemen, and twenty thousand foot soldiers. David hamstringed all the chariot horses, but left enough for a hundred chariots.

⁵When the Arameans of Damascus came to help King Hadadezer of Zobah, David killed twenty-two thousand men of the Arameans.

⁶Then David put garrisons among the Arameans of Damascus; and the Arameans became servants to David and brought tribute. The LORD gave victory to David wherever he went. ⁷David took the gold shields that were carried by the servants of Hadadezer, and brought them to Jerusalem. ⁸From Bethah and from Berothai, towns of Hadadezer, King David took a great amount of bronze.

⁹When King Toi of Hamath heard that David had defeated the whole army of Hadadezer, ¹⁰Toi sent his son Joram to King David, to greet him and to congratulate him because he had fought against Hadadezer and defeated him. Now Hadadezer had often been at war with Toi. Joram brought with him articles of silver, gold, and bronze; ¹¹these also King David dedicated to the LORD, together with the silver and gold that he dedicated from all the nations he subdued, ¹²from Edom, Moab, the Ammonites, the Philistines, Amalek, and from the spoil of King Hadadezer son of Rehob of Zobah.

¹³David won a name for himself. When he returned, he killed eighteen thousand Edomites^c in the Valley of Salt. ¹⁴He put garrisons in Edom; throughout all Edom he put garrisons, and all the Edomites became David's servants. And the LORD gave victory to David wherever he went.

¹⁵So David reigned over all Israel; and David administered justice and equity to all his people. ¹⁶Joab son of Zeruiah was over the army; Jehoshaphat son of Ahilud was recorder; ¹⁷Zadok son of Ahitub and Ahimelech son of Abiathar were priests; Seraiah was secretary; ¹⁸Benaiah son of Jehoiada was over^d the Cherethites and the Pelethites; and David's sons were priests.

9 David asked, "Is there still anyone left of the house of Saul to whom I may show kindness for Jonathan's sake?" ²Now there was a servant of the house of Saul whose name was Ziba, and he was summoned to David. The king said to him, "Are

^a Heb one full length

^b Compare 1 Sam 15.12 and 2 Sam 18.18

^c Gk: Heb returned from striking down eighteen thousand Arameans

^d Syr Tg Vg 20.23; 1 Chr 18.17: Heb lacks was over

Saul. They never surface again as enemies during his reign. 2: The Moabites lived on the other side of the Dead Sea from Israel. 3: Zobah was an Aramean (Syrian) city-state. Restore may also mean "leave," so that David, rather than Hadadezer, was traveling to the Euphrates to erect a monument. 4: Hamstrung, David crippled the hind legs of the horses he could not use to keep someone else from using them against him (see Josh 11.6). Thus the Israelites probably did not yet make extensive use of chariots. 5: Twenty-two thousand probably means twenty-two military units (see 6.1n.). 9: Hamath, modern Hama, an important city-state in central Syria north of Zobah. 10: Joram is an Israelite (Yahwistic) name; 1 Chr 18.18 calls him "Hadoram," an Aramaic name. 12: Edom was the country east of the Jordan, south of Moab and, at times, Judah. Ammonites, the ancient residents in the vicinity of the modern city of Amman, Jordan. 13: Eighteen thousand, see v. 5n. 15: It was viewed as the responsibility of kings in the ancient Near East to ensure the just and equitable treatment of all subjects, especially the poor and disadvantaged. 16–18: Cf. the similar list of David's cabinet in 20.23–26. Cherethites and the Pelethites, perhaps "Cretans" and "Philistines" who composed the royal bodyguard (23.23), probably mercenaries. David's sons were priests, the restriction of priesthood to the Levites had apparently not yet arisen. 17: Ahimelech son of Abiathar should probably be changed to "Abiathar son of Ahimelech" as indicated in 20.25 and also throughout 2 Sam.

9.1–13: Jonathan's son. 1: Is there still anyone left of the house of Saul? David's execution of Saul's sons and grandsons in 21.1–14 provides background to this question, and the story in 21.1–14 probably originally preceded ch 9. Kindness is covenant faithfulness. David wants to keep the promise of loyalty he made to Jonathan you Ziba?” And he said, “At your service!”

³The king said, “Is there anyone remaining of the house of Saul to whom I may show the kindness of God?” Ziba said to the king, “There remains a son of Jonathan; he is crippled in his feet.” ⁴The king said to him, “Where is he?” Ziba said to the king, “He is in the house of Machir son of Ammiel, at Lo-debar.” ⁵Then King David sent and brought him from the house of Machir son of Ammiel, at Lo-debar. ⁶Mephibosheth^a son of Jonathan son of Saul came to David, and fell on his face and did obeisance. David said, “Mephibosheth!”^a He answered, “I am your servant.” ⁷David said to him, “Do not be afraid, for I will show you kindness for the sake of your father Jonathan; I will restore to you all the land of your grandfather Saul, and you yourself shall eat at my table always.” ⁸He did obeisance and said, “What is your servant, that you should look upon a dead dog such as I?”

⁹Then the king summoned Saul’s servant Ziba, and said to him, “All that belonged to Saul and to all his house I have given to your master’s grandson. ¹⁰You and your sons and your servants shall till the land for him, and shall bring in the produce, so that your master’s grandson may have food to eat; but your master’s grandson Mephibosheth^a shall always eat at my table.” Now Ziba had fifteen sons and twenty servants. ¹¹Then Ziba said to the king, “According to all that my lord the king commands his servant, so your servant will do.” Mephibosheth^a ate at David’s^b table, like one of the king’s sons. ¹²Mephibosheth^a had a young son whose name was Mica. And all who lived in Ziba’s house became Mephibosheth’s^c servants. ¹³Mephibosheth^a lived in Jerusalem, for he always ate at the king’s table. Now he was lame in both his feet.

10 Some time afterward, the king of the Ammonites died, and his son Hanun succeeded him. ²David said, “I will deal loyally with Hanun son of Nahash, just as his father dealt loyally with me.” So David sent envoys to console him concerning his father. When David’s envoys came into the land of the Ammonites, ³the princes of the Ammonites said to their lord Hanun, “Do you really think that David is honoring your father just because he has sent messengers with condolences to you? Has not David sent his envoys to you to search the city, to spy it out, and to overthrow it?” ⁴So Hanun seized David’s envoys, shaved off half the beard of each, cut off their garments in the middle at their hips, and sent them away. ⁵When David was told, he sent to meet them, for the men were greatly ashamed. The king said, “Remain at Jericho until your beards have grown, and then return.”

⁶When the Ammonites saw that they had become odious to David, the Ammonites sent and hired the Arameans of Beth-rehob and the Arameans of Zobah, twenty thousand foot soldiers, as well as the king of Maacah,

^a Or Merib-baal: See 4.4 note

^b Gk: Heb my

^c Or Merib-baal’s: See 4.4 note

(1 Sam 18.1–4; 20.14–17). 3: Crippled in his feet, see 4.4. This handicap made Mephibosheth unable to go to war and therefore unsuitable to be king. 4: Machir became a loyal supporter of David (17.27). Lo-debar, a northern Israelite city east of the Jordan. 6: Fell on his face and did obeisance, prostrating oneself was a sign of submission to God or the king. Mephibosheth, the name was originally Merib-baal; see 4.4n. 7: Eating at the king’s table was a sign of favor. In this case it allowed David to keep a close watch on Merib-baal, who was still heir to Saul’s kingdom and therefore a potential rival (see 16.1–4; 19.24–30). 8: Dead dog, a term of self-reproach (see 3.8n.). 9–13: Merib-baal was to receive the income from Saul’s lands, which Ziba and his family would work.

10.1–19: David defeats the Ammonites and Arameans. 2: Nahash, Saul’s enemy in 1 Sam 10.27b–11.15. Ammonites, see 8.12n. Deal loyally . . . dealt loyally, indicate that David and Nahash had a treaty. Hanun’s actions in the following verses indicate that Israel was the superior partner in the treaty or that David was trying to make Israel the superior partner, and Hanun resisted. 4: The beard was a symbol of masculinity, and cutting off half of it was symbolic emasculation. According to the Lachish reliefs, ancient Israelite and Judean men were typically bearded. Cutting off their garments below the waist was symbolic castration. 5: Jericho, the closest Israelite city west of the Jordan opposite Ammon. 6: Beth-rehob, Zobah, Aramean (Syrian) city-states. Thousand, probably one thousand men, and the men of Tob, twelve thousand men. ⁷When David heard of it, he sent Joab and all the army with the warriors. ⁸The Ammonites came out and drew up in battle array at the entrance of the gate; but the Arameans of Zobah and of Rehob, and the men of Tob and Maacah, were by themselves in the open country.

⁹When Joab saw that the battle was set against him both in front and in the rear, he chose some of the picked men of Israel, and arrayed them against the Arameans; ¹⁰the rest of his men he put in the charge of his brother Abishai, and he arrayed them against the Ammonites. ¹¹He said, "If the Arameans are too strong for me, then you shall help me; but if the Ammonites are too strong for you, then I will come and help you. ¹²Be strong, and let us be courageous for the sake of our people, and for the cities of our God; and may the LORD do what seems good to him." ¹³So Joab and the people who were with him moved forward into battle against the Arameans; and they fled before him.

¹⁴When the Ammonites saw that the Arameans fled, they likewise fled before Abishai, and entered the city. Then Joab returned from fighting against the Ammonites, and came to Jerusalem.

¹⁵But when the Arameans saw that they had been defeated by Israel, they gathered themselves together. ¹⁶Hadadezer sent and brought out the Arameans who were beyond the Euphrates; and they came to Helam, with Shobach the commander of the army of Hadadezer at their head. ¹⁷When it was told David, he gathered all Israel together, and crossed the Jordan, and came to Helam. The Arameans arrayed themselves against David and fought with him. ¹⁸The Arameans fled before Israel; and David killed of the Arameans seven hundred chariot teams, and forty thousand horsemen,^a and wounded Shobach the commander of their army, so that he died there. ¹⁹When all the kings who were servants of Hadadezer saw that they had been defeated by Israel, they made peace with Israel, and became subject to them. So the Arameans were afraid to help the Ammonites any more.

11 In the spring of the year, the time when kings go out to battle, David sent Joab with his officers and all Israel with him; they ravaged the Ammonites, and besieged Rabbah. But David remained at Jerusalem.

²It happened, late one afternoon, when David rose from his couch and was walking about on the roof of the king's house, that he saw from the roof a woman bathing; the woman was very beautiful. ³David sent someone to inquire about the woman. It was reported, "This is Bathsheba daughter of Eliam, the wife of Uriah the Hittite." ⁴So David sent messengers to get her, and she came to him, and he lay with her. (Now she was purifying herself after her period.) Then she returned to her house. ⁵The woman conceived; and she sent and told David, "I am pregnant."

^a 1 Chr 19.18 and some Gk Mss read foot soldiers

used for a military unit of far fewer than 1,000 men. Maacah, Tob, small states in northern Transjordan. 8: The gate, the city in question is Rabbah, capital of the Ammonites (see 12.26). Rehob, another Aramean city-state. 12: The cities of our God were the cities Israel claimed east of the Jordan. Joab is rousing the army for "holy war." 18: Forty thousand, see v. 6.

11.1–27: David and Bathsheba. 1: In the spring of the year, the time when kings go out to battle, an alternate translation is: "A year after the kings had gone out to battle." The story is set a year after the events in ch 10 and does not necessarily imply that kings were supposed to go to war each spring. David remained at Jerusalem, perhaps at the insistence of his army to avoid danger to himself (see 21.15–17), although here this may be a possible disparagement of David. 2: The roof of the king's house was breezy and cool in the late afternoon, the ideal place for a nap. From there he was able to look down into the courtyard of surrounding houses, where he saw the woman bathing. 3: Inquire about the woman, David wants to know whether she is married; if not, he can add her to his harem. Eliam, perhaps the son of Ahithophel, David's adviser (see 23.34; 16.15–17.23). Uriah, one of the "thirty" best soldiers of David, according to 23.39. Thus, Bathsheba was well-married and came from a distinguished family. The name "Uriah" is Israelite, but his epithet "the Hittite" indicated his non-Israelite heritage. He may have been a resident alien, a class whose rights kings were especially charged to guard. 4: Bathsheba was purifying herself after her period; hence her bath (see Lev 15.19–28). She was at the most fertile time of her

⁶ So David sent word to Joab, “Send me Uriah the Hittite.” And Joab sent Uriah to David. ⁷ When Uriah came to him, David asked how Joab and the people fared, and how the war was going. ⁸ Then David said to Uriah, “Go down to your house, and wash your feet.” Uriah went out of the king’s house, and there followed him a present from the king. ⁹ But Uriah slept at the entrance of the king’s house with all the servants of his lord, and did not go down to his house. ¹⁰ When they told David, “Uriah did not go down to his house,” David said to Uriah, “You have just come from a journey. Why did you not go down to your house?” ¹¹ Uriah said to David, “The ark and Israel and Judah remain in booths;^a and my lord Joab and the servants of my lord are camping in the open field; shall I then go to my house, to eat and to drink, and to lie with my wife? As you live, and as your soul lives, I will not do such a thing.” ¹² Then David said to Uriah, “Remain here today also, and tomorrow I will send you back.” So Uriah remained in Jerusalem that day. On the next day, ¹³ David invited him to eat and drink in his presence and made him drunk; and in the evening he went out to lie on his couch with the servants of his lord, but he did not go down to his house.

¹⁴ In the morning David wrote a letter to Joab, and sent it by the hand of Uriah. ¹⁵ In the letter he wrote, “Set Uriah in the forefront of the hardest fighting, and then draw back from him, so that he may be struck down and die.” ¹⁶ As Joab was besieging the city, he assigned Uriah to the place where he knew there were valiant warriors. ¹⁷ The men of the city came out and fought with

Joab; and some of the servants of David among the people fell. Uriah the Hittite was killed as well. ¹⁸ Then Joab sent and told David all the news about the fighting; ¹⁹ and he instructed the messenger, “When you have finished telling the king all the news about the fighting, ²⁰ then, if the king’s anger rises, and if he says to you, ‘Why did you go so near the city to fight? Did you not know that they would shoot from the wall?’ ²¹ Who killed Abimelech son of Jerubbaal?^b Did not a woman throw an upper millstone on him from the wall, so that he died at Thebez? Why did you go so near the wall?’ then you shall say, ‘Your servant Uriah the Hittite is dead too.’”

²² So the messenger went, and came and told David all that Joab had sent him to tell. ²³ The messenger said to David, “The men gained an advantage over us, and came out against us in the field; but we drove them back to the entrance of the gate. ²⁴ Then the archers shot at your servants from the wall; some of the king’s servants are dead; and your servant Uriah the Hittite is dead also.” ²⁵ David said to the messenger, “Thus you shall say to Joab, ‘Do not let this matter trouble you, for the sword devours now one and now another; press your attack on the city, and overthrow it.’ And encourage him.”

²⁶ When the wife of Uriah heard that her husband was dead, she made lamentation for him. ²⁷ When the mourning was over, David sent and brought her to his house, and she became his wife, and bore him a son.

^a Or at Succoth

^b Gk Syr Judg 7:1: Heb Jerubbesheth

cycle when she slept with David. It is clear that David must be her child’s father. 6–7: It was unusual for a soldier to be called back from battle for a personal audience. Since David asked Uriah only the most general questions, Uriah may have thought he was being tested, which in turn motivated him to demonstrate his loyalty to David and the army in the following verses. The people, the army. 8: Wash your feet, a euphemism for sexual intercourse. Feet can refer to the genitals (see Isa 6:2; 7:20). 9–13: As a pious soldier consecrated for war (see 1 Sam 21.4), Uriah refuses to have sexual relations with his wife, even when David gets him drunk. 14: David trusts Uriah’s loyalty enough to send his death warrant by his own hand, knowing that Uriah, if he could read, would not open it. 16–17: Joab places Uriah in a dangerous place but does not have time to implement David’s order fully. Uriah is killed along with other soldiers because of a tactical error by Joab. 18–21: Joab uses Uriah’s death to cover up his mistake in allowing the troops to come too close to the city wall. The story of Abimelech son of Jerubbaal (v. 21) is in Judg 9. An upper millstone, a large stone used for grinding grain. 25: David’s attitude toward Joab changes when he learns of Uriah’s death. 27b: David . . . displeased the Lord, the author’s moral condemnation links the account of David’s offense in ch 11 with the judgment in ch 12.

The sons of David. According to 2 Sam 3.2–5 (see also 1 Chr 3.1–4) and 2 Sam 5.13–14 (1 Chr 3.5–9; 14.3–7), David had many children, at least twenty of whom are named. In the narrative of the struggle for succession in 2 Samuel 13–18 and 1 Kings 1–2, the principal sons in the order of their birth are: Amnon, Absalom, Adonijah, and Solomon. Dashed lines show wives; solid lines show sons.

12 But the thing that David had done displeased the LORD,¹ and the LORD sent Nathan to David. He came to him, and said to him, “There were two men in a certain city, the one rich and the other poor.² The rich man had very many flocks and herds; ³but the poor man had nothing but one little ewe lamb, which he had bought. He brought it up, and it grew up with him and with his children; it used to eat of his meager fare, and drink from his cup, and lie in his bosom, and it was like a daughter to him. ⁴Now there came a traveler to the rich man, and he was loath to take one of his own flock or herd to prepare for the wayfarer who had come to him, but he took the poor man’s lamb, and prepared that for the guest who had come to him.” ⁵Then David’s anger was greatly kindled against the man. He said to Nathan, “As the LORD lives, the man who has done this deserves to die; ⁶he shall restore the lamb fourfold, because he did this thing, and because he had no pity.”

⁷Nathan said to David, “You are the man! Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel: I anointed you king over Israel, and I rescued you from the hand of Saul; ⁸I gave you your master’s house, and your master’s wives into your bosom, and gave you the house of Israel and of Judah; and if that had been too little, I would have added as much more. ⁹Why have you despised the word of the LORD, to do what is evil in his sight? You have struck down Uriah the Hittite with the sword, and have taken his wife to be your wife, and have killed him with the sword of the Ammonites. ¹⁰Now therefore the sword shall never depart from your house, for you have despised me, and have taken the wife of Uriah the Hittite to be your wife. ¹¹Thus says the LORD: I will raise up trouble against you from within your own house; and I will take your wives before your eyes, and give them to your neighbor, and he shall lie with your wives in the sight of this very sun. ¹²For you did it secretly; but I will do this thing before all Israel, and before the sun.” ¹³David said to Nathan, “I have sinned against the LORD.” Nathan said to David, “Now the LORD has put away your sin; you shall not die. ¹⁴Nevertheless, because by 12.1–25: David’s punishment. 1–6: The prophet Nathan couches his parable as a legal case to get David to pronounce judgment on himself. As king he was responsible for protecting the rights of the poor. However, the vagueness of the case (“Two men in a certain city” hints that it is contained by Nathan. Fourfold (v. 6), as prescribed in Ex 22.1; other textual witnesses have “sevenfold.” 8: There is some textual support for reading “daughter(s)” (Heb “bat”) instead of house (Heb “bayit” or “beyt”) both times in this verse. “Daughter(s)” would fit the point of the verse better — that David had many women as wives and concubines, including Saul’s daughter Michal, but like the rich man in Nathan’s parable, he stole what belonged to his poor neighbor. Your master’s wives, David took over Saul’s harem. 10: The sword, a metaphor for violence, alluding to the events in chs 13–20. 11–12: An allusion to Absalom’s future revolt, specifically his deed in 16.20–23. 13–18: David’s sin is transferred (not put away) to his newborn son, who dies because of it. This is the clearest indication in the Hebrew Bible of the application of intergenerational punishment by God (see Ex 20.5; 34.7; Deut 5.9), where the

this deed you have utterly scorned the LORD,^a the child that is born to you shall die.”¹⁵ Then Nathan went to his house.

The LORD struck the child that Uriah’s wife bore to David, and it became very ill.¹⁶ David therefore pleaded with God for the child; David fasted, and went in and lay all night on the ground.¹⁷ The elders of his house stood beside him, urging him to rise from the ground; but he would not, nor did he eat food with them.¹⁸ On the seventh day the child died. And the servants of David were afraid to tell him that the child was dead; for they said, “While the child was still alive, we spoke to him, and he did not listen to us; how then can we tell him the child is dead? He may do himself some harm.”¹⁹ But when David saw that his servants were whispering together, he perceived that the child was dead; and David said to his servants, “Is the child dead?” They said, “He is dead.”

²⁰ Then David rose from the ground, washed, anointed himself, and changed his clothes. He went into the house of the LORD, and worshiped; he then went to his own house; and when he asked, they set food before him and he ate.²¹ Then his servants said to him, “What is this thing that you have done? You fasted and wept for the child while it was alive; but when the child died, you rose and ate food.”²² He said, “While the child was still alive, I fasted and wept; for I said, ‘Who knows? The LORD may be gracious to me, and the child may live.’²³ But now he is dead; why should I fast? Can I bring him back again? I shall go to him, but he will not return to me.”

²⁴ Then David consoled his wife Bathsheba, and went to her, and lay with her; and she bore a son, and he named him Solomon. The LORD loved him,²⁵ and sent a message by the prophet Nathan; so he named him Jedidiah,^b because of the LORD.

²⁶ Now Joab fought against Rabbah of the Ammonites, and took the royal city.²⁷ Joab sent messengers to David, and said, “I have fought against Rabbah; moreover, I have taken the water city.²⁸ Now, then, gather the rest of the people together, and encamp against the city, and take it; or I myself will take the city, and it will be called by my name.”²⁹ So David gathered all the people together and went to Rabbah, and fought against it and took it.³⁰ He took the crown of Milcom^c from his head; the weight of it was a talent of gold, and in it was a precious stone; and it was placed on David’s head. He also brought forth the spoil of the city, a very great amount.³¹ He brought out the people who were in it, and set them to work with saws and iron picks and iron axes, or sent them to the brickworks. Thus he did to all the cities of the Ammonites. Then David and all the people returned to Jerusalem.

13 Some time passed. David’s son Absalom had a beautiful sister whose name was Tamar; and David’s son Amnon fell in love with her.² Amnon was so tormented that he made himself ill because of his sister Tamar, for she was a virgin and it seemed impossible to Amnon to do anything to her.³ But Amnon had a friend whose name was sin is perceived as property that may be inherited. 20: House of the LORD, an anachronism, since the Temple in Jerusalem had not yet been built. 24–25: Solomon means “his replacement”; he was a replacement for the dead child. Jedidiah (“beloved of Yahweh”), which does not occur elsewhere for Solomon, hints that he will replace David (whose name means “beloved”) as king.

^a Ancient scribal tradition: Compare 1 Sam 25.22 note: Heb scorned the enemies of the LORD

^b That is Beloved of the LORD

^c Gk See 1 Kings 11.5, 33: Heb their kings

12.26–31: The conclusion of the Ammonite war. 26–29: Joab captured the citadel and the water supply of Rabbah, the Ammonite capital, so that conquering the rest of the city was fairly simple. This Joab left for David, as the king, to complete. 30: Milcom, the national Ammonite god. A talent, about 75 lb (34 kg).

13.1–39: The rape of Tamar and the murder of Amnon. In its current context, this and the following chapter reflect a measure-for-measure punishment of David. He appropriated Bathsheba and arranged for Uriah’s death, so rape and death are unleashed against his house. Originally, though, this story may have been unconnected to the Bathsheba event and served to introduce Absalom’s revolt. 1: Tamar was Absalom’s full sister, Amnon’s half-sister. Amnon was David’s oldest son and the crown prince. The next oldest had apparently died (perhaps as a child), leaving Absalom as second in line of succession to the throne (cf. 3.2–3). 2: It seemed impos-

Jonadab, the son of David's brother Shimeah; and Jonadab was a very crafty man. ⁴ He said to him, "O son of the king, why are you so haggard morning after morning? Will you not tell me?" Amnon said to him, "I love Tamar, my brother Absalom's sister." ⁵ Jonadab said to him, "Lie down on your bed, and pretend to be ill; and when your father comes to see you, say to him, 'Let my sister Tamar come and give me something to eat, and prepare the food in my sight, so that I may see it and eat it from her hand.'" ⁶ So Amnon lay down, and pretended to be ill; and when the king came to see him, Amnon said to the king, "Please let my sister Tamar come and make a couple of cakes in my sight, so that I may eat from her hand."

⁷ Then David sent home to Tamar, saying, "Go to your brother Amnon's house, and prepare food for him." ⁸ So Tamar went to her brother Amnon's house, where he was lying down. She took dough, kneaded it, made cakes in his sight, and baked the cakes. ⁹ Then she took the pan and set them^a out before him, but he refused to eat. Amnon said, "Send out everyone from me." So everyone went out from him. ¹⁰ Then Amnon said to Tamar, "Bring the food into the chamber, so that I may eat from your hand." So Tamar took the cakes she had made, and brought them into the chamber to Amnon her brother. ¹¹ But when she brought them near him to eat, he took hold of her, and said to her, "Come, lie with me, my sister." ¹² She answered him, "No, my brother, do not force me; for such a thing is not done in Israel; do not do anything so vile!" ¹³ As for me, where could I carry my shame? And as for you, you would be as one of the scoundrels in Israel. Now therefore, I beg you, speak to the king; for he will not withhold me from you." ¹⁴ But he would not listen to her; and being stronger than she, he forced her and lay with her.

¹⁵ Then Amnon was seized with a very great loathing for her; indeed, his loathing was even greater than the lust he had felt for her. Amnon said to her, "Get out!" ¹⁶ But she said to him, "No, my brother;^b for this wrong in sending me away is greater than the other that you did to me." But he would not listen to her. ¹⁷ He called the young man who served him and said, "Put this woman out of my presence, and bolt the door after her." ¹⁸ (Now she was wearing a long robe with sleeves; for this is how the virgin daughters of the king were clothed in earlier times.^c) So his servant put her out, and bolted the door after her. ¹⁹ But Tamar put ashes on her head, and tore the long robe that she was wearing; she put her hand on her head, and went away, crying aloud as she went.

²⁰ Her brother Absalom said to her, "Has Amnon your brother been with you? Be quiet for now, my sister; he is your brother; do not take this to heart." So Tamar remained, a desolate woman, in her brother Absalom's house. ²¹ When King David heard of all these things, he became very angry, but he would not punish his son Amnon, because he loved

^a Heb and poured

^b Cn Compare Gk Vg: Meaning of Heb uncertain

^c Cn: Heb were clothed in robes

sible to Amnon to do anything to her, as the king's virgin daughter Tamar may have been guarded. However, the verb translated "seemed impossible" might be translated "seemed wonderful." 6: Cakes, the Hebrew word is similar to the word for "heart" and may indicate their shape and hints at the erotic nature of the story. 10: The chamber, Amnon's bedroom where he is feigning illness. 11: My sister not only reflects the kinship of Amnon to Tamar but is also a term of endearment and sexual desire in ancient love poetry (i.e., Song 4.9–10; 5.1). 12: Such a thing may refer to incest or rape or both. 13: He will not withhold me from you, Tamar suggests that David would allow their marriage despite its incestuous nature. Perhaps she is just trying to buy time. 16: Ex 22.16 and Deut 22.28–29 required marriage in such cases. Tamar may have such laws in mind when she says that in sending her away Amnon is committing a greater wrong than the rape itself. 17: This woman, a contemptuous reference. The word "woman" is not in the Heb, so that it might be translated "this thing." Having robbed Tamar of her virginity, Amnon takes her identity as well. 18: A long robe with sleeves, used also for Joseph's garment in Gen 37.3; the exact nature of this garment is unknown. 19: Putting ashes on the head and tearing clothes were signs of grief, though Tamar may also have torn the long robe worn by the king's virgin daughters because it was no longer appropriate. 20: Desolate, because she is unmarried and childless. 21: Because he loved him may be the

him, for he was his firstborn.^a ²² But Absalom spoke to Amnon neither good nor bad; for Absalom hated Amnon, because he had raped his sister Tamar.

²³ After two full years Absalom had sheepshearers at Baal-hazor, which is near Ephraim, and Absalom invited all the king's sons. ²⁴ Absalom came to the king, and said, "Your servant has sheepshearers; will the king and his servants please go with your servant?" ²⁵ But the king said to Absalom, "No, my son, let us not all go, or else we will be burdensome to you." He pressed him, but he would not go but gave him his blessing. ²⁶ Then Absalom said, "If not, please let my brother Amnon go with us." The king said to him, "Why should he go with you?" ²⁷ But Absalom pressed him until he let Amnon and all the king's sons go with him. Absalom made a feast like a king's feast.^b ²⁸ Then Absalom commanded his servants, "Watch when Amnon's heart is merry with wine, and when I say to you, 'Strike Amnon,' then kill him. Do not be afraid; have I not myself commanded you? Be courageous and valiant." ²⁹ So the servants of Absalom did to Amnon as Absalom had commanded. Then all the king's sons rose, and each mounted his mule and fled.

³⁰ While they were on the way, the report came to David that Absalom had killed all the king's sons, and not one of them was left. ³¹ The king rose, tore his garments, and lay on the ground; and all his servants who were standing by tore their garments. ³² But Jonadab, the son of David's brother Shimeah, said, "Let not my lord suppose that they have killed all the young men the king's sons; Am-

non alone is dead. This has been determined by Absalom from the day Amnon^c raped his sister Tamar. ³³ Now therefore, do not let my lord the king take it to heart, as if all the king's sons were dead; for Amnon alone is dead."

³⁴ But Absalom fled. When the young man who kept watch looked up, he saw many people coming from the Horonaim road^d by the side of the mountain. ³⁵ Jonadab said to the king, "See, the king's sons have come; as your servant said, so it has come about." ³⁶ As soon as he had finished speaking, the king's sons arrived, and raised their voices and wept; and the king and all his servants also wept very bitterly.

³⁷ But Absalom fled, and went to Talmai son of Ammihud, king of Geshur. David mourned for his son day after day. ³⁸ Absalom, having fled to Geshur, stayed there three years. ³⁹ And the heart of^e the king went out, yearning for Absalom; for he was now consoled over the death of Amnon.

14 Now Joab son of Zeruiah perceived that the king's mind was on Absalom. ² Joab sent to Tekoa and brought from there a wise woman. He said to her, "Pretend to be a mourner; put on mourning garments, do not anoint yourself with oil, but behave like a woman who has been mourning many days for the dead. ³ Go to the king and speak to

^a Q Ms Gk: MT lacks but he would not punish . . . firstborn

^b Gk Compare Q Ms: MT lacks Absalom made a feast like a king's feast

^c Heb he

^d Cn Compare Gk: Heb the road behind him

^e Q Ms Gk: MT And David

writer's way of assuring the reader that David had nothing to do with Amnon's death. 22: Neither good nor bad means not at all. 23: Sheepshearing was a time of celebration. 24–25: In light of what follows, Absalom's invitation to David makes the reader wonder whether he already intended to kill his father and assume the throne. 27: The feast was a drinking bout, as indicated by the word's etymology and the next verse. 29: David and his sons rode on mules (18.9; 1 Kings 1.33). 30–33: David initially thought that Absalom had killed all the king's sons, which would make sense if he were attempting a coup. But his intention at this point is purely revenge against Amnon. Jonadab appears as a false friend to Amnon (cf. vv. 3–5). 36: The king . . . wept very bitterly, David's great love for Amnon and his noninvolvement in Amnon's death are stressed. 37: Talmai . . . king of Geshur, Absalom's maternal grandfather with whom David apparently has a treaty (see 2.9n.). 39: And the heart of the king went out, yearning for Absalom, better: "The king's spirit for marching out against Absalom was exhausted." David did not yearn for Absalom but was tired of going out after him; hence David's reluctance in the next chapter to allow Absalom back into his presence.

14.1–33: Absalom's return. 1: The king's mind was on Absalom does not mean that David was now favorably inclined toward Absalom, as this story makes clear. 2: Tekoa, a village south of Bethlehem where the prophet him as follows.” And Joab put the words into her mouth.

⁴When the woman of Tekoa came to the king, she fell on her face to the ground and did obeisance, and said, “Help, O king!” ⁵The king asked her, “What is your trouble?” She answered, “Alas, I am a widow; my husband is dead. ⁶Your servant had two sons, and they fought with one another in the field; there was no one to part them, and one struck the other and killed him. ⁷Now the whole family has risen against your servant. They say, ‘Give up the man who struck his brother, so that we may kill him for the life of his brother whom he murdered, even if we destroy the heir as well.’ Thus they would quench my one remaining ember, and leave to my husband neither name nor remnant on the face of the earth.”

⁸Then the king said to the woman, “Go to your house, and I will give orders concerning you.” ⁹The woman of Tekoa said to the king, “On me be the guilt, my lord the king, and on my father’s house; let the king and his throne be guiltless.” ¹⁰The king said, “If anyone says anything to you, bring him to me, and he shall never touch you again.” ¹¹Then she said, “Please, may the king keep the LORD your God in mind, so that the avenger of blood may kill no more, and my son not be destroyed.” He said, “As the LORD lives, not one hair of your son shall fall to the ground.”

¹²Then the woman said, “Please let your servant speak a word to my lord the king.” He said, “Speak.” ¹³The woman said, “Why then have you planned such a thing against the people of God? For in giving this decision the king convicts himself, inasmuch as the king does not bring his banished one home again.

¹⁴We must all die; we are like water spilled on the ground, which cannot be gathered up. But God will not take away a life; he will devise plans so as not to keep an outcast banished forever from his presence.^a ¹⁵Now I have come to say this to my lord the king because the people have made me afraid; your servant thought, ‘I will speak to the king; it may be that the king will perform the request of his servant. ¹⁶For the king will hear, and deliver his servant from the hand of the man who would cut both me and my son off from the heritage of God.’ ¹⁷Your servant thought, ‘The word of my lord the king will set me at rest’; for my lord the king is like the angel of God, discerning good and evil. The LORD your God be with you!”

¹⁸Then the king answered the woman, “Do not withhold from me anything I ask you.” The woman said, “Let my lord the king speak.” ¹⁹The king said, “Is the hand of Joab with you in all this?” The woman answered and said, “As surely as you live, my lord the king, one cannot turn right or left from anything that my lord the king has said. For it was your servant Joab who commanded me; it was he who put all these words into the mouth of your servant. ²⁰In order to change the course of affairs your servant Joab did this. But my lord has wisdom like the wisdom

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

Amos was from (see Am 1.1). Perhaps David took an interest in this case because the woman was from his home territory. Wise in the Hebrew Bible often means skilled as well as clever (see Ex 28.3). This woman was a skilled actress. 4: Fell . . . to the ground and did obeisance, prostration was the proper way of bowing before a king. 5–7: As in ch 12, a fictional legal case is presented to David in order to get him to pronounce judgment on a matter concerning himself. Two sons (v. 6), one of whom kills the other, like Amnon and Absalom. Leave to my husband neither name nor remnant (v. 7). This part of the woman’s case is not paralleled in David’s family since he has many other sons. It is crucial to the woman’s place, yet does not figure into David’s decision or the outcome of the story. 8–11: David grants the woman’s request and swears by the LORD that her one remaining son will not be harmed. The woman will urge David to apply this oath to his situation with Absalom. Since David’s ruling is contrary to the customary punishment, the woman accepts any guilt that David may incur (v. 9). Avenger of blood, one charged with taking vengeance for the death of a relative. 13: The woman now applies David’s decree to the situation with Absalom. It is not clear how David’s refusal to bring Absalom back is a thing against the people of God. 14: Amnon is dead and cannot be brought to life again, but David can accept Absalom, who is still alive. 15–17: These verses seem out of place and may originally have gone after v. 7. The woman continues to plead for her son, but David has already rendered his decision. The man who would cut both me and my son off, the avenger of blood (see v. 11). The heritage of God, the land of Israel and its people. 19: Your servant, a polite of the angel of God to know all things that are on the earth.”

²¹Then the king said to Joab, “Very well, I grant this; go, bring back the young man Absalom.” ²²Joab prostrated himself with his face to the ground and did obeisance, and blessed the king; and Joab said, “Today your servant knows that I have found favor in your sight, my lord the king, in that the king has granted the request of his servant.” ²³So Joab set off, went to Geshur, and brought Absalom to Jerusalem. ²⁴The king said, “Let him go to his own house; he is not to come into my presence.” So Absalom went to his own house, and did not come into the king’s presence.

²⁵Now in all Israel there was no one to be praised so much for his beauty as Absalom; from the sole of his foot to the crown of his head there was no blemish in him. ²⁶When he cut the hair of his head (for at the end of every year he used to cut it; when it was heavy on him, he cut it), he weighed the hair of his head, two hundred shekels by the king’s weight. ²⁷There were born to Absalom three sons, and one daughter whose name was Tamar; she was a beautiful woman.

²⁸So Absalom lived two full years in Jerusalem, without coming into the king’s presence. ²⁹Then Absalom sent for Joab to send him to the king; but Joab would not come to him. He sent a second time, but Joab would not come. ³⁰Then he said to his servants, “Look, Joab’s field is next to mine, and he has barley there; go and set it on fire.” So Absalom’s servants set the field on fire. ³¹Then Joab rose and went to Absalom at his house, and said to him, “Why have your servants set my field on fire?” ³²Absalom answered Joab, “Look, I sent word to you: Come here, that I may send you to the king with the question, ‘Why have I come from Geshur? It would be better for me to be there still.’ Now let me go into the king’s presence; if there is guilt in me, let him kill me!” ³³Then Joab went to the king and told him; and he summoned Absalom. So he came to the king and prostrated himself with his face to the ground before the king; and the king kissed Absalom.

15 After this Absalom got himself a chariot and horses, and fifty men to run ahead of him. ²Absalom used to rise early and stand beside the road into the gate; and when anyone brought a suit before the king for judgment, Absalom would call out and say, “From what city are you?” When the person said, “Your servant is of such and such a tribe in Israel,” ³Absalom would say, “See, your claims are good and right; but there is no one deputed by the king to hear you.” ⁴Absalom said moreover, “If only I were judge in the land! Then all who had a suit or cause might come to me, and I would give them justice.” ⁵Whenever people came near to do obeisance to him, he would put out his hand and take hold of them, and kiss them. ⁶Thus Absalom did to every Israelite who came to the king for judgment; so Absalom stole the hearts of the people of Israel.

⁷At the end of four^a years Absalom said to the king, “Please let me go to Hebron and pay the vow that I have made to the LORD. ⁸For your servant made a vow while I lived at Geshur in Aram: If the LORD will indeed bring me back to Jerusalem, then I will worship the LORD in Hebron.”^b ⁹The king said to him, “Go

^a Gk Syr: Heb forty

^b Gk Mss: Heb lacks in Hebron

form of self-reference. 21–24: David allows Absalom to return but refuses to see him personally. 26: Two hundred shekels, ca. 5 lb (2.3 kg), an extraordinary amount of hair. The reference to his hair foreshadows Absalom’s mode of death (18.9–15). 27: Absalom named his daughter after his sister, Tamar (ch 13). The reference to his three sons is contradicted in 18.18, where he says he had no son. 28–33: This episode further shows Absalom’s violent nature and suggests that Joab may have held a grudge against him. The king kissed Absalom, a gesture of recognition and reconciliation, performed only after Absalom did his obeisance to David. This subservience, however, did not last long.

15.1–12: Absalom revolts. 1: Chariot and horses, and fifty men to run ahead, parts of the king’s entourage (1 Kings 1.5). The fifty men were probably a royal bodyguard. Absalom is making a claim to be king. 2: When anyone brought a suit before the king for judgment, one of the king’s roles in the ancient world was to serve as a judge in special cases. David may have been weak in this role, and Absalom took advantage. 5: Do obeisance to him, the proper attitude before a king, but Absalom presented himself as a man of the people. 6: Stole the

in peace.” So he got up, and went to Hebron.

¹⁰ But Absalom sent secret messengers throughout all the tribes of Israel, saying, “As soon as you hear the sound of the trumpet, then shout: Absalom has become king at Hebron!” ¹¹ Two hundred men from Jerusalem went with Absalom; they were invited guests, and they went in their innocence, knowing nothing of the matter. ¹² While Absalom was offering the sacrifices, he sent for^a Ahithophel the Gilonite, David’s counselor, from his city Giloh. The conspiracy grew in strength, and the people with Absalom kept increasing.

¹³ A messenger came to David, saying, “The hearts of the Israelites have gone after Absalom.” ¹⁴ Then David said to all his officials who were with him at Jerusalem, “Get up! Let us flee, or there will be no escape for us from Absalom. Hurry, or he will soon overtake us, and bring disaster down upon us, and attack the city with the edge of the sword.” ¹⁵ The king’s officials said to the king, “Your servants are ready to do whatever our lord the king decides.” ¹⁶ So the king left, followed by all his household, except ten concubines whom he left behind to look after the house. ¹⁷ The king left, followed by all the people; and they stopped at the last house. ¹⁸ All his officials passed by him; and all the Cherethites, and all the Pelethites, and all the six hundred Gittites who had followed him from Gath, passed on before the king.

¹⁹ Then the king said to Ittai the Gittite, “Why are you also coming with us? Go back, and stay with the king; for you are a foreigner, and also an exile from your home.” ²⁰ You came only yesterday, and shall I today make you wander about with us, while I go wherever I can? Go back, and take your kinsfolk with you; and may the LORD show^b steadfast love and faithfulness to you.” ²¹ But Ittai answered the king, “As the LORD lives, and as my lord the king lives, wherever my lord the king may be, whether for death or for life, there also your servant will be.” ²² David said to Ittai, “Go then, march on.” So Ittai the Gittite marched on, with all his men and all the little ones who were with him. ²³ The whole country wept aloud as all the people passed by; the king crossed the Wadi Kidron, and all the people moved on toward the wilderness.

²⁴ Abiathar came up, and Zadok also, with all the Levites, carrying the ark of the covenant of God. They set down the ark of God, until the people had all passed out of the city. ²⁵ Then the king said to Zadok, “Carry the ark of God back into the city. If I find favor in the eyes of the LORD, he will bring me back and let me see both it and the place where it stays. ²⁶ But if he says, ‘I take no pleasure in you,’ here I am, let him do to me what seems good to him.” ²⁷ The king also said to the priest Zadok, “Look,^c go back to the city in peace, you and Abiathar,^d with your two

^a Or he sent

^b Gk Compare 2.6: Heb lacks may the LORD show

^c Gk: Heb Are you a seer or Do you see?

^d Cn: Heb lacks and Abiathar

hearts or “deceived” (cf. Gen 31.20). 7–10: Absalom has made a vow to worship at the local shrine of the LORD in Hebron (v. 8) and must go there to fulfill it. But he has ulterior motives for choosing Hebron. He is deliberately recalling his father’s rise by declaring himself king in Hebron, the capital of Judah, where David had been made king of both Judah and Israel and had ruled Judah for seven years (5.1–7). Absalom probably found supporters in Hebron among those discontented that David had moved the capital. His revolt, however, spread throughout all the tribes of Israel (v. 10). Geshur in Aram (v. 8), where Absalom fled after killing Amnon (13.37–39). 12: Ahithophel was renowned as David’s counselor (see 16.15–23). His presence with Absalom meant that the conspiracy grew in strength.

15.13–16.14: David flees Jerusalem. 15.13: Israelites, perhaps only the residents of the north. But since Absalom began the revolt in Hebron, it has now spread through the entire country. 16: Concubines, see 3.7n. 17: The last house, on the outskirts of Jerusalem. 18: Cherethites and Pelethites, see 8.18n. Gittites, Philistines from Gath. All these groups had followed David from his days with the Philistines (1 Sam 27; 29). 19: Ittai, commander of the Gittites. 20: Yesterday, an idiom for “recently.” David is amazed that these Philistines who only recently joined him are more loyal than his own people. 21: It is striking that Ittai, the Philistine, swears by the LORD (Yahweh) the God of Israel. 23: The Wadi Kidron, the valley between Jerusalem and the Mount of Olives. David heads east toward the Jordan River. 24: Abiathar and Zadok, David’s two priests. 25–29: Caring for the ark properly would sons, Ahimaaz your son, and Jonathan son of Abiathar. ²⁸ See, I will wait at the fords of the wilderness until word comes from you to inform me.” ²⁹ So Zadok and Abiathar carried the ark of God back to Jerusalem, and they remained there.

³⁰ But David went up the ascent of the Mount of Olives, weeping as he went, with his head covered and walking barefoot; and all the people who were with him covered their heads and went up, weeping as they went.

³¹ David was told that Ahithophel was among the conspirators with Absalom. And David said, “O LORD, I pray you, turn the counsel of Ahithophel into foolishness.”

³² When David came to the summit, where God was worshiped, Hushai the Archite came to meet him with his coat torn and earth on his head. ³³ David said to him, “If you go on with me, you will be a burden to me. ³⁴ But if you return to the city and say to Absalom, ‘I will be your servant, O king; as I have been your father’s servant in time past, so now I will be your servant,’ then you will defeat for me the counsel of Ahithophel. ³⁵ The priests Zadok and Abiathar will be with you there. So whatever you hear from the king’s house, tell it to the priests Zadok and Abiathar. ³⁶ Their two sons are with them there, Zadok’s son Ahimaaz and Abiathar’s son Jonathan; and by them you shall report to me everything you hear.” ³⁷ So Hushai, David’s friend, came into the city, just as Absalom was entering Jerusalem.

16 When David had passed a little beyond the summit, Ziba the servant of Mephibosheth^a met him, with a couple of donkeys saddled, carrying two hundred loaves of bread, one hundred bunches of raisins, one hundred of summer fruits, and one skin of wine. ² The king said to Ziba, “Why have you brought these?” Ziba answered, “The donkeys are for the king’s household to ride, the bread and summer fruit for the young men to eat, and the wine is for those to drink who faint in the wilderness.” ³ The king said, “And where is your master’s son?” Ziba said to the king, “He remains in Jerusalem; for he said, ‘Today the house of Israel will give me back my grandfather’s kingdom.’” ⁴ Then the king said to Ziba, “All that belonged to Mephibosheth^a is now yours.” Ziba said, “I do obeisance; let me find favor in your sight, my lord the king.”

⁵ When King David came to Bahurim, a man of the family of the house of Saul came out whose name was Shimei son of Gera; he came out cursing. ⁶ He threw stones at David and at all the servants of King David; now all the people and all the warriors were on his right and on his left. ⁷ Shimei shouted while he cursed, “Out! Out! Murderer! Scoundrel!” ⁸ The LORD has avenged on all of you the blood of the house of Saul, in whose place you have reigned; and the LORD has given the kingdom into the hand of your son Absalom. See, disaster has overtaken you; for you are a man of blood.”

⁹ Then Abishai son of Zeruiah said to the king, “Why should this dead dog curse my lord the king? Let me go over and take off his head.” ¹⁰ But the king said, “What have I to do with you, you sons of Zeruiah? If he slow David’s retreat (see 6.1–11). Besides, the priests could serve as David’s spies in Jerusalem. 30: His head covered and walking barefoot, conventional signs of mourning. 31–37: David was disheartened to learn that his wise adviser, Ahithophel (see 16.23), had joined Absalom. As he walked up the Mount of Olives (v. 31), he prayed for help against Ahithophel. His prayer was answered at the summit when he met Hushai, who would help him defeat Ahithophel’s advice. Where God was worshiped (v. 32), a shrine at the top of the Mount of Olives; such “high places” are outlawed in the Deuteronomistic History once the Temple is built. 37: David’s friend (v. 37), perhaps a title for an intimate adviser. 16.2: Young men, soldiers. 3–4: Your master’s son, Merib-baal (Mephibosheth), Saul’s grandson (see ch 9). Ziba claims that Merib-baal is planning to take over his grandfather’s place as king. But Ziba may be lying (19.24–30). David rewards Ziba by giving him Saul’s property. There is some question about whether David has the legal right to do this. 5: Shimei belonged not only to Saul’s tribe (Benjamin) but also to his family or clan. 6–8: Shimei accused David of murdering members of Saul’s family and usurping the throne. This indicates that David’s execution of Saul’s sons and grandsons (21.1–14) preceded Absalom’s revolt. 9–10: Abishai, the brother of Joab and Asahel (see 2.18–23). Called the sons of Zeruiah (David’s sister) in 2 Samuel and is cursing because the LORD has said to him, ‘Curse David,’ who then shall say, ‘Why have you done so?’”¹¹ David said to Abishai and to all his servants, “My own son seeks my life; how much more now may this Benjaminite! Let him alone, and let him curse; for the LORD has bidden him.”¹² It may be that the LORD will look on my distress,^a and the LORD will repay me with good for this cursing of me today.”¹³ So David and his men went on the road, while Shimei went along on the hillside opposite him and cursed as he went, throwing stones and flinging dust at him.¹⁴ The king and all the people who were with him arrived weary at the Jordan,^b and there he refreshed himself.

^a Or Merib-baal: See 4.4 note

¹⁵ Now Absalom and all the Israelites^c came to Jerusalem; Ahithophel was with him.¹⁶ When Hushai the Archite, David’s friend, came to Absalom, Hushai said to Absalom, “Long live the king! Long live the king!”¹⁷ Absalom said to Hushai, “Is this your loyalty to your friend? Why did you not go with your friend?”¹⁸ Hushai said to Absalom, “No; but the one whom the LORD and this people and all the Israelites have chosen, his I will be, and with him I will remain.”¹⁹ Moreover, whom should I serve? Should it not be his son? Just as I have served your father, so I will serve you.”

²⁰ Then Absalom said to Ahithophel, “Give us your counsel; what shall we do?”

²¹ Ahithophel said to Absalom, “Go in to your father’s concubines, the ones he has left to look after the house; and all Israel will hear that you have made yourself odious to your father, and the hands of all who are with you will be strengthened.”²² So they pitched a tent for Absalom upon the roof; and Absalom went in to his father’s concubines in the sight of all Israel.²³ Now in those days the counsel that Ahithophel gave was as if one consulted the oracle^d of God; so all the counsel of Ahithophel was esteemed, both by David and by Absalom.

17 Moreover Ahithophel said to Absalom, “Let me choose twelve thousand men, and I will set out and pursue David tonight.² I will come upon him while he is weary and discouraged, and throw him into a panic; and all the people who are with him will flee. I will strike down only the king,³ and I will bring all the people back to you as a bride comes home to her husband. You seek the life of only one man,^e and all the people will be at peace.”⁴ The advice pleased Absalom and all the elders of Israel.

⁵ Then Absalom said, “Call Hushai the Archite also, and let us hear too what he has to say.”⁶ When Hushai came to Absalom, Absalom said to him, “This is what Ahithophel

^a Gk Vg: Heb iniquity

^b Gk: Heb lacks at the Jordan

^c Gk: Heb all the people, the men of Israel

^d Heb word

^e Gk: Heb like the return of the whole (is) the man whom you seek portrayed as violent men in contrast to gentle David. Dead dog, see 3.8n.; 9.8n. 11: This Benjaminite, a demeaning reference to Shimei.

16.15–17.29: Overcoming Ahithophel. 16.16: David’s friend, see 15.37n. Long live the king, the utterance is duplicitous; for Hushai, David is still king. 18: The one whom the LORD and this people and all the Israelites have chosen, again, Hushai means David. 19: Hushai’s duplicity continues. Should it not be his son? For Hushai, the answer is no. Just as I have served your father, so I will serve you, Hushai is saying that by serving Absalom he is actually serving David. In all cases (vv. 16–19), Absalom is unaware of Hushai’s true meaning. 20–22: To sleep with a member of the harem is to claim the throne. Hence, by having relations with David’s concubines, Absalom makes his claim to kingship emphatic. He also fulfills Nathan’s prophecy (12.12), which was likely written with Absalom’s act in view. 23: Ahithophel may have been Bathsheba’s grandfather (cf. 11.3 and 23.34) and may have held a grudge against David for his treatment of Bathsheba and Uriah. 17.1–4: Ahithophel’s sensible advice is to attack while David’s forces are weak from fleeing. Once David is dead, he says, all who followed him will turn to Absalom. 5–14: Hushai says that David will not be so easy to find or his troops so easy to defeat (vv. 8–10). He advises Absalom to wait, gather the full force of Israel, then attack (vv. 11–13). Hushai is trying to buy time for David to reorganize his forces. Hushai also plays on Absalom’s ego, saying that all the people will follow him, and he can lead them into battle (v. 12). Even though Ahithophel’s advice is better than Hushai’s the LORD had ordained that Absalom would be persuaded to follow Hushai. 15: Hushai sends word to has said; shall we do as he advises? If not, you tell us.”⁷ Then Hushai said to Absalom, “This time the counsel that Ahithophel has given is not good.”⁸ Hushai continued, “You know that your father and his men are warriors, and that they are enraged, like a bear robbed of her cubs in the field. Besides, your father is expert in war; he will not spend the night with the troops.”⁹ Even now he has hidden himself in one of the pits, or in some other place. And when some of our troops^a fall at the first attack, whoever hears it will say, ‘There has been a slaughter among the troops who follow Absalom.’¹⁰ Then even the valiant warrior, whose heart is like the heart of a lion, will utterly melt with fear; for all Israel knows that your father is a warrior, and that those who are with him are valiant warriors.”¹¹ But my counsel is that all Israel be gathered to you, from Dan to Beer-sheba, like the sand by the sea for multitude, and that you go to battle in person.¹² So we shall come upon him in whatever place he may be found, and we shall light on him as the dew falls on the ground; and he will not survive, nor will any of those with him.¹³ If he withdraws into a city, then all Israel will bring ropes to that city, and we shall drag it into the valley, until not even a pebble is to be found there.”¹⁴ Absalom and all the men of Israel said, “The counsel of Hushai the Archite is better than the counsel of Ahithophel.” For the LORD had ordained to defeat the good counsel of Ahithophel, so that the LORD might bring ruin on Absalom.

¹⁵ Then Hushai said to the priests Zadok and Abiathar, “Thus and so did Ahithophel counsel Absalom and the elders of Israel; and thus and so I have counseled.”¹⁶ Therefore send quickly and tell David, ‘Do not lodge tonight at the fords of the wilderness, but by all means cross over; otherwise the king and all the people who are with him will be swallowed up.’”¹⁷ Jonathan and Ahimaaz were waiting at En-rogel; a servant-girl used to go and tell them, and they would go and tell King David; for they could not risk being seen entering the city.¹⁸ But a boy saw them, and told Absalom; so both of them went away quickly, and came to the house of a man at Bahurim, who had a well in his courtyard; and they went down into it.¹⁹ The man’s wife took a covering, stretched it over the well’s mouth, and spread out grain on it; and nothing was known of it.²⁰ When Absalom’s servants came to the woman at the house, they said, “Where are Ahimaaz and Jonathan?” The woman said to them, “They have crossed over the brook^b of water.” And when they had searched and could not find them, they returned to Jerusalem.

²¹ After they had gone, the men came up out of the well, and went and told King David. They said to David, “Go and cross the water quickly; for thus and so has Ahithophel counseled against you.”²² So David and all the people who were with him set out and crossed the Jordan; by daybreak not one was left who had not crossed the Jordan.

²³ When Ahithophel saw that his counsel was not followed, he saddled his donkey and went off home to his own city. He set his house in order, and hanged himself; he died and was buried in the tomb of his father.

²⁴ Then David came to Mahanaim, while Absalom crossed the Jordan with all the men of Israel.²⁵ Now Absalom had set Amasa over the army in the place of Joab. Amasa was the son of a man named Ithra the Ishmaelite,^c who had married Abigail daughter of Na-

^a Gk Mss: Heb some of them

^b Meaning of Heb uncertain

^c 1 Chr 2.17: Heb Israelite

David through the priests Zadok and Abiathar and their sons (see 15:24–29). 16: Hushai has bought David some time but urges him to cross the Jordan quickly and escape. 17: Jonathan and Ahimaaz, the sons of Zadok and Abiathar. En-rogel, “the spring of the fuller,” in the Kidron Valley south of Jerusalem. 18–19: Well, a simple pit whose opening could be covered with a blanket and grain spread over it for camouflage. 23: Ahithophel . . . hanged himself, perhaps because he knew that the end of Absalom’s reign was imminent. There is no stigma associated with suicide in the Bible; see 1 Sam 31.5n. 24: Mahanaim, the site east of the Jordan where Abner had conducted Ishbaal after making him king (2.8); it was easily defensible. 25: Amasa, David’s nephew, the son of his sister Zeruiah (see 1 Chr 2.16). Zeruiah is called the daughter of Nahash here rather than the daughter of Jesse. This may be a scribal error (note that Nahash occurs in v. 27), or Abigail may have been David’s half sister.

hash, sister of Zeruiah, Joab's mother.²⁶ The Israelites and Absalom encamped in the land of Gilead.

²⁷ When David came to Mahanaim, Shobi son of Nahash from Rabbah of the Ammonites, and Machir son of Ammiel from Lo-debar, and Barzillai the Gileadite from Rogelim,²⁸ brought beds, basins, and earthen vessels, wheat, barley, meal, parched grain, beans and lentils,^a ²⁹ honey and curds, sheep, and cheese from the herd, for David and the people with him to eat; for they said, "The troops are hungry and weary and thirsty in the wilderness."

18 Then David mustered the men who were with him, and set over them commanders of thousands and commanders of hundreds.² And David divided the army into three groups:^b one third under the command of Joab, one third under the command of Abishai son of Zeruiah, Joab's brother, and one third under the command of Ittai the Gittite. The king said to the men, "I myself will also go out with you."³ But the men said, "You shall not go out. For if we flee, they will not care about us. If half of us die, they will not care about us. But you are worth ten thousand of us;^c therefore it is better that you send us help from the city."⁴ The king said to them, "Whatever seems best to you I will do." So the king stood at the side of the gate, while all the army marched out by hundreds and by thousands.⁵ The king ordered Joab and Abishai and Ittai, saying, "Deal gently for my sake with the young man Absalom." And all the people heard when the king gave orders to all the commanders concerning Absalom.

⁶ So the army went out into the field against Israel; and the battle was fought in the forest of Ephraim.⁷ The men of Israel were defeated there by the servants of David, and the slaughter there was great on that day, twenty thousand men.⁸ The battle spread over the face of all the country; and the forest claimed more victims that day than the sword.

⁹ Absalom happened to meet the servants of David. Absalom was riding on his mule, and the mule went under the thick branches of a great oak. His head caught fast in the oak, and he was left hanging^d between heaven and earth, while the mule that was under him went on.¹⁰ A man saw it, and told Joab, "I saw Absalom hanging in an oak."¹¹ Joab said to the man who told him, "What, you saw him! Why then did you not strike him there to the ground? I would have been glad to give you ten pieces of silver and a belt."¹² But the man said to Joab, "Even if I felt in my hand the weight of a thousand pieces of silver, I would not raise my hand against the king's son; for in our hearing the king commanded you and Abishai and Ittai, saying: For my sake protect the young man Absalom!"¹³ On the other hand, if I had dealt treacherously against his life^e (and there is nothing hidden from the king), then you yourself would have stood aloof."¹⁴ Joab said, "I will not waste time like this with you." He took three spears in his hand, and thrust them into the heart of Absalom, while he was still alive in the oak.¹⁵ And ten young men, Joab's armor-bearers, surrounded Absalom and struck him, and killed him.

¹⁶ Then Joab sounded the trumpet, and the troops came back from pursuing Israel,

^a Heb and lentils and parched grain

^b Gk: Heb sent forth the army

^c Gk Vg Symmachus: Heb for now there are ten thousand such as we

^d Gk Syr Tg: Heb was put

^e Another reading is at the risk of my life

27: Nahash, the Ammonite king with whom David had a treaty (10.1–2). His son, Shobi, loyal to the treaty, now helps David in exile. Machir, see 9.4.

18.1–19.10: The defeat and death of Absalom. 18.3: You shall not go out, cf. the story in 21.15–17. 5: Through David's order concerning Absalom, the writer shows that David was not responsible for Absalom's death. 6–8: David chooses the rugged forest of Ephraim as the battle site, thereby countering the larger numbers of Absalom's army. This is another benefit afforded him by the delay that Hushai achieved. 9: Mule, the royal mount for King David and his sons (see 13.29; 1 Kings 1.38). Thus, Absalom's unseating from the mule symbolizes his loss of the kingdom. His being caught by the head recalls his glorious hair (14.26) and suggests that his pride was his downfall. 12: In our hearing the king commanded, see v. 5. 14: Spears may also be translated "sticks." Apparently, Joab stabbed or struck Absalom with them in order to dislodge him from the tree and finish him off for Joab restrained the troops. ¹⁷They took Absalom, threw him into a great pit in the forest, and raised over him a very great heap of stones. Meanwhile all the Israelites fled to their homes. ¹⁸Now Absalom in his lifetime had taken and set up for himself a pillar that is in the King's Valley, for he said, "I have no son to keep my name in remembrance"; he called the pillar by his own name. It is called Absalom's Monument to this day.

¹⁹Then Ahimaaz son of Zadok said, "Let me run, and carry tidings to the king that the LORD has delivered him from the power of his enemies." ²⁰Joab said to him, "You are not to carry tidings today; you may carry tidings another day, but today you shall not do so, because the king's son is dead." ²¹Then Joab said to a Cushite, "Go, tell the king what you have seen." The Cushite bowed before Joab, and ran. ²²Then Ahimaaz son of Zadok said again to Joab, "Come what may, let me also run after the Cushite." And Joab said, "Why will you run, my son, seeing that you have no reward^a for the tidings?" ²³"Come what may," he said, "I will run." So he said to him, "Run." Then Ahimaaz ran by the way of the Plain, and outran the Cushite.

²⁴Now David was sitting between the two gates. The sentinel went up to the roof of the gate by the wall, and when he looked up, he saw a man running alone. ²⁵The sentinel shouted and told the king. The king said, "If he is alone, there are tidings in his mouth." He kept coming, and drew near. ²⁶Then the sentinel saw another man running; and the sentinel called to the gatekeeper and said, "See, another man running alone!" The king said, "He also is bringing tidings." ²⁷The sentinel said, "I think the running of the first one is like the running of Ahimaaz son of Zadok."

The king said, "He is a good man, and comes with good tidings."

²⁸Then Ahimaaz cried out to the king, "All is well!" He prostrated himself before the king with his face to the ground, and said, "Blessed be the LORD your God, who has delivered up the men who raised their hand against my lord the king." ²⁹The king said, "Is it well with the young man Absalom?" Ahimaaz answered, "When Joab sent your servant,^b I saw a great tumult, but I do not know what it was." ³⁰The king said, "Turn aside, and stand here." So he turned aside, and stood still.

³¹Then the Cushite came; and the Cushite said, "Good tidings for my lord the king! For the LORD has vindicated you this day, delivering you from the power of all who rose up against you." ³²The king said to the Cushite, "Is it well with the young man Absalom?" The Cushite answered, "May the enemies of my lord the king, and all who rise up to do you harm, be like that young man."

³³^cThe king was deeply moved, and went up to the chamber over the gate, and wept; and as he went, he said, "O my son Absalom, my son, my son Absalom! Would I had died instead of you, O Absalom, my son, my son!"

19 It was told Joab, "The king is weeping and mourning for Absalom." ²So the victory that day was turned into mourning for all the troops; for the troops heard that day, "The king is grieving for his son." ³The troops stole into the city that day as soldiers steal in who are ashamed when they flee in battle. ⁴The king covered his face, and the king cried with a loud voice, "O my son Absalom, O Absalom, my son, my son!" ⁵Then

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Heb the king's servant, your servant

^c Ch 19.1 in Heb

(v. 15). 15: Ten young men, hence, no individual could be blamed for the actual killing. 17: A very great heap of stones, this kind of burial was reserved for a cursed person (Josh 7.26). 18: No son, cf. 14.27. Absalom's Monument, later identified with the late Hellenistic or Roman-period tomb in the Kidron valley. 19–20: Ahimaaz wants to deliver the good news of the victory to David, but Joab refuses because he knows that Absalom's death will not be welcome news to David. Because the king's son was dead may be the narrator's words rather than Joab's (see v. 29). 21: Cushite, a Nubian or Ethiopian. 27: Good tidings, victory usually constitutes good news. But the writer goes on to depict David as focused on Absalom, whose death will be bad news to David despite the victory. 29: Ahimaaz apparently does not know that Absalom is dead. 32: The Cushite thinks that Absalom's death is also good news. 18.33–19.8: David is portrayed as very distraught at his son's death, despite the political gain it means for him. Compare David's laments over Saul and Jonathan (1.11–27) and Abner (3.31–39), whose deaths

Joab came into the house to the king, and said, “Today you have covered with shame the faces of all your officers who have saved your life today, and the lives of your sons and your daughters, and the lives of your wives and your concubines,⁶ for love of those who hate you and for hatred of those who love you. You have made it clear today that commanders and officers are nothing to you; for I perceive that if Absalom were alive and all of us were dead today, then you would be pleased.⁷ So go out at once and speak kindly to your servants; for I swear by the LORD, if you do not go, not a man will stay with you this night; and this will be worse for you than any disaster that has come upon you from your youth until now.”⁸ Then the king got up and took his seat in the gate. The troops were all told, “See, the king is sitting in the gate”; and all the troops came before the king.

Meanwhile, all the Israelites had fled to their homes.⁹ All the people were disputing throughout all the tribes of Israel, saying, “The king delivered us from the hand of our enemies, and saved us from the hand of the Philistines; and now he has fled out of the land because of Absalom.”¹⁰ But Absalom, whom we anointed over us, is dead in battle. Now therefore why do you say nothing about bringing the king back?”

¹¹ King David sent this message to the priests Zadok and Abiathar, “Say to the elders of Judah, ‘Why should you be the last to bring the king back to his house? The talk of all Israel has come to the king.’¹² You are my kin, you are my bone and my flesh; why then should you be the last to bring back the king?”¹³ And say to Amasa, ‘Are you not my bone and my flesh? So may God do to me, and more, if you are not the commander of my army from now on, in place of Joab.’”¹⁴ Amasa^b swayed the hearts of all the people of Judah as one, and they sent word to the king, “Return, both you and all your servants.”¹⁵ So the king came back to the Jordan; and Judah came to Gilgal to meet the king and to bring him over the Jordan.

¹⁶ Shimei son of Gera, the Benjaminite, from Bahurim, hurried to come down with the people of Judah to meet King David; ¹⁷ with him were a thousand people from Benjamin. And Ziba, the servant of the house of Saul, with his fifteen sons and his twenty servants, rushed down to the Jordan ahead of the king,¹⁸ while the crossing was taking place,^c to bring over the king’s household, and to do his pleasure.

Shimei son of Gera fell down before the king, as he was about to cross the Jordan,¹⁹ and said to the king, “May my lord not hold me guilty or remember how your servant did wrong on the day my lord the king left Jerusalem; may the king not bear it in mind.²⁰ For your servant knows that I have sinned; therefore, see, I have come this day, the first of all the house of Joseph to come down to meet my lord the king.”²¹ Abishai son of Zeruiah answered, “Shall not Shimei be put to death for this, because he cursed the LORD’s anointed?”²² But David said, “What have I to do with you, you sons of Zeruiah, that you should today become an adversary to me? Shall anyone be put to death in Israel this day? For do I not know that I am this day

^a Gk: Heb to the king, to his house

^b Heb He

^c Cn: Heb the ford crossed

also benefited him. 19.6: Love and hate can be political terms for loyalty and disloyalty. Joab’s point is that David shows love to those who are disloyal to him (Absalom) while failing to show love or appreciation toward his loyal subjects. 9: All the tribes of Israel may refer to the northern tribes, not Judah, which is the focus of the subsequent narrative.

19.11–43: David returns to Jerusalem. 11–12: David contacts the tribal leaders or elders of Judah to encourage them to welcome him back as king before all Israel (i.e., the northern tribes) does so. 13: David appoints Amasa as his army commander in place of Joab because of Amasa’s influence in Judah’s army (see 17.25), and perhaps also because David shrewdly calculated that this would gain favor with the troops who had been loyal to Absalom, since Amasa was Absalom’s commander. It may also be intended to express David’s anger at Joab for having disobeyed his instructions regarding Absalom. All of these factors may provide motivation for Joab’s murder of Amasa (20.10). My bone and my flesh, David was Amasa’s uncle (see 17.25). 14: Amasa, in turn, persuades the people (i.e., army) of Judah to return to David. 15: Gilgal, west of the Jordan River, was an ancient Israelite shrine king over Israel?”²³ The king said to Shimei, “You shall not die.” And the king gave him his oath.

²⁴ Mephibosheth^a grandson of Saul came down to meet the king; he had not taken care of his feet, or trimmed his beard, or washed his clothes, from the day the king left until the day he came back in safety.

²⁵ When he came from Jerusalem to meet the king, the king said to him, “Why did you not go with me, Mephibosheth?”^a ²⁶ He answered, “My lord, O king, my servant deceived me; for your servant said to him, ‘Saddle a donkey for me,^b so that I may ride on it and go with the king.’ For your servant is lame.” ²⁷ He has slandered your servant to my lord the king. But my lord the king is like the angel of God; do therefore what seems good to you. ²⁸ For all my father’s house were doomed to death before my lord the king; but you set your servant among those who eat at your table. What further right have I, then, to appeal to the king?” ²⁹ The king said to him, “Why speak any more of your affairs? I have decided: you and Ziba shall divide the land.” ³⁰ Mephibosheth^a said to the king, “Let him take it all, since my lord the king has arrived home safely.”

³¹ Now Barzillai the Gileadite had come down from Rogelim; he went on with the king to the Jordan, to escort him over the Jordan. ³² Barzillai was a very aged man, eighty years old. He had provided the king with food while he stayed at Mahanaim, for he was a very wealthy man. ³³ The king said to Barzillai, “Come over with me, and I will provide for you in Jerusalem at my side.”

³⁴ But Barzillai said to the king, “How many years have I still to live, that I should go up with the king to Jerusalem?” ³⁵ Today I am eighty years old; can I discern what is pleasant and what is not? Can your servant taste what he eats or what he drinks? Can I still listen to the voice of singing men and singing women? Why then should your servant be an added burden to my lord the king? ³⁶ Your servant will go a little way over the Jordan with the king. Why should the king recompense me with such a reward? ³⁷ Please let your servant return, so that I may die in my own town, near the graves of my father and my mother. But here is your servant Chimham; let him go over with my lord the king; and do for him whatever seems good to you.”

³⁸ The king answered, “Chimham shall go over with me, and I will do for him whatever seems good to you; and all that you desire of me I will do for you.” ³⁹ Then all the people crossed over the Jordan, and the king crossed over; the king kissed Barzillai and blessed him, and he returned to his own home.

⁴⁰ The king went on to Gilgal, and Chimham went on with him; all the people of Judah, and also half the people of Israel, brought the king on his way.

^a Or Merib-baal: See 4.4 note

^b Gk Syr Vg: Heb said, ‘I will saddle a donkey for myself

where Saul had been made king (1 Sam 11.15). 16–23: Shimei and those with him were from the tribe of Benjamin, Saul’s tribe. Shimei had ridiculed David when he fled from Jerusalem (16.5–13). Now that David is victorious, he asks forgiveness. David grants it, perhaps in part because of the thousand people (soldiers) from Benjamin with Shimei. House of Joseph (v. 20), the northern tribes, Israel as opposed to Judah. Abishai still wants to kill Shimei (16.9), but David refuses. This is part of the author’s portrayal of David as gentle, in contrast to the violent sons of Zeruiah (v. 22). It may also have been customary for a new king to pardon criminals on the day of his coronation (see 1 Sam 11.13). 24: Taken care of his feet may mean trimmed his toenails, since the writer cites it as evidence that Merib-baal (Mephibosheth) had been mourning David’s exile. 25–30: Ziba had accused Merib-baal of plotting to take the throne (16.1–4). Merib-baal here defends himself, saying that Ziba refused to help him to flee with David, and he could not leave on his own accord because of his physical condition. David’s decision (v. 29) indicates that he does not know which of them is telling the truth. All my father’s house were doomed to death before my lord the king, a new king often executed all the heirs of his predecessor in order to have no rival for the throne. 31–40: Barzillai had helped to provide for David in exile (17.27). David now invites him to come live in his palace in Jerusalem. Barzillai replies that he is too old to enjoy it, but he arranges for the king to take his son Chimham instead. 35: Can I discern . . ., lit. “Can I know between good and evil?” likely a reference to sexual pleasure. Cf. Gen 2.9; Isa 7.15. 41: Barzillai says that he is too old to enjoy the pleasures of taste, music, ⁴¹Then all the people of Israel came to the king, and said to him, “Why have our kindred the people of Judah stolen you away, and brought the king and his household over the Jordan, and all David’s men with him?” ⁴²All the people of Judah answered the people of Israel, “Because the king is near of kin to us. Why then are you angry over this matter? Have we eaten at all at the king’s expense? Or has he given us any gift?” ⁴³But the people of Israel answered the people of Judah, “We have ten shares in the king, and in David also we have more than you. Why then did you despise us? Were we not the first to speak of bringing back our king?” But the words of the people of Judah were fiercer than the words of the people of Israel.

20 Now a scoundrel named Sheba son of Bichri, a Benjaminite, happened to be there. He sounded the trumpet and cried out, “We have no portion in David, no share in the son of Jesse!

Everyone to your tents, O Israel!”

²So all the people of Israel withdrew from David and followed Sheba son of Bichri; but the people of Judah followed their king steadfastly from the Jordan to Jerusalem.

³David came to his house at Jerusalem; and the king took the ten concubines whom he had left to look after the house, and put them in a house under guard, and provided for them, but did not go in to them. So they were shut up until the day of their death, living as if in widowhood.

⁴Then the king said to Amasa, “Call the men of Judah together to me within three days, and be here yourself.” ⁵So Amasa went to summon Judah; but he delayed beyond the set time that had been appointed him. ⁶David said to Abishai, “Now Sheba son of Bichri will do us more harm than Absalom; take your lord’s servants and pursue him, or he will find fortified cities for himself, and escape from us.” ⁷Joab’s men went out after him, along with the Cherethites, the Pelethites, and all the warriors; they went out from Jerusalem to pursue Sheba son of Bichri. ⁸When they were at the large stone that is in Gibeon, Amasa came to meet them. Now Joab was wearing a soldier’s garment and over it was a belt with a sword in its sheath fastened at his waist; as he went forward it fell out. ⁹Joab said to Amasa, “Is it well with you, my brother?” And Joab took Amasa by the beard with his right hand to kiss him. ¹⁰But Amasa did not notice the sword in Joab’s hand; Joab struck him in the belly so that his entrails poured out on the ground, and he died. He did not strike a second blow.

Then Joab and his brother Abishai pursued Sheba son of Bichri. ¹¹And one of Joab’s men took his stand by Amasa, and said, “Whoever favors Joab, and whoever is for David, let him follow Joab.” ¹²Amasa lay wallowing in his blood on the highway, and the man saw that all the people were stopping. Since he saw that all who came by him were stopping, he carried Amasa from the highway into a field, and threw a garment over him. ¹³Once he was removed from the highway, all the people went on after Joab to pursue Sheba son of Bichri.

¹⁴Sheba^a passed through all the tribes of Israel to Abel of Beth-maacah;^b and all the Bichrites^c assembled, and followed him

^a Heb He

^b Compare 20.15: Heb and Beth-maacah

^c Compare Gk Vg: Heb Berites

or sex that are available at David’s court. But his son is not too old. The army (people) of Judah welcomes David back before the army of Israel. 42: The army of Judah denies that it has received any special favors or bribes from David. 43: Ten shares, the ten northern tribes of Israel.

20.1–26: Sheba’s revolt. 1: Happened to be there, at the scene in Gilgal described in 19.41–43. Ch 20 continues that story. Everyone to your tents, an idiom for military demobilization; Sheba is calling for the army of Israel to withdraw from David; cf. 1 Kings 12.16. 2: All the people of Israel, the northern tribes. The phrase exaggerates the extent of the northern disaffection with David (see v. 21). 3: David no longer had sexual relations with the ten concubines he had left behind, because Absalom had slept with them (16.20–22). 7: The Cherethites and Pelethites, perhaps “Cretans” and “Philistines,” who composed the royal bodyguard (8.19). 8–10: Joab’s assassination of Amasa is similar to his murder of Abner (3.26–39). His implied motive had to do with the fact that Amasa had taken Joab’s place as army commander (19.13). His actual motive was more likely political: to rid David of a powerful rival for the leadership of Judah. 13: The people, the army. 14: Abel of Beth-maacah is in the extreme inside. ¹⁵ Joab's forces^a came and besieged him in Abel of Beth-maacah; they threw up a siege ramp against the city, and it stood against the rampart. Joab's forces were battering the wall to break it down. ¹⁶ Then a wise woman called from the city, "Listen! Listen! Tell Joab, 'Come here, I want to speak to you.'" ¹⁷ He came near her; and the woman said, "Are you Joab?" He answered, "I am." Then she said to him, "Listen to the words of your servant." He answered, "I am listening." ¹⁸ Then she said, "They used to say in the old days, 'Let them inquire at Abel'; and so they would settle a matter. ¹⁹ I am one of those who are peaceable and faithful in Israel; you seek to destroy a city that is a mother in Israel; why will you swallow up the heritage of the LORD?" ²⁰ Joab answered, "Far be it from me, far be it, that I should swallow up or destroy! ²¹ That is not the case! But a man of the hill country of Ephraim, called Sheba son of Bichri, has lifted up his hand against King David; give him up alone, and I will withdraw from the city." The woman said to Joab, "His head shall be thrown over the wall to you." ²² Then the woman went to all the people with her wise plan. And they cut off the head of Sheba son of Bichri, and threw it out to Joab. So he blew the trumpet, and they dispersed from the city, and all went to their homes, while Joab returned to Jerusalem to the king.

²³ Now Joab was in command of all the army of Israel;^b Benaiah son of Jehoiada was in command of the Cherethites and the Pelethites; ²⁴ Adoram was in charge of the forced labor; Jehoshaphat son of Ahilud was the recorder; ²⁵ Sheva was secretary; Zadok and Abiathar were priests; ²⁶ and Ira the Jairite was also David's priest.

21 Now there was a famine in the days of David for three years, year after year; and David inquired of the LORD. The LORD said, "There is bloodguilt on Saul and on his house, because he put the Gibeonites to death." ² So the king called the Gibeonites and spoke to them. (Now the Gibeonites were not of the people of Israel, but of the remnant northern part of Israel. 15: Ancient Israelite cities were surrounded by thick walls that had to be broken through with battering rams. 16: Wise woman (cf. ch 14) in this case could be a title for a city official. She is certainly intelligent and eloquent and acts on behalf of her city. 18: Let them inquire at Abel implies that Abel was a central city for settling legal disputes or for divination. 19: A mother in Israel, a large city, a metropolis. The heritage of the LORD, the land and people of Israel; see 1 Sam 10.1. 20: The woman pleads for her city based on its antiquity and historical value to Israel. 21: The woman apparently does not know about Sheba, indicating that his revolt did not reach to all Israel but included only part of Benjamin and the hill country of Ephraim. 23–26: This cabinet list is similar to the one in 8.16–18. It probably came to this location by attachment to 21.1–14, which originally stood directly before 9.1. Alternatively, the two lists are used to frame the section, sometimes called "David under the curse." The two lists are probably variants, although according to some scholars they reflect different periods in David's reign. The Cherethites and the Pelethites, see v. 7n. Forced labor, conscripted from the northern tribes by David and Solomon. Adoram or Adoniram (1 Kings 4.6) was later stoned when the Israelites rebelled against the Davidic dynasty (1 Kings 12.18).

^a Heb They

^b Cn: Heb Joab to all the army, Israel

Chs 21–24: An appendix of miscellaneous stories and poems. The final four chapters of 2 Samuel contain six passages arranged in chiasmic order: narrative (21.1–14), list (21.15–22), poem (22.1–51), poem (23.1–7), list (23.8–38), narrative (24.1–25). The accumulation of these passages may have come about as follows. 21.1–14 was moved from its original place before ch 9. The motive was likely to lessen the impression that David had Saul's heirs killed for political reasons. The story in 24.1–25 was added to 21.1–14 (see 24.1) and placed as the final episode in David's life before the account of his death in 1 Kings 1–2 because it anticipated the founding of the Temple under Solomon. The lists may have been added next, separating the two narratives. The two psalms were then inserted. Ch 22 is a song of deliverance and praise for victory. It is appropriate following the list of victories in 21.15–22. Then 23.1–7 provides David's "last words," in the tradition of other leading biblical characters.

21.1–14: The execution of Saul's heirs. 1–2: The Gibeonites had a special treaty with Israel (Josh 9). This story assumes that the violation of that treaty brought divine wrath. The Bible nowhere recounts Saul's attempted extermination of the Gibeonites. Amorites, one of several groups of pre-Israelite residents of the land of Ca-

of the Amorites; although the people of Israel had sworn to spare them, Saul had tried to wipe them out in his zeal for the people of Israel and Judah.)³ David said to the Gibeonites, “What shall I do for you? How shall I make expiation, that you may bless the heritage of the LORD?”⁴ The Gibeonites said to him, “It is not a matter of silver or gold between us and Saul or his house; neither is it for us to put anyone to death in Israel.” He said, “What do you say that I should do for you?”⁵ They said to the king, “The man who consumed us and planned to destroy us, so that we should have no place in all the territory of Israel—⁶ let seven of his sons be handed over to us, and we will impale them before the LORD at Gibeon on the mountain of the LORD.”^a The king said, “I will hand them over.”

⁷ But the king spared Mephibosheth,^b the son of Saul’s son Jonathan, because of the oath of the LORD that was between them, between David and Jonathan son of Saul.⁸ The king took the two sons of Rizpah daughter of Aiah, whom she bore to Saul, Armoni and Mephibosheth,^b and the five sons of Merab^c daughter of Saul, whom she bore to Adriel son of Barzillai the Meholahite;⁹ he gave them into the hands of the Gibeonites, and they impaled them on the mountain before the LORD. The seven of them perished together. They were put to death in the first days of harvest, at the beginning of barley harvest.

¹⁰ Then Rizpah the daughter of Aiah took sackcloth, and spread it on a rock for herself, from the beginning of harvest until rain fell on them from the heavens; she did not allow the birds of the air to come on the bodies^d by day, or the wild animals by night.¹¹ When David was told what Rizpah daughter of Aiah, the concubine of Saul, had done,¹² David went and took the bones of Saul and the bones of his son Jonathan from the people of Jabesh-gilead, who had stolen them from the public square of Beth-shan, where the Philistines had hung them up, on the day the Philistines killed Saul on Gilboa.¹³ He brought up from there the bones of Saul and the bones of his son Jonathan; and they gathered the bones of those who had been impaled.¹⁴ They buried the bones of Saul and of his son Jonathan in the land of Benjamin in Zela, in the tomb of his father Kish; they did all that the king commanded. After that, God heeded supplications for the land.

¹⁵ The Philistines went to war again with Israel, and David went down together with his servants. They fought against the Philistines, and David grew weary.¹⁶ Ishbibenob, one of the descendants of the giants, whose spear weighed three hundred shekels of bronze, and who was fitted out with new weapons,^e said he would kill David.¹⁷ But Abishai son of Zeruiah came to his aid, and attacked the Philistine and killed him. Then David’s men swore to him, “You shall not go out with us to battle any longer, so that you do not quench the lamp of Israel.”

^a Cn Compare Gk and 21.9: Heb at Gibeah of Saul, the chosen of the LORD

^b Or Merib-baal: See 4.4 note

^c Two Heb Mss Syr Compare Gk: MT Michal

^d Heb them

^e Heb was belted anew

naan, often used in the Deuteronomistic History for all of them. 3: The heritage of the LORD, the land and people of Israel; see 1 Sam 10.1n. 4: The Gibeonites regard this as a matter for blood vengeance, but as resident aliens in Israel they do not have that right. 5–9: Typically, the founder of a new dynasty annihilated the potential claimants from the previous dynasty as David does here. Saul’s alleged offense provides a religious legitimation for this political act. Only Merib-baal is spared (v. 7), probably because he is crippled and therefore cannot be king, though this may also reflect David’s relationship with Jonathan (see 1 Sam 18.1–3; 20.17,41–42). On the other hand, the theme of David’s affection for and covenant with Jonathan may have been developed by the author from the historical fact of David’s preservation of Merib-baal. This event took place early in David’s reign over Israel and originally came before 9.1, where David asks if anyone is left in Saul’s house. Sons (v. 6) also includes grandsons. Mephibosheth (v. 8), not Jonathan’s son, Merib-baal, who was spared. The barley harvest was in April–May. 10: Rizpah was Saul’s concubine (3.7–11). 11–14: As a result of Rizpah’s courageous action, David tries to honor the memory of Saul and Jonathan; see 1 Sam 31.12–13.

21.15–22: Stories from the Philistine wars. The stories recounted here come from the battles with the Philistines earlier in David’s reign. 16: Three hundred shekels was about 8 lb (3.5 kg). 17: The insistence of David’s men

¹⁸ After this a battle took place with the Philistines, at Gob; then Sibbecai the Hushathite killed Saph, who was one of the descendants of the giants. ¹⁹ Then there was another battle with the Philistines at Gob; and Elhanan son of Jaare-oregim, the Beth-lehemite, killed Goliath the Gittite, the shaft of whose spear was like a weaver's beam. ²⁰ There was again war at Gath, where there was a man of great size, who had six fingers on each hand, and six toes on each foot, twenty-four in number; he too was descended from the giants. ²¹ When he taunted Israel, Jonathan son of David's brother Shimei, killed him. ²² These four were descended from the giants in Gath; they fell by the hands of David and his servants.

22 David spoke to the LORD the words of this song on the day when the LORD delivered him from the hand of all his enemies, and from the hand of Saul. ² He said:

The LORD is my rock, my fortress, and my deliverer,

³ my God, my rock, in whom I take refuge, my shield and the horn of my salvation, my stronghold and my refuge, my savior; you save me from violence.

⁴ I call upon the LORD, who is worthy to be praised, and I am saved from my enemies.

⁵ For the waves of death encompassed me, the torrents of perdition assailed me;

⁶ the cords of Sheol entangled me, the snares of death confronted me.

⁷ In my distress I called upon the LORD; to my God I called. From his temple he heard my voice, and my cry came to his ears.

⁸ Then the earth reeled and rocked; the foundations of the heavens trembled and quaked, because he was angry.

⁹ Smoke went up from his nostrils, and devouring fire from his mouth; glowing coals flamed forth from him.

¹⁰ He bowed the heavens, and came down; thick darkness was under his feet.

¹¹ He rode on a cherub, and flew; he was seen upon the wings of the wind.

¹² He made darkness around him a canopy, thick clouds, a gathering of water.

¹³ Out of the brightness before him coals of fire flamed forth.

¹⁴ The LORD thundered from heaven; the Most High uttered his voice.

¹⁵ He sent out arrows, and scattered them—lightning, and routed them.

¹⁶ Then the channels of the sea were seen, the foundations of the world were laid bare at the rebuke of the LORD, at the blast of the breath of his nostrils.

¹⁷ He reached from on high, he took me, he drew me out of mighty waters.

¹⁸ He delivered me from my strong enemy, from those who hated me; for they were too mighty for me.

that he not go to battle may lie behind 11.1; 18.3. 19: This represents an earlier tradition than 1 Sam 17 concerning the death of Goliath; the otherwise unknown Elhanan, rather than David, slays him. The story in 1 Sam 17 is an elaboration and reworking of this tradition, attributing the victory to the better-known David, cf. 1 Chr 20.5.

22.1–51: A psalm of praise. This psalm, which is essentially the same as Psalm 18, was written long after David's time but is inserted here as appropriate to his sentiments. The psalm praises the LORD for appearing to rescue the psalmist (vv. 1–20) and for continued support of the psalmist's military activities (vv. 21–51). Its placement following the exploits of David's heroes in 21.15–22 and David's own rescue (vv. 15–17) is appropriate. 2–3: Rock, a metaphor for the LORD as protector. 5–6: Perdition, the underworld, the abode of the dead, known in the Bible as Sheol. 7: Temple suggests that this psalm was written after David, since the Temple was built by Solomon, although it may refer to God's heavenly abode (see Ps 11.4). 8: The LORD's appearance is accompanied by earthquake. 9: The LORD is pictured here as a fire-breathing dragon. 11–16: The LORD is depicted here as a storm god. 11: Cherub, a mythical, griffinlike creature. 14–15: God's voice is thunder (Job 40.9; Ps 29.3), and he throws lightning bolts at his enemies. Most High, a title of El, head of the Canaanite pantheon. The title is later appropriated for the LORD. 16: The psalmist envisions the world as flat; he is trapped in the underworld beneath the foundations of the world, which the LORD's roar uncovers. 32: This is a monotheistic claim; the LORD (Yahweh)

¹⁹They came upon me in the day of my calamity,
but the LORD was my stay.
²⁰He brought me out into a broad place;
he delivered me, because he delighted
in me.

²¹The LORD rewarded me according to my
righteousness;
according to the cleanness of my hands
he recompensed me.

²²For I have kept the ways of the LORD,
and have not wickedly departed from
my God.

²³For all his ordinances were before me,
and from his statutes I did not turn aside.

²⁴I was blameless before him,
and I kept myself from guilt.

²⁵Therefore the LORD has recompensed me
according to my righteousness,
according to my cleanness in his sight.

²⁶With the loyal you show yourself loyal;
with the blameless you show yourself
blameless;

²⁷with the pure you show yourself pure,
and with the crooked you show yourself
perverse.

²⁸You deliver a humble people, but your eyes are upon the haughty to bring them down.

²⁹Indeed, you are my lamp, O LORD,
the LORD lightens my darkness.

³⁰By you I can crush a troop,
and by my God I can leap over a wall.

³¹This God—his way is perfect;
the promise of the LORD proves true;
he is a shield for all who take refuge in
him.

³²For who is God, but the LORD?
And who is a rock, except our God?

³³The God who has girded me with strength^a
has opened wide my path.^b

³⁴He made my^c feet like the feet of deer,
and set me secure on the heights.

³⁵He trains my hands for war,
so that my arms can bend a bow of bronze.

³⁶You have given me the shield of your salvation,
and your help^d has made me great.

³⁷You have made me stride freely,
and my feet do not slip;

³⁸I pursued my enemies and destroyed
them,
and did not turn back until they were
consumed.

³⁹I consumed them; I struck them down,
so that they did not rise;
they fell under my feet.

⁴⁰For you girded me with strength for the battle;
you made my assailants sink
under me.

⁴¹You made my enemies turn their backs
to me,
those who hated me, and I destroyed
them.

⁴²They looked, but there was no one to save them;
they cried to the LORD, but he did not answer them.

⁴³I beat them fine like the dust of the
earth,
I crushed them and stamped them down like the mire of the streets.

⁴⁴You delivered me from strife with the peoples;^e
you kept me as the head of the
nations;
people whom I had not known served
me.

⁴⁵Foreigners came cringing to me;
as soon as they heard of me, they obeyed me.

⁴⁶Foreigners lost heart,
and came trembling out of their strongholds.

⁴⁷The LORD lives! Blessed be my rock, and exalted be my God, the rock of my
salvation,

^a QMs Gk Syr Vg Compare Ps 18.32: MT God is my strong refuge

^b Meaning of Heb uncertain

^c Another reading is his

^d QMs: MT your answering

^e Gk: Heb from strife with my people

⁴⁸ the God who gave me vengeance
and brought down peoples under me, ⁴⁹ who brought me out from my enemies;
you exalted me above my adversaries,
you delivered me from the violent.

⁵⁰ For this I will extol you, O LORD, among
the nations,
and sing praises to your name.

⁵¹ He is a tower of salvation for his king, and shows steadfast love to his anointed,
to David and his descendants forever.

23 Now these are the last words of David:
The oracle of David, son of Jesse,
the oracle of the man whom God exalted,^a
the anointed of the God of Jacob,
the favorite of the Strong One of Israel:

² The spirit of the LORD speaks through me,
his word is upon my tongue.

³ The God of Israel has spoken,
the Rock of Israel has said to me:
One who rules over people justly,
ruling in the fear of God,

⁴ is like the light of morning,
like the sun rising on a cloudless
morning,
gleaming from the rain on the grassy
land.

⁵ Is not my house like this with God?
For he has made with me an everlasting covenant,
ordered in all things and secure.

Will he not cause to prosper
all my help and my desire?

⁶ But the godless are^b all like thorns that are thrown away;
for they cannot be picked up with the
hand;

⁷ to touch them one uses an iron bar
or the shaft of a spear.
And they are entirely consumed in fire
on the spot.^c

⁸ These are the names of the warriors whom David had: Josheb-basshebeth a Tahchemonite; he was chief of the Three;^d
he wielded his spear^e against eight hundred whom he killed at one time.

⁹ Next to him among the three warriors was Eleazar son of Dodo son of Ahohi. He was with David when they defied the Philistines who were gathered there for battle.
The Israelites withdrew,¹⁰ but he stood his ground. He struck down the Philistines until his arm grew weary, though his hand clung to the sword. The LORD brought about a great victory that day. Then the people came back to him—but only to strip the dead.

¹¹ Next to him was Shammah son of Agee, the Hararite. The Philistines gathered together at Lehi, where there was a plot of ground full of lentils; and the army fled from

^a QMs: MT who was raised on high

^b Heb But worthlessness

^c Heb in sitting

^d Gk Vg Compare 1 Chr 11.11: Meaning of Heb uncertain

^e 1 Chr 11.11: Meaning of Heb uncertain

alone is God. 33–43: The LORD equips the psalmist for battle. 47: Rock, see vv. 2–3n. 51: Steadfast love, loyalty. This verse alludes to the LORD’s promise to David of an enduring dynasty (2 Sam 7). Anointed, Heb “mashiah” (“messiah”), a royal title appropriate for any king (see 1 Sam 2.10n). David and his descendants, if original, suggests that the psalm comes from royal circles in Judah.

23.1–7: The last words of David. There may have been a literary tradition in the Bible of ascribing poems to leading characters as their “last words.” Compare the poems attributed to Jacob in Gen 49 and to Moses in Deut 32–33. David’s last words, though, do not consist of a blessing of Israel. Like Moses, however, David is portrayed as a prophet pronouncing an oracle (23.1–2). The actual date of David’s “last words” is uncertain. In contrast to ch 22, 23.1–7 has no parallel in Psalms. 1: Anointed, a royal title, here referring to David, echoing the end of ch 22. Strong One of Israel, an epithet for the LORD. 3: Rock, see 22.3,47. 4: The image of the king as the sun was common in the ancient Near East, especially in Egypt, although less so in Israel. 5: House, the king’s (David’s) dynasty. Everlasting covenant, the LORD’s promise of a dynasty for David in 7.16; cf. Ps 89.28–29. 6–7: These verses continue the image of vv. 3–4. The godless are like thorns consumed by the sun’s heat.

23.8–39: David’s heroes. 8–12: Nothing more is known about the Three greatest warriors in David’s army.

the Philistines.¹² But he took his stand in the middle of the plot, defended it, and killed the Philistines; and the LORD brought about a great victory.

¹³ Towards the beginning of harvest three of the thirty^a chiefs went down to join David at the cave of Adullam, while a band of Philistines was encamped in the valley of Rephaim.¹⁴ David was then in the stronghold; and the garrison of the Philistines was then at Bethlehem.¹⁵ David said longingly, “O that someone would give me water to drink from the well of Bethlehem that is by the gate!”¹⁶ Then the three warriors broke through the camp of the Philistines, drew water from the well of Bethlehem that was by the gate, and brought it to David. But he would not drink of it; he poured it out to the LORD,¹⁷ for he said, “The LORD forbid that I should do this. Can I drink the blood of the men who went at the risk of their lives?” Therefore he would not drink it. The three warriors did these things.

¹⁸ Now Abishai son of Zeruiah, the brother of Joab, was chief of the Thirty.^b With his spear he fought against three hundred men and killed them, and won a name beside the Three.¹⁹ He was the most renowned of the Thirty,^c and became their commander; but he did not attain to the Three.

²⁰ Benaiah son of Jehoiada was a valiant warrior^d from Kabzeel, a doer of great deeds; he struck down two sons of Ariel^e of Moab. He also went down and killed a lion in a pit on a day when snow had fallen.²¹ And he killed an Egyptian, a handsome man. The Egyptian had a spear in his hand; but Benaiah went against him with a staff, snatched the spear out of the Egyptian’s hand, and killed him with his own spear.²² Such were the things Benaiah son of Jehoiada did, and won a name beside the three warriors.²³ He was renowned among the Thirty, but he did not attain to the Three. And David put him in charge of his bodyguard.

²⁴ Among the Thirty were Asahel brother of Joab; Elhanan son of Dodo of Bethlehem; ²⁵ Shammah of Harod; Elika of Harod; ²⁶ Helez the Paltite; Ira son of Ikkesh of Tekoa; ²⁷ Abiezer of Anathoth; Mebunnai the Hushathite; ²⁸ Zalmon the Ahohite; Maharai of Netophah; ²⁹ Heleb son of Baanah of Netophah; Ittai son of Ribai of Gibeah of the Benjaminites; ³⁰ Benaiah of Pirathon; Hiddai of the torrents of Gaash; ³¹ Abi-albon the Arbathite; Azmaveth of Bahurim; ³² Eliabha of Shaalbon; the sons of Jashen: Jonathan ³³ son of Shammah the Hararite; Ahiam son of Sharar the Hararite; ³⁴ Eliphelet son of Ahasbai of Maacah; Eliam son of Ahithophel the Gilonite; ³⁵ Hezro^g of Carmel; Paarai the Arbite; ³⁶ Igal son of Nathan of Zobah; Bani the Gadite; ³⁷ Zelek the Ammonite; Naharai of Beeroth, the armor-bearer of Joab son of Zeruiah; ³⁸ Ira the Ithrite; Gareb the Ithrite; ³⁹ Uriah the Hittite—thirty-seven in all.

^a Heb adds head

^b Two Heb Mss Syr: MT Three

^c Syr Compare 1 Chr 11.25: Heb Was he the most renowned of the Three?

^d Another reading is the son of Ish-hai

^e Gk: Heb lacks sons of

^f Gk: Heb lacks son of

^g Another reading is Hezrai

13–17: This story is not about the three warriors just listed but about three anonymous members of the honor guard of the thirty. 13: The beginning of harvest, the weather was hot and dry, which is why David became thirsty. The cave of Adullam, “cave” may be an error for “stronghold”; the two words differ by one letter in Hebrew. Adullam was David’s headquarters and hideout when he fled from Saul (cf. 1 Sam 22.1–4). 14: Stronghold, the fortress at Adullam. Since a garrison of the Philistines was then at Bethlehem, this must have been early in David’s reign or even before he became king. Bethlehem, David’s hometown, hence his fond remembrance of the water there. 16–17: He poured it out to the LORD, there are different interpretations of David’s actions here. Some think he is angry that the men risked their lives foolishly. Others suggest that this was a libation or sacrifice to God, a great honor to the three men. 20–23: Benaiah, the commander of David’s bodyguard and later of the army under Solomon. 24: Asahel seems to be a young warrior aspiring to greatness in the story of his death (2.18–23). It is surprising to find his name in this list of soldiers who distinguished themselves in David’s army. This may indicate that the story in 2 Sam 2 was invented to give Joab a personal motive, rather than the political one of following David’s order, for killing Abner. Elhanan killed Goliath (21.19). 30: Benaiah, a different man from the Benaiah in vv. 20–23. 39: Uriah, Bathsheba’s husband (ch 11). It is uncertain how the count of thirty-seven

24 Again the anger of the LORD was kindled against Israel, and he incited David against them, saying, “Go, count the people of Israel and Judah.”² So the king said to Joab and the commanders of the army,^a who were with him, “Go through all the tribes of Israel, from Dan to Beer-sheba, and take a census of the people, so that I may know how many there are.”³ But Joab said to the king, “May the LORD your God increase the number of the people a hundredfold, while the eyes of my lord the king can still see it! But why does my lord the king want to do this?”⁴ But the king’s word prevailed against Joab and the commanders of the army. So Joab and the commanders of the army went out from the presence of the king to take a census of the people of Israel.⁵ They crossed the Jordan, and began from^b Aroer and from the city that is in the middle of the valley, toward Gad and on to Jazer.⁶ Then they came to Gilead, and to Kadesh in the land of the Hittites;^c and they came to Dan, and from Dan^d they went around to Sidon,⁷ and came to the fortress of Tyre and to all the cities of the Hivites and Canaanites; and they went out to the Negeb of Judah at Beer-sheba.⁸ So when they had gone through all the land, they came back to Jerusalem at the end of nine months and twenty days.⁹ Joab reported to the king the number of those who had been recorded: in Israel there were eight hundred thousand soldiers able to draw the sword, and those of Judah were five hundred thousand.

¹⁰ But afterward, David was stricken to the heart because he had numbered the people. David said to the LORD, “I have sinned greatly in what I have done. But now, O LORD, I pray you, take away the guilt of your servant; for I have done very foolishly.”¹¹ When David rose in the morning, the word of the LORD came to the prophet Gad, David’s seer, saying,¹² “Go and say to David: Thus says the LORD: Three things I offer^e you; choose one of them, and I will do it to you.”¹³ So Gad came to David and told him; he asked him, “Shall three^f years of famine come to you on your land? Or will you flee three months before your foes while they pursue you? Or shall there be three days’ pestilence in your land? Now consider, and decide what answer I shall return to the one who sent me.”¹⁴ Then David said to Gad, “I

^a 1 Chr 21.2 Gk: Heb to Joab the commander of the army

^b Gk Mss: Heb encamped in Aroer south of

^c Gk: Heb to the land of Tahtim-hodshi

^d Cn Compare Gk: Heb they came to Dan-jaan and

^e Or hold over

^f 1 Chr 21.12 Gk: Heb seven

is achieved. The list in vv. 24–39 has thirty names in it. The addition of the “Three” plus Abishai and Benaiah brings the number to thirty-five. Joab may have been counted as a member of this elite group, though his name is not specifically mentioned. There are textual variations in vv. 24–39 where an additional name may have been read.

24.1–25: David’s census. The final narrative in 2 Samuel. It must be remembered that 2 Samuel and 1 Kings were originally part of a larger work and not separate books. This chapter, then, was not written as a conclusion to 2 Samuel. Rather, it anticipates the building of the Temple under Solomon (vv. 18–25; see 1 Kings chs 5–6; 8) and thus looks forward to the important results of David’s reign. 1: Again implies that this story is the sequel to an earlier one, perhaps 21.1–14. This same story is found in 1 Chr 21, which says that Satan rather than the anger of the LORD incited David. It is only in postexilic texts that (the) Satan becomes important in biblical literature. Both reflect the belief that natural calamity is the result of human sin. It is not clear why taking a census was sinful; some scholars suggest it was a sign of David’s inordinate pride or that the census was meant to bring about unacceptable changes in Israelite society. (A census usually provided the basis for conscription and taxation.) Another possibility is that all men enrolled in the census were required to be ritually pure as when they went to battle, and this requirement was easily broken. 2: From Dan to Beer-sheba, the traditional northern and southern limits of Israel. 3–4: These potential dangers may explain Joab’s reluctance to carry out the census. 5–7: The census takers began at Aroer east of the Dead Sea and moved north as far as Dan, then crossed over the Jordan and went south through traditional Israel until they reached Beer-sheba. 9: The count is limited to men of military age. Thousand may refer to a much smaller military unit. Israel and Judah are numbered separately because Judah, as David’s native tribe, was exempted from taxation. 10–14: Stricken to the heart, conscience-stricken; the language David uses is similar to 2 Sam 12.13. David is given a choice of three punishments. He chooses the am in great distress; let us fall into the hand of the LORD, for his mercy is great; but let me not fall into human hands.”

¹⁵ So the LORD sent a pestilence on Israel from that morning until the appointed time; and seventy thousand of the people died, from Dan to Beer-sheba. ¹⁶ But when the angel stretched out his hand toward Jerusalem to destroy it, the LORD relented concerning the evil, and said to the angel who was bringing destruction among the people, “It is enough; now stay your hand.” The angel of the LORD was then by the threshing floor of Araunah the Jebusite. ¹⁷ When David saw the angel who was destroying the people, he said to the LORD, “I alone have sinned, and I alone have done wickedly; but these sheep, what have they done? Let your hand, I pray, be against me and against my father’s house.”

¹⁸ That day Gad came to David and said to him, “Go up and erect an altar to the LORD on the threshing floor of Araunah the Jebusite.”

¹⁹ Following Gad’s instructions, David went up, as the LORD had commanded. ²⁰ When Araunah looked down, he saw the king and his servants coming toward him; and Araunah went out and prostrated himself before the king with his face to the ground.

²¹ Araunah said, “Why has my lord the king come to his servant?” David said, “To buy the threshing floor from you in order to build an altar to the LORD, so that the plague may be averted from the people.” ²² Then Araunah said to David, “Let my lord the king take and offer up what seems good to him; here are the oxen for the burnt offering, and the threshing sledges and the yokes of the oxen for the wood.” ²³ All this, O king, Araunah gives to the king.” And Araunah said to the king, “May the LORD your God respond favorably to you.”

²⁴ But the king said to Araunah, “No, but I will buy them from you for a price; I will not offer burnt offerings to the LORD my God that cost me nothing.” So David bought the threshing floor and the oxen for fifty shekels of silver. ²⁵ David built there an altar to the LORD, and offered burnt offerings and offerings of well-being. So the LORD answered his supplication for the land, and the plague was averted from Israel.

hand of the Lord, an idiom for plague, trusting in the Lord’s mercy. 15–16: David’s strategy works. The plague is stopped after only one day and Jerusalem is spared. The appointed time (v. 15) may be the time of the evening meal. Thousand may be a military unit of much fewer than 1,000. Evil (v. 16), not moral evil but destruction. Araunah, called Ornan in 1 Chr 21. Jebusite, a pre-Israelite native of Jerusalem (5.6–10). Threshing floor, a flat, high area where grain was separated from the chaff. God also appears to people at threshing floors elsewhere in the Bible (Judg 6.11–12). 17: Sheep, the people of Jerusalem with David, as king, imagined as their shepherd; see 7.8n. 18–25: These verses indicate that the plague was stopped after David built his altar and made his offerings rather than by the LORD’s free will as in v. 16. The site of David’s altar is the location of the later altar of burnt offering of Solomon’s Temple. Fifty shekels was about 1.25 lb (.57 kg).

This page intentionally left blank

1 KINGS

NAME

In the Greek Bible, the Septuagint (LXX), this book is called Basileion 3 (“reigns” or “dynasties”). The Greek translators linked the two books of Samuel with the two books of Kings (the books of Samuel are labeled Basileion 1 and 2) because they narrate the story of the Israelite and Judean monarchy from its beginning until its end; indeed, 1 Kings opens with the death of David, the main character of the book of Samuel. In the Hebrew Bible, 1 and 2 Kings were originally a single book called Kings; it was divided into two, in the fifteenth century, under the influence of the Greek and Latin translations. This division originated in the Greek Bible for practical reasons: one long scroll of Kings was difficult to handle. This division artificially splits up the stories of the Israelite king Ahaziah and those of the prophet Elijah. It is probably based on a view of 2 Kings 1.1 (“after the death of Ahab”) as patterned on the opening of the books of Joshua (“after the death of Moses”), Judges (“after the death of Joshua”), and 2 Samuel (“after the death of Saul”).

CANONICAL STATUS AND LOCATION

In the Christian canon, 1 and 2 Kings belong to the “Historical Books” and are followed by the books of Chronicles, which offer an alternative account of the period of the monarchy. In the Jewish canon, the books of Kings close the first part of the Prophets, the “Former Prophets” comprised of Joshua, Judges, Samuel, and Kings. The exact meaning of this term is unclear since although prophets play some role in these books, it is not a major one. The Former Prophets do, however, provide the necessary background for the oracles of doom and of restoration that follow in the books of the “Latter Prophets.”

AUTHORSHIP

Jewish tradition (b. B. Bat. 14b–15a) regards the prophet Jeremiah, a contemporary of the last kings of Judah, as the author of the book of Kings, perhaps because of the stylistic similarities between the books of Kings and Jeremiah. Kings and Jeremiah are both written in a style, which contemporary scholars call “Deuteronomistic”; they also share with Deuteronomy and the other books of the Former Prophets key vocabulary and theological concepts. For this reason, most scholars call the books of Deuteronomy through Kings the “Deuteronomistic History.” In fact, the last episodes in the Former Prophets, the destruction of Jerusalem and the deportation of the people, related at the end of 2 Kings, are already alluded to in Deuteronomy (see Deut 6.15 and 28.47–68). For these reasons, modern scholars posit that scribes who belonged to the same social and ideological group edited the books from Deuteronomy to Kings.

DATES OF COMPOSITION AND LITERARY HISTORY

There are some indications that the first Deuteronomistic edition of the book of Kings as well as of the book of Deuteronomy was written in approximately 620 BCE, during the reign of the Judean king Josiah. According to 2 Kings 22–23, Josiah undertook a religious reform aimed at making Jerusalem the only legitimate sanctuary for the worship of the LORD. This reform follows the main theological ideas expressed in Deuteronomy, namely the centralization of worship and the exclusive veneration of the LORD, the God who had chosen Israel as his special property. The Josianic edition’s conclusion was probably 2 Kings 23.25: “Before him there was no king like him, who turned to the LORD with all his heart, with all his soul, and with all his might.” This ideal description of Josiah corresponds exactly to the central exhortation of the book of Deuteronomy: “You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, and with all your soul, and with all your might” (Deut 6.5). The aim of the Josianic edition of Kings would then have been to demonstrate that Josiah fulfilled God’s will by his religious and political acts. This quite optimistic work was revised anew after the destruction of Jerusalem in 586 BCE; it attempted to explain the reasons for the end of the Judean monarchy and the exile to Babylon. The last event related in 2 Kings is the alleviation of the status of king Jehoiachin, which occurred under the Babylonian king Evil-merodach (Amel-Marduk) who reigned briefly in 562–561 BCE. Therefore many scholars think that the book of Kings in its present form was written shortly after this date. Scholars have more recently pointed to evidence suggesting that the books underwent further revision during the Persian period.

The Deuteronomistic authors and editors integrated several older sources or independent documents into their work. The “Book of the Acts of Solomon” (1 Kings 11.41) may have been one such work. Later, Kings refers to “the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Israel” (e.g., 1 Kings 14.19) and “the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Judah” (e.g., 1 Kings 14.29). Such annals probably existed in the courts of Samaria and Jerusalem and were known by the authors and editors of Kings. Most of the prophetic stories about Elijah and Elisha, as well as other prophetic stories, may have existed as independent scrolls before they were incorporated at a late stage into the book of Kings. We can thus say that much of the book of Kings was produced by authors and editors that we can label as “Deuteronomists,” though they incorporated some earlier sources, and the editing of the book continued into the first half of the Persian period, the late sixth and fifth centuries BCE.

STRUCTURE AND CONTENTS

The book of Kings tells the story of the Judean and Israelite monarchies from the “United Monarchy” under Solomon (1 Kings 1–11) and its division after his death into the Northern Kingdom of Israel and the Southern Kingdom of Judah (1 Kings 12), until the end of Israel (2 Kings 17) and of Judah (2 Kings 24–25). First Kings covers the time from Solomon until King Jehoshaphat of Judah and King Ahaziah of Israel. The story of Solomon can be divided into three parts: chs 1–2; 3.1–9.9; and 9.10–11.43. Chapters 1–2 relate his rise to power. The narrative of his reign is bookmarked by two divine manifestations in chs 3 and 9. Chapters 3–8 present the positive part of Solomon’s activity: his wisdom and especially the construction of the Jerusalem Temple, followed by a long prayer. God’s second speech to Solomon is forward-looking, evoking the possibility of his downfall, and ultimately the destruction of the Temple and the exile. First Kings 9.10–11.43 reviews Solomon negatively: he imposes forced labor upon the people, loves many foreign women, and worships their divinities. The last chapter prepares the reader for ch 12, where the kingdom is divided, and Jeroboam becomes the first king of Israel, and Rehoboam the first king of Judah. After the account of Jeroboam’s reign the story of both kingdoms is narrated (until 2 Kings 17) in a synchronistic way, where the reign of each king is framed by introductory and final formulas. The information about Judean kings is more extensive, indicating that the Judean scribes likely had more information about their own kings. The formulas have the following pattern:

JUDEAN KINGS	ISRAELITE KINGS
Introductory synchronism	Introductory synchronism
The king’s age at his enthronement	–
Length of reign	Length of reign
Name of his mother	–
Theological judgment	Theological judgment
Final reference to the annals of the kings of Judah	Final reference to the annals of the kings of Israel
Death of the king	Death of the king
Burial	–
Name of the successor	Name of the successor

After the story of Jeroboam and Rehoboam (chs 12–14), the narrative continues with two Judean kings (Abijam and Asa in 15.1–24) before describing the chaotic situation in the Northern Kingdom, which after several coups sees the rise of King Omri, the founder of Samaria, the capital of the Northern Kingdom (15.25–16.28). The last quarter of 1 Kings is devoted to the story of Omri’s son Ahab and his Phoenician wife Jezebel (16.29–22.40). Their worship of the god Baal provokes a dramatic conflict with the LORD’s prophet Elijah, which culminates in a public competition between the many prophets of Baal and the lone prophet Elijah on Mount Carmel (ch 18). First Kings concludes with short notices about Jehoshaphat of Judah and Ahaziah of Israel (22.41–53); the final verse reporting the ongoing veneration of Baal in the Northern Kingdom, which provoked the LORD’s anger (22.53) hints at the end of Israel (2 Kings 17) and Judah (2 Kings 24–25).

INTERPRETATION

The book of Kings is historiography in the sense that it presents a chronological succession from the beginning of the Israelite monarchy until its end, covering roughly a time span from 970 to 560 BCE, but it is not historiography in the ancient Greek or modern meaning of the term. First of all, the book of King is an anonymous work; in contrast to the ancient Greek historians Herodotus and Thucydides, there is no author who speaks in the first person and who presents sources and evaluates information. There is no inquiry at all about “how things really happened.” For the author(s) of Kings, the LORD is the major actor in the history of the Judean and Israelite kings. The kings whose reigns are positively evaluated are monarchs who conform themselves to God’s will, whereas the unfaithful kings provoke God’s punishment and in some cases, are ultimately responsible for the fall of Samaria and Jerusalem. There is no interest in an objective comprehensive and complete recounting of the past. Kings such as Josiah, whose hazardous geopolitical policies may appear strange to modern readers, are presented very positively, whereas kings with a long, apparently peaceful reign, such as Manasseh, are judged very negatively. The main interest of the authors of Kings is not the political, economical, and military achievements of kings, but their religious attitude, especially as expressed through exclusive worship of the LORD in the Temple of Jerusalem, the only legitimate sanctuary, which plays a central role throughout the book of Kings. Jeroboam, the first king of the Northern Kingdom after its separation from Judah, is described as the founder of two sanctuaries in Dan and Bethel, which appear as illegitimate competitors with the Temple of Jerusalem (1 Kings 12). Consequently, all subsequent northern kings are systematically blamed for “Jeroboam’s sin.” The southern kings are compared to their “father” David (1 Kings 15.3,11; 2 Kings 14.3; 16.2; 18.3; 22.2) and are evaluated based on their loyalty to the Jerusalem Temple and their condemnation of the other places of worship (the “high places”).

Several narratives describe attempts by kings of Judah to reform the Jerusalem Temple (Joash, 2 Kings 12; Hezekiah, 2 Kings 18; Josiah, 2 Kings 23); these are generally followed by a return to previous idolatry (Ahaz, 2 Kings 16:10–18; Manasseh, 2 Kings 21). Only Josiah accomplishes a full restoration of the Temple, establishing an implicit parallel between Josiah, the reformer king, and Solomon, the founder of the Temple. This suggests that the first edition of Kings was an attempt to glorify Josiah as the ideal descendant of David and Solomon. The destruction of Jerusalem and its Temple in 586 BCE caused a thoroughgoing revision of Kings, which was transformed into an explanation of that exile. These editors, working during the Babylonian exile or during the first decades of the Persian period, offered a “theodicy,” an explanation of how a good God could cause such evil: the fall of Jerusalem and the destruction of the Temple are not due to the LORD’s inability to defend his nation against its enemies; on the contrary, the LORD himself had ordered the Babylonians to invade Judah in order to punish it because it did not conform to divine law as expressed in the book of Deuteronomy.

Kings concludes with the release of King Jehoiachin from Babylonian prison (2 Kings 25.27–30). The purpose of these verses is debated: Are they a theological justification of the end of monarchy and the exile or do they express hope for the renewal of the Davidic dynasty? It is difficult to decide, and the following book of Isaiah, where oracles of doom alternate with oracles of restoration and the announcement of an ideal king, has the same ambivalence.

An early form of the books of Samuel and Kings triggered an interpretative rewriting, namely the books of Chronicles. Chronicles offers an alternative, less ambiguous account of the Judean monarchy. It omits almost all of the story of the Northern Kingdom, and ends with the decree of the Persian king allowing the Judeans to return from exile and to rebuild the Jerusalem Temple.

GUIDE TO READING

The best way to understand the meaning of Kings is to read the whole story starting with Solomon (or even better with David in the books of Samuel) until its end. The reader should pay attention to the way in which the different kings are presented and also to the importance of the prophets and the prophetic stories, which alternate with the narratives about good and bad kings. It is worth asking questions concerning the theology of Kings, specifically the manner in which it attempts to give sense to a national disaster and to affirm that the LORD is the God of Israel and of Judah and also the master of all other nations.

Thomas Römer

1 King David was old and advanced in years; and although they covered him with clothes, he could not get warm. ² So his servants said to him, “Let a young virgin be sought for my lord the king, and let her wait on the king, and be his attendant; let her lie in your bosom, so that my lord the king may be warm.” ³ So they searched for a beautiful girl throughout all the territory of Israel, and found Abishag the Shunammite, and brought her to the king. ⁴ The girl was very beautiful. She became the king’s attendant and served him, but the king did not know her sexually.

⁵ Now Adonijah son of Haggith exalted himself, saying, “I will be king”; he prepared for himself chariots and horsemen, and fifty men to run before him. ⁶ His father had never at any time displeased him by asking, “Why have you done thus and so?” He was also a very handsome man, and he was born next after Absalom. ⁷ He conferred with Joab son of Zeruah and with the priest Abiathar, and they supported Adonijah. ⁸ But the priest Zadok, and Benaiah son of Jehoiada, and the prophet Nathan, and Shimei, and Rei, and David’s own warriors did not side with Adonijah.

⁹ Adonijah sacrificed sheep, oxen, and fatted cattle by the stone Zohelath, which is beside En-rogel, and he invited all his brothers, the king’s sons, and all the royal officials of Judah, ¹⁰ but he did not invite the prophet Nathan or Benaiah or the warriors or his brother Solomon.

¹¹ Then Nathan said to Bathsheba, Solomon’s mother, “Have you not heard that Adonijah son of Haggith has become king and our lord David does not know it? ¹² Now therefore come, let me give you advice, so that you may save your own life and the life of your son Solomon. ¹³ Go in at once to King David, and say to him, ‘Did you not, my lord the king, swear to your servant, saying: Your son Solomon shall succeed me as king, and he shall sit on my throne? Why then is Adonijah king?’ ¹⁴ Then while you are still there speaking with the king, I will come in after you and confirm your words.”

¹⁵ So Bathsheba went to the king in his room. The king was very old; Abishag the Shunammite was attending the king. ¹⁶ Bathsheba bowed and did obeisance to the king, and the king said, “What do you wish?” ¹⁷ She said to him, “My lord, you swore to your servant by the LORD your God, saying: Your son Solomon shall succeed me as king, and he shall sit on my throne. ¹⁸ But now suddenly Adonijah has become king, though you, my lord the king, do not know it. ¹⁹ He has sacrificed oxen, fatted cattle, and sheep

1.1–53: Solomon’s rise to the throne. The opening chapters of 1 Kings continue the account of the succession to David, which begins in 2 Samuel (see Introduction to 2 Samuel). The first chapter of Kings shows that Solomon was not the expected successor, but became king after a court intrigue, a well-attested motif in Assyrian and Babylonian literature. 1–4: Virility and the ability to govern were connected in antiquity (see 1 Sam 16.22 where Absalom sleeps in public with David’s wives to show that he is the new king). The strategy of David’s servants to revive his vigor fails. The question of his successor has thus become unavoidable. 3: Abishag is from Shunem, a town in the Jezreel valley in northern Israel. 4: Despite Abishag’s integration into David’s harem, the old king is unable to have sexual relations with her. 5–8: After the deaths of Amnon and Absalom (Chileab is mentioned only in 2 Sam 3.4), Adonijah, the next oldest son, thinks he should succeed his father to the throne. The narrator also suggests his suitability because he is very handsome, a royal attribute. Adonijah tries to gain support for his claim, and two important members of the court are on his side: Joab, David’s nephew (his sister’s son, according to 1 Chr 2.16) and head of the army, and Abiathar, David’s priest, who had escaped Saul’s slaughter of the priests of Nob (1 Sam 22.20–23). The opposing group (v. 8) includes members of the Jerusalemite aristocracy: the priest Zadok and the prophet Nathan, Benaiah, a chief of foreign mercenaries, and Shimei, whose identity is not clear. Perhaps one may identify him with the one mentioned in 2 Sam 16.5–14. The Zadok-Nathan party is also supported by David’s own warriors, David’s bodyguard. 9–10: Adonijah’s abundant sacrifices by the stone Zohelath (the “snake stone”) at En-rogel (the “fuller’s spring,” in the Kidron Valley southeast of Jerusalem) are meant to foster unity among his party. 11–14: There is no mention in the previous story of an oath sworn by David in favor of Solomon, so it may be an invention of Nathan and Bathsheba to manipulate the ailing king. 15–31: Bathsheba and Nathan’s strategy is successful in convincing David to proclaim Solomon his successor. According to v. 22 Bathsheba is present while Nathan is speaking to David, whereas according to v. 28 she

in abundance, and has invited all the children of the king, the priest Abiathar, and Joab the commander of the army; but your servant Solomon he has not invited. ²⁰ But you, my lord the king—the eyes of all Israel are on you to tell them who shall sit on the throne of my lord the king after him. ²¹ Otherwise it will come to pass, when my lord the king sleeps with his ancestors, that my son Solomon and I will be counted offenders.”

²² While she was still speaking with the king, the prophet Nathan came in. ²³ The king was told, “Here is the prophet Nathan.” When he came in before the king, he did obeisance to the king, with his face to the ground.

²⁴ Nathan said, “My lord the king, have you said, ‘Adonijah shall succeed me as king, and he shall sit on my throne?’ ²⁵ For today he has gone down and has sacrificed oxen, fatted cattle, and sheep in abundance, and has invited all the king’s children, Joab the commander^a of the army, and the priest Abiathar, who are now eating and drinking before him, and saying, ‘Long live King Adonijah!’ ²⁶ But he did not invite me, your servant, and the priest Zadok, and Benaiah son of Jehoiada, and your servant Solomon. ²⁷ Has this thing been brought about by my lord the king and you have not let your servants know who should sit on the throne of my lord the king after him?”

²⁸ King David answered, “Summon Bathsheba to me.” So she came into the king’s presence, and stood before the king. ²⁹ The king swore, saying, “As the LORD lives, who has saved my life from every adversity, ³⁰ as I swore to you by the LORD, the God of Israel, ‘Your son Solomon shall succeed me as king, and he shall sit on my throne in my place,’ so will I do this day.” ³¹ Then Bathsheba bowed with her face to the ground, and did obeisance to the king, and said, “May my lord King David live forever!”

³² King David said, “Summon to me the priest Zadok, the prophet Nathan, and Benaiah son of Jehoiada.” When they came before the king, ³³ the king said to them, “Take with you the servants of your lord, and have my son Solomon ride on my own mule, and bring him down to Gihon. ³⁴ There let the priest Zadok and the prophet Nathan anoint him king over Israel; then blow the trumpet, and say, ‘Long live King Solomon!’ ³⁵ You shall go up following him. Let him enter and sit on my throne; he shall be king in my place; for I have appointed him to be ruler over Israel and over Judah.” ³⁶ Benaiah son of Jehoiada answered the king, “Amen! May the LORD, the God of my lord the king, so ordain. ³⁷ As the LORD has been with my lord the king, so may he be with Solomon, and make his throne greater than the throne of my lord King David.”

³⁸ So the priest Zadok, the prophet Nathan, and Benaiah son of Jehoiada, and the Cherethites and the Pelethites, went down and had Solomon ride on King David’s mule, and led him to Gihon. ³⁹ There the priest Zadok took the horn of oil from the tent and anointed Solomon. Then they blew the trumpet, and all the people said, “Long live King Solomon!” ⁴⁰ And all the people went up following him, playing on pipes and rejoicing with great joy, so that the earth quaked at their noise.

⁴¹ Adonijah and all the guests who were with him heard it as they finished feasting. When Joab heard the sound of the trumpet, he said, “Why is the city in an uproar?” ⁴² While he was still speaking, Jonathan son of the priest Abiathar arrived. Adonijah said, “Come in, for you are a worthy man and surely you bring good news.” ⁴³ Jonathan answered Adonijah, “No, for our lord King David has made Solomon king; ⁴⁴ the king has sent with him the priest Zadok, the prophet Nathan, seems to have left the audience, suggesting that the story has undergone revision. 32–40: The anointing of Solomon takes place at Gihon, the main spring of Jerusalem located in the Kidron Valley. 38: Whereas Saul and David were anointed only by the prophet Samuel, but following the LORD’s instructions, Solomon is anointed by a prophet and by a priest, but without explicit divine authorization. The Cherethites and Pelethites, who participate in the ritual, are David’s personal troops; the names may allude to their Cretan and Philistine origin. 39: Tent, the mobile sanctuary, which David transferred to Jerusalem, will be replaced by the Temple built by Solomon. 40: After the anointing a solemn procession to the throne begins the new king’s rule. 41–53: Jonathan, son of Abiathar, who supported David during Absalom’s revolt (2 Sam 15:36; 17:17) informs Adonijah that he will and Benaiah son of Jehoiada, and the Cherethites and the Pelethites; and they had him ride on the king's mule; ⁴⁵ the priest Zadok and the prophet Nathan have anointed him king at Gihon; and they have gone up from there rejoicing, so that the city is in an uproar. This is the noise that you heard. ⁴⁶ Solomon now sits on the royal throne. ⁴⁷ Moreover the king's servants came to congratulate our lord King David, saying, 'May God make the name of Solomon more famous than yours, and make his throne greater than your throne.' The king bowed in worship on the bed ⁴⁸ and went on to pray thus, 'Blessed be the LORD, the God of Israel, who today has granted one of my offspring^a to sit on my throne and permitted me to witness it.'

^a Gk: Heb the commanders

⁴⁹ Then all the guests of Adonijah got up trembling and went their own ways. ⁵⁰ Adonijah, fearing Solomon, got up and went to grasp the horns of the altar. ⁵¹ Solomon was informed, "Adonijah is afraid of King Solomon; see, he has laid hold of the horns of the altar, saying, 'Let King Solomon swear to me first that he will not kill his servant with the sword.'" ⁵² So Solomon responded, "If he proves to be a worthy man, not one of his hairs shall fall to the ground; but if wickedness is found in him, he shall die." ⁵³ Then King Solomon sent to have him brought down from the altar. He came to do obeisance to King Solomon; and Solomon said to him, "Go home."

2 When David's time to die drew near, he charged his son Solomon, saying: ² "I am about to go the way of all the earth. Be strong, be courageous, ³ and keep the charge of the LORD your God, walking in his ways and keeping his statutes, his commandments, his ordinances, and his testimonies, as it is written in the law of Moses, so that you may prosper in all that you do and wherever you turn." ⁴ Then the LORD will establish his word that he spoke concerning me: 'If your heirs take heed to their way, to walk before me in faithfulness with all their heart and with all their soul, there shall not fail you a successor on the throne of Israel.'

⁵ "Moreover you know also what Joab son of Zeruiah did to me, how he dealt with the two commanders of the armies of Israel, Abner son of Ner, and Amasa son of Jether, whom he murdered, retaliating in time of peace for blood that had been shed in war, and putting the blood of war on the belt around his waist, and on the sandals on his feet. ⁶ Act therefore according to your wisdom, but do not let his gray head go down to Sheol in peace. ⁷ Deal loyally, however, with the sons of Barzillai the Gileadite, and let them be among those who eat at your table; for with such loyalty they met me when I fled from your brother Absalom. ⁸ There is also with you Shimei son of Gera, the Benjaminite not become king over Israel. 50: Adonijah fears revenge and grasps the horns of the altar. The altar with four horns (see Ex 29.12; 30.3; Lev 4.7), quarter-round stones on each corner, was understood in some traditions as offering a place of asylum. 52: Solomon promises that he will not harm Adonijah if he proves to be a worthy man, behaving loyally to the new king (but see 2.29–30).

^a Gk: Heb one

2.1–12: David's last words and his death. 1–4: David's exhortations recall God's words to Joshua, Israel's leader after Moses' death (Josh 1.2–9). Solomon, like every king in Israel, must abide by God's commandments as written in the law of Moses (see Deut 17.18–20), particularly Deuteronomy; many of David's exhortations are taken from that book (see Deut 4.29,40; 8.6; 10.12; 11.1; 29.9). 4: A summary and interpretation of the dynastic promise of 2 Sam 7.12–16. The unconditional promise of an eternal dynasty in 2 Sam 7 is here transformed into a conditional promise, stating that the Davidic dynasty will last only if his successors respect God's will as expressed in Deuteronomy. 5–9: David's order legitimates Solomon's killing of Joab and Shimei (vv. 28–46). 5–6: Joab, a supporter of Adonijah, was formerly a loyal follower of David, who had carried out several murders, some at David's request. David accuses him of killing Abner (2 Sam 3.6–39) and Amasa (2 Sam 20.9–10). 8–9: Shimei, who did not support Adonijah (1.8), has to die because he cursed David; David had sworn to him that he would not harm him (2 Sam 19.23), but David now asks Solomon to kill his former antagonist. 6: Solomon's wisdom, which will be a main feature of his reign, is first alluded to here. Sheol, the underworld where all the dead go. David asks Solomon to hasten Joab's and Shimei's descent there. 7: In contrast, Barzillai is a model of dutiful service to the king (2 Sam 17.27–29; 19.32–39). He is therefore to be allowed to eat at the king's from Bahurim, who cursed me with a terrible curse on the day when I went to Mahanaim; but when he came down to meet me at the Jordan, I swore to him by the LORD, 'I will not put you to death with the sword.'⁹ Therefore do not hold him guiltless, for you are a wise man; you will know what you ought to do to him, and you must bring his gray head down with blood to Sheol."

¹⁰ Then David slept with his ancestors, and was buried in the city of David. ¹¹ The time that David reigned over Israel was forty years; he reigned seven years in Hebron, and thirty-three years in Jerusalem. ¹² So Solomon sat on the throne of his father David; and his kingdom was firmly established.

¹³ Then Adonijah son of Haggith came to Bathsheba, Solomon's mother. She asked, "Do you come peaceably?" He said, "Peaceably."¹⁴ Then he said, "May I have a word with you?" She said, "Go on."¹⁵ He said, "You know that the kingdom was mine, and that all Israel expected me to reign; however, the kingdom has turned about and become my brother's, for it was his from the LORD. ¹⁶ And now I have one request to make of you; do not refuse me." She said to him, "Go on."¹⁷ He said, "Please ask King Solomon—he will not refuse you—to give me Abishag the Shunammite as my wife."¹⁸ Bathsheba said, "Very well; I will speak to the king on your behalf."

¹⁹ So Bathsheba went to King Solomon, to speak to him on behalf of Adonijah. The king rose to meet her, and bowed down to her; then he sat on his throne, and had a throne brought for the king's mother, and she sat on his right. ²⁰ Then she said, "I have one small request to make of you; do not refuse me." And the king said to her, "Make your request, my mother; for I will not refuse you."

²¹ She said, "Let Abishag the Shunammite be given to your brother Adonijah as his wife."

²² King Solomon answered his mother, "And why do you ask Abishag the Shunammite for Adonijah? Ask for him the kingdom as well! For he is my elder brother; ask not only for him but also for the priest Abiathar and for Joab son of Zeruiah!" ²³ Then King Solomon swore by the LORD, "So may God do to me, and more also, for Adonijah has devised this scheme at the risk of his life!" ²⁴ Now therefore as the LORD lives, who has established me and placed me on the throne of my father David, and who has made me a house as he promised, today Adonijah shall be put to death."²⁵ So King Solomon sent Benaiah son of Jehoiada; he struck him down, and he died.

²⁶ The king said to the priest Abiathar, "Go to Anathoth, to your estate; for you deserve death. But I will not at this time put you to death, because you carried the ark of the Lord GOD before my father David, and because you shared in all the hardships my father endured."²⁷ So Solomon banished Abiathar from being priest to the LORD, thus fulfilling the word of the LORD that he had spoken concerning the house of Eli in Shiloh.

²⁸ When the news came to Joab—for Joab had supported Adonijah though he had not supported Absalom—Joab fled to the tent of the LORD and grasped the horns of the altar.

²⁹ When it was told King Solomon, "Joab has fled to the tent of the LORD and now is table, a high distinction. 10: David slept with his ancestors, this standard formula occurs for kings who died a natural death and expresses the idea of being united with one's ancestors in Sheol, as well as being buried in the family tomb. 11: The forty-year reign of David should be understood symbolically as a reign of a complete, perfect period. In general, it is difficult to reconstruct historical dates for this period, but the first half of the tenth century BCE is probably correct; see Chronological Table of Rulers on p. 486. 12: The notice about the establishment of Solomon's kingdom is repeated in v. 46. Between these two verses the narrator tells us how this was accomplished.

2.13–46: Solomon's elimination of his enemies and consolidation of his kingship. The fates of Adonijah, Abiathar, Joab, and Shimei. 13–25: Adonijah's request, which is relayed by Bathsheba, to marry David's last concubine Abishag is ambiguous since it can be understood as legitimating a claim to the throne (see 2 Sam 16.20–22). In Solomon's eyes Adonijah is still a rival who has to die. 26–27: Adonijah's death is followed by the banishing of his supporter, the priest Abiathar. Abiathar's exile to Anathoth (ca. 4 mi [6 km] northeast of Jerusalem), the hometown of the prophet Jeremiah, fulfils the divine oracle against the descendants of the priest Eli in 1 Sam 2.27–36. 28–35: The death of Joab may cast a negative light on beside the altar,” Solomon sent Benaiah son of Jehoiada, saying, “Go, strike him down.”

³⁰ So Benaiah came to the tent of the LORD and said to him, “The king commands, ‘Come out.’” But he said, “No, I will die here.” Then Benaiah brought the king word again, saying, “Thus said Joab, and thus he answered me.”

³¹ The king replied to him, “Do as he has said, strike him down and bury him; and thus take away from me and from my father’s house the guilt for the blood that Joab shed without cause.” ³² The LORD will bring back his bloody deeds on his own head, because, without the knowledge of my father David, he attacked and killed with the sword two men more righteous and better than himself, Abner son of Ner, commander of the army of Israel, and Amasa son of Jether, commander of the army of Judah. ³³ So shall their blood come back on the head of Joab and on the head of his descendants forever; but to David, and to his descendants, and to his house, and to his throne, there shall be peace from the LORD forevermore.” ³⁴ Then Benaiah son of Jehoiada went up and struck him down and killed him; and he was buried at his own house near the wilderness. ³⁵ The king put Benaiah son of Jehoiada over the army in his place, and the king put the priest Zadok in the place of Abiathar.

³⁶ Then the king sent and summoned Shimei, and said to him, “Build yourself a house in Jerusalem, and live there, and do not go out from there to any place whatever.”

³⁷ For on the day you go out, and cross the Wadi Kidron, know for certain that you shall die; your blood shall be on your own head.”

³⁸ And Shimei said to the king, “The sentence is fair; as my lord the king has said, so will your servant do.” So Shimei lived in Jerusalem many days.

³⁹ But it happened at the end of three years that two of Shimei’s slaves ran away to King Achish son of Maacah of Gath. When it was told Shimei, “Your slaves are in Gath,” ⁴⁰ Shimei arose and saddled a donkey, and went to Achish in Gath, to search for his slaves; Shimei went and brought his slaves from Gath.

⁴¹ When Solomon was told that Shimei had gone from Jerusalem to Gath and returned, ⁴² the king sent and summoned Shimei, and said to him, “Did I not make you swear by the LORD, and solemnly adjure you, saying, ‘Know for certain that on the day you go out and go to any place whatever, you shall die’? And you said to me, ‘The sentence is fair; I accept.’” ⁴³ Why then have you not kept your oath to the LORD and the commandment with which I charged you?” ⁴⁴ The king also said to Shimei, “You know in your own heart all the evil that you did to my father David; so the LORD will bring back your evil on your own head.” ⁴⁵ But King Solomon shall be blessed, and the throne of David shall be established before the LORD forever.” ⁴⁶ Then the king commanded Benaiah son of Jehoiada; and he went out and struck him down, and he died.

So the kingdom was established in the hand of Solomon.

3 Solomon made a marriage alliance with Pharaoh king of Egypt; he took Pharaoh’s daughter and brought her into the city of David, until he had finished building his own house and the house of the LORD and the wall around Jerusalem. ² The people were sacrificing at the high places, however, because no

Solomon since he has Benaiah (who also killed Adonijah) kill him inside the holy tent where Joab grasped the horns of the altar (see 1.50). 36–46: Shimei is first put under house arrest in Jerusalem in order to prevent him from crossing the Wadi Kidron (to enter the territory of Benjamin, King Saul’s home) in order to instigate a revolt from his power base. But when three of his slaves run away, Shimei goes westward to the Philistine town of Gath. Solomon takes this opportunity to have him executed. In this passage the murders of Joab and Shimei are not related as fulfillment of David’s order; they are presented as Solomon’s own initiative. His kingdom is therefore established by violence, but this need not be seen as a negative value-judgment by our author: Assyrian, Babylonian, and Persian texts tell similar stories about the rise to power of important kings.

3.1–28: Solomon’s wisdom. 1: The story of Solomon’s reign starts with a note about his marriage with Pharaoh’s daughter. This marriage is also mentioned in the Masoretic Text (MT) in 7.8 and 9.16–17,24, while the LXX reports it in different places (2.35c.f.; 5.14; 7.45). The Pharaoh’s name is not noted, and the historicity of this information is difficult to establish. Deut.17:16; 26.28 warns against too-close relations with Egypt, so this text house had yet been built for the name of the LORD.

³ Solomon loved the LORD, walking in the statutes of his father David; only, he sacrificed and offered incense at the high places. ⁴ The king went to Gibeon to sacrifice there, for that was the principal high place; Solomon used to offer a thousand burnt offerings on that altar. ⁵ At Gibeon the LORD appeared to Solomon in a dream by night; and God said, “Ask what I should give you.” ⁶ And Solomon said, “You have shown great and steadfast love to your servant my father David, because he walked before you in faithfulness, in righteousness, and in uprightness of heart toward you; and you have kept for him this great and steadfast love, and have given him a son to sit on his throne today. ⁷ And now, O LORD my God, you have made your servant king in place of my father David, although I am only a little child; I do not know how to go out or come in. ⁸ And your servant is in the midst of the people whom you have chosen, a great people, so numerous they cannot be numbered or counted. ⁹ Give your servant therefore an understanding mind to govern your people, able to discern between good and evil; for who can govern this your great people?”

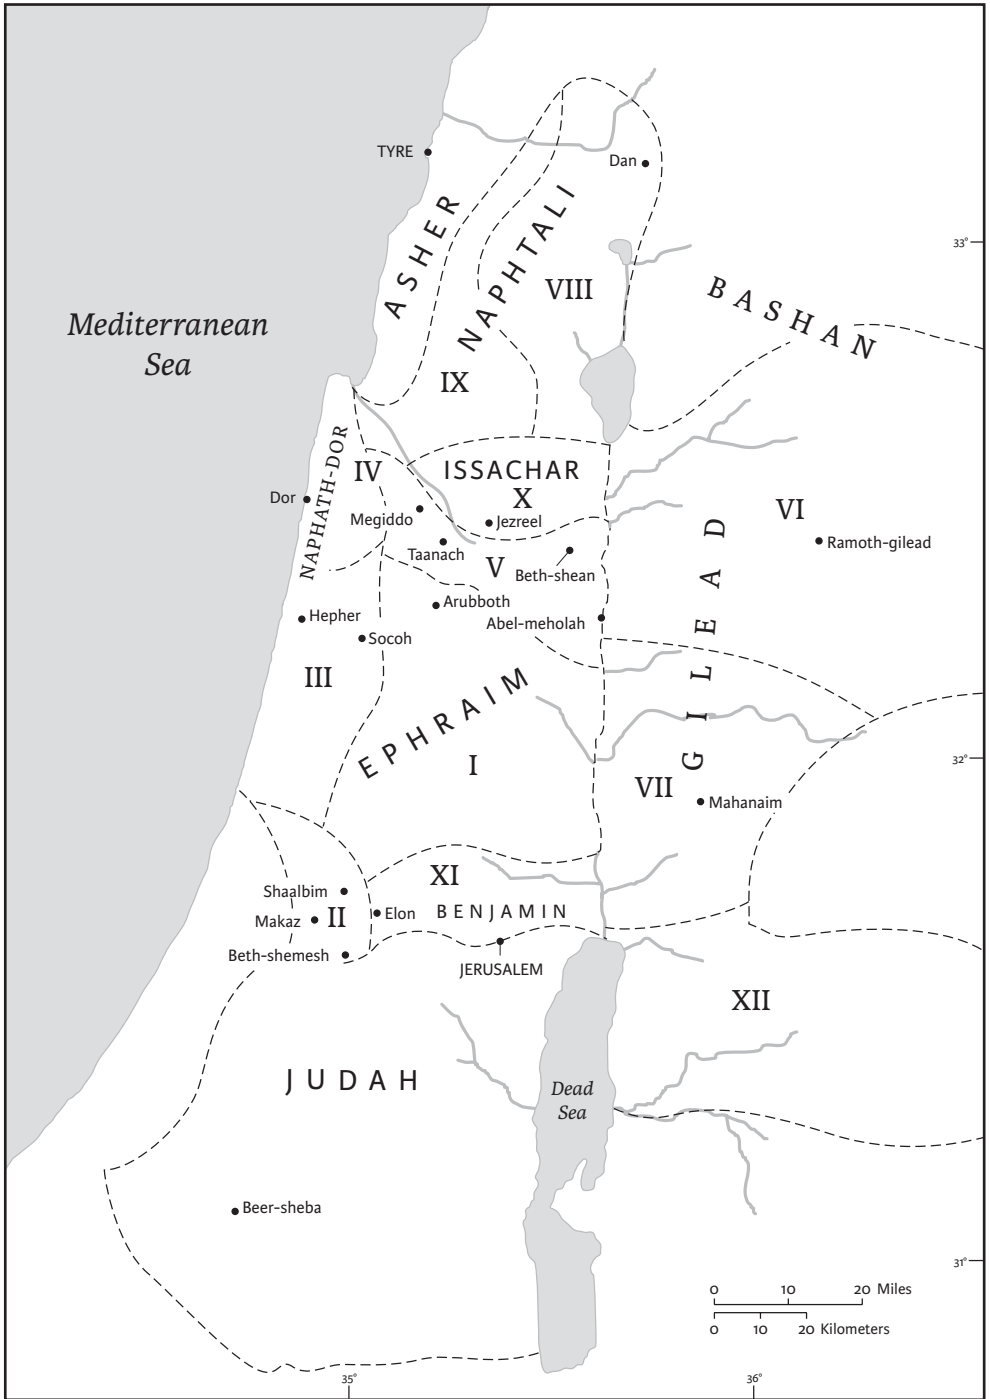

¹⁰ It pleased the Lord that Solomon had asked this. ¹¹ God said to him, “Because you have asked this, and have not asked for yourself long life or riches, or for the life of your enemies, but have asked for yourself understanding to discern what is right, ¹² I now do according to your word. Indeed I give you a wise and discerning mind; no one like you has been before you and no one like you shall arise after you. ¹³ I give you also what you have not asked, both riches and honor all your life; no other king shall compare with you. ¹⁴ If you will walk in my ways, keeping my statutes and my commandments, as your father David walked, then I will lengthen your life.”

¹⁵ Then Solomon awoke; it had been a dream. He came to Jerusalem where he stood before the ark of the covenant of the LORD. He offered up burnt offerings and offerings of well-being, and provided a feast for all his servants.

¹⁶ Later, two women who were prostitutes came to the king and stood before him. ¹⁷ The one woman said, “Please, my lord, this woman and I live in the same house; and I gave birth while she was in the house. ¹⁸ Then on the third day after I gave birth, this woman also gave birth. We were together; there was no one else with us in the house, only the two of us were in the house. ¹⁹ Then this woman’s son died in the night, because she lay on him. ²⁰ She got up in the middle of the night and took my son from beside me while your servant slept. She laid him at her breast, and laid her dead son may hint that Solomon was not an ideal king. 2–3: In a description of other less-than-ideal behavior, the people and Solomon, in contradiction to Deuteronomic law (Deut 12) worship at the high places, local open-air sanctuaries, which are often condemned as idolatrous. They are regularly mentioned in the accusations against the “bad kings.” Here, however, Solomon is somewhat exonerated, since the Temple for the God of Israel, the only legitimate sanctuary, has not yet been built. 4–15: The divine vision organizes the story of Solomon’s rule in two parts (see also 9.1–9). 3.4–8.66 relate mostly the positive aspects of his reign, which culminates with the building of the Temple; chs 9.10–11.43 underline Solomon’s problematic behavior, which led to disaster. 4: Gibeon, 5.6 mi (9 km) northwest of Jerusalem, was an important religious and political center during the monarchy. Solomon honors the place by seeking there, through sacrifices and an incubation dream, a divine oracle at the beginning of his reign. 5–9: God tests Solomon and he behaves rightly in asking for wisdom in order to accomplish his royal task. 7: Solomon’s self-presentation as a little child or a young boy is not a reference to his age, but a conventional expression that expresses incapacity to accomplish an important task (see Judg 6.15; Jer 1.6). To go out or come in concerns military experience (see Num 27.15–17). 12–13: God is pleased by Solomon’s quest for wisdom and also promises him outstanding wealth. Both themes are developed in the following account of Solomon’s reign. 14: The divine promise is offered conditionally. 15: The correct place for the LORD’s worship is Jerusalem and not Gibeon. 16–28: The “judgment of Solomon” is the first illustration of the king’s newly acquired wisdom, since administration of justice is an important royal function. The name of Solomon is not mentioned in this story, which may have been originally an independent folktale. Its incorporation in the Solomon narrative contrasts with ch 2 where Solomon uses his wisdom to kill his enemies by the sword.

4.7–19: Solomon's twelve administrative districts.

at my breast. ²¹When I rose in the morning to nurse my son, I saw that he was dead; but when I looked at him closely in the morning, clearly it was not the son I had borne.” ²²But the other woman said, “No, the living son is mine, and the dead son is yours.” The first said, “No, the dead son is yours, and the living son is mine.” So they argued before the king.

²³Then the king said, “The one says, ‘This is my son that is alive, and your son is dead’; while the other says, ‘Not so! Your son is dead, and my son is the living one.’” ²⁴So the king said, “Bring me a sword,” and they brought a sword before the king. ²⁵The king said, “Divide the living boy in two; then give half to the one, and half to the other.” ²⁶But the woman whose son was alive said to the king—because compassion for her son burned within her—“Please, my lord, give her the living boy; certainly do not kill him!” The other said, “It shall be neither mine nor yours; divide it.” ²⁷Then the king responded: “Give the first woman the living boy; do not kill him. She is his mother.” ²⁸All Israel heard of the judgment that the king had rendered; and they stood in awe of the king, because they perceived that the wisdom of God was in him, to execute justice.

4 King Solomon was king over all Israel, ²and these were his high officials: Azariah son of Zadok was the priest; ³Elihoreph and Ahijah sons of Shisha were secretaries; Jehoshaphat son of Ahilud was recorder; ⁴Benaiah son of Jehoiada was in command of the army; Zadok and Abiathar were priests; ⁵Azariah son of Nathan was over the officials; Zabud son of Nathan was priest and king’s friend; ⁶Ahishar was in charge of the palace; and Adoniram son of Abda was in charge of the forced labor.

⁷Solomon had twelve officials over all Israel, who provided food for the king and his household; each one had to make provision for one month in the year. ⁸These were their names: Ben-hur, in the hill country of Ephraim; ⁹Ben-deker, in Makaz, Shaalbim, Beth-shemesh, and Elon-beth-hanan; ¹⁰Ben-hesed, in Arubboth (to him belonged Socoh and all the land of Hepher); ¹¹Ben-abinadab, in all Naphath-dor (he had Taphath, Solomon’s daughter, as his wife); ¹²Baana son of Ahilud, in Taanach, Megiddo, and all Beth-shean, which is beside Zarethan below Jezreel, and from Beth-shean to Abel-meholah, as far as the other side of Jokmeam; ¹³Ben-geber, in Ramoth-gilead (he had the villages of Jair son of Manasseh, which are in Gilead, and he had the region of Argob, which is in Bashan, sixty great cities with walls and bronze bars); ¹⁴Ahinadab son of Iddo, in Mahanaim; ¹⁵Ahimaaz, in Naphtali (he had taken Basemath, Solomon’s daughter, as his wife); ¹⁶Baana son of Hushai, in Asher and Bealoth; ¹⁷Jehoshaphat son of Paruah, in Issachar; ¹⁸Shimei son of Ela, in Benjamin; ¹⁹Geber son of Uri, in the land of Gilead, the country of King Sihon of the Amorites and of King Og of Bashan. And there was one official in the land of Judah.

²⁰Judah and Israel were as numerous as the sand by the sea; they ate and drank and were happy. ²¹^a Solomon was sovereign over

^a Ch 5.1 in Heb

24–27: The royal sword is used in order to preserve life and establish justice.

4.1–34: The organization of Solomon’s kingdom. 1–6: A list of Solomon’s high officials. The most important positions at the royal court were the priest (surprisingly v. 4 mentions Abiathar, who according to 2.27 had been banished); the state-secretary or “scribe” and spokesman; the chief commander of the army; the chief of the officials (see vv. 7–19); the king’s friend, a title for the king’s confidant; the prime minister, called the one who was in charge of the palace; and the supervisor of the forced labor, a new institution that will play an important role during Solomon’s reign. 7–19: Twelve officials who functioned as governors in charge of twelve regions in northern Israel, only partially based on traditional tribal areas (see map on p. 494). They organized taxes and provisions for the king and the Jerusalem court, with each region responsible for the provision for one month of the year. 19: The text is uncertain here. The NRSV reference to Judah is found in some Greek manuscripts but not in the Hebrew. A later copyist probably missed a reference to Judah and inserted it here. The Hebrew reads: “there was one official in the land,” probably the governor mentioned in v. 5 to whom the twelve officials were responsible. 20: The concluding remark suggests that under Solomon’s reign God’s promise to the patriarchs (Gen 22.17; 32.12) that Israel would be as numerous as the sand by the sea had been fulfilled. 21–28: Solomon is all the kingdoms from the Euphrates to the land of the Philistines, even to the border of Egypt; they brought tribute and served Solomon all the days of his life.

²² Solomon's provision for one day was thirty cors of choice flour, and sixty cors of meal, ²³ ten fat oxen, and twenty pasture-fed cattle, one hundred sheep, besides deer, gazelles, roebucks, and fatted fowl. ²⁴ For he had dominion over all the region west of the Euphrates from Tiphshah to Gaza, over all the kings west of the Euphrates; and he had peace on all sides. ²⁵ During Solomon's lifetime Judah and Israel lived in safety, from Dan even to Beer-sheba, all of them under their vines and fig trees. ²⁶ Solomon also had forty thousand stalls of horses for his chariots, and twelve thousand horsemen. ²⁷ Those officials supplied provisions for King Solomon and for all who came to King Solomon's table, each one in his month; they let nothing be lacking. ²⁸ They also brought to the required place barley and straw for the horses and swift steeds, each according to his charge.

²⁹ God gave Solomon very great wisdom, discernment, and breadth of understanding as vast as the sand on the seashore, ³⁰ so that Solomon's wisdom surpassed the wisdom of all the people of the east, and all the wisdom of Egypt. ³¹ He was wiser than anyone else, wiser than Ethan the Ezrahite, and Heman, Calcol, and Darda, children of Mahol; his fame spread throughout all the surrounding nations. ³² He composed three thousand proverbs, and his songs numbered a thousand and five. ³³ He would speak of trees, from the cedar that is in the Lebanon to the hyssop that grows in the wall; he would speak of animals, and birds, and reptiles, and fish. ³⁴ People came from all the nations to hear the wisdom of Solomon; they came from all the kings of the earth who had heard of his wisdom.

5^a Now King Hiram of Tyre sent his servants to Solomon, when he heard that they had anointed him king in place of his father; for Hiram had always been a friend to David. ² Solomon sent word to Hiram, saying, ³ "You know that my father David could not build a house for the name of the LORD his God because of the warfare with which his enemies surrounded him, until the LORD put them under the soles of his feet."^b ⁴ But now the LORD my God has given me rest on every side; there is neither adversary nor misfortune. ⁵ So I intend to build a house for the name of the LORD my God, as the LORD said to my father David, 'Your son, whom I will set on your throne in your place, shall build the house for my name.'⁶ Therefore command that cedars from the Lebanon be cut for me. My servants will join your servants, and I will give you whatever wages you set for your servants; for you know that there is no one among us who knows how to cut timber like the Sidonians."

⁷ When Hiram heard the words of Solomon, he rejoiced greatly, and said, "Blessed be described as dominating all kingdoms in the ancient Near East, an idealized description based on the borders of the land promised to Abraham in Gen 15.18. More realistic boundaries of Israel are found in v. 25, from Dan . . . to Beer-sheba (the traditional northern and southern limits of Israel and Judah). 22–23, 27–28: Additional information (see 4.7) about the royal provisions, which are incredibly high. 26: For Solomon's horses see 10.26–29. 29–34: Solomon surpasses the other nations also in wisdom. He is wiser than the great nations of wisdom, Egypt and the people of the east (probably Assyria and Babylon) and wiser than the great men known for their wisdom: Ethan, Heman, Calcol, and Darda (mentioned in 1 Chr 2.6; 6.18–28). 32: Solomon's reputation as a maker of proverbs is reflected in Prov 1.1; 10.1; 25.1, where he is considered to be the author of different collections of proverbs. For the attribution of songs to Solomon, see Pss 72; 127; Song 1.1.

^a Ch 5.15 in Heb

^b Gk Tg Vg: Heb my feet or his feet

5.1–18: Solomon's relation with Hiram of Tyre and the preparations for building the Temple. According to 2 Sam 5.11, King Hiram of Tyre was an ally of David. After Solomon's rise to the throne he sends a goodwill embassy to him, to show that he wanted to continue the good relationship between the two kingdoms. 2–6: Solomon's request to Hiram. 3–4: The divine gift of rest from all enemies is a prominent theme in the Deuteronomistic History (e.g., Deut 12.10; Josh 21.44; 23.1; 2 Sam 7.1). Here this rest is a necessary condition for the building of the Temple. 6: The Phoenicians were famous for their cedars, one of their chief exports. Sidonians, here probably a general term for the Phoenicians. Sidon, like Tyre, is a city on the

the LORD today, who has given to David a wise son to be over this great people.”⁸ Hiram sent word to Solomon, “I have heard the message that you have sent to me; I will fulfill all your needs in the matter of cedar and cypress timber.⁹ My servants shall bring it down to the sea from the Lebanon; I will make it into rafts to go by sea to the place you indicate. I will have them broken up there for you to take away. And you shall meet my needs by providing food for my household.”¹⁰ So Hiram supplied Solomon’s every need for timber of cedar and cypress.¹¹ Solomon in turn gave Hiram twenty thousand cors of wheat as food for his household, and twenty cors of fine oil. Solomon gave this to Hiram year by year.¹² So the LORD gave Solomon wisdom, as he promised him. There was peace between Hiram and Solomon; and the two of them made a treaty.

¹³ King Solomon conscripted forced labor out of all Israel; the levy numbered thirty thousand men.¹⁴ He sent them to the Lebanon, ten thousand a month in shifts; they would be a month in the Lebanon and two months at home; Adoniram was in charge of the forced labor.¹⁵ Solomon also had seventy thousand laborers and eighty thousand stonecutters in the hill country,¹⁶ besides Solomon’s three thousand three hundred supervisors who were over the work, having charge of the people who did the work.¹⁷ At the king’s command, they quarried out great, costly stones in order to lay the foundation of the house with dressed stones.¹⁸ So Solomon’s builders and Hiram’s builders and the Gebalites did the stonecutting and prepared the timber and the stone to build the house.

6 In the four hundred eightieth year after the Israelites came out of the land of Egypt, in the fourth year of Solomon’s reign over Israel, in the month of Ziv, which is the second month, he began to build the house of the LORD.² The house that King Solomon built for the LORD was sixty cubits long, twenty cubits wide, and thirty cubits high.³ The vestibule in front of the nave of the house was twenty cubits wide, across the width of the house. Its depth was ten cubits in front of the house.⁴ For the house he made windows with recessed frames.⁵ He also built a structure against the wall of the house, running around the walls of the house, both the nave and the inner sanctuary; and he made side chambers all around.⁶ The lowest story^b was five cubits wide, the middle one was six cubits wide, and the third was seven cubits wide; for around the outside of the house he made offsets on the wall in order that the supporting beams should not be inserted into the walls of the house.

⁷ The house was built with stone finished at the quarry, so that neither hammer nor ax nor any tool of iron was heard in the temple while it was being built.

^a Gk: Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Gk: Heb structure

Phoenician coast, south of Beirut. 7–12: Hiram transports the wood in rafts and Solomon pays with very large amounts of wheat and oil. 12: There is a wordplay in Hebrew between peace (Heb “shalom”) and the name of Solomon (“shelomoh”). 13–18: Contrary to 9.20–22, this passage states that Solomon compelled the Israelites to forced labor in order to build the Temple. 18: The Gebalites, the inhabitants of Byblos, a Phoenician city north of Tyre, are mentioned here as a separate group. From early times Byblos was an important timber port, and later was a major shipping center of papyrus; the term “Bible” is derived from the city’s name.

6.1–38: The building of the Temple. The Temple and its fittings are described in detail, whereas the palace complex is described more briefly (7.1–12), suggesting that the writer was more interested in the Temple than the palace. The Temple is foreshadowed in Ex 25–31; 35–40, and is similar in design to sanctuaries found in Assyria, Syria, and Israel. The closest parallels can be found at Hazor in Israel, Tell Tayinat in southeastern Turkey, and Ain Dara in Syria. 1: The four hundred eightieth year after the Exodus is not historical fact and likely belongs to a late, typological chronological system. The Hebrew month Ziv, which is numbered second according to the Babylonian system from the spring New Year, falls in April–May. 2–10: A cubit is the distance from the tip of the elbow to the tip of the middle finger (ca. 17.5 in [45 cm]). The Temple’s form is tripartite, comprising the vestibule or entrance hall, the nave or main hall, and the inner sanctuary, the “most holy place” (v. 16) of the sanctuary, to which access was severely restricted. A complex structure is built around the Temple. 7: No iron tools were used

The Temple and palace of Solomon according to First Kings.

⁸The entrance for the middle story was on the south side of the house: one went up by winding stairs to the middle story, and from the middle story to the third. ⁹So he built the house, and finished it; he roofed the house with beams and planks of cedar. ¹⁰He built the structure against the whole house, each story^a five cubits high, and it was joined to the house with timbers of cedar.

¹¹Now the word of the LORD came to Solomon, ¹²“Concerning this house that you are building, if you will walk in my statutes, obey my ordinances, and keep all my commandments by walking in them, then I will establish my promise with you, which I made to your father David. ¹³I will dwell among the children of Israel, and will not forsake my people Israel.”

¹⁴So Solomon built the house, and finished it. ¹⁵He lined the walls of the house on the inside with boards of cedar; from the floor of the house to the rafters of the ceiling, he covered them on the inside with wood; and he covered the floor of the house with boards of cypress. ¹⁶He built twenty cubits of the rear of the house with boards of cedar from the floor to the rafters, and he built this within as an inner sanctuary, as the most holy place. ¹⁷The house, that is, the nave in front of the inner sanctuary, was forty cubits long. ¹⁸The cedar within the house had carvings of gourds and open flowers; all was cedar, no stone was seen. ¹⁹The inner sanctuary he prepared in the innermost part of the

^a Heb lacks each story

at the Temple site; cf. Ex 20.25; Deut 27.5. 11–13: God’s speech to Solomon interrupts the building report and insists that the divine presence will inhabit the sanctuary only if Solomon observes the divine commandments (see also Jer 7.1–15). 14–36: After the building of the external structure is concluded, the construction of the inside of the Temple is described. 15–18: The interior walls, floors, and ceilings are covered with wood, so that all stones are covered. 19–28: Particular attention is paid to the inner sanctuary, the holiest part of the Temple house, to set there the ark of the covenant of the LORD. ²⁰The interior of the inner sanctuary was twenty cubits long, twenty cubits wide, and twenty cubits high; he overlaid it with pure gold. He also overlaid the altar with cedar.^a ²¹Solomon overlaid the inside of the house with pure gold, then he drew chains of gold across, in front of the inner sanctuary, and overlaid it with gold. ²²Next he overlaid the whole house with gold, in order that the whole house might be perfect; even the whole altar that belonged to the inner sanctuary he overlaid with gold.

²³In the inner sanctuary he made two cherubim of olivewood, each ten cubits high. ²⁴Five cubits was the length of one wing of the cherub, and five cubits the length of the other wing of the cherub; it was ten cubits from the tip of one wing to the tip of the other. ²⁵The other cherub also measured ten cubits; both cherubim had the same measure and the same form. ²⁶The height of one cherub was ten cubits, and so was that of the other cherub. ²⁷He put the cherubim in the innermost part of the house; the wings of the cherubim were spread out so that a wing of one was touching the one wall, and a wing of the other cherub was touching the other wall; their other wings toward the center of the house were touching wing to wing. ²⁸He also overlaid the cherubim with gold.

²⁹He carved the walls of the house all around about with carved engravings of cherubim, palm trees, and open flowers, in the inner and outer rooms. ³⁰The floor of the house he overlaid with gold, in the inner and outer rooms.

³¹For the entrance to the inner sanctuary he made doors of olivewood; the lintel and the doorposts were five-sided.^a ³²He covered the two doors of olivewood with carvings of cherubim, palm trees, and open flowers; he overlaid them with gold, and spread gold on the cherubim and on the palm trees.

³³So also he made for the entrance to the nave doorposts of olivewood, four-sided each, ³⁴and two doors of cypress wood; the two leaves of the one door were folding, and the two leaves of the other door were folding. ³⁵He carved cherubim, palm trees, and open flowers, overlaying them with gold evenly applied upon the carved work. ³⁶He built the inner court with three courses of dressed stone to one course of cedar beams.

³⁷In the fourth year the foundation of the house of the LORD was laid, in the month of Ziv. ³⁸In the eleventh year, in the month of Bul, which is the eighth month, the house was finished in all its parts, and according to all its specifications. He was seven years in building it.

7 Solomon was building his own house thirteen years, and he finished his entire house.

²He built the House of the Forest of the Lebanon one hundred cubits long, fifty cubits wide, and thirty cubits high, built on four rows of cedar pillars, with cedar beams on the pillars. ³It was roofed with cedar on the forty-five rafters, fifteen in each row, which were on the pillars. ⁴There were window frames in the three rows, facing each other in the

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

where the ark of the covenant, a component of God's throne, is placed. 23–28: The cherubim are winged, composite creatures well known in the ancient Near East. They may be guardians of the ark (see Gen 3.24, where they are guardians of the garden of Eden). In Assyria and Babylon winged sphinxes stood at the entrance of temples and palaces. In Phoenician art, winged human-faced creatures support the throne of a king, a function they likely had in the Temple here (see Ps 99.1; 2 Kings 19.15). 29–36: The authors highlight the splendor of the decoration: everything was overlaid with gold, and there were special carvings, with the cherubim symbolizing divine protection, and open flowers and palm trees for fertility. The different, richly decorated doors separate the three parts of the Temple. 36–38: Building the Temple took seven years and six months.

7.1–12: Building the palace. In the ancient Near East the palace and the (royal) sanctuary often belong to the same complex. Here the Temple is relatively modest compared to the palace. 1: Therefore it is not astonishing that Solomon spent thirteen years, almost twice as long on his palace as he did on the Temple. This remark can also be understood as a discreet criticism of Solomon's priorities. 2–5: House of the Forest of the Lebanon, the rows of cedar pillars suggest the idea of a forest. Such a structure may show Egyptian influence. It was perhaps a treasury and armory (see 1 Kings 10.17 and Isa 22.8). For the author, this was the most important building of three rows.⁵ All the doorways and doorposts had four-sided frames, opposite, facing each other in the three rows.

⁶ He made the Hall of Pillars fifty cubits long and thirty cubits wide. There was a porch in front with pillars, and a canopy in front of them.

⁷ He made the Hall of the Throne where he was to pronounce judgment, the Hall of Justice, covered with cedar from floor to floor.

⁸ His own house where he would reside, in the other court back of the hall, was of the same construction. Solomon also made a house like this hall for Pharaoh's daughter, whom he had taken in marriage.

⁹ All these were made of costly stones, cut according to measure, sawed with saws, back and front, from the foundation to the coping, and from outside to the great court.

¹⁰ The foundation was of costly stones, huge stones, stones of eight and ten cubits.¹¹ There were costly stones above, cut to measure, and cedarwood.¹² The great court had three courses of dressed stone to one layer of cedar beams all around; so had the inner court of the house of the LORD, and the vestibule of the house.

¹³ Now King Solomon invited and received Hiram from Tyre.¹⁴ He was the son of a widow of the tribe of Naphtali, whose father, a man of Tyre, had been an artisan in bronze; he was full of skill, intelligence, and knowledge in working bronze. He came to King Solomon, and did all his work.

¹⁵ He cast two pillars of bronze. Eighteen cubits was the height of the one, and a cord of twelve cubits would encircle it; the second pillar was the same.^a ¹⁶ He also made two capitals of molten bronze, to set on the tops of the pillars; the height of the one capital was five cubits, and the height of the other capital was five cubits.¹⁷ There were nets of checker work with wreaths of chain work for the capitals on the tops of the pillars; seven^b for the one capital, and seven^b for the other capital.¹⁸ He made the columns with two rows around each latticework to cover the capitals that were above the pomegranates; he did the same with the other capital.¹⁹ Now the capitals that were on the tops of the pillars in the vestibule were of lily-work, four cubits high.²⁰ The capitals were on the two pillars and also above the rounded projection that was beside the latticework; there were two hundred pomegranates in rows all around; and so with the other capital.²¹ He set up the pillars at the vestibule of the temple; he set up the pillar on the south and called it Jachin; and he set up the pillar on the north and called it Boaz.²² On the tops of the pillars was lily-work. Thus the work of the pillars was finished.

²³ Then he made the molten sea; it was round, ten cubits from brim to brim, and the palace complex. 6–7: The Hall of Pillars could have been the waiting hall for the Hall of the Throne, where the king dispensed justice. 8: The private quarters comprise Solomon's residence and a residence for the daughter of Pharaoh (see 3.1 and 9.24). The author does not tell us about the harem for Solomon's other wives. 9–12: The foundations were built with huge quarry blocks.

^a Cn: Heb and a cord of twelve cubits encircled the second pillar; Compare Jer 52.21

^b Heb: Gk a net

7.13–51: Hiram and the furnishings of the Temple. 13–14: The Hiram who appears here as craftsman is called Hiram-abi in 2 Chr 2.12–13 and should not be confused with King Hiram of ch 5. The detail about his Israelite mother (according to 2 Chr 2.12, his mother is not from the tribe of Naphtali but from Dan) was provided to reassure the reader that the main craftsman of the Temple was not a foreigner (cf. Ezra 4.1–3 for a similar sensitivity to the question of involvement in the Temple building). His skills are like those of Bezalel, who constructed the Tabernacle (Ex 31.3; 35.31). 15–22: The two huge pillars (more than 26 ft [8 m] high) at the entry of the vestibule symbolize the LORD's presence in the Temple and his protection of the royal dynasty. This is also symbolized in their names: Jachin (which also occurs in the name of King Jehoiachin) means "he will establish" and refers to God's initiative to establish the throne of the king (2 Sam 7.13); Boaz ("by him he is mighty") expresses the king's dependence on the divine favor. 23–26: Molten, molded or cast. The molten sea was a large metal basin filled with water (two thousand baths: a bath equals ca. 6 gal [23 l]) representing the primeval watery chaos subdued by the LORD, creator of the world (see Ps 74). The twelve oxen or bulls that supported the basin represented divine strength (see 1 Kings 12.28). According to 2 Chr 4.6 the molten sea was used for five cubits high. A line of thirty cubits would encircle it completely.²⁴ Under its brim were panels all around it, each of ten cubits, surrounding the sea; there were two rows of panels, cast when it was cast.²⁵ It stood on twelve oxen, three facing north, three facing west, three facing south, and three facing east; the sea was set on them. The hindquarters of each were toward the inside.²⁶ Its thickness was a handbreadth; its brim was made like the brim of a cup, like the flower of a lily; it held two thousand baths.^a

²⁷ He also made the ten stands of bronze; each stand was four cubits long, four cubits wide, and three cubits high.²⁸ This was the construction of the stands: they had borders; the borders were within the frames;²⁹ on the borders that were set in the frames were lions, oxen, and cherubim. On the frames, both above and below the lions and oxen, there were wreaths of beveled work.³⁰ Each stand had four bronze wheels and axles of bronze; at the four corners were supports for a basin. The supports were cast with wreaths at the side of each.³¹ Its opening was within the crown whose height was one cubit; its opening was round, as a pedestal is made; it was a cubit and a half wide. At its opening there were carvings; its borders were four-sided, not round.³² The four wheels were underneath the borders; the axles of the wheels were in the stands; and the height of a wheel was a cubit and a half.³³ The wheels were made like a chariot wheel; their axles, their rims, their spokes, and their hubs were all cast.³⁴ There were four supports at the four corners of each stand; the supports were of one piece with the stands.³⁵ On the top of the stand there was a round band half a cubit high; on the top of the stand, its stays and its borders were of one piece with it.³⁶ On the surfaces of its stays and on its borders he carved cherubim, lions, and palm trees, where each had space, with wreaths all around.³⁷ In this way he made the ten stands; all of them were cast alike, with the same size and the same form.

³⁸ He made ten basins of bronze; each basin held forty baths,^a each basin measured four cubits; there was a basin for each of the ten stands.³⁹ He set five of the stands on the south side of the house, and five on the north side of the house; he set the sea on the southeast corner of the house.

⁴⁰ Hiram also made the pots, the shovels, and the basins. So Hiram finished all the work that he did for King Solomon on the house of the LORD: ⁴¹ the two pillars, the two bowls of the capitals that were on the tops of the pillars, the two latticeworks to cover the two bowls of the capitals that were on the tops of the pillars; ⁴² the four hundred pomegranates for the two latticeworks, two rows of pomegranates for each latticework, to cover the two bowls of the capitals that were on the pillars; ⁴³ the ten stands, the ten basins on the stands; ⁴⁴ the one sea, and the twelve oxen underneath the sea.

⁴⁵ The pots, the shovels, and the basins, all these vessels that Hiram made for King Solomon for the house of the LORD were of burnished bronze. ⁴⁶ In the plain of the Jordan the king cast them, in the clay ground between Succoth and Zarethan. ⁴⁷ Solomon left all the vessels unweighed, because there were so many of them; the weight of the bronze was not determined.

⁴⁸ So Solomon made all the vessels that were in the house of the LORD: the golden altar, the golden table for the bread of the Presence, ⁴⁹ the lampstands of pure gold, five on the south side and five on the north, in front of the inner sanctuary; the flowers, the lamps, and the tongs, of gold; ⁵⁰ the cups, snuffers, basins, dishes for incense, and firepans, of pure gold; the sockets for the

^a A Heb measure of volume

the ritual washings of the priest. 27–39: The wheeled stands and their bases may have originally symbolized God’s power to provide water and rain, but later they were understood to provide the water necessary for the performance of sacrificial worship. 40–51: The division of work between Hiram and Solomon: Hiram made the objects of bronze, whereas Solomon made the more prestigious vessels of gold. 46: Hiram did his work in the Jordan valley, where appropriate clay is to be found. Succoth, probably Deir Alla, and Zarethan, were in Transjordan near the Jabbok River. 48–50: Solomon himself is responsible for all objects related directly to doors of the innermost part of the house, the most holy place, and for the doors of the nave of the temple, of gold.

⁵¹ Thus all the work that King Solomon did on the house of the LORD was finished. Solomon brought in the things that his father David had dedicated, the silver, the gold, and the vessels, and stored them in the treasuries of the house of the LORD.

8 Then Solomon assembled the elders of Israel and all the heads of the tribes, the leaders of the ancestral houses of the Israelites, before King Solomon in Jerusalem, to bring up the ark of the covenant of the LORD out of the city of David, which is Zion. ² All the people of Israel assembled to King Solomon at the festival in the month Ethanim, which is the seventh month. ³ And all the elders of Israel came, and the priests carried the ark. ⁴ So they brought up the ark of the LORD, the tent of meeting, and all the holy vessels that were in the tent; the priests and the Levites brought them up. ⁵ King Solomon and all the congregation of Israel, who had assembled before him, were with him before the ark, sacrificing so many sheep and oxen that they could not be counted or numbered. ⁶ Then the priests brought the ark of the covenant of the LORD to its place, in the inner sanctuary of the house, in the most holy place, underneath the wings of the cherubim. ⁷ For the cherubim spread out their wings over the place of the ark, so that the cherubim made a covering above the ark and its poles. ⁸ The poles were so long that the ends of the poles were seen from the holy place in front of the inner sanctuary; but they could not be seen from outside; they are there to this day. ⁹ There was nothing in the ark except the two tablets of stone that Moses had placed there at Horeb, where the LORD made a covenant with the Israelites, when they came out of the land of Egypt. ¹⁰ And when the priests came out of the holy place, a cloud filled the house of the LORD, ¹¹ so that the priests could not stand to minister because of the cloud; for the glory of the LORD filled the house of the LORD.

¹² Then Solomon said,

“The LORD has said that he would dwell in thick darkness.

¹³ I have built you an exalted house, a place for you to dwell in forever.”

¹⁴ Then the king turned around and blessed all the assembly of Israel, while all the assembly of Israel stood. ¹⁵ He said, “Blessed be the LORD, the God of Israel, who with his hand has fulfilled what he promised with his mouth to my father David, saying, ¹⁶ ‘Since the day that I brought my people Israel out of Egypt, I have not chosen a city from any of the tribes of Israel in which to build a house, that my name might be there; but I chose David to be over my people Israel.’ ¹⁷ My father David had it in mind to build a house for the name of the LORD, the God of Israel. ¹⁸ But the LORD said to my father David, ‘You did well to consider building a house for my name; ¹⁹ nevertheless you shall not build the house, but your son who shall be born to you shall build the house for my name.’ ²⁰ Now the LORD has upheld the promise that he made; for I have risen in the place of my father David; I sit on the throne of Israel, as sacrificial worship. Bread of the Presence, see Ex 25.30; Lev 24.5–9. 51: See 2 Sam 8.9–12, where David dedicates his booty to the LORD.

8.1–66: The inauguration of the Temple. 1–13: The ark is now transferred from the tent sanctuary into the inner sanctuary of the Temple. 2: The Temple was finished in the eighth month (6.38), so the inauguration took place in the following year in the seventh month (September–October), after the end of the harvest seasons, at the festival of booths (tabernacles); see v. 66. 3–4: As in Josh 3–4, the ark is carried by the priests and Levites, because touching it is dangerous for lay people. 9: The statement that nothing was in the ark but the tablets of stone that Moses had placed (see Deut 10.1–5) is meant to counter the popular idea that God is present in the ark. 10–11: A cloud is often associated with divine appearances (e.g., Ex 13.21–22; 16.10; 19.9) and covers the earlier tent sanctuary upon its completion in Ex 40.34–38. 12–13: An independent poetic statement, which in the LXX has different wording and follows v. 53. It suggests that the God of Israel was considered to be a weather-god who wants to dwell in darkness, in a cloud. 14–66: Solomon pronounces three prayers that provide important clues to the later authors’ theological understanding of the Temple. 14–21: The first prayer, in front of the assembly, builds on the promise to David of an eternal dynasty in 2 Sam 7 and highlights that Solomon is David’s the LORD promised, and have built the house for the name of the LORD, the God of Israel.

²¹ There I have provided a place for the ark, in which is the covenant of the LORD that he made with our ancestors when he brought them out of the land of Egypt.”

²² Then Solomon stood before the altar of the LORD in the presence of all the assembly of Israel, and spread out his hands to heaven.

²³ He said, “O LORD, God of Israel, there is no God like you in heaven above or on earth beneath, keeping covenant and steadfast love for your servants who walk before you with all their heart, ²⁴ the covenant that you kept for your servant my father David as you declared to him; you promised with your mouth and have this day fulfilled with your hand.

²⁵ Therefore, O LORD, God of Israel, keep for your servant my father David that which you promised him, saying, “There shall never fail you a successor before me to sit on the throne of Israel, if only your children look to their way, to walk before me as you have walked before me.” ²⁶ Therefore, O God of Israel, let your word be confirmed, which you promised to your servant my father David.

²⁷ “But will God indeed dwell on the earth?

Even heaven and the highest heaven cannot contain you, much less this house that I have built! ²⁸ Regard your servant’s prayer and his plea, O LORD my God, heeding the cry and the prayer that your servant prays to you today, ²⁹ that your eyes may be open night and day toward this house, the place of which you said, ‘My name shall be there,’ that you may heed the prayer that your servant prays toward this place. ³⁰ Hear the plea of your servant and of your people Israel when they pray toward this place; O hear in heaven your dwelling place; heed and forgive.

³¹ “If someone sins against a neighbor and is given an oath to swear, and comes and swears before your altar in this house, ³² then hear in heaven, and act, and judge your servants, condemning the guilty by bringing their conduct on their own head, and vindicating the righteous by rewarding them according to their righteousness.

³³ “When your people Israel, having sinned against you, are defeated before an enemy but turn again to you, confess your name, pray and plead with you in this house, ³⁴ then hear in heaven, forgive the sin of your people Israel, and bring them again to the land that you gave to their ancestors.

³⁵ “When heaven is shut up and there is no rain because they have sinned against you, and then they pray toward this place, confess your name, and turn from their sin, because you punish^a them, ³⁶ then hear in heaven, and forgive the sin of your servants, your people Israel, when you teach them the good way in which they should walk; and grant rain on your land, which you have given to your people as an inheritance.

³⁷ “If there is famine in the land, if there is plague, blight, mildew, locust, or caterpillar; if their enemy besieges them in any^b of their cities; whatever plague, whatever sickness there is; ³⁸ whatever prayer, whatever plea there is from any individual or from all your people Israel, all knowing the afflictions of their own hearts so that they stretch out their hands toward this house; ³⁹ then hear in heaven your dwelling place, forgive, act, and render to all whose hearts you know—according to all their ways, for only you know what is in every human heart—⁴⁰ so that they may fear you all the days that they live in the land that you gave to our ancestors.

⁴¹ “Likewise when a foreigner, who is not of your people Israel, comes from a distant land because of your name ⁴²—for they shall hear

^a Or when you answer

^b Gk Syr: Heb in the land

legitimate successor and the proper Temple builder. 22–53: The second prayer, in front of the altar, is the central piece of the dedication. The authors reassert seven times that the LORD does not dwell in the Temple (contrast v. 13), but in heaven (vv. 32,34,36,39,43,45,49). The Temple is the place to pray to God. But as Solomon enumerates seven different occasions for prayer—sin of an individual (vv. 31–32); defeat in battle (vv. 33–34); drought (vv. 35–36); famine and plagues (vv. 37–40); a foreigner who comes to pray (vv. 41–43); war (vv. 44–45); sin of the people and deportation (vv. 46–51)—the scene changes. Prayer is initially located in the Temple, then it is in the direction of the sanctuary, and finally, the praying individuals are in another country and pray toward the city and the Temple. This presupposes the situation after the Babylonian exile. 33–40,46–51: These occasions of your great name, your mighty hand, and your outstretched arm—when a foreigner comes and prays toward this house, ⁴³ then hear in heaven your dwelling place, and do according to all that the foreigner calls to you, so that all the peoples of the earth may know your name and fear you, as do your people Israel, and so that they may know that your name has been invoked on this house that I have built.

⁴⁴ “If your people go out to battle against their enemy, by whatever way you shall send them, and they pray to the LORD toward the city that you have chosen and the house that I have built for your name, ⁴⁵ then hear in heaven their prayer and their plea, and maintain their cause.

⁴⁶ “If they sin against you—for there is no one who does not sin—and you are angry with them and give them to an enemy, so that they are carried away captive to the land of the enemy, far off or near; ⁴⁷ yet if they come to their senses in the land to which they have been taken captive, and repent, and plead with you in the land of their captors, saying, ‘We have sinned, and have done wrong; we have acted wickedly’; ⁴⁸ if they repent with all their heart and soul in the land of their enemies, who took them captive, and pray to you toward their land, which you gave to their ancestors, the city that you have chosen, and the house that I have built for your name; ⁴⁹ then hear in heaven your dwelling place their prayer and their plea, maintain their cause ⁵⁰ and forgive your people who have sinned against you, and all their transgressions that they have committed against you; and grant them compassion in the sight of their captors, so that they may have compassion on them ⁵¹ (for they are your people and heritage, which you brought out of Egypt, from the midst of the iron-smelter). ⁵² Let your eyes be open to the plea of your servant, and to the plea of your people Israel, listening to them whenever they call to you. ⁵³ For you have separated them from among all the peoples of the earth, to be your heritage, just as you promised through Moses, your servant, when you brought our ancestors out of Egypt, O Lord God.”

⁵⁴ Now when Solomon finished offering all this prayer and this plea to the LORD, he arose from facing the altar of the LORD, where he had knelt with hands outstretched toward heaven; ⁵⁵ he stood and blessed all the assembly of Israel with a loud voice:

⁵⁶ “Blessed be the LORD, who has given rest to his people Israel according to all that he promised; not one word has failed of all his good promise, which he spoke through his servant Moses. ⁵⁷ The LORD our God be with us, as he was with our ancestors; may he not leave us or abandon us, ⁵⁸ but incline our hearts to him, to walk in all his ways, and to keep his commandments, his statutes, and his ordinances, which he commanded our ancestors. ⁵⁹ Let these words of mine, with which I pleaded before the LORD, be near to the LORD our God day and night, and may he maintain the cause of his servant and the cause of his people Israel, as each day requires; ⁶⁰ so that all the peoples of the earth may know that the LORD is God; there is no other. ⁶¹ Therefore devote yourselves completely to the LORD our God, walking in his statutes and keeping his commandments, as at this day.”

⁶² Then the king, and all Israel with him, offered sacrifice before the LORD. ⁶³ Solomon offered as sacrifices of well-being to the LORD twenty-two thousand oxen and one hundred twenty thousand sheep. So the king and all the people of Israel dedicated the house of the LORD. ⁶⁴ The same day the king consecrated the middle of the court that was in front of the house of the LORD; for there he offered the burnt offerings and the grain offerings and the fat pieces of the sacrifices of well-being, because the bronze altar that was before the LORD was too small to receive the burnt offerings and the grain offerings and the fat pieces of the sacrifices of well-being.

⁶⁵ So Solomon held the festival at that time, and all Israel with him—a great assem-

for prayer are parallel to the curses in Deut 28.21–25,38,64–65. 51: Iron-smelter, see Deut 4.20. 54–61: The last prayer, spoken again in front of the people, reasserts, like Josh 21.43–45, that the LORD has fulfilled all his promises. It repeats the Deuteronomistic exhortation to respond to this gift by the observance of the divine commandments. 62–64: The number of the sacrifices is highly exaggerated, symbolizing Solomon’s and the peobly, people from Lebo-hamath to the Wadi of Egypt—before the LORD our God, seven days.^a ⁶⁶On the eighth day he sent the people away; and they blessed the king, and went to their tents, joyful and in good spirits because of all the goodness that the LORD had shown to his servant David and to his people Israel.

9 When Solomon had finished building the house of the LORD and the king's house and all that Solomon desired to build, ²the LORD appeared to Solomon a second time, as he had appeared to him at Gibeon. ³The LORD said to him, "I have heard your prayer and your plea, which you made before me; I have consecrated this house that you have built, and put my name there forever; my eyes and my heart will be there for all time. ⁴As for you, if you will walk before me, as David your father walked, with integrity of heart and uprightness, doing according to all that I have commanded you, and keeping my statutes and my ordinances, ⁵then I will establish your royal throne over Israel forever, as I promised your father David, saying, "There shall not fail you a successor on the throne of Israel."

⁶"If you turn aside from following me, you or your children, and do not keep my commandments and my statutes that I have set before you, but go and serve other gods and worship them, ⁷then I will cut Israel off from the land that I have given them; and the house that I have consecrated for my name I will cast out of my sight; and Israel will become a proverb and a taunt among all peoples. ⁸This house will become a heap of ruins;^b everyone passing by it will be astonished, and will hiss; and they will say, "Why has the LORD done such a thing to this land and to this house?" ⁹Then they will say, "Because they have forsaken the LORD their God, who brought their ancestors out of the land of Egypt, and embraced other gods, worshipping them and serving them; therefore the LORD has brought this disaster upon them."

¹⁰At the end of twenty years, in which Solomon had built the two houses, the house of the LORD and the king's house, ¹¹King Hiram of Tyre having supplied Solomon with cedar and cypress timber and gold, as much as he desired, King Solomon gave to Hiram twenty cities in the land of Galilee. ¹²But when Hiram came from Tyre to see the cities that Solomon had given him, they did not please him. ¹³Therefore he said, "What kind of cities are these that you have given me, my brother?" So they are called the land of Cabul^c to this day. ¹⁴But Hiram had sent to the king one hundred twenty talents of gold.

¹⁵This is the account of the forced labor that King Solomon conscripted to build the house of the LORD and his own house, the Millo and the wall of Jerusalem, Hazor, Megiddo, Gezer ¹⁶(Pharaoh king of Egypt had gone up and captured Gezer and burned it down, had killed the Canaanites who lived

^a Compare Gk: Heb seven days and seven days, fourteen days

^b Syr Old Latin: Heb will become high

^c Perhaps meaning a land good for nothing

ple's attachment to the new sanctuary. 65–66: The dedication of the Temple took place during the festival of Tabernacles. According to Deut 16.13–15 the participants are sent home on the eighth day. The limits of the land are defined here (less extensively than in 4.21,24) in the north by Lebo-hamath (in the southern Orontes valley in Lebanon) and in the south by the Wadi of Egypt (the Wadi el-Arish or the Wadi Besor, both south of Gaza).

9.1–9: God's second appearance to Solomon. This text recalls 3.4–15 and hints at the king's dark side, which will appear more and more clearly. 3–5: God's loyalty to Solomon depends on his behavior regarding the divine law. 6–9: The disobedience of Solomon and his successor is suggested; this disobedience will lead to the exile. 8–9: Cf. Deut 29.23–24.

9.10–28: The ambiguity of Solomon's wealth (see also 10.14–29). 10–14: The text reports that Solomon paid a heavy price to the king of Tyre, twenty cities; this almost makes Solomon into Hiram's vassal. In order to correct this idea, the text states that Hiram had paid Solomon 120 talents of gold (a talent is ca. 75 lb [34 kg]). 13: The name of the town of Cabul (8 mi [14 km] southeast of Acco) is explained with a play on the Heb verb "to waste away." 15–24: The many building projects attributed to Solomon are executed through forced labor. 15: Millo (lit. "fill") refers to terraces to stabilize the wall and the official buildings of Jerusalem. 15–19: The cities that Solomon built are located in strategic places, and are enumerated from north to south. The note about Gezer interrupts the list. This town is presented as Pharaoh's dowry to Solomon: see also 3.1; 9.24;

in the city, and had given it as dowry to his daughter, Solomon's wife; ¹⁷ so Solomon rebuilt Gezer), Lower Beth-horon, ¹⁸ Baalath, Tamar in the wilderness, within the land, ¹⁹ as well as all of Solomon's storage cities, the cities for his chariots, the cities for his cavalry, and whatever Solomon desired to build, in Jerusalem, in Lebanon, and in all the land of his dominion. ²⁰ All the people who were left of the Amorites, the Hittites, the Perizzites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites, who were not of the people of Israel—²¹ their descendants who were still left in the land, whom the Israelites were unable to destroy completely—these Solomon conscripted for slave labor, and so they are to this day. ²² But of the Israelites Solomon made no slaves; they were the soldiers, they were his officials, his commanders, his captains, and the commanders of his chariotry and cavalry.

²³ These were the chief officers who were over Solomon's work: five hundred fifty, who had charge of the people who carried on the work.

²⁴ But Pharaoh's daughter went up from the city of David to her own house that Solomon had built for her; then he built the Millo.

²⁵ Three times a year Solomon used to offer up burnt offerings and sacrifices of well-being on the altar that he built for the LORD, offering incense^a before the LORD. So he completed the house.

²⁶ King Solomon built a fleet of ships at Ezion-geber, which is near Eloth on the shore of the Red Sea,^b in the land of Edom. ²⁷ Hiram sent his servants with the fleet, sailors who were familiar with the sea, together with the servants of Solomon. ²⁸ They went to Ophir, and imported from there four hundred twenty talents of gold, which they delivered to King Solomon.

10 When the queen of Sheba heard of the fame of Solomon (fame due to^c the name of the LORD), she came to test him with hard questions. ² She came to Jerusalem with a very great retinue, with camels bearing spices, and very much gold, and precious stones; and when she came to Solomon, she told him all that was on her mind. ³ Solomon answered all her questions; there was nothing hidden from the king that he could not explain to her. ⁴ When the queen of Sheba had observed all the wisdom of Solomon, the house that he had built, ⁵ the food of his table, the seating of his officials, and the attendance of his servants, their clothing, his valets, and his burnt offerings that he offered at the house of the LORD, there was no more spirit in her.

⁶ So she said to the king, "The report was true that I heard in my own land of your accomplishments and of your wisdom, ⁷ but I did not believe the reports until I came and my own eyes had seen it. Not even half had been told me; your wisdom and prosperity far surpass the report that I had heard. ⁸ Happy are your wives!^d Happy are these your servants, who continually attend you and hear your wisdom! ⁹ Blessed be the LORD your God, who has delighted in you and set you on the throne of Israel! Because the LORD loved Israel forever, he has made you king to execute justice and righteousness." ¹⁰ Then she gave the king one hundred twenty talents of gold, a great quantity of spices, and precious stones; never again did spices come in such quantity as that which the queen of Sheba gave to King Solomon.

^a Gk: Heb offering incense with it that was

^b Or Sea of Reeds

^c Meaning of Heb uncertain

^d Gk Syr: Heb men

11.1. 20–23: This passage modifies 5.13 and 11.26–28, stating that only the former inhabitants of the land were conscripted for forced labor. 24–28: In this summary of Solomon's wealth we are told of his naval enterprises. 26: Ezion-geber, perhaps a small island in the Gulf of Aqaba. Eloth, also spelled "Elath," is at the northern tip of the same body of water. 28: The location of Ophir is uncertain. For the biblical writers it probably designated southern Arabia (Gen 10.29; Isa 13.12; Job 28.16).

10.1–13: The visit of the queen of Sheba. This story, which resembles a tale from A Thousand and One Nights, interrupts the enumeration of Solomon's wealth. Sheba is in Arabia. 4–5: The queen of Sheba is overwhelmed by Solomon's wealth and wisdom. 6–13: According to an Ethiopian tradition, all Ethiopian emperors descended from the union between Solomon and the queen of Sheba. 10: The queen offers more than two tons of gold.

¹¹ Moreover, the fleet of Hiram, which carried gold from Ophir, brought from Ophir a great quantity of almug wood and precious stones. ¹² From the almug wood the king made supports for the house of the LORD, and for the king's house, lyres also and harps for the singers; no such almug wood has come or been seen to this day.

¹³ Meanwhile King Solomon gave to the queen of Sheba every desire that she expressed, as well as what he gave her out of Solomon's royal bounty. Then she returned to her own land, with her servants.

¹⁴ The weight of gold that came to Solomon in one year was six hundred sixty-six talents of gold, ¹⁵ besides that which came from the traders and from the business of the merchants, and from all the kings of Arabia and the governors of the land. ¹⁶ King Solomon made two hundred large shields of beaten gold; six hundred shekels of gold went into each large shield. ¹⁷ He made three hundred shields of beaten gold; three minas of gold went into each shield; and the king put them in the House of the Forest of Lebanon. ¹⁸ The king also made a great ivory throne, and overlaid it with the finest gold. ¹⁹ The throne had six steps. The top of the throne was rounded in the back, and on each side of the seat were arm rests and two lions standing beside the arm rests, ²⁰ while twelve lions were standing, one on each end of a step on the six steps. Nothing like it was ever made in any kingdom. ²¹ All King Solomon's drinking vessels were of gold, and all the vessels of the House of the Forest of Lebanon were of pure gold; none were of silver—it was not considered as anything in the days of Solomon.

²² For the king had a fleet of ships of Tarshish at sea with the fleet of Hiram. Once every three years the fleet of ships of Tarshish used to come bringing gold, silver, ivory, apes, and peacocks.^a

²³ Thus King Solomon excelled all the kings of the earth in riches and in wisdom. ²⁴ The whole earth sought the presence of Solomon to hear his wisdom, which God had put into his mind. ²⁵ Every one of them brought a present, objects of silver and gold, garments, weaponry, spices, horses, and mules, so much year by year.

²⁶ Solomon gathered together chariots and horses; he had fourteen hundred chariots and twelve thousand horses, which he stationed in the chariot cities and with the king in Jerusalem. ²⁷ The king made silver as common in Jerusalem as stones, and he made cedars as numerous as the sycamores of the Shephelah. ²⁸ Solomon's import of horses was from Egypt and Kue, and the king's traders received them from Kue at a price. ²⁹ A chariot could be imported from Egypt for six hundred shekels of silver, and a horse for one hundred fifty; so through the king's traders they were exported to all the kings of the Hittites and the kings of Aram.

11 King Solomon loved many foreign women along with the daughter of Pharaoh: Moabite, Ammonite, Edomite, Sidonian, and Hittite women, ² from the nations concerning which the LORD had said to the Israelites, "You shall not enter into marriage

^a Or baboons

11–12: The verses belong to 9.26–28. Almug wood, a precious wood of uncertain species (traditionally sandalwood).

10.14–29: The ambiguity of Solomon's wealth, continued (see also 9.10–28). 14–22: Contrary to Deut 17.17, Solomon has almost an obsession for gold. 14–15: A talent is ca. 75 lb (34 kg). The number of six hundred sixty-six, Solomon's income, symbolizes totality (see also Ezra 2.13; contrast Rev 13.18). 16: A shekel is ca. .4 oz (11.5 g). 17: A mina is ca. 20 oz (570 g). 18–20: Solomon's throne, which symbolizes the divine cosmos of which the king was the guarantor, has many parallels in ancient Near Eastern art. 21–22: The location of Tarshish is uncertain; it may be Tarsus in southern Turkey or Tartessus in southern Spain. 23–29: Contrary to Deut 17.16, Solomon accumulates many horses. 27: The Shephelah, the foothills between the Mediterranean coastal plain and the Judean hill country. 28–29: According to this translation, Solomon was the intermediary in horse-trading between Egypt and Asia Minor. 28: Kue, Cilicia, in southern Asia Minor. 29: Hittites, a non-Semitic population in northern Syria and southern Turkey; Aram, southern Syria.

11.1–43: The troublesome end of Solomon's reign. 1–8: Contrary to Deut 17.17, Solomon introduces a thousand foreign wives and concubines into his harem. 2: A quotation from Deut 7.3–4, which prohibited intermar-

with them, neither shall they with you; for they will surely incline your heart to follow their gods"; Solomon clung to these in love. ³ Among his wives were seven hundred princesses and three hundred concubines; and his wives turned away his heart. ⁴ For when Solomon was old, his wives turned away his heart after other gods; and his heart was not true to the LORD his God, as was the heart of his father David. ⁵ For Solomon followed Astarte the goddess of the Sidonians, and Milcom the abomination of the Ammonites. ⁶ So Solomon did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, and did not completely follow the LORD, as his father David had done. ⁷ Then Solomon built a high place for Chemosh the abomination of Moab, and for Molech the abomination of the Ammonites, on the mountain east of Jerusalem. ⁸ He did the same for all his foreign wives, who offered incense and sacrificed to their gods.

⁹ Then the LORD was angry with Solomon, because his heart had turned away from the LORD, the God of Israel, who had appeared to him twice, ¹⁰ and had commanded him concerning this matter, that he should not follow other gods; but he did not observe what the LORD commanded. ¹¹ Therefore the LORD said to Solomon, "Since this has been your mind and you have not kept my covenant and my statutes that I have commanded you, I will surely tear the kingdom from you and give it to your servant. ¹² Yet for the sake of your father David I will not do it in your lifetime; I will tear it out of the hand of your son. ¹³ I will not, however, tear away the entire kingdom; I will give one tribe to your son, for the sake of my servant David and for the sake of Jerusalem, which I have chosen."

¹⁴ Then the LORD raised up an adversary against Solomon, Hadad the Edomite; he was

of the royal house in Edom. ¹⁵ For when David was in Edom, and Joab the commander of the army went up to bury the dead, he killed every male in Edom ¹⁶ (for Joab and all Israel remained there six months, until he had eliminated every male in Edom); ¹⁷ but Hadad fled to Egypt with some Edomites who were servants of his father. He was a young boy at that time. ¹⁸ They set out from Midian and came to Paran; they took people with them from Paran and came to Egypt, to Pharaoh king of Egypt, who gave him a house, assigned him an allowance of food, and gave him land. ¹⁹ Hadad found great favor in the sight of Pharaoh, so that he gave him his sister-in-law for a wife, the sister of Queen Tahpenes. ²⁰ The sister of Tahpenes gave birth by him to his son Genubath, whom Tahpenes weaned in Pharaoh's house; Genubath was in Pharaoh's house among the children of Pharaoh. ²¹ When Hadad heard in Egypt that David slept with his ancestors and that Joab the commander of the army was dead, Hadad said to Pharaoh, "Let me depart, that I may go to my own country." ²² But Pharaoh said to him, "What do you lack with me that you now seek to go to your own country?" And he said, "No, do let me go."

²³ God raised up another adversary against Solomon, ^a Rezon son of Eliada, who had fled from his master, King Hadadezer of Zobah. ²⁴ He gathered followers around him and became leader of a marauding band, after the slaughter by David; they went to Damascus, settled there, and made him king in Damascus. ²⁵ He was an adversary of Israel all the days of Solomon, making trouble as Hadad did; he despised Israel and reigned over Aram.

^a Heb him

riage with the Canaanite population. 4: The note about Solomon's old age recalls the aging David, who was manipulated by his wife Bathsheba. Now the foreign wives lead Solomon to worship their foreign deities. 5–8: Astarte was a popular Canaanite goddess and was especially venerated in Sidon; Milcom was the national god of the Ammonites. The mountain east of Jerusalem is the Mount of Olives. 9–13: In his last speech to Solomon, the LORD announces the splitting up of the kingdom during the reign of Solomon's son. 14–40: Solomon is also punished during his own lifetime by three enemies that God raises up. 14–22: Hadad, an Edomite prince who fled to Egypt during David's campaign against Edom (2 Sam 8.14). 19–22: His integration into Pharaoh's house recalls the story of the young Moses. Pharaoh, whom Solomon considered an ally, offers asylum to his enemies. 19: Tahpenes, not a proper name, but a transcription of the Egyptian title "wife of the king." 20: Genubath, perhaps an Arabic word meaning "guest." 23–25: Rezon son of Eliada, a mercenary who served king Hadadezer of Zobah, an Aramean city-state northeast of Israel. After a revolt he became king of Damascus, the capital of commandments and my statutes;³⁵ but I will take the kingdom away from his son and give it to you—that is, the ten tribes. ³⁶ Yet to his son I will give one tribe, so that my servant David may always have a lamp before me in Jerusalem, the city where I have chosen to put my name. ³⁷ I will take you, and you shall reign over all that your soul desires; you shall be king over Israel. ³⁸ If you will listen to all that I command you, walk in my ways, and do what is right in my sight by keeping my statutes and my commandments, as David my servant did, I will be with you, and will build you an enduring house, as I built for David, and I will give Israel to you. ³⁹ For this reason I will punish the descendants of David, but not forever." ⁴⁰ Solomon sought therefore to kill Jeroboam; but Jeroboam promptly fled to Egypt, to King Shishak of Egypt, and remained in Egypt until the death of Solomon.

²⁶ Jeroboam son of Nebat, an Ephraimite of Zeredah, a servant of Solomon, whose mother's name was Zeruah, a widow, rebelled against the king. ²⁷ The following was the reason he rebelled against the king. Solomon built the Millo, and closed up the gap in the wall^a of the city of his father David. ²⁸ The man Jeroboam was very able, and when Solomon saw that the young man was industrious he gave him charge over all the forced labor of the house of Joseph. ²⁹ About that time, when Jeroboam was leaving Jerusalem, the prophet Ahijah the Shilonite found him on the road. Ahijah had clothed himself with a new garment. The two of them were alone in the open country ³⁰ when Ahijah laid hold of the new garment he was wearing and tore it into twelve pieces. ³¹ He then said to Jeroboam: Take for yourself ten pieces; for thus says the LORD, the God of Israel, "See, I am about to tear the kingdom from the hand of Solomon, and will give you ten tribes. ³² One tribe will remain his, for the sake of my servant David and for the sake of Jerusalem, the city that I have chosen out of all the tribes of Israel. ³³ This is because he has^b forsaken me, worshiped Astarte the goddess of the Sidonians, Chemosh the god of Moab, and Milcom the god of the Ammonites, and has^b not walked in my ways, doing what is right in my sight and keeping my statutes and my ordinances, as his father David did. ³⁴ Nevertheless I will not take the whole kingdom away from him but will make him ruler all the days of his life, for the sake of my servant David whom I chose and who did keep my

⁴¹ Now the rest of the acts of Solomon, all that he did as well as his wisdom, are they not written in the Book of the Acts of Solomon? ⁴² The time that Solomon reigned in Jerusalem over all Israel was forty years. ⁴³ Solomon slept with his ancestors and was buried in the city of his father David; and his son Rehoboam succeeded him.

12 Rehoboam went to Shechem, for all Israel had come to Shechem to make him king. ² When Jeroboam son of Nebat heard of it (for he was still in Egypt, where he had fled from King Solomon), then Jeroboam returned

^a Heb lacks in the wall

^b Gk Syr Vg: Heb they have

southern Syria. 26–40: Jeroboam son of Nebat, an Ephraimite; Zeredah is an important town in the hill country of Ephraim. He had been a supervisor of the labor force of the house of Joseph, which designates northern tribes, especially Ephraim and Manasseh. The name of the queen mother is typically mentioned only for Judean kings. Zeruah means "leper"; scribes may have modified her original name to vilify the first ruler of the Northern Kingdom of Israel. 29–39: The encounter between Jeroboam and the prophet Ahijah from Shiloh, an important sanctuary in Ephraim (see 1 Sam 1.3), has many parallels with the scene of Saul's rejection in 1 Sam 15.27–28. 29–33: After the prophet tore his mantle into twelve pieces, it is surprising that ten parts (symbolizing ten tribes) are given to Jeroboam and only one tribe (Judah) is given to the Davidic dynasty. The missing tribe may be Benjamin (see 12.21), sometimes belonging to the Northern Kingdom, and finally, perhaps under King Josiah, annexed by Judah. 34–39: Because of the promise related in 2 Sam 7.11–16, God will not bring David's dynasty to a total end. 40: Like Hadad, Jeroboam seeks asylum in Egypt. The Pharaoh Shishak is Shoshenq I, who ruled Egypt ca. 945–924 BCE; he is the first Pharaoh named in the Bible. 41–43: The concluding formula for Solomon, who like David reigned for forty years, a typological number. The Book of the Acts of Solomon may have been a source for the authors of 1 Kings 1–11. Solomon's son Rehoboam succeeded him in Jerusalem, and ruled ca. 928–911 BCE.

12.1–33: The disruption of Solomon's kingdom. 1–5: In order to rally the northern tribes, Rehoboam goes from^a Egypt.³ And they sent and called him; and Jeroboam and all the assembly of Israel came and said to Rehoboam, ⁴“Your father made our yoke heavy. Now therefore lighten the hard service of your father and his heavy yoke that he placed on us, and we will serve you.”⁵ He said to them, “Go away for three days, then come again to me.” So the people went away.

The geography of chs. 12–16. The dashed line shows the approximate boundaries between Israel, Judah and Philistia.

⁶Then King Rehoboam took counsel with the older men who had attended his father Solomon while he was still alive,

saying, “How do you advise me to answer this people?”⁷ They answered him, “If you will be a servant to this people today and serve them, and speak good words to them when you answer them, then they will be your servants forever.”⁸ But he disregarded the advice that the older men gave him, and consulted with the young men who had grown up with him and now attended him.⁹ He said to them, “What do you advise that to Shechem, located at the end of the pass between Mount Ebal and Mount Gerizim (near modern Nablus). Shechem was one of the most important places in the north (see Deut 27; Josh 24). For David, the northern tribes had come to Hebron in the south (2 Sam 5.3); now Solomon’s successor Rehoboam is obliged to go north. 2–5: His rival Jeroboam is depicted as a second Moses who has come back from Egypt to liberate the people, who suffer under forced labor. 6–15: Rehoboam is patterned after the Pharaoh of the Exodus story, we answer this people who have said to me, ‘Lighten the yoke that your father put on us?’”¹⁰ The young men who had grown up with him said to him, “Thus you should say to this people who spoke to you, ‘Your father made our yoke heavy, but you must lighten it for us’; thus you should say to them, ‘My little finger is thicker than my father’s loins.¹¹ Now, whereas my father laid on you a heavy yoke, I will add to your yoke. My father disciplined you with whips, but I will discipline you with scorpions.’”

^a Gk Vg Compare 2 Chr 10.2: Heb lived in

¹² So Jeroboam and all the people came to Rehoboam the third day, as the king had said, “Come to me again the third day.”¹³ The king answered the people harshly. He disregarded the advice that the older men had given him¹⁴ and spoke to them according to the advice of the young men, “My father made your yoke heavy, but I will add to your yoke; my father disciplined you with whips, but I will discipline you with scorpions.”¹⁵ So the king did not listen to the people, because it was a turn of affairs brought about by the LORD that he might fulfill his word, which the LORD had spoken by Ahijah the Shilonite to Jeroboam son of Nebat.

¹⁶ When all Israel saw that the king would not listen to them, the people answered the king,

“What share do we have in David?

We have no inheritance in the son of Jesse.

To your tents, O Israel!

Look now to your own house, O David.”¹⁷ But Rehoboam reigned over the Israelites who were living in the towns of Judah.¹⁸ When King Rehoboam sent Adoram, who was taskmaster over the forced labor, all Israel stoned him to death. King Rehoboam then hurriedly mounted his chariot to flee to Jerusalem.¹⁹ So Israel has been in rebellion against the house of David to this day.

²⁰ When all Israel heard that Jeroboam had returned, they sent and called him to the assembly and made him king over all Israel. There was no one who followed the house of David, except the tribe of Judah alone.

²¹ When Rehoboam came to Jerusalem, he assembled all the house of Judah and the tribe of Benjamin, one hundred eighty thousand chosen troops to fight against the house of Israel, to restore the kingdom to Rehoboam son of Solomon.²² But the word of God came to Shemaiah the man of God:²³ Say to King Rehoboam of Judah, son of Solomon, and to all the house of Judah and Benjamin, and to the rest of the people,²⁴ “Thus says the LORD, You shall not go up or fight against your kindred the people of Israel. Let everyone go home, for this thing is from me.” So they heeded the word of the LORD and went home again, according to the word of the LORD.

²⁵ Then Jeroboam built Shechem in the hill country of Ephraim, and resided there; he went out from there and built Penuel.²⁶ Then Jeroboam said to himself, “Now the kingdom may well revert to the house of David.²⁷ If this people continues to go up to offer sacrifices in the house of the LORD at Jerusalem, the heart of this people will turn again to their master, King Rehoboam of Judah; they will kill me and return to King Rehoboam of Judah.”²⁸ So the king took counsel, and made two calves of gold. He said to the people,^a “You have gone up to Jerusalem long enough. Here are your gods, O Israel, who brought you increasing oppression (the yoke) in response to complaints and hardening his heart. 10: NRSV my little finger follows LXX; MT has “my small one,” probably an expression for the penis. Rehoboam and his young counselors think that they are much more manly than their ancestors. 11: Scorpions, perhaps a whip embedded with thorns. 16–20: The tribes of the north refuse to follow Rehoboam. 16: The cry “To your tents, O Israel!” was a traditional exclamation (see 2 Sam 20.1) of the northern tribes, perhaps used as an appeal to return home after a battle. 18: Adoram, see 4.6. 20: Jeroboam ruled ca. 928–907 BCE. 21–24: Rehoboam, who wants to wage war against the northern tribes, is forbidden to do so by the otherwise unknown prophet Shemaiah. LXX has a second (shorter and different) version of 12.1–33, labeled 12.24.a–z. 25–33: Jeroboam constructs national sanctuaries at northern and southern cities in his kingdom, Dan and Bethel. This act is referred to as a refrain throughout Kings as “the sin of Jeroboam.” 28–29: According to the Deuteronomistic Historians, Jeroboam worshiped the LORD there in the form of a calf; the plural in v. 28 refers to the two statues at Dan and Bethel.

^a Gk: Heb to them

up out of the land of Egypt.”²⁹ He set one in Bethel, and the other he put in Dan.³⁰ And this thing became a sin, for the people went to worship before the one at Bethel and before the other as far as Dan.^a ³¹ He also made houses^b on high places, and appointed priests from among all the people, who were not Levites.³² Jeroboam appointed a festival on the fifteenth day of the eighth month like the festival that was in Judah, and he offered sacrifices to the calves that he had made. And he placed in Bethel the priests of the high places that he had made.³³ He went up to the altar that he had made in Bethel on the fifteenth day in the eighth month, in the month that he alone had devised; he appointed a festival for the people of Israel, and he went up to the altar to offer incense.

13 While Jeroboam was standing by the altar to offer incense, a man of God came out of Judah by the word of the LORD to Bethel² and proclaimed against the altar by the word of the LORD, and said, “O altar, altar, thus says the LORD: ‘A son shall be born to the house of David, Josiah by name; and he shall sacrifice on you the priests of the high places who offer incense on you, and human bones shall be burned on you.’”³ He gave a sign the same day, saying, “This is the sign that the LORD has spoken: ‘The altar shall be torn down, and the ashes that are on it shall be poured out.’”⁴ When the king heard what the man of God cried out against the altar at Bethel, Jeroboam stretched out his hand from the altar, saying, “Seize him!” But the hand that he stretched out against him withered so that he could not draw it back to himself.⁵ The altar also was torn down, and the ashes poured out from the altar, according to the sign that the man of God had given by the word of the LORD.⁶ The king said to the man of God, “Entreat now the favor of the LORD your God, and pray for me, so that my hand may be restored to me.” So the man of God entreated the LORD; and the king’s hand was restored to him, and became as it was before.⁷ Then the king said to the man of God, “Come home with me and dine, and I will give you a gift.”⁸ But the man of God said to the king, “If you give me half your kingdom, I will not go in with you; nor will I eat food or drink water in this place.”⁹ For thus I was commanded by the word of the LORD: You shall not eat food, or drink water, or return by the way that you came.”¹⁰ So he went another way, and did not return by the way that he had come to Bethel.

¹¹ Now there lived an old prophet in Bethel. One of his sons came and told him all that the man of God had done that day in Bethel; the words also that he had spoken to the king, they told to their father.¹² Their father said to them, “Which way did he go?” And his sons showed him the way that the man of God who came from Judah had gone.¹³ Then he said to his sons, “Saddle a donkey for me.” So they saddled a donkey for him, and he mounted it.¹⁴ He went after the man of God, and found him sitting under an oak tree. He said to him, “Are you the man of God who came from Judah?” He answered, “I am.”¹⁵ Then he said to him, “Come home with me and eat some food.”¹⁶ But he said, “I cannot return with you, or go in with you; nor will I eat food or drink water with you in this place;¹⁷ for it was said to me by the word of the LORD: You shall not eat food or drink water there, or return by the way that

^a Compare Gk: Heb went to the one as far as Dan

^b Gk Vg Compare 13.32: Heb a house

The wording is almost identical to the people’s comment when Aaron made the golden calf in the desert (Ex 32.4). 31–33: The Judean authors relate further transgressions of Jeroboam: high places, illegitimate priests, and a different festival calendar.

13.1–34: Jeroboam and the man of God from Judah. 1–10: As Jeroboam stands by the altar, that is, on the steps leading to it, he is confronted by an anonymous man of God, a prophet, who announces the end of the kingdom of Israel and the profanation of the sanctuary of Bethel by the Judean king Josiah (see 2 Kings 23.15–19). Such prophecies that connect distant parts of this work are typical of the Deuteronomistic History. 4: The withered (lit. “dried”) hand of Jeroboam demonstrates the prophet’s power over the king. 6–10: Having restored the king’s hand, the prophet obeys the LORD’s order and refuses any compensation. 11–32: But in the following story the man of God acts differently and follows a prophet from Bethel who claims that God has spoken to him you came.”¹⁸ Then the other^a said to him, “I also am a prophet as you are, and an angel spoke to me by the word of the LORD: Bring him back with you into your house so that he may eat food and drink water.” But he was deceiving him.¹⁹ Then the man of God^a went back with him, and ate food and drank water in his house.

²⁰ As they were sitting at the table, the word of the LORD came to the prophet who had brought him back;²¹ and he proclaimed to the man of God who came from Judah, “Thus says the LORD: Because you have disobeyed the word of the LORD, and have not kept the commandment that the LORD your God commanded you,²² but have come back and have eaten food and drunk water in the place of which he said to you, ‘Eat no food, and drink no water,’ your body shall not come to your ancestral tomb.”²³ After the man of God^a had eaten food and had drunk, they saddled for him a donkey belonging to the prophet who had brought him back.²⁴ Then as he went away, a lion met him on the road and killed him. His body was thrown in the road, and the donkey stood beside it; the lion also stood beside the body.²⁵ People passed by and saw the body thrown in the road, with the lion standing by the body. And they came and told it in the town where the old prophet lived.

²⁶ When the prophet who had brought him back from the way heard of it, he said, “It is the man of God who disobeyed the word of the LORD; therefore the LORD has given him to the lion, which has torn him and killed him according to the word that the LORD spoke to him.”²⁷ Then he said to his sons, “Saddle a donkey for me.” So they saddled one,²⁸ and he went and found the body thrown in the road, with the donkey and the lion standing beside the body. The lion had not eaten the body or attacked the donkey.²⁹ The prophet took up the body of the man of God, laid it on the donkey, and brought it back to the city,^b to mourn and to bury him.³⁰ He laid the body in his own grave; and they mourned over him, saying, “Alas, my brother!”³¹ After he had buried him, he said to his sons, “When I die, bury me in the grave in which the man of God is buried; lay my bones beside his bones.³² For the saying that he proclaimed by the word of the LORD against the altar in Bethel, and against all the houses of the high places that are in the cities of Samaria, shall surely come to pass.”

³³ Even after this event Jeroboam did not turn from his evil way, but made priests for the high places again from among all the people; any who wanted to be priests he consecrated for the high places.³⁴ This matter became sin to the house of Jeroboam, so as to cut it off and to destroy it from the face of the earth.

14 At that time Abijah son of Jeroboam fell sick.² Jeroboam said to his wife, “Go, disguise yourself, so that it will not be known that you are the wife of Jeroboam, and go to Shiloh; for the prophet Ahijah is there, who said of me that I should be king over this people.³ Take with you ten loaves, some cakes, and a jar of honey, and go to him; he will tell you what shall happen to the child.”

⁴ Jeroboam’s wife did so; she set out and went to Shiloh, and came to the house of Ahijah. Now Ahijah could not see, for his eyes were dim because of his age.⁵ But the LORD said to Ahijah, “The wife of Jeroboam is coming to inquire of you concerning her son; for he is sick. Thus and thus you shall say to her.”

When she came, she pretended to be another woman.⁶ But when Ahijah heard the sound of her feet, as she came in at the door, he said, “Come in, wife of Jeroboam;

^a Heb he

^b Gk: Heb he came to the town of the old prophet

in another way; together, the stories illustrate that God’s word must be heeded precisely. 24–28: A lion would not normally be expected to kill a man and then simply stand over the body beside an uneaten donkey. This stresses the holiness of the man of God, which was acknowledged even by the lion. 32: Samaria became the capital of the Northern Kingdom under Omri (16.24); here it means the entire Northern Kingdom. 33–34: The concluding passage about Jeroboam’s ongoing sin also introduces the following story.

14.1–31: The deaths of Jeroboam of Israel and Rehoboam of Judah. 1–18: The story of the illness of Jeroboam’s son leads to an encounter between Jeroboam’s wife and the prophet Ahijah, who had invested Jeroboam

why do you pretend to be another? For I am charged with heavy tidings for you. ⁷ Go, tell Jeroboam, “Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel: Because I exalted you from among the people, made you leader over my people Israel, ⁸ and tore the kingdom away from the house of David to give it to you; yet you have not been like my servant David, who kept my commandments and followed me with all his heart, doing only that which was right in my sight, ⁹ but you have done evil above all those who were before you and have gone and made for yourself other gods, and cast images, provoking me to anger, and have thrust me behind your back; ¹⁰ therefore, I will bring evil upon the house of Jeroboam. I will cut off from Jeroboam every male, both bond and free in Israel, and will consume the house of Jeroboam, just as one burns up dung until it is all gone. ¹¹ Anyone belonging to Jeroboam who dies in the city, the dogs shall eat; and anyone who dies in the open country, the birds of the air shall eat; for the LORD has spoken.” ¹² Therefore set out, go to your house. When your feet enter the city, the child shall die. ¹³ All Israel shall mourn for him and bury him; for he alone of Jeroboam’s family shall come to the grave, because in him there is found something pleasing to the LORD, the God of Israel, in the house of Jeroboam. ¹⁴ Moreover the LORD will raise up for himself a king over Israel, who shall cut off the house of Jeroboam today, even right now!^a

¹⁵ “The LORD will strike Israel, as a reed is shaken in the water; he will root up Israel out of this good land that he gave to their ancestors, and scatter them beyond the Euphrates, because they have made their sacred poles,^b provoking the LORD to anger. ¹⁶ He will give Israel up because of the sins of Jeroboam, which he sinned and which he caused Israel to commit.”

¹⁷ Then Jeroboam’s wife got up and went away, and she came to Tirzah. As she came to the threshold of the house, the child died. ¹⁸ All Israel buried him and mourned for him, according to the word of the LORD, which he spoke by his servant the prophet Ahijah.

¹⁹ Now the rest of the acts of Jeroboam, how he warred and how he reigned, are written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Israel. ²⁰ The time that Jeroboam reigned was twenty-two years; then he slept with his ancestors, and his son Nadab succeeded him.

²¹ Now Rehoboam son of Solomon reigned in Judah. Rehoboam was forty-one years old when he began to reign, and he reigned seventeen years in Jerusalem, the city that the LORD had chosen out of all the tribes of Israel, to put his name there. His mother’s name was Naamah the Ammonite. ²² Judah did what was evil in the sight of the LORD; they provoked him to jealousy with their sins that they committed, more than all that their ancestors had done. ²³ For they also built for themselves high places, pillars, and sacred poles^b on every high hill and under every green tree; ²⁴ there were also male temple prostitutes in the land. They committed all the abominations of the nations that the LORD drove out before the people of Israel.

²⁵ In the fifth year of King Rehoboam, King Shishak of Egypt came up against Jerusalem; ²⁶ he took away the treasures of the house

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Heb Asherim

as ruler over Israel (11.29–31). 6–11: Ahijah first delivers an oracle about the fall of Jeroboam’s dynasty. 14: An allusion to the conspiracy of Baasha (15.27–30). 15–16: A prophecy of the fall of the Northern Kingdom. 15: Ancestors, lit. “fathers,” the generation of the entry into the land; beyond the Euphrates, allusion to the Assyrian empire, which annexed the Northern Kingdom and deported parts of its population in 722 BCE. The sacred poles are symbols of the goddess Asherah, who may have also been venerated as the consort of the God of Israel. 16: The sins of Jeroboam, see 12.25–33n. 17–18: The mention of Tirzah (probably Tell el-Far’ah, ca. 6 mi [10 km] north-northeast of Shechem) suggests that it had become Jeroboam’s city of residence. According to 15.21 it became Israel’s capital (for a short time) under Baasha. 19–20: A standard conclusion for the reign of each king (see Introduction). 21–31: The reign of Rehoboam is not much better than that of Jeroboam; the description of the disorder in worship is very close to what is reported from the north. 23: Pillars are phallus-shaped standing stones, used in fertility rituals. These rituals were celebrated on high hills and under green trees (see also Jer 2.20), which also symbolized fertility. 24: Temple prostitutes, “lit. “holy person.” The term is probably a of the LORD and the treasures of the king's house; he took everything. He also took away all the shields of gold that Solomon had made;²⁷ so King Rehoboam made shields of bronze instead, and committed them to the hands of the officers of the guard, who kept the door of the king's house.²⁸ As often as the king went into the house of the LORD, the guard carried them and brought them back to the guardroom.

²⁹ Now the rest of the acts of Rehoboam, and all that he did, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Judah?

³⁰ There was war between Rehoboam and Jeroboam continually.³¹ Rehoboam slept with his ancestors and was buried with his ancestors in the city of David. His mother's name was Naamah the Ammonite. His son Abijam succeeded him.

15 Now in the eighteenth year of King Jeroboam son of Nebat, Abijam began to reign over Judah.² He reigned for three years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Maacah daughter of Abishalom.³ He committed all the sins that his father did before him; his heart was not true to the LORD his God, like the heart of his father David.⁴ Nevertheless for David's sake the LORD his God gave him a lamp in Jerusalem, setting up his son after him, and establishing Jerusalem;⁵ because David did what was right in the sight of the LORD, and did not turn aside from anything that he commanded him all the days of his life, except in the matter of Uriah the Hittite.

⁶ The war begun between Rehoboam and Jeroboam continued all the days of his life.

⁷ The rest of the acts of Abijam, and all that he did, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Judah? There was war between Abijam and Jeroboam.⁸ Abijam slept with his ancestors, and they buried him in the city of David. Then his son Asa succeeded him.

⁹ In the twentieth year of King Jeroboam of Israel, Asa began to reign over Judah;

¹⁰ he reigned forty-one years in Jerusalem.

His mother's name was Maacah daughter of Abishalom.¹¹ Asa did what was right in the sight of the LORD, as his father David had done.¹² He put away the male temple prostitutes out of the land, and removed all the idols that his ancestors had made.

¹³ He also removed his mother Maacah from being queen mother, because she had made an abominable image for Asherah; Asa cut down her image and burned it at the Wadi Kidron.¹⁴ But the high places were not taken away. Nevertheless the heart of Asa was true to the LORD all his days.¹⁵ He brought into the house of the LORD the votive gifts of his father and his own votive gifts—silver, gold, and utensils.

¹⁶ There was war between Asa and King Baasha of Israel all their days.¹⁷ King Baasha of Israel went up against Judah, and built Ramah, to prevent anyone from going out or

euphemism for a prostitute; scholars debate whether some form of ritual prostitution is meant. 25–28: Pharaoh Shishak's (see 11.40) campaign to the north is also attested in Egyptian sources that mention many locations in the Northern Kingdom but not Jerusalem. 30: Wars will frequently occur between Israel and Judah.

15.1–24: Abijam and Asa, kings of Judah. From this point until the fall of the Northern Kingdom, the accession year of each Judean king is dated with respect to the year of reign of the northern king. 1–8: Abijam (called Abijah in the books of Chronicles), a king who reigned for a short time (ca. 911–908 BCE) is said to be as bad as Rehoboam. 2: His mother was probably the daughter or granddaughter of David's son Absalom, whose mother's name was Maacah. (See 2 Sam 3.3; 2 Chr 11.20. 2 Chr 13.2 gives a different name). 4: The LORD maintains the dynasty only because of David; the lamp (see 11.36) or "light" symbolizes the living representative of the house of David. 5: The matter of Uriah the Hittite, see 2 Sam 11–12. 9–24: In contrast to Abijam, Asa is depicted as a good king with one of the longest reigns (ca. 907–867 BCE). 10–15: If the Maacah here is identical with the one mentioned in 15.2, then Asa would be Abijam's brother, and not his son (v. 8). Perhaps mother is a title for queen mother, who would remain in power as long as she lived; Maacah's removal from that office strengthens this hypothesis. According to the Deuteronomistic authors of Kings, Asa is the first reforming king, who acts against the syncretistic and idolatrous worship in Jerusalem. 12: Male temple prostitutes, see 14.24n. 14: Nevertheless he does not remove the high places, although he favored the Jerusalem Temple by transferring to it votive gifts presumably offered at other sanctuaries. 16–22: Military hostilities between Asa and the northern usurper Baasha, whose reign is related later in 15.27–30 and 15.33–16.7. 17: Baasha conquered Ramah (6 mi [10 coming in to King Asa of Judah. ¹⁸Then Asa took all the silver and the gold that were left in the treasures of the house of the LORD and the treasures of the king's house, and gave them into the hands of his servants. King Asa sent them to King Ben-hadad son of Tabrimmon son of Hezion of Aram, who resided in Damascus, saying, ¹⁹“Let there be an alliance between me and you, like that between my father and your father: I am sending you a present of silver and gold; go, break your alliance with King Baasha of Israel, so that he may withdraw from me.” ²⁰Ben-hadad listened to King Asa, and sent the commanders of his armies against the cities of Israel. He conquered Ijon, Dan, Abel-beth-maacah, and all Chinneroth, with all the land of Naphtali. ²¹When Baasha heard of it, he stopped building Ramah and lived in Tirzah. ²²Then King Asa made a proclamation to all Judah, none was exempt: they carried away the stones of Ramah and its timber, with which Baasha had been building; with them King Asa built Geba of Benjamin and Mizpah. ²³Now the rest of all the acts of Asa, all his power, all that he did, and the cities that he built, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Judah? But in his old age he was diseased in his feet. ²⁴Then Asa slept with his ancestors, and was buried with his ancestors in the city of his father David; his son Jehoshaphat succeeded him.

²⁵Nadab son of Jeroboam began to reign over Israel in the second year of King Asa of Judah; he reigned over Israel two years. ²⁶He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, walking in the way of his ancestor and in the sin that he caused Israel to commit.

²⁷Baasha son of Ahijah, of the house of Issachar, conspired against him; and Baasha struck him down at Gibbethon, which belonged to the Philistines; for Nadab and all Israel were laying siege to Gibbethon. ²⁸So Baasha killed Nadab^a in the third year of King Asa of Judah, and succeeded him. ²⁹As soon as he was king, he killed all the house of Jeroboam; he left to the house of Jeroboam not one that breathed, until he had destroyed it, according to the word of the LORD that he spoke by his servant Ahijah the Shilonite—³⁰because of the sins of Jeroboam that he committed and that he caused Israel to commit, and because of the anger to which he provoked the LORD, the God of Israel.

³¹Now the rest of the acts of Nadab, and all that he did, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Israel? ³²There was war between Asa and King Baasha of Israel all their days.

³³In the third year of King Asa of Judah, Baasha son of Ahijah began to reign over all Israel at Tirzah; he reigned twenty-four years. ³⁴He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, walking in the way of Jeroboam and in the sin that he caused Israel to commit.

16 The word of the LORD came to Jehu son of Hanani against Baasha, saying, ²“Since I exalted you out of the dust and km] north of Jerusalem) located in the territory of Benjamin and fortified it in order to use it as a border citadel against Judah. 18–19: Asa is forced to make an alliance against Baasha with King Ben-hadad of Damascus. 20–21: Ben-hadad is convinced by the important gifts and conquers important locations in the north of Israel. Ijon, Dan, at the headwaters of Jordan; Abel-beth-maacah, 5 mi (8 km) west of Dan. Chinneroth, the land between the mountains and the lake of Galilee. All these territories belonged to Naphtali. 22–24: Asa uses the material that Baasha had brought to Ramah and builds two border fortresses in the north of Benjamin because he wants to stress that it belongs to Judah: Geba and Mizpah. The latter means “look-out post”; it designates a town 8 mi (13 km) north of Jerusalem, which became an important administrative center after the fall of Jerusalem in 586 BCE (see 2 Kings 25.22). 23–24: The note about the king's disease of the feet, perhaps a euphemism for the genitals, may come from the royal archives. This could mean that his son Jehoshaphat (22.41) governed during the last years of Asa's life.

^a Heb him

15.25–16.34: The northern kings from Nadab to Ahab. 15.25–32: The authors provide little precise information about Nadab (ca. 907–906 BCE) and make him as evil as Jeroboam. 27–28: He is killed by Baasha, an officer from the tribe of Issachar, during the siege of the Philistine town Gibbethon, just west of Gezer. 29–30: The extermination of the whole family of Jeroboam fulfills the prophetic oracle against the house of Jeroboam in 14.7–14. 15.33–16.7: Baasha (ca. 906–883 BCE) established Tirzah (see 14.17) as the capital of the Northern King-made you leader over my people Israel, and you have walked in the way of Jeroboam, and have caused my people Israel to sin, provoking me to anger with their sins,³ therefore, I will consume Baasha and his house, and I will make your house like the house of Jeroboam son of Nebat.⁴ Anyone belonging to Baasha who dies in the city the dogs shall eat; and anyone of his who dies in the field the birds of the air shall eat.”

⁵ Now the rest of the acts of Baasha, what he did, and his power, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Israel?

⁶ Baasha slept with his ancestors, and was buried at Tirzah; and his son Elah succeeded him.⁷ Moreover the word of the LORD came by the prophet Jehu son of Hanani against Baasha and his house, both because of all the evil that he did in the sight of the LORD, provoking him to anger with the work of his hands, in being like the house of Jeroboam, and also because he destroyed it.

⁸ In the twenty-sixth year of King Asa of Judah, Elah son of Baasha began to reign over Israel in Tirzah; he reigned two years.

⁹ But his servant Zimri, commander of half his chariots, conspired against him. When he was at Tirzah, drinking himself drunk in the house of Arza, who was in charge of the palace at Tirzah,¹⁰ Zimri came in and struck him down and killed him, in the twenty-seventh year of King Asa of Judah, and succeeded him.

¹¹ When he began to reign, as soon as he had seated himself on his throne, he killed all the house of Baasha; he did not leave him a single male of his kindred or his friends.

¹² Thus Zimri destroyed all the house of Baa-

sha, according to the word of the LORD, which he spoke against Baasha by the prophet Jehu—¹³ because of all the sins of Baasha and the sins of his son Elah that they committed, and that they caused Israel to commit, provoking the LORD God of Israel to anger with their idols.¹⁴ Now the rest of the acts of Elah, and all that he did, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Israel?

¹⁵ In the twenty-seventh year of King Asa of Judah, Zimri reigned seven days in Tirzah. Now the troops were encamped against Gibbethon, which belonged to the Philistines,¹⁶ and the troops who were encamped heard it said, “Zimri has conspired, and he has killed the king”; therefore all Israel made Omri, the commander of the army, king over Israel that day in the camp.¹⁷ So Omri went up from Gibbethon, and all Israel with him, and they besieged Tirzah.¹⁸ When Zimri saw that the city was taken, he went into the citadel of the king’s house; he burned down the king’s house over himself with fire, and died—¹⁹ because of the sins that he committed, doing evil in the sight of the LORD, walking in the way of Jeroboam, and for the sin that he committed, causing Israel to sin.²⁰ Now the rest of the acts of Zimri, and the conspiracy that he made, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Israel?

²¹ Then the people of Israel were divided into two parts; half of the people followed Tibni son of Ginath, to make him king, and half followed Omri.²² But the people who followed Omri overcame the people who followed Tibni son of Ginath; so Tibni died, and Omri became king.²³ In the thirty-first year of King Asa of Judah, Omri began to reign over dom, until Omri moved it to Samaria (16.24). 16.1–4: The divine oracle by the otherwise unknown prophet Jehu (not to be confused with the later King Jehu) announces to Baasha, who walked in the way of Jeroboam (15.34), the end of his dynasty, as did the prophet Ahijah to Jeroboam (14.7–14). 8–14: Baasha’s son Elah (ca. 883–882 BCE) has a very short reign since he is murdered by his officer Zimri during a banquet in the house of Arza, the royal chamberlain (for the title, see 4.6), who participated in the conspiracy. Like Nadab (15.29–30), Zimri exterminates all the descendants of the murdered king. 15–22: The chaotic and anarchic situation in the Northern Kingdom culminates with the reign of Zimri, which lasted only a week. During the siege of Gibbethon (see 15.27–28n.), Omri, supported by an important part of the army (“all Israel” in v. 17 is a rhetorical exaggeration) besieged Tirzah, and Zimri committed suicide to avoid the humiliation of being killed by his enemy. This section emphasizes the instability of the northern kingship, in contrast to that of Judah. 21–22: For five years there is a civil war. Omri’s claim to kingship is challenged by Tibni, who finally died—in all likelihood, he was killed. There were apparently two competing factions in the Israelite army. 23–28: The biblical authors describe Omri’s reign (ca. 882–871) briefly. The Assyrians considered Omri as one of Israel’s most important kings, referring to Israel; he reigned for twelve years, six of them in Tirzah.

²⁴ He bought the hill of Samaria from Shemer for two talents of silver; he fortified the hill, and called the city that he built, Samaria, after the name of Shemer, the owner of the hill.

²⁵ Omri did what was evil in the sight of the LORD; he did more evil than all who were before him. ²⁶ For he walked in all the way of Jeroboam son of Nebat, and in the sins that he caused Israel to commit, provoking the LORD, the God of Israel, to anger by their idols. ²⁷ Now the rest of the acts of Omri that he did, and the power that he showed, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Israel? ²⁸ Omri slept with his ancestors, and was buried in Samaria; his son Ahab succeeded him.

²⁹ In the thirty-eighth year of King Asa of Judah, Ahab son of Omri began to reign over Israel; Ahab son of Omri reigned over Israel in Samaria twenty-two years. ³⁰ Ahab son of Omri did evil in the sight of the LORD more than all who were before him.

³¹ And as if it had been a light thing for him to walk in the sins of Jeroboam son of Nebat, he took as his wife Jezebel daughter of King Ethbaal of the Sidonians, and went and served Baal, and worshiped him. ³² He erected an altar for Baal in the house of Baal, which he built in Samaria. ³³ Ahab also made a sacred pole.^a Ahab did more to provoke the anger of the LORD, the God of Israel, than had all the kings of Israel who were before him.

³⁴ In his days Hiel of Bethel built Jericho; he laid its foundation at the cost of Abiram his firstborn, and set up its gates at the cost of his youngest son Segub, according to the word of the LORD, which he spoke by Joshua son of Nun.

17 Now Elijah the Tishbite, of Tishbe^b in Gilead, said to Ahab, “As the LORD the God of Israel lives, before whom I stand, there shall be neither dew nor rain these years, except by my word.” ² The word of the LORD came to him, saying, ³ “Go from here and turn eastward, and hide yourself by the Wadi Cherith, which is east of the Jordan. ⁴ You shall drink from the wadi, and I have commanded the ravens to feed you there.” ⁵ So he went and did according to the word of the LORD; he went and lived by the Wadi

^a Heb Asherah

^b Gk: Heb of the settlers

Israel as “the land of the house of Omri” long after Omri’s descendants had ceased to rule. The name Omri is unique in Israel and may be of Amorite or Arabic origin (like Omar). 24: The only reported event of his reign is his purchase of the hill of Samaria, which became the capital of the Northern Kingdom until its fall in 722 (cf. David’s purchase of Araunah’s threshing floor in 2 Sam 24.18–25). 25–28: The rest consists of stereotypical expressions, presenting Omri as a sinner, worse than his predecessors. 29–34: The sinfulness of Israel’s kings culminates with Ahab (ca. 873–852 BCE). His name may signify “the brother of the father”; it is perhaps a throne-name indicating a coregency of the prince with his father. 31: The authors sharply condemn his marriage with Jezebel, a Phoenician princess. Her name includes a title of the Canaanite god Baal (“zebul”), revocalized to hint at dung (“zebel”). Her father Ethbaal is documented by nonbiblical sources as king of Tyre (for Sidon as a general term, see 6.6n.). 32–33: Ahab introduces the worship of Baal into the Northern Kingdom. Baal is not a proper name but a title (“lord, master”) given in the Levant to the weather-god who brought rain and fertility to the land. Nevertheless the names of his children all contain the name of the god of Israel. 34: See Josh 6.26. Archeological evidence for an occupation of Jericho during the monarchic period points to the seventh century BCE. At the cost of . . . his firstborn . . . his youngest son may mean human sacrifices at the occasion of the foundation of an important building. Another possibility is to see the death of Hiel’s children as the consequence of Joshua’s curse upon the rebuilding of the ruins of Jericho.

17–21. Elijah. Most of the narratives about the prophet Elijah (1 Kings 17–21) are inserted in account of the reign of Ahab, whose death is related in 22.37–40. The final Elijah narratives take place during the reign of Ahaziah (2 Kings 1–2).

17:1–18.46: The prophet Elijah and the drought. 17:1–6: Elijah comes from Tishbe, a town north of the Jabbok River in Gilead in Transjordan. Elijah’s name (which means “My god is the LORD”) may reflect his theological program, since he will fight against the worship of Baal. 1: The LORD’s bringing a drought upon the land shows that he is the real weather-god instead of Baal. 2–5: Following a divine order Elijah escapes the famine and dwells

Places associated with the Elijah narratives. The dashed line shows the approximate boundaries between Israel, Judah and Philistia.

Cherith, which is east of the Jordan. ⁶The ravens brought him bread and meat in the morning, and bread and meat in the evening; and he drank from the wadi. ⁷But after a while the wadi dried up, because there was no rain in the land.

⁸Then the word of the LORD came to him, saying, ⁹“Go now to Zarephath, which belongs to Sidon, and live there; for I have commanded a widow there to feed you.” ¹⁰So he set out and went to Zarephath. When he came to the gate of the town, a widow was there gathering sticks; he called to her and said, “Bring me a little water in a vessel, so that I may drink.”

¹¹As she was going to bring it, he called to her and said, “Bring me a morsel of bread in your hand.” ¹²But she said, “As the LORD your God lives, I have nothing baked, only a handful of meal in a jar, and a little oil in a jug; I am now gathering a couple of sticks, so that I may go home and prepare it for myself and my son, that we may eat it, and die.” ¹³Elijah said to her,

at the Wadi Cherith, an unidentified brook east of the Jordan. 6: The feeding of the hero by animals is a frequent motif in folktales. Ravens are known as always hungry and eating rotten flesh. Paradoxically, they provide meat for Elijah. 7–16: Elijah has to go north. 9: Zarephath (10 mi [16 km] south of Sidon) is in Phoenician territory, the heartland of Baal-worship. Elijah’s miracle shows that the God of Israel alone can provide food and life. 12: Meal

“Do not be afraid; go and do as you have said; but first make me a little cake of it and bring it to me, and afterwards make something for yourself and your son.”¹⁴ For thus says the LORD the God of Israel: The jar of meal will not be emptied and the jug of oil will not fail until the day that the LORD sends rain on the earth.”¹⁵ She went and did as Elijah said, so that she as well as he and her household ate for many days.¹⁶ The jar of meal was not emptied, neither did the jug of oil fail, according to the word of the LORD that he spoke by Elijah.

¹⁷ After this the son of the woman, the mistress of the house, became ill; his illness was so severe that there was no breath left in him.¹⁸ She then said to Elijah, “What have you against me, O man of God? You have come to me to bring my sin to remembrance, and to cause the death of my son!”¹⁹ But he said to her, “Give me your son.” He took him from her bosom, carried him up into the upper chamber where he was lodging, and laid him on his own bed.²⁰ He cried out to the LORD, “O LORD my God, have you brought calamity even upon the widow with whom I am staying, by killing her son?”²¹ Then he stretched himself upon the child three times, and cried out to the LORD, “O LORD my God, let this child’s life come into him again.”²² The LORD listened to the voice of Elijah; the life of the child came into him again, and he revived.²³ Elijah took the child, brought him down from the upper chamber into the house, and gave him to his mother; then Elijah said, “See, your son is alive.”²⁴ So the woman said to Elijah, “Now I know that you are a man of God, and that the word of the LORD in your mouth is truth.”

18 After many days the word of the LORD came to Elijah, in the third year of the drought,^a saying, “Go, present yourself to Ahab; I will send rain on the earth.”² So Elijah went to present himself to Ahab. The famine was severe in Samaria.³ Ahab summoned Obadiah, who was in charge of the palace. (Now Obadiah revered the LORD greatly; ⁴ when Jezebel was killing off the prophets of the LORD, Obadiah took a hundred prophets, hid them fifty to a cave, and provided them with bread and water.)⁵ Then Ahab said to Obadiah, “Go through the land to all the springs of water and to all the wadis; perhaps we may find grass to keep the horses and mules alive, and not lose some of the animals.”⁶ So they divided the land between them to pass through it; Ahab went in one direction by himself, and Obadiah went in another direction by himself.

⁷ As Obadiah was on the way, Elijah met him; Obadiah recognized him, fell on his face, and said, “Is it you, my lord Elijah?”⁸ He answered him, “It is I. Go, tell your lord that Elijah is here.”⁹ And he said, “How have I sinned, that you would hand your servant over to Ahab, to kill me?”¹⁰ As the LORD your God lives, there is no nation or kingdom to which my lord has not sent to seek you; and when they would say, ‘He is not here,’ he would require an oath of the kingdom or nation, that they had not found you.¹¹ But now you say, ‘Go, tell your lord that Elijah is here.’¹² As soon as I have gone from you, the spirit of the LORD will carry you I know not where; so, when I come and tell Ahab and he cannot find you, he will kill me, although I your servant have revered the LORD from my youth.¹³ Has it not been told my lord what I did when Jezebel killed the prophets of the LORD, how I hid a hundred of the LORD’s prophets fifty to a cave, and provided them and oil are the basic ingredients for bread. 17–24: Elijah’s revival of the widow’s son manifests again the LORD’s power. The Ugaritic Baal epic tells that during the dry summer Baal dies and comes back to life in autumn by the help of his sister. The God of Israel is not a dying God; on the contrary, his prophet is able to bring the dead back to life. 18: The woman understands the death of her son as punishment for some obscure sin. 19–23: Elijah’s lying on the dead boy has a parallel in a similar story about Elisha in 2 Kings 4.34. It reflects a magical conception of transferring life into a dead body. The story emphasizes that this magic can work only if God pays attention to the voice of his prophet. 24: A foreign woman acknowledges the power of the God of Israel. 18.1–46: Now Elijah, the prophet of the LORD, directly confronts the prophets of Baal. 1–16: This confrontation is introduced by an encounter between Elijah and Obadiah, Ahab’s chamberlain. This encounter prepares the meeting between Elijah and Ahab. As Obadiah’s name (“servant of the LORD”) indicates, he is a faithful worshiper of the

^a Heb lacks of the drought

with bread and water? ¹⁴ Yet now you say, ‘Go, tell your lord that Elijah is here’; he will surely kill me.” ¹⁵ Elijah said, “As the LORD of hosts lives, before whom I stand, I will surely show myself to him today.” ¹⁶ So Obadiah went to meet Ahab, and told him; and Ahab went to meet Elijah.

¹⁷ When Ahab saw Elijah, Ahab said to him, “Is it you, you troubler of Israel?” ¹⁸ He answered, “I have not troubled Israel; but you have, and your father’s house, because you have forsaken the commandments of the LORD and followed the Baals. ¹⁹ Now therefore have all Israel assemble for me at Mount Carmel, with the four hundred fifty prophets of Baal and the four hundred prophets of Asherah, who eat at Jezebel’s table.”

²⁰ So Ahab sent to all the Israelites, and assembled the prophets at Mount Carmel. ²¹ Elijah then came near to all the people, and said, “How long will you go limping with two different opinions? If the LORD is God, follow him; but if Baal, then follow him.” The people did not answer him a word. ²² Then Elijah said to the people, “I, even I only, am left a prophet of the LORD; but Baal’s prophets number four hundred fifty. ²³ Let two bulls be given to us; let them choose one bull for themselves, cut it in pieces, and lay it on the wood, but put no fire to it; I will prepare the other bull and lay it on the wood, but put no fire to it. ²⁴ Then you call on the name of your god and I will call on the name of the LORD; the god who answers by fire is indeed God.” All the people answered, “Well spoken!” ²⁵ Then Elijah said to the prophets of Baal, “Choose for yourselves one bull and prepare it first, for you are many; then call on the name of your god, but put no fire to it.” ²⁶ So they took the bull that was given them, prepared it, and called on the name of Baal from morning until noon, crying, “O Baal, answer us!” But there was no voice, and no answer. They limped about the altar that they had made. ²⁷ At noon Elijah mocked them, saying, “Cry aloud! Surely he is a god; either he is meditating, or he has wandered away, or he is on a journey, or perhaps he is asleep and must be awakened.” ²⁸ Then they cried aloud and, as was their custom, they cut themselves with swords and lances until the blood gushed out over them. ²⁹ As midday passed, they raved on until the time of the offering of the oblation, but there was no voice, no answer, and no response.

³⁰ Then Elijah said to all the people, “Come closer to me”; and all the people came closer to him. First he repaired the altar of the LORD that had been thrown down; ³¹ Elijah took twelve stones, according to the number of the tribes of the sons of Jacob, to whom the word of the LORD came, saying, “Israel shall be your name”; ³² with the stones he built an altar in the name of the LORD. Then he made a trench around the altar, large enough to contain two measures of seed. ³³ Next he put the wood in order, cut the bull in pieces, and laid it on the wood. He said, “Fill four jars with water and pour it on the burnt offering and on the wood.” ³⁴ Then he said, “Do it a second time”; and they did it a second time. Again he said, “Do it a third time”; and they did it a third time, ³⁵ so that the water ran all around the altar, and filled the trench also with water.

God of Israel and protects God’s prophets from Ahab’s vengeful wife Jezebel. 17–20: The encounter between Ahab and Elijah prepares the way for the competition between the many prophets of Baal and the one prophet of the LORD. 17: Troubler, this word may also mean “sorcerer.” 19: The high number of the prophets of Baal (four hundred fifty) emphasizes the disproportion of forces. The four hundred prophets of Asherah, who do not appear again in the following story, have been inserted here to emphasize Ahab’s and Jezebel’s Canaanite religion. The competition is on Mount Carmel, on the coast above modern Haifa. 20: All the Israelites, a rhetorical expression, meaning the people as represented by its elders and other dignitaries. 20–24: In his harangue Elijah pretends to be the only prophet of the LORD; but see 18.4. 24: The LORD’s association with fire and lightning is well attested (Ex 19; Lev 9.24); Baal was also venerated as a god of fire and lightning. 25–29: Baal’s prophets are unsuccessful, in spite of engaging in self-laceration until the evening (the time of the offering of the oblation). Elijah’s mockery recalls the critique of idols in Deutero-Isaiah (Isa 40–55). 27: He has wandered away, a disrespectful euphemism meaning that Baal has to relieve himself. 29: They raved, lit. “they prophesied.” 30–40: Elijah prepares the revelation of the LORD by restoring or building an altar. 30–32: A sacrifice to the LORD needs to be offered on an altar. The author of these verses knows the Jacob story in Genesis and quotes Gen 35.10. 32–35: The large trench

³⁶ At the time of the offering of the oblation, the prophet Elijah came near and said, “O LORD, God of Abraham, Isaac, and Israel, let it be known this day that you are God in Israel, that I am your servant, and that I have done all these things at your bidding.

³⁷ Answer me, O LORD, answer me, so that this people may know that you, O LORD, are God, and that you have turned their hearts back.”

³⁸ Then the fire of the LORD fell and consumed the burnt offering, the wood, the stones, and the dust, and even licked up the water that was in the trench. ³⁹ When all the people saw it, they fell on their faces and said, “The LORD indeed is God; the LORD indeed is God.” ⁴⁰ Elijah said to them, “Seize the prophets of Baal; do not let one of them escape.” Then they seized them; and Elijah brought them down to the Wadi Kishon, and killed them there.

⁴¹ Elijah said to Ahab, “Go up, eat and drink; for there is a sound of rushing rain.”

⁴² So Ahab went up to eat and to drink. Elijah went up to the top of Carmel; there he bowed himself down upon the earth and put his face between his knees. ⁴³ He said to his servant, “Go up now, look toward the sea.” He went up and looked, and said, “There is nothing.” Then he said, “Go again seven times.” ⁴⁴ At the seventh time he said, “Look, a little cloud no bigger than a person’s hand is rising out of the sea.” Then he said, “Go say to Ahab, ‘Harness your chariot and go down before the rain stops you.’” ⁴⁵ In a little while the heavens grew black with clouds and wind; there was a heavy rain. Ahab rode off and went to Jezreel. ⁴⁶ But the hand of the LORD was on Elijah; he girded up his loins and ran in front of Ahab to the entrance of Jezreel.

19 Ahab told Jezebel all that Elijah had done, and how he had killed all the prophets with the sword. ² Then Jezebel sent a messenger to Elijah, saying, “So may the gods do to me, and more also, if I do not make your life like the life of one of them by this time tomorrow.” ³ Then he was afraid; he got up and fled for his life, and came to Beer-sheba, which belongs to Judah; he left his servant there.

⁴ But he himself went a day’s journey into the wilderness, and came and sat down under a solitary broom tree. He asked that he might die: “It is enough; now, O LORD, take away my life, for I am no better than my ancestors.” ⁵ Then he lay down under the broom tree and fell asleep. Suddenly an angel touched him and said to him, “Get up and eat.” ⁶ He looked, and there at his head was a cake baked on hot stones, and a jar of water. He ate and drank, and lay down again. ⁷ The angel of the LORD came a second time, touched him, and said, “Get up and eat, otherwise the journey will be too much for you.” ⁸ He got up, and ate and drank; then he went in the strength of that food forty days and forty nights to Horeb the mount of God. ⁹ At that place he came to a cave, and spent the night there.

filled with water prevents any human manipulation. 36–37: Elijah’s prayer contrasts with the ecstatic behavior of the prophets of Baal. 38–39: The LORD’s manifestation through fire leads to the people’s recognition that he is the only god. The cry “The LORD indeed is God” echoes the name of Elijah (see 17.1–6n.). 40: The killing of the prophets of Baal at Wadi Kishon, a seasonal stream at the eastern base of Mount Carmel, is shocking to modern readers (cf. the Levites killing the idolatrous people in Ex 32.27–28). 41–46: These verses conclude the drought narrative. 45: Jezreel, located in a valley ca. 25 mi (40 km) southeast of Mount Carmel, was where Ahab and Jezebel had a palace (21.1). 46: The LORD orders Elijah to go there, for the next confrontation. Miraculously, Elijah ran as fast as Ahab’s chariot.

19.1–18: Elijah at the mountain of God. 1–3: Elijah’s violence against the prophets of Baal provokes Jezebel’s violence against him, and he flees until he reaches Beer-sheba, in the very south, at the border of the Judean desert. 4–8: He goes to the wilderness, the place of death, because he wishes to die, but again the LORD nourishes him miraculously (see 17.5–6) and orders him on a long journey to Mount Horeb, an alternate name, especially in Deuteronomy, for Mount Sinai. In the following narrative Elijah is depicted as a new Moses. This is already indicated by the mention of the forty days and forty nights, which recall Moses’ sojourn on the mountain of God. 9–14: Elijah’s encounter with the LORD takes place at the cave where Moses had stood to meet the God of Israel (Ex 33.21–23). The encounter is framed by Elijah’s statement that he has been zealous for the LORD, that is, enthusiastic and exclusive in devotion to the LORD. The same word (sometimes translated “jealous”) is used

Then the word of the LORD came to him, saying, “What are you doing here, Elijah?”

¹⁰ He answered, “I have been very zealous for the LORD, the God of hosts; for the Israelites have forsaken your covenant, thrown down your altars, and killed your prophets with the sword. I alone am left, and they are seeking my life, to take it away.”

¹¹ He said, “Go out and stand on the mountain before the LORD, for the LORD is about to pass by.” Now there was a great wind, so strong that it was splitting mountains and breaking rocks in pieces before the LORD, but the LORD was not in the wind; and after the wind an earthquake, but the LORD was not in the earthquake; ¹² and after the earthquake a fire, but the LORD was not in the fire; and after the fire a sound of sheer silence.

¹³ When Elijah heard it, he wrapped his face in his mantle and went out and stood at the entrance of the cave. Then there came a voice to him that said, “What are you doing here, Elijah?” ¹⁴ He answered, “I have been very zealous for the LORD, the God of hosts; for the Israelites have forsaken your covenant, thrown down your altars, and killed your prophets with the sword. I alone am left, and they are seeking my life, to take it away.”

¹⁵ Then the LORD said to him, “Go, return on your way to the wilderness of Damascus; when you arrive, you shall anoint Hazael as king over Aram. ¹⁶ Also you shall anoint Jehu son of Nimshi as king over Israel; and you shall anoint Elisha son of Shaphat of Abel-meholah as prophet in your place. ¹⁷ Whoever escapes from the sword of Hazael, Jehu shall kill; and whoever escapes from the sword of Jehu, Elisha shall kill. ¹⁸ Yet I will leave seven thousand in Israel, all the knees that have not bowed to Baal, and every mouth that has not kissed him.”

¹⁹ So he set out from there, and found Elisha son of Shaphat, who was plowing. There were twelve yoke of oxen ahead of him, and he was with the twelfth. Elijah passed by him and threw his mantle over him. ²⁰ He left the oxen, ran after Elijah, and said, “Let me kiss my father and my mother, and then I will follow you.” Then Elijah^a said to him, “Go back again; for what have I done to you?” ²¹ He returned from following him, took the yoke of oxen, and slaughtered them; using the equipment from the oxen, he boiled their flesh, and gave it to the people, and they ate. Then he set out and followed Elijah, and became his servant.

20 King Ben-hadad of Aram gathered all his army together; thirty-two kings were with him, along with horses and chariots. He marched against Samaria, laid siege to it, and attacked it. ² Then he sent messengers into the city to King Ahab of Israel, and said to him: “Thus says Ben-hadad: ³ Your silver and gold are mine; your fairest wives and children also are mine.” ⁴ The king of Israel answered, “As you say, my lord, O king, I am yours, and all that I have.” ⁵ The messengers came again and said: “Thus says Ben-hadad: I to describe God. 10–13: This unexpected divine manifestation can be understood as a critique of the common idea that God has to reveal himself spectacularly by wind, earthquake, and fire (see Ex 19.16–18; Deut 4.36 and also 1 Kings 18). Here God comes to Elijah in sheer silence, in a barely audible whisper. The author of this narrative was probably polemicizing against the previous Carmel narrative. 15–18: The order given to Elijah to anoint Hazael as king over Aram (see 2 Kings 8.7–15), Jehu as king over Israel (2 Kings 9–10), and the prophet Elisha as his successor hints ahead to the narratives about the time after Ahab, which will also be characterized by violence. Anointing of kings by a prophet is common; a prophet anointing another prophet is unique. 15: Wilderness of Damascus, missing in the LXX, probably means the desert east of the Lake of Tiberias.

^a Heb he

19.19–21: Elisha becomes Elijah’s servant and successor. Elisha is the first of the three persons mentioned in vv. 15–18 to enter the scene. In fact, he and not Elijah will anoint Hazael and Jehu. 19: Twelve yoke of oxen: likely an allusion to the twelve tribes of Israel. Threw his mantle over him, a symbolic act, transferring Elijah’s power and abilities to his successor. 21: The burning of the yoke symbolizes Elisha’s break with his former life.

20.1–43: Wars between the Israelites and the Arameans. Elijah does not appear in this narrative. Ahab is hardly mentioned (see vv. 2,13–14), suggesting to some scholars that this story originally belonged to a later time of Israel’s history. 1–12: Ben-hadad, head of an impressive alliance (thirty-two kings, or chiefs of various tribes), besieges Samaria and tries to convince the king of Israel to become his vassal and to surrender.

sent to you, saying, ‘Deliver to me your silver and gold, your wives and children’; ⁶ nevertheless I will send my servants to you tomorrow about this time, and they shall search your house and the houses of your servants, and lay hands on whatever pleases them,^a and take it away.”

⁷ Then the king of Israel called all the elders of the land, and said, “Look now! See how this man is seeking trouble; for he sent to me for my wives, my children, my silver, and my gold; and I did not refuse him.” ⁸ Then all the elders and all the people said to him, “Do not listen or consent.” ⁹ So he said to the messengers of Ben-hadad, “Tell my lord the king: All that you first demanded of your servant I will do; but this thing I cannot do.” The messengers left and brought him word again. ¹⁰ Ben-hadad sent to him and said, “The gods do so to me, and more also, if the dust of Samaria will provide a handful for each of the people who follow me.” ¹¹ The king of Israel answered, “Tell him: One who puts on armor should not brag like one who takes it off.” ¹² When Ben-hadad heard this message—now he had been drinking with the kings in the booths—he said to his men, “Take your positions!” And they took their positions against the city.

¹³ Then a certain prophet came up to King Ahab of Israel and said, “Thus says the LORD, Have you seen all this great multitude? Look, I will give it into your hand today; and you shall know that I am the LORD.” ¹⁴ Ahab said, “By whom?” He said, “Thus says the LORD, By the young men who serve the district governors.” Then he said, “Who shall begin the battle?” He answered, “You.” ¹⁵ Then he mustered the young men who served the district governors, two hundred thirty-two; after them he mustered all the people of Israel, seven thousand.

¹⁶ They went out at noon, while Ben-hadad was drinking himself drunk in the booths, he and the thirty-two kings allied with him.

¹⁷ The young men who served the district governors went out first. Ben-hadad had sent out scouts,^b and they reported to him, “Men have come out from Samaria.” ¹⁸ He said, “If they have come out for peace, take them alive; if they have come out for war, take them alive.”

¹⁹ But these had already come out of the city: the young men who served the district governors, and the army that followed them. ²⁰ Each killed his man; the Arameans fled and Israel pursued them, but King Ben-hadad of Aram escaped on a horse with the cavalry. ²¹ The king of Israel went out, attacked the horses and chariots, and defeated the Arameans with a great slaughter.

²² Then the prophet approached the king of Israel and said to him, “Come, strengthen yourself, and consider well what you have to do; for in the spring the king of Aram will come up against you.”

²³ The servants of the king of Aram said to him, “Their gods are gods of the hills, and so they were stronger than we; but let us fight against them in the plain, and surely we shall be stronger than they.” ²⁴ Also do this: remove the kings, each from his post, and put commanders in place of them; ²⁵ and muster an army like the army that you have lost, horse for horse, and chariot for chariot; then we will fight against them in the plain, and surely we shall be stronger than they.” He heeded their voice, and did so.

²⁶ In the spring Ben-hadad mustered the Arameans and went up to Aphek to fight against Israel. ²⁷ After the Israelites had been mustered

^a Gk.Syr Vg: Heb you

^b Heb lacks scouts

11: Ahab quotes a popular aphorism, warning Ben-hadad against too much confidence about his power. 13–15: Through an anonymous prophet, the LORD announces to the king of Israel that he will provide for the victory against the Arameans. 13: I will give it into your hand, a common expression to express divine assistance in war. 14–15: Young men, unmarried soldiers. District, a word normally used of the provinces of the Persian Empire (e.g., Ezra 2.1; Dan 8.2). 16–21: Attacking at an unexpected time, at noon, when the besiegers were relaxing and even drunk, the Israelite army defeats the Arameans. 22–34: Ben-hadad does not give up. 22–25: He reorganizes his army in order to attack Israel in the spring (after his autumn defeat). 23: Their gods are gods of the hills, or “their god is a god of the hills.” It is not clear if the Arameans think that the Israelites worship several mountain gods, or only the LORD. The origin of the Israelites is indeed in the mountains of Israel. 26–30: The battle takes place at Aphek, probably situated east of the Lake of Galilee. 28: An anony-

and provisioned, they went out to engage them; the people of Israel encamped opposite them like two little flocks of goats, while the Arameans filled the country.²⁸ A man of God approached and said to the king of Israel, “Thus says the LORD: Because the Arameans have said, ‘The LORD is a god of the hills but he is not a god of the valleys,’ therefore I will give all this great multitude into your hand, and you shall know that I am the LORD.”²⁹ They encamped opposite one another seven days. Then on the seventh day the battle began; the Israelites killed one hundred thousand Aramean foot soldiers in one day.³⁰ The rest fled into the city of Aphek; and the wall fell on twenty-seven thousand men that were left.

Ben-hadad also fled, and entered the city to hide.³¹ His servants said to him, “Look, we have heard that the kings of the house of Israel are merciful kings; let us put sackcloth around our waists and ropes on our heads, and go out to the king of Israel; perhaps he will spare your life.”³² So they tied sackcloth around their waists, put ropes on their heads, went to the king of Israel, and said, “Your servant Ben-hadad says, ‘Please let me live.’” And he said, “Is he still alive? He is my brother.”³³ Now the men were watching for an omen; they quickly took it up from him and said, “Yes, Ben-hadad is your brother.” Then he said, “Go and bring him.” So Ben-hadad came out to him; and he had him come up into the chariot.³⁴ Ben-hadad^a said to him, “I will restore the towns that my father took from your father; and you may establish bazaars for yourself in Damascus, as my father did in Samaria.” The king of Israel responded,^b “I will let you go on those terms.” So he made a treaty with him and let him go.

³⁵ At the command of the LORD a certain member of a company of prophets^c said to another, “Strike me!” But the man refused to strike him.³⁶ Then he said to him, “Because you have not obeyed the voice of the LORD, as soon as you have left me, a lion will kill you.” And when he had left him, a lion met him and killed him.³⁷ Then he found another man and said, “Strike me!” So the man hit him, striking and wounding him.³⁸ Then the prophet departed, and waited for the king along the road, disguising himself with a bandage over his eyes.³⁹ As the king passed by, he cried to the king and said, “Your servant went out into the thick of the battle; then a soldier turned and brought a man to me, and said, ‘Guard this man; if he is missing, your life shall be given for his life, or else you shall pay a talent of silver.’”⁴⁰ While your servant was busy here and there, he was gone.” The king of Israel said to him, “So shall your judgment be; you yourself have decided it.”⁴¹ Then he quickly took the bandage away from his eyes. The king of Israel recognized him as one of the prophets.⁴² Then he said to him, “Thus says the LORD, ‘Because you have let the man go whom I had devoted to destruction, therefore your life shall be for his life, and your people for his people.’”⁴³ The king of Israel set out toward home, resentful and sullen, and came to Samaria.

21 Later the following events took place: Naboth the Jezreelite had a vineyard in Jezreel, beside the palace of King Ahab of Samaria.² And Ahab said to Naboth, “Give me your vineyard, so that I may have it for a vegetable garden, because it is near my

^a Heb He

^b Heb lacks The king of Israel responded

^c Heb of the sons of the prophets

mous prophet confirms the saying of the Arameans: the LORD is a god of the hills (see v. 23). 29–30: The outcome recalls the battle of Jericho in Josh 6: on the seventh day the Israelites win the battle, and the wall of Aphek, where the Arameans have fled, falls down. 30–34: Ben-hadad has no other choice than to offer a treaty to the king of Israel. 32–33: Brother here connotes an equal treaty partner. 34: Bazaars allow the Israelites free trade in Damascus. 35–43: This story criticizes the treaty that the king of Israel concluded with Ben-hadad. A member of a prophetic guild, who pretends to have been wounded during the war, confounds the king with an invented case (like Nathan in 2 Sam 12.1–7) in order to denounce the king’s action as contrary to God’s will. 36: A lion . . . killed him, recalling the prophetic story in 13.24. 39: A talent of silver (about 75 lb [34 kg]) was an exorbitant price and impossible to pay unless one was very wealthy. 42: Cf. 1 Sam 15.

21.1–29: Naboth’s vineyard. 1–4: Naboth of Jezreel, where Ahab had a winter palace, refuses to sell his land to the king, because he does not want to alienate the property of his clan (cf. Lev 25.8–34). The story shows how house; I will give you a better vineyard for it; or, if it seems good to you, I will give you its value in money.”³ But Naboth said to Ahab, “The LORD forbid that I should give you my ancestral inheritance.”⁴ Ahab went home resentful and sullen because of what Naboth the Jezreelite had said to him; for he had said, “I will not give you my ancestral inheritance.” He lay down on his bed, turned away his face, and would not eat.

⁵ His wife Jezebel came to him and said, “Why are you so depressed that you will not eat?”⁶ He said to her, “Because I spoke to Naboth the Jezreelite and said to him, ‘Give me your vineyard for money; or else, if you prefer, I will give you another vineyard for it’; but he answered, ‘I will not give you my vineyard.’”⁷ His wife Jezebel said to him, “Do you now govern Israel? Get up, eat some food, and be cheerful; I will give you the vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite.”

⁸ So she wrote letters in Ahab’s name and sealed them with his seal; she sent the letters to the elders and the nobles who lived with Naboth in his city.⁹ She wrote in the letters, “Proclaim a fast, and seat Naboth at the head of the assembly; ¹⁰ seat two scoundrels opposite him, and have them bring a charge against him, saying, ‘You have cursed God and the king.’ Then take him out, and stone him to death.”¹¹ The men of his city, the elders and the nobles who lived in his city, did as Jezebel had sent word to them. Just as it was written in the letters that she had sent to them,¹² they proclaimed a fast and seated Naboth at the head of the assembly.¹³ The two scoundrels came in and sat opposite him; and the scoundrels brought a charge against Naboth, in the presence of the people, saying, “Naboth cursed God and the king.” So they took him outside the city, and stoned him to death.¹⁴ Then they sent to Jezebel, saying, “Naboth has been stoned; he is dead.”

¹⁵ As soon as Jezebel heard that Naboth had been stoned and was dead, Jezebel said to Ahab, “Go, take possession of the vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite, which he refused to give you for money; for Naboth is not alive, but dead.”¹⁶ As soon as Ahab heard that Naboth was dead, Ahab set out to go down to the vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite, to take possession of it.

¹⁷ Then the word of the LORD came to Elijah the Tishbite, saying: ¹⁸ Go down to meet King Ahab of Israel, who rules^a in Samaria; he is now in the vineyard of Naboth, where he has gone to take possession. ¹⁹ You shall say to him, “Thus says the LORD: Have you killed, and also taken possession?” You shall say to him, “Thus says the LORD: In the place where dogs licked up the blood of Naboth, dogs will also lick up your blood.”

²⁰ Ahab said to Elijah, “Have you found me, O my enemy?” He answered, “I have found you. Because you have sold yourself to do what is evil in the sight of the LORD, ²¹ I will bring disaster on you; I will consume you, and will cut off from Ahab every male, bond or free, in Israel; ²² and I will make your house like the house of Jeroboam son of Nebat, and like the house of Baasha son of Ahijah, because you have provoked me to anger and have caused Israel to sin. ²³ Also concerning Jezebel the LORD said, ‘The dogs shall eat Jezebel within the bounds of Jezreel.’ ²⁴ Anyone belonging to Ahab who dies in the city the dogs shall eat; and anyone of his who dies in the open country the birds of the air shall eat.”

²⁵ (Indeed, there was no one like Ahab, who sold himself to do what was evil in the sight of the LORD, urged on by his wife Jezebel. ²⁶ He acted most abominably in going after idols, as the Amorites had a free man is able to resist the king. 5–14: Like David, who sent a letter to his commander in order to get rid of Uriah (2 Sam 11:14–15), Jezebel sends letters to the elders and nobles in order to have Naboth executed with a false accusation. 10: Scoundrels, lit. “sons of worthlessness.” 15–16: Apparently the king could claim the possessions of a man who had been condemned to death. 17–29: Despite the fact that it was Jezebel who took the initiative to kill Naboth, the LORD sends Elijah to confront Ahab. 18: According to this verse the incident transpired in Samaria and not in Jezreel. 23–24: The dogs shall eat . . ., dogs were considered unclean animals. The absence of a proper burial place is one of the worst curses in the Bible (e.g., Deut 28.26; Jer 34.20) and other ancient done, whom the LORD drove out before the Israelites.)

^a Heb who is

²⁷When Ahab heard those words, he tore his clothes and put sackcloth over his bare flesh; he fasted, lay in the sackcloth, and went about dejectedly. ²⁸Then the word of the LORD came to Elijah the Tishbite: ²⁹“Have you seen how Ahab has humbled himself before me? Because he has humbled himself before me, I will not bring the disaster in his days; but in his son’s days I will bring the disaster on his house.”

22 For three years Aram and Israel continued without war. ²But in the third year King Jehoshaphat of Judah came down to the king of Israel. ³The king of Israel said to his servants, “Do you know that Ramoth-gilead belongs to us, yet we are doing nothing to take it out of the hand of the king of Aram?” ⁴He said to Jehoshaphat, “Will you go with me to battle at Ramoth-gilead?” Jehoshaphat replied to the king of Israel, “I am as you are; my people are your people, my horses are your horses.”

⁵But Jehoshaphat also said to the king of Israel, “Inquire first for the word of the LORD.” ⁶Then the king of Israel gathered the prophets together, about four hundred of them, and said to them, “Shall I go to battle against Ramoth-gilead, or shall I refrain?” They said, “Go up; for the LORD will give it into the hand of the king.” ⁷But Jehoshaphat said, “Is there no other prophet of the LORD here of whom we may inquire?” ⁸The king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, “There is still one other by whom we may inquire of the LORD, Micaiah son of Imlah; but I hate him, for he never prophesies anything favorable about me, but only disaster.” Jehoshaphat said, “Let the king not say such a thing.” ⁹Then the king of Israel summoned an officer and said, “Bring quickly Micaiah son of Imlah.” ¹⁰Now the king of Israel and King Jehoshaphat of Judah were sitting on their thrones, arrayed in their robes, at the threshing floor at the entrance of the gate of Samaria; and all the prophets were prophesying before them. ¹¹Zedekiah son of Chenaanah made for himself horns of iron, and he said, “Thus says the LORD: With these you shall gore the Arameans until they are destroyed.” ¹²All the prophets were prophesying the same and saying, “Go up to Ramoth-gilead and triumph; the LORD will give it into the hand of the king.”

¹³The messenger who had gone to summon Micaiah said to him, “Look, the words of the prophets with one accord are favorable to the king; let your word be like the word of one of them, and speak favorably.” ¹⁴But Micaiah said, “As the LORD lives, whatever the LORD says to me, that I will speak.”

¹⁵When he had come to the king, the king said to him, “Micaiah, shall we go to Ramoth-gilead to battle, or shall we refrain?” He answered him, “Go up and triumph; the LORD will give it into the hand of the king.” ¹⁶But the king said to him, “How many times must I make you swear to tell me nothing but the truth in the name of the LORD?” ¹⁷Then Mi-texts. 27–29: In reaction to the prophetic word Ahab adopts the traditional mourning rites so the punishment is transferred to his son Joram.

22.1–40: The campaign of Ramoth-gilead and the death of Ahab. 1–36: In this battle story, continuing ch 20, Ahab is mentioned by name only in v. 20 (see 20.1–43n.). 1–4: The beginning of the story suggests that king Jehoshaphat of Judah (see vv. 41–50) is a vassal of the Israelite king, since he has to participate in a war against the king of Aram to retrieve the fortress of Ramoth-gilead in Transjordan. 5–28: The story about the prophetic counsel interrupts the battle report that is continued in v. 29. 6: The four hundred prophets are part of the royal entourage. 7–9: Jehoshaphat asks for an independent prophet of the LORD, Micaiah son of Imlah, a prophet of doom, is not the same as the prophet Micah of the book of that name in the Twelve Minor Prophets. 1 Kings 22 (and its parallel in 2 Chr 18) is the only biblical story in which he is mentioned. It is surprising that the king of Israel does not mention the prophet Elijah in this context. 10–16: Zedekiah is the chief of the official court prophets. His symbolic action (horns of iron) is meant to bring about the king’s victory. Horns are symbols of power and strength (cf. the similar narrative in Jer 28). Micaiah’s first answer, repeating the favorable oracle, reflects either irony or that he is afraid of punishment in case of a negative oracle (see v. 24). 17–18: The second oracle describes a vision of a flock without a shepherd, namely the king, who in the ancient Near East was the shepherd of his people. 19–23: Micaiah’s second vision describes the heavenly court (see also Job

caiah^a said, “I saw all Israel scattered on the mountains, like sheep that have no shepherd; and the LORD said, ‘These have no master; let each one go home in peace.’”¹⁸ The king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, “Did I not tell you that he would not prophesy anything favorable about me, but only disaster?”

¹⁹ Then Micaiah^a said, “Therefore hear the word of the LORD: I saw the LORD sitting on his throne, with all the host of heaven standing beside him to the right and to the left of him.²⁰ And the LORD said, ‘Who will entice Ahab, so that he may go up and fall at Ramoth-gilead?’ Then one said one thing, and another said another,²¹ until a spirit came forward and stood before the LORD, saying, ‘I will entice him.’²² ‘How?’ the LORD asked him. He replied, ‘I will go out and be a lying spirit in the mouth of all his prophets.’ Then the LORD^a said, ‘You are to entice him, and you shall succeed; go out and do it.’²³ So you see, the LORD has put a lying spirit in the mouth of all these your prophets; the LORD has decreed disaster for you.”

²⁴ Then Zedekiah son of Chenaanah came up to Micaiah, slapped him on the cheek, and said, “Which way did the spirit of the LORD pass from me to speak to you?”²⁵ Micaiah replied, “You will find out on that day when you go in to hide in an inner chamber.”²⁶ The king of Israel then ordered, “Take Micaiah, and return him to Amon the governor of the city and to Joash the king’s son,²⁷ and say, ‘Thus says the king: Put this fellow in prison, and feed him on reduced rations of bread and water until I come in peace.’”²⁸ Micaiah said, “If you return in peace, the LORD has not spoken by me.” And he said, “Hear, you peoples, all of you!”

²⁹ So the king of Israel and King Jehoshaphat of Judah went up to Ramoth-gilead.³⁰ The king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, “I will disguise myself and go into battle, but you wear your robes.” So the king of Israel disguised himself and went into battle.³¹ Now the king of Aram had commanded the thirty-two captains of his chariots, “Fight with no one small or great, but only with the king of Israel.”³² When the captains of the chariots saw Jehoshaphat, they said, “It is surely the king of Israel.” So they turned to fight against him; and Jehoshaphat cried out.³³ When the captains of the chariots saw that it was not the king of Israel, they turned back from pursuing him.³⁴ But a certain man drew his bow and unknowingly struck the king of Israel between the scale armor and the breastplate; so he said to the driver of his chariot, “Turn around, and carry me out of the battle, for I am wounded.”³⁵ The battle grew hot that day, and the king was propped up in his chariot facing the Arameans, until at evening he died; the blood from the wound had flowed into the bottom of the chariot.³⁶ Then about sunset a shout went through the army, “Every man to his city, and every man to his country!”

³⁷ So the king died, and was brought to Samaria; they buried the king in Samaria.³⁸ They washed the chariot by the pool of Samaria; the dogs licked up his blood, and the prostitutes washed themselves in it,^b according to the word of the LORD that he had spoken.³⁹ Now the rest of the acts of Ahab, and all that he did, and the ivory house that he built, and all the cities that he built, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Israel?⁴⁰ So Ahab slept with his ancestors; and his son Ahaziah succeeded him.

⁴¹ Jehoshaphat son of Asa began to reign over Judah in the fourth year of King Ahab of Israel.⁴² Jehoshaphat was thirty-five years old when he began to reign, and he reigned

^a Heb he

^b Heb lacks in it

1–2). 22: The lying spirit is a member of the divine council. 24–28: The king prefers the majority view. 26: Like Jeremiah (Jer 37:15), Micaiah is kept in prison, in the house of the king's son. 29–36: The disguise of the king of Israel indicates that he is lacking faith in the victory and that he tries to avert the first vision of Micaiah. 34: But he cannot oppose God's decision and is killed in spite of his disguise. 37–40: The conclusion of Ahab's reign is described in stereotypical expressions known from other kings, except for v. 38, which alludes to Elijah's prophecy in 21:19 in which the dogs licked up his blood. The reference to the prostitutes exceeds what Elijah announced. Their obscene action makes Ahab's death even more infamous.

22.41–53: Jehoshaphat of Judah and Ahaziah of Israel. 41–50: For the redactors of the book of Kings Je-

twenty-five years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Azubah daughter of Shilhi. ⁴³He walked in all the way of his father Asa; he did not turn aside from it, doing what was right in the sight of the LORD; yet the high places were not taken away, and the people still sacrificed and offered incense on the high places. ⁴⁴Jehoshaphat also made peace with the king of Israel.

⁴⁵Now the rest of the acts of Jehoshaphat, and his power that he showed, and how he waged war, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Judah? ⁴⁶The remnant of the male temple prostitutes who were still in the land in the days of his father Asa, he exterminated.

⁴⁷There was no king in Edom; a deputy was king. ⁴⁸Jehoshaphat made ships of the Tarshish type to go to Ophir for gold; but they did not go, for the ships were wrecked at Ezion-geber. ⁴⁹Then Ahaziah son of Ahab said to Jehoshaphat, "Let my servants go with your servants in the ships," but Jehoshaphat was not willing. ⁵⁰Jehoshaphat slept with his ancestors and was buried with his ancestors in the city of his father David; his son Jehoram succeeded him.

⁵¹Ahaziah son of Ahab began to reign over Israel in Samaria in the seventeenth year of King Jehoshaphat of Judah; he reigned two years over Israel. ⁵²He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, and walked in the way of his father and mother, and in the way of Jeroboam son of Nebat, who caused Israel to sin. ⁵³He served Baal and worshiped him; he provoked the LORD, the God of Israel, to anger, just as his father had done.

hoshaphat (ca. 870–846 BCE) was a good king, except that he tolerated sanctuaries outside the Jerusalem Temple. 46: Male temple prostitutes, see 14.24n. 47–50: Like Solomon, Jehoshaphat built ships of the Tarshish type in order to continue his ancestor's exotic expeditions, but he did not succeed; see 10.22n. 51–53: This introduces the reign of the Israelite king Ahaziah (ca. 852–851 BCE), which is continued in 2 Kings 1. Originally, the two books of Kings were a single book (see Introduction).

This page intentionally left blank

2 KINGS

For a discussion of the composition and character of 1–2 Kings, see the Introduction to 1 Kings (pp. 485–486).

NAME

In the Hebrew Bible the book of 2 Kings is called Kings 2, in the Greek Bible Basileion 4 (“reigns” or “dynasties”). Originally 2 Kings was joined with 1 Kings as a single book.

CANONICAL STATUS AND LOCATION

In the Hebrew Bible, Kings 2 is the last book of the “Former Prophets” (Josh, Judg, 1–2 Sam, 1–2 Kings). This book, which ends with the destruction of Jerusalem and the deportation of the Judeans to Babylon (others flee to Egypt), is followed by the book of Isaiah, which opens the “Latter Prophets.” Thus 2 Kings offers background to the prophetic oracles of doom and restoration in the following prophetic books. In Christian Bibles 2 Kings is followed by 1–2 Chronicles, which has an alternate history of the period of the monarchy.

AUTHORSHIP AND DATE OF COMPOSITION

The authors and redactors of 2 Kings are the same as those of 1 Kings. Scholars often label them “Deuteronomists,” because their language, style, and theological perspective are largely inspired by the book of Deuteronomy. The final episode in 2 Kings mentions the Babylonian king Evil-merodach, who ruled around 562 BCE, so the last redactor of the books must have lived after that.

STRUCTURE AND CONTENTS

Second Kings starts during the short reign of Ahaziah king of Israel, with a formula (“after the death of Ahab”) that recalls the beginnings of the preceding books of Joshua, Judges, and 2 Samuel. The book is divided thematically into two parts: chs 1–17 continue the synchronic history of the two kingdoms of Judah and Israel until the fall of Samaria in the late eighth century; and chs 18–25 relate the last century and a half of the Judean kingdom until the Babylonian exile of 586. The first part contains several stories about the prophet Elisha (chs 2–8). After he is installed as Elijah’s successor, he performs many miracles, several of which parallel tales told about Elijah: restoration of a spring in Jericho (Elisha provides water); punishment of jeering boys (Elisha provokes death); the everlasting oil; the purifying of a stew; the feeding of a hundred men (Elisha provides food); the revival of the Shunamite woman’s son (Elisha provides life). Elisha also heals a leprous Aramean officer and recovers an ax head from the Jordan. But he appears also involved in high politics when he legitimates two coups d’état: he anoints the Aramean Hazael, and Jehu, who will exterminate the house of Ahab; the story of Jehu’s revolution is told in chs 9–10.

The reign of queen Athaliah over Judah in ch 11 interrupts the Davidic dynasty, and is presented as illegitimate. The Davidic line continues with King Joash (ch 12), who escaped from Athaliah’s massacre. Chapters 13–17 continue the parallel history of the two kingdoms, which is told from a clearly Judean perspective: the northern kings Jehoahaz, Jehoash, Jeroboam II, Zechariah, Shallum, Menachem, Pekahiah, Pekah, and Hoshea are altogether bad kings, since they continue the “sins of Jeroboam” (see 1 Kings 12), venerating the LORD outside Jerusalem and worshiping other deities. Among the Judean kings Jehoash, Amaziah, Azariah, and Jotham are considered good kings, although they are criticized for tolerating the high places outside Jerusalem. The Judean king Ahaz, however, is presented as walking in the way of the kings of Israel. Throughout this presentation parallels are drawn between Israel and Judah. The fall of Israel related in 2 Kings 17 does not mean that Judah will be safe forever. Chapter 17 provides a long commentary in typical Deuteronomistic style, which indicates the reasons that led to the end of the Northern Kingdom and its transformation into an Assyrian province; it also hints ahead at the destruction of Judah (vv. 19–20).

In the second part of 2 Kings (chs 18–25), which relates the story of the kingdom of Judah until its end, two kings, Hezekiah and Josiah, are presented in a very positive way. Hezekiah (chs 18–20) abolishes the illegitimate religious practices; under his reign the Assyrian siege of Jerusalem fails because of the LORD’s intervention. His son Manasseh (ch 21) is presented as the worst of all kings of Judah, although he reigned for fifty-five years. He is explicitly compared to the worst Israelite king, Ahab, reintroducing forbidden religious practices; the redactor presents him as responsible for the later destruction of Jerusalem. He is succeeded by the wicked Amon, who is followed by Josiah, who undertakes a sweeping religious reform, making Jerusalem the only legitimate sanctuary for the worship of the LORD and destroying all symbols of unorthodox worship (chs 22–23). But Josiah is killed by the Egyptian king, and his four successors Jehoahaz, Jehoiakim, Jehoiachin, and Zedekiah (chs 23–24), act in a jarring contrast to him. The Deuteronomistic redactors judge them each with the same formula: “he did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, just as his father(s) had done.” They hasten the destruction of Jerusalem by the Babylonians, who are presented as the tool of divine punishment (chs 24–25). The story ends with a short note about the release of the Judean king Jehoiachin from his Babylonian prison: he stays in Babylon but becomes a privileged guest at the table of the king of Babylon (25.27–30).

2 KINGS

INTERPRETATION

Because 2 Kings is part of a single composition with 1 Kings, it is not surprising that it shares the same view of history that is presented there, offering not necessarily complete and accurate history but a theological explanation of the double failure of the northern and southern monarchies. For the authors of Kings, the north had been condemned from its very beginnings. For the Judean, Davidic kings the issue was more complicated. The LORD had promised to David an eternal dynasty (2 Sam 7), but Jerusalem had been destroyed and Judah had come under Babylonian domination. Did this mean that God did not stand by his word? The authors of Kings gave a double answer. First, they understood the promise as conditional: only if the kings behave according to God’s commandments, as written down in the book of Deuteronomy, would there be always a Davidic king in Jerusalem (see, e.g., 1 Kings 9.4–7). Second, the mention of Jehoiachin’s release out of his prison (2 Kings 25.27–30) may indicate hope for the future restoration of the Davidic monarchy. But the end of 2 Kings may also be understood otherwise (see 25.27–30.).

GUIDE FOR READING

Since 2 Kings is not a self-contained book, the reader should start with 1 Kings or, even better, with the books of Samuel. The role played by the “good kings” Hezekiah and Josiah, and how their deeds cannot prevent the fall of Jerusalem and the Babylonian exile, deserve particular attention, as do the parallels between the miracles of Elisha and Elijah.

Thomas Römer

1 After the death of Ahab, Moab rebelled against Israel.

² Ahaziah had fallen through the lattice in his upper chamber in Samaria, and lay injured; so he sent messengers, telling them, “Go, inquire of Baal-zebub, the god of Ekron, whether I shall recover from this injury.”

³ But the angel of the LORD said to Elijah the Tishbite, “Get up, go to meet the messengers of the king of Samaria, and say to them, ‘Is it because there is no God in Israel that you are going to inquire of Baal-zebub, the god of Ekron?’” ⁴ Now therefore thus says the LORD, ‘You shall not leave the bed to which you have gone, but you shall surely die.’” So Elijah went.

⁵ The messengers returned to the king, who said to them, “Why have you returned?”

⁶ They answered him, “There came a man to meet us, who said to us, ‘Go back to the king who sent you, and say to him: Thus says the LORD: Is it because there is no God in Israel that you are sending to inquire of Baal-zebub, the god of Ekron? Therefore you shall not leave the bed to which you have gone, but shall surely die.’” ⁷ He said to them, “What sort of man was he who came to meet you and told you these things?” ⁸ They answered him, “A hairy man, with a leather belt around his waist.” He said, “It is Elijah the Tishbite.”

⁹ Then the king sent to him a captain of fifty with his fifty men. He went up to Elijah, who was sitting on the top of a hill, and said to him, “O man of God, the king says, ‘Come down.’” ¹⁰ But Elijah answered the captain of fifty, “If I am a man of God, let fire come down from heaven and consume you and your fifty.” Then fire came down from heaven, and consumed him and his fifty.

¹¹ Again the king sent to him another captain of fifty with his fifty. He went up^a and said to him, “O man of God, this is the king’s order: Come down quickly!” ¹² But Elijah answered them, “If I am a man of God, let fire come down from heaven and consume you and your fifty.” Then the fire of God came down from heaven and consumed him and his fifty.

¹³ Again the king sent the captain of a third fifty with his fifty. So the third captain of fifty went up, and came and fell on his knees before Elijah, and entreated him, “O man of God, please let my life, and the life of these fifty servants of yours, be precious in your sight.” ¹⁴ Look, fire came down from heaven and consumed the two former captains of fifty men with their fifties; but now let my life be precious in your sight.” ¹⁵ Then the angel of the LORD said to Elijah, “Go down with him; do not be afraid of him.” So he set out and went down with him to the king, ¹⁶ and said to him, “Thus says the LORD: Because you have sent messengers to inquire of Baal-zebub, the god of Ekron,—is it because there is no God in Israel to inquire of his word?—therefore you shall not leave the bed to which you have gone, but you shall surely die.”

^a Gk Compare verses 9, 13: Heb He answered

1.1–17: The encounter between King Ahaziah and the prophet Elijah. 1: The notice After the death of Ahab, Moab rebelled against Israel also appears in 3.5 where it stands at a better place. 2–9: Ahaziah, who falls through the lattice on the flat roof of his house, on part of which was built the upper chamber, perhaps a bedroom, wants to consult a local manifestation of the god Baal and is confronted by the prophet Elijah. 2: Baal-zebub means “lord of the flies”; the second word is probably a parody by the biblical writers on a more original “zebul” (“prince”; cf. 1 Kings 16.31n.; Mk 3.22). Ekron is the northernmost of the Philistine cities, ca. 25 mi (40 km) west of Jerusalem. 3: The angel (Heb “mal’ak,” lit. “messenger”) of the LORD is juxtaposed to Ahaziah’s messengers. The word “mal’ak” may denote a human person or a supernatural being. 4–6: The king’s messengers receive their oracle not from Baal of Ekron but from Elijah, who speaks in the name of the LORD. 7–8: The king identifies Elijah through his description as a hairy man, with a leather belt. This outfit may have been typical of prophetic groups that were hostile to urban culture (cf. Mk 1.6). 9–16: This scene, where the king sends other messengers, contains a play on words: when the officer harshly asks the man of God (Heb “‘ish ‘elohim”) to descend, Elijah instead sends down the fire of God (“‘esh ‘elohim”). 10: Fire is often a tool of divine punishment (e.g., Gen 19.24; Lev 10.2; Num 16.35). 13–16: The third officer behaves respectfully and Elijah comes down, but his oracle of death for the king is not altered. 17–18: The notice that Jehoram of Israel becomes Ahaziah’s successor in the second year of Jehoram of Judah disagrees with 3.1, where Jehoram of Israel becomes king in the eighteenth

The geography of chs. 1–14. The dashed line shows the approximate boundaries between Israel, Judah and Philistia.

¹⁷ So he died according to the word of the LORD that Elijah had spoken. His brother,^a Jehoram succeeded him as king in the second year of King Jehoram son of Jehoshaphat of Judah, because Ahaziah had no son. ¹⁸ Now the rest of the acts of Ahaziah that he did, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Israel?

2 Now when the LORD was about to take Elijah up to heaven by a whirlwind, Elijah and Elisha were on their way from Gilgal. ² Elisha said to Elisha, “Stay here; for the LORD has sent me as far as Bethel.” But Elisha said, “As the LORD lives, and as you yourself live, year of Jehoshaphat of Judah. There may have been a coregency in Judah between Jehoshaphat and his son Jehoram, or there may be some textual or historical confusion because both kings in Judah and Israel had the same name.

^a GkSyr: Heb lacks His brother

2.1–18: Elisha succeeds Elijah. This narrative marks the transition between the narratives about Elijah and those about Elisha. 1: This verse anticipates v. 11. Gilgal, located between Jericho and the Jordan, is Elisha’s home, according to 4.38. 2–6: The company of prophets designates a prophetic community near Bethel that has been informed about Elijah’s imminent ascension. The supposed journey from Gilgal to Bethel and then

I will not leave you.” So they went down to Bethel.³ The company of prophets^a who were in Bethel came out to Elisha, and said to him, “Do you know that today the LORD will take your master away from you?” And he said, “Yes, I know; keep silent.”

⁴ Elisha said to him, “Elisha, stay here; for the LORD has sent me to Jericho.” But he said, “As the LORD lives, and as you yourself live, I will not leave you.” So they came to Jericho.

⁵ The company of prophets^a who were at Jericho drew near to Elisha, and said to him, “Do you know that today the LORD will take your master away from you?” And he answered, “Yes, I know; be silent.”

⁶ Then Elisha said to him, “Stay here; for the LORD has sent me to the Jordan.” But he said, “As the LORD lives, and as you yourself live, I will not leave you.” So the two of them went on.⁷ Fifty men of the company of prophets^a also went, and stood at some distance from them, as they both were standing by the Jordan.⁸ Then Elisha took his mantle and rolled it up, and struck the water; the water was parted to the one side and to the other, until the two of them crossed on dry ground.

⁹ When they had crossed, Elisha said to Elisha, “Tell me what I may do for you, before I am taken from you.” Elisha said, “Please let me inherit a double share of your spirit.”¹⁰ He responded, “You have asked a hard thing; yet, if you see me as I am being taken from you, it will be granted you; if not, it will not.”¹¹ As they continued walking and talking, a chariot of fire and horses of fire separated the two of them, and Elijah ascended in a whirlwind into heaven.¹² Elisha kept watching and crying out, “Father, father! The chariots of Israel and its horsemen!” But when he could no longer see him, he grasped his own clothes and tore them in two pieces.

¹³ He picked up the mantle of Elijah that had fallen from him, and went back and stood on the bank of the Jordan.¹⁴ He took the mantle of Elijah that had fallen from him, and struck the water, saying, “Where is the LORD, the God of Elijah?” When he had struck the water, the water was parted to the one side and to the other, and Elisha went over.

¹⁵ When the company of prophets^a who were at Jericho saw him at a distance, they declared, “The spirit of Elijah rests on Elisha.” They came to meet him and bowed to the ground before him.¹⁶ They said to him, “See now, we have fifty strong men among your servants; please let them go and seek your master; it may be that the spirit of the LORD has caught him up and thrown him down on some mountain or into some valley.” He responded, “No, do not send them.”¹⁷ But when they urged him until he was ashamed, he said, “Send them.” So they sent fifty men who searched for three days but did not find him.¹⁸ When they came back to him (he had remained at Jericho), he said to them, “Did I not say to you, Do not go?”

¹⁹ Now the people of the city said to Elisha, “The location of this city is good, as my lord

^a Heb sons of the prophets

back to Jericho is confusing, and may be a later element in the story. 7–8: Elijah’s mantle, already mentioned in 1 Kings 19:19. The parting of the waters of the Jordan recalls the crossing of that river by the Israelites under Joshua (Josh 3–4) and Moses’ parting of the Sea of Reeds (Ex 14). 9–10: Elisha is asking Elijah for a double share of your spirit, which according to Deut 21:17 was the share of the eldest son, who received twice as much as his brothers. With his request Elisha appears as Elijah’s “eldest son” and successor. 11–12: The chariot of fire and horses symbolize the divine army. Elijah goes to heaven in a whirlwind, or in a storm, which is one of the LORD’s manifestations (Nah 1:3; Job 38:1; Ps 50:3) thereby integrating Elijah into the divine sphere. Such ascension is unique to Elijah in the Bible and explains Elijah’s importance in Jewish tradition (see Mal 4:5–6). The phrase the chariots of Israel and its horsemen suggests that prophetic power equals the strength of cavalry; see also 13:14. 13–14: Elisha’s ability to repeat Elijah’s parting of the water shows that he has received his master’s spirit. 15–18: The prophetic community (the “sons of the prophets”; see textual note a) near Jericho is aware that Elisha has become Elijah’s successor, but they do not know that Elijah has been taken to heaven. Only Elisha has seen what happened in the whirlwind.

2.19–25: Elisha’s first miracles. These miracles demonstrate that Elisha can either bless or curse in the name of God. 19–22: He purifies an infected spring near Jericho, throwing salt in it. Salt was considered to have cleanssees; but the water is bad, and the land is unfruitful.”²⁰ He said, “Bring me a new bowl, and put salt in it.” So they brought it to him.²¹ Then he went to the spring of water and threw the salt into it, and said, “Thus says the LORD, I have made this water wholesome; from now on neither death nor miscarriage shall come from it.”²² So the water has been wholesome to this day, according to the word that Elisha spoke.

²³ He went up from there to Bethel; and while he was going up on the way, some small boys came out of the city and jeered at him, saying, “Go away, baldhead! Go away, baldhead!”²⁴ When he turned around and saw them, he cursed them in the name of the LORD. Then two she-bears came out of the woods and mauled forty-two of the boys.²⁵ From there he went on to Mount Carmel, and then returned to Samaria.

3 In the eighteenth year of King Jehoshaphat of Judah, Jehoram son of Ahab became king over Israel in Samaria; he reigned twelve years.² He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, though not like his father and mother, for he removed the pillar of Baal that his father had made.³ Nevertheless he clung to the sin of Jeroboam son of Nebat, which he caused Israel to commit; he did not depart from it.

⁴ Now King Mesha of Moab was a sheep breeder, who used to deliver to the king of Israel one hundred thousand lambs, and the wool of one hundred thousand rams.⁵ But when Ahab died, the king of Moab rebelled against the king of Israel.⁶ So King Jehoram marched out of Samaria at that time and mustered all Israel.⁷ As he went he sent word to King Jehoshaphat of Judah, “The king of Moab has rebelled against me; will you go with me to battle against Moab?” He answered, “I will; I am with you, my people are your people, my horses are your horses.”⁸ Then he asked, “By which way shall we march?” Jehoram answered, “By the way of the wilderness of Edom.”

⁹ So the king of Israel, the king of Judah, and the king of Edom set out; and when they had made a roundabout march of seven days, there was no water for the army or for the animals that were with them.¹⁰ Then the king of Israel said, “Alas! The LORD has summoned us, three kings, only to be handed over to Moab.”¹¹ But Jehoshaphat said, “Is there no prophet of the LORD here, through whom we may inquire of the LORD?” Then one of the servants of the king of Israel answered, “Elisha son of Shaphat, who used to pour water on the hands of Elijah, is here.”¹² Jehoshaphat said, “The word of the LORD is with him.” So the king of Israel and Jehoshaphat and the king of Edom went down to him.

¹³ Elisha said to the king of Israel, “What have I to do with you? Go to your father’s

ing and protective capacities. 23–25: The episode of the cursing of the boys of Bethel who jeered at the prophet seems shocking to modern readers. For the ancient reader it demonstrated that it was dangerous to behave disrespectfully toward a man of God. 24: The narrator does not tell the content of Elisha’s curse, and whether or not he intended to kill the boys. Forty-two boys, “forty-two” is a number sometimes associated with death: Jehu kills forty-two victims (10.14), and the Egyptian Book of the Dead mentions forty-two judges of the dead. 25: Elisha’s travel to Mount Carmel recalls Elijah’s victory against the prophets of Baal, and helps establish Elisha as a new Elijah.

3.1–27: Jehoram of Israel, Elisha and the war against Moab. 1–3: Jehoram’s behavior is less wicked than that of his father Ahab. For the chronological problem see 1.17–18n. 3: The sin of Jeroboam designates illicit worship outside of Jerusalem (see 1 Kings 12). 4–8: The campaign against Moab echoes the war report of 1 Kings 22. Jehoshaphat, previously allied to Ahab, is now an ally, or even vassal, of Ahab’s son (cf. v. 7 and 1 Kings 22.4). 4–5: King Mesha of Moab is also known from the Moabite Stone discovered in 1868, a stela with an inscription celebrating Mesha’s victory over Israel, which may allude to the revolt mentioned in v. 5. 8: The descent to Edom in the south is necessary because of the Moabite fortifications in the north. 9: The mention of the king of Edom may be inaccurate (see 1 Kings 22.47). 10–12: Unlike the Israelite king, who is afraid that the LORD may have gathered the allies for their demise, the pious Judean king asks for a prophet of the LORD. 11: Elisha pouring water on the hands of Elijah recalls his relationship to his prophetic predecessor; this is a gesture of deference, as of a servant to his master or of a son to his father. The mention of water also alludes to the water miracle that follows. 13–14: Elisha represents the position of the Judean redactors of the book of Kings that only prophets or to your mother's." But the king of Israel said to him, "No; it is the LORD who has summoned us, three kings, only to be handed over to Moab." ¹⁴ Elisha said, "As the LORD of hosts lives, whom I serve, were it not that I have regard for King Jehoshaphat of Judah, I would give you neither a look nor a glance. ¹⁵ But get me a musician." And then, while the musician was playing, the power of the LORD came on him. ¹⁶ And he said, "Thus says the LORD, 'I will make this wadi full of pools.' ¹⁷ For thus says the LORD, 'You shall see neither wind nor rain, but the wadi shall be filled with water, so that you shall drink, you, your cattle, and your animals.' ¹⁸ This is only a trifle in the sight of the LORD, for he will also hand Moab over to you. ¹⁹ You shall conquer every fortified city and every choice city; every good tree you shall fell, all springs of water you shall stop up, and every good piece of land you shall ruin with stones." ²⁰ The next day, about the time of the morning offering, suddenly water began to flow from the direction of Edom, until the country was filled with water.

²¹ When all the Moabites heard that the kings had come up to fight against them, all who were able to put on armor, from the youngest to the oldest, were called out and were drawn up at the frontier. ²² When they rose early in the morning, and the sun shone upon the water, the Moabites saw the water opposite them as red as blood. ²³ They said, "This is blood; the kings must have fought together, and killed one another. Now then, Moab, to the spoil!" ²⁴ But when they came to the camp of Israel, the Israelites rose up and attacked the Moabites, who fled before them; as they entered Moab they continued the attack. ^a ²⁵ The cities they overturned, and on every good piece of land everyone threw a stone, until it was covered; every spring of water they stopped up, and every good tree they felled. Only at Kir-hareseth did the stone walls remain, until the slingers surrounded and attacked it. ²⁶ When the king of Moab saw that the battle was going against him, he took with him seven hundred swordsmen to break through, opposite the king of Edom; but they could not. ²⁷ Then he took his firstborn son who was to succeed him, and offered him as a burnt offering on the wall. And great wrath came upon Israel, so they withdrew from him and returned to their own land.

4 Now the wife of a member of the company of prophets^b cried to Elisha, "Your servant my husband is dead; and you know that your servant feared the LORD, but a creditor has come to take my two children as slaves." ² Elisha said to her, "What shall I do for you? Tell me, what do you have in the house?" She answered, "Your servant has nothing in the house, except a jar of oil." ³ He said, "Go outside, borrow vessels from all your neighbors, empty vessels and not just a few. ⁴ Then go in, and shut the door behind you and your children, and start pouring into all these vessels; when each is full, set it aside." ⁵ So she left him and shut the

^a Compare Gk Syr: Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Heb the sons of the prophets

Judean kings are worthy of divine help. 15: Music induced ecstasy through which the prophet prophesied (cf. 1 Sam 10.5–6). The power of the LORD, lit. "the hand of the LORD." 16–19: Elisha predicts water and a (first) victory over Moab. 16: Pools, or ditches. Groundwater can be obtained in a desert terrain by tapping the water table, but according to Elisha's oracle the gift of water is a miracle. 20–25: After the fulfillment of the water miracle (v. 20), the allies are successful in their war against Moab. 22–23: The red light of the rising sun on the water deceives the Moabites, who think it is the blood of the allies' armies. 24–25: Large parts of the Moabite territory were destroyed, but not Kir-hareseth ("Fortress of the guard," modern Kerak). 26–27: The king of Moab, seeing no chance to escape, sacrifices his firstborn son to his god Chemosh. The great wrath originally referred to the wrath of Chemosh, who responded positively to this human offering by decimating the Israelite army. The biblical redactors probably understood it as a kind of disgust that repelled the Israelites.

4.1–44: Further miracles by Elisha. Elisha is more of a miracle worker than Elijah; some miracles that are told of both belonged originally to the Elisha traditions. 1–7: The oil miracle is similar to the story in 1 Kings 17.7–16. 1: A widow of one of the prophetic groups over which Elisha apparently exercises leadership (the dead prophet is called servant of Elisha) is obliged to sell her children as slaves in order to pay her debts (see Ex 21.7; Neh 5.5). 2–7: Elisha does not play an active role in the production of abundant oil; he only tells the woman what she has door behind her and her children; they kept bringing vessels to her, and she kept pouring. ⁶ When the vessels were full, she said to her son, “Bring me another vessel.” But he said to her, “There are no more.” Then the oil stopped flowing. ⁷ She came and told the man of God, and he said, “Go sell the oil and pay your debts, and you and your children can live on the rest.”

⁸ One day Elisha was passing through Shunem, where a wealthy woman lived, who urged him to have a meal. So whenever he passed that way, he would stop there for a meal. ⁹ She said to her husband, “Look, I am sure that this man who regularly passes our way is a holy man of God. ¹⁰ Let us make a small roof chamber with walls, and put there for him a bed, a table, a chair, and a lamp, so that he can stay there whenever he comes to us.”

¹¹ One day when he came there, he went up to the chamber and lay down there. ¹² He said to his servant Gehazi, “Call the Shunammite woman.” When he had called her, she stood before him. ¹³ He said to him, “Say to her, Since you have taken all this trouble for us, what may be done for you? Would you have a word spoken on your behalf to the king or to the commander of the army?” She answered, “I live among my own people.” ¹⁴ He said, “What then may be done for her?” Gehazi answered, “Well, she has no son, and her husband is old.” ¹⁵ He said, “Call her.” When he had called her, she stood at the door. ¹⁶ He said, “At this season, in due time, you shall embrace a son.” She replied, “No, my lord, O man of God; do not deceive your servant.”

¹⁷ The woman conceived and bore a son at that season, in due time, as Elisha had declared to her.

¹⁸ When the child was older, he went out one day to his father among the reapers. ¹⁹ He complained to his father, “Oh, my head, my head!” The father said to his servant, “Carry him to his mother.” ²⁰ He carried him and brought him to his mother; the child sat on her lap until noon, and he died. ²¹ She went up and laid him on the bed of the man of God, closed the door on him, and left. ²² Then she called to her husband, and said, “Send me one of the servants and one of the donkeys, so that I may quickly go to the man of God and come back again.” ²³ He said, “Why go to him today? It is neither new moon nor sabbath.” She said, “It will be all right.” ²⁴ Then she saddled the donkey and said to her servant, “Urge the animal on; do not hold back for me unless I tell you.” ²⁵ So she set out, and came to the man of God at Mount Carmel.

When the man of God saw her coming, he said to Gehazi his servant, “Look, there is the Shunammite woman; ²⁶ run at once to meet her, and say to her, Are you all right? Is your husband all right? Is the child all right?” She answered, “It is all right.” ²⁷ When she came to the man of God at the mountain, she caught hold of his feet. Gehazi approached to push her away. But the man of God said, “Let her alone, for she is in bitter distress; the LORD has hidden it from me and has not told me.” ²⁸ Then she said, “Did I ask my lord for a son? Did I not say, Do not mislead me?” ²⁹ He said to Gehazi, “Gird up your loins, and take my staff in your hand, and go. If you meet anyone, give no greeting, and if anyone greets you, do not answer; and lay my staff on the face of the child.” ³⁰ Then the mother of the child said, “As the LORD lives, and as you yourself live, I will not leave without you.” So he rose up and followed her. ³¹ Gehazi went to do. 8–37: The boy’s revival is reminiscent of 1 Kings 17.17–24. 8: Shunem, a town in the Jezreel Valley ca. 10 mi (16 km) east of Megiddo. 9–17: Elisha’s visit to the house of a childless and aged couple and his promise of a son that shall be born to them because of their hospitality recalls Gen 18.1–15. 12: Gehazi is Elisha’s personal servant and mediator between him and the hosts. 18–31: After her son dies unexpectedly the mother travels to Mount Carmel, where Elisha resides (see v. 25). 21: The placing of the dead son in the chamber that was reserved for Elisha can be understood either as a reproach to Elisha (see also v. 28) or as an attempt to retain the “soul,” the life-essence of the boy. 23: It is neither new moon nor Sabbath, it was apparently the custom to consult prophets on such holy days. 24–25: The story highlights the woman’s initiative (she saddled and rode the donkey), whereas her husband appears to be passive and resigned. 29–31: The dispatch of Gehazi with Elisha’s staff (see Moses’ staff in Ex 4.1–4; 17.8–13) was meant to allay the mother’s impatience, since Gehazi is able to reach Shunem quicker than Elisha. In other ancient Near Eastern texts, prophets also send items that belong to them on ahead and laid the staff on the face of the child, but there was no sound or sign of life. He came back to meet him and told him, “The child has not awakened.”

³² When Elisha came into the house, he saw the child lying dead on his bed. ³³ So he went in and closed the door on the two of them, and prayed to the LORD. ³⁴ Then he got up on the bed^a and lay upon the child, putting his mouth upon his mouth, his eyes upon his eyes, and his hands upon his hands; and while he lay bent over him, the flesh of the child became warm. ³⁵ He got down, walked once to and fro in the room, then got up again and bent over him; the child sneezed seven times, and the child opened his eyes. ³⁶ Elisha^b summoned Gehazi and said, “Call the Shunammite woman.” So he called her. When she came to him, he said, “Take your son.” ³⁷ She came and fell at his feet, bowing to the ground; then she took her son and left.

³⁸ When Elisha returned to Gilgal, there was a famine in the land. As the company of prophets was^c sitting before him, he said to his servant, “Put the large pot on, and make some stew for the company of prophets.”^d ³⁹ One of them went out into the field to gather herbs; he found a wild vine and gathered from it a lapful of wild gourds, and came and cut them up into the pot of stew, not knowing what they were. ⁴⁰ They served some for the men to eat. But while they were eating the stew, they cried out, “O man of God, there is death in the pot!” They could not eat it. ⁴¹ He said, “Then bring some flour.” He threw it into the pot, and said, “Serve the people and let them eat.” And there was nothing harmful in the pot.

⁴² A man came from Baal-shalishah, bringing food from the first fruits to the man of God: twenty loaves of barley and fresh ears of grain in his sack. Elisha said, “Give it to the people and let them eat.” ⁴³ But his servant said, “How can I set this before a hundred people?” So he repeated, “Give it to the people and let them eat, for thus says the LORD, ‘They shall eat and have some left.’” ⁴⁴ He set it before them, they ate, and had some left, according to the word of the LORD.

5 Naaman, commander of the army of the king of Aram, was a great man and in high favor with his master, because by him the LORD had given victory to Aram. The man, though a mighty warrior, suffered from leprosy.^e ² Now the Arameans on one of their raids had taken a young girl captive from the land of Israel, and she served Naaman’s wife. ³ She said to her mistress, “If only my lord were with the prophet who is in Samaria! He would cure him of his leprosy.”^e ⁴ So Naaman^b went in and told his lord just what the girl from the land of Israel had said. ⁵ And the king of Aram said, “Go then, and I will send along a letter to the king of Israel.”

^a Heb lacks on the bed

^b Heb he

^c Heb sons of the prophets were

^d Heb sons of the prophets

^e A term for several skin diseases; precise meaning uncertain

in order to accomplish a miracle. 32–37: Gehazi’s failure highlights the effect of Elisha’s personal appearance and success. 33: Elisha’s prayer to the LORD precedes his mysterious actions. 34–35: Crouching over the boy’s body suggests a magic ritual in which the properties of the living party were transferred to the dead. The child sneezed seven times, the sneezing signifies that life has returned. Seven is the number of perfection. 38–41: Elisha appears again as providing food. He makes a poisoned meal edible by adding some flour. 42–44: Elisha’s multiplication of food provides the pattern for the stories about Jesus doing the same in the Gospels. 42: Baal-shalishah, located in the hills of Ephraim ca. 11 mi (18 km) southwest of Samaria.

5.1–27: Elisha heals an Aramean officer. This story teaches that the LORD is not only the god of the Israelites but also the god of the foreigners. 1: Naaman, a name meaning “gracious,” which is attested in the ancient Near East as a proper name as well as an epithet of royal personages. His leprosy (see textual note e) was not contagious and did not exclude him from society. 2–7: Informed by an Israelite maidservant about Elisha’s power, the contact is established by a letter of the Aramean king to the king of Israel. 3: The prophet who is in Samaria refers to Elisha, who in this story is not associated with a prophetic community but lives alone in Samaria, the capital of the Northern Kingdom. 5–7: Despite the excessive gifts (ten talents, ca. 340 kg [755 lb], of silver and six thousand shekels, ca. 70 kg [150 lb] of gold), the Israelite king suspects that the Aramean king is seeking an occasion

He went, taking with him ten talents of silver, six thousand shekels of gold, and ten sets of garments. ⁶ He brought the letter to the king of Israel, which read, “When this letter reaches you, know that I have sent to you my servant Naaman, that you may cure him of his leprosy.”^a ⁷ When the king of Israel read the letter, he tore his clothes and said, “Am I God, to give death or life, that this man sends word to me to cure a man of his leprosy?³ Just look and see how he is trying to pick a quarrel with me.”

⁸ But when Elisha the man of God heard that the king of Israel had torn his clothes, he sent a message to the king, “Why have you torn your clothes? Let him come to me, that he may learn that there is a prophet in Israel.”

⁹ So Naaman came with his horses and chariots, and halted at the entrance of Elisha’s house. ¹⁰ Elisha sent a messenger to him, saying, “Go, wash in the Jordan seven times, and your flesh shall be restored and you shall be clean.” ¹¹ But Naaman became angry and went away, saying, “I thought that for me he would surely come out, and stand and call on the name of the LORD his God, and would wave his hand over the spot, and cure the leprosy!”^a ¹² Are not Abana^b and Pharpar, the rivers of Damascus, better than all the waters of Israel? Could I not wash in them, and be clean?” He turned and went away in a rage. ¹³ But his servants approached and said to him, “Father, if the prophet had commanded you to do something difficult, would you not have done it? How much more, when all he said to you was, ‘Wash, and be clean?’” ¹⁴ So he went down and immersed himself seven times in the Jordan, according to the word of the man of God; his flesh was restored like the flesh of a young boy, and he was clean.

¹⁵ Then he returned to the man of God, he and all his company; he came and stood before him and said, “Now I know that there is no God in all the earth except in Israel; please accept a present from your servant.”

¹⁶ But he said, “As the LORD lives, whom I serve, I will accept nothing!” He urged him to accept, but he refused. ¹⁷ Then Naaman said, “If not, please let two mule-loads of earth be given to your servant; for your servant will no longer offer burnt offering or sacrifice to any god except the LORD.” ¹⁸ But may the LORD pardon your servant on one count: when my master goes into the house of Rimmon to worship there, leaning on my arm, and I bow down in the house of Rimmon, when I do bow down in the house of Rimmon, may the LORD pardon your servant on this one count.” ¹⁹ He said to him, “Go in peace.”

But when Naaman had gone from him a short distance, ²⁰ Gehazi, the servant of Elisha the man of God, thought, “My master has let that Aramean Naaman off too lightly by not accepting from him what he offered. As the LORD lives, I will run after him and get something out of him.” ²¹ So Gehazi went after Naaman. When Naaman saw someone running after him, he jumped down from the chariot to meet him and said, “Is everything all right?” ²² He replied, “Yes, but my master has sent me to say, ‘Two members of a company of prophets^c have just come to me from the hill country of Ephraim; please give them a talent of silver and two changes of clothing.’” ²³ Naaman said, “Please accept two talents.” He urged him, and tied up two talents of silver in two bags, with two changes of clothing, and gave them to two of his servants, who carried them in front of Gehazi.^d

^a A term for several skin diseases; precise meaning uncertain

^b Another reading is Amana

^c Heb sons of the prophets

^d Heb him

for war. 8–13: Elisha’s laconic advice to Naaman to wash seven times (see 4.35n.) in the Jordan is taken by Naaman as insulting. 13: His servants persuade him to reconsider his hasty interpretation of Elisha’s words. Father, a title of respect referring to a superior. 14–15: After his healing, Naaman proclaims a monotheistic confession, which recalls Rahab’s confession (Josh 2.11): the LORD is not only the God of Israel, but of all the earth. 16–17: In order to worship the LORD outside of Israel, Naaman wants to take with him Israelite earth, i.e., “soil.” 18: After Naaman’s conversion, he cannot offend his king who venerates Rimmon, so he will only pretend to worship this “false” god. The vocalization Rimmon (which means “pomegranate”) may be a parody of the name of the Aramean weather-god Hadad Ramanu (“the Thunderer”). 19–27: Whereas Elisha had refused any payment (v.

²⁴ When he came to the citadel, he took the bags^a from them, and stored them inside; he dismissed the men, and they left.

²⁵ He went in and stood before his master; and Elisha said to him, “Where have you been, Gehazi?” He answered, “Your servant has not gone anywhere at all.” ²⁶ But he said to him, “Did I not go with you in spirit when someone left his chariot to meet you? Is this a time to accept money and to accept clothing, olive orchards and vineyards, sheep and oxen, and male and female slaves? ²⁷ Therefore the leprosy^b of Naaman shall cling to you, and to your descendants forever.” So he left his presence leprous,^b as white as snow.

6 Now the company of prophets^c said to Elisha, “As you see, the place where we live under your charge is too small for us. ² Let us go to the Jordan, and let us collect logs there, one for each of us, and build a place there for us to live.” He answered, “Do so.” ³ Then one of them said, “Please come with your servants.” And he answered, “I will.” ⁴ So he went with them. When they came to the Jordan, they cut down trees. ⁵ But as one was felling a log, his ax head fell into the water; he cried out, “Alas, master! It was borrowed.” ⁶ Then the man of God said, “Where did it fall?” When he showed him the place, he cut off a stick, and threw it in there, and made the iron float. ⁷ He said, “Pick it up.” So he reached out his hand and took it.

⁸ Once when the king of Aram was at war with Israel, he took counsel with his officers. He said, “At such and such a place shall be my camp.” ⁹ But the man of God sent word to the king of Israel, “Take care not to pass this place, because the Arameans are going down there.” ¹⁰ The king of Israel sent word to the place of which the man of God spoke. More than once or twice he warned such a place^d so that it was on the alert.

¹¹ The mind of the king of Aram was greatly perturbed because of this; he called his officers and said to them, “Now tell me who among us sides with the king of Israel?” ¹² Then one of his officers said, “No one, my lord king. It is Elisha, the prophet in Israel, who tells the king of Israel the words that you speak in your bedchamber.” ¹³ He said, “Go and find where he is; I will send and seize him.” He was told, “He is in Dothan.” ¹⁴ So he sent horses and chariots there and a great army; they came by night, and surrounded the city.

¹⁵ When an attendant of the man of God rose early in the morning and went out, an army with horses and chariots was all around the city. His servant said, “Alas, master! What shall we do?” ¹⁶ He replied, “Do not be afraid, for there are more with us than there are with them.” ¹⁷ Then Elisha prayed: “O LORD, please open his eyes that he may see.” So the LORD opened the eyes of the servant, and he saw; the mountain was full of horses and chariots of fire all around Elisha. ¹⁸ When the Arameans^e came down against him, Elisha prayed to the LORD, and said, “Strike this people, please, with blindness.” So he struck them with blindness as Elisha had asked.

^a Heb lacks the bags

^b A term for several skin diseases; precise meaning uncertain

^c Heb sons of the prophets

^d Heb warned it

^e Heb they

16) his servant Gehazi is eager for profit and is punished for that. 27: Gehazi, who pursued profit from the healed Naaman, is now afflicted with his disease. Leprous, as white as snow, the same punishment happened to Miriam, who had criticized Moses (Num 12.10).

6.1–7: Elisha makes iron float. Another miracle story that illustrates the prophetic community’s dependence on its master. 5: It was borrowed, the community could not afford to have its own ax, so Elisha’s help is vital.

6.8–23: Elisha and the Aramean invasion. 8–10: Elisha forewarns the king of Israel about an Aramean attack. 8: At war, refers probably to border raids as in 5.2. The king of Aram, his name is not mentioned, which may indicate the episode’s legendary character. 11–14: The Aramean king suspects betrayal, but he is told that Elisha knows everything, even the words spoken in the king’s bedchamber (v. 12), the most intimate part of the royal palace. 13: Now Elisha is in Dothan (see Gen 37:17), located ca. 11 mi (18 km) north of Samaria. 15–23: The two scenes are connected by the motif of blindness. 15–17: When the LORD opens the eyes of Elisha’s servant, he sees the celestial army, horses and chariots of fire (see 2.11–12n.). 18–23: When the LORD opens the eyes of ¹⁹ Elisha said to them, “This is not the way, and this is not the city; follow me, and I will bring you to the man whom you seek.” And he led them to Samaria.

²⁰ As soon as they entered Samaria, Elisha said, “O LORD, open the eyes of these men so that they may see.” The LORD opened their eyes, and they saw that they were inside Samaria. ²¹ When the king of Israel saw them he said to Elisha, “Father, shall I kill them? Shall I kill them?” ²² He answered, “No! Did you capture with your sword and your bow those whom you want to kill? Set food and water before them so that they may eat and drink; and let them go to their master.” ²³ So he prepared for them a great feast; after they ate and drank, he sent them on their way, and they went to their master. And the Arameans no longer came raiding into the land of Israel.

²⁴ Some time later King Ben-hadad of Aram mustered his entire army; he marched against Samaria and laid siege to it. ²⁵ As the siege continued, famine in Samaria became so great that a donkey’s head was sold for eighty shekels of silver, and one-fourth of a kab of dove’s dung for five shekels of silver. ²⁶ Now as the king of Israel was walking on the city wall, a woman cried out to him, “Help, my lord king!” ²⁷ He said, “No! Let the LORD help you. How can I help you? From the threshing floor or from the wine press?” ²⁸ But then the king asked her, “What is your complaint?” She answered, “This woman said to me, ‘Give up your son; we will eat him today, and we will eat my son tomorrow.’” ²⁹ So we cooked my son and ate him. The next day I said to her, ‘Give up your son and we will eat him.’ But she has hidden her son.” ³⁰ When the king heard the words of the woman he tore his clothes—now since he was walking on the city wall, the people could see that he had sackcloth on his body underneath—³¹ and he said, “So may God do to me, and more, if the head of Elisha son of Shaphat stays on his shoulders today.” ³² So he dispatched a man from his presence.

Now Elisha was sitting in his house, and the elders were sitting with him. Before the messenger arrived, Elisha said to the elders, “Are you aware that this murderer has sent someone to take off my head? When the messenger comes, see that you shut the door and hold it closed against him. Is not the sound of his master’s feet behind him?” ³³ While he was still speaking with them, the king^a came down to him and said, “This trouble is from the LORD! Why should I hope in the LORD any longer?”

7 ¹ But Elisha said, “Hear the word of the LORD: thus says the LORD, Tomorrow about this time a measure of choice meal shall be sold for a shekel, and two measures of barley for a shekel, at the gate of Samaria.” ² Then the captain on whose hand the king leaned said to the man of God, “Even if the LORD were to make windows in the sky, could such a thing happen?” But he said, “You shall see it with your own eyes, but you shall not eat from it.”

³ Now there were four leprous^b men outside the city gate, who said to one another, “Why should we sit here until we die? ⁴ If we say, ‘Let us enter the city,’ the famine is in the

^a See 7:2: Heb messenger

^b A term for several skin diseases; precise meaning uncertain

the Arameans they discover that they have been captured. 21–23: Elisha prevents the Israelite king from killing them so that they can report the power of the God of Israel to their king. 21: Father, see 5:13n.

6.24–7.20: Elisha and the siege of Samaria. This story, which relates a second siege of the capital of the Northern Kingdom (for the first, see 1 Kings 20.1) by Ben-hadad of Aram, incorporates several originally independent anecdotes. 24–30: Two examples are given in order to illustrate the severity of the famine during the siege. 25: First, the exorbitant prices for the little remaining barely edible food: eighty shekels of silver (2 lb [900 gr]) for a donkey’s head; five shekels (ca. 2 oz [57 gr]) for a kab (ca 1.1 qt [1.3 liters]) of dove’s dung. 26–29: Second, an episode about women eating their children. Cannibalism is mentioned as a consequence of siege elsewhere in the Hebrew Bible (Deut 28.53–57; Ezek 5.10; Lam 2.20; 4.10) and in nonbiblical texts. 30–31: The Israelite king, who has been wearing sackcloth, as a sign of humiliation and repentance, sees no way to help his people and irrationally seeks vengeance on the prophet Elisha. 6.32–7.2: Elisha however is under the protection of the local elders (v. 32) and announces that the following day food will be available in Samaria at normal prices. 7.1: A measure (Heb “se’ah”), ca. 7.7 liters (7 qt). 3–5: The four leprous men are ritually impure so they have to reside city, and we shall die there; but if we sit here, we shall also die. Therefore, let us desert to the Aramean camp; if they spare our lives, we shall live; and if they kill us, we shall but die.”⁵ So they arose at twilight to go to the Aramean camp; but when they came to the edge of the Aramean camp, there was no one there at all.⁶ For the Lord had caused the Aramean army to hear the sound of chariots, and of horses, the sound of a great army, so that they said to one another, “The king of Israel has hired the kings of the Hittites and the kings of Egypt to fight against us.”⁷ So they fled away in the twilight and abandoned their tents, their horses, and their donkeys leaving the camp just as it was, and fled for their lives.⁸ When these leprous^a men had come to the edge of the camp, they went into a tent, ate and drank, carried off silver, gold, and clothing, and went and hid them. Then they came back, entered another tent, carried off things from it, and went and hid them.

⁹ Then they said to one another, “What we are doing is wrong. This is a day of good news; if we are silent and wait until the morning light, we will be found guilty; therefore let us go and tell the king’s household.”¹⁰ So they came and called to the gatekeepers of the city, and told them, “We went to the Aramean camp, but there was no one to be seen or heard there, nothing but the horses tied, the donkeys tied, and the tents as they were.”¹¹ Then the gatekeepers called out and proclaimed it to the king’s household.¹² The king got up in the night, and said to his servants, “I will tell you what the Arameans have prepared against us. They know that we are starving; so they have left the camp to hide themselves in the open country, thinking, ‘When they come out of the city, we shall take them alive and get into the city.’”¹³ One of his servants said, “Let some men take five of the remaining horses, since those left here will suffer the fate of the whole multitude of Israel that have perished already;^b let us send and find out.”¹⁴ So they took two mounted men, and the king sent them after the Aramean army, saying, “Go and find out.”¹⁵ So they went after them as far as the Jordan; the whole way was littered with garments and equipment that the Arameans had thrown away in their haste. So the messengers returned, and told the king.

¹⁶ Then the people went out, and plundered the camp of the Arameans. So a measure of choice meal was sold for a shekel, and two measures of barley for a shekel, according to the word of the LORD.¹⁷ Now the king had appointed the captain on whose hand he leaned to have charge of the gate; the people trampled him to death in the gate, just as the man of God had said when the king came down to him.¹⁸ For when the man of God had said to the king, “Two measures of barley shall be sold for a shekel, and a measure of choice meal for a shekel, about this time tomorrow in the gate of Samaria,”¹⁹ the captain had answered the man of God, “Even if the LORD were to make windows in the sky, could such a thing happen?” And he had answered, “You shall see it with your own eyes, but you shall not eat from it.”²⁰ It did indeed happen to him; the people trampled him to death in the gate.

8 Now Elisha had said to the woman whose son he had restored to life, “Get up and go with your household, and settle wherever outside the city (see Lev 13.46). Deserting to the Arameans, they find their camp empty. 6–7: The narrator tells why the camp was abandoned: the LORD has made the Arameans hear the sound of a great army, which they interpreted as the army of the Hittites and the Egyptians, frequent rivals for control of the Levant. 8–20: The Israelite king interprets the emptiness of the Aramean camp as military strategy; he is finally convinced that the LORD has intervened in favor of Israel. 14: Two mounted men, better “two chariot teams.” 18–19: This verbatim repetition of Elisha’s oracle and the answer of the skeptical officer in vv. 1–2 shows that the prophetic word has been fulfilled. 17,20: Standing at the gate of Samaria where he had asserted that there would be no food available (vv. 1–2), the officer is trampled to death in the scramble to acquire food.

^a A term for several skin diseases; precise meaning uncertain

^b Compare Gk Syr Vg: Meaning of Heb uncertain

8.1–6: Elisha saves the life of the Shunammite woman. This story is related to the preceding one by the theme of famine. 1–3: Warned by the prophet, the woman, whose son Elisha has brought back to life (4.32–37), escapes a famine with her son (see v. 5) by sojourning as an immigrant in the land of the Philistines. Her long you can; for the LORD has called for a famine, and it will come on the land for seven years.”

² So the woman got up and did according to the word of the man of God; she went with her household and settled in the land of the Philistines seven years. ³ At the end of the seven years, when the woman returned from the land of the Philistines, she set out to appeal to the king for her house and her land. ⁴ Now the king was talking with Gehazi the servant of the man of God, saying, “Tell me all the great things that Elisha has done.”

⁵ While he was telling the king how Elisha had restored a dead person to life, the woman whose son he had restored to life appealed to the king for her house and her land. Gehazi said, “My lord king, here is the woman, and here is her son whom Elisha restored to life.” ⁶ When the king questioned the woman, she told him. So the king appointed an official for her, saying, “Restore all that was hers, together with all the revenue of the fields from the day that she left the land until now.”

⁷ Elisha went to Damascus while King Ben-hadad of Aram was ill. When it was told him, “The man of God has come here,” ⁸ the king said to Hazael, “Take a present with you and go to meet the man of God. Inquire of the LORD through him, whether I shall recover from this illness.” ⁹ So Hazael went to meet him, taking a present with him, all kinds of goods of Damascus, forty camel loads. When he entered and stood before him, he said, “Your son King Ben-hadad of Aram has sent me to you, saying, ‘Shall I recover from this illness?’” ¹⁰ Elisha said to him, “Go, say to him, ‘You shall certainly recover’; but the LORD has shown me that he shall certainly die.” ¹¹ He fixed his gaze and stared at him, until he was ashamed. Then the man of God wept. ¹² Hazael asked, “Why does my lord weep?” He answered, “Because I know the evil that you will do to the people of Israel; you will set their fortresses on fire, you will kill their young men with the sword, dash in pieces their little ones, and rip up their pregnant women.” ¹³ Hazael said, “What is your servant, who is a mere dog, that he should do this great thing?” Elisha answered, “The LORD has shown me that you are to be king over Aram.” ¹⁴ Then he left Elisha, and went to his master Ben-hadad,^a who said to him, “What did Elisha say to you?” And he answered, “He told me that you would certainly recover.” ¹⁵ But the next day he took the bed-cover and dipped it in water and spread it over the king’s face, until he died. And Hazael succeeded him.

¹⁶ In the fifth year of King Joram son of Ahab of Israel,^b Jehoram son of King Jehoshaphat of Judah began to reign. ¹⁷ He was thirty-two years old when he became king, and he reigned eight years in Jerusalem. ¹⁸ He walked in the way of the kings of Israel, as the house of Ahab had done, for the daughter of absence (seven years) makes her lose her estate; it may have become crown property. 4–6: Her appeal to the king succeeds because of her close relationship with Elisha.

^a Heb lacks Ben-hadad

^b Gk Syr: Heb adds Jehoshaphat being king of Judah,

8.7–15: Elisha and the Aramean kings Ben-hadad and Hazael. This story is difficult to understand, in part because of later redactors who connected it to 1 Kings 19.15, where Elijah is told to anoint Hazael king of Aram. 7–10: Elisha’s response to Hazael, who has been sent by Ben-hadad to inquire of the LORD about his illness, appears as a deliberate misleading of the Aramean king. Hazael should tell the king that he will recover (see v. 14), but in fact he will die through Hazael’s hands (v. 15). Elisha’s behavior was absent in the older story, which reported only an oracle of healing. The killing of the king was Hazael’s own initiative. 9: Your son, an expression of deference. 11–15: Elisha foresees the sufferings and cruelties that Hazael will inflict on Israel, which are not explicitly related in the Bible (see however 10.32; 13.3,22; 15.16n.; Am 1.3–4). 13: A mere dog, self-designation of deference. Elisha does not anoint Hazael but only reveals that he will be king. 15: Bed-cover, the translation of this word is uncertain (perhaps “grating”). In Assyrian inscriptions Hazael is designated as a “son of a nobody,” a standard expression for usurpers. Verse 15 may be understood as referring to Hazael’s murdering Ben-hadad by suffocation, but the sense of spread it over the king’s face is not absolutely clear. It could also refer to an attempt to lower the king’s fever with a cold blanket.

8.16–29: Jehoram and Ahaziah of Judah. Both these Judean kings are evaluated negatively. 16–24: Jehoram or Joram (see vv. 21,23–24), who reigned ca. 851–843 BCE, had to face revolts from Edom and Libnah (vv. 20–22), Ahab was his wife. He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD. ¹⁹ Yet the LORD would not destroy Judah, for the sake of his servant David, since he had promised to give a lamp to him and to his descendants forever.

²⁰ In his days Edom revolted against the rule of Judah, and set up a king of their own. ²¹ Then Joram crossed over to Zair with all his chariots. He set out by night and attacked the Edomites and their chariot commanders who had surrounded him;^a but his army fled home. ²² So Edom has been in revolt against the rule of Judah to this day. Libnah also revolted at the same time.

²³ Now the rest of the acts of Joram, and all that he did, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Judah? ²⁴ So Joram slept with his ancestors, and was buried with them in the city of David; his son Ahaziah succeeded him.

²⁵ In the twelfth year of King Joram son of Ahab of Israel, Ahaziah son of King Jehoram of Judah began to reign. ²⁶ Ahaziah was twenty-two years old when he began to reign; he reigned one year in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Athaliah, a granddaughter of King Omri of Israel. ²⁷ He also walked in the way of the house of Ahab, doing what was evil in the sight of the LORD, as the house of Ahab had done, for he was son-in-law to the house of Ahab.

²⁸ He went with Joram son of Ahab to wage war against King Hazael of Aram at Ramoth-gilead, where the Arameans wounded Joram. ²⁹ King Joram returned to be healed in Jezreel of the wounds that the Arameans had inflicted on him at Ramah, when he fought against King Hazael of Aram. King Ahaziah son of Jehoram of Judah went down to see Joram son of Ahab in Jezreel, because he was wounded.

9 Then the prophet Elisha called a member of the company of prophets^b and said to him, "Gird up your loins; take this flask of oil in your hand, and go to Ramoth-gilead. ² When you arrive, look there for Jehu son of Jehoshaphat, son of Nimshi; go in and get him to leave his companions, and take him into an inner chamber. ³ Then take the flask of oil, pour it on his head, and say, 'Thus says the LORD: I anoint you king over Israel.' Then open the door and flee; do not linger."

⁴ So the young man, the young prophet, went to Ramoth-gilead. ⁵ He arrived while the commanders of the army were in council, and he announced, "I have a message for you, commander." "For which one of us?" asked Jehu. "For you, commander." ⁶ So Jehu^c got up and went inside; the young man poured the oil on his head, saying to him, "Thus says the LORD the God of Israel: I anoint you king over the people of the LORD, over Israel. ⁷ You shall strike down the house of your master Ahab, so that I may avenge on Jezebel the blood of my servants the prophets, and the blood of all the servants of the LORD. ⁸ For the whole house of Ahab shall perish; I will cut off from Ahab every male, bond or free, in Israel. ⁹ I will make the house of Ahab like the house of Jeroboam son of Nebat, and like the house of Baasha son of Ahijah. ¹⁰ The dogs shall eat Jezebel in the territory of Jezreel, and no one shall bury her." Then he opened the door and fled.

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Heb sons of the prophets

^c Heb he

which was a border town next to Philistine territory and perhaps never really part of Judah. 25–29: Ahaziah (ca. 843–842 BCE) was murdered by Jehu after one year of reign. 26: Athaliah, a granddaughter of King Omri, lit. "daughter of Omri." Scholars disagree about whether this illegitimate queen of Judah (ch 11) was the daughter of Ahab and Jezebel (1 Kings 17:31) or of Omri, Ahab's father. 28–29: Ramoth-gilead was already the site of a military confrontation between Israel and Aram in 1 Kings 22:29–36. The report about the wounded Joram of Israel who needs to recover from his battle-wounds provides the introduction for the following account of Jehu's revolt.

9.1–10.36: Jehu's revolt and reign. The long account of Jehu's revolt describes the end of Omri's dynasty. The redactors of Kings have a mixed opinion of Jehu: they appreciate him because he tries to eradicate Baal worship in the Northern Kingdom, but since he is a northern king they are obliged to condemn him. 9.1–9: The anointing of Jehu (fulfilling the divine order given to Elijah in 1 Kings 19:16) is performed by a young member of Elisha's prophetic group. 2: Jehu son of Jehoshaphat, son of Nimshi, the name of Jehu (in 1 Kings 16:1 a prophet's name) corresponds to Jehu's religious conviction; it means: "The LORD is God." His father's name also refers to the god of Israel ("The LORD will judge"); Nimshi means "weasel." 7–10: These words recall 1 Kings 14.10–11

¹¹ When Jehu came back to his master's officers, they said to him, "Is everything all right? Why did that madman come to you?" He answered them, "You know the sort and how they babble." ¹² They said, "Liar! Come on, tell us!" So he said, "This is just what he said to me: 'Thus says the LORD, I anoint you king over Israel.'" ¹³ Then hurriedly they all took their cloaks and spread them for him on the bare^a steps; and they blew the trumpet, and proclaimed, "Jehu is king."

¹⁴ Thus Jehu son of Jehoshaphat son of Nimshi conspired against Joram. Joram with all Israel had been on guard at Ramoth-gilead against King Hazael of Aram; ¹⁵ but King Joram had returned to be healed in Jezreel of the wounds that the Arameans had inflicted on him, when he fought against King Hazael of Aram. So Jehu said, "If this is your wish, then let no one slip out of the city to go and tell the news in Jezreel." ¹⁶ Then Jehu mounted his chariot and went to Jezreel, where Joram was lying ill. King Ahaziah of Judah had come down to visit Joram.

¹⁷ In Jezreel, the sentinel standing on the tower spied the company of Jehu arriving, and said, "I see a company." Joram said, "Take a horseman; send him to meet them, and let him say, 'Is it peace?'" ¹⁸ So the horseman went to meet him; he said, "Thus says the king, 'Is it peace?'" Jehu responded, "What have you to do with peace? Fall in behind me." The sentinel reported, saying, "The messenger reached them, but he is not coming back." ¹⁹ Then he sent out a second horseman, who came to them and said, "Thus says the king, 'Is it peace?'" Jehu answered, "What have you to do with peace? Fall in behind me." ²⁰ Again the sentinel reported, "He reached them, but he is not coming back. It looks like the driving of Jehu son of Nimshi; for he drives like a maniac."

²¹ Joram said, "Get ready." And they got his chariot ready. Then King Joram of Israel and King Ahaziah of Judah set out, each in his chariot, and went to meet Jehu; they met him at the property of Naboth the Jezreelite. ²² When Joram saw Jehu, he said, "Is it peace, Jehu?" He answered, "What peace can there be, so long as the many whoredoms and sorceries of your mother Jezebel continue?" ²³ Then Joram reined about and fled, saying to Ahaziah, "Treason, Ahaziah!" ²⁴ Jehu drew his bow with all his strength, and shot Joram between the shoulders, so that the arrow pierced his heart; and he sank in his chariot. ²⁵ Jehu said to his aide Bidkar, "Lift him out, and throw him on the plot of ground belonging to Naboth the Jezreelite; for remember, when you and I rode side by side behind his father Ahab how the LORD uttered this oracle against him: ²⁶ 'For the blood of Naboth and for the blood of his children that I saw yesterday, says the LORD, I swear I will repay you on this very plot of ground.' Now therefore lift him out and throw him on the plot of ground, in accordance with the word of the LORD."

²⁷ When King Ahaziah of Judah saw this, he fled in the direction of Beth-haggan. Jehu pursued him, saying, "Shoot him also!" And they shot him^b in the chariot at the ascent to Gur, which is by Ibleam. Then he fled to Megiddo, and died there. ²⁸ His officers carried him in a chariot to Jerusalem, and buried him in his tomb with his ancestors in the city of David.

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Syr Vg Compare Gk: Heb lacks and they shot him and 21.21–24. 7: Jezebel, see 1 Kings 16.31n. 11–13: Jehu's anointing was secret (as was Saul's in 1 Sam 9.27–10.1), but it becomes immediately public. 11: Madman, a demeaning reference to the apparently well-known young prophet, perhaps referring to his ecstatic behavior. 13: They blew the trumpet, see 1 Kings 1.34. 14–28: The report of Jehu's coup sums up the situation described in 8.28–29. Joram of Israel and Ahaziah are together in Jezreel, so Jehu kills them both. 20: Like a maniac, better "with madness." Jehu's chariot driving is described with a word from the same root as the "madman" in v. 11. 21: The kings meet Jehu at the former property of Naboth. They belong to Ahab's family, and their end will start at the site of Ahab and Jezebel's hideous act (see 1 Kings 21). 22: Whoredoms and sorceries of Jezebel, both terms refer to the worship of Baal and his female counterpart, in which religious prostitution and magic activities may have occurred. 27: Ahaziah's death was motivated by his relation to Joram (he was either his nephew or his cousin, see 8.26n.). Beth-haggan is identified with Engannin (Josh 19.21), modern Jenin. Ibleam is nearby, at the southern end of the Jezreel valley. 28: Ahaziah is killed in Megiddo, as King Josiah will be (see 23.29–30); both kings are carried in a chariot to Jerusalem to be buried there.

²⁹ In the eleventh year of Joram son of Ahab, Ahaziah began to reign over Judah.

³⁰ When Jehu came to Jezreel, Jezebel heard of it; she painted her eyes, and adorned her head, and looked out of the window.

³¹ As Jehu entered the gate, she said, "Is it peace, Zimri, murderer of your master?" ³² He looked up to the window and said, "Who is on my side? Who?" Two or three eunuchs looked out at him. ³³ He said, "Throw her down." So they threw her down; some of her blood splattered on the wall and on the horses, which trampled on her. ³⁴ Then he went in and ate and drank; he said, "See to that cursed woman and bury her; for she is a king's daughter." ³⁵ But when they went to bury her, they found no more of her than the skull and the feet and the palms of her hands. ³⁶ When they came back and told him, he said, "This is the word of the LORD, which he spoke by his servant Elijah the Tishbite, 'In the territory of Jezreel the dogs shall eat the flesh of Jezebel; ³⁷ the corpse of Jezebel shall be like dung on the field in the territory of Jezreel, so that no one can say, This is Jezebel.'"

10 Now Ahab had seventy sons in Samaria. So Jehu wrote letters and sent them to Samaria, to the rulers of Jezreel,^a to the elders, and to the guardians of the sons of^b Ahab, saying, ² "Since your master's sons are with you and you have at your disposal chariots and horses, a fortified city, and weapons, ³ select the son of your master who is the best qualified, set him on his father's throne, and fight for your master's house." ⁴ But they were utterly terrified and said, "Look, two kings could not withstand him; how then can we stand?" ⁵ So the steward of the palace, and the governor of the city, along with the elders and the guardians, sent word to Jehu: "We are your servants; we will do anything you say. We will not make anyone king; do whatever you think right." ⁶ Then he wrote them a second letter, saying, "If you are on my side, and if you are ready to obey me, take the heads of your master's sons and come to me at Jezreel tomorrow at this time." Now the king's sons, seventy persons, were with the leaders of the city, who were charged with their upbringing. ⁷ When the letter reached them, they took the king's sons and killed them, seventy persons; they put their heads in baskets and sent them to him at Jezreel. ⁸ When the messenger came and told him, "They have brought the heads of the king's sons," he said, "Lay them in two heaps at the entrance of the gate until the morning." ⁹ Then in the morning when he went out, he stood and said to all the people, "You are innocent. It was I who conspired against my master and killed him; but who struck down all these? ¹⁰ Know then that there shall fall to the earth nothing of the word of the LORD, which the LORD spoke concerning the house of Ahab; for the LORD has done what he said through his servant Elijah." ¹¹ So Jehu killed all who were left of the house of Ahab in Jezreel, all his leaders, close friends, and priests, until he left him no survivor.

¹² Then he set out and went to Samaria. On the way, when he was at Beth-eked of the Shepherds, ¹³ Jehu met relatives of King Ahaziah of Judah and said, "Who are you?" They answered, "We are kin of Ahaziah; we have come down to visit the royal princes and the sons of the queen mother." ¹⁴ He said,

^a Or of the city; Vg Compare Gk

^b Gk: Heb lacks of the sons of

29: The report about the beginning of Ahaziah's reign, with a chronology that differs from previous notes (8.25), is probably a correction placed at an odd place. 30–37: The murder of Jezebel is presented as the accomplishment of Elijah's oracle (compare vv. 36–37 with 1 Kings 21.23). 30: Jezebel appears as "woman at the window," a frequent motif in ancient Near Eastern art, representing prostitutes or fertility goddesses and suggesting sexual availability. 31: She identifies Jehu with Zimri, who killed King Baasha (1 Kings 16.9–20), but reigned only a week. 33: Jezebel is killed by the eunuchs who were at her service. 10.1–11: Jehu massacres the remnant of the house of Ahab. 1: Seventy sons, seventy is a round number in the Bible (see Judg 8.30; Deut 10.22) and in many other texts from the ancient Near East. It is unclear why Jehu should write letters to the governors or rulers of Jezreel, since he is already in the city (9.30). LXX suggests "Samaria" instead of Jezreel (see textual note a). 10: Such a reference to a former prophetic oracle (1 Kings 21.21–24) is typical for the Deuteronomistic redactors of Kings (see also v. 17). 12–14: Jehu's slaughtering continues with the relatives of the Judean king. 12: Beth-eked,

“Take them alive.” They took them alive, and slaughtered them at the pit of Beth-eked, forty-two in all; he spared none of them.

¹⁵ When he left there, he met Jehonadab son of Rechab coming to meet him; he greeted him, and said to him, “Is your heart as true to mine as mine is to yours?”^a Jehonadab answered, “It is.” Jehu said,^b “If it is, give me your hand.” So he gave him his hand. Jehu took him up with him into the chariot. ¹⁶ He said, “Come with me, and see my zeal for the LORD.” So he^c had him ride in his chariot. ¹⁷ When he came to Samaria, he killed all who were left to Ahab in Samaria, until he had wiped them out, according to the word of the LORD that he spoke to Elijah.

¹⁸ Then Jehu assembled all the people and said to them, “Ahab offered Baal small service; but Jehu will offer much more. ¹⁹ Now therefore summon to me all the prophets of Baal, all his worshipers, and all his priests; let none be missing, for I have a great sacrifice to offer to Baal; whoever is missing shall not live.” But Jehu was acting with cunning in order to destroy the worshipers of Baal. ²⁰ Jehu decreed, “Sanctify a solemn assembly for Baal.” So they proclaimed it. ²¹ Jehu sent word throughout all Israel; all the worshipers of Baal came, so that there was no one left who did not come. They entered the temple of Baal, until the temple of Baal was filled from wall to wall. ²² He said to the keeper of the wardrobe, “Bring out the vestments for all the worshipers of Baal.” So he brought out the vestments for them. ²³ Then Jehu entered the temple of Baal with Jehonadab son of Rechab; he said to the worshipers of Baal, “Search and see that there is no worshiper of the LORD here among you, but only worshipers of Baal.” ²⁴ Then they proceeded to offer sacrifices and burnt offerings.

Now Jehu had stationed eighty men outside, saying, “Whoever allows any of those to escape whom I deliver into your hands shall forfeit his life.” ²⁵ As soon as he had finished presenting the burnt offering, Jehu said to the guards and to the officers, “Come in and kill them; let no one escape.” So they put them to the sword. The guards and the officers threw them out, and then went into the citadel of the temple of Baal. ²⁶ They brought out the pillar^d that was in the temple of Baal, and burned it. ²⁷ Then they demolished the pillar of Baal, and destroyed the temple of Baal, and made it a latrine to this day.

²⁸ Thus Jehu wiped out Baal from Israel. ²⁹ But Jehu did not turn aside from the sins of Jeroboam son of Nebat, which he caused Israel to commit—the golden calves that were in Bethel and in Dan. ³⁰ The LORD said to Jehu, “Because you have done well in carrying out what I consider right, and in accordance with all that was in my heart have dealt with the house of Ahab, your sons of the fourth generation shall sit on the throne of Israel.” ³¹ But Jehu was not careful to follow the law of the LORD the God of Israel with all his heart; he did not turn from the sins of Jeroboam, which he caused Israel to commit.

³² In those days the LORD began to trim off parts of Israel. Hazael defeated them throughout the territory of Israel: ³³ from the Jordan eastward, all the land of Gilead, the Gadites, the Reubenites, and the Manassites,

^a Gk: Heb Is it right with your heart, as my heart is with your heart?

^b Gk: Heb lacks Jehu said

^c Gk Syr Tg: Heb they

^d Gk Vg Syr Tg: Heb pillars

an unidentified place, apparently a gathering-place for shepherds. 14: Forty-two, see 2.24n. 15–17: Jehonadab son of Rechab is mentioned in Jer 35 as the founder of a small religious group committed to a life-style that rejected urban culture. Here he is portrayed as an ally of Jehu. 16: Chariot, Heb “rekeb,” recalling the name Rechab (“rekab”). Jehonadab was perhaps a rider, like Jehu (see 9.25). 18–27: To a modern reader Jehu’s massacre of all worshipers of Baal appears as religious fanaticism, surpassing even Elijah’s killing of the prophets of Baal in 1 Kings 18.40. The narrator was absolutely hostile to the worship of Baal, so that he did not have such reservations. 28–31: Nevertheless, the evaluation of Jehu is ambivalent. 30: Like David, he receives a dynastic promise, which is however limited to the fourth generation. 29, 31: For the redactors of Kings, Jehu’s worship of the LORD was wrong, because he venerated him outside of Jerusalem, continuing the sins of Jeroboam (see 1 Kings 12). 32–33: During Jehu’s reign, the Northern Kingdom declined and Jehu eventually lost its Transjordanian territory to the Arameans. An Assyrian stela reports that Jehu had become a vassal of King Shalmaneser III (ruled ca.

from Aroer, which is by the Wadi Arnon, that is, Gilead and Bashan.³⁴ Now the rest of the acts of Jehu, all that he did, and all his power, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Israel?³⁵ So Jehu slept with his ancestors, and they buried him in Samaria. His son Jehoahaz succeeded him.³⁶ The time that Jehu reigned over Israel in Samaria was twenty-eight years.

11 Now when Athaliah, Ahaziah's mother, saw that her son was dead, she set about to destroy all the royal family.² But Jehosheba, King Joram's daughter, Ahaziah's sister, took Joash son of Ahaziah, and stole him away from among the king's children who were about to be killed; she put^a him and his nurse in a bedroom. Thus she^b hid him from Athaliah, so that he was not killed;³ he remained with her six years, hidden in the house of the LORD, while Athaliah reigned over the land.

⁴ But in the seventh year Jehoiada summoned the captains of the Carites and of the guards and had them come to him in the house of the LORD. He made a covenant with them and put them under oath in the house of the LORD; then he showed them the king's son.⁵ He commanded them, "This is what you are to do: one-third of you, those who go off duty on the sabbath and guard the king's house⁶ (another third being at the gate Sur and a third at the gate behind the guards), shall guard the palace;⁷ and your two divisions that come on duty in force on the sabbath and guard the house of the LORD^c shall surround the king, each with weapons in hand; and whoever approaches the ranks is to be killed. Be with the king in his comings and goings."

⁹ The captains did according to all that the priest Jehoiada commanded; each brought his men who were to go off duty on the sabbath, with those who were to come on duty on the sabbath, and came to the priest Jehoiada.

¹⁰ The priest delivered to the captains the spears and shields that had been King David's, which were in the house of the LORD;¹¹ the guards stood, every man with his weapons in his hand, from the south side of the house to the north side of the house, around the altar and the house, to guard the king on every side.¹² Then he brought out the king's son, put the crown on him, and gave him the covenant;^d they proclaimed him king, and anointed him; they clapped their hands and shouted, "Long live the king!"

¹³ When Athaliah heard the noise of the guard and of the people, she went into the house of the LORD to the people;¹⁴ when she

^a With 2 Chr 22.11: Heb lacks she put

^b Gk Syr Vg Compare 2 Chr 22.11: Heb they

^c Heb the LORD to the king

^d Or treaty or testimony; Heb eduth

859–824 BCE), a fact not mentioned in the Bible. 34–36: Very little of the twenty-eight years of Jehu's reign (ca. 842–814 BCE) is recorded.

11.1–21: The reign of Athaliah in Judah. The reign of Athaliah (ca. 842–836 BCE), Ahaziah's mother, interrupts the Davidic line, since she is from the north (see 8.26n.). For the redactors of the book of Kings, she was considered an illegitimate ruler; therefore her reign lacks the typical introductory and concluding formulas. Athaliah's name means "the LORD is exalted," but she seems to have sponsored Baal worship (see v. 18). 1–3: Like Jehu in the north, Athaliah tries to massacre all potential heirs to the throne, but one member of the royal family escapes (for the same literary motif see Judg 9.5): Joash is hidden by Ahaziah's sister Jehosheba. 4–12: The priest Jehoiada, who according to 2 Chr 22.11 was Jehosheba's husband, organizes the rebellion in the seventh year (the number may be typological or symbolic). 4: The Carites (Carians) are either a bodyguard from Cilicia or the same as the Cherethites (1 Kings 1.38). 5–11: The details of the deployment of the troops are unclear. Apparently three companies should stand on different strategic positions (the location of the gate Sur is unknown), and two other groups (or two of the three previous ones?) should protect the new king. 12: Crown, cf. 2 Sam 1.10; Ex 28.36–38. The covenant may refer to the divine promise to the Davidic dynasty (2 Sam 7) or to a list of regulations for the conduct of kingship (like Deut 17.18–20). Long live the king, the same exclamation as in 1 Kings 1.25. 13–16: The story moves now to the end of Athaliah, who will be executed along with her followers outside the Temple. 14: Pillar, or podium, a place of royal appearance (see 23.3). The parallel account in 2 Chr 23.13 interprets this as the pillars Jachin and Boaz (see 1 Kings 7.21) at the Temple entrance. The people of the land designates here, as elsewhere in the book of Kings, the rural aristocracy that intervened in critical situations in order to looked, there was the king standing by the pillar, according to custom, with the captains and the trumpeters beside the king, and all the people of the land rejoicing and blowing trumpets. Athaliah tore her clothes and cried, “Treason! Treason!”¹⁵ Then the priest Jehoiada commanded the captains who were set over the army, “Bring her out between the ranks, and kill with the sword anyone who follows her.” For the priest said, “Let her not be killed in the house of the LORD.”¹⁶ So they laid hands on her; she went through the horses’ entrance to the king’s house, and there she was put to death.

¹⁷ Jehoiada made a covenant between the LORD and the king and people, that they should be the LORD’s people; also between the king and the people.¹⁸ Then all the people of the land went to the house of Baal, and tore it down; his altars and his images they broke in pieces, and they killed Mattan, the priest of Baal, before the altars. The priest posted guards over the house of the LORD.¹⁹ He took the captains, the Carites, the guards, and all the people of the land; then they brought the king down from the house of the LORD, marching through the gate of the guards to the king’s house. He took his seat on the throne of the kings.²⁰ So all the people of the land rejoiced; and the city was quiet after Athaliah had been killed with the sword at the king’s house.

²¹ ^aJehoash^b was seven years old when he began to reign.

12 In the seventh year of Jehu, Jehoash began to reign; he reigned forty years in Jerusalem. His mother’s name was Zibiah of Beer-sheba.² Jehoash did what was right in the sight of the LORD all his days, because the priest Jehoiada instructed him.³ Nevertheless the high places were not taken away; the people continued to sacrifice and make offerings on the high places.

⁴ Jehoash said to the priests, “All the money offered as sacred donations that is brought into the house of the LORD, the money for which each person is assessed—the money from the assessment of persons—and the money from the voluntary offerings brought into the house of the LORD,⁵ let the priests receive from each of the donors; and let them repair the house wherever any need of repairs is discovered.”⁶ But by the twenty-third year of King Jehoash the priests had made no repairs on the house.⁷ Therefore King Jehoash summoned the priest Jehoiada with the other priests and said to them, “Why are you not repairing the house? Now therefore do not accept any more money from your donors but hand it over for the repair of the house.”⁸ So the priests agreed that they would neither accept more money from the people nor repair the house.

⁹ Then the priest Jehoiada took a chest, made a hole in its lid, and set it beside the altar on the right side as one entered the house of the LORD; the priests who guarded the threshold put in it all the money that was brought into the house of the LORD.¹⁰ Whenever they saw that there was a great deal of

^a Ch 12.1 in Heb

^b Another spelling is Joash; see verse 19

defend the traditional worship of the God of Israel. 16: The horses’ entrance, perhaps the Horse Gate mentioned in Jer 31.40 and Neh 3.28. 17–20: The unusual threefold covenant between the LORD and the king and people mediated by a priest has become necessary because Athaliah’s reign had interrupted the Davidic succession. The covenant would then be the renewal of the Davidic dynasty as chosen by God and accepted by the people (see 2 Sam 5.3). 18: There is no other mention of Athaliah being a fervent worshiper of Baal. The Baal priest Mattan appears only here and in the parallel account in 2 Chr 23.17.

12.1–21: The reign of Jehoash (or Joash), king of Judah (ca. 836–798 BCE). 1–3: In the Deuteronomistic introduction, Jehoash is said to have ruled forty years. This may well be a symbolic number, and may include the six years of Athaliah. 2–3: For the redactors Jehoash was a good king, although he tolerated worship of the LORD in places other than the Temple in Jerusalem. 4–16: The repair of the Temple foreshadows King Josiah’s repairs (see 22.3–7). But unlike Josiah’s reform, Jehoash’s will fail. 4: Money . . . sacred donations, money that replaced the traditional sacrifices (see Lev 27.1–8). 6–8: The priests were unwilling to spend the money they received to repair the Temple. 6: The twenty-third year, this is the year Jehoahaz of Israel acceded to the throne (13.1). 9–12: The priest Jehoiada is centralizing and supervising the money for the restoration, as does the priest Hilkiah in 22.4–6. 10: High priest, this title is used only from the Persian period onward, when this episode may have been money in the chest, the king's secretary and the high priest went up, counted the money that was found in the house of the LORD, and tied it up in bags. ¹¹They would give the money that was weighed out into the hands of the workers who had the oversight of the house of the LORD; then they paid it out to the carpenters and the builders who worked on the house of the LORD, ¹²to the masons and the stonecutters, as well as to buy timber and quarried stone for making repairs on the house of the LORD, as well as for any outlay for repairs of the house. ¹³But for the house of the LORD no basins of silver, snuffers, bowls, trumpets, or any vessels of gold, or of silver, were made from the money that was brought into the house of the LORD, ¹⁴for that was given to the workers who were repairing the house of the LORD with it. ¹⁵They did not ask an accounting from those into whose hand they delivered the money to pay out to the workers, for they dealt honestly. ¹⁶The money from the guilt offerings and the money from the sin offerings was not brought into the house of the LORD; it belonged to the priests.

¹⁷At that time King Hazael of Aram went up, fought against Gath, and took it. But when Hazael set his face to go up against Jerusalem, ¹⁸King Jehoash of Judah took all the votive gifts that Jehoshaphat, Jehoram, and Ahaziah, his ancestors, the kings of Judah, had dedicated, as well as his own votive gifts, all the gold that was found in the treasuries of the house of the LORD and of the king's house, and sent these to King Hazael of Aram. Then Hazael withdrew from Jerusalem.

¹⁹Now the rest of the acts of Joash, and all that he did, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Judah? ²⁰His servants arose, devised a conspiracy, and killed Joash in the house of Millo, on the way that goes down to Silla. ²¹It was Jozacar son of Shimeath and Jehozabad son of Shomer, his servants, who struck him down, so that he died. He was buried with his ancestors in the city of David; then his son Amaziah succeeded him.

13 In the twenty-third year of King Joash son of Ahaziah of Judah, Jehoahaz son of Jehu began to reign over Israel in Samaria; he reigned seventeen years. ²He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, and followed the sins of Jeroboam son of Nebat, which he caused Israel to sin; he did not depart from them. ³The anger of the LORD was kindled against Israel, so that he gave them repeatedly into the hand of King Hazael of Aram, then into the hand of Ben-hadad son of Hazael. ⁴But Jehoahaz entreated the LORD, and the LORD heeded him; for he saw the oppression of Israel, how the king of Aram oppressed them. ⁵Therefore the LORD gave Israel a savior, so that they escaped from the hand of the Arameans; and the people of Israel lived in their homes as formerly. ⁶Nevertheless they did not depart from the sins of the house of Jeroboam, which he caused Israel to sin, but walked^a in them; the sacred pole^b also remained in Samaria. ⁷So Jehoahaz was left with an army of not more than fifty horse-composed. 13: The meaning of the verse is unclear. It may refer to lack of adequate silver, causing a very modest restoration, or that the priests were not allowed to use the money for their Temple vessels. 16: There was apparently some dispute about the silver, which belonged directly to the priests (see Lev 7.7–10). 17–18: After Israel (see 10.32–33), Hazael of Aram is now attacking the Philistine coast (the city of Gath) and Jerusalem. He was more interested in controlling the trade routes in the south than in occupying the capital of Judah. Therefore he accepts the tribute that Jehoash is immediately willing to pay. 19–21: The parallel account in 2 Chr 24.24–27 gives a different explanation of the death of Joash. 20: Millo, see 1 Kings 9.15n. 21: Jozacar . . . and Jehozabad, NRSV follows the LXX. In the MT both murderers are named Jehozabad.

^a Gk Syr Tg Vg: Heb he walked

^b Heb Asherah

13.1–25: Jehoahaz and Jehoash (Joash) of Israel and the death of Elisha. The chronological data offered in chs 13–15 are confusing and do not allow for a reconstruction of a coherent chronological system. All dates given in parentheses are hypothetical. 1–9: Jehoahaz (ca. 817–800 BCE), evaluated as a bad king who nevertheless has the LORD on his side, faces renewed Aramean oppression. 5: The identity of the savior sent by God is not specified, and some think he was the Assyrian king, who fought the Arameans, and others suggest an Israelite general (the term savior is sometimes used in Judges for a judge functioning as a military leader). 6: Sacred pole men, ten chariots and ten thousand footmen; for the king of Aram had destroyed them and made them like the dust at threshing.⁸ Now the rest of the acts of Jehoahaz and all that he did, including his might, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Israel?⁹ So Jehoahaz slept with his ancestors, and they buried him in Samaria; then his son Joash succeeded him.

¹⁰ In the thirty-seventh year of King Joash of Judah, Jehoash son of Jehoahaz began to reign over Israel in Samaria; he reigned sixteen years.¹¹ He also did what was evil in the sight of the LORD; he did not depart from all the sins of Jeroboam son of Nebat, which he caused Israel to sin, but he walked in them.¹² Now the rest of the acts of Joash, and all that he did, as well as the might with which he fought against King Amaziah of Judah, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Israel?¹³ So Joash slept with his ancestors, and Jeroboam sat upon his throne; Joash was buried in Samaria with the kings of Israel.

¹⁴ Now when Elisha had fallen sick with the illness of which he was to die, King Joash of Israel went down to him, and wept before him, crying, “My father, my father! The chariots of Israel and its horsemen!”¹⁵ Elisha said to him, “Take a bow and arrows”; so he took a bow and arrows.¹⁶ Then he said to the king of Israel, “Draw the bow”; and he drew it. Elisha laid his hands on the king’s hands.¹⁷ Then he said, “Open the window eastward”; and he opened it. Elisha said, “Shoot”; and he shot. Then he said, “The LORD’s arrow of victory, the arrow of victory over Aram! For you shall fight the Arameans in Aphek until you have made an end of them.”¹⁸ He continued, “Take the arrows”; and he took them. He said to the king of Israel, “Strike the ground with them”; he struck three times, and stopped.¹⁹ Then the man of God was angry with him, and said, “You should have struck five or six times; then you would have struck down Aram until you had made an end of it, but now you will strike down Aram only three times.”

²⁰ So Elisha died, and they buried him. Now bands of Moabites used to invade the land in the spring of the year.²¹ As a man was being buried, a marauding band was seen and the man was thrown into the grave of Elisha; as soon as the man touched the bones of Elisha, he came to life and stood on his feet.

²² Now King Hazael of Aram oppressed Israel all the days of Jehoahaz.²³ But the LORD was gracious to them and had compassion on them; he turned toward them, because of his covenant with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and would not destroy them; nor has he banished them from his presence until now.

²⁴ When King Hazael of Aram died, his son Ben-hadad succeeded him.²⁵ Then Jehoash son of Jehoahaz took again from Ben-hadad son of Hazael the towns that he had taken from his father Jehoahaz in war. Three times Joash defeated him and recovered the towns of Israel.

14 In the second year of King Joash son of Joahaz of Israel, King Amaziah son of Joash of Judah, began to reign.² He was twenty-five years old when he began to reign, (Heb “asherah”), a symbol of the goddess Asherah. 7–8: As in the book of Judges (e.g., 2:18; 3:9,15), the sending of a savior does not provoke a return to the LORD; therefore the Israelite army is drastically reduced. 10–21: The redactors do not tell much about the wicked Jehoash, whose name is identical to that of his Judean colleague. His reign (ca. 800–784 BCE) provides the context for the story about Elisha’s death. 11–13: The concluding formula of his reign already appears here and is repeated in 14:15–16. 14: Elisha has not been mentioned since the anointing of Jehu, some fifty years before (9:1–3). He is now an old man about to die. Chariots of Israel . . . , see 2:11–12n. 15–19: Elisha has the king perform two symbolic actions, which foretell his incomplete victory against the Arameans. Arrows were used in the ancient Near East as tools of divination. 17: Aphek, see 1 Kings 20:26n. 20–21: Even after his death, Elisha is still able to perform a miracle. 22–23: These verses return to the reign of Jehoahaz; they were inserted by a later redactor to connect with vv. 4–5, and they give another reason for God’s help against the Arameans: his covenant with the patriarchs. 24–25: A reference to the encounter between Elisha and Jehoahaz, stating that his son Jehoash defeated the Arameans three times (see v. 19).

14:1–29: Amaziah of Judah and Jeroboam (II) of Israel. 1–22: Amaziah (ca. 798–769 BCE) waged war against Edom and Israel and was severely defeated by the Israelite king. 1–6: At the beginning of his reign he executes the conspirators who had murdered his father. Described as a bad king, he nevertheless follows the Deutero-and he reigned twenty-nine years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Jehoaddin of Jerusalem. ³He did what was right in the sight of the LORD, yet not like his ancestor David; in all things he did as his father Joash had done. ⁴But the high places were not removed; the people still sacrificed and made offerings on the high places. ⁵As soon as the royal power was firmly in his hand he killed his servants who had murdered his father the king. ⁶But he did not put to death the children of the murderers; according to what is written in the book of the law of Moses, where the LORD commanded, "The parents shall not be put to death for the children, or the children be put to death for the parents; but all shall be put to death for their own sins."

⁷He killed ten thousand Edomites in the Valley of Salt and took Sela by storm; he called it Jokthe-el, which is its name to this day.

⁸Then Amaziah sent messengers to King Jehoash son of Jehoahaz, son of Jehu, of Israel, saying, "Come, let us look one another in the face." ⁹King Jehoash of Israel sent word to King Amaziah of Judah, "A thornbush on Lebanon sent to a cedar on Lebanon, saying, 'Give your daughter to my son for a wife'; but a wild animal of Lebanon passed by and trampled down the thornbush. ¹⁰You have indeed defeated Edom, and your heart has lifted you up. Be content with your glory, and stay at home; for why should you provoke trouble so that you fall, you and Judah with you?"

¹¹But Amaziah would not listen. So King Jehoash of Israel went up; he and King Amaziah of Judah faced one another in battle at Beth-shemesh, which belongs to Judah. ¹²Judah was defeated by Israel; everyone fled home. ¹³King Jehoash of Israel captured King Amaziah of Judah son of Jehoash, son of Ahaziah, at Beth-shemesh; he came to Jerusalem, and broke down the wall of Jerusalem from the Ephraim Gate to the Corner Gate, a distance of four hundred cubits. ¹⁴He seized all the gold and silver, and all the vessels that were found in the house of the LORD and in the treasuries of the king's house, as well as hostages; then he returned to Samaria.

¹⁵Now the rest of the acts that Jehoash did, his might, and how he fought with King Amaziah of Judah, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Israel? ¹⁶Jehoash slept with his ancestors, and was buried in Samaria with the kings of Israel; then his son Jeroboam succeeded him.

¹⁷King Amaziah son of Joash of Judah lived fifteen years after the death of King Jehoash son of Jehoahaz of Israel. ¹⁸Now the rest of the deeds of Amaziah, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Judah? ¹⁹They made a conspiracy against him in Jerusalem, and he fled to Lachish. But they sent after him to Lachish, and killed him there. ²⁰They brought him on horses; he was buried in Jerusalem with his ancestors in the city of David. ²¹All the people of Judah took Azariah, who was sixteen years old, and made him king to succeed his father Amaziah. ²²He rebuilt Elath and restored it to Judah, after King Amaziah^a slept with his ancestors.

²³In the fifteenth year of King Amaziah son of Joash of Judah, King Jeroboam son of

^a Heb the king

nomic law. 6: See Deut 24.16. 7–14: After a successful campaign against the Edomites he defeats the much stronger king of Israel. 7: The Valley of Salt (see 2 Sam 8.13) probably refers to the area south of the Dead Sea. Sela ("rock") is a common noun, which is also employed as a proper name to designate several rocky places, including the capital of Edom. 9: The Israelite king compares Amaziah of Judah to a thornbush easily trampled down by any wild animal (for another fable about trees and the thornbush, see Judg 9.7–15). 11: Beth-shemesh, ca. 16 mi (25 km) west of Jerusalem, a city that Israel and Judah both claimed as belonging to their territory. 13: Four hundred cubits, ca. 583 ft (177 m). 14: The deportation of the vessels from the Temple foreshadows its destruction and the deportation of its precious objects by the Babylonians in 25.14–15. 15–16: see 13.10–13. 17–22: The names and the motives of the movers of the conspiracy against Amaziah are not mentioned. 19: The king's unsuccessful flight to Lachish, Judah's second city, ca. 28 mi (45 km) southwest of Jerusalem, suggests that the conspirators controlled the capital. 21–22: The people of Judah may also be translated as the "army of Judah," which would suggest that the king's young son Azariah (see 15.1–7) was brought to the throne by the military. 22: Azariah continues to exercise control over Edom by reintegrating the port of Elath (1 Kings 9.26) into Judean

Joash of Israel began to reign in Samaria; he reigned forty-one years. ²⁴ He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD; he did not depart from all the sins of Jeroboam son of Nebat, which he caused Israel to sin. ²⁵ He restored the border of Israel from Lebo-hamath as far as the Sea of the Arabah, according to the word of the LORD, the God of Israel, which he spoke by his servant Jonah son of Amittai, the prophet, who was from Gath-hepher. ²⁶ For the LORD saw that the distress of Israel was very bitter; there was no one left, bond or free, and no one to help Israel. ²⁷ But the LORD had not said that he would blot out the name of Israel from under heaven, so he saved them by the hand of Jeroboam son of Joash.

²⁸ Now the rest of the acts of Jeroboam, and all that he did, and his might, how he fought, and how he recovered for Israel Damascus and Hamath, which had belonged to Judah, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Israel? ²⁹ Jeroboam slept with his ancestors, the kings of Israel; his son Zechariah succeeded him.

15 In the twenty-seventh year of King Jeroboam of Israel King Azariah son of Amaziah of Judah began to reign. ² He was sixteen years old when he began to reign, and he reigned fifty-two years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Jecoliah of Jerusalem. ³ He did what was right in the sight of the LORD, just as his father Amaziah had done. ⁴ Nevertheless the high places were not taken away; the people still sacrificed and made offerings on the high places. ⁵ The LORD struck the king, so that he was leprous^a to the day of his death, and lived in a separate house. Jotham the king's son was in charge of the palace, governing the people of the land. ⁶ Now the rest of the acts of Azariah, and all that he did, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Judah? ⁷ Azariah slept with his ancestors; they buried him with his ancestors in the city of David; his son Jotham succeeded him.

⁸ In the thirty-eighth year of King Azariah of Judah, Zechariah son of Jeroboam reigned over Israel in Samaria six months. ⁹ He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, as his ancestors had done. He did not depart from the sins of Jeroboam son of Nebat, which he caused Israel to sin. ¹⁰ Shallum son of Jabesh conspired against him, and struck him down in public and killed him, and reigned in place of him. ¹¹ Now the rest of the deeds of Zechariah are written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Israel. ¹² This was the promise of the LORD that he gave to Jehu, "Your sons shall sit on the throne of Israel to the fourth generation." And so it happened.

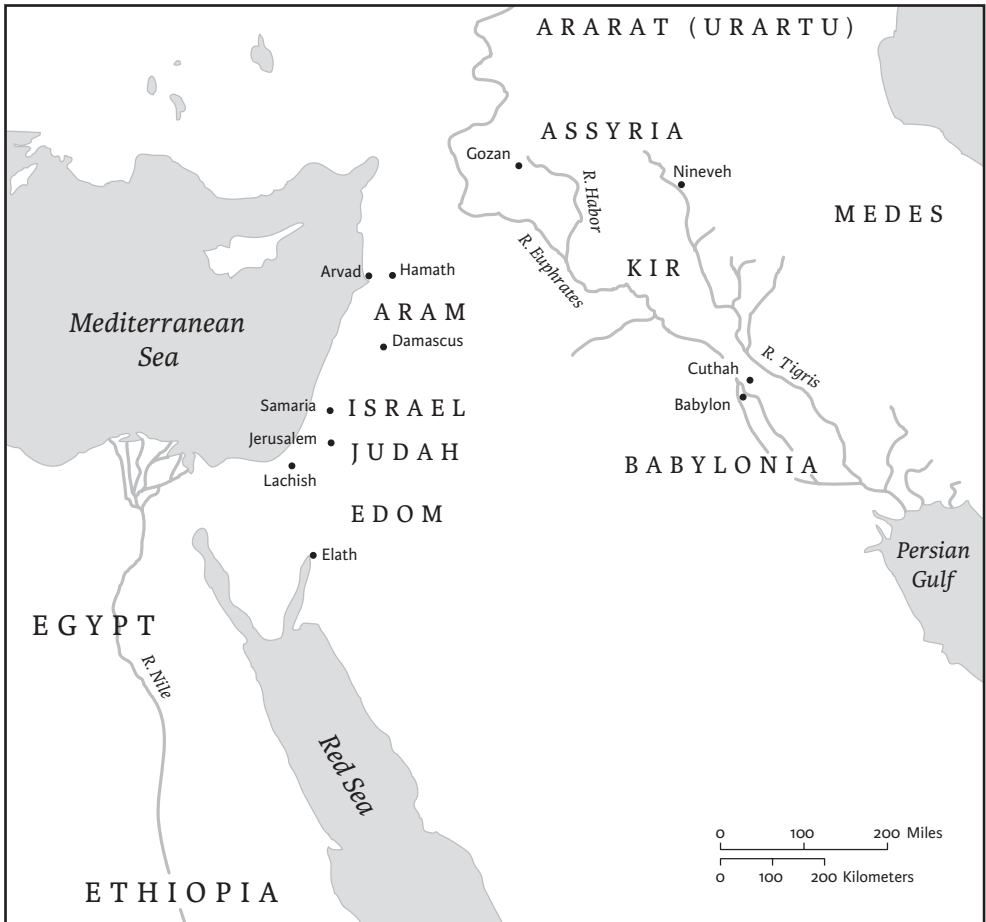

¹³ Shallum son of Jabesh began to reign in the thirty-ninth year of King Uzziah of Judah; he reigned one month in Samaria. ¹⁴ Then Menahem son of Gadi came up from Tirzah and came to Samaria; he struck down Shallum son of Jabesh in Samaria and killed him; he reigned in place of him. ¹⁵ Now the rest of the deeds of Shallum, including the con-territory. 23–29: Jeroboam II, who had an exceptionally long reign (ca. 788–747 BCE, probably including a coregency with his father), and who brought Israel to power and wealth, is treated very briefly in the book of Kings; the books of Hosea and Amos also refer to his rule. 25: Lebo-hamath, see 1 Kings 8.65n. The prophecy to which this verse refers is not found elsewhere in the Bible and is attributed to a nationalistic prophet named Jonah son of Amittai, whose name is given to the protagonist of the book of Jonah (see Jon 1.1). Gath-hepher is in southern Galilee about 14 mi (23 km) northeast of Megiddo. 26: That the LORD sees Israel's distress recalls 13.4 as well as Ex 3.7 and Deut 26.7. God cares for Israel in spite of its bad kings. 28: Jeroboam recovered . . . Damascus and Hamath, this assertion of territorial expansion is puzzling, since neither city ever belonged to Israel.

^a A term for several skin diseases; precise meaning uncertain

15.1–7: Azariah of Judah. Also called Uzziah, which may be his throne name, this Judean king is presented positively but very briefly. Many scholars think that some of his long reign of fifty-two years (ca. 792–740) included a coregency with his son. 5: He was struck with a skin disease (leprosy; see textual note a) and due to his ritual impurity had to live in a separate house, in quarantine, and had to hand over regency to his son Jotham during his lifetime. 5: People of the land, see 11.14n.

15.8–31: Israel's last kings. 8–12: The assassination of Zechariah after a brief reign (ca. 747 BCE) is presented as the fulfillment of God's oracle that Jehu's dynasty would last four generations (compare v. 12 with 10.30). 13–16: Shallum, Zechariah's murderer, holds power for only one month (747 BCE), when he is killed by Menahem.

Chs 15–21: Assyria and Israel and Judah.

spiry that he made, are written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Israel. ¹⁶ At that time Menahem sacked Tiphshah, all who were in it and its territory from Tirzah on; because they did not open it to him, he sacked it. He ripped open all the pregnant women in it.

¹⁷ In the thirty-ninth year of King Azariah of Judah, Menahem son of Gadi began to reign over Israel; he reigned ten years in Sa-

maria. ¹⁸ He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD; he did not depart all his days from any of the sins of Jeroboam son of Nebat, which he caused Israel to sin. ¹⁹ King Pul of Assyria came against the land; Menahem gave Pul a thousand talents of silver, so that he might help him confirm his hold on the royal power. ²⁰ Menahem exacted the money from Israel, that is, from all the wealthy, fifty

14: Tirzah was the former capital of the Northern Kingdom; see 1 Kings 14.17–18n. 16: This verse, which stands between the concluding formula of Shallum's reign and the beginning of Menahem's rule, reports the new king's atrocities. Tiphshah is probably to be identified, as suggested by the LXX, with Tappuah, ca. 9 mi (15 km) south of Shechem. The only Tiphshah known otherwise is located on the Euphrates (see 1 Kings 4.24). He ripped open all the pregnant women, such horrific action was a common feature of warfare in the ancient Near East (see 8.12; Am 1.13). 17–22: Menahem (ca. 747–737 BCE) had to submit to the Assyrians. 19: King Pul, another name for the Assyrian king Tiglath-pileser III (see v. 29); with the reign of this king (ca. 745–727 BCE) Assyrian domination in the west was firmly established. A thousand talents of silver, ca. 75,000 lb (34,000 kg). 20: In order to pay this shekels of silver from each one, to give to the king of Assyria. So the king of Assyria turned back, and did not stay there in the land.

²¹ Now the rest of the deeds of Menahem, and all that he did, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Israel?

²² Menahem slept with his ancestors, and his son Pekahiah succeeded him.

²³ In the fiftieth year of King Azariah of Judah, Pekahiah son of Menahem began to reign over Israel in Samaria; he reigned two years. ²⁴ He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD; he did not turn away from the sins of Jeroboam son of Nebat, which he caused Israel to sin. ²⁵ Pekah son of Remaliah, his captain, conspired against him with fifty of the Gileadites, and attacked him in Samaria, in the citadel of the palace along with Argob and Arieah; he killed him, and reigned in place of him. ²⁶ Now the rest of the deeds of Pekahiah, and all that he did, are written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Israel.

²⁷ In the fifty-second year of King Azariah of Judah, Pekah son of Remaliah began to reign over Israel in Samaria; he reigned twenty years. ²⁸ He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD; he did not depart from the sins of Jeroboam son of Nebat, which he caused Israel to sin.

²⁹ In the days of King Pekah of Israel, King Tiglath-pileser of Assyria came and captured Ijon, Abel-beth-maacah, Janoah, Kedesh, Hazor, Gilead, and Galilee, all the land of Naphtali; and he carried the people captive to Assyria. ³⁰ Then Hoshea son of Elah made a conspiracy against Pekah son of Remaliah, attacked him, and killed him; he reigned in place of him, in the twentieth year of Jotham son of Uzziah. ³¹ Now the rest of the acts of Pekah, and all that he did, are written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Israel.

³² In the second year of King Pekah son of Remaliah of Israel, King Jotham son of Uzziah of Judah began to reign. ³³ He was twenty-five years old when he began to reign and reigned sixteen years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Jerusha daughter of Zadok. ³⁴ He did what was right in the sight of the LORD, just as his father Uzziah had done. ³⁵ Nevertheless the high places were not removed; the people still sacrificed and made offerings on the high places. He built the upper gate of the house of the LORD. ³⁶ Now the rest of the acts of Jotham, and all that he did, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Judah? ³⁷ In those days the LORD began to send King Rezin of Aram and Pekah son of Remaliah against Judah. ³⁸ Jotham slept with his ancestors, and was buried with his ancestors in the city of David, his ancestor; his son Ahaz succeeded him.

16 In the seventeenth year of Pekah son of Remaliah, King Ahaz son of Jotham of Judah began to reign. ² Ahaz was twenty tribute and to prevent the annexation of his kingdom, Menahem raises special taxes. Fifty shekels, ca. 20 oz (570 gr). 23–26: Pekahiah (737–735 BCE), too, is the victim of conspiracy, which illustrates the chaotic situation. His murderer, Pekah, has a shortened form of the same name. 25: The usurper is supported by fifty Gileadites, which suggests intertribal rivalry. Argob and Arieah (“lion”) may be place names transferred from v. 29; another view is that these are the names of two sphinxlike statues at the entrance of the palace. 27–31: There are several problems concerning Pekah's reign, and some scholars wonder if this king really existed (see also the lack of chronological precision in v. 29). If so, his reign must have been much shorter (ca. 735–732). 29: The localities mentioned here probably refer to different campaigns of Tiglath-pileser III. Important territories in the north and the east of Israel were transformed into Assyrian provinces, and deportation of some of the population also took place. 30: According to Assyrian sources, Hoshea conspired against Pekah with Assyrian support. In the twentieth year of Jotham, this indication for Pekah's assassination is clumsy. According to 16.1 it was during Pekah's reign that Jotham's son acceded to the throne.

15.32–16.20: Jotham and Ahaz, kings of Judah. 15.32–38: Jotham (ca. 759–743 BCE) had already been exercising power in Judah during his father's illness (15.5); the sixteen years of reign include this coregency. 33: His mother was a daughter of Zadok, which may indicate a priestly lineage; see 1 Kings 1.38–39; 2 Sam 8.17. 35: He built the upper gate, it is not clear if this is a new construction or a rebuilding of a formerly damaged gate (see 14.13–14; the upper gate is also mentioned in Ezek 9.2). 2 Chr 27 adds much more building activity during Jotham's reign. 37: The attacks by the kings Rezin of Aram and Pekah of Israel (see 16.5–9) are the context of Isa 7–9. 16.1–20: Ahaz (ca. 743/735–727/715 BCE; the exact chronology of his reign is much debated) is described as years old when he began to reign; he reigned sixteen years in Jerusalem. He did not do what was right in the sight of the LORD his God, as his ancestor David had done,³ but he walked in the way of the kings of Israel. He even made his son pass through fire, according to the abominable practices of the nations whom the LORD drove out before the people of Israel.⁴ He sacrificed and made offerings on the high places, on the hills, and under every green tree.

⁵ Then King Rezin of Aram and King Pekah son of Remaliah of Israel came up to wage war on Jerusalem; they besieged Ahaz but could not conquer him. ⁶ At that time the king of Edom^a recovered Elath for Edom,^b and drove the Judeans from Elath; and the Edomites came to Elath, where they live to this day. ⁷ Ahaz sent messengers to King Tiglath-pileser of Assyria, saying, "I am your servant and your son. Come up, and rescue me from the hand of the king of Aram and from the hand of the king of Israel, who are attacking me." ⁸ Ahaz also took the silver and gold found in the house of the LORD and in the treasures of the king's house, and sent a present to the king of Assyria. ⁹ The king of Assyria listened to him; the king of Assyria marched up against Damascus, and took it, carrying its people captive to Kir; then he killed Rezin.

¹⁰ When King Ahaz went to Damascus to meet King Tiglath-pileser of Assyria, he saw the altar that was at Damascus. King Ahaz sent to the priest Uriah a model of the altar, and its pattern, exact in all its details. ¹¹ The priest Uriah built the altar; in accordance with all that King Ahaz had sent from Damascus, just so did the priest Uriah build it, before King Ahaz arrived from Damascus. ¹² When the king came from Damascus, the king viewed the altar. Then the king drew near to the altar, went up on it, ¹³ and offered his burnt offering and his grain offering, poured his drink offering, and dashed the blood of his offerings of well-being against the altar. ¹⁴ The bronze altar that was before the LORD he removed from the front of the house, from the place between his altar and the house of the LORD, and put it on the north side of his altar. ¹⁵ King Ahaz commanded the priest Uriah, saying, "Upon the great altar offer the morning burnt offering, and the evening grain offering, and the king's burnt offering, and his grain offering, with the burnt offering of all the people of the land, their grain offering, and their drink offering; then dash against it all the blood of the burnt offering, and all the blood of the sacrifice; but the bronze altar shall be for me to inquire by." ¹⁶ The priest Uriah did everything that King Ahaz commanded.

¹⁷ Then King Ahaz cut off the frames of the stands, and removed the laver from them; he removed the sea from the bronze oxen that were under it, and put it on a pediment of stone. ¹⁸ The covered portal for use on the sabbath that had been built inside the palace, and the outer entrance for the king he removed from^c the house of the LORD. He did

^a Cn: Heb King Rezin of Aram

^b Cn: Heb Aram

^c Cn: Heb lacks from one of Judah's worst kings. 3: He is compared to the northern kings and accused of making his son pass through fire, which may allude to human sacrifice (see 3.27; Jer. 7.31; 19.5). According to Lev 18.21 and Jer 32.35 such sacrifices were offered to a god Molech, whose identity is unclear. 5–9: The reason for the attack of Rezin and Pekah was to force Ahaz to join an anti-Assyrian coalition. 6: During this military crisis Ahaz loses Elath (see 14.22) to the Edomites. 7–8: Ahaz's behavior is similar to that of Menahem of Israel (15.20); he becomes a vassal of the Assyrian king Tiglath-pileser. 9: Tiglath-pileser deports the population of Damascus to Kir (its location is unknown; in Aramaic it can also mean "city"), which according to Am 9.7 is the original Aramean homeland. 10–16: This episode reports the introduction of a new Aramean-style altar to replace the former altar of the Jerusalemite Temple (see 1 Kings 8.64). 10–11: The altar is built by the priest Uriah, also mentioned in Isa 8.2, according to a model of an altar that Ahaz had seen in Damascus. 15: The old bronze altar will serve from now on to inquire by, perhaps by divination (such as reading the entrails of animals sacrificed); see also 2 Chr 28.23. 17: Ahaz apparently removes precious elements of the Temple furnishings, like the bronze oxen supporting the sea (1 Kings 7.23–29). 18: Because of the king of Assyria suggests that Ahaz needed these objects in order to pay tribute to his suzerain.

this because of the king of Assyria.¹⁹ Now the rest of the acts of Ahaz that he did, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Judah?²⁰ Ahaz slept with his ancestors, and was buried with his ancestors in the city of David; his son Hezekiah succeeded him.

17 In the twelfth year of King Ahaz of Judah, Hoshea son of Elah began to reign in Samaria over Israel; he reigned nine years.² He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, yet not like the kings of Israel who were before him.³ King Shalmaneser of Assyria came up against him; Hoshea became his vassal, and paid him tribute.⁴ But the king of Assyria found treachery in Hoshea; for he had sent messengers to King So of Egypt, and offered no tribute to the king of Assyria, as he had done year by year; therefore the king of Assyria confined him and imprisoned him.

⁵ Then the king of Assyria invaded all the land and came to Samaria; for three years he besieged it.⁶ In the ninth year of Hoshea the king of Assyria captured Samaria; he carried the Israelites away to Assyria. He placed them in Halah, on the Habor, the river of Gozan, and in the cities of the Medes.

⁷ This occurred because the people of Israel had sinned against the LORD their God, who had brought them up out of the land of Egypt from under the hand of Pharaoh king of Egypt. They had worshiped other gods⁸ and walked in the customs of the nations whom the LORD drove out before the people of Israel, and in the customs that the kings of Israel had introduced.⁹ The people of Israel secretly did things that were not right against the LORD their God. They built for themselves high places at all their towns, from watchtower to fortified city;¹⁰ they set up for themselves pillars and sacred poles^b on every high hill and under every green tree;¹¹ there they made offerings on all the high places, as the nations did whom the LORD carried away before them. They did wicked things, provoking the LORD to anger;¹² they served idols, of which the LORD had said to them, “You shall not do this.”

¹³ Yet the LORD warned Israel and Judah by every prophet and every seer, saying, “Turn from your evil ways and keep my commandments and my statutes, in accordance with all the law that I commanded your ancestors and that I sent to you by my servants the prophets.”¹⁴ They would not listen but were stubborn, as their ancestors had been, who did not believe in the LORD their God.¹⁵ They despised his statutes, and his covenant that he made with their ancestors, and the warnings that he gave them. They went after false idols and became false; they followed the nations that were around them, concerning whom the LORD had commanded them that they should not do as they did.¹⁶ They rejected all the commandments of the LORD their God and made for themselves cast images of two calves; they made a sacred pole,^c worshiped all the host of heaven, and served Baal.¹⁷ They made their sons and their daughters pass through fire; they used divination and augury; and they sold themselves to do evil in the sight of the LORD, provoking him to anger.

¹⁸ Therefore the LORD was very angry with Israel and removed them out of his sight; none was left but the tribe of Judah alone.

¹⁹ Judah also did not keep the commandments of the LORD their God but walked in

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Heb Asherim

^c Heb Asherah

17:1–41: The end of the kingdom of Israel. 1–4: Hoshea, the last king of Israel (ca. 732–722 BCE) is not considered as bad as his predecessors (see v. 2), probably because of his anti-Assyrian politics. 3–4: Although at the beginning of his reign he is a loyal vassal of the Assyrian king Shalmaneser V (ca. 727–722 BCE), later he tries to find Egyptian support against the Assyrians. 4: King So of Egypt: no Pharaoh with this name is known. So could be a reference to the Egyptian town of Sais, or an incorrect transcription of the Egyptian word for “king.” 5–6: Samaria was taken in 722 BCE, and parts of the population deported to Halah and Habor in northwestern Mesopotamia and to the cities of the Medes farther east. 7–23: This passage is a theological commentary from the Deuteronomistic perspective explaining the reasons for the collapse of Israel. The main reason for the catastrophe is the worship of other gods and the rejection of the LORD and his messengers, the prophets. 16–17: For the two calves, see 1 Kings 12.28–30; sacred pole, see 13.6n. The veneration of the host of heaven (the planets and stars) and the practice of divination and augury will reappear under the reign of the Judean king Manasseh

the customs that Israel had introduced.²⁰ The LORD rejected all the descendants of Israel; he punished them and gave them into the hand of plunderers, until he had banished them from his presence.

²¹ When he had torn Israel from the house of David, they made Jeroboam son of Nebat king. Jeroboam drove Israel from following the LORD and made them commit great sin.

²² The people of Israel continued in all the sins that Jeroboam committed; they did not depart from them²³ until the LORD removed Israel out of his sight, as he had foretold through all his servants the prophets. So Israel was exiled from their own land to Assyria until this day.

²⁴ The king of Assyria brought people from Babylon, Cuthah, Avva, Hamath, and Sepharvaim, and placed them in the cities of Samaria in place of the people of Israel; they took possession of Samaria, and settled in its cities.²⁵ When they first settled there, they did not worship the LORD; therefore the LORD sent lions among them, which killed some of them.²⁶ So the king of Assyria was told, “The nations that you have carried away and placed in the cities of Samaria do not know the law of the god of the land; therefore he has sent lions among them; they are killing them, because they do not know the law of the god of the land.”²⁷ Then the king of Assyria commanded, “Send there one of the priests whom you carried away from there; let him^a go and live there, and teach them the law of the god of the land.”²⁸ So one of the priests whom they had carried away from Samaria came and lived in Bethel; he taught them how they should worship the LORD.

²⁹ But every nation still made gods of its own and put them in the shrines of the high places that the people of Samaria had made, every nation in the cities in which they lived;³⁰ the people of Babylon made Succoth-benoth, the people of Cuth made Nergal, the people of Hamath made Ashima;³¹ the Avvites made Nibhaz and Tartak; the Sepharvites burned their children in the fire to Adrammelech and Anammelech, the gods of Sepharvaim.³² They also worshiped the LORD and appointed from among themselves all sorts of people as priests of the high places, who sacrificed for them in the shrines of the high places.³³ So they worshiped the LORD but also served their own gods, after the manner of the nations from among whom they had been carried away.³⁴ To this day they continue to practice their former customs.

They do not worship the LORD and they do not follow the statutes or the ordinances or the law or the commandment that the LORD commanded the children of Jacob, whom he named Israel.³⁵ The LORD had made a covenant with them and commanded them, “You shall not worship other gods or bow yourselves to them or serve them or sacrifice to them,³⁶ but you shall worship the LORD, who brought you out of the land of Egypt with great power and with an outstretched arm; you shall bow yourselves to him, and to him you shall sacrifice.³⁷ The statutes and the ordinances and the law and the commandment that he wrote for you, you shall always be careful to observe. You shall not

^a Syr Vg: Heb them

(21.3–6). Pass through fire, see 16.3n. 19: Judah also did not keep the commandments of the LORD, a later addition informing the reader that Judah will finally have the same destiny as Israel. 21–23: A summary of the history of the Northern Kingdom of Israel from the Deuteronomistic perspective. 23: So Israel was exiled . . . until this day, probably the original conclusion to the chapter. 24–28: Assyrian policy was to mix conquered populations. 24: These populations are said to come from Babylon; Cuthah, ca. 12 mi (20 km) northeast of Babylon; Avva, probably close to Hamath on the Orontes; and Sepharvaim, probably also in Syria. (See also 18.34; 19.13.) 25: The LORD sent lions, this may either refer to a lion plague (such plagues are also attested in an Assyrian document) or is perhaps a narrative motif (see 1 Kings 13.24; 20.36), which explains how the non-Israelite population adopted the worship of the LORD. 28: After the destruction of Samaria, Bethel continued to be an important religious center for the inhabitants of the former kingdom of Israel (see 1 Kings 12.29–30). 29–40: This passage denounces a syncretistic religion of the “people of Samaria” (now the name of the Assyrian province that replaced the former Northern Kingdom) and is an origin of the Judean polemics against its inhabitants, who will later be called “Samaritans.” 30–31: Nergal was the Babylonian god of the underworld; little is known about the other worship other gods;³⁸ you shall not forget the covenant that I have made with you. You shall not worship other gods,³⁹ but you shall worship the LORD your God; he will deliver you out of the hand of all your enemies.”⁴⁰ They would not listen, however, but they continued to practice their former custom.

Chs 18–20: Places associated with Sennacherib's invasion of Judah.

⁴¹ So these nations worshiped the LORD, but also served their carved images; to this day their children and their children's children continue to do as their ancestors did.

18 In the third year of King Hoshea son of Elah of Israel, Hezekiah son of King Ahaz of Judah began to reign.² He was twenty-five years old when he began to reign; he reigned twenty-nine years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Abi daughter of Zechariah.³ He did what was right in the sight of the LORD just as his ancestor David had done.⁴ He removed the high places, broke down the pillars, and cut down the sacred pole.^a He broke in pieces the bronze serpent that Moses had made, for until those days the people of Israel had made offerings to it; it was called Nehushtan.⁵ He trusted in the LORD the God of Israel; so that there was no one like him among all the kings of Judah after him, or among those who were before him.⁶ For he held fast to the LORD; he did not depart from following him but kept the commandments that the LORD commanded Moses.⁷ The LORD was with him; wherever he went, he prospered. He rebelled against the king of Assyria and would not serve him.⁸ He attacked the Philistines as far as Gaza and its territory, from watchtower to fortified city.

⁹ In the fourth year of King Hezekiah, which was the seventh year of King Hoshea son of Elah of Israel, King Shalmaneser of Assyria came up against Samaria, besieged it,¹⁰ and at the end of three years, took it. In the sixth year of Hezekiah, which was the ninth year of King Hoshea of Israel, Samaria was taken.¹¹ The king of Assyria carried the Israelites away to Assyria, settled them in Halah, on the Habor, the river of Gozan, and in the cities of the Medes,¹² because deities mentioned. 41: This concluding verse resumes v. 33 and introduces the anti-Samaritan polemics into the reader's present (to this day).

^a Heb Asherah

18.1–19.37: King Hezekiah and the siege of Jerusalem. Together with David and Josiah, Hezekiah is one of the most praised kings. The exact chronology of his reign is unclear (ca. 727/715–698/687 BCE) are the most widely accepted possibilities; perhaps he began as coregent in 729, and reigned alone in 715). The decisive event of his reign is the Assyrian siege of Jerusalem in 701 BCE, an event also described in Assyrian sources. 1–6: In the introduction, Hezekiah is described as a religious reformer. 4: He is the first Judean king to remove the high places, which had existed in Judah since the beginnings of the monarchy. He also removed from the Temple the sacred pole (Heb “asherah”), a symbol of the goddess Asherah, who had been venerated as a consort of the LORD. Nehushtan, a bronze serpent associated with Moses (see Num 21.1–9), which may be linked either to the veneration of Asherah or to the Egyptian worship of a snake goddess. 5: This verse ranks Hezekiah even higher than Josiah (but see 23.25) and David. 7–18: Hezekiah's revolt against the Assyrians provokes the siege of Jerusalem by King Sennacherib (ruled ca. 705–681 BCE). The narrative in 18.13–20.19 also appears with some differences in they did not obey the voice of the LORD their God but transgressed his covenant—all that Moses the servant of the LORD had commanded; they neither listened nor obeyed.

¹³In the fourteenth year of King Hezekiah, King Sennacherib of Assyria came up against all the fortified cities of Judah and captured them. ¹⁴King Hezekiah of Judah sent to the king of Assyria at Lachish, saying, “I have done wrong; withdraw from me; whatever you impose on me I will bear.” The king of Assyria demanded of King Hezekiah of Judah three hundred talents of silver and thirty talents of gold. ¹⁵Hezekiah gave him all the silver that was found in the house of the LORD and in the treasuries of the king’s house. ¹⁶At that time Hezekiah stripped the gold from the doors of the temple of the LORD, and from the doorposts that King Hezekiah of Judah had overlaid and gave it to the king of Assyria. ¹⁷The king of Assyria sent the Tartan, the Rabsaris, and the Rabshakeh with a great army from Lachish to King Hezekiah at Jerusalem. They went up and came to Jerusalem. When they arrived, they came and stood by the conduit of the upper pool, which is on the highway to the Fuller’s Field. ¹⁸When they called for the king, there came out to them Eliakim son of Hilkiah, who was in charge of the palace, and Shebna the secretary, and Joah son of Asaph, the recorder.

¹⁹The Rabshakeh said to them, “Say to Hezekiah: Thus says the great king, the king of Assyria: On what do you base this confidence of yours? ²⁰Do you think that mere words are strategy and power for war?

On whom do you now rely, that you have rebelled against me? ²¹See, you are relying now on Egypt, that broken reed of a staff, which will pierce the hand of anyone who leans on it. Such is Pharaoh king of Egypt to all who rely on him. ²²But if you say to me, ‘We rely on the LORD our God,’ is it not he whose high places and altars Hezekiah has removed, saying to Judah and to Jerusalem, ‘You shall worship before this altar in Jerusalem’? ²³Come now, make a wager with my master the king of Assyria: I will give you two thousand horses, if you are able on your part to set riders on them. ²⁴How then can you repulse a single captain among the least of my master’s servants, when you rely on Egypt for chariots and for horsemen? ²⁵Moreover, is it without the LORD that I have come up against this place to destroy it? The LORD said to me, Go up against this land, and destroy it.”

²⁶Then Eliakim son of Hilkiah, and Shebna, and Joah said to the Rabshakeh, “Please speak to your servants in the Aramaic language, for we understand it; do not speak to us in the language of Judah within the hearing of the people who are on the wall.” ²⁷But the Rabshakeh said to them, “Has my master sent me to speak these words to your master and to you, and not to the people sitting on the wall, who are doomed with you to eat their own dung and to drink their own urine?”

²⁸Then the Rabshakeh stood and called out in a loud voice in the language of Judah, “Hear the word of the great king, the king of Assyria! ²⁹Thus says the king: ‘Do not let Hezekiah deceive you, for he will not be

Isa 36–39. 9–12: The summary of the fall of Samaria (see 17.1–6) is background to the siege of Jerusalem. 13–16: Astonishingly Hezekiah submits immediately to the Assyrian king, promising that he would be a loyal vassal, and paying a tribute for which he has to plunder the Temple. 14: Lachish (see 14.19) had become the Assyrian headquarters. 17: In spite of the payment of tribute the Assyrian king wants to take on Jerusalem. This discrepancy with vv. 13–16 may indicate that this verse starts an alternative version of the Assyrian siege. The Tartan (chief commander), the Rabsaris (lit. “chief eunuch”), and the Rabshakeh (lit. “chief butler”) are high Assyrian officials. Only the Rabshakeh plays a role in the following narrative. The upper pool, for the problem of its location see Isa 7.3n. 18: The three Assyrians are faced by three high Judean officials (for the titles see 1 Kings 4.2–6). 19–25: The Rabshakeh’s speech is an example of psychological warfare in the first millennium BCE. In the first part of this speech he alludes to Hezekiah’s reform (v. 22) and claims that the LORD is on the Assyrian side (v. 25). 26–27: These verses provide a transition between the two parts of the Rabshakeh’s speech. The Judean officials do not want him to speak in Hebrew (the language of Judah), but in Aramaic, the principal language of diplomacy in the Assyrian empire, which was not understood by the ordinary people. 27: Eat their own dung, a crude description of the consequences of a long siege. 28–35: Now the Rabshakeh insists on the impotence of Hezekiah able to deliver you out of my hand.³⁰ Do not let Hezekiah make you rely on the LORD by saying, The LORD will surely deliver us, and this city will not be given into the hand of the king of Assyria.’³¹ Do not listen to Hezekiah; for thus says the king of Assyria: ‘Make your peace with me and come out to me; then every one of you will eat from your own vine and your own fig tree, and drink water from your own cistern,³² until I come and take you away to a land like your own land, a land of grain and wine, a land of bread and vineyards, a land of olive oil and honey, that you may live and not die. Do not listen to Hezekiah when he misleads you by saying, The LORD will deliver us.’³³ Has any of the gods of the nations ever delivered its land out of the hand of the king of Assyria?³⁴ Where are the gods of Hamath and Arpad? Where are the gods of Sepharvaim, Hena, and Ivvah? Have they delivered Samaria out of my hand?³⁵ Who among all the gods of the countries have delivered their countries out of my hand, that the LORD should deliver Jerusalem out of my hand?”

³⁶ But the people were silent and answered him not a word, for the king’s command was, “Do not answer him.”³⁷ Then Eliakim son of Hilkiah, who was in charge of the palace, and Shebna the secretary, and Joah son of Asaph, the recorder, came to Hezekiah with their clothes torn and told him the words of the Rabshakeh.

19 When King Hezekiah heard it, he tore his clothes, covered himself with sackcloth, and went into the house of the LORD.² And he sent Eliakim, who was in charge of the palace, and Shebna the secretary, and the senior priests, covered with sackcloth, to the prophet Isaiah son of Amoz.³ They said to him, “Thus says Hezekiah, This day is a day of distress, of rebuke, and of disgrace;

children have come to the birth, and there is no strength to bring them forth.⁴ It may be that the LORD your God heard all the words of the Rabshakeh, whom his master the king of Assyria has sent to mock the living God, and will rebuke the words that the LORD your God has heard; therefore lift up your prayer for the remnant that is left.”⁵ When the servants of King Hezekiah came to Isaiah,⁶ Isaiah said to them, “Say to your master, “Thus says the LORD: Do not be afraid because of the words that you have heard, with which the servants of the king of Assyria have reviled me.⁷ I myself will put a spirit in him, so that he shall hear a rumor and return to his own land; I will cause him to fall by the sword in his own land.”

⁸ The Rabshakeh returned, and found the king of Assyria fighting against Libnah; for he had heard that the king had left Lachish.⁹ When the king^a heard concerning King Tirhakah of Ethiopia,^b “See, he has set out to fight against you,” he sent messengers again to Hezekiah, saying,¹⁰ “Thus shall you speak to King Hezekiah of Judah: Do not let your God on whom you rely deceive you by promising that Jerusalem will not be given into the hand of the king of Assyria.¹¹ See, you have heard what the kings of Assyria have done to all lands, destroying them utterly. Shall you be delivered?¹² Have the gods of the nations delivered them, the nations that my predecessors destroyed, Gozan, Haran, Rezeph, and the people of Eden who were in Telassar?¹³ Where is the king of Hamath, the king of Arpad, the king of the city of Sepharvaim, the king of Hena, or the king of Ivvah?”

¹⁴ Hezekiah received the letter from the hand of the messengers and read it; then

^a Heb he

^b Or Nubia; Heb Cush

and the LORD, claiming that no god of any country was able to resist the Assyrians and their gods (v. 33). 32: Cf. Deut 8.7–9. 34: A list of cities conquered by the Assyrians; see 17.24. Arpad, the capital of an Aramean state, which had joined an anti-Assyrian coalition. 36–37: The people and the officials do not react to these words. The action now moves to Hezekiah. 37: Clothes torn (see also 19.1), an act of remorse. 19.1–7: Hezekiah consults the prophet Isaiah who announces to the king’s messengers an oracle of salvation. 7: The LORD will put a spirit into the mind of the Assyrian king in order to entice him, ultimately to his death (cf. 1 Kings 22.20–23). 8–13: The withdrawal of the Assyrian army at this stage seems odd. Verses 8–9 may belong to a source older than the surrounding verses. 8: Libnah, see 8.22n. 9: Tirhakah of Ethiopia became the ruler of Egypt in 689 BCE and was only a young boy during the siege of Jerusalem in 701—this suggests that this section is not historically accurate but

Hezekiah went up to the house of the LORD and spread it before the LORD. ¹⁵ And Hezekiah prayed before the LORD, and said: “O LORD the God of Israel, who are enthroned above the cherubim, you are God, you alone, of all the kingdoms of the earth; you have made heaven and earth. ¹⁶ Incline your ear, O LORD, and hear; open your eyes, O LORD, and see; hear the words of Sennacherib, which he has sent to mock the living God. ¹⁷ Truly, O LORD, the kings of Assyria have laid waste the nations and their lands, ¹⁸ and have hurled their gods into the fire, though they were no gods but the work of human hands—wood and stone—and so they were destroyed. ¹⁹ So now, O LORD our God, save us, I pray you, from his hand, so that all the kingdoms of the earth may know that you, O LORD, are God alone.”

²⁰ Then Isaiah son of Amoz sent to Hezekiah, saying, “Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel: I have heard your prayer to me about King Sennacherib of Assyria. ²¹ This is the word that the LORD has spoken concerning him:

She despises you, she scorns you—
virgin daughter Zion;
she tosses her head—behind your back,
daughter Jerusalem.

²² “Whom have you mocked and reviled?
Against whom have you raised your voice
and haughtily lifted your eyes?
Against the Holy One of Israel!

²³ By your messengers you have mocked
the Lord,
and you have said, ‘With my many chariots
I have gone up the heights of the mountains,
to the far recesses of Lebanon;

I felled its tallest cedars,
its choicest cypresses;
I entered its farthest retreat,
its densest forest.
²⁴ I dug wells
and drank foreign waters,
I dried up with the sole of my foot
all the streams of Egypt.’

²⁵ “Have you not heard that I determined it long ago?
I planned from days of old
what now I bring to pass,
that you should make fortified cities
crash into heaps of ruins, ²⁶ while their inhabitants, shorn of strength,
are dismayed and confounded;
they have become like plants of the field
and like tender grass,
like grass on the housetops,
blighted before it is grown.

²⁷ “But I know your rising^a and your sitting,
your going out and coming in,
and your raging against me.

²⁸ Because you have raged against me and your arrogance has come to my ears,

I will put my hook in your nose
and my bit in your mouth;
I will turn you back on the way
by which you came.

²⁹ “And this shall be the sign for you: This year you shall eat what grows of itself, and in the second year what springs from that; then in the third year sow, reap, plant vineyards, and eat their fruit. ³⁰ The surviving remnant

^a Gk Compare Isa 37:27 QMs: MT lacks rising

is legendary. 10–13: This new Assyrian propaganda repeats the arguments of 18.32–35. 14: Hezekiah is informed of this by a letter, a small scroll that he could spread out. 15–19: Hezekiah’s prayer depicts him as a pious king who affirms that the LORD is the only true God. 15: Cherubim: see 1 Kings 6.23–28. 18: Have hurled their gods into fire, the Assyrians did indeed capture and sometimes destroy divine statues, not by burning them however, but by breaking them into pieces. 20–34: A second prophecy of Isaiah brings God’s response to Hezekiah’s prayer. 21–28: These verses contain an oracle against the Assyrian king Sennacherib, whose word (vv. 10–13) is now opposed to the LORD’s word. 21: Virgin daughter Zion, both Israelite and foreign cities are often represented as female, especially in poetry. 28: I will put my hook in your nose, it was Assyrian practice to humiliate vassals and prisoners; here the LORD does this to Assyria. 29–31: The second response is directed to Hezekiah. The theme of a sign is often linked with the prophet Isaiah (20.9; Isa 7:11; 8:1), as is the theme of a surviving remnant (Isa of the house of Judah shall again take root downward, and bear fruit upward; ³¹for from Jerusalem a remnant shall go out, and from Mount Zion a band of survivors. The zeal of the LORD of hosts will do this.

³²“Therefore thus says the LORD concerning the king of Assyria: He shall not come into this city, shoot an arrow there, come before it with a shield, or cast up a siege ramp against it. ³³By the way that he came, by the same he shall return; he shall not come into this city, says the LORD. ³⁴For I will defend this city to save it, for my own sake and for the sake of my servant David.”

³⁵That very night the angel of the LORD set out and struck down one hundred eighty-five thousand in the camp of the Assyrians; when morning dawned, they were all dead bodies. ³⁶Then King Sennacherib of Assyria left, went home, and lived at Nineveh. ³⁷As he was worshiping in the house of his god Nisroch, his sons Adrammelech and Sharezer killed him with the sword, and they escaped into the land of Ararat. His son Esar-haddon succeeded him.

20 In those days Hezekiah became sick and was at the point of death. The prophet Isaiah son of Amoz came to him, and said to him, “Thus says the LORD: Set your house in order, for you shall die; you shall not recover.” ² Then Hezekiah turned his face to the wall and prayed to the LORD: ³ “Remember now, O LORD, I implore you, how I have walked before you in faithfulness with a whole heart, and have done what is good in your sight.” Hezekiah wept bitterly. ⁴ Before Isaiah had gone out of the middle court, the word of the LORD came to him: ⁵ “Turn back, and say to Hezekiah prince of my people, Thus says the LORD, the God of your ancestor David: I have heard your prayer, I have seen your tears; indeed, I will heal you; on the third day you shall go up to the house of the LORD. ⁶ I will add fifteen years to your life. I will deliver you and this city out of the hand of the king of Assyria; I will defend this city for my own sake and for my servant David’s sake.” ⁷ Then Isaiah said, “Bring a lump of figs. Let them take it and apply it to the boil, so that he may recover.”

⁸ Hezekiah said to Isaiah, “What shall be the sign that the LORD will heal me, and that I shall go up to the house of the LORD on the third day?” ⁹ Isaiah said, “This is the sign to you from the LORD, that the LORD will do the thing that he has promised: the shadow has now advanced ten intervals; shall it retreat ten intervals?” ¹⁰ Hezekiah answered, “It is normal for the shadow to lengthen ten intervals; rather let the shadow retreat ten intervals.” ¹¹ The prophet Isaiah cried to the LORD; and he brought the shadow back the ten intervals, by which the sun^a had declined on the dial of Ahaz.

¹² At that time King Merodach-baladan son of Baladan of Babylon sent envoys with letters and a present to Hezekiah, for he had

^a Syr See Isa 38.8 and Tg: Heb it

10.21–22). 32–34: The LORD reaffirms that he will defend Jerusalem, which is his home and the capital city of the kingdom ruled by the dynasty founded by David, his servant; see 38.6; Ps 132.11,13–18. 35–37: The prophetic word is fulfilled, and the Assyrian army abandons the siege. 35: The LORD’s angel striking Israel’s enemies recalls Ex 12. One hundred eighty-five thousand, an exaggerated number emphasizing the strength of the Assyrian army and the LORD’s great power. 36: Assyrian records are silent about the circumstances under which the assault of Jerusalem concluded. 37: The assassination of Sennacherib (in approximately 681 BCE, twenty years later) is corroborated by Assyrian documents, which, however, do not give clear details. His successor Esar-haddon ruled ca. 681–669 BCE. Ararat is in Armenia.

20.1–21: Isaiah heals Hezekiah and announces the Babylonian exile. The last story about Hezekiah brings some ambiguity to his portrait because his actions appear to hasten the end of Judah. 1–7: Struck with a life-threatening illness, Hezekiah’s prayer receives a favorable response through Isaiah. 6: I will add fifteen years, this oracle led the redactors to date the siege of Jerusalem in the fourteenth year (18.13) of Hezekiah’s twenty-nine year reign (18.2). The verse also suggests that Hezekiah’s illness happened during the Assyrian siege. 7: Isaiah also has medical skills and heals the king’s disease with a fig-poultice. 8–11: Hezekiah seems to doubt that he will recover complete health. He is given a sign: a shadow’s movement is reversed. 11: The dial of Ahaz, lit. “the steps of Ahaz.” The expression may allude to an otherwise unknown construction with steps, perhaps used as heard that Hezekiah had been sick. ¹³ Hezekiah welcomed them;^a he showed them all his treasure house, the silver, the gold, the spices, the precious oil, his armory, all that was found in his storehouses; there was nothing in his house or in all his realm that Hezekiah did not show them. ¹⁴ Then the prophet Isaiah came to King Hezekiah, and said to him, “What did these men say? From where did they come to you?” Hezekiah answered, “They have come from a far country, from Babylon.” ¹⁵ He said, “What have they seen in your house?” Hezekiah answered, “They have seen all that is in my house; there is nothing in my storehouses that I did not show them.”

¹⁶ Then Isaiah said to Hezekiah, “Hear the word of the LORD: ¹⁷ Days are coming when all that is in your house, and that which your ancestors have stored up until this day, shall be carried to Babylon; nothing shall be left, says the LORD. ¹⁸ Some of your own sons who are born to you shall be taken away; they shall be eunuchs in the palace of the king of Babylon.” ¹⁹ Then Hezekiah said to Isaiah, “The word of the LORD that you have spoken is good.” For he thought, “Why not, if there will be peace and security in my days?”

²⁰ The rest of the deeds of Hezekiah, all his power, how he made the pool and the conduit and brought water into the city, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Judah? ²¹ Hezekiah slept with his ancestors; and his son Manasseh succeeded him.

21 Manasseh was twelve years old when he began to reign; he reigned fifty-five years in Jerusalem. His mother’s name was Hephzibah. ² He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, following the abominable practices of the nations that the LORD drove out before the people of Israel. ³ For he rebuilt the high places that his father Hezekiah had destroyed; he erected altars for Baal, made a sacred pole,^b as King Ahab of Israel had done, worshiped all the host of heaven, and served them. ⁴ He built altars in the house of the LORD, of which the LORD had said, “In Jerusalem I will put my name.” ⁵ He built altars for all the host of heaven in the two courts of the house of the LORD. ⁶ He made his son pass through fire; he practiced soothsaying and augury, and dealt with mediums and with wizards. He did much evil in the sight of the LORD, provoking him to anger. ⁷ The carved image of Asherah that he had made he set in the house of which the LORD said to David and to his son Solomon, “In this house, and in Jerusalem, which I have chosen out of all the tribes of Israel, I will put my name forever; ⁸ I will not cause the feet of Israel to wander any more out of the land that I gave to their ancestors, if only they will be careful to do according to all that I have commanded them, and according to all the law that my servant Moses commanded them.” ⁹ But they did not listen; Manasseh misled them to do more evil than the nations had done that the LORD destroyed before the people of Israel.

¹⁰ The LORD said by his servants the prophets, ¹¹ “Because King Manasseh of Judah has committed these abominations,

^a Gk Vg Syr: Heb When Hezekiah heard about them

^b Heb Asherah

a sanctuary for the sun-god and as a sundial. 12–15: The strange episode about a Babylonian embassy recalls the visit of the queen of Sheba to Solomon and thus establishes a parallel between Hezekiah and Solomon. 12: Merodach-baladan, a Babylonian king who ruled 721–710 BCE, and then briefly in 703 (see Isa 39.1). 16–19: Isaiah’s oracle attributes to this embassy a negative meaning, since he predicts the deportation of the Temple’s treasures to Babylon, anticipating chs 24–25. 19: Why not, Hezekiah receives the oracle ambiguously. 20–21: The short conclusion of Hezekiah’s reign mentions a pool and a conduit. The so-called “Hezekiah’s Tunnel” (the Siloam Tunnel) is still extant under the city of David in Jerusalem.

21.1–26: The reigns of Manasseh and Amon. 1–18: For the redactors of the book of Kings, Manasseh is the worst of all Judean kings and is explicitly compared to the northern king Ahab (v. 3). 1: His reign is said to have lasted fifty-five years, which does not exactly fit the probable dates of his reign (698/687–642 BCE). 2–16: Although he had a long reign, the only thing we are told about him is his religious counterreform. He reintroduces the worship of other deities into the Temple, as well as the “sacred pole” (see v. 7; 18.4n.). The long enumeration of his religious failures shows that Manasseh contravened all the important laws of the book of Deuteronomy (v. 2=Deut 18.9; vv. 3,7=Deut 16.21; v. 5=Deut 17.3; v. 6=Deut 18.10–11; v. 16=Deut 19.10). 10–15: In this anony-

has done things more wicked than all that the Amorites did, who were before him, and has caused Judah also to sin with his idols; ¹² therefore thus says the LORD, the God of Israel, I am bringing upon Jerusalem and Judah such evil that the ears of everyone who hears of it will tingle. ¹³ I will stretch over Jerusalem the measuring line for Samaria, and the plummet for the house of Ahab; I will wipe Jerusalem as one wipes a dish, wiping it and turning it upside down. ¹⁴ I will cast off the remnant of my heritage, and give them into the hand of their enemies; they shall become a prey and a spoil to all their enemies, ¹⁵ because they have done what is evil in my sight and have provoked me to anger, since the day their ancestors came out of Egypt, even to this day.”

¹⁶ Moreover Manasseh shed very much innocent blood, until he had filled Jerusalem from one end to another, besides the sin that he caused Judah to sin so that they did what was evil in the sight of the LORD.

¹⁷ Now the rest of the acts of Manasseh, all that he did, and the sin that he committed, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Judah? ¹⁸ Manasseh slept with his ancestors, and was buried in the garden of his house, in the garden of Uzza. His son Amon succeeded him.

¹⁹ Amon was twenty-two years old when he began to reign; he reigned two years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Meshullemeth daughter of Haruz of Jotbah. ²⁰ He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, as his father Manasseh had done. ²¹ He walked in all the way in which his father walked, served the idols that his father served, and worshiped them; ²² he abandoned the LORD, the God of his ancestors, and did not walk in the way of the LORD. ²³ The servants of Amon conspired against him, and killed the king in his house. ²⁴ But the people of the land killed all those who had conspired against King Amon, and the people of the land made his son Josiah king in place of him. ²⁵ Now the rest of the acts of Amon that he did, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Judah? ²⁶ He was buried in his tomb in the garden of Uzza; then his son Josiah succeeded him.

22 Josiah was eight years old when he began to reign; he reigned thirty-one years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Jedidah daughter of Adaiah of Bozkath. ² He did what was right in the sight of the LORD, and walked in all the way of his father David; he did not turn aside to the right or to the left.

³ In the eighteenth year of King Josiah, the king sent Shaphan son of Azaliah, son

mous prophetic oracle, Manasseh is presented as the main culprit responsible for the fall of Jerusalem and the exile. 11: Amorites, traditional inhabitants of the land of Canaan before the Israelites' arrival. 13: Jerusalem will therefore be assessed by the divine architect (cf. Isa 34.11; Lam 2.8; Am 7.7–9), and, like a dangerous building, condemned. It will be emptied of all that is in it, wiped clean like a dish after a meal. This divine judgment parallels that on Samaria (ch 17; Am 7.7–9) and the house of Ahab (1 Kings 21.21–22; 2 Kings 9–10). 17–18: One may reasonably guess that during Manasseh's long reign some important events took place and that his reign was a peaceful time. But the redactors of the book of Kings are not interested in these aspects. 18: Garden of Uzza, see also v. 26; its precise location and significance are debated. 19–26: Amon's short reign (ca. 641–640 BCE) ended with his murder by his court officials. 23: The only other information about his reign has to do with his religious activities: he continued the syncretism of his father. 24: The people of the land (see 11.14n.), probably some of the free landowners, opposed the rebellion and put Amon's son Josiah on the throne.

22.1–23.30: Josiah's reign and reform. For the authors of the book of Kings Josiah (ca. 640–609 BCE) is the perfect king, a new David, but also a new Moses and a new Joshua. In contrast to Hezekiah, Josiah is presented entirely positively. He launches a religious, political, and economic reform and declares the Temple in Jerusalem to be the only legitimate place to worship the LORD. The story contains two different narratives, which are intermingled: the discovery of the “book of the law,” and the religious reform. 22.1: Josiah was eight years old when he came to the throne, which means that Judah was then governed by high officials, probably those mentioned in the following narrative. 2: He did not turn aside to the right or to the left, see Deut 5.32; 17.20; Josh 1.7; etc. 3–10: The report about Josiah repairing the Temple recalls 12.10–16. 3–4: Shaphan and Hilkiah are the main actors in the discovery of the book. Shaphan was a high official, ancestor of an important family of civil servants at the Judean court (see Jer 36). Hilkiah (probably not to be identified with the father of the prophet Jeremiah) of Meshullam, the secretary, to the house of the LORD, saying, ⁴“Go up to the high priest Hilkiah, and have him count the entire sum of the money that has been brought into the house of the LORD, which the keepers of the threshold have collected from the people; ⁵let it be given into the hand of the workers who have the oversight of the house of the LORD; let them give it to the workers who are at the house of the LORD, repairing the house, ⁶that is, to the carpenters, to the builders, to the masons; and let them use it to buy timber and quarried stone to repair the house. ⁷But no accounting shall be asked from them for the money that is delivered into their hand, for they deal honestly.”

⁸The high priest Hilkiah said to Shaphan the secretary, “I have found the book of the law in the house of the LORD.” When Hilkiah gave the book to Shaphan, he read it. ⁹Then Shaphan the secretary came to the king, and reported to the king, “Your servants have emptied out the money that was found in the house, and have delivered it into the hand of the workers who have oversight of the house of the LORD.” ¹⁰Shaphan the secretary informed the king, “The priest Hilkiah has given me a book.” Shaphan then read it aloud to the king.

¹¹When the king heard the words of the book of the law, he tore his clothes. ¹²Then the king commanded the priest Hilkiah, Ahikam son of Shaphan, Achbor son of Micaiah, Shaphan the secretary, and the king’s servant Asaiah, saying, ¹³“Go, inquire of the LORD for me, for the people, and for all Judah, concerning the words of this book that has been found; for great is the wrath of the LORD that is kindled against us, because our ancestors did not obey the words of this book, to do according to all that is written concerning us.”

¹⁴So the priest Hilkiah, Ahikam, Achbor, Shaphan, and Asaiah went to the prophetess Huldah the wife of Shallum son of Tikvah, son of Harhas, keeper of the wardrobe; she resided in Jerusalem in the Second Quarter, where they consulted her. ¹⁵She declared to them, “Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel: Tell the man who sent you to me, ¹⁶Thus says the LORD, I will indeed bring disaster on this place and on its inhabitants—all the words of the book that the king of Judah has read. ¹⁷Because they have abandoned me and have made offerings to other gods, so that they have provoked me to anger with all the work of their hands, therefore my wrath will be kindled against this place, and it will not be quenched. ¹⁸But as to the king of Judah, who sent you to inquire of the LORD, thus shall you say to him, Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel: Regarding the words that you have heard, ¹⁹because your heart was penitent, and you humbled yourself before the LORD, when you heard how I spoke against this place, and against its inhabitants, that they should become a desolation and a curse, and because you have torn your clothes and wept before me, I also have heard you, says the LORD. ²⁰Therefore, I will gather you to your ancestors, and you shall be gathered to your grave in peace; your eyes shall not see all the disaster that I will bring on this place.” They took the message back to the king.

23 Then the king directed that all the elders of Judah and Jerusalem should be gathered to him. ²The king went up to the house of the LORD, and with him went is the high priest, an anachronistic expression (see 12.10n.). 8–10: The book, which reaches the king through Shaphan and Hilkiah is meant to be some form of the book of Deuteronomy. 11: This becomes clear in the king’s reaction of despair and repentance (he tore his clothes), which is provoked by curses like Deut 28.61 and 29.21. 12–20: The king’s consultation of a prophetess through high officials (v. 12) may seem surprising, since he had understood already what the book was about (v. 13). 14: The prophetess Huldah was married to a Temple or court officer, the keeper of the wardrobe (see 10.22) and she lived in the Second Quarter, which refers to a new quarter in the north, built when Jerusalem expanded at the end of the eighth or during the seventh century BCE. 15–18: Huldah’s word confirms the oracle of the unnamed prophets in 21.10–15 (see also Jer 19.14–15). 19–20: Her oracle concerning Josiah is inconsistent with what is reported later, since he did not die in peace but was killed by the Egyptian king (23.29). Perhaps her prophecy meant that Josiah would be spared the agony of Judah’s destruction and exile. 23.1–3: The king himself reads the book to all the people and renews the covenant with the LORD. The “book of the law” can therefore also be called the book of the covenant. This ceremony begins the religious all the people of Judah, all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, the priests, the prophets, and all the people, both small and great; he read in their hearing all the words of the book of the covenant that had been found in the house of the LORD. ³The king stood by the pillar and made a covenant before the LORD, to follow the LORD, keeping his commandments, his decrees, and his statutes, with all his heart and all his soul, to perform the words of this covenant that were written in this book. All the people joined in the covenant.

⁴The king commanded the high priest Hilkiah, the priests of the second order, and the guardians of the threshold, to bring out of the temple of the LORD all the vessels made for Baal, for Asherah, and for all the host of heaven; he burned them outside Jerusalem in the fields of the Kidron, and carried their ashes to Bethel. ⁵He deposed the idolatrous priests whom the kings of Judah had ordained to make offerings in the high places at the cities of Judah and around Jerusalem; those also who made offerings to Baal, to the sun, the moon, the constellations, and all the host of the heavens. ⁶He brought out the image of^a Asherah from the house of the LORD, outside Jerusalem, to the Wadi Kidron, burned it at the Wadi Kidron, beat it to dust and threw the dust of it upon the graves of the common people. ⁷He broke down the houses of the male temple prostitutes that were in the house of the LORD, where the women did weaving for Asherah. ⁸He brought all the priests out of the towns of Judah, and defiled the high places where the priests had made offerings, from Geba to

Beer-sheba; he broke down the high places of the gates that were at the entrance of the gate of Joshua the governor of the city, which were on the left at the gate of the city. ⁹The priests of the high places, however, did not come up to the altar of the LORD in Jerusalem, but ate unleavened bread among their kindred. ¹⁰He defiled Topheth, which is in the valley of Ben-hinnom, so that no one would make a son or a daughter pass through fire as an offering to Molech. ¹¹He removed the horses that the kings of Judah had dedicated to the sun, at the entrance to the house of the LORD, by the chamber of the eunuch Nathan-melech, which was in the precincts;^b then he burned the chariots of the sun with fire. ¹²The altars on the roof of the upper chamber of Ahaz, which the kings of Judah had made, and the altars that Manasseh had made in the two courts of the house of the LORD, he pulled down from there and broke in pieces, and threw the rubble into the Wadi Kidron. ¹³The king defiled the high places that were east of Jerusalem, to the south of the Mount of Destruction, which King Solomon of Israel had built for Astarte the abomination of the Sidonians, for Chemosh the abomination of Moab, and for Milcom the abomination of the Ammonites. ¹⁴He broke the pillars in pieces, cut down the sacred poles,^c and covered the sites with human bones.

¹⁵Moreover, the altar at Bethel, the high place erected by Jeroboam son of Nebat, who

^a Heb lacks image of

^b Meaning of Heb uncertain

^c Heb Asherim

reforms, which are described in vv. 4–20. 4–6: All symbols and statues of other deities are removed from the Temple and destroyed. 4: The Kidron area, which is the valley to the east of the city of David, was used as a burial and burning place (v. 6; see 1 Kings 15.13). 5: Idolatrous priests, a term borrowed from Assyrian where it designates a special type of priests. Host of the heavens, see 17.16–17n. 7–9: This passage relates actions against the religious personnel. 7: Male temple prostitutes, see 1 Kings 22.46n. 8: The priests of the local sanctuaries outside Jerusalem (the towns of Judah) were expelled and the sanctuaries were defiled, so that they could no longer be used for the worship of the LORD. Geba, ca. 6 mi (10 km) north of Jerusalem, in Benjamin, which may indicate that the Benjaminite territory had become part of the kingdom of Judah. 9: The priests of the high places (1 Kings 3.2–4) were not integrated into the personnel of the Temple in Jerusalem. 10–14: Further destructions are reported. 10: Topheth, a place used for human sacrifices (see Jer 7.31). Molech, see 16.3n. 11: Horses, see 2.11n. Precincts (see textual note b), perhaps a Persian word, which indicates that this passage was written during the Persian period. 13: See 1 Kings 11.5–8n. Mount of Destruction, probably a sarcastic wordplay on “mount of oil,” since it refers to the Mount of Olives, where the worship of other deities was practiced. 14: The sites were covered with human bones (see also vv. 16 and 20) in order to make them ritually impure. 15–20: The destruc-

Important cities in Judah in the late seventh and early sixth centuries BCE.

caused Israel to sin—he pulled down that altar along with the high place. He burned the high place, crushing it to dust; he also burned the sacred pole.^a ¹⁶As Josiah turned, he saw the tombs there on the mount; and he sent and took the bones out of the tombs, and burned them on the altar, and defiled it, according to the word of the LORD that the man of God proclaimed,^b when Jeroboam stood by the altar at the festival; he turned and looked up at the tomb of the man of God who had predicted these things. ¹⁷Then he said, “What is that monument that I see?” The people of the city told him, “It is the tomb of the man of God who came from Judah and predicted these things that you have done against the altar at Bethel.” ¹⁸He said, “Let him rest; let no one move his bones.” So they let his bones alone, with the bones of the prophet who came out of Samaria. ¹⁹Moreover, Josiah removed all the shrines of the high places that were in the towns of Samaria, which kings of Israel had made, provoking the LORD to anger; he did to them just as he had done at Bethel. ²⁰He slaughtered on the altars all the priests of the high places who were there, and burned human bones on them. Then he returned to Jerusalem.

²¹The king commanded all the people, “Keep the passover to the LORD your God as prescribed in this book of the covenant.” ²²No such passover had been kept since the days of the judges who judged Israel, even during all the days of the kings of Israel and of the kings of Judah; ²³but in the eighteenth year of King Josiah this passover was kept to the LORD in Jerusalem.

²⁴Moreover Josiah put away the mediums, wizards, teraphim,^c idols, and all the abomi-nations that were seen in the land of Judah and in Jerusalem, so that he established the words of the law that were written in the book that the priest Hilkiah had found in the house of the LORD. ²⁵Before him there was no king like him, who turned to the LORD with all his heart, with all his soul, and with all his might, according to all the law of Moses; nor did any like him arise after him.

²⁶Still the LORD did not turn from the fierceness of his great wrath, by which his anger was kindled against Judah, because of all the provocations with which Manasseh had provoked him. ²⁷The LORD said, “I will remove Judah also out of my sight, as I have removed Israel; and I will reject this city that I have chosen, Jerusalem, and the house of which I said, My name shall be there.”

²⁸Now the rest of the acts of Josiah, and all that he did, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Judah? ²⁹In his days Pharaoh Neco king of Egypt went up to the king of Assyria to the river Euphrates. King Josiah went to meet him; but when Pharaoh Neco met him at Megiddo, he killed him. ³⁰His servants carried him dead in a chariot from Megiddo, brought him to Jerusalem, and buried him in his own tomb. The people of the land took Jehoahaz son of Josiah, anointed him, and made him king in place of his father.

³¹Jehoahaz was twenty-three years old when he began to reign; he reigned three months in Jerusalem. His mother’s name was

^a Heb Asherah

^b Gk: Heb proclaimed, who had predicted these things

^c Or household gods

tion of the sanctuary of Bethel puts an end to the “sin of Jeroboam” (1 Kings 12.29–30). 17–18: Cf. 1 Kings 13.2, 30–31. 21–23: In celebrating the Passover according to the stipulations of Deut 16.1–8, Josiah not only surpasses Hezekiah in faithfulness to the LORD, but even David himself, for such a Passover had not been observed since the days of the judges who judged Israel. 24–25: This outstanding praise continues in the following verses. Josiah is the only king who turned to the LORD with all his heart, with all his soul, and with all his might, a quotation of Deut 6.4–5: Josiah was the only one who stood exactly by this law. 26–27: But even Josiah cannot stop the divine punishment, which is here seen as provoked by Manasseh. 28–30: The laconic report of Josiah’s death at Megiddo (like Ahaziah in 9.27–28) in 609 BCE does not really explain why he was killed by Pharaoh Neco (ruled 610–595 BCE). Either Josiah wanted to prevent Neco from supporting Assyria in its struggle against Babylon, or he had already become a vassal of the Egyptian king, who considered him to be disloyal.

23.30–25.30: The end of Judah. The last four kings are a jarring contrast to Josiah and are all judged with the same negative formula (23.32,37; 24.9,19), but no details about their religious faults are given. 30–33: Jehoahaz, anointed by the people of the land (see 11.14n.), ruled for three months in 609 BCE. He was unacceptable to Neco,

Chs 24–25: Babylon and Judah in the early sixth century BCE.

Hamutal daughter of Jeremiah of Libnah.³² He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, just as his ancestors had done.³³ Pharaoh Neco confined him at Riblah in the land of Hamath, so that he might not reign in Jerusalem, and imposed tribute on the land of one hundred talents of silver and a talent of gold.³⁴ Pharaoh Neco made Eliakim son of Josiah king in place of his father Josiah, and changed his name to Jehoiakim. But he took Jehoahaz away; he came to Egypt, and died there.³⁵ Jehoiakim gave the silver and the gold to Pharaoh, but he taxed the land in order to meet Pharaoh's demand for money. He exacted the silver and the gold from the people of the land, from all according to their assessment, to give it to Pharaoh Neco.

³⁶Jehoiakim was twenty-five years old when he began to reign; he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Zebidah daughter of Pedaiah of Rumah.³⁷ He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, just as all his ancestors had done.

24 In his days King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon came up; Jehoiakim became his servant for three years; then he turned and rebelled against him.² The LORD sent against him bands of the Chaldeans, bands of the Arameans, bands of the Moabites, and bands of the Ammonites; he sent them against Judah to destroy it, according to the word of the LORD that he spoke by his servants the prophets.³ Surely this came upon Judah at the command of the LORD, to remove them out of his sight, for the sins of Manasseh, for all that he had committed,⁴ and also for the innocent blood that he had shed; for he filled Jerusalem with innocent blood, and the LORD was not willing to pardon.⁵ Now the rest of the deeds of Jehoiakim, and all that he did, are they not written in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Judah?⁶ So Jehoiakim slept with his ancestors; then his son Jehoiachin succeeded him.⁷ The king of Egypt did not come again out of his land, for the king of Babylon had taken over all that for a short time Judah's new overlord, who deported him temporarily to Riblah, an important town in northern Syria, which later became headquarters of the Babylonian king Nebuchadnezzar (25.6). 34–35: When making Eliakim the new king, Neco changes his name to Jehoiakim. 36–37: Jehoiakim reigned ca. 608–597 BCE. 24.1: He initially submits to King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon (ruled 605–562 BCE), who had defeated the Assyrians in 605, but then he rebels. 2–7: This rebellion provoked even more military pressure from the neighbors of Judah. 3–4: Sins of Manasseh, see 23.26–27. 7: There is no escape from the king of Babylon who controls the Levant belonged to the king of Egypt from the Wadi of Egypt to the River Euphrates.

⁸ Jehoiachin was eighteen years old when he began to reign; he reigned three months in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Nehushta daughter of Elnathan of Jerusalem. ⁹ He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, just as his father had done.

¹⁰ At that time the servants of King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon came up to Jerusalem, and the city was besieged. ¹¹ King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon came to the city, while his servants were besieging it; ¹² King Jehoiachin of Judah gave himself up to the king of Babylon, himself, his mother, his servants, his officers, and his palace officials. The king of Babylon took him prisoner in the eighth year of his reign.

¹³ He carried off all the treasures of the house of the LORD, and the treasures of the king's house; he cut in pieces all the vessels of gold in the temple of the LORD, which King Solomon of Israel had made, all this as the LORD had foretold. ¹⁴ He carried away all Jerusalem, all the officials, all the warriors, ten thousand captives, all the artisans and the smiths; no one remained, except the poorest people of the land. ¹⁵ He carried away Jehoiachin to Babylon; the king's mother, the king's wives, his officials, and the elite of the land, he took into captivity from Jerusalem to Babylon. ¹⁶ The king of Babylon brought captive to Babylon all the men of valor, seven thousand, the artisans and the smiths, one thousand, all of them strong and fit for war. ¹⁷ The king of Babylon made Mattaniah, Jehoiachin's uncle, king in his place, and changed his name to Zedekiah.

¹⁸ Zedekiah was twenty-one years old when he began to reign; he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Hamutal daughter of Jeremiah of Libnah.

¹⁹ He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, just as Jehoiakim had done. ²⁰ Indeed, Jerusalem and Judah so angered the LORD that he expelled them from his presence.

Zedekiah rebelled against the king of 25 Babylon.¹ And in the ninth year of his reign, in the tenth month, on the tenth day of the month, King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon came with all his army against Jerusalem, and laid siege to it; they built siegeworks against it all around. ² So the city was besieged until the eleventh year of King Zedekiah. ³ On the ninth day of the fourth month the famine became so severe in the city that there was no food for the people of the land. ⁴ Then a breach was made in the city wall;^a the king with all the soldiers fled^b by night by the way of the gate between the two walls, by the king's garden, though the Chaldeans were all around the city. They went in the direction of the Arabah. ⁵ But the army of the Chaldeans pursued the king, and overtook him in the plains of Jericho; all his army was scattered, deserting him. ⁶ Then they captured the king and brought him up to the king of Babylon at Riblah, who passed sentence on him. ⁷ They slaughtered the sons of Zedekiah before his eyes, then put out the eyes of Zedekiah; they bound him in fetters and took him to Babylon.

⁸ In the fifth month, on the seventh day of the month—which was the nineteenth year

^a Heb lacks wall

^b Gk Compare Jer 39.4; 52.7: Heb lacks the king and lacks fled and Mesopotamia (from the Wadi of Egypt to the River Euphrates). 8–17: Jehoiachin has to pay the price for his father's rebellion, a siege of Jerusalem in 597 BCE and his and the court's exile to Babylon. 12: Jehoiachin's quick surrender avoids the destruction of Jerusalem. 13: The Temple and the palace treasures are usually the primary target for booty. 14–16: The numbers of the deported population are probably not based on historical records. Instead of ten thousand, Jer 52.28 has 3,023. 17: The Babylonian king establishes Mattaniah, Jehoiachin's uncle, as king and changes his name to Zedekiah. 18–20: Zedekiah is the last Judean ruler (597–586 BCE). His rebellion provokes the destruction of Jerusalem and the end of the Judean kingdom. Chapter 25: Most of ch 25 is also found, with variations, in Jer 52. 1–7: The result of Zedekiah's disloyal behavior, most likely an alliance with Egypt, was another siege of Jerusalem. 4–5: The king tries to flee with the soldiers (his bodyguard) and is captured in the plains of Jericho. The place of Israel's first victory when conquering the land becomes now a place of defeat. 6–7: His breaking of the loyalty oath is sanctioned with harsh punishment. His sons are killed in order to exterminate the Davidic dynasty. Riblah, see 23.33n. 8–12: Nebuzaradan, a high Babylonian officer, whose of King Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon—Nebuzaradan, the captain of the bodyguard, a servant of the king of Babylon, came to Jerusalem. ⁹ He burned the house of the LORD, the king's house, and all the houses of Jerusalem; every great house he burned down.

¹⁰ All the army of the Chaldeans who were with the captain of the guard broke down the walls around Jerusalem. ¹¹ Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard carried into exile the rest of the people who were left in the city and the deserters who had defected to the king of Babylon—all the rest of the population.

¹² But the captain of the guard left some of the poorest people of the land to be vinedressers and tillers of the soil.

¹³ The bronze pillars that were in the house of the LORD, as well as the stands and the bronze sea that were in the house of the LORD, the Chaldeans broke in pieces, and carried the bronze to Babylon. ¹⁴ They took away the pots, the shovels, the snuffers, the dishes for incense, and all the bronze vessels used in the temple service, ¹⁵ as well as the firepans and the basins. What was made of gold the captain of the guard took away for the gold, and what was made of silver, for the silver. ¹⁶ As for the two pillars, the one sea, and the stands, which Solomon had made for the house of the LORD, the bronze of all these vessels was beyond weighing. ¹⁷ The height of the one pillar was eighteen cubits, and on it was a bronze capital; the height of the capital was three cubits; latticework and pomegranates, all of bronze, were on the capital all around. The second pillar had the same, with the latticework.

¹⁸ The captain of the guard took the chief priest Seraiah, the second priest Zephaniah, and the three guardians of the threshold;

¹⁹ from the city he took an officer who had been in command of the soldiers, and five men of the king's council who were found in the city; the secretary who was the commander of the army who mustered the people of the land; and sixty men of the people of the land who were found in the city. ²⁰ Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard took them, and brought them to the king of Babylon at Riblah. ²¹ The king of Babylon struck them down and put them to death at Riblah in the land of Hamath. So Judah went into exile out of its land.

²² He appointed Gedaliah son of Ahikam son of Shaphan as governor over the people who remained in the land of Judah, whom King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon had left.

²³ Now when all the captains of the forces and their men heard that the king of Babylon had appointed Gedaliah as governor, they came with their men to Gedaliah at Mizpah, namely, Ishmael son of Nethaniah, Johanan son of Kareah, Seraiah son of Tanhumeth the Netophathite, and Jaazaniah son of the Maacathite. ²⁴ Gedaliah swore to them and their men, saying, "Do not be afraid because of the Chaldean officials; live in the land, serve the king of Babylon, and it shall be well with you."

²⁵ But in the seventh month, Ishmael son of Nethaniah son of Elishama, of the royal family, came with ten men; they struck down Gedaliah so that he died, along with the Judeans and Chaldeans who were with him at Mizpah.

²⁶ Then all the people, high and low,^a and the captains of the forces set out and went to Egypt; for they were afraid of the Chaldeans.

²⁷ In the thirty-seventh year of the exile of King Jehoiachin of Judah, in the twelfth

^a Or young and old

title means literally "chief of the butchers," destroys the Temple, the palace, and the city and its walls. He also organizes a second deportation to Babylon, which does not affect the whole population. 13–17: The authors take great interest in the detailed description of the deported Temple furnishings (see 1 Kings 7:15–51). 18–21: Some of the royal officials are executed at Riblah, probably because they belonged to the anti-Babylonian party. 21: So Judah went into exile out of its land, this was perhaps the original conclusion of the edition of the book of Kings in the Babylonian period. 22–26: The episode of Gedaliah's appointment as a governor and his assassination by the nationalistic party is related in greater detail in Jer 40–43. 22: Gedaliah, the grandson of Josiah's secretary Shaphan (23.12). 23: Mizpah, ca. 7 mi (2 km) north of Jerusalem become the administrative center during Babylonian occupation. 25: Ishmael, who kills Gedaliah, is said to be member of the royal family. He fails however to reestablish the Davidic dynasty. 26: The remaining people fled to Egypt. This conclusion seems to wipe out Israel's whole history, which started with the Exodus out of Egypt and now ends with a return to month, on the twenty-seventh day of the month, King Evil-merodach of Babylon, in the year that he began to reign, released King Jehoiachin of Judah from prison;²⁸ he spoke kindly to him, and gave him a seat above the other seats of the kings who were with him in Babylon.²⁹ So Jehoiachin put aside his prison clothes. Every day of his life he dined regularly in the king's presence.³⁰ For his allowance, a regular allowance was given him by the king, a portion every day, as long as he lived.

Egypt. 27–30: This epilogue relates the rehabilitation of Jehoiachin under the Babylonian king Evil-merodach (Amel-marduk, 562–560 BCE), which may be understood as a faint hope for the renewal of the Davidic dynasty. What happens to Jehoiachin also recalls such heroes of Diaspora narratives as Joseph, Mordecai, and Daniel: all are exiles who are liberated from prison (see Gen 41.40; Dan 2.48; Esth 10.3) and become part of the court of the foreign king. The accession to new status is symbolized by the changing of clothes (see Gen 41.24; Dan 5.29; Esth 6.10–11). Jehoiachin could therefore symbolize all the Jews who accepted that their “exile” had become “Diaspora,” a place outside the land of Israel, where they could live their lives.

1 CHRONICLES

NAME AND LOCATION IN CANON

Like other books in the Bible, Chronicles was originally untitled. The title given to it by the early rabbis, “the book of the events of the days” (seper dibre hayyamim), suggests that the book is a history, addressing past events in chronological order; the same phrase is used often in Kings (e.g., 1 Kings 14.19) for one of the sources of the books of Kings. The name of Chronicles in the ancient Greek translation of the Jewish scriptures, the Septuagint, is Paraleipomena, meaning “the things left out”; this name suggests that Chronicles records the events left out of earlier biblical history. These understandings of Chronicles are contested by most modern scholars. It was the church father Jerome’s description of the book as a “chronicle,” a summary of divine history, that has proven to be most influential in the history of modern interpretation.

Like the books of Samuel and Kings, Chronicles was originally one book. It was probably divided by the Greek translators, perhaps because of its length. The break between the two books, however, comes at a natural point, with the notice of the death of King David at the end of 1 Chronicles, and the account of the reign of his successor Solomon at the beginning of 2 Chronicles.

In printed Jewish Bibles, Chronicles is the last book in the third and final division of the canon, the Writings (“Ketubim”), although in some manuscripts it occurs earlier, either as the first of the Writings, or before Ezra-Nehemiah, that is, in chronological order. In Christian Bibles, Chronicles is one of the Historical Books and follows the books of Kings.

AUTHORSHIP AND DATE OF COMPOSITION

Most likely the anonymous author lived in Jerusalem and had great familiarity with the Temple and its assorted traditions. Since the book of Ezra begins where Chronicles ends, with the decree of the Persian king Cyrus the Great that allowed the exiled Jews to return home and rebuild the Temple (538 BCE), some scholars have suggested that Chronicles, Ezra, and its continuation in Nehemiah, had a single author or editor. Other scholars think that the linguistic, thematic, and historiographic differences between Chronicles and Ezra-Nehemiah are too great to posit a common author. In this view, which is followed here, the Chronicler’s history, which begins with the first person (Adam) and ends with the Babylonian exile in 586 BCE and Cyrus’s summons to the exiled Jews to return home (2 Chr 36.21–23), should be separated from the postexilic history of Ezra-Nehemiah. Although there are significant similarities between the Chronicles, Ezra, and Nehemiah, the differences outweigh the similarities, and one individual is unlikely to have written all three works. Hence, in the following pages, “the Chronicler” designates the author of Chronicles.

The Chronicler wrote after much of the Hebrew Bible had already been written, and he draws extensively upon this rich literary tradition. The dependence of Chronicles upon Genesis is evident in the genealogies (1 Chr 1–9); the dependence upon Samuel is clear in the narration of Saul’s demise and David’s reign (1 Chr 10–29); and the dependence upon Kings is unmistakable in the narration of Solomon and the Judahite kingdom (2 Chr 1–36). The Chronicler’s work is also informed by a variety of other biblical texts. Citations from or allusions to the Torah and the books of Joshua, Isaiah, Jeremiah, Ezekiel, Psalms, and Ruth all appear in Chronicles. Scholars generally agree that the Chronicler also had access to sources that did not become part of the Bible, but their nature and extent are disputed.

It is difficult to date Chronicles precisely, beyond noting that it must be postexilic, since it begins with Cyrus’s decree. A range of over three hundred and fifty years, from the late sixth to the mid-second century BCE, has been suggested for its time of composition. A date in the fourth century seems most plausible, because it would account both for the author’s references to other biblical writings and for literary features within the work that anticipate similar features in Jewish Hellenistic writings. But there are no specific references, no absolute synchronisms, and no extrabiblical citations that definitively date the book to a given decade or quarter-century.

STRUCTURE, CONTENTS, AND INTERPRETATION

Chronicles has three major sections: the genealogies (1 Chr 1–9), the history of the United Monarchy (1 Chr 10–2 Chr 9), and the history of the Judahite monarchy (2 Chr 10–36). The first section, which forms the introduction to the work, begins with Adam (1 Chr 1), but focuses upon the identity, interrelationships, and location of Israel's many tribes (1 Chr 2–9). In traditional societies such genealogies explain and justify the place and function of various individuals, people, and institutions. In the case of 1 Chr 1–8, the Chronicler stresses the ties between Israel and the land. The very scope and structure of the Chronicler's genealogical system underscore the indivisibility of Israel. Within this larger structure, Judah, Levi, and Benjamin receive by far the most extensive genealogies. In the Chronicler's view, these three tribes are critical to preserving Israel's distinctive legacy. The list of those Jews who returned from exile (1 Chr 9) concludes these chapters by highlighting the continuity between earlier Israel and postexilic Judah (the Persian province of Yehud). In the second section, after briefly addressing and condemning the reign of Saul (1 Chr 10), the Chronicler devotes most of his attention to the highly successful reigns of David (1 Chr 11–29) and Solomon (2 Chr 1–9), which clearly represent a high point of the history. The rest of the book relates the emergence, continuation, and fall of the kingdom of Judah (2 Chr 10–36). Because Chronicles begins with the first person (Adam) and ends with the aftermath of the Babylonian exile (2 Chr 36), it forms a parallel story of Israel's past—albeit much shorter and later—to the story of Israel's past found in Genesis through Kings.

It is no accident that the Chronicler places David and Solomon's achievements at the center of Israelite history. The author thereby underscores the prominence of those Israelite institutions he believed developed, were consolidated, or were transformed during this period—the priesthood, descended from Aaron; the Levites in all their responsibilities as singers, teachers, administrators, and ancillaries to the priests; the Davidic dynasty; and, last but not least, the Temple itself. Having set the establishment of Israel's normative political and religious institutions in the time of David and Solomon, the Chronicler never reneges on their pertinence to the lives of all Israelites in later centuries.

Following the death of Solomon and the ascension of his son Rehoboam, the ten northern tribes secede from southern rule (2 Chr 11.1–17). Whereas the author of Kings follows the course of both the Northern and the Southern Kingdoms, the Chronicler concentrates on the tribes of Judah, Benjamin, and Levi, who make up the Southern Kingdom of Judah (2 Chr 11.5–6, 12, 13–17, 23). In Chronicles the course of the Judahite monarchy is characterized by both defeats and successes. The Chronicler consistently documents the achievements of Judah's best kings—Abijah (2 Chr 13.2–21), Asa (2 Chr 14.1–6; 15.8–15), Jehoshaphat (2 Chr 17.1–9; 19.4–11), Hezekiah (2 Chr 29–31), and Josiah (2 Chr 34.1–7)—to institute reforms, reunite the people, and recover lost territories. Major regressions occur in the reigns of Ahaz (2 Chr 28), Manasseh (2 Chr 33.1–11), and the final kings of Judah (2 Chr 36.1–13). In depicting their history, the Chronicler is largely dependent on Kings, but as the episode concerning Manasseh's repentance and restoration (2 Chr 33.12–19; cf. 2 Kings 21.1–16) demonstrates, he may revise these sources to fit his theology, making both major and minor changes, additions, and deletions.

Throughout the work, God sends prophets to warn monarchs, leaders, and people alike about the consequences of their actions, imploring them to repent. Whereas in Kings, prophets are most often a fixture of life in the Northern Kingdom (e.g., Elijah and Elisha) and are rare in the life of the Southern Kingdom (Isaiah being a notable exception), in Chronicles prophets and prophetic figures, such as Shemaiah (2 Chr 12.5–6), Azariah (2 Chr 15.1–7), Hanani (2 Chr 16.7–9), Jehu (2 Chr 19.2–3) and Zechariah (2 Chr 24.20), appear in the reign of virtually every significant southern king. In this way, the Chronicler stresses that Moses' promise that the LORD would create a prophetic succession, patterned after the prophetic ministry of Moses himself (Deut 18.15–22), was fulfilled in the history of Judah. In his commentary on the defeat and exile of the Southern Kingdom, the Chronicler adds that Judah was exiled only after the LORD sent a steady supply of prophets to stir the people and priestly leaders to reform, but their warnings went unheeded (2 Chr 36.14–16).

Both Kings and Chronicles end by describing the Babylonian invasion and exile in the sixth century BCE, but Chronicles also includes Cyrus's decree allowing the exiles to return to Judah (2 Chr 36.22–23), offering a clearer hope for the future than does the conclusion of Kings. In this way Chronicles contains and relativizes the tremendous tragedy of the Babylonian deportations soberly depicted in 2 Kings 24–25. Thus Chronicles, with its positive ending and emphasis on the power of repentance, may be seen as more optimistic than the history of Samuel-Kings, which it has rewritten. As the beginning of Chronicles introduces the people of Israel and charts their emergence in the land, the ending of the book anticipates their return.

GUIDE TO READING CHRONICLES

If one begins to read Chronicles as one would any other book from beginning to end, one encounters some formidable challenges. Because the first nine chapters comprise lists and genealogies, they make for difficult reading. In order to keep the overall structure in mind, note how the work starts with a universal genealogy beginning with the first person (Adam) and ending with the ancestor of Israel (Jacob) and his twelve sons (1 Chr 1.1–2.1). The rest of the genealogies deal with the descendants of Jacob's sons, giving pride of place to Judah, Levi, and Benjamin, the three tribes that dominated life in postexilic Judah. The rest of the book contains mostly narratives about the history of the Davidic monarchy. Note also how much space the biblical author devotes to the united monarchy of David and Solomon (1 Chr 11.1–2 Chr 9.31), presenting this period as the apex of Israelite history. Because this material and that dealing with the history of the Judahite kingdom (2 Chr 10.1–36:23) both draw upon and differ from Samuel-Kings (with many deletions and additions), readers may find it helpful not only to read Chronicles on its own terms as a distinct literary work, but also to compare its presentation of the past with that found in the older writing of Samuel-Kings.

Gary N. Knoppers

1 Adam, Seth, Enosh; ²Kenan, Mahalalel, Jared; ³Enoch, Methuselah, Lamech;

⁴Noah, Shem, Ham, and Japheth.

⁵The descendants of Japheth: Gomer, Magog, Madai, Javan, Tubal, Meshech, and Tiras. ⁶The descendants of Gomer: Ashkenaz, Diphath,^a and Togarmah. ⁷The descendants of Javan: Elishah, Tarshish, Kittim, and Rodanim.^b

⁸The descendants of Ham: Cush, Egypt, Put, and Canaan. ⁹The descendants of Cush: Seba, Havilah, Sabta, Raama, and Sabteca. The descendants of Raamah: Sheba and Dedan.

¹⁰Cush became the father of Nimrod; he was the first to be a mighty one on the earth.

¹¹Egypt became the father of Ludim, Anamim, Lehabim, Naphtuhim, ¹²Pathrusim,

Casluhim, and Caphtorim, from whom the Philistines come.^c

¹³Canaan became the father of Sidon his firstborn, and Heth,¹⁴ and the Jebusites, the Amorites, the Girgashites,¹⁵ the Hivites, the Arkites, the Sinites,¹⁶ the Arvadites, the Zemarites, and the Hamathites.

¹⁷The descendants of Shem: Elam, Asshur, Arpachshad, Lud, Aram, Uz, Hul, Gether, and Meshech.^d ¹⁸Arpachshad became the father

^a Gen 10.3 Ripath; See Gk Vg

^b Gen 10.4 Dodanim; See Syr Vg

^c Heb Casluhim, from which the Philistines come, Caphtorim; See Am 9.7, Jer 47.4

^d Mash in Gen 10.23

1.1–22: From the first person to Israel: a universal genealogy. Drawing upon numerous lineages in Genesis, the author traces the development of and interrelationships among a variety of nations, ending with Israel—the focal point of his interest. 1–4: The ten names represent ten generations, beginning with Adam and ending with Noah. The Chronicler's tally is a marvel of condensation, having been culled from the much longer and more detailed narrative lineage of Adam in Gen 5.1–32. 4: Each of Noah's three sons can be associated with a relatively large geographic area: Shem (peoples to the east of ancient Israel); Ham (peoples to the south and southwest); Japheth (peoples to the north and west). Although most modern scholars believe that Canaan was ethnically and linguistically Semitic, and thus should be descended from Shem, in the Bible Canaan is descended from Ham, perhaps because of Canaan's long political relationship to Egypt.

1.5–23: Descendants of Noah. These verses are largely drawn from Gen 10.1–29, the "Table of Nations," which enumerates some seventy descendants of Noah's sons, symbolizing seventy peoples of the world. This creates both a genealogical tree and map by which all the world's nations are related to each other through a common ancestor, Noah. See map on p. 23. 5–7: The sons of Japheth represent Anatolia (e.g., Togarmah, Tubal, Meshech), including Greek settlements (Javan) and islands in the Mediterranean Sea, such as Elishah (Cyprus), Kittim (Caphtor and other isles), and Rodanim (Rhodes). 5: Ham's children represent peoples and areas in the Egyptian political sphere: Cush to the south of Egypt (Sudan or Ethiopia), Egypt, Put to the west (Libya), and Canaan to the north. 11–16: These lists of Egypt's and Canaan's descendants closely follow Gen 10.13–18. 11: Philistines, see Jer 47.4; Am 9.7. 13–15: The sons of Canaan inhabit Sidon (the Phoenician coast) and include the traditional inhabitants of the land of Canaan (Heth [the Hittites] and those in v. 14), and those of coastal (Arkites, Sinites, Arvadites, Zemarites) and inland (Hamathites) Syria. 17: Located in Mesopotamia (Elam, Asshur, Arpachshad), Asia Minor (Lud and Meshech), Syria (Aram); others cannot be identified. 17–18: Although in v. 8 of Shelah; and Shelah became the father of Eber. ¹⁹To Eber were born two sons: the name of the one was Peleg (for in his days the earth was divided), and the name of his brother Joktan. ²⁰Joktan became the father of Almodad, Sheleph, Hazarmaveth, Jerah, ²¹Hadoram, Uzal, Diklah, ²²Ebal, Abimael, Sheba, ²³Ophir, Havilah, and Jobab; all these were the descendants of Joktan.

²⁴Shem, Arpachshad, Shelah; ²⁵Eber, Peleg, Reu; ²⁶Serug, Nahor, Terah; ²⁷Abram, that is, Abraham.

²⁸The sons of Abraham: Isaac and Ishmael.

²⁹These are their genealogies: the firstborn of Ishmael, Nebaioth; and Kedar, Adbeel, Mibsam, ³⁰Mishma, Dumah, Massa, Hadad, Tema, ³¹Jetur, Naphish, and Kedemah. These are the sons of Ishmael. ³²The sons of Keturah, Abraham's concubine: she bore Zimran, Jokshan, Medan, Midian, Ishbak, and Shuah. The sons of Jokshan: Sheba and Dedan. ³³The sons of Midian: Ephah, Epher, Hanoch, Abida, and Eldaah. All these were the descendants of Keturah.

³⁴Abraham became the father of Isaac. The sons of Isaac: Esau and Israel. ³⁵The sons of Esau: Eliphaz, Reuel, Jeush, Jalam, and Korah. ³⁶The sons of Eliphaz: Teman, Omar, Zephi, Gatam, Kenaz, Timna, and Amalek.

³⁷The sons of Reuel: Nahath, Zerach, Shamamah, and Mizzah.

³⁸The sons of Seir: Lotan, Shobal, Zibeon, Anah, Dishon, Ezer, and Dishan.

³⁹The sons of Lotan: Hori and Homam; and Lotan's sister was Timna. ⁴⁰The sons of Shobal: Alian, Manahath, Ebal, Shephi, and Onam. The sons of Zibeon: Aiah and Anah.

⁴¹The sons of Anah: Dishon. The sons of Dishon: Hamran, Eshban, Ithran, and Cheran. ⁴²The sons of Ezer: Bilhan, Zaavan, and Jaakan. ^aThe sons of Dishan: ^bUz and Aran.

⁴³These are the kings who reigned in the land of Edom before any king reigned over the Israelites: Bela son of Beor, whose city was called Dinhabah. ⁴⁴When Bela died, Jobab son of Zerah of Bozrah succeeded him. ⁴⁵When Jobab died, Husham of the land of the Temanites succeeded him.

⁴⁶When Husham died, Hadad son of Bedad, who defeated Midian in the country of Moab, succeeded him; and the name of his city was Avith. ⁴⁷When Hadad died, Samlah of Masrekah succeeded him. ⁴⁸When Samlah died, Shaul^c of Rehoboth on the Euphrates succeeded him. ⁴⁹When Shaul^c died, Baal-hanan son of Achbor succeeded him. ⁵⁰When Baal-hanan died, Hadad succeeded him; the name of his city was Pai, and his wife's name Mehetabel daughter of Matred, daughter of Me-zahab. ⁵¹And Hadad died.

The clans^d of Edom were: clans^d Timna, Aliah,^e Jetheth, ⁵²Oholibamah, Elah, Pinon, ⁵³Kenaz, Teman, Mibzar, ⁵⁴Magdiel, and Iram; these are the clans^d of Edom.

^a Or and Akan; See Gen 36.27

^b See 1.38: Heb Dishon

^c Or Saul

^d Or chiefs

^e Or Alvah; See Gen 36.40

Canaan is descended from Ham, Eber, after whom the Hebrews (gentilic "ibri") are named, is a descendant of Shem, indicating Israelite feelings of kinship to the Semitic peoples of the east. 19: The earth was divided, the Hebrew puns on Peleg's name, which is derived from a verb meaning "to divide, split." 20: Joktan's descendants inhabit the Arabian peninsula.

1.24–27: Shem's genealogy is extracted from Gen 11.10–26. 27: Abram, this begins the second major unit in the Chronicler's universal genealogy; the first was dominated by the descendants of Noah (1 Chr 1.4b–23). 28: For Isaac and Ishmael, the Chronicler fashions a very brief genealogy from narrative materials in Genesis (16.11; 17.18–19; 25.9); their mothers, Sarah and Hagar, are not mentioned. Ishmael is associated with the northern part of the Sinai peninsula and northwestern Arabia (Gen 16.10–12; 17.20; 21.13), as are the descendants of Keturah (vv. 32–33). 29–31: Drawn from the Ishmaelite genealogy in Gen 25.12–18. 32–33: In the source text (Gen 25.1–13), Keturah appears as Abraham's second wife, taken sometime after the death of Sarah (Gen 25.1–3). The Chronicler's reference to her as a concubine may be based on his reading of Gen 25.1–2 in light of Gen 25.5–6. 34–37: The genealogy of Sarah and Abraham draws upon Gen 25.19–26 and Gen 36.2–14. The Chronicler always refers to Jacob as Israel (see Gen 32.22–32). 38–42: The sons of Seir, abridged and adapted from Gen 36.20–28. 43–54: The lists of Edomite monarchs (1.43–51a) and Edomite chieftains (1.51b–54) are adapted and slightly abridged

2 These are the sons of Israel: Reuben, Simeon, Levi, Judah, Issachar, Zebulun, ²Dan, Joseph, Benjamin, Naphtali, Gad, and Asher. ³The sons of Judah: Er, Onan, and Shelah; these three the Canaanite woman Bath-shua bore to him. Now Er, Judah's firstborn, was wicked in the sight of the LORD, and he put him to death. ⁴His daughter-in-law Tamar also bore him Perez and Zerah. Judah had five sons in all.

⁵The sons of Perez: Hezron and Hamul.

⁶The sons of Zerah: Zimri, Ethan, Heman, Calcol, and Dara, ^a five in all. ⁷The sons of Carmi: Achar, the troubler of Israel, who transgressed in the matter of the devoted thing; ⁸and Ethan's son was Azariah.

⁹The sons of Hezron, who were born to him: Jerahmeel, Ram, and Chelubai. ¹⁰Ram became the father of Amminadab, and Amminadab became the father of Nahshon, prince of the sons of Judah. ¹¹Nahshon became the father of Salma, Salma of Boaz, ¹²Boaz of Obed, Obed of Jesse. ¹³Jesse became the father of Eliab his firstborn, Abinadab the second, Shimea the third, ¹⁴Nethanel the fourth, Raddai the fifth, ¹⁵Ozem the sixth, David the seventh; ¹⁶and their sisters were Zeruiah and Abigail. The sons of Zeruiah: Abishai, Joab, and Asahel, three. ¹⁷Abigail bore Amasa, and the father of Amasa was Jether the Ishmaelite.

¹⁸Caleb son of Hezron had children by his wife Azubah, and by Jerioth; these were her sons: Jesher, Shobab, and Ardun. ¹⁹When Azubah died, Caleb married Ephrath, who bore him Hur. ²⁰Hur became the father of Uri, and Uri became the father of Bezalel.

²¹Afterward Hezron went in to the daughter of Machir father of Gilead, whom he married when he was sixty years old; and she bore him Segub; ²²and Segub became the father of Jair, who had twenty-three towns in the land of Gilead. ²³But Geshur and Aram took from them Havvoth-jair, Kenath and its villages, sixty towns. All these were descendants of Machir, father of Gilead. ²⁴After the death of Hezron, in Caleb-ephrahtah, Abijah wife of Hezron bore him Ashhur, father of Tekoa.

²⁵The sons of Jerahmeel, the firstborn of Hezron: Ram his firstborn, Bunah, Oren, Ozem, and Ahijah. ²⁶Jerahmeel also had another wife, whose name was Atarah; she was the mother of Onam. ²⁷The sons of Ram, the firstborn of Jerahmeel: Maaz, Jamin, and Eker. ²⁸The sons of Onam: Shammai and Jada. The sons of Shammai: Nadab and Abishur. ²⁹The name of from Gen 36.31–39 and Gen 36.40–43, respectively. The Chronicler presents the history of Edom, Israel's neighbor to the southeast, in capsule form up to the time of the inception of the Israelite monarchy, the beginning of his own narrative history (ch 10). 2.1–2: This list of Israel's descendants is the natural continuation of the progeny of Abraham (1.28–33) and Isaac (1.34–37) and serves as the introduction to the lineages of Israel's many sons, which follows in 2.3–9.1. The order of the sons is largely arranged according to mother—Leah (Reuben, Simeon, Levi, Judah, Issachar, Zebulun); Rachel (Joseph, Benjamin); Bilhah (Dan, Naphtali); and Zilpah (Gad, Asher).

^a Or Darda; Compare Syr Tg some Gk Mss; See 1 Kings 4.31

2.3–4.23: The descendants of Judah. The Chronicler first offers a long genealogy of Judah, demonstrating Judah's importance to the Chronicler's History. 2.4: Daughter-in-law, an allusion to the sexual relationship between Judah and Tamar (Gen 38.12–26). Having earlier referred to the Canaanite status of Bath-shua (v. 3; cf. Gen 38.1–5), the Chronicler presents another unusual feature of Judah's lineage, which did not disqualify it from preeminence. 6–8: Drawn from two sources: Josh 7.1 (2.6a,7) and 1 Kings 5.11 (2.6b). 7: Achar, called Achan in Josh 7, but cf. Josh 7.24–25. 10: Amminadab, as the father of Nahshon, see Num 2.3. 11: Taken from Ruth 4.20–21. 13–17: The lineages of Jesse's sons and daughters have been drawn, in part, from 1 Sam 16.1–23; 17.1–51; 2 Sam 2.18. 18–20: The descendants of Caleb are a major interest of the Chronicler, taking up a sizable portion of Judah's lineages (2.18–20,42–50a,50b–55; 4.1–7). This may be because some earlier sources suggest that he was a Kenizzite (e.g., Num 32.12), and thus not part of Israel (the Chronicler is correcting this tradition). 21: Machir is sometimes associated with Manasseh, most often as Manasseh's son (Gen 50.23; Num 32.39–40; Deut 3.14–15; cf. Judg 5.14). The connection with Manasseh is affirmed in 7.14–17. 22–23: The subject shifts back to Hezron, last mentioned in v. 9. 22: Jair is a son of Manasseh in Num 32.41 and Deut 3.14, but he appears here as the grandson of Hezron. 24: Father of Tekoa, Tekoa in earlier books is the name of a Judean city, but in genealogies, Abishur's wife was Abihail, and she bore him Ahban and Molid.³⁰ The sons of Nadab: Seled and Appaim; and Seled died childless.

³¹ The son^a of Appaim: Ishi. The son^a of Ishi: Sheshan. The son^a of Sheshan: Ahlai.³² The sons of Jada, Shammai's brother: Jether and Jonathan; and Jether died childless.

³³ The sons of Jonathan: Peleth and Zaza. These were the descendants of Jerahmeel.

³⁴ Now Sheshan had no sons, only daughters; but Sheshan had an Egyptian slave, whose name was Jarha.³⁵ So Sheshan gave his daughter in marriage to his slave Jarha; and she bore him Attai.³⁶ Attai became the father of Nathan, and Nathan of Zabad.

³⁷ Zabad became the father of Ephlal, and Ephlal of Obed.³⁸ Obed became the father of Jehu, and Jehu of Azariah.³⁹ Azariah became the father of Helez, and Helez of Eleasah.⁴⁰ Eleasah became the father of Sismai, and Sismai of Shallum.⁴¹ Shallum became the father of Jekamiah, and Jekamiah of Elishama.

⁴² The sons of Caleb brother of Jerahmeel: Mesha^b his firstborn, who was father of Ziph. The sons of Mareshah father of Hebron.⁴³ The sons of Hebron: Korah, Tappuah, Rekem, and Shema.⁴⁴ Shema became father of Raham, father of Jorkeam; and Rekem became the father of Shammai.⁴⁵ The son of Shammai: Maon; and Maon was the father of Beth-zur.⁴⁶ Ephah also, Caleb's concubine, bore Haran, Moza, and Gazez; and Haran became the father of Gazez.⁴⁷ The sons of Jahdai: Regem, Jotham, Geshan, Pelet, Ephah, and Shaaph.⁴⁸ Maacah, Caleb's concubine, bore Sheber and Tirhanah.⁴⁹ She also bore Shaaph father of Madmannah, Sheva father of Machbenah and father of Gibeaz; and the daughter of Caleb was Achsah.⁵⁰ These were the descendants of Caleb.

The sons^c of Hur the firstborn of Ephraim: Shobal father of Kiriath-jearim,⁵¹ Salma father of Bethlehem, and Hareph father of Beth-gader.⁵² Shobal father of Kiriath-jearim had other sons: Haroeh, half of the Menuhoth.⁵³ And the families of Kiriath-jearim: the Ithrites, the Puthites, the Shumathites, and the Mishraites; from these came the Zorathites and the Eshtaolites.⁵⁴ The sons of Salma: Bethlehem, the Netophathites, Atroth-beth-joab, and half of the Manahathites, the Zorites.⁵⁵ The families also of the scribes that lived at Jabez: the Tirathites, the Shimeathites, and the Sucathites. These are the Kenites who came from Hammath, father of the house of Rechab.

3 These are the sons of David who were born to him in Hebron: the firstborn Amnon, by Ahinoam the Jezreelite; the second Daniel, by Abigail the Carmelite;² the third Absalom, son of Maacah, daughter of King Talmai of Geshur; the fourth Adonijah, son of Haggith;³ the fifth Shephatiah, by Abital; the sixth Ithream, by his wife Eglah;⁴ six were born to him in Hebron, where he reigned for seven years and six months. And he reigned thirty-three years in Jerusalem.⁵ These were born to him in Jerusalem: Shimea, Shobab, Nathan, and Solomon, four by Bath-shua, daughter of Ammiel;⁶ then Ibhaz, Elishama, Eliphelet,⁷ Nogah, Nepheg, Japhia,⁸ Elishama, Eliada, and Eliphelet, nine.⁹ All these were David's sons, besides the sons of the concubines; and Tamar was their sister.

^a Heb sons

^b Gk reads Mareshah

^c Gk Vg: Heb son

ethnic and geographic dimensions of names can overlap. 25–41: Both the genealogy of Jerahmeel (vv. 25–33), the first-born of Hebron (vv. 9, 25) and the genealogy of Sheshan (vv. 34–41) are unique to Chronicles. 42–50: The second of the genealogies for Caleb's descendants (see vv. 18–20n.). Many of the names listed also occur in the Judahite town list of Josh 15. 50b–55: Largely without parallel, this genealogy reverts to the line of Hur (v. 19). Each of Hur's three sons is depicted as a founder (lit. "father") of a town. The Kenites (Num 24.20–22; Judg 4.11, 17–21; 5.24–27; 1 Sam 15.6; 30.29) ultimately descend from their eponymous ancestor, Cain (Gen 4.1–25).

3.1–24: The descendants of David. 1–9: Some names of David's sons, and their order, are different in the present text of 2 Samuel. 1–3: These verses are based on 2 Sam 3.2–4. David's lineage follows naturally 2.9–17, which enumerates the descendants of Ram, including David and the children of David's two sisters Zeruiah and Abigail. 4: This verse draws upon and reworks 2 Sam 5.5. Consistent with David's rule over all Israel in chs 11–29, the writer avoids the distinction between Israel and Judah found in his source. 5–9: These verses are ¹⁰The descendants of Solomon: Rehobam, Abijah his son, Asa his son, Jehoshaphat his son, ¹¹Joram his son, Ahaziah his son, Joash his son, ¹²Amaziah his son, Azariah his son, Jotham his son, ¹³Ahaz his son, Hezekiah his son, Manasseh his son, ¹⁴Amon his son, Josiah his son. ¹⁵The sons of Josiah: Johanan the firstborn, the second Jehoiakim, the third Zedekiah, the fourth Shallum. ¹⁶The descendants of Jehoiakim: Jeconiah his son, Zedekiah his son; ¹⁷and the sons of Jeconiah, the captive: Shealtiel his son, ¹⁸Malchiram, Pedaiiah, Shenazzar, Jekamiah, Hoshama, and Nedabiah; ¹⁹The sons of Pedaiiah: Zerubbabel and Shimei; and the sons of Zerubbabel: Meshullam and Hananiah, and Shelomith was their sister; ²⁰and Hashubah, Ohel, Berechiah, Hasadiah, and Jushab-hesed, five. ²¹The sons of Hananiah: Pelatiah and Jeshaiiah, his son^a Rephaiah, his son^a Arnan, his son^a Obadiah, his son^a Shecaniah. ²²The son^b of Shecaniah: Shemaiah. And the sons of Shemaiah: Hattush, Igal, Bariah, Neariah, and Shaphat, six. ²³The sons of Neariah: Elioenai, Hizkiah, and Azrikam, three. ²⁴The sons of Elioenai: Hodaviah, Eliashib, Pelaiah, Akkub, Johanan, Delaiah, and Anani, seven.

4 The sons of Judah: Perez, Hezron, Carmi, Hur, and Shobal. ²Reaiah son of Shobal became the father of Jahath, and Jahath became the father of Ahumai and Lahad. These were the families of the Zorathites. ³These were the sons^c of Etam: Jezreel, Ishma, and Idbash; and the name of their sister was Hazzeleponi, ⁴and Penuel was the father of Gedor, and Ezer the father of Hushah. These were the sons of Hur, the firstborn of Ephrathah, the father of Bethlehem. ⁵Ashhur father of Tekoa had two wives, Helah and Naarah; ⁶Naarah bore him Ahuzzam, Hephher, Temeni, and Haahashtari.^d These were the sons of Naarah. ⁷The sons of Helah: Zereth, Izhar,^e and Ethnan. ⁸Koz became the father of Anub, Zobebah, and the families of Aharhel son of Harum. ⁹Jabez was honored more than his brothers; and his mother named him Jabez, saying, "Because I bore him in pain." ¹⁰Jabez called on the God of Israel, saying, "Oh that you would bless me and enlarge my border, and that your hand might be with me, and that you would keep me from hurt and harm!" And God granted what he asked. ¹¹Chelub the brother of Shuhah became the father of Mehir, who was the father of Eshton. ¹²Eshton became the father of Beth-rapha, Paseah, and Tehinnah the father of Ir-nahash. These are the men of Recah. ¹³The sons of Kenaz: Othniel and Seraiah; and the sons of Othniel: Hathath and Meonothai.^f ¹⁴Meonothai became the father of Ophrah; and Seraiah became the father of Joab father of Ge-harashim,^g so-called because they were artisans. ¹⁵The sons of Caleb son of Jephunneh: Iru, Elah, and Naam; and the son^b of Elah: Kenaz. ¹⁶The sons of Jehallelel: Ziph, Ziphah, Tiria, and Asarel. ¹⁷The sons of Ezrah: Jether, Mered, Ephher, and Jalon. These are the sons of Bithiah, daughter of Pharaoh, whom

^a Gk Compare Syr Vg: Heb sons of

^b Heb sons

^c Gk Compare Vg: Heb the father

^d Or Ahashtari

^e Another reading is Zohar

^f Gk Vg: Heb lacks and Meonothai

^g That is Valley of artisans largely dependent upon 2 Sam 5.13–16. 10–14: A fifteen-generation genealogy from Solomon to Josiah, noting only the Davidic king in each generation. 15–18: A largely unparalleled genealogy from Josiah to Pedaiiah. The second half of ch 3 gives special attention to Josiah and his various offspring. 18: Shenazzar, some identify him with Sheshbazzar of Ezra 1.8, who led a group of early returnees from exile. 19–24: The list of Davidic descendants from Pedaiah to the sons of Elioenai is unique to the Chronicler and likely reflects aspirations for a renewed Davidic monarchy in the postexilic period. 19: Zerubbabel was a leader of the postexilic Judean community in the late sixth century BCE; see Ezra 3.2; Hag 1.1. 22: Hattush returned from exile in Babylon (Ezra 8.2).

4.1–23: Descendants of Judah. The sons of Judah, in contrast to the largely linear genealogy of David (ch 3), this chapter describes several unconnected branches of Judeans. It also narrates several short anecdotes about individual Judeans (e.g., vv. 9–10, 23). As in other genealogies, names of individuals here occur as place names elsewhere. 1: The sequence Perez . . . Shobal signifies a line of descent; these persons are not brothers. 4b–7: Return to the genealogy of Caleb; see 2.18–20n. 9–10: There is a wordplay in Hebrew: “ya’bets” (Jabez), “‘otseb”

Mered married;^a and she conceived and bore^b Miriam, Shammai, and Ishbah father of Eshtemoa.¹⁸ And his Judean wife bore Jered father of Gedor, Heber father of Soco, and Jekuthiel father of Zanoah.¹⁹ The sons of the wife of Hodiah, the sister of Naham, were the fathers of Keilah the Garmite and Eshtemoa the Maacathite.²⁰ The sons of Shimon: Amnon, Rinnah, Ben-hanan, and Tilon. The sons of Ishi: Zoheth and Ben-zoheth.²¹ The sons of Shelah son of Judah: Er father of Lecah, Laadah father of Mareshah, and the families of the guild of linen workers at Beth-ashbea;²² and Jokim, and the men of Cozeba, and Joash, and Saraph, who married into Moab but returned to Lehem^c (now the records^d are ancient).²³ These were the potters and inhabitants of Netaim and Gederah; they lived there with the king in his service.

²⁴The sons of Simeon: Nemuel, Jamin, Jarib, Zerah, Shaul;^e ²⁵Shallum was his son, Mibsam his son, Mishma his son.²⁶ The sons of Mishma: Hammuel his son, Zaccur his son, Shimei his son.²⁷ Shimei had sixteen sons and six daughters; but his brothers did not have many children, nor did all their family multiply like the Judeans.²⁸ They lived in Beer-sheba, Moladah, Hazar-shual,²⁹ Bilhah, Ezem, Tolad,³⁰ Bethuel, Hormah, Ziklag,³¹ Beth-marcaboth, Hazar-susim, Beth-biri, and Shaaraim. These were their towns until David became king.³² And their villages were Etam, Ain, Rimmon, Tochen, and Ashan, five towns,³³ along with all their villages that were around these towns as far as Baal. These were their settlements. And they kept a genealogical record.

³⁴Meshobab, Jamlech, Joshah son of Amaziah,³⁵ Joel, Jehu son of Joshibiah son of Seraiah son of Asiel,³⁶ Elioenai, Jaakobah, Jeshohaiah, Asaiah, Adiel, Jesimiel, Benaiah,³⁷ Ziza son of Shiphi son of Allon son of Jedaiah son of Shimri son of Shemaiah—³⁸these mentioned by name were leaders in their families, and their clans increased greatly.³⁹ They journeyed to the entrance of Gedor, to the east side of the valley, to seek pasture for their flocks,⁴⁰ where they found rich, good pasture, and the land was very broad, quiet, and peaceful; for the former inhabitants there belonged to Ham.⁴¹ These, registered by name, came in the days of King Hezekiah of Judah, and attacked their tents and the Meunim who were found there, and exterminated them to this day, and settled in their place, because there was pasture there for their flocks.⁴² And some of them, five hundred men of the Simeonites, went to Mount Seir, having as their leaders Pelatiah, Neariah, Rephaiah, and Uzziel, sons of Ishi;⁴³ they destroyed the remnant of the Amalekites that had escaped, and they have lived there to this day.

5 The sons of Reuben the firstborn of Israel. (He was the firstborn, but because he defiled his father's bed his birthright was

^a The clause: These are . . . married is transposed from verse 18

^b Heb lacks and bore

^c Vg Compare Gk: Heb and Jashubi-lahem

^d Or matters

^e Or Saul

(pain), and “otsbi” (harm). 21: In referring to Shelah, the text returns to the original sons of Judah (2.3–4). 22: Married into Moab, the Chronicler again posits some close links between Judah and its neighbors. Possible links may be hinted at in Ezra 2.6; 8.4; 10.30. Intermarriage with Moabites in the postexilic period is also attested (Ezra 9.1; Neh 13.23; Ruth), but in contrast to Chronicles, in Ezra and Nehemiah such marriages are banned.

4.24–43: The descendants of Simeon. Here too, the Chronicler punctuates his genealogical prologue with anecdotes about geography, migrations, and wars (vv. 27–33, 38–43). The genealogy of Simeon immediately follows that of its neighbor, Judah. 24–27: The lineage of Simeon is traced through his son Shaul. The names listed in v. 24 (Nemuel, Jamin, Jarib, Zerah, and Shaul) are derived from Gen 46.10; Ex 6.15; and esp. Num 26.12–14. The rest of the genealogy (vv. 26–27) is unique to the Chronicler. 28–33: Taken, with some changes, from Josh 19.2–8. 33–43: A list of Simeonite leaders (v. 38) is followed by a description of the expansion of the tribe demographically and geographically. The ruthlessness displayed by the Simeonites recalls the intemperate behavior of their eponymous ancestor (Gen 34.25–29; 49.5–7). 41: Hezekiah, see 2 Chr 29–32.

5.1–10: The descendants of Reuben. Reuben was firstborn (Gen 29.31–30.21; 35.23–26; 46.8–9; Ex 1.2; 6.14; Num 26.5; Ezek 48.31–35), but he does not appear first in the Chronicler's genealogies. 1: Joseph, firstborn of Rachel, rather than Reuben, firstborn of Leah, attained to the birthright because Reuben had sexual relations given to the sons of Joseph son of Israel, so that he is not enrolled in the genealogy according to the birthright; ² though Judah became prominent among his brothers and a ruler came from him, yet the birthright belonged to Joseph.) ³ The sons of Reuben, the firstborn of Israel: Hanoch, Pallu, Hezron, and Carmi. ⁴ The sons of Joel: Shemaiah his son, Gog his son, Shimei his son, ⁵ Micah his son, Reaiah his son, Baal his son, ⁶ Beerah his son, whom King Tilgath-pilneser of Assyria carried away into exile; he was a chieftain of the Reubenites. ⁷ And his kindred by their families, when the genealogy of their generations was reckoned: the chief, Jeiel, and Zechariah, ⁸ and Bela son of Azaz, son of Shema, son of Joel, who lived in Aroer, as far as Nebo and Baal-meon. ⁹ He also lived to the east as far as the beginning of the desert this side of the Euphrates, because their cattle had multiplied in the land of Gilead. ¹⁰ And in the days of Saul they made war on the Hagarites, who fell by their hand; and they lived in their tents throughout all the region east of Gilead.

¹¹ The sons of Gad lived beside them in the land of Bashan as far as Salecah: ¹² Joel the chief, Shapham the second, Janai, and Shaphat in Bashan. ¹³ And their kindred according to their clans: Michael, Meshul-

lam, Sheba, Jorai, Jacan, Zia, and Eber, seven. ¹⁴ These were the sons of Abihail son of Huri, son of Jaroah, son of Gilead, son of Michael, son of Jeshishai, son of Jahdo, son of Buz; ¹⁵ Ahi son of Abdiel, son of Guni, was chief in their clan; ¹⁶ and they lived in Gilead, in Bashan and in its towns, and in all the pasture lands of Sharon to their limits. ¹⁷ All of these were enrolled by genealogies in the days of King Jotham of Judah, and in the days of King Jeroboam of Israel.

¹⁸ The Reubenites, the Gadites, and the half-tribe of Manasseh had valiant warriors, who carried shield and sword, and drew the bow, expert in war, forty-four thousand seven hundred sixty, ready for service. ¹⁹ They made war on the Hagarites, Jetur, Naphish, and Nodab; ²⁰ and when they received help against them, the Hagarites and all who were with them were given into their hands, for they cried to God in the battle, and he granted their entreaty because they trusted in him. ²¹ They captured their livestock: fifty thousand of their camels, two hundred fifty thousand sheep, two thousand donkeys, and one hundred thousand captives. ²² Many fell slain, because the war was of God. And they lived in their territory until the exile.

²³ The members of the half-tribe of Manasseh lived in the land; they were very with Jacob's concubine Bilhah (Gen 35.22; 49.4). 2: A ruler came from him, the writer alludes to David's kingship, which eventually encompassed all twelve tribes (28.4; 1 Sam 13.14; 25.30; Mic 5.2). 3: The Chronicler derives this list from Num 26.5–6. Carmi is one of the Reubenite clans with possible ties to Judah (Gen 46.9; Ex 6.14; Num 26.6; Josh 7.1,18,24,26; 1 Chr 2.7; 4.1). 6: In contrast to Kings, which largely loses its concentration upon individual tribes in its coverage of the dual monarchies, the Chronicler's history maintains a continuous interest in the fate of individual tribes. Tilgath-pilneser, the Chronicler's spelling (5.26; 2 Chr 28.20) of Tiglath-pileser (III), King of Assyria (745–727 BCE); cf. 2 Kings 15.29. 9: In this case, Gilead refers to the territory east of the Jordan, which is south of the Jabbok and north of the Arnon. There is some overlap with Gad's territorial holdings in Josh 13. 10: The days of Saul, who was the first king of Israel, in the late eleventh century BCE.

5.11–17: The descendants of Gad. Like the Reubenites, the Gadites were located east of the Jordan River. 16: Rather than signifying a pasture land, Heb “migrash” means the belt of land or open space outside a town or a sanctuary. Sharon refers here not to the (coastal) Sharon plain, the common designation of Sharon in the Bible, but to the town of Sharon in Transjordan, a place also mentioned in the Moabite Mesha inscription (line 13). 17: King Jotham of Judah (759–743 BCE) and King Jeroboam (II) of Israel (788–747 BCE).

5.18–22: The wars of the Transjordan tribes. In some traditions (Num 32.1–42; Deut 3.12–16; 29.6–7; Josh 13.8–31) and once elsewhere in Chronicles (1 Chr 12.38), Reuben, Gad, and East Manasseh are treated as a larger entity. These two and a half tribes join forces, share a common muster, partake in the spoils gained by fighting a collective enemy, and experience a common fate (vv. 22, 25–26). The number forty-four thousand seven hundred sixty (v. 18) is notable for its specificity, not for its magnitude.

5.23–24: The descendants of Half-Manasseh. This part of the tribe of Manasseh was located east of the Jordan River, to the north of Gad.

numerous from Bashan to Baal-hermon, Senir, and Mount Hermon. ²⁴These were the heads of their clans: Ephraim,^a Ishi, Eliel, Azriel, Jeremiah, Hodaviah, and Jahdiel, mighty warriors, famous men, heads of their clans.

²⁵But they transgressed against the God of their ancestors, and prostituted themselves to the gods of the peoples of the land, whom God had destroyed before them. ²⁶So the God of Israel stirred up the spirit of King Pul of Assyria, the spirit of King Tilgath-pilneser of Assyria, and he carried them away, namely, the Reubenites, the Gadites, and the half-tribe of Manasseh, and brought them to Halah, Habor, Hara, and the river Gozan, to this day.

6^b The sons of Levi: Gershom,^c Kohath, and Merari. ²The sons of Kohath: Amram, Izhar, Hebron, and Uzziel. ³The children of Amram: Aaron, Moses, and Miriam. The sons of Aaron: Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar. ⁴Eleazar became the father of Phinehas, Phinehas of Abishua, ⁵Abishua of Bukki, Bukki of Uzzi, ⁶Uzzi of Zerariah, Zerariah of Meraioth, ⁷Meraioth of Amariah, Amariah of Ahitub, ⁸Ahitub of Zadok, Zadok of Ahimaaz, ⁹Ahimaaz of Azariah, Azariah of Johanan, ¹⁰and Johanan of Azariah (it was he who served as priest in the house that Solomon built in Jerusalem). ¹¹Azariah became the father of Amariah, Amariah of Ahitub, ¹²Ahitub of Zadok, Zadok of Shallum, ¹³Shallum of Hilkiyah, Hilkiyah of Azariah, ¹⁴Azariah of Seraiah, Seraiah of Jehozadak; ¹⁵and Jehozadak went into exile when the LORD sent Judah and Jerusalem into exile by the hand of Nebuchadnezzar.

¹⁶^dThe sons of Levi: Gershom, Kohath, and Merari. ¹⁷These are the names of the sons of Gershom: Libni and Shimei. ¹⁸The sons of Kohath: Amram, Izhar, Hebron, and Uzziel. ¹⁹The sons of Merari: Mahli and Mushi. These are the clans of the Levites according to their ancestry. ²⁰Of Gershom: Libni his son, Jahath his son, Zimmah his son, ²¹Joah his son, Iddo his son, Zerah his son, Jeatherai his son. ²²The sons of Kohath: Amminadab his son, Korah his son, Assir his son, ²³Elkanah his son, Ebiasaph his son, Assir his son, ²⁴Tahath his son, Uriel his son, Uzziel his son, and Shaul his son. ²⁵The sons of Elkanah: Amasai and Ahimoth, ²⁶Elkanah his son, Zophai his son, Nahath his son, ²⁷Eliab his son, Jeroham his son, Elkanah his son. ²⁸The sons of Samuel: Joel^e his firstborn, the second Abijah.^f ²⁹The sons of Merari: Mahli, Libni his son, Shimei his son, Uzziel his son, ³⁰Shimea his son, Haggiah his son, and Asaiah his son.

³¹These are the men whom David put in charge of the service of song in the house

^a Gk Vg: Heb and Ephraim

^b Ch 5.27 in Heb

^c Heb Gershon, variant of Gershom; See 6.16

^d Ch 6.1 in Heb

^e Gk Syr Compare verse 33 and 1 Sam 8.2: Heb lacks Joel

^f Heb reads Vashni, and Abijah for the second Abijah, taking the second as a proper name

5.25–26: The exile of the Transjordanian tribes. The campaigns of 733–732 BCE by Tilgath-pilneser III (also known as Pul), were primarily directed against King Rezin of Damascus, but also resulted in the capture of Gilead and Galilee (2 Kings 15.29). The list of sites in v. 26 is borrowed, however, from 2 Kings 17.6 (parallel 2 Kings 18.11), which details the destinations of the later Samaritan deportees in the Assyrian exile of 722 BCE.

6.1–81: The descendants of Levi take center stage in the genealogies of Chronicles. For the Chronicler, the Levites are second in importance only to the Judeans, so their genealogy is especially long and detailed. As with other tribes, attention is paid to issues of identity and location: who the Levites are (vv. 1–53) and where they live (vv. 54–81). 1–15: A priestly line is traced from Levi in the ancestral period (cf. Gen 46.11; Ex 6.16–25; Num 3.17–20) all the way to Jehozadak (v. 15), who was taken to Babylon in the exile of 586 BCE. 8: Scholars debate the origin of David's main priest Zadok with some suggesting that he was originally Canaanite; this genealogy in Chronicles is the first source to explicitly connect him to the line of Aaron and Levi. Twelve generations of priests precede Zadok and twelve generations of priests succeed him, hence the era of Zadok, which coincides with the construction of the Temple, marks the halfway point between the ancestral era and the exile. 10: Azariah, cf. 1 Kings 4.2. 14: Seraiah, see 2 Kings 25.18. 16–48: Lineages for three major groups within the Levites—the Gershonites, the Kohathites, and the Merarites (vv. 16–30)—preface lineages of levitical singers from the same three groups (vv. 31–48). Levitical choirs are an intrinsic component of the Chronicler's system of worship, appearing some thirty times in his history. The genealogies thus are not purely antiquarian, but in places justify the institutions of postexilic Judah. 28: Samuel, cf. 1 Sam 1.1; 8.2. 31–32: Referring back to the three levitical clans, the writer of the LORD, after the ark came to rest there.³² They ministered with song before the tabernacle of the tent of meeting, until Solomon had built the house of the LORD in Jerusalem; and they performed their service in due order.³³ These are the men who served; and their sons were: Of the Kohathites: Heman, the singer, son of Joel, son of Samuel,³⁴ son of Elkanah, son of Jeroham, son of Eliel, son of Toah,³⁵ son of Zuph, son of Elkanah, son of Mahath, son of Amasai,³⁶ son of Elkanah, son of Joel, son of Azariah, son of Zephaniah,³⁷ son of Tahath, son of Assir, son of Ebiasaph, son of Korah,³⁸ son of Izhar, son of Kohath, son of Levi, son of Israel;³⁹ and his brother Asaph, who stood on his right, namely, Asaph son of Berechiah, son of Shimea,⁴⁰ son of Michael, son of Baaseiah, son of Malchijah,⁴¹ son of Ethni, son of Zerah, son of Adaiah,⁴² son of Ethan, son of Zimmah, son of Shimei,⁴³ son of Jahath, son of Gershon, son of Levi.⁴⁴ On the left were their kindred the sons of Merari: Ethan son of Kishi, son of Abdi, son of Malluch,⁴⁵ son of Hashabiah, son of Amaziah, son of Hilkiyah,⁴⁶ son of Amzi, son of Bani, son of Shemer,⁴⁷ son of Mahli, son of Mushi, son of Merari, son of Levi;⁴⁸ and their kindred the Levites were appointed for all the service of the tabernacle of the house of God.

The Levitical towns. Cities of refuge are highlighted with a star. The tribal boundaries are shown by a dashed line.

⁴⁹ But Aaron and his sons made offerings on the altar of burnt offering and on the altar of incense, doing all the work of the most holy place, to make atonement for Israel,

according to all that Moses the servant of God had commanded.⁵⁰ These are the sons of Aaron: Eleazar his son, Phinehas his son, Abishua his son,⁵¹ Bukki his son, Uzzi his son, Zerahiah his son,⁵² Meraioth his son, Amariah his son, Ahitub his son,⁵³ Zadok his son, Ahimaaz his son.

⁵⁴ These are their dwelling places according to their settlements within their borders: to the sons of Aaron of the families of Kohathites—for the lot fell to them first—⁵⁵ to them they gave Hebron in the land of Judah and its surrounding pasture lands,⁵⁶ but the fields of the city and its villages they gave to Caleb son of Jephunneh.⁵⁷ To the sons of Aaron they gave the cities of refuge: Hebron, Libnah with its pasture lands, Jattir, Eshtemoa with its pasture lands,⁵⁸ Hilen^a with its pasture lands, Debir with its pasture lands,⁵⁹ Ashan with its pasture lands, and Beth-shemesh with its pasture lands.⁶⁰ From the tribe of Benjamin, Geba with its pasture lands, Alemeth with its pasture lands, and Anathoth with its pasture lands. All their towns throughout their families were thirteen.

⁶¹ To the rest of the Kohathites were given by lot out of the family of the tribe, out of the half-tribe, the half of Manasseh, ten towns.⁶² To the Gershonites according to their families were allotted thirteen towns out of the tribes of Issachar, Asher, Naphtali, and summarizes the duties of the Gershonites, Kohathites, and Merarites adopted during the United Monarchy of David and Solomon, the time in which the Temple was built. Three specific descendants—Asaph from Gershon (vv. 39–43), Heman from Kohath (vv. 33–38), and Ethan from Merari (vv. 44–47)—took on official roles in the state religion. 33: Heman, “Asaph” (v. 39), and “Ethan” (v. 42) represent three classes or guilds of singers. Because David’s reign is definitive for the levitical singers, the patronyms Asaph, Heman, and Ethan serve as organizing principles for them (2 Chr 5.12; 29.14; 35.15). 44: Ethan represents the Merarites (6.18,29; 15.17), but in many other instances Jeduthun serves this role (16.41; 25.1,3,6; 2 Chr 5.12; 29.14; 35.15). 49–53: The Aaronic priests officiate within the sanctuary and make offerings (23.30–32; Ex 38–42; 30.1–10; Lev 8.1–9.24; 18.8–20; Ezek 44.13). 49: The most holy place (lit. “holy of holies”) is the exclusive domain of the priests (Ex 26.33–34; Num 18.1–5; Ezek 44.15–16; 2 Chr 5.11; 29.7). Other members of the tribe of Levi may serve as Temple staff, but the priests alone officiate at the inner sanctuary. To make atonement for Israel refers to the Day of Atonement ritual of Lev 16. This festival, mentioned only in Priestly sources in the Torah, probably became especially significant during the time of the Chronicler. 54–81: The list of levitical towns is drawn from an earlier version of Josh 21.3–42. 55–60: The location of Aaronide settlements is limited to the traditional domains of three tribes: Judah, Simeon, and Benjamin. On pasture lands, see 5.16n. 57: The creation of cities of refuge or asylum was demanded in Deuteronomic (Deut 4.41–43; 19.1–13) and Priestly law (Num 35.6–15,25–28,32). Most, if not all, of the towns designated for asylum (Josh 20.7–8) doubled as levitical settlements.

^a Other readings Hilez, Holon; See Josh 21.15

Manasseh in Bashan. ⁶³To the Merarites according to their families were allotted twelve towns out of the tribes of Reuben, Gad, and Zebulun. ⁶⁴So the people of Israel gave the Levites the towns with their pasture lands. ⁶⁵They also gave them by lot out of the tribes of Judah, Simeon, and Benjamin these towns that are mentioned by name.

⁶⁶And some of the families of the sons of Kohath had towns of their territory out of the tribe of Ephraim. ⁶⁷They were given the cities of refuge: Shechem with its pasture lands in the hill country of Ephraim, Gezer with its pasture lands, ⁶⁸Jokmeam with its pasture lands, Beth-horon with its pasture lands, ⁶⁹Aijalon with its pasture lands, Gath-rimmon with its pasture lands; ⁷⁰and out of the half-tribe of Manasseh, Aner with its pasture lands, and Bileam with its pasture lands, for the rest of the families of the Kohathites.

⁷¹To the Gershomites: out of the half-tribe of Manasseh: Golan in Bashan with its pasture lands and Ashtaroth with its pasture lands; ⁷²and out of the tribe of Issachar: Kedesh with its pasture lands, Daberath^a with its pasture lands, ⁷³Ramoth with its pasture lands, and Anem with its pasture lands; ⁷⁴out of the tribe of Asher: Mashal with its pasture lands, Abdon with its pasture lands, ⁷⁵Hukok with its pasture lands, and Rehob with its pasture lands; ⁷⁶and out of the tribe of Naphtali: Kedesh in Galilee with its pasture lands, Hammon with its pasture lands, and Kiriathaim with its pasture lands. ⁷⁷To the rest of the Merarites out of the tribe of Zebulun: Rimmono with its pasture lands, Tabor with its pasture lands, ⁷⁸and across the Jordan from Jericho, on the east side of the Jordan, out of the tribe of Reuben: Bezer in the steppe with its pasture lands, Jahzah with its pasture lands, ⁷⁹Kedemoth with its pasture lands, and Mephaath with its pasture lands; ⁸⁰and out of the tribe of Gad: Ramoth in Gilead with its pasture lands, Mahanaim with its pasture lands, ⁸¹Heshbon with its pasture lands, and Jazer with its pasture lands.

7 The sons^b of Issachar: Tola, Puah, Jashub, and Shimron, four. ²The sons of Tola: Uzzi, Rephaiah, Jeriel, Jahmai, Ibsam, and Shemuel, heads of their ancestral houses, namely of Tola, mighty warriors of their generations, their number in the days of David being twenty-two thousand six hundred. ³The son^c of Uzzi: Izrahiah. And the sons of Izrahiah: Michael, Obadiah, Joel, and Isshiah, five, all of them chiefs; ⁴and along with them, by their generations, according to their ancestral houses, were units of the fighting force, thirty-six thousand, for they had many wives and sons. ⁵Their kindred belonging to all the families of Issachar were in all eighty-seven thousand mighty warriors, enrolled by genealogy.

⁶The sons of Benjamin: Bela, Becher, and Jediael, three. ⁷The sons of Bela: Ezbon, Uzzi, Uzziel, Jerimoth, and Iri, five, heads of ancestral houses, mighty warriors; and their enrollment by genealogies was twenty-two thousand thirty-four. ⁸The sons of Becher: Zemirah, Joash, Eliezer, Elioenai, Omri, Jeremoth, Abijah, Anathoth, and Alemeth. All these were the sons of Becher; ⁹and their enrollment by genealogies, according to their generations, as heads of their ancestral houses, mighty warriors, was twenty thousand two hundred. ¹⁰The sons of Jediael: Bilhan. And the sons of Bilhan: Jeush, Benjamin, Ehud, Chenaanah, Zethan, Tarshish, and Ahishahar. ¹¹All these were the sons of Jediael according to the heads of their ancestral houses, mighty warriors, seventeen thousand two hundred, ready for service in war. ¹²And Shuppim and Hup-

^a Or Dobrath

^b Syr Compare Vg: Heb And to the sons

^c Heb sons

7.1–5: The descendants of Issachar. Issachar's progeny are traced through his eldest son Tola (Gen 46.13; Num 26.23–25; Judg 5.15). As in some other genealogies (4.42–43; 5.7–10,18–22; 7.9–12,40), large numbers, growth, and military prowess are stressed.

7.6–12: The descendants of Benjamin. A genealogy of Zebulun may be missing here (Gen 46.17–27; Num 26.23–50), as another genealogy of Benjamin is found in 8.1–40. 12: Some commentators emend sons of Ir to “sons of Dan” on the supposition that this verse contains a fragment of the apparently missing genealogy of Dan (Gen 46.13; Num 26.42; Judg 5.17).

pim were the sons of Ir, Hushim the son^a of Aher.

¹³The descendants of Naphtali: Jahziel, Guni, Jezer, and Shallum, the descendants of Bilhah.

¹⁴The sons of Manasseh: Asriel, whom his Aramean concubine bore; she bore Machir the father of Gilead. ¹⁵And Machir took a wife for Huppim and for Shuppim. The name of his sister was Maacah. And the name of the second was Zelophehad; and Zelophehad had daughters. ¹⁶Maacah the wife of Machir bore a son, and she named him Peresh; the name of his brother was Sheresh; and his sons were Ulam and Rekem. ¹⁷The son^a of Ulam: Bedan. These were the sons of Gilead son of Machir, son of Manasseh. ¹⁸And his sister Hammolecheth bore Ishhod, Abiezer, and Mahlah.

¹⁹The sons of Shemida were Ahian, Shechem, Likhi, and Aniam.

²⁰The sons of Ephraim: Shuthelah, and Bered his son, Tahath his son, Eleadah his son, Tahath his son, ²¹Zabad his son, Shuthelah his son, and Ezer and Elead. Now the people of Gath, who were born in the land, killed them, because they came down to raid their cattle. ²²And their father Ephraim mourned many days, and his brothers came to comfort him. ²³Ephraim^b went in to his wife, and she conceived and bore a son; and he named him Beriah, because disaster^c had befallen his house. ²⁴His daughter was Sheerah, who built both Lower and Upper Beth-horon, and Uzzen-sheerah. ²⁵Rephah was his son, Resheph his son, Telah his son, Tahan his son, ²⁶Ladan his son, Ammihud his son, Elishama his son, ²⁷Nun^d his son, Joshua his son. ²⁸Their possessions and settlements were Bethel and its towns, and eastward Naaran, and westward Gezer and its towns, Shechem and its towns, as far as Ayyah and its towns; ²⁹also along the borders of the Manassites, Beth-shean and its towns, Taanach and its towns, Megiddo and its towns, Dor and its towns. In these lived the sons of Joseph son of Israel.

³⁰The sons of Asher: Imnah, Ishvah, Ishvi, Beriah, and their sister Serah. ³¹The sons of Beriah: Heber and Malchiel, who was the father of Birzaith. ³²Heber became the father of Japhlet, Shomer, Hotham, and their sister Shua. ³³The sons of Japhlet: Pasach, Bimhal, and Ashvath. These are the sons of Japhlet. ³⁴The sons of Shemer: Ahi, Rohgah, Hubbah, and Aram. ³⁵The sons of Helem^e his brother: Zophah, Imna, Shelesh, and Amal. ³⁶The sons of Zophah: Suah, Harnepher, Shual, Beri, Imrah, ³⁷Bezer, Hod, Shamma, Shilshah, Ithran, and Beera. ³⁸The sons of Jether: Jephunneh, Pispah, and Ara. ³⁹The sons of Ulla: Arah, Hanniel, and Rizia. ⁴⁰All of these were men of Asher, heads of ancestral houses, select mighty warriors, chief of the princes. Their number enrolled by genealogies, for service in war, was twenty-six thousand men.

8 Benjamin became the father of Bela his firstborn, Ashbel the second, Aharah the third, ²Nohah the fourth, and Rapha the fifth.

^a Heb sons

^b Heb He

^c Heb beraah

^d Here spelled Nun; see Ex 33.11

^e Or Hotham; see 7.32

7.13: The descendants of Naphtali. As in Gen 46.23–25, Bilhah is the mother of Naphtali (where she is also the mother of Dan).

7.14–19: The descendants of Manasseh (cf. Num 26.29–34). For the progeny of Manasseh east of the Jordan, see 5.23–24. 15: On the daughters of Zelophehad, see Num 27.1–11; 36.1–12; Josh 17.3.

7.20–29: The descendants of Ephraim. Tradition (Gen 48.8–22; Deut 33.17) posits a close relationship between the two sons of Joseph—Manasseh and Ephraim. This is why the Chronicler treats them sequentially and considers their settlements (vv. 28–29; cf. Josh 16–18) together. 21–24: In depicting Ephraim, his wife, and his sons living in the land, this short tale conflicts with Genesis (chs 41–50; cf. Ex 12.40) in which Ephraim is born in Egypt and never enters the land. Here too the Chronicler emphasizes Israel's long-term connection to the land. 27: Joshua, the hero of the book of Joshua; see Josh 1.1; 24.29–30.

7.30–40: The descendants of Asher. The genealogy may be compared with Gen 46.17 and Num 26.44–47, but much of its information is unparalleled elsewhere in the Bible.

8.1–9.1: The descendants of Benjamin. Another genealogy, fuller than that in 7.6–12. Along with Judah and Levi, Benjamin receives substantial attention from the Chronicler. The great coverage these three tribes receive

³ And Bela had sons: Addar, Gera, Abihud,^a ⁴ Abishua, Naaman, Ahoah,⁵ Gera, Shephuphan, and Huram. ⁶ These are the sons of Ehud (they were heads of ancestral houses of the inhabitants of Geba, and they were carried into exile to Manahath): ⁷ Naaman,^b Ahijah, and Gera, that is, Heglam,^c who became the father of Uzza and Ahihud. ⁸ And Shaharaim had sons in the country of Moab after he had sent away his wives Hushim and Baara. ⁹ He had sons by his wife Hodesh: Jobab, Zibia, Mesha, Malcam, ¹⁰ Jeuz, Sachia, and Mirmah. These were his sons, heads of ancestral houses. ¹¹ He also had sons by Hushim: Abitub and Elpaal. ¹² The sons of Elpaal: Eber, Misham, and Shemed, who built Ono and Lod with its towns, ¹³ and Beriah and Shema (they were heads of ancestral houses of the inhabitants of Aijalon, who put to flight the inhabitants of Gath); ¹⁴ and Ahio, Shashak, and Jeremoth. ¹⁵ Zebadiah, Arad, Eder, ¹⁶ Michael, Ishpah, and Joha were sons of Beriah. ¹⁷ Zebadiah, Meshullam, Hizki, Heber, ¹⁸ Ishmerai, Izliah, and Jobab were the sons of Elpaal. ¹⁹ Jakim, Zichri, Zabdi, ²⁰ El-ienai, Zillethai, Eliel, ²¹ Aadaiah, Beraiah, and Shimrath were the sons of Shimei. ²² Ishpan, Eber, Eliel, ²³ Abdon, Zichri, Hanan, ²⁴ Hananiah, Elam, Anthothijah, ²⁵ Iphdeiah, and Penuel were the sons of Shashak. ²⁶ Shamsherai, Shehariah, Athaliah, ²⁷ Jareshiah, Elijah, and Zichri were the sons of Jeroham. ²⁸ These were the heads of ancestral houses, according to their generations, chiefs. These lived in Jerusalem.

²⁹ Jeiel^d the father of Gibeon lived in Gibeon, and the name of his wife was Maacah. ³⁰ His firstborn son: Abdon, then Zur, Kish, Baal,^e Nadab, ³¹ Gedor, Ahio, Zecher, ³² and Mikloth, who became the father of Shimeah. Now these also lived opposite their kindred in Jerusalem, with their kindred.

³³ Ner became the father of Kish, Kish of Saul,^f Saul^f of Jonathan, Malchishua, Abinadab, and Esh-baal; ³⁴ and the son of Jonathan was Merib-baal; and Merib-baal became the father of Micah. ³⁵ The sons of Micah: Pithon, Melech, Tarea, and Ahaz. ³⁶ Ahaz became the father of Jehoaddah; and Jehoaddah became the father of Alemeth, Azmaveth, and Zimri; Zimri became the father of Moza. ³⁷ Moza became the father of Binea; Raphah was his son, Eleasah his son, Azel his son. ³⁸ Azel had six sons, and these are their names: Azrikam, Bocheru, Ishmael, Sheariah, Obadiah, and Hanan; all these were the sons of Azel. ³⁹ The sons of his brother Eshek: Ulam his firstborn, Jeush the second, and Eliphelet the third. ⁴⁰ The sons of Ulam were mighty warriors, archers, having many children and grandchildren, one hundred fifty. All these were Benjaminites.

9 So all Israel was enrolled by genealogies; and these are written in the Book of the Kings of Israel. And Judah was taken into exile in Babylon because of their unfaithfulness. ² Now the first to live again in their possessions in their towns were Israelites, priests, Levites, and temple servants.

³ And some of the people of Judah, Benjamin, Ephraim, and Manasseh lived in ^a Or father of Ehud; see 8.6

^b Heb and Naaman

^c Or he carried them into exile

^d Compare 9.35: Heb lacks Jeiel

^e Gk Ms adds Ner; Compare 8.33 and 9.36

^f Or Shaul

reflects both the author's interests and circumstances in postexilic Judah, into which sections of Benjamin were incorporated. The author's interest in Benjamin is also reflected in the narrative portions of the Chronicler's work (2 Chr 11.1,3,12,23). 8.33–40: Saul's genealogy is followed for eleven generations (cf. 10.1–14). 33–34: Esh-baal and Merib-baal are probably earlier forms of "Ishbosheth" (2 Sam 2.8) and "Mephibosheth" (2 Sam 4.4). 9.1: The reference to genealogical registrations concludes the Chronicler's introductions to Israel's twelve tribes, begun in 2.1–2. In the Chronicler's theology, the exile marks an important dividing line between monarchic Israel and Judah in the Persian period. Unfaithfulness is a Priestly term. Its use here, as the cause for exile, reflects the significance of Priestly material to this author. The same term is also used in 1 Chr 10.13 (the death of Saul) and 2 Chr 36.14 (the exile of Judah).

9.2–34: The genealogies of Jerusalem families in postexilic Judah. This first section of this passage (vv. 2–18) is partially paralleled in Neh 11.3–19. By mentioning these families, officials, and their interrelationships, the author establishes links between the Israel of old (outlined in chs 2–8) and the Jerusalem community of Jerusalem: ⁴ Uthai son of Ammihud, son of Omri, son of Imri, son of Bani, from the sons of Perez son of Judah. ⁵ And of the Shilonites: Asaiah the firstborn, and his sons. ⁶ Of the sons of Zerah: Jeuel and their kin, six hundred ninety. ⁷ Of the Benjaminites: Sallu son of Meshullam, son of Hodaviah, son of Has-senuah, ⁸ Ibneiah son of Jeroham, Elah son of Uzzi, son of Michri, and Meshullam son of Shephatiah, son of Reuel, son of Ibnijah; ⁹ and their kindred according to their generations, nine hundred fifty-six. All these were heads of families according to their ancestral houses.

¹⁰ Of the priests: Jedaiah, Jehoiarib, Jachin, ¹¹ and Azariah son of Hilkiah, son of Meshullam, son of Zadok, son of Meraioth, son of Ahitub, the chief officer of the house of God; ¹² and Adaiah son of Jeroham, son of Pashhur, son of Malchijah, and Maasai son of Adiel, son of Jahzerah, son of Meshullam, son of Meshillemith, son of Immer; ¹³ besides their kindred, heads of their ancestral houses, one thousand seven hundred sixty, qualified for the work of the service of the house of God.

¹⁴ Of the Levites: Shemaiah son of Has-shub, son of Azrikam, son of Hashabiah, of the sons of Merari; ¹⁵ and Bakbakkar, Heresh, Galal, and Mattaniah son of Mica, son of Zichri, son of Asaph; ¹⁶ and Obadiah son of Shemaiah, son of Galal, son of Jeduthun, and Berechiah son of Asa, son of Elkanah, who lived in the villages of the Netophathites.

¹⁷ The gatekeepers were: Shallum, Akkub, Talmon, Ahiman; and their kindred Shallum was the chief, ¹⁸ stationed previously in the king's gate on the east side. These were the gatekeepers of the camp of the Levites. ¹⁹ Shallum son of Kore, son of Ebiasaph, son of Korah, and his kindred of his ancestral house, the Korahites, were in charge of the work of the service, guardians of the thresholds of the tent, as their ancestors had been in charge of the camp of the LORD, guardians of the entrance. ²⁰ And Phinehas son of Eleazar was chief over them in former times; the LORD was with him. ²¹ Zechariah son of Meshelemiah was gatekeeper at the entrance of the tent of meeting. ²² All these, who were chosen as gatekeepers at the thresholds, were two hundred twelve. They were enrolled by genealogies in their villages. David and the seer Samuel established them in their office of trust. ²³ So they and their descendants were in charge of the gates of the house of the LORD, that is, the house of the tent, as guards. ²⁴ The gatekeepers were on the four sides, east, west, north, and south; ²⁵ and their kindred who were in their villages were obliged to come in every seven days, in turn, to be with them; ²⁶ for the four chief gatekeepers, who were Levites, were in charge of the chambers and the treasures of the house of God. ²⁷ And they would spend the night near the house of God; for on them lay the duty of watching, and they had charge of opening it every morning.

²⁸ Some of them had charge of the utensils of service, for they were required to count them when they were brought in and taken out. ²⁹ Others of them were appointed over the furniture, and over all the holy utensils, also over the choice flour, the wine, the oil, the incense, and the spices. ³⁰ Others, of the sons of the priests, prepared the mixing of the spices, ³¹ and Mattithiah, one of the Levites, the firstborn of Shallum the Korahite, was in charge of making the flat cakes. ³² Also some of their kindred of the Kohathites had charge of the rows of bread, to prepare them for each sabbath.

³³ Now these are the singers, the heads of ancestral houses of the Levites, living in the chambers of the temple free from other service, for they were on duty day and night. ³⁴ These were heads of ancestral houses of the Levites, according to their generations; these leaders lived in Jerusalem.

his own time. 3: The detail of people of Ephraim and Manasseh living in Jerusalem is not found in Nehemiah, and reflects the Chronicler's interest in all of Israel. 10–11: The list of priests should be read in light of the pre-exilic succession of priests found in 6.1–15. 17–34: The list of levitical gatekeepers and singers, as well as the description of their duties, is unparalleled in the list of Neh 11. The passage illustrates the Chronicler's interest in continuity by insisting that the arrangements David (and here Samuel, v. 22) made on their behalf (chs 15–17; 26) were followed when the Jewish exiles returned from Babylon. The gatekeepers perform multiple functions: not only guard duty, but also administration and even baking. 20: Phinehas, cf. Num 25.11–13. 32: Rows of bread, ³⁵ In Gibeon lived the father of Gibeon, Jeiel, and the name of his wife was Maacah. ³⁶ His firstborn son was Abdon, then Zur, Kish, Baal, Ner, Nadab, ³⁷ Gedor, Ahio, Zechariah, and Mikloth; ³⁸ and Mikloth became the father of Shimeam; and these also lived opposite their kindred in Jerusalem, with their kindred. ³⁹ Ner became the father of Kish, Kish of Saul, Saul of Jonathan, Malchishua, Abinadab, and Esh-baal; ⁴⁰ and the son of Jonathan was Merib-baal; and Merib-baal became the father of Micah. ⁴¹ The sons of Micah: Pithon, Melech, Tahrea, and Ahaz;^a ⁴² and Ahaz became the father of Jarah, and Jarah of Alemeth, Azmaveth, and Zimri; and Zimri became the father of Moza. ⁴³ Moza became the father of Binea; and Rephaiah was his son, Eleasah his son, Azel his son. ⁴⁴ Azel had six sons, and these are their names: Azrikam, Bocheru, Ishmael, Sheariah, Obadiah, and Hanan; these were the sons of Azel.

10 Now the Philistines fought against Israel; and the men of Israel fled before the Philistines, and fell slain on Mount Gilboa. ² The Philistines overtook Saul and his sons; and the Philistines killed Jonathan and Abinadab and Malchishua, sons of Saul. ³ The battle pressed hard on Saul; and the archers found him, and he was wounded by the archers. ⁴ Then Saul said to his armor-bearer, “Draw your sword, and thrust me through with it, so that these uncircumcised may not come and make sport of me.” But his armor-bearer was unwilling, for he was terrified. So Saul took his own sword and fell on it. ⁵ When his armor-bearer saw that Saul was dead, he also fell on his sword and died. ⁶ Thus Saul died; he and his three sons and all his house died together. ⁷ When all the men of Israel who were in the valley saw that the army^b had fled and that Saul and his sons were dead, they abandoned their towns and fled; and the Philistines came and occupied them.

⁸ The next day when the Philistines came to strip the dead, they found Saul and his sons fallen on Mount Gilboa. ⁹ They stripped him and took his head and his armor, and sent messengers throughout the land of the Philistines to carry the good news to their idols and to the people. ¹⁰ They put his armor in the temple of their gods, and fastened his head in the temple of Dagon. ¹¹ But when all Jabesh-gilead heard everything that the Philistines had done to Saul, ¹² all the valiant warriors got up and took away the body of Saul and the bodies of his sons, and brought them to Jabesh. Then they buried their bones under the oak in Jabesh, and fasted seven days.

¹³ So Saul died for his unfaithfulness; he was unfaithful to the LORD in that he did not keep the command of the LORD; moreover, he had consulted a medium, seeking guidance, ¹⁴ and did not seek guidance from the LORD. Therefore the LORD^c put him to death

^a Compare 8.35: Heb lacks and Ahaz

^b Heb they

^c Heb he

cf. Lev 24.5–9. 35–44: A transition, repeating the genealogy of Saul from 8.29–38 to introduce the first king of the United Monarchy (10.1–14).

10.1–14: The demise of Saul. Verses 1–12 are parallel to 1 Sam 31.1–13. Of the many incidents in Saul's career, the Chronicler presents only the last—the story of Saul's death, assuming that the reader is generally familiar with the earlier part of the story from 1 Samuel. The evaluation of Saul's reign—the Chronicler's own addition—plays on both the Heb roots “m'l” (“to be unfaithful, disobedient”; see 1.9) and “drš” (“to seek out, consult”), which are key terms in Chronicles. Saul dies because of his infidelity, even consulting a necromancer (1 Sam 28.3,7–25). Consultation with mediums to obtain contact with the dead is forbidden in legal texts (Lev 19.31; 20.6,27; Deut 18.11) and condemned in at least one prophetic text (Isa 8.18–19). This addition typifies the work of the Chronicler, who often searches his sources to find a clear theological cause for national disaster. 4–5: Uncircumcised, unlike most of their contemporaries in the Near East, the Philistines did not practice circumcision. Fell on his sword, suicide is infrequent, but not condemned, in the Bible; see 2 Sam 17.23; 1 Kings 16.18; and, in the New Testament, Mt 27.5. 6: All his house died, a generalization, ignoring the continuing genealogy of Saul (cf. 8.33–40; 9.35–44). 10: Dagon, a Canaanite god of grain, adopted by the Philistines as one of their principal deities. 11–12: Jabesh-gilead, in 1 Sam 11, Saul is acclaimed king after his rescue of this city east of the Jordan from Ammonite oppression. 14: As elsewhere in Chronicles, the choice of kings belongs to God (e.g., 28.2–5; 29.10–12).

The kingdom of David according to First Chronicles. The dashed line shows the approximate boundary of the kingdom at its greatest extent.

and turned the kingdom over to David son of Jesse.

11 Then all Israel gathered together to David at Hebron and said, “See, we are your bone and flesh. ²For some time now, even while Saul was king, it was you who commanded the army of Israel. The LORD your God said to you: It is you who shall be shepherd of my people Israel, you who shall be ruler over my people Israel.” ³So all the elders of Israel came to the king at Hebron, and David made a covenant with them at Hebron before the LORD. And they anointed David king over Israel, according to the word of the LORD by Samuel.

⁴David and all Israel marched to Jerusalem, that is Jebus, where the Jebusites were, the inhabitants of the land. ⁵The inhabitants of Jebus said to David, “You will not come in here.” Nevertheless David took the stronghold of Zion, now the city of David. ⁶David had said, “Whoever attacks the Jebusites first shall be chief and commander.” And Joab son of Zeruiah went up first, so he became chief. ⁷David resided in the stronghold; therefore it was called the city of David. ⁸He built the city all around, from the Millo in complete circuit; and Joab repaired the rest of the city. ⁹And David became greater and greater, for the LORD of hosts was with him.

¹⁰Now these are the chiefs of David’s warriors, who gave him strong support in his kingdom, together with all Israel, to make him king, according to the word of the LORD concerning Israel. ¹¹This is an account of David’s mighty warriors: Jashobeam, son of Hachmoni,^a was chief of the Three;^b he wielded his spear against three hundred whom he killed at one time.

¹²And next to him among the three warriors was Eleazar son of Dodo, the Ahohite. ¹³He was with David at Pas-dammim when the Philistines were gathered there for battle. There was a plot of ground full of barley. Now the people had fled from the Philistines, ¹⁴but he and David took their stand in the middle of the plot, defended it, and killed the Philistines; and the LORD saved them by a great victory.

¹⁵Three of the thirty chiefs went down to the rock to David at the cave of Adullam, while the army of Philistines was encamped in the valley of Rephaim. ¹⁶David was then in the stronghold; and the garrison of the Philistines was then at Bethlehem. ¹⁷David said longingly, “O that someone would give me water to drink from the well of Bethlehem that is by the gate!” ¹⁸Then the Three broke through the camp of the Philistines, and drew water from the well of Bethlehem that was by the gate, and they brought it to David.

^a Or a Hachmonite

^b Compare 2 Sam 23.8: Heb Thirty or captains

11.1–47: The impressive beginnings of David’s reign. David does not seek out the kingship; the Israelites gathered together to David to make him king (v. 1). Pan-Israelite assemblies are regular occurrences in Chronicles (13.2; 2 Chr 15.9; 20.4; 23.2; 24.5; 25.5; 32.4,6). In this case, the consequences are clear. David immediately becomes king over all of Israel’s tribes. In 2 Samuel David first becomes king over two tribes and only after considerable struggle becomes king over the northern tribes as well (2 Sam 2–5), but this information, which casts doubt on the greatness of David, is omitted by the Chronicler. 4–9: David, leading all Israel (v. 4; cf. 2 Sam 5.6), captures Jerusalem as his first public act upon being made king. Such reorganizing of chronology typifies the Chronicler. By situating the capture of Jerusalem (borrowed from 2 Sam 5.6–10) at this point in the narrative, the author underscores the primacy of Jerusalem. 6: Joab became the head of the army (see 18.15); his role in the capture of Jerusalem is not reported in 2 Sam 5 (cf. v. 8, another mention of Joab not in 2 Sam). 8: David’s building projects consisted essentially of a palace and fortifications in Jerusalem. The Chronicler attributes more building activity to David than do the authors of 2 Samuel (2 Sam 5.9,11; 7.2; 1 Chr 17.1; 2 Chr 2.2). Millo, probably “fill” for artificial terraces. 10–47: The list of the chiefs of David’s warriors largely follows an appendix to 2 Samuel (23.8–39). It is moved here, early in David’s reign, to illustrate the consolidation of David’s kingship. Israel’s call to David to serve as king is followed by a visible demonstration of military support from various commanders, together with all Israel (v. 10). Little is otherwise known about these heroes. 18: He poured it out to the LORD as a libation (1 Sam 7.6; Jer 44.16–18); such water libations became especially important in the later Second Temple period, especially in connection with the festival of

But David would not drink of it; he poured it out to the LORD,¹⁹ and said, “My God forbid that I should do this. Can I drink the blood of these men? For at the risk of their lives they brought it.” Therefore he would not drink it. The three warriors did these things.

²⁰ Now Abishai,^a the brother of Joab, was chief of the Thirty.^b With his spear he fought against three hundred and killed them, and won a name beside the Three.²¹ He was the most renowned^c of the Thirty,^b and became their commander; but he did not attain to the Three.

²² Benaiah son of Jehoiada was a valiant man^d of Kabzeel, a doer of great deeds; he struck down two sons of^e Ariel of Moab. He also went down and killed a lion in a pit on a day when snow had fallen.²³ And he killed an Egyptian, a man of great stature, five cubits tall. The Egyptian had in his hand a spear like a weaver’s beam; but Benaiah went against him with a staff, snatched the spear out of the Egyptian’s hand, and killed him with his own spear.²⁴ Such were the things Benaiah son of Jehoiada did, and he won a name beside the three warriors.²⁵ He was renowned among the Thirty, but he did not attain to the Three. And David put him in charge of his bodyguard.

²⁶ The warriors of the armies were Asahel brother of Joab, Elhanan son of Dodo of Bethlehem,²⁷ Shammoth of Harod,^f Helez the Pelonite,²⁸ Ira son of Ikkesh of Tekoa, Abiezer of Anathoth,²⁹ Sibbecai the Hushathite, Ilai the Ahohite,³⁰ Maharai of Netophah, Heled son of Baanah of Netophah,³¹ Ithai son of Ribai of Gibeah of the Benjaminites, Benaiah of Pirathon,³² Hurai of the wadis of Gaash, Abiel the Arbathite,³³ Azmaveth of Baharum, Elishba of Shaalbon,³⁴ Hashem^g the Gizonite, Jonathan son of Shagee the Hararite,³⁵ Ahiam son of Sachar the Hararite, Eliphai son of Ur,³⁶ Hephher the Mecherathite, Ahijah the Pelonite,³⁷ Hezro of Carmel, Naarai son of Ezbai,³⁸ Joel the brother of Nathan, Mibhar

son of Hagri,³⁹ Zelek the Ammonite, Naharai of Beeroth, the armor-bearer of Joab son of Zeruiah,⁴⁰ Ira the Ithrite, Gareb the Ithrite,⁴¹ Uriah the Hittite, Zabad son of Ahlai,⁴² Adina son of Shiza the Reubenite, a leader of the Reubenites, and thirty with him,⁴³ Hanan son of Maacah, and Joshaphat the Mithnite,⁴⁴ Uzzia the Ashterathite, Shama and Jeiel sons of Hotham the Aroerite,⁴⁵ Jediel son of Shimri, and his brother Joha the Tizite,⁴⁶ Eliel the Mahavite, and Jeribai and Joshaviah sons of Elnaam, and Ithmah the Moabite,⁴⁷ Eliel, and Obed, and Jaasiel the Mezobaite.

12 The following are those who came to David at Ziklag, while he could not move about freely because of Saul son of Kish; they were among the mighty warriors who helped him in war.² They were archers, and could shoot arrows and sling stones with either the right hand or the left; they were Benjaminites, Saul’s kindred.³ The chief was Ahiezer, then Joash, both sons of Shemaah of Gibeah; also Jeziel and Pelet sons of Azmaveth; Beracah, Jehu of Anathoth,⁴ Ishmaiah of Gibeon, a warrior among the Thirty and a leader over the Thirty; Jeremiah,^h Jahaziel, Johanan, Jozabad of Gederah,⁵ Eluzai,ⁱ Jerimoth, Bealiah, Shemariah, Shephatiah the Haruphite;⁶ Elkanah, Isshiah, Azarel, Joezer, and Jashobeam, the Korahites;⁷ and Joelah and Zebadiah, sons of Jeroham of Gedor.

⁸ From the Gadites there went over to David at the stronghold in the wilderness

^a Gk Vg Tg Compare 2 Sam 23.18: Heb Abshai

^b Syr: Heb Three

^c Compare 2 Sam 23.19: Heb more renowned among the two

^d Syr: Heb the son of a valiant man

^e See 2 Sam 23.20: Heb lacks sons of

^f Compare 2 Sam 23.25: Heb the Harorite

^g Compare Gk and 2 Sam 23.32: Heb the sons of Hashem

^h Heb verse 5

ⁱ Heb verse 6

booths (Sukkot). 41a: Uriah, the only reference in Chronicles to the man known in 2 Sam 11–12 as the husband of Bathsheba before David. 41b–47: These verses are unparalleled in 2 Sam 23.8–39.

12.1–40: David’s national prestige and power grow. Warriors from Benjamin (vv. 1–8), Gad (vv. 9–16), Benjamin and Judah (vv. 17–19), and Manasseh (vv. 20–23) rally to David, consolidating his rule. This is set during an early stage of David’s career (v. 1), suggesting that the Benjaminites defected to David while Saul was still alive (cf. 2 Sam 2.12–32). This material has few parallels in 2 Samuel, and scholars debate whether it is based on mighty and experienced warriors, expert with shield and spear, whose faces were like the faces of lions, and who were swift as gazelles on the mountains: ⁹ Ezer the chief, Obadiah second, Eliab third, ¹⁰ Mishmannah fourth, Jeremiah fifth, ¹¹ Attai sixth, Eliel seventh, ¹² Johanan eighth, Elzabad ninth, ¹³ Jeremiah tenth, Machbannai eleventh. ¹⁴ These Gadites were officers of the army, the least equal to a hundred and the greatest to a thousand. ¹⁵ These are the men who crossed the Jordan in the first month, when it was overflowing all its banks, and put to flight all those in the valleys, to the east and to the west.

¹⁶ Some Benjaminites and Judahites came to the stronghold to David. ¹⁷ David went out to meet them and said to them, “If you have come to me in friendship, to help me, then my heart will be knit to you; but if you have come to betray me to my adversaries, though my hands have done no wrong, then may the God of our ancestors see and give judgment.” ¹⁸ Then the spirit came upon Amasai, chief of the Thirty, and he said,

“We are yours, O David;
and with you, O son of Jesse!
Peace, peace to you,
and peace to the one who helps you!
For your God is the one who helps you.”

Then David received them, and made them officers of his troops.

¹⁹ Some of the Manassites deserted to David when he came with the Philistines for the battle against Saul. (Yet he did not help them, for the rulers of the Philistines took counsel and sent him away, saying, “He will desert to his master Saul at the cost of our heads.”) ²⁰ As he went to Ziklag these Manassites deserted to him: Adnah, Jozabad, Jediahel, Michael, Jozabad, Elihu, and Zillethai, chiefs of the thousands in Manasseh. ²¹ They helped David against the band of raiders,^a for they were all warriors and commanders in the army. ²² Indeed from day to day people kept coming to David to help him, until there was a great army, like an army of God.

²³ These are the numbers of the divisions of the armed troops who came to David in Hebron to turn the kingdom of Saul over to him, according to the word of the LORD. ²⁴ The people of Judah bearing shield and spear numbered six thousand eight hundred armed troops. ²⁵ Of the Simeonites, mighty warriors, seven thousand one hundred. ²⁶ Of the Levites four thousand six hundred. ²⁷ Jehoiada, leader of the house of Aaron, and with him three thousand seven hundred. ²⁸ Zadok, a young warrior, and twenty-two commanders from his own ancestral house. ²⁹ Of the Benjaminites, the kindred of Saul, three thousand, of whom the majority had continued to keep their allegiance to the house of Saul. ³⁰ Of the Ephraimites, twenty thousand eight hundred, mighty warriors, notables in their ancestral houses. ³¹ Of the half-tribe of Manasseh, eighteen thousand, who were expressly named to come and make David king. ³² Of Issachar, those who had understanding of the times, to know what Israel ought to do, two hundred chiefs, and all their kindred

^a Or as officers of his troops

other sources or is an imaginative composition of the Chronicler. 1: Ziklag, see 1 Sam 27.6; 30. 2: Cf. Judg 20.16. 8: Like . . . lions, cf. Deut 33.20. 15: The first month, in the spring. 18: The spirit came upon, lit. “a spirit clothed”; cf. Judg 6.34; 2 Chr 24.20. The acclamation of Amasai, peace, peace to you, contrasts with the anti-David sentiment sometimes found in 2 Samuel (e.g., 2 Sam 20.1). Because of the divine support for David, those who support David may also be blessed. The language is reminiscent of the blessing bestowed on Abram (Gen 12.3) except that there is no curse. 19–20: The battle against Saul, this is the battle referred to in ch 10. The Chronicler here summarizes 1 Sam 29.1–30.1. 22: An army (lit. “camp”) of God, either expressing the superlative (i.e., “a very great army”), or referring to the heavenly armies (e.g., see Deut 33.2; Josh 5.14). 23: In Hebron, see 11.1. 23–39a: The beginning of v. 23, these are the numbers, introduces a long stylized list (vv. 25–38) of David’s armed forces. The tribal muster, totaling thirteen, is the most complete tally of the Israelite tribes in the Bible. The active allegiance shown by Israelite military officials to David accords with divine will and results in a smooth transfer of power (10.14; 11.3,10). The heroic portrayal of intertribal solidarity (v. 38) contrasts with the tribal disorganization and civil strife found in Judges. 28: Zadok, a young warrior, probably to be identified as the priest who served with Abiathar at the court of David (15.11; 2 Sam 8.17) and who subsequently enjoyed Solomon’s excluunder their command. ³³ Of Zebulun, fifty thousand seasoned troops, equipped for battle with all the weapons of war, to help David^d with singleness of purpose. ³⁴ Of Naphtali, a thousand commanders, with whom there were thirty-seven thousand armed with shield and spear. ³⁵ Of the Danites, twenty-eight thousand six hundred equipped for battle. ³⁶ Of Asher, forty thousand seasoned troops ready for battle. ³⁷ Of the Reubenites and Gadites and the half-tribe of Manasseh from beyond the Jordan, one hundred twenty thousand armed with all the weapons of war.

³⁸ All these, warriors arrayed in battle order, came to Hebron with full intent to make David king over all Israel; likewise all the rest of Israel were of a single mind to make David king. ³⁹ They were there with David for three days, eating and drinking, for their kindred had provided for them. ⁴⁰ And also their neighbors, from as far away as Issachar and Zebulun and Naphtali, came bringing food on donkeys, camels, mules, and oxen—abundant provisions of meal, cakes of figs, clusters of raisins, wine, oil, oxen, and sheep, for there was joy in Israel.

13 David consulted with the commanders of the thousands and of the hundreds, with every leader. ² David said to the whole assembly of Israel, “If it seems good to you, and if it is the will of the LORD our God, let us send abroad to our kindred who remain in all the land of Israel, including the priests and Levites in the cities that have pasture lands, that they may come together to us. ³ Then let us bring again the ark of our God to us; for we did not turn to it in the days of Saul.” ⁴ The whole assembly agreed to do so, for the thing pleased all the people.

⁵ So David assembled all Israel from the Shihor of Egypt to Lebo-hamath, to bring the ark of God from Kiriath-jearim. ⁶ And David and all Israel went up to Baalah, that is, to Kiriath-jearim, which belongs to Judah, to bring up from there the ark of God, the LORD, who is enthroned on the cherubim, which is called by his^b name. ⁷ They carried the ark of God on a new cart, from the house of Abinadab, and Uzzah and Ahio^c were driving the cart. ⁸ David and all Israel were dancing before God with all their might, with song and lyres and harps and tambourines and cymbals and trumpets.

⁹ When they came to the threshing floor of Chidon, Uzzah put out his hand to hold the ark, for the oxen shook it. ¹⁰ The anger of the LORD was kindled against Uzzah; he struck him down because he put out his hand to the ark; and he died there before God. ¹¹ David was angry because the LORD had burst out against Uzzah; so that place is called Perez-uzzah^d to this day. ¹² David was afraid of God that day; he said, “How can I bring the ark of God into my care?” ¹³ So David did not take the ark into his care into the city of David; he

^a Gk: Heb lacks David

^b Heb lacks his

^c Or and his brother

^d That is Bursting Out Against Uzzah

sive patronage following Solomon's purge of Abiathar (1 Kings 2.35; cf. 29.22). 39–40: Elaborate feasts, like the one celebrated by David and representatives from the various Israelite tribes, punctuate high points in Israelite and Judean history (15.25–16.3; 29.20–22; 2 Chr 7.8–10; 20.27–28; 29.30–36; 30.21–27) and also play a crucial role in Esther, also from the Persian period. This nationwide celebration concludes the initial phase of David's reign.

13.1–14: David and the ark, Part 1. Having been firmly and unanimously established as king, David leads all Israel in the attempt to retrieve a national symbol of Israel's religion and bring it to the new capital. 2: The Chronicler's Levites live at various sites within Israel's tribal territories (6.54–81). Because this priestly tribe is an essential component of Israel and Israel's most sacred symbol to Jerusalem must be transferred properly to Jerusalem, the Chronicler adds to his source participation of the priests and Levites, along with an emphasis on all Israel. 3: No reference is made to the capture of the ark by the Philistines (cf. 1 Sam 4.11–7.1); here its neglect is implicitly another example of Saul's unfaithfulness (see 10.13–14). 5: From the Shihor of Egypt (probably the easternmost branch of the Nile) to Lebo-hamath (in Syria), the northern and southern limits of Israel (cf. 2 Chr 7.8). 6–14: This material is largely drawn from 2 Sam 6.2–11. 6: The ark, a portable box, was a unifying religious symbol in the premonarchic period (Josh 3.1–17; 4.1–18; 1 Sam 4.1–7.1). According to Ex 25.10–21; 37.1–9, its construction was ordained by God and implemented by Moses. Enthroned on the cherubim, see 1 Sam 4.4n. 11: Burst out, see note d. 13: The city of David refers to Mount Zion, the section of Jerusalem fortified by David took it instead to the house of Obed-edom the Gittite. ¹⁴The ark of God remained with the household of Obed-edom in his house three months, and the LORD blessed the household of Obed-edom and all that he had.

14 King Hiram of Tyre sent messengers to David, along with cedar logs, and masons and carpenters to build a house for him. ²David then perceived that the LORD had established him as king over Israel, and that his kingdom was highly exalted for the sake of his people Israel.

³David took more wives in Jerusalem, and David became the father of more sons and daughters. ⁴These are the names of the children whom he had in Jerusalem: Shammua, Shobab, and Nathan; Solomon, ⁵Ibhar, Elishua, and Elpelet; ⁶Nogah, Nepheg, and Japhia; ⁷Elishama, Beeliada, and Eliphelet.

⁸When the Philistines heard that David had been anointed king over all Israel, all the Philistines went up in search of David; and David heard of it and went out against them.

⁹Now the Philistines had come and made a raid in the valley of Rephaim. ¹⁰David inquired of God, “Shall I go up against the Philistines? Will you give them into my hand?” The LORD said to him, “Go up, and I will give them into your hand.” ¹¹So he went up to Baal-perazim, and David defeated them there. David said, “God has burst out^a against my enemies by my hand, like a bursting flood.” Therefore that place is called Baal-perazim.^b ¹²They abandoned their gods there, and at David’s command they were burned.

¹³Once again the Philistines made a raid in the valley. ¹⁴When David again inquired of God, God said to him, “You shall not go up after them; go around and come on them opposite the balsam trees. ¹⁵When you hear the sound of marching in the tops of the balsam trees, then go out to battle; for God has gone out before you to strike down the army of the Philistines.” ¹⁶David did as God had commanded him, and they struck down the Philistine army from Gibeon to Gezer. ¹⁷The fame of David went out into all lands, and the LORD brought the fear of him on all nations.

15 David^c built houses for himself in the city of David, and he prepared a place for the ark of God and pitched a tent for it. ²Then David commanded that no one but the Levites were to carry the ark of God, for the LORD had chosen them to carry the ark

^a Heb paraz

^b That is Lord of Bursting Out

^c Heb He

and renamed in his honor (11.7). In Chronicles Obed-edom is a Levite, who functions as a gatekeeper (15:18,24) and a musician (15:21; 16:5; 26:4–8). 14: The blessing on Obed-edom’s house hints that the setback suffered by David is only temporary.

14.1–7: David’s success in Jerusalem (cf. 2 Sam 5.11–16). According to 1 Kings 5.15–26 (cf. 2 Chr 2.2–15), Hiram (called Hiram in Chronicles) had very good relations with David. The link between blessings for David and blessings for Israel anticipates Nathan’s dynastic oracle (17.1–17). 3: Accumulating wives and progeny is consistently a positive sign of stature in Chronicles (25.5; 26.4–5; 2 Chr 11.18–23; 13.21; 14.3–7). For David’s sons, see 3.1–9.

14.8–17: Philistine attacks (cf. 2 Sam 5.17–25). If the mishandling of the ark (13.9–11) represented an internal challenge to the establishment of Jerusalem’s worship, the Philistine aggressions were an external threat to the viability of David’s rule. The two narratives detailing David’s exploits against the Philistines are replete with “holy-war” phraseology, reflecting the notion that the LORD fights on behalf of his people and secures victory for them (Ex 14.4,18; Josh 11.2,24; Judg 3.28; 4.7,17; 18.10; 20.28; 1 Sam 14.12,23; 23.4). 12: In 2 Sam 5.21, David carries these images home. In having the images consigned to fire, the Chronicler has David act in accordance with Deuteronomic law (Deut 7.25; 12.3). 16: From Gibeon to Gezer, about 28 km (18 mi), a limited area. 17: International respect denotes divine blessing (2 Chr 9.5–8,23; 17.10; 26.8,15; 32.23).

15.1–16.3: David and the ark, Part 2. Having been successful in war and blessed by God, David turns his attention again to the matter of the ark. In the ancient Near East successful kings were expected to honor the deities who led them by supporting and endowing places of worship. Much of chs 15–16, which supplements material from 2 Sam 6 with original material concerning the Levites, elaborates on this very point. 15.1: The houses David builds for himself most likely refer to domiciles in addition to the palace built by Hiram of Tyre (14.1). David’s construction activity establishes a positive pattern for other kings to follow (2 Chr 11.5–12; 14.6; of the LORD and to minister to him forever.

³ David assembled all Israel in Jerusalem to bring up the ark of the LORD to its place, which he had prepared for it. ⁴ Then David gathered together the descendants of Aaron and the Levites: ⁵ of the sons of Kohath, Uriel the chief, with one hundred twenty of his kindred; ⁶ of the sons of Merari, Asaiah the chief, with two hundred twenty of his kindred; ⁷ of the sons of Gershon, Joel the chief, with one hundred thirty of his kindred; ⁸ of the sons of Elizaphan, Shemaiah the chief, with two hundred of his kindred; ⁹ of the sons of Hebron, Eliel the chief, with eighty of his kindred; ¹⁰ of the sons of Uzziel, Amminadab the chief, with one hundred twelve of his kindred.

¹¹ David summoned the priests Zadok and Abiathar, and the Levites Uriel, Asaiah, Joel, Shemaiah, Eliel, and Amminadab. ¹² He said to them, “You are the heads of families of the Levites; sanctify yourselves, you and your kindred, so that you may bring up the ark of the LORD, the God of Israel, to the place that I have prepared for it. ¹³ Because you did not carry it the first time,^a the LORD our God burst out against us, because we did not give it proper care.” ¹⁴ So the priests and the Levites sanctified themselves to bring up the ark of the LORD, the God of Israel. ¹⁵ And the Levites carried the ark of God on their shoulders with the poles, as Moses had commanded according to the word of the LORD.

¹⁶ David also commanded the chiefs of the Levites to appoint their kindred as the singers to play on musical instruments, on harps and lyres and cymbals, to raise loud sounds of joy. ¹⁷ So the Levites appointed Heman son of Joel; and of his kindred Asaph son of Berechiah; and of the sons of Merari, their kindred, Ethan son of Kushaiah; ¹⁸ and with them their kindred of the second order, Zechariah, Jaaziel, Shemiramoth, Jehiel, Unni, Eliab, Benaiah, Maaseiah, Mattithiah, Eliphelehu, and Mikneiah, and the gatekeepers Obed-edom and Jeiel. ¹⁹ The singers Heman, Asaph, and Ethan were to sound bronze cymbals; ²⁰ Zechariah, Aziel, Shemiramoth, Jehiel, Unni, Eliab, Maaseiah, and Benaiah were to play harps according to Alamoth; ²¹ but Mattithiah, Eliphelehu, Mikneiah, Obed-edom, Jeiel, and Azaziah were to lead with lyres according to the Sheminith. ²² Chenaniah, leader of the Levites in music, was to direct the music, for he understood it. ²³ Berechiah and Elkanah were to be gatekeepers for the ark. ²⁴ Shebaniah, Joshaphat, Nethanel, Amasai, Zechariah, Benaiah, and Eliezer, the priests, were to blow the trumpets before the ark of God. Obed-edom and Jehiah also were to be gatekeepers for the ark.

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

26.2; 32.27–30). 2: David’s command that no one but the Levites carry the ark responds to Uzzah’s unfortunate death (13.10) through the lens of the Priestly material (Num 4.4–15; 7.9), the implication being that the proper personnel had not been involved in the first attempt to bring the ark into the City of David (v. 13). The following verses detail what personnel and actions David deems necessary to install the ark successfully. 3: The reference to a place for the ark of God implies a sacred precinct or sanctuary (Deut 12.5,11; 14.23–25; 15.20; Josh 9.27; 1 Chr 21.22,25; 2 Chr 3.1). 11: The two priests Zadok and Abiathar appear together during the first part of the reign of David (15.29,35; 18.16; 19.11; 20.25). Each of these priests headed or represented major priestly houses. See further 6.8n. 13: The Chronicler plays on Hebrew roots “prš,” “to break out” (13.3,11; 14.11; 15.13) and “drš,” “to seek.” The earlier attempt to redress neglect of the ark—“for we did not seek (drš) it in the days of Saul” (13.3)—was brought to a swift end by the divine outbreak (burst out, Heb “prš”; 13.10–11) against Uzzah. As later events made clear, the problem was not Israel’s communal decision “to seek” the ark, but the manner in which the people involved handled the arrangements. In the new attempt David insists on the intimate involvement of the priests and Levites to rectify the deficiency. 15: On their shoulders with the poles, the Chronicler asserts that the law of Moses was followed (Num 7.9). 16: Musical instruments figure prominently in the Chronicler’s ritual liturgies (16.42; 2 Chr 5.13; 7.6; 23.13; 34.12). In some texts the instruments are associated with David himself (2 Chr 29.24,26–27; Neh 12.36; cf. Am 6.5). Though David could not build the Temple (ch 17, 2 Sam 7), the Chronicler emphasizes here and elsewhere that David initiated the project, in their case by establishing the guilds of levitical Temple singers. 18: Many of these singers are mentioned again in vv. 20–21 and 16.5–6. 20–21: Alamoth and Sheminith are obscure musical terms found in Psalms (6.1; 12.1; 46.1). 25–28: The Chronicler re-

²⁵ So David and the elders of Israel, and the commanders of the thousands, went to bring up the ark of the covenant of the LORD from the house of Obed-edom with rejoicing. ²⁶ And because God helped the Levites who were carrying the ark of the covenant of the LORD, they sacrificed seven bulls and seven rams. ²⁷ David was clothed with a robe of fine linen, as also were all the Levites who were carrying the ark, and the singers, and Chenaniah the leader of the music of the singers; and David wore a linen ephod. ²⁸ So all Israel brought up the ark of the covenant of the LORD with shouting, to the sound of the horn, trumpets, and cymbals, and made loud music on harps and lyres.

²⁹ As the ark of the covenant of the LORD came to the city of David, Michal daughter of Saul looked out of the window, and saw King David leaping and dancing; and she despised him in her heart.

16 They brought in the ark of God, and set it inside the tent that David had pitched for it; and they offered burnt offerings and offerings of well-being before God. ² When David had finished offering the burnt offerings and the offerings of well-being, he blessed the people in the name of the LORD; ³ and he distributed to every person in Israel—man and woman alike—to each a loaf of bread, a portion of meat,^a and a cake of raisins.

⁴ He appointed certain of the Levites as ministers before the ark of the LORD, to invoke, to thank, and to praise the LORD, the God of Israel. ⁵ Asaph was the chief, and second to him Zechariah, Jeiel, Shemiramoth, Jehiel, Mattithiah, Eliab, Benaiah, Obed-edom, and Jeiel, with harps and lyres; Asaph was to sound the cymbals, ⁶ and the priests Benaiah and Jahaziel were to blow trumpets regularly, before the ark of the covenant of God.

⁷ Then on that day David first appointed the singing of praises to the LORD by Asaph and his kindred.

⁸ O give thanks to the LORD, call on his name, make known his deeds among the peoples.

⁹ Sing to him, sing praises to him,
tell of all his wonderful works.

¹⁰ Glory in his holy name;
let the hearts of those who seek the LORD rejoice.

¹¹ Seek the LORD and his strength,
seek his presence continually.

¹² Remember the wonderful works he has done,
his miracles, and the judgments he uttered,

¹³ O offspring of his servant Israel,^b
children of Jacob, his chosen ones.

¹⁴ He is the LORD our God;
his judgments are in all the earth.

¹⁵ Remember his covenant forever,
the word that he commanded, for a thousand generations,

¹⁶ the covenant that he made with Abraham,
his sworn promise to Isaac,

¹⁷ which he confirmed to Jacob as a statute,
to Israel as an everlasting covenant,

¹⁸ saying, “To you I will give the land of Canaan
as your portion for an inheritance.”

^a Compare Gk Syr Vg: Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Another reading is Abraham (compare Ps 105.6)

writes 2 Sam 6.12–15 to underscore the broad support for David’s campaign to complete the transfer of the ark. The elaborate apparel worn by the Levites in Chronicles contrasts markedly with that depicted in Samuel (see Ex 28.6–14, 39–43; Sir 45.8).

15.29–16.3: Michal and all Israel. A significant abridgment of 2 Sam 6.16–23, omitting the details of how Michal mocked David.

16.4–43: Staffing the national sanctuaries. With the ark successfully elevated to the place David prepared for it, David designates certain Levites and priests to officiate there. He also staffs the tabernacle at the high place in Gibeon (vv. 39–42). 7–36: The praises David instructs the Levites to sing are a medley of extracts, with some variations, from the Psalms: vv. 8–22, cf. Ps 105.1–15; vv. 23–33, cf. Ps 96; vv. 34–36, cf. Ps 106.1, 47–48. By the period of the Chronicler, some form of the book of Psalms probably already existed as a liturgical collec-

¹⁹ When they were few in number, of little account, and strangers in the land,^a ²⁰ wandering from nation to nation,
from one kingdom to another people, ²¹ he allowed no one to oppress them;
he rebuked kings on their account,
²² saying, “Do not touch my anointed ones;
do my prophets no harm.”
²³ Sing to the LORD, all the earth.
Tell of his salvation from day to day.
²⁴ Declare his glory among the nations,
his marvelous works among all the
peoples.
²⁵ For great is the LORD, and greatly to be praised;
he is to be revered above all gods.
²⁶ For all the gods of the peoples are idols,
but the LORD made the heavens.
²⁷ Honor and majesty are before him;
strength and joy are in his place.
²⁸ Ascribe to the LORD, O families of the
peoples,
ascribe to the LORD glory and strength.
²⁹ Ascribe to the LORD the glory due his
name;
bring an offering, and come before him.
Worship the LORD in holy splendor;
³⁰ tremble before him, all the earth.
The world is firmly established; it shall never be moved.
³¹ Let the heavens be glad, and let the earth
rejoice,
and let them say among the nations,
“The LORD is king!”
³² Let the sea roar, and all that fills it;
let the field exult, and everything in it.
³³ Then shall the trees of the forest sing for joy
before the LORD, for he comes to judge
the earth.

³⁴ O give thanks to the LORD, for he is good;
for his steadfast love endures forever.

³⁵ Say also:
“Save us, O God of our salvation, and gather and rescue us from among
the nations,
that we may give thanks to your holy name,
and glory in your praise.

³⁶ Blessed be the LORD, the God of Israel,
from everlasting to everlasting.”

Then all the people said “Amen!” and praised
the LORD.

³⁷ David left Asaph and his kinsfolk there before the ark of the covenant of the LORD to minister regularly before the ark as each day required,³⁸ and also Obed-edom and his^b sixty-eight kinsfolk; while Obed-edom son of Jeduthun and Hosah were to be gatekeepers.³⁹ And he left the priest Zadok and his kindred the priests before the tabernacle of the LORD in the high place that was at Gibeon, ⁴⁰ to offer burnt offerings to the LORD on the altar of burnt offering regularly, morning and evening, according to all that is written in the law of the LORD that he commanded Israel.

⁴¹ With them were Heman and Jeduthun, and the rest of those chosen and expressly named to render thanks to the LORD, for his steadfast love endures forever.⁴² Heman and Jeduthun had with them trumpets and cymbals for the music, and instruments for sacred song. The sons of Jeduthun were appointed to the gate.

⁴³ Then all the people departed to their homes, and David went home to bless his household.

17 Now when David settled in his house, David said to the prophet Nathan, “I am living in a house of cedar, but the ark of ^a Heb in it

^b Gk Syr Vg: Heb their

tion, and possibly was already attributed to David. 37–43: David provides for both the ark in Jerusalem and the tabernacle at Gibeon. The Chronicler does not deem the Gibeon shrine to be inherently illicit. The sacrifices performed there by Zadok and his priests accorded with all that is written in the law of the LORD (v. 40). Like the newly dedicated ministry of praise associated with the ark in Jerusalem, the Gibeon precinct has its own singers and musicians, authorized to praise God (v. 42). Two guilds of singers, represented by Heman and Jeduthun, serve at Gibeon, while the third guild of singers, represented by Asaph (v. 37) serves in Jerusalem. Only after the construction of the long-awaited Temple will worship outside Jerusalem be prohibited (2 Chr 1.3–6; 5.5). 43: Taken from 2 Sam 6.19–20, a continuation of v. 3.

17.1–15: The promises to David. The narration largely follows 2 Sam 7.1–16. Under a tent, see Ex 26.1–2,7; Num

the covenant of the LORD is under a tent.”

² Nathan said to David, “Do all that you have in mind, for God is with you.”

³ But that same night the word of the LORD came to Nathan, saying: ⁴ Go and tell my servant David: Thus says the LORD: You shall not build me a house to live in. ⁵ For I have not lived in a house since the day I brought out Israel to this very day, but I have lived in a tent and a tabernacle. ⁶ Wherever I have moved about among all Israel, did I ever speak a word with any of the judges of Israel, whom I commanded to shepherd my people, saying, Why have you not built me a house of cedar? ⁷ Now therefore thus you shall say to my servant David: Thus says the LORD of hosts: I took you from the pasture, from following the sheep, to be ruler over my people Israel; ⁸ and I have been with you wherever you went, and have cut off all your enemies before you; and I will make for you a name, like the name of the great ones of the earth. ⁹ I will appoint a place for my people Israel, and will plant them, so that they may live in their own place, and be disturbed no more; and evildoers shall wear them down no more, as they did formerly, ¹⁰ from the time that I appointed judges over my people Israel; and I will subdue all your enemies.

Moreover I declare to you that the LORD will build you a house. ¹¹ When your days are fulfilled to go to be with your ancestors, I will raise up your offspring after you, one of your own sons, and I will establish his kingdom.

¹² He shall build a house for me, and I will establish his throne forever. ¹³ I will be a father to him, and he shall be a son to me. I will not take my steadfast love from him, as I took it from him who was before you, ¹⁴ but I will confirm him in my house and in my kingdom forever, and his throne shall be established forever. ¹⁵ In accordance with all these words and all this vision, Nathan spoke to David.

¹⁶ Then King David went in and sat before the LORD, and said, “Who am I, O LORD God, and what is my house, that you have brought me thus far? ¹⁷ And even this was a small thing in your sight, O God; you have also spoken of your servant’s house for a great while to come. You regard me as someone of high rank, ^b O LORD God! ¹⁸ And what more can David say to you for honoring your servant? You know your servant. ¹⁹ For your servant’s sake, O LORD, and according to your own heart, you have done all these great deeds, making known all these great things. ²⁰ There is no one like you, O LORD, and there is no God besides you, according to all that we have heard with our ears. ²¹ Who is like your people Israel, one nation on the earth whom God went to redeem to be his people, making for yourself a name for great and terrible things, in driving out nations before your people whom you redeemed from Egypt? ²² And you made your people Israel to be your people forever; and you, O LORD, became their God.

^a Gk 2 Sam 7.6: Heb but I have been from tent to tent and from tabernacle

^b Meaning of Heb uncertain

4.21–28. 2: Nathan here is offering his personal opinion, which is corrected by God in the revelation that follows. David’s lack of suitability for this project is explained later in 22.7–10. 5: After the Exodus, Israel’s system of worship was mobile. The roving nature of God’s presence with Israel was consistent with the mobility of Israel itself. 8–9: The Chronicler, like the Deuteronomist (1 Kings 5.17–18), associates national stability and peace with the establishment of a permanent sanctuary in the land. In this manner, Nathan’s oracle points forward to the reign of Solomon, which according to biblical text is an unprecedented age of peace, prosperity, and international prestige (1 Kings 4.20; 5.4; 8.66; 1 Chr 22.9,18; 2 Chr 1.7–18; 8.1–9,31). 10: In speaking of the LORD building a house for David, the text develops a wordplay on the different connotations of Heb “bayit” (“house,” “temple,” “dynasty”). 13: I will be a father to him, a formula of adoption (2 Sam 7.14; Ps 2.7–8; Isa 9.6; cf. Ps 89.26). I will not take my steadfast love from him, the guarantee of succession is not predicated upon the loyalty of the sons. In fact, the second part of 2 Sam 7.14, which stresses that the individual Davidic king may be punished, is lacking here, further highlighting the Chronicler’s positive vision of Davidic kingship. 14: In my kingdom forever, God manifests his kingship through the kingdom of David and his heirs (17.14; 28.5; 29.11; 2 Chr 13.8; cf. 2 Sam 7.16).

17.16–27: David’s prayer. The narration largely follows 2 Sam 7.17–29. 21: God’s incomparability and unique status are linked to Israel’s unique status. 23–24: David’s only petitions focus on the promises directed toward his dynasty (cf. vv. 8b–14).

²³ “And now, O LORD, as for the word that you have spoken concerning your servant and concerning his house, let it be established forever, and do as you have promised. ²⁴ Thus your name will be established and magnified forever in the saying, ‘The LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, is Israel’s God’; and the house of your servant David will be established in your presence. ²⁵ For you, my God, have revealed to your servant that you will build a house for him; therefore your servant has found it possible to pray before you. ²⁶ And now, O LORD, you are God, and you have promised this good thing to your servant; ²⁷ therefore may it please you to bless the house of your servant, that it may continue forever before you. For you, O LORD, have blessed and are blessed^a forever.”

18 Some time afterward, David attacked the Philistines and subdued them; he took Gath and its villages from the Philistines.

² He defeated Moab, and the Moabites became subject to David and brought tribute.

³ David also struck down King Hadadezer of Zobah, toward Hamath,^b as he went to set up a monument at the river Euphrates.

⁴ David took from him one thousand chariots, seven thousand cavalry, and twenty thousand foot soldiers. David hamstringed all the chariot horses, but left one hundred of them. ⁵ When the Arameans of Damascus came to help King Hadadezer of Zobah, David killed twenty-two thousand Arameans. ⁶ Then David put garrisons^c in Aram of Damascus; and the Arameans became subject to David, and brought tribute. The LORD gave victory to David wherever he went. ⁷ David took the gold shields that were carried by the servants of Hadadezer, and brought them to Jerusalem. ⁸ From Tibhath and from Cun, cities of Hadadezer, David took a vast quantity of bronze; with it Solomon made the bronze sea and the pillars and the vessels of bronze.

⁹ When King Tou of Hamath heard that David had defeated the whole army of King Hadadezer of Zobah, ¹⁰ he sent his son Hadoram to King David, to greet him and to congratulate him, because he had fought against Hadadezer and defeated him. Now Hadadezer had often been at war with Tou. He sent all sorts of articles of gold, of silver, and of bronze; ¹¹ these also King David dedicated to the LORD, together with the silver and gold that he had carried off from all the nations, from Edom, Moab, the Ammonites, the Philistines, and Amalek.

¹² Abishai son of Zeruiah killed eighteen thousand Edomites in the Valley of Salt.

¹³ He put garrisons in Edom; and all the Edomites became subject to David. And the LORD gave victory to David wherever he went.

¹⁴ So David reigned over all Israel; and he administered justice and equity to all his people. ¹⁵ Joab son of Zeruiah was over the army; Jehoshaphat son of Ahilud was recorder;

^a Or and it is blessed

^b Meaning of Heb uncertain

^c Gk Vg 2 Sam 8.6 Compare Syr: Heb lacks garrisons

18.1–20.8: The kingdom expanded. A new phase in David’s reign begins, one dominated by foreign military campaigns. David’s success in war is evident in all directions: to the west against the Philistines (18.1; 20.4–8), to the southeast against Edom (18.12–13), to the east against Moab (18.2) and Ammon (19.1–19; 20.1–3), and to the northeast against a variety of Aramean states (18.3–8; 19.6–19). (See map on p. 585.) In this way, David uses the fulfillment of one of Nathan’s promises—the subjugation of all his enemies—to lay the foundations for the fulfillment of another—the construction of a temple by David’s son. The juxtaposition suggests that David’s hands were bloodied by war, so he could not build the Temple (22.7–10). 18.1–13: Drawn from 2 Sam 8.1–14. 5: The Arameans of Damascus, the defeat of one state by an invading power could upset the balance of power in the entire region, especially affecting neighboring states of the defeated kingdom. 7–11: It was customary for pious kings in the ancient world to dedicate war spoils to the temples of the deities who granted them victory. In this instance, David’s plunder, which according to 2 Sam 8.7 was merely brought to Jerusalem, is incorporated into the Temple built by Solomon (1 Kings 7.13–47; 2 Chr 3.15–4.22; Josephus, Ant. 7.106). 8: Tibhath and Cun occur only here in the Bible; their exact locations are uncertain. 9: Tou, Toi in 2 Sam 8.9. 12: In 2 Sam 8.13 this victory is attributed to David himself. 14–17: Taken from 2 Sam 8.15–18, the list of officials reflects the growth of the bureaucracy as the kingdom expanded. 16: Ahimelech probably became one of David’s priests as the replace-

¹⁶Zadok son of Ahitub and Ahimelech son of Abiathar were priests; Shavsha was secretary; ¹⁷Benaiah son of Jehoiada was over the Cherethites and the Pelethites; and David's sons were the chief officials in the service of the king.

19 Some time afterward, King Nahash of the Ammonites died, and his son succeeded him. ²David said, "I will deal loyally with Hanun son of Nahash, for his father dealt loyally with me." So David sent messengers to console him concerning his father. When David's servants came to Hanun in the land of the Ammonites, to console him, ³the officials of the Ammonites said to Hanun, "Do you think, because David has sent counselors to you, that he is honoring your father? Have not his servants come to you to search and to overthrow and to spy out the land?" ⁴So Hanun seized David's servants, shaved them, cut off their garments in the middle at their hips, and sent them away; ⁵and they departed. When David was told about the men, he sent messengers to them, for they felt greatly humiliated. The king said, "Remain at Jericho until your beards have grown, and then return."

⁶When the Ammonites saw that they had made themselves odious to David, Hanun and the Ammonites sent a thousand talents of silver to hire chariots and cavalry from Mesopotamia, from Aram-maacah and from Zobah. ⁷They hired thirty-two thousand chariots and the king of Maacah with his army, who came and camped before Medeba. And the Ammonites were mustered from their cities and came to battle. ⁸When David heard of it, he sent Joab and all the army of the warriors. ⁹The Ammonites came out and drew up in battle array at the entrance of the city, and the kings who had come were by themselves in the open country.

¹⁰When Joab saw that the line of battle was set against him both in front and in the rear, he chose some of the picked men of Israel and arrayed them against the Arameans; ¹¹the rest of his troops he put in the charge of his brother Abishai, and they were arrayed against the Ammonites. ¹²He said, "If the Arameans are too strong for me, then you shall help me; but if the Ammonites are too strong for you, then I will help you. ¹³Be strong, and let us be courageous for our people and for the cities of our God; and may the LORD do what seems good to him." ¹⁴So Joab and the troops who were with him advanced toward the Arameans for battle; and they fled before him. ¹⁵When the Ammonites saw that the Arameans fled, they likewise fled before Abishai, Joab's brother, and entered the city. Then Joab came to Jerusalem.

¹⁶But when the Arameans saw that they had been defeated by Israel, they sent messengers and brought out the Arameans who were beyond the Euphrates, with Shophach the commander of the army of Hadadezer at their head. ¹⁷When David was informed, he gathered all Israel together, crossed the Jordan, came to them, and drew up his forces against them. When David set the battle in array against the Arameans, they fought with him. ¹⁸The Arameans fled before Israel; and David killed seven thousand Aramean charioteers and forty thousand foot soldiers, and also killed Shophach the commander of their army. ¹⁹When the servants of Hadadezer saw that they had been defeated by Israel, they made peace with David, and became subject

ment for his father Abiathar (15.11). 17: David employs his sons as high-ranking officials in his cabinet instead of as priests (2 Sam 8.18); two other kings make use of princes in managing state affairs (2 Chr 11.22–23; 21.3). 19.1: The death of a king could usher in a period of instability and uncertainty for his people. Because international arrangements were made between the leaders of nations, and not between the nations themselves, the death of a leader could signal the end of such agreements. 3: To spy out the land, to Hanun's counselors, David's string of victories against the Philistines, Moabites, Edomites, and Arameans establish an imperialistic pattern that they could ignore only at their own peril. 5: The quarantine furnishes David's aides with the requisite time to recover and regain their dignity. 7: Medeba, ca. 20 mi (30 km) south-southwest of the Ammonite capital of Rabbah; not mentioned in 2 Sam 10, the source for this chapter. 16: The Euphrates, lit. "the river." In biblical narratives, "the river" usually designates the Euphrates (e.g., Gen 2.14; 15.18; Deut 1.7; 2 Kings 23.29; 24.7; 1 Chr 5.9), but the Jordan and the Yarmuk are also possibilities. 19: The new balance of power in the region, tilted in Israel's favor, leaves the Ammonites isolated from their former allies. The victories of Joab and David succeed to him. So the Arameans were not willing to help the Ammonites any more.

20 In the spring of the year, the time when kings go out to battle, Joab led out the army, ravaged the country of the Ammonites, and came and besieged Rabbah. But David remained at Jerusalem. Joab attacked Rabbah, and overthrew it. ² David took the crown of Milcom^a from his head; he found that it weighed a talent of gold, and in it was a precious stone; and it was placed on David's head. He also brought out the booty of the city, a very great amount. ³ He brought out the people who were in it, and set them to work^b with saws and iron picks and axes. ⁴ Thus David did to all the cities of the Ammonites. Then David and all the people returned to Jerusalem.

⁴ After this, war broke out with the Philistines at Gezer; then Sibbecai the Hushathite killed Sippai, who was one of the descendants of the giants; and the Philistines were subdued. ⁵ Again there was war with the Philistines; and Elhanan son of Jair killed Lahmi the brother of Goliath the Gittite, the shaft of whose spear was like a weaver's beam. ⁶ Again there was war at Gath, where there was a man of great size, who had six fingers on each hand, and six toes on each foot, twenty-four in number; he also was descended from the giants. ⁷ When he taunted Israel, Jonathan son of Shimea, David's brother, killed him.

⁸ These were descended from the giants in Gath; they fell by the hand of David and his servants.

21 Satan stood up against Israel, and incited David to count the people of Israel. ² So David said to Joab and the commanders of the army, "Go, number Israel, from Beer-sheba to Dan, and bring me a report, so that I may know their number." ³ But Joab said, "May the LORD increase the number of his people a hundredfold! Are they not, my lord the king, all of them my lord's servants? Why then should my lord require this? Why should he bring guilt on Israel?" ⁴ But the king's word prevailed against Joab. So Joab departed and went throughout all Israel, and came back to Jerusalem. ⁵ Joab gave the total count of the people to David. In all Israel there were one million one hundred thousand men who drew the sword, and in Judah four hundred seventy thousand who drew the sword. ⁶ But he did not include Levi and Benjamin in the numbering, for the king's command was abhorrent to Joab.

^a Gk Vg See 1 Kings 11.5, 33: MT of their king

^b Compare 2 Sam 12.31: Heb and he sawed

^c Compare 2 Sam 12.31: Heb saws

in disrupting the traditional military ties between the Ammonites and the Arameans. 20.1–3: Verse 1 is taken from 2 Sam 11.1, while vv. 2–3 are taken from 2 Sam 12.26a,30–31. In Samuel the reference to David's staying in Jerusalem provides the background to the troubling story of David's affair with Bathsheba. But in Chronicles, the same notice is incidental, providing the reader an explanation as to David's whereabouts. The Chronicler omits completely the story of David's liaison with Bathsheba and its aftermath (2 Sam 11.2–12.25), which casts David in a negative light. Milcom was the national deity of the Ammonites (1 Kings 11.5,7,33; 2 Kings 23.13). 4–8: The final exploits of David and his soldiers are taken from 2 Sam 21.18–22. The stories in 2 Samuel about the rape of Tamar, Absalom's rebellion, the execution of Saul's descendants, and the disaffection of the northern tribes, which cast David in a negative light, do not appear in Chronicles. 5: The text may harmonize two different claims found in Samuel: In 1 Sam 17.50 David kills the Philistine giant, identified earlier as Goliath of Gath (1 Sam 17.4), but in 2 Sam 21.19 Elhanan kills Goliath the Gittite. By having Elhanan kill the brother of Goliath the Gittite, and not Goliath himself, the Chronicler accommodates both claims.

21.1–22.1: David the repentant sinner. The Chronicler recasts and supplements a story also found in 2 Sam 24. The guilt of David is pronounced in Chronicles (vv. 1–7), in which Joab warns David that it is sinful to count Israel in a casual fashion (cf. Ex 31.11–16); but so are his repentance and his efforts to intercede on behalf of Israel (vv. 8–17). David is thus forewarned before he is punished, reflecting a major tendency of the Chronicler. 21.1: Satan, Heb "satan" should be translated as "an adversary" rather than "Satan" (cf. 2 Sam 24.1; see Job 1.6n.; Zech 3.1n.). Significantly, it replaces "the anger of the LORD" of 2 Sam 24.1. Having just experienced a string of impressive military victories against the Ammonites, Syrians, and Philistines (chs 18–20), David uncritically falls prey to the designs of one of his opponents. 2: From Beer-sheba to Dan, the southern and northern limits of Israel proper. 5: The total is lower in 2 Sam 24.9, but the number for Judah is higher there. In both cases the figures are improb-

⁷ But God was displeased with this thing, and he struck Israel. ⁸ David said to God, “I have sinned greatly in that I have done this thing. But now, I pray you, take away the guilt of your servant; for I have done very foolishly.” ⁹ The LORD spoke to Gad, David’s seer, saying, ¹⁰ “Go and say to David, ‘Thus says the LORD: Three things I offer you; choose one of them, so that I may do it to you.’” ¹¹ So Gad came to David and said to him, “Thus says the LORD, ‘Take your choice: ¹² either three years of famine; or three months of devastation by your foes, while the sword of your enemies overtakes you; or three days of the sword of the LORD, pestilence on the land, and the angel of the LORD destroying throughout all the territory of Israel.’ Now decide what answer I shall return to the one who sent me.” ¹³ Then David said to Gad, “I am in great distress; let me fall into the hand of the LORD, for his mercy is very great; but let me not fall into human hands.”

¹⁴ So the LORD sent a pestilence on Israel; and seventy thousand persons fell in Israel. ¹⁵ And God sent an angel to Jerusalem to destroy it; but when he was about to destroy it, the LORD took note and relented concerning the calamity; he said to the destroying angel, “Enough! Stay your hand.” The angel of the LORD was then standing by the threshing floor of Ornan the Jebusite. ¹⁶ David looked up and saw the angel of the LORD standing between earth and heaven, and in his hand a drawn sword stretched out over Jerusalem. Then David and the elders, clothed in sackcloth, fell on their faces. ¹⁷ And David said to God, “Was it not I who gave the command to count the people? It is I who have sinned and done very wickedly. But these sheep, what have they done? Let your hand, I pray, O LORD my God, be against me and against my father’s house; but do not let your people be plagued!”

¹⁸ Then the angel of the LORD commanded Gad to tell David that he should go up and erect an altar to the LORD on the threshing floor of Ornan the Jebusite. ¹⁹ So David went up following Gad’s instructions, which he had spoken in the name of the LORD. ²⁰ Ornan turned and saw the angel; and while his four sons who were with him hid themselves, Ornan continued to thresh wheat. ²¹ As David came to Ornan, Ornan looked and saw David; he went out from the threshing floor, and did obeisance to David with his face to the ground. ²² David said to Ornan, “Give me the site of the threshing floor that I may build on it an altar to the LORD—give it to me at its full price—so that the plague may be averted from the people.” ²³ Then Ornan said to David, “Take it; and let my lord the king do what seems good to him; see, I present the oxen for burnt offerings, and the threshing sledges for the wood, and the wheat for a grain offering. I give it all.” ²⁴ But King David said to Ornan, “No; I will buy them for the full price. I will not take for the LORD what is yours, nor offer burnt offerings that cost me nothing.” ²⁵ So David paid Ornan six hundred shekels of gold by weight for the site. ²⁶ David built there an altar to the LORD and presented burnt offerings and offerings of well-being. He called upon the LORD, and he answered him with fire from heaven on the altar of burnt offering. ²⁷ Then the LORD commanded the angel, and he put his sword back into its sheath.

²⁸ At that time, when David saw that the LORD had answered him at the threshing floor of Ornan the Jebusite, he made his sacrifices there. ²⁹ For the tabernacle of the LORD, which Moses had made in the wilderness, and the altar of burnt offering were at that time in the high place at Gibeon; ³⁰ but David could not go before it to inquire of God, for he was afraid of the sword of the angel of the LORD.

22 ¹ Then David said, “Here shall be the house of the LORD God and here the altar of burnt offering for Israel.”

able. 8: Take away, better “transfer,” as in 2 Sam 12.13. In both cases, the sin of David is transferred elsewhere. 15: Ornan, called Araunah in 2 Sam 24. 17: Along with the authors of Deut 7.9–10; 24.16; Jer 31.28–30; Ezek 18; 33.12–20, David argues for limiting the scope of divinely administered punishment of humans to the guilty parties themselves. 26: The addition of a divine confirmation of David’s sacrifices by fire, following the pattern of Lev 9.24 and 1 Kings 18.36–39, establishes David’s altar as an enduring fixture in Israelite worship. 22.1: David ratifies the divine action (21.26–27) by declaring the site to be the home of the future Temple. Here and elsewhere (2 Chr 3.1), the Chronicler shows unusual interest in offering explanations why the Temple was built on its current site.

² David gave orders to gather together the aliens who were residing in the land of Israel, and he set stonecutters to prepare dressed stones for building the house of God. ³ David also provided great stores of iron for nails for the doors of the gates and for clamps, as well as bronze in quantities beyond weighing, ⁴ and cedar logs without number—for the Sidonians and Tyrians brought great quantities of cedar to David. ⁵ For David said, “My son Solomon is young and inexperienced, and the house that is to be built for the LORD must be exceedingly magnificent, famous and glorified throughout all lands; I will therefore make preparation for it.” So David provided materials in great quantity before his death.

⁶ Then he called for his son Solomon and charged him to build a house for the LORD, the God of Israel. ⁷ David said to Solomon, “My son, I had planned to build a house to the name of the LORD my God. ⁸ But the word of the LORD came to me, saying, ‘You have shed much blood and have waged great wars; you shall not build a house to my name, because you have shed so much blood in my sight on the earth. ⁹ See, a son shall be born to you; he shall be a man of peace. I will give him peace from all his enemies on every side; for his name shall be Solomon,^a and I will give peace^b and quiet to Israel in his days. ¹⁰ He shall build a house for my name. He shall be a son to me, and I will be a father to him, and I will establish his royal throne in Israel forever.’ ¹¹ Now, my son, the LORD be with you, so that you may succeed in building the house of the LORD your God, as he has spoken concerning you. ¹² Only, may the LORD grant you discretion and understanding, so that when he gives you charge over Israel you may keep the law of the LORD your God. ¹³ Then you will prosper if you are careful to observe the statutes and the ordinances that the LORD commanded Moses for Israel. Be strong and of good courage. Do not be afraid or dismayed. ¹⁴ With great pains I have provided for the house of the LORD one hundred thousand talents of gold, one million talents of silver, and bronze and iron beyond weighing, for there is so much of it; timber and stone too I have provided. To these you must add more. ¹⁵ You have an abundance of workers: stonecutters, masons, carpenters, and all kinds of artisans without number, skilled in working ¹⁶ gold, silver, bronze, and iron. Now begin the work, and the LORD be with you.”

¹⁷ David also commanded all the leaders of Israel to help his son Solomon, saying, ¹⁸ “Is not the LORD your God with you? Has he not given you peace on every side? For he has delivered the inhabitants of the land into my hand; and the land is subdued before the LORD and his people. ¹⁹ Now set your mind and heart to seek the LORD your God. Go and build the sanctuary of the LORD God so that the ark of the covenant of the LORD and the holy vessels of God may be brought into a house built for the name of the LORD.”

23 When David was old and full of days, he made his son Solomon king over Israel.

^a Heb Shelomoh

^b Heb shalom

22.2–19: David prepares for the construction of the Temple. David wants the future Temple to be famous and glorified throughout all the lands; palace-temple complexes communicated the power of a god and his king to the god(s), populace, vassals, and foreign emissaries. But Solomon is young and inexperienced, so David undertakes the preparations himself. Of David’s many sons (see 3.1–4; 14.3–7), Solomon was one of the youngest (1 Sam 20.31; 2 Sam 13.21b [LXX; 4QSama]; 1 Kings 1.12,17; 2.22). 7–16: This learned passage, which quotes from the dynastic promise (ch 17; cf. 2 Sam 7) and other texts, explains David’s inability to build the Temple, suggesting that only Solomon (Heb “shelomoh”), understood as a man of peace (“shalom”), may build it, an issue not addressed by the books of Samuel and Kings. David, however, both here and in the following chapters, does much preparation for the project. 8: Much blood, referring either to the plague (1 Chr 21.11–14) or to David’s various wars. 14: One hundred thousand talents of gold and one million talents of silver, the point is not realism but extravagance; a talent weighed ca. 75 lb (34 kg). David’s gifts are deliberately excessive. 17–19: Following the norms of Deut 12.8–14, only when peace is established may the Temple be built. 18: Inhabitants of the land, the Canaanites are in view (Num 32.22,29; Josh 2.24; 18.1; 23.3–5,9–13; 24.11,18).

23.1–32: Establishing a national administration. David attains a venerable stage in his life (v. 1), full of days,

² David assembled all the leaders of Israel and the priests and the Levites. ³ The Levites, thirty years old and upward, were counted, and the total was thirty-eight thousand.

⁴ “Twenty-four thousand of these,” David said, “shall have charge of the work in the house of the LORD, six thousand shall be officers and judges, ⁵ four thousand gatekeepers, and four thousand shall offer praises to the LORD with the instruments that I have made for praise.” ⁶ And David organized them in divisions corresponding to the sons of Levi: Gershon,^a Kohath, and Merari.

⁷ The sons of Gershon^b were Ladan and Shimei. ⁸ The sons of Ladan: Jehiel the chief, Zetham, and Joel, three. ⁹ The sons of Shimei: Shelomoth, Haziël, and Haran, three. These were the heads of families of Ladan. ¹⁰ And the sons of Shimei: Jahath, Zina, Jeush, and Beriah. These four were the sons of Shimei. ¹¹ Jahath was the chief, and Zizah the second; but Jeush and Beriah did not have many sons, so they were enrolled as a single family.

¹² The sons of Kohath: Amram, Izhar, Hebron, and Uzziel, four. ¹³ The sons of Amram: Aaron and Moses. Aaron was set apart to consecrate the most holy things, so that he and his sons forever should make offerings before the LORD, and minister to him and pronounce blessings in his name forever; ¹⁴ but as for Moses the man of God, his sons were to be reckoned among the tribe of Levi. ¹⁵ The sons of Moses: Gershom and Eliezer. ¹⁶ The sons of Gershom: Shebuel the chief. ¹⁷ The sons of Eliezer: Rehabiah the chief; Eliezer had no other sons, but the sons of Rehabiah were very numerous. ¹⁸ The sons of Izhar: Shelomith the chief. ¹⁹ The sons of Hebron: Jeriah the chief, Amariah the second, Jahaziel the third, and Jekameam the fourth. ²⁰ The sons of Uzziel: Micah the chief and Isshiah the second.

²¹ The sons of Merari: Mahli and Mushi. The sons of Mahli: Eleazar and Kish. ²² Eleazar died having no sons, but only daughters; their kindred, the sons of Kish, married them. ²³ The sons of Mushi: Mahli, Eder, and Jeremoth, three.

²⁴ These were the sons of Levi by their ancestral houses, the heads of families as they were enrolled according to the number of the names of the individuals from twenty years old and upward who were to do the work for the service of the house of the LORD. ²⁵ For David said, “The LORD, the God of Israel, has given rest to his people; and he resides in Jerusalem forever. ²⁶ And so the Levites no longer need to carry the tabernacle or any of the things for its service”—²⁷ for according to the last words of David these were the number of the Levites from twenty years old and upward—²⁸ “but their duty shall be to assist the descendants of Aaron for the service

^a Or Gershom; See 1 Chr 6.1, note, and 23.15

^b Vg Compare Gk Syr: Heb to the Gershonite

much like Abraham (Gen 25.8), Isaac (Gen 35.29), and Job (42.17) before him. He begins preparing for his death and the reign of his son by convening his administrative leadership. This transition is smooth, in contrast to 2 Sam 15–1 Kings 2, much of which the Chronicler omits. The Chronicler will eventually return to the issue of Solomon's accession, but his first priority is to detail David's appointment of and instructions to the leaders of Israel, the priests, and the Levites (v. 2), who will help Solomon to succeed in his various tasks, especially completing the Temple. The summit of select leaders forms the background of David's major administrative initiatives, outlined in the narratives and the lists of 23.3–27.34. 5: The divisions and responsibilities of the gatekeepers are outlined in ch 26. 6: The tripartite segmentation of the Levites in vv. 6–23 resembles that of earlier Priestly sources (Ex 6.16–19; Num 3.17–39; cf. 1 Chr 6.1,16–47). 7–23: The advent of the Temple, and the centralized worship that it represents, leads to the establishment of a system of divisions or courses among the Levites and priests. Each division was to work its appointed turn in rotation until a round was completed and a new round was begun. Although attributed to David's initiative, this development, unattested in preexilic texts, is known only in the Second Temple period. It persists to the Roman period (see Lk 1.5). Thus, here the Chronicler is legitimating worship as he knew it by attributing it to David. 13: The mandate for the sons of Aaron to make offerings before the LORD is detailed in a number of contexts (Ex 29.38–42; 30.1–10; Lev 8.1–9.24; 18.8–20). 18: Although included in the earlier genealogy (6.37), the line of Korah is not mentioned here; this is probably connected with the tradition of Korah's rebellion narrated in Num 16. 25–32: The levitical job description is revised in light of the move toward one permanent, stationary sanctuary. 28: The Heb means “stand at the side of,” rather than

of the house of the LORD, having the care of the courts and the chambers, the cleansing of all that is holy, and any work for the service of the house of God; ²⁹ to assist also with the rows of bread, the choice flour for the grain offering, the wafers of unleavened bread, the baked offering, the offering mixed with oil, and all measures of quantity or size. ³⁰ And they shall stand every morning, thanking and praising the LORD, and likewise at evening, ³¹ and whenever burnt offerings are offered to the LORD on sabbaths, new moons, and appointed festivals, according to the number required of them, regularly before the LORD. ³² Thus they shall keep charge of the tent of meeting and the sanctuary, and shall attend the descendants of Aaron, their kindred, for the service of the house of the LORD.”

24 The divisions of the descendants of Aaron were these. The sons of Aaron: Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar. ² But Nadab and Abihu died before their father, and had no sons; so Eleazar and Ithamar became the priests. ³ Along with Zadok of the sons of Eleazar, and Ahimelech of the sons of Ithamar, David organized them according to the appointed duties in their service. ⁴ Since more chief men were found among the sons of Eleazar than among the sons of Ithamar, they organized them under sixteen heads of ancestral houses of the sons of Eleazar, and eight of the sons of Ithamar. ⁵ They organized them by lot, all alike, for there were officers of the sanctuary and officers of God among both the sons of Eleazar and the sons of Ithamar. ⁶ The scribe Shemaiah son of Nethanel, a Levite, recorded them in the presence of the king, and the officers, and Zadok the priest, and Ahimelech son of Abiathar, and the heads of ancestral houses of the priests and of the Levites; one ancestral house being chosen for Eleazar and one chosen for Ithamar.

⁷ The first lot fell to Jehoiarib, the second to Jedaiah, ⁸ the third to Harim, the fourth to Seorim, ⁹ the fifth to Malchijah, the sixth to Mijamin, ¹⁰ the seventh to Hakkoz, the eighth to Abijah, ¹¹ the ninth to Jeshua, the tenth to Shecaniah, ¹² the eleventh to Eliashib, the twelfth to Jakim, ¹³ the thirteenth to Huppah, the fourteenth to Jeshebeab, ¹⁴ the fifteenth to Bilgah, the sixteenth to Immer, ¹⁵ the seventeenth to Hezir, the eighteenth to Happizzetz, ¹⁶ the nineteenth to Pethahiah, the twentieth to Jehezkel, ¹⁷ the twenty-first to Jachin, the twenty-second to Gamul, ¹⁸ the twenty-third to Delaiah, the twenty-fourth to Maaziah. ¹⁹ These had as their appointed duty in their service to enter the house of the LORD according to the procedure established for them by their ancestor Aaron, as the LORD God of Israel had commanded him.

²⁰ And of the rest of the sons of Levi: of the sons of Amram, Shubael; of the sons of Shubael, Jehdeiah. ²¹ Of Rehabiah: of the sons of Rehabiah, Isshiah the chief. ²² Of the Izharites, Shelomoth; of the sons of Shelomoth, Jahath. ²³ The sons of Hebron: ^a Jeriah the chief, ^b Amariah the second, Jahaziel the third, Jekameam the fourth. ²⁴ The sons of Uzziel, Micah; of the sons of Micah, Shamir. ²⁵ The brother of Micah, Isshiah; of the sons of Isshiah, Zechariah. ²⁶ The sons of Merari: Mahli and Mushi. The sons of Jaaziah: Beno. ²⁷ The sons of Merari: of Jaaziah, Beno, ^c Shoham, Zaccur, and Ibri. ²⁸ Of Mahli: Eleazar, who had no sons. ²⁹ Of Kish, the sons of Kish: Jerahmeel. ³⁰ The sons of Mushi: Mahli, Eder, and Jerimoth. These were the sons of the Levites according to their ancestral houses. ³¹ These also cast lots corresponding to their kindred, the descendants of Aaron, in the

^a See 23.19: Heb lacks Hebron

^b See 23.19: Heb lacks the chief

^c Or his son: Meaning of Heb uncertain to assist the descendants of Aaron. In Chronicles the Levites and the priests have different but complementary responsibilities (see also Neh 12.45). 29: Rows of bread, cf. Lev 25.4–9; 2 Chr 13.11. 30–31: The Levites are to praise the LORD whenever burnt offerings are offered by the priests (16.4,7–38; 23.5). This contrasts with descriptions of Tabernacle worship in the Torah, which depict a sanctuary of silence.

24.1–19: David's priestly appointments. David organizes the priests into twenty-four divisions, which cast lots for places. 3: The sons of Eleazar, and . . . Ithamar represent the two major priestly families (15.11; 18.16–17; 25.1; cf. 2 Sam 8.16–18). 20–31: This list of Levites overlaps with that of 23.7–23. 31: The Levites rotate by courses just as the priests do.

presence of King David, Zadok, Ahimelech, and the heads of ancestral houses of the priests and of the Levites, the chief as well as the youngest brother.

25 David and the officers of the army also set apart for the service the sons of Asaph, and of Heman, and of Jeduthun, who should prophesy with lyres, harps, and cymbals. The list of those who did the work and of their duties was: ²Of the sons of Asaph: Zaccur, Joseph, Nethaniah, and Asarelah, sons of Asaph, under the direction of Asaph, who prophesied under the direction of the king. ³Of Jeduthun, the sons of Jeduthun: Gedaliah, Zeri, Jeshaiiah, Shimei, ^aHashabiah, and Mattithiah, six, under the direction of their father Jeduthun, who prophesied with the lyre in thanksgiving and praise to the LORD. ⁴Of Heman, the sons of Heman: Bukkiah, Mattaniah, Uzziel, Shebuel, and Jerimoth, Hananiah, Hanani, Eliathah, Giddalti, and Romamti-ezer, Joshbekashah, Mallothi, Hothir, Mahazioth. ⁵All these were the sons of Heman the king's seer, according to the promise of God to exalt him; for God had given Heman fourteen sons and three daughters. ⁶They were all under the direction of their father for the music in the house of the LORD with cymbals, harps, and lyres for the service of the house of God. Asaph, Jeduthun, and Heman were under the order of the king. ⁷They and their kindred, who were trained in singing to the LORD, all of whom were skillful, numbered two hundred eighty-eight. ⁸And they cast lots for their duties, small and great, teacher and pupil alike.

⁹The first lot fell for Asaph to Joseph; the second to Gedaliah, to him and his brothers and his sons, twelve; ¹⁰the third to Zaccur, his sons and his brothers, twelve; ¹¹the fourth to Izri, his sons and his brothers, twelve; ¹²the fifth to Nethaniah, his sons and his brothers, twelve; ¹³the sixth to Bukkiah, his sons and his brothers, twelve; ¹⁴the seventh to Jesarelah, ^bhis sons and his brothers, twelve; ¹⁵the eighth to Jeshaiiah, his sons and his brothers, twelve; ¹⁶the ninth to Mattaniah, his sons and his brothers, twelve; ¹⁷the tenth to Shimei, his sons and his brothers, twelve; ¹⁸the eleventh to Azarel, his sons and his brothers, twelve; ¹⁹the twelfth to Hashabiah, his sons and his brothers, twelve; ²⁰to the thirteenth, Shubael, his sons and his brothers, twelve; ²¹to the fourteenth, Mattithiah, his sons and his brothers, twelve; ²²to the fifteenth, to Jeremoth, his sons and his brothers, twelve; ²³to the sixteenth, to Hananiah, his sons and his brothers, twelve; ²⁴to the seventeenth, to Joshbekashah, his sons and his brothers, twelve; ²⁵to the eighteenth, to Hanani, his sons and his brothers, twelve; ²⁶to the nineteenth, to Mallothi, his sons and his brothers, twelve; ²⁷to the twentieth, to Eliathah, his sons and his brothers, twelve; ²⁸to the twenty-first, to Hothir, his sons and his brothers, twelve; ²⁹to the twenty-second, to Giddalti, his sons and his brothers, twelve; ³⁰to the twenty-third, to Mahazioth, his sons and his brothers, twelve; ³¹to the twenty-fourth, to Romamti-ezer, his sons and his brothers, twelve.

26 As for the divisions of the gatekeepers: of the Korahites, Meshelemiah son of Kore, of the sons of Asaph. ²Meshelemiah had sons: Zechariah the firstborn, Jediael

^a One Ms: Gk: MT lacks Shimei

^b Or Asarelah; see 25.2

25.1–31: The singers. Speaking of the singers as being set apart (v. 1) establishes a parallelism between David's choice and investiture of the singers, the Levites, and the priests (cf. 23.13; Num 8.14; 16.9,21; Deut 10.8; Ezra 10.8,16). On the sons of Asaph, Heman, and Jeduthun, see 6.33,44n. The allusion to music and song as a kind of prophecy (vv. 1–3; cf. 2 Chr 24.19–22) is striking and may be connected to the later tradition of David as a prophet who composed the psalms through divine inspiration; cf. 2 Kings 3.15. 1: The officers of the army, as part of David's governmental apparatus, have a say in the establishment of courses for the singers. 8: As with the priests (24.5) and other Levites (24.31), a lottery is held to determine the twenty-four divisions for the singers.

26.1–19: The gatekeepers. Part of David's administrative organization involves the gatekeepers, whom the Chronicler counts as Levites (cf. Ezra 2.42,70; Neh 11.19). Sanctuary guards were active in David's earlier reign when David transported the ark (15.18,23–24; 16.38,42; 23.5). Along with performing guard duty, the gatekeepers open the Temple in the morning; administer the use of the vessels, including the holy utensils; take charge of the flour, wine, spices, and oil (9.17–32); and perform administrative service on behalf of the king (2 Chr 31.14;

the second, Zebadiah the third, Jathniel the fourth,³ Elam the fifth, Jehohanan the sixth, Eliehoenai the seventh.⁴ Obed-edom had sons: Shemaiah the firstborn, Jehozabad the second, Joah the third, Sachar the fourth, Nethanel the fifth,⁵ Ammiel the sixth, Issachar the seventh, Peullethai the eighth; for God blessed him.⁶ Also to his son Shemaiah sons were born who exercised authority in their ancestral houses, for they were men of great ability.⁷ The sons of Shemaiah: Othni, Rephael, Obed, and Elzabad, whose brothers were able men, Elihu and Semachiah.⁸ All these, sons of Obed-edom with their sons and brothers, were able men qualified for the service; sixty-two of Obed-edom.⁹ Meshel-emiah had sons and brothers, able men, eighteen.¹⁰ Hosah, of the sons of Merari, had sons: Shimri the chief (for though he was not the firstborn, his father made him chief),¹¹ Hilkiah the second, Tebaliah the third, Zechariah the fourth: all the sons and brothers of Hosah totaled thirteen.

¹² These divisions of the gatekeepers, corresponding to their leaders, had duties, just as their kindred did, ministering in the house of the LORD;¹³ and they cast lots by ancestral houses, small and great alike, for their gates.¹⁴ The lot for the east fell to Shelemiah. They cast lots also for his son Zechariah, a prudent counselor, and his lot came out for the north.¹⁵ Obed-edom's came out for the south, and to his sons was allotted the storehouse.¹⁶ For Shuppim and Hosah it came out for the west, at the gate of Shallecheth on the ascending road. Guard corresponded to guard.¹⁷ On the east there were six Levites each day,^a on the north four each day, on the south four each day, as well as two and two at the storehouse;¹⁸ and for the colonnade^b on the west there were four at the road and two at the colonnade.^b¹⁹ These were the divisions of the gatekeepers among the Korahites and the sons of Merari.

²⁰ And of the Levites, Ahijah had charge of the treasuries of the house of God and the treasuries of the dedicated gifts.²¹ The sons of Ladan, the sons of the Gershonites belonging to Ladan, the heads of families belonging to Ladan the Gershonite: Jehieli.^c

²² The sons of Jehieli, Zetham and his brother Joel, were in charge of the treasuries of the house of the LORD.²³ Of the Amramites, the Izharites, the Hebronites, and the Uzzielites:²⁴ Shebuel son of Gershom, son of Moses, was chief officer in charge of the treasuries.²⁵ His brothers: from Eliezer were his son Rehabiah, his son Jeshaiiah, his son Joram, his son Zichri, and his son Shelomoth.²⁶ This Shelomoth and his brothers were in charge of all the treasuries of the dedicated gifts that King David, and the heads of families, and the officers of the thousands and the hundreds, and the commanders of the army, had dedicated.²⁷ From booty won in battles they dedicated gifts for the maintenance of the house of the LORD.²⁸ Also all that Samuel the seer, and Saul son of Kish, and Abner son of Ner, and Joab son of Zeruiah had dedicated—all dedicated gifts were in the care of Shelomoth^d and his brothers.

²⁹ Of the Izharites, Chenaniah and his sons were appointed to outside duties for Israel, as officers and judges.³⁰ Of the Hebronites, Hashabiah and his brothers, one thousand seven hundred men of ability, had the oversight of Israel west of the Jordan for all the work of the LORD and for the service of the king.³¹ Of the Hebronites, Jerijah was chief of the Hebronites. (In the fortieth year of David's reign search was made, of whatever genealogy or family, and men of great ability

^a Gk: Heb lacks each day

^b Heb parbar: meaning uncertain

^c The Hebrew text of verse 21 is confused

^d Gk Compare 26.28: Heb Shelomith

34.13). 13: Because the lottery was held to determine which family was to serve at which gate, the number of members within a particular family did not determine or affect the process of selection. 16: Shuppim, perhaps a scribal error, repeating the previous word. Gate of Shallecheth, the name occurs only here, and may also be a scribal error.

26.20–32: Treasurers, regional officials, and judges. Israel's leadership makes the task of Solomon easier by endowing the Temple and organizing its finances. The Levites also take on broad responsibilities, such as oversight of Israel west of the Jordan as officers and judges (vv. 29–30; cf. 23.3–5; 2 Chr 17.2; 19.5). 31: Fortieth year, i.e., among them were found at Jazer in Gilead.)

³² King David appointed him and his brothers, two thousand seven hundred men of ability, heads of families, to have the oversight of the Reubenites, the Gadites, and the half-tribe of the Manassites for everything pertaining to God and for the affairs of the king.

27 This is the list of the people of Israel, the heads of families, the commanders of the thousands and the hundreds, and their officers who served the king in all matters concerning the divisions that came and went, month after month throughout the year, each division numbering twenty-four thousand:

² Jashobeam son of Zabdiel was in charge of the first division in the first month; in his division were twenty-four thousand. ³ He was a descendant of Perez, and was chief of all the commanders of the army for the first month. ⁴ Dodai the Ahohite was in charge of the division of the second month; Mikloth was the chief officer of his division. In his division were twenty-four thousand. ⁵ The third commander, for the third month, was Benaiah son of the priest Jehoiada, as chief; in his division were twenty-four thousand.

⁶ This is the Benaiah who was a mighty man of the Thirty and in command of the Thirty; his son Ammizabad was in charge of his division.^a ⁷ Asahel brother of Joab was fourth, for the fourth month, and his son Zebadiah after him; in his division were twenty-four thousand. ⁸ The fifth commander, for the fifth month, was Shamhuth, the Izrahite; in his division were twenty-four thousand. ⁹ Sixth, for the sixth month, was Ira son of Ikkesheh the Tekoite; in his division were twenty-four thousand. ¹⁰ Seventh, for the seventh month, was Helez the Pelonite, of the Ephraimites; in his division were twenty-four thousand.

¹¹ Eighth, for the eighth month, was Sibbecai the Hushathite, of the Zerahites; in his division were twenty-four thousand. ¹² Ninth, for the ninth month, was Abiezer of Anathoth, a Benjaminite; in his division were twenty-four thousand. ¹³ Tenth, for the tenth month, was Maharai of Netophah, of the Zerahites; in his division were twenty-four thousand. ¹⁴ Eleventh, for the eleventh month, was Benaiah of Pirathon, of the Ephraimites; in his division were twenty-four thousand. ¹⁵ Twelfth, for the twelfth month, was Heldai the Netophathite, of Othniel; in his division were twenty-four thousand.

¹⁶ Over the tribes of Israel, for the Reubenites, Eliezer son of Zichri was chief officer; for the Simeonites, Shephatiah son of Maacah; ¹⁷ for Levi, Hashabiah son of Kemuel; for Aaron, Zadok; ¹⁸ for Judah, Elihu, one of David's brothers; for Issachar, Omri son of Michael; ¹⁹ for Zebulun, Ishmaiah son of Obadiah; for Naphtali, Jerimoth son of Azriel; ²⁰ for the Ephraimites, Hoshea son of Azaziah; for the half-tribe of Manasseh, Joel son of Pedaiiah; ²¹ for the half-tribe of Manasseh in Gilead, Iddo son of Zechariah; for Benjamin, Jaasiel son of Abner; ²² for Dan, Azarel son of Jeroham. These were the leaders of the tribes of Israel. ²³ David did not count those below twenty years of age, for the LORD had promised to make Israel as numerous as the stars of heaven. ²⁴ Joab son of Zeruiah began to count them, but did not finish; yet wrath came upon Israel for this, and the number was not entered into the account of the Annals of King David.

²⁵ Over the king's treasuries was Azmaveth son of Adiel. Over the treasuries in

^a Gk Vg: Heb Ammizabad was his division

David's last; see 29.27. 32: The Persian-period distinction between matters pertaining to the king and matters pertaining to God is found only in Chronicles (26.30,32; 2 Chr 19.11) and Ezra (7.26).

27.1–24: Military leaders. The orderly organization of the military, no less than the organization of the priests and the Levites, is part of David's legacy in Chronicles. The system established—twelve monthly relays of 24,000, each headed by a divisional leader (vv. 2–16)—reflects his standard administrative procedure (23.6–23; 24.1–19; 25.8–31; 26.1–12). 1: The noun “mispar” may be translated as “census” (rather than as list) both here and in vv. 23–24 (cf. 23.3). 2–15: Many of the names in this list are also found in 11.11–47; 2 Sam 23.8–39. 16–22: Each of the tribes has its own “chief officer” participate in the national government. See 5.6n. 23: The enumeration of twelve military divisions (288,000) leads the writer to explain why no general census of Israel is included (cf. Num 1.3,45). By counting Israelite males who were less than twenty years of age, David would be casting aspersions on the validity of one of God's solemn promises to Abraham (Gen 22.17). 24: See ch 21.

the country, in the cities, in the villages and in the towers, was Jonathan son of Uzziah.²⁶ Over those who did the work of the field, tilling the soil, was Ezri son of Chelub.²⁷ Over the vineyards was Shimei the Ramathite. Over the produce of the vineyards for the wine cellars was Zabdi the Shiphmite.²⁸ Over the olive and sycamore trees in the Shephelah was Baal-hanan the Gederite. Over the stores of oil was Joash.²⁹ Over the herds that pastured in Sharon was Shitrai the Sharonite. Over the herds in the valleys was Shaphat son of Adlai.³⁰ Over the camels was Obil the Ishmaelite. Over the donkeys was Jehdeiah the Meronothite. Over the flocks was Jaziz the Hagrite.³¹ All these were stewards of King David's property.

³²Jonathan, David's uncle, was a counselor, being a man of understanding and a scribe; Jehiel son of Hachmoni attended the king's sons.³³ Ahithophel was the king's counselor, and Hushai the Archite was the king's friend.³⁴ After Ahithophel came Jehoiada son of Benaiah, and Abiathar. Joab was commander of the king's army.

28 David assembled at Jerusalem all the officials of Israel, the officials of the tribes, the officers of the divisions that served the king, the commanders of the thousands, the commanders of the hundreds, the stewards of all the property and cattle of the king and his sons, together with the palace officials, the mighty warriors, and all the warriors.² Then King David rose to his feet and said: "Hear me, my brothers and my people. I had planned to build a house of rest for the ark of the covenant of the LORD, for the footstool of our God; and I made preparations for building.³ But God said to me, 'You shall not build a house for my name, for you are a warrior and have shed blood.'⁴ Yet the LORD God of Israel chose me from all my ancestral house to be king over Israel forever; for he chose Judah as leader, and in the house of Judah my father's house, and among my father's sons he took delight in making me king over all Israel.⁵ And of all my sons, for the LORD has given me many, he has chosen my son Solomon to sit upon the throne of the kingdom of the LORD over Israel.⁶ He said to me, 'It is your son Solomon who shall build my house and my courts, for I have chosen him to be a son to me, and I will be a father to him.⁷ I will establish his kingdom forever if he continues resolute in keeping my commandments and my ordinances, as he is today.'⁸ Now therefore in the sight of all Israel, the assembly of the LORD, and in the hearing of our God, observe and search out all the commandments of the LORD your God; that you may possess this good land, and leave it for an inheritance to your children after you forever.

⁹"And you, my son Solomon, know the God of your father, and serve him with single mind and willing heart; for the LORD searches

27.25–32: Other administrators. The Davidic state is multifaceted. The king owns agricultural estates (v. 27), operates storehouses in both urban and rural areas for agricultural produce (vv. 27–28), and has an investment in, if not some control over, trade (v. 30). The king employs a variety of high officials who supervise his estates, fieldworkers, and storage facilities. The king also has advisers and officers (vv. 32–34) at his disposal. Some aspects of this complicated system may be anachronistic, but they are consistent with ancient Near Eastern royal practice. 30: The camels and donkeys (or she-asses) are related directly not to agriculture, but to trade. Because the major trade routes of the ancient Near East passed through the region, trade was an important sector of the Israelite economy. 33: On Ahithophel and Hushai, see 2 Sam 15.12,23–37.

28.1–10: All Israel ratifies accession. Having concluded his administrative organization, David assembles a large national convocation to prepare the way for Solomon's rule. 1: Assemblies are common in the Chronicler's history (13.5; 15.3; 2 Chr 5.2–3; 11.1; 20.26). In this case, David convokes all of his nation's dignitaries to Jerusalem to witness his charge to Solomon and to enlist their support for Solomon. 2: On the ark as God's footstool, cf. Pss 99.5; 132.7. 3: See 22.6–8. 4: Chose me, in Chronicles the Levites (15.2; 2 Chr 29.11), the tribe of Judah, and more specifically David and Solomon are all elect of God. Emphasis on Solomon's election contrasts sharply with 1 Kings 1–2. 6–7: Cf. 17.11–14; 22.9–10. 7: The perdurability of Davidic kingship is contingent on Solomon's obedience (cf. 17.11; 1 Kings 3.14; 8.61; 9.4), which the duty to build the Temple exemplifies (v. 10). 8: The addressee is Israel. Much like the authors of Deuteronomy (4.23–28; 28.58–64; 30.18), the Chronicler conditions Israel's possession of the land upon its obedience to God.

every mind, and understands every plan and thought. If you seek him, he will be found by you; but if you forsake him, he will abandon you forever. ¹⁰ Take heed now, for the LORD has chosen you to build a house as the sanctuary; be strong, and act.”

¹¹ Then David gave his son Solomon the plan of the vestibule of the temple, and of its houses, its treasuries, its upper rooms, and its inner chambers, and of the room for the mercy seat;^a ¹² and the plan of all that he had in mind: for the courts of the house of the LORD, all the surrounding chambers, the treasuries of the house of God, and the treasuries for dedicated gifts; ¹³ for the divisions of the priests and of the Levites, and all the work of the service in the house of the LORD; for all the vessels for the service in the house of the LORD, ¹⁴ the weight of gold for all golden vessels for each service, the weight of silver vessels for each service, ¹⁵ the weight of the golden lampstands and their lamps, the weight of gold for each lampstand and its lamps, the weight of silver for a lampstand and its lamps, according to the use of each in the service, ¹⁶ the weight of gold for each table for the rows of bread, the silver for the silver tables, ¹⁷ and pure gold for the forks, the basins, and the cups; for the golden bowls and the weight of each; for the silver bowls and the weight of each; ¹⁸ for the altar of incense made of refined gold, and its weight; also his plan for the golden chariot of the cherubim that spread their wings and covered the ark of the covenant of the LORD.

¹⁹ “All this, in writing at the LORD’s direction, he made clear to me—the plan of all the works.”

²⁰ David said further to his son Solomon, “Be strong and of good courage, and act. Do not be afraid or dismayed; for the LORD God, my God, is with you. He will not fail you or forsake you, until all the work for the service of the house of the LORD is finished. ²¹ Here are the divisions of the priests and the Levites for all the service of the house of God; and with you in all the work will be every volunteer who has skill for any kind of service; also the officers and all the people will be wholly at your command.”

29 King David said to the whole assembly, “My son Solomon, whom alone God has chosen, is young and inexperienced, and the work is great; for the temple^b will not be for mortals but for the LORD God. ² So I have provided for the house of my God, so far as I was able, the gold for the things of gold, the silver for the things of silver, and the bronze for the things of bronze, the iron for the things of iron, and wood for the things of wood, besides great quantities of onyx and stones for setting, antimony, colored stones, all sorts of precious stones, and marble in abundance. ³ Moreover, in addition to all that I have provided for the holy house, I have a treasure of my own of gold and silver, and because of my devotion to the house of my God I give it to the house of my God: ⁴ three thousand talents of gold, of the gold of Ophir, and seven thousand talents of refined silver, for overlaying the walls of the house, ⁵ and for all the work to be done by artisans, gold for the things of gold and silver for the things of silver. Who then will offer willingly, consecrating themselves today to the LORD?”

⁶ Then the leaders of ancestral houses made their freewill offerings, as did also the leaders of the tribes, the commanders of the thousands and of the hundreds, and the officers over the king’s work. ⁷ They gave for the service of the house of God five thousand

^a Or the cover

^b Heb fortress

28.11–21: A plan for the Temple. Much as Moses received plans for the tabernacle (Ex 25.9), David has a divinely composed written plan for the Temple (v. 19), which he presents to Solomon. 20: The transition from David to Solomon is patterned after Moses and Joshua; note especially Be strong and of good courage (Deut 31.7; 31.23; Josh 1.6–18).

29.1–9: Endowments for the Temple. To explain his own copious preparations, David contrasts young Solomon’s youthful vulnerability with the tremendous task that lies ahead (cf. 22.5). David’s generosity sets the stage for Israel’s leadership to show similar benevolence (vv. 6–9). There are parallels with Israel’s gifts to the tabernacle (Ex 25.1–7; 35.4–9, 20–29). 4: Ophir, probably in southern Arabia, was famous for its gold; see Isa 13.12. On the quantities, see 22.14n. 7: The daric was a Persian coin, generally thought to be 8.4 gr, minted talents and ten thousand darics of gold, ten thousand talents of silver, eighteen thousand talents of bronze, and one hundred thousand talents of iron.⁸ Whoever had precious stones gave them to the treasury of the house of the LORD, into the care of Jehiel the Gershonite.⁹ Then the people rejoiced because these had given willingly, for with single mind they had offered freely to the LORD; King David also rejoiced greatly.

¹⁰ Then David blessed the LORD in the presence of all the assembly; David said: “Blessed are you, O LORD, the God of our ancestor Israel, forever and ever. ¹¹ Yours, O LORD, are the greatness, the power, the glory, the victory, and the majesty; for all that is in the heavens and on the earth is yours; yours is the kingdom, O LORD, and you are exalted as head above all. ¹² Riches and honor come from you, and you rule over all. In your hand are power and might; and it is in your hand to make great and to give strength to all. ¹³ And now, our God, we give thanks to you and praise your glorious name.

¹⁴ “But who am I, and what is my people, that we should be able to make this freewill offering? For all things come from you, and of your own have we given you. ¹⁵ For we are aliens and transients before you, as were all our ancestors; our days on the earth are like a shadow, and there is no hope. ¹⁶ O LORD our God, all this abundance that we have provided for building you a house for your holy name comes from your hand and is all your own. ¹⁷ I know, my God, that you search the heart, and take pleasure in uprightness; in the uprightness of my heart I have freely offered all these things, and now I have seen your people, who are present here, offering freely and joyously to you. ¹⁸ O LORD, the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Israel, our ancestors, keep forever such purposes and thoughts in the hearts of your people, and direct their hearts toward you. ¹⁹ Grant to my son Solomon that with single mind he may keep your commandments, your decrees, and your statutes, performing all of them, and that he may build the temple^a for which I have made provision.”

²⁰ Then David said to the whole assembly, “Bless the LORD your God.” And all the assembly blessed the LORD, the God of their ancestors, and bowed their heads and prostrated themselves before the LORD and the king.

²¹ On the next day they offered sacrifices and burnt offerings to the LORD, a thousand bulls, a thousand rams, and a thousand lambs, with their libations, and sacrifices in abundance for all Israel; ²² and they ate and drank before the LORD on that day with great joy.

They made David’s son Solomon king a second time; they anointed him as the LORD’s prince, and Zadok as priest. ²³ Then Solomon sat on the throne of the LORD, succeeding his father David as king; he prospered, and all Israel obeyed him. ²⁴ All the leaders and the mighty warriors, and also all the sons of King David, pledged their allegiance to King Solomon. ²⁵ The LORD highly exalted Solomon in the sight of all Israel, and bestowed upon him such royal majesty as had not been on any king before him in Israel.

²⁶ Thus David son of Jesse reigned over all Israel. ²⁷ The period that he reigned over sometime after 515 BCE (cf. Ezra 8.27).

^a Heb fortress

29.10–19: David’s farewell prayer. The Chronicler follows a paradigm in which final addresses are made by great leaders—Jacob (Gen 49.1–28), Moses (Deut 32.1–44, 45–47; 33.1–29), Joshua (23.1–16; 24.1–28), Samuel (1 Sam 12.1–25), and David (2 Sam 23.1–7; 1 Kings 2.1–10). David’s acclamation of the LORD’s sovereignty (vv. 10–13) resonates with sentiments expressed earlier in the Psalm anthology (16.24–26) and with the prayer that he offered following Nathan’s dynastic oracle (17.16–27). From David’s point of view, all that he and the people donate to God ultimately stems from God himself (v. 14). Thus, following earlier biblical norms, these gifts serve as acknowledgments of God’s sovereignty. 15: Aliens and transients, cf. Lev 25.23.

29.20–30: David’s death and the transition to Solomon. David’s final blessing of Israel is coupled with the anointing of Solomon as his chosen successor. In contrast to Samuel and Kings, the transition is smooth and without incident. 22: Another all-Israelite feast (see 12.39n.). A second time, whereas David earlier designated Solomon king over Israel (23.1), all of Israel’s leaders now publicly endorse Solomon’s enthronement. 24: Even all the sons of King David acclaim Solomon, a clear polemic against the account in Samuel–Kings (2 Sam 15.1–

Israel was forty years; he reigned seven years in Hebron, and thirty-three years in Jerusalem. ²⁸ He died in a good old age, full of days, riches, and honor; and his son Solomon succeeded him. ²⁹ Now the acts of King David, from first to last, are written in the records of the seer Samuel, and in the records of the prophet Nathan, and in the records of the seer Gad, ³⁰ with accounts of all his rule and his might and of the events that befell him and Israel and all the kingdoms of the earth.

16.14; 1 Kings 1.9–10, 25–26; 2.15). 25: In royal majesty Solomon's reign is unparalleled. 27: David's reign is dated to ca. 1005–965 BCE. 28: David enjoys a long, productive, and respected life. Security and longevity are marks of divine blessing (2 Chr 24.15; Deut 4.40; 5.16; Isa 52.10; 65.17–19). Full of days, see 23.1n. 29: In the Chronicler's time, Judeans thought of the prophets not only as great figures from Israel's past but also authors of historical writings about that past. That David's reign is the subject of these three otherwise unknown accounts written by prophets during his reign, is one more indication of the Chronicler's desire to enhance David's legacy.

This page intentionally left blank

2 CHRONICLES

Second Chronicles is a continuation of First Chronicles, and the two originally formed one book, as they still do in the traditional Hebrew text. (For an introduction to this work, see the Introduction to 1 Chronicles.)

The organization of 2 Chronicles falls into two major parts: the reign of Solomon (chs 1–9) and the kingdom of Judah (chs 10–36). In Chronicles the tenure of Solomon represents the apex of Israelite history, a time of unprecedented glory, prosperity, and peace. If David's reign was highly successful because David consolidated Israel's international position and prepared for the long-awaited Temple, Solomon's reign was even more successful because he brought these plans to fruition. Accordingly, much space is devoted in chs 2–7 to the construction, furnishings, and dedication of this national edifice. As the home of the ark of the covenant and the tabernacle, the Temple represents the continuation and fulfillment of earlier Israelite religious institutions. The careful attention given to the Temple and its worship reflects the importance that the Chronicler ascribed to this institution in the postexilic era. For the author, the Temple is the divinely sanctioned place for both sacrifice and prayer (6.1–7.22), a view also present in the book of Kings.

The Chronicler's account of the divided monarchy differs in many respects from that found in 1 and 2 Kings, even though he draws heavily from Kings to write his own work. The writer excludes the independent history of the Northern Kingdom because he regards both the kingship and the sanctuaries of this new state as an affront to God (13.4–12). The choice not to recount the record of northern Israel also means that the stories of northern prophets such as Elijah and Elisha are not found in Chronicles. The author does add, however, much coverage to the Southern Kingdom of Judah, including a letter from Elijah to a southern king (2 Chr 21.12–15). Some of the material unique to Chronicles reflects well on the reigns of major Judahite monarchs, such as Asa (chs 14–16), Jehoshaphat (chs 17–20), and Hezekiah (chs 29–32). Throughout his presentation, the Chronicler exhibits a keen concern for all Israelite tribes. The Chronicler criticizes the Northern Kingdom and its monarchs, but he still considers the northern tribes as Israelite and shows a sustained interest in their contacts with Judah. In the latter part of its history, Judah lost ground to its enemies and was exiled from its land to Babylon (586 BCE). A major concern of the Chronicler is not only to trace this decline, but also to explain it and to commend the reforms aimed at reversing it. On the whole, he presents a more optimistic version of this period than do the authors of Kings. (See further the Introduction to 1 Chronicles, pp. 575–577 HB.)

Gary N. Knoppers

1 Solomon son of David established himself in his kingdom; the LORD his God was with him and made him exceedingly great.

² Solomon summoned all Israel, the commanders of the thousands and of the hundreds, the judges, and all the leaders of all Israel, the heads of families. ³ Then Solomon, and the whole assembly with him, went to the high place that was at Gibeon; for God's tent of meeting, which Moses the servant of the LORD had made in the wilderness, was there. ⁴ (But David had brought the ark of God up from Kiriath-jearim to the place that David had prepared for it; for he had pitched a tent for it in Jerusalem.) ⁵ Moreover the bronze altar that Bezalel son of Uri, son of Hur, had made, was there in front of the tabernacle of the LORD. And Solomon and the assembly inquired at it. ⁶ Solomon went up there to the bronze altar before the LORD, which was at the tent of meeting, and offered a thousand burnt offerings on it.

⁷ That night God appeared to Solomon, and said to him, "Ask what I should give you." ⁸ Solomon said to God, "You have shown great and steadfast love to my father David, and have made me succeed him as king." ⁹ O LORD God, let your promise to my father David now be fulfilled, for you have made me king over a people as numerous as the dust of the earth.

¹⁰ Give me now wisdom and knowledge to go out and come in before this people, for who can rule this great people of yours?" ¹¹ God answered Solomon, "Because this was in your heart, and you have not asked for possessions, wealth, honor, or the life of those who hate you, and have not even asked for long life, but have asked for wisdom and knowledge for yourself that you may rule my people over whom I have made you king, ¹² wisdom and knowledge are granted to you. I will also give you riches, possessions, and honor, such as none of the kings had who were before you, and none after you shall have the like." ¹³ So Solomon came from^a the high place at Gibeon, from the tent of meeting, to Jerusalem. And he reigned over Israel.

¹⁴ Solomon gathered together chariots and horses; he had fourteen hundred chariots and twelve thousand horses, which he stationed in the chariot cities and with the king in Jerusalem. ¹⁵ The king made silver and gold as common in Jerusalem as stone, and he made cedar as plentiful as the sycamore of the Shephelah. ¹⁶ Solomon's horses were imported from Egypt and Kue; the king's traders received them from Kue at the prevailing price. ¹⁷ They imported from Egypt, and then

^a Gk Vg: Heb to

1.1–17: Solomon takes charge, journeys to Gibeon, and prospers. Solomon rules an Israel unified and unhampered by internal factions or strife. Solomon's legitimacy is stressed by repeated references to him as David's rightful successor and king by divine choice (1 Chr 17:11; 23:1; 28:6; 29:23–25; 2 Chr 1:1; 6:10; 7:17–18). The Chronicler presents the United Monarchy as the time when Israel's authoritative institutions took shape. The idealized presentation of David and Solomon effectively establishes a model by which later periods are judged. 1: Solomon ruled ca. 968–928 BCE. When Solomon took office, he immediately established himself in his kingdom and enjoyed the LORD's blessings (v. 1). There was no need to pacify, eliminate, or exile his domestic foes (1 Kings 1–2) because David had already consolidated support for Solomon (1 Chr 23–29). 2–13: The support of military, local, and civil officials enables the nation to embark on major new initiatives in a harmonious fashion (1 Chr 11:1–3; 13:1–4; 23:1–2; 28:1; 29:1–25). In this case, the author transforms a story about Solomon's private pilgrimage to the high place at Gibeon (1 Kings 3:3–15) into a national pilgrimage, adding that the tent of meeting (see Ex 38–39) was located at Gibeon (1 Chr 16:39–42). This type of addition, which harmonizes a variety of earlier texts, typifies Chronicles. 4: See 1 Chr 13; 15. 5: On Bezalel and the bronze altar, cf. Ex 27:1–2; 31:1; 1 Chr 2:20. The emphasis here is on continuity. 11–12: The divine gifts of unprecedented wisdom and knowledge, as well as possessions, wealth and honor set the tone and tenor of Solomon's reign. Nevertheless, the theme of Solomon's wisdom is not as pronounced in Chronicles as it is in Kings. 14–17: These verses, drawn from 1 Kings 10:26–29, illustrate that God's promises to Solomon at Gibeon are being realized. The rearrangement of earlier sources is typical of the Chronicler. 15: The Shephelah, the foothills between the coastal plain and the Judean hill country. 16: Kue, in Cilicia, in southern Asia Minor. 17: A shekel weighed about 11.5 gr (.4 oz). The kings of the Hittites ruled over northern Syria; Aram was southern Syria.

2.1–18: Solomon prepares to build the Temple. As David's appointed successor, Solomon brings his father's exported, a chariot for six hundred shekels of silver, and a horse for one hundred fifty; so through them these were exported to all the kings of the Hittites and the kings of Aram.

2^a Solomon decided to build a temple for the name of the LORD, and a royal palace for himself. ²^b Solomon conscripted seventy thousand laborers and eighty thousand stonemasons in the hill country, with three thousand six hundred to oversee them.

³ Solomon sent word to King Hiram of Tyre: “Once you dealt with my father David and sent him cedar to build himself a house to live in. ⁴ I am now about to build a house for the name of the LORD my God and dedicate it to him for offering fragrant incense before him, and for the regular offering of the rows of bread, and for burnt offerings morning and evening, on the sabbaths and the new moons and the appointed festivals of the LORD our God, as ordained forever for Israel. ⁵ The house that I am about to build will be great, for our God is greater than other gods. ⁶ But who is able to build him a house, since heaven, even highest heaven, cannot contain him? Who am I to build a house for him, except as a place to make offerings before him? ⁷ So now send me an artisan skilled to work in gold, silver, bronze, and iron, and in purple, crimson, and blue fabrics, trained also in engraving, to join the skilled workers who are with me in Judah and Jerusalem, whom my father David provided. ⁸ Send me also cedar, cypress, and algum timber from Lebanon, for I know that your servants are skilled in cutting Lebanon timber. My servants will work with your servants ⁹ to prepare timber for me in abundance, for the house I am about to build will be great and wonderful. ¹⁰ I will provide for your servants, those who cut the timber, twenty thousand cors of crushed wheat, twenty thousand cors of barley, twenty thousand baths^c of wine, and twenty thousand baths of oil.”

¹¹ Then King Hiram of Tyre answered in a letter that he sent to Solomon, “Because the LORD loves his people he has made you king over them.” ¹² Hiram also said, “Blessed be the LORD God of Israel, who made heaven and earth, who has given King David a wise son, endowed with discretion and understanding, who will build a temple for the LORD, and a royal palace for himself.

¹³ “I have dispatched Hiram-abi, a skilled artisan, endowed with understanding, ¹⁴ the son of one of the Danite women, his father a Tyrian. He is trained to work in gold, silver, bronze, iron, stone, and wood, and in purple, blue, and crimson fabrics and fine linen, and to do all sorts of engraving and execute any design that may be assigned him, with your artisans, the artisans of my lord, your father David. ¹⁵ Now, as for the wheat, barley, oil, and wine, of which my lord has spoken, let him send them to his servants. ¹⁶ We will cut whatever timber you need from Lebanon, and bring it to you as rafts by sea to Joppa; you will take it up to Jerusalem.”

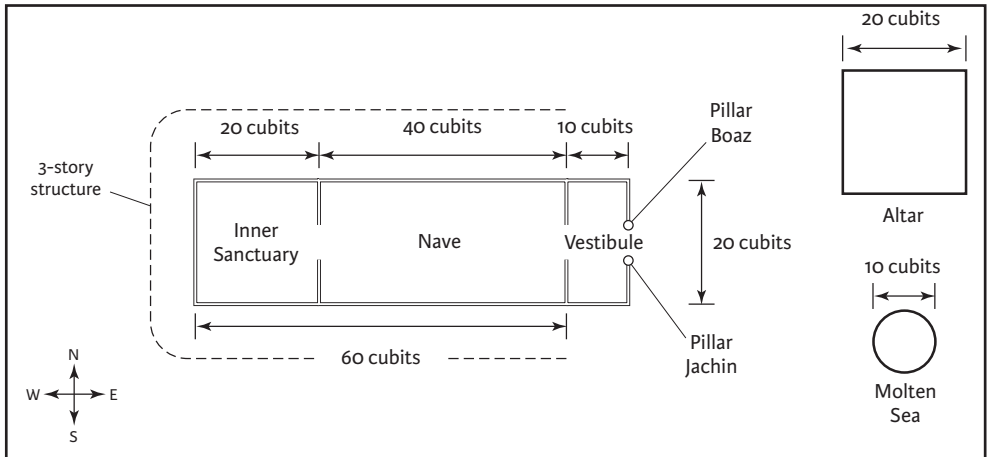

¹⁷ Then Solomon took a census of all the aliens who were residing in the land of Israel, after the census that his father David had taken; and there were found to be one hundred fifty-three thousand six hundred. ¹⁸ Seventy thousand of them he assigned as laborers, eighty thousand as stonemasons in the hill

^a Ch 1.18 in Heb

^b Ch 2.1 in Heb

^c A Hebrew measure of volume hopes and designs to fruition by focusing much of his energy on constructing, equipping, and staffing the Temple. Like David, Solomon is a devoted patron of his nation's worship and makes this the first priority of his reign. 1–10: These verses, largely drawn from 1 Kings 5:1–6:11, provide external confirmation of both Solomon's gifts and the plan to build a temple. Vv. 4–5, however, have no source in Kings, and reflect later theological notions. 3: Hiram (called Hiram in 1 Kings) had been an ally of David (see 2 Sam 5:11), sending him materials to build his palace. 4: Rows of bread, see 1 Chr 9:32; Lev 24:5–9. Burnt offerings, see 1 Chr 16:40; Ex 29:38–42; Lev 6:20. 8: Algum (“almug” in 1 Kings), an unidentified species of tree. 10: A cor was about 230 l (6.5 bu); a bath about 23 l (6 gal). 11–12: An elaborated version of 1 Kings 5:7. 13–16: Cf. 1 Kings 7:13–14. There Hiram-abi is called Hiram and hails from Naphtali. 17–18: The census of aliens is a prelude to conscription for the Temple's construction (1 Kings 9:22). In Chronicles Solomon does not conscript Israelites to build the Temple and other public buildings as he does in Kings (1 Kings 5:13–18; 12:4).

The Temple of Solomon according to Second Chronicles.

country, and three thousand six hundred as overseers to make the people work.

3 Solomon began to build the house of the LORD in Jerusalem on Mount Moriah, where the LORD had appeared to his father David, at the place that David had designated, on the threshing floor of Ornan the Jebusite.

²He began to build on the second day of the second month of the fourth year of his reign.

³These are Solomon's measurements^a for building the house of God: the length, in cubits of the old standard, was sixty cubits, and the width twenty cubits. ⁴The vestibule in front of the nave of the house was twenty cubits long, across the width of the house;^b and its height was one hundred twenty cubits. He overlaid it on the inside with pure gold.

⁵The nave he lined with cypress, covered it with fine gold, and made palms and chains on it. ⁶He adorned the house with settings of precious stones. The gold was gold from Parvaim. ⁷So he lined the house with gold—its beams, its thresholds, its walls, and its doors; and he carved cherubim on the walls.

⁸He made the most holy place; its length, corresponding to the width of the house, was twenty cubits, and its width was twenty cubits; he overlaid it with six hundred talents of fine gold. ⁹The weight of the nails was fifty shekels of gold. He overlaid the upper chambers with gold.

^a Syr: Heb foundations

^b Compare 1 Kings 6.3: Meaning of Heb uncertain

3.1–17: Temple construction (see map above). A condensed and rewritten version of 1 Kings 6; 7:15–22 (see also the notes there). 1: Only here is Mount Moriah, the site of the binding of Isaac (Gen 22.2), explicitly identified with the Temple site. According to the Chronicler, it is also the location where David was instructed to build an altar to God (1 Chr 21.15–22.1) following his calamitous census (1 Chr 21.1–14). 3: House of God, like the Tabernacle described in Exodus, Solomon's Temple had three major sections, though some of these sections have different names: a "vestibule" (v. 4), a "nave" (vv. 4–5), and a "most holy place" (v. 8). Of these "the most holy place" was the most exclusive and sacred, but the "nave" (or sanctuary) was the largest and contained an incense altar, the "ten golden lampstands" (v. 7), and the "ten tables" (v. 8). Archaeology has revealed a variety of ancient Near Eastern parallels to the tripartite design depicted here. A cubit was about 45 cm (18 in); the cubit of the old standard may have been slightly longer. 4: The measurement of one hundred twenty cubits for the height of the main part of the building dwarfs the thirty cubits measurement of Solomon's Temple in 1 Kings 6.2. 6: The location of Parvaim is unknown. 8–9: The Chronicler portrays Solomon, like David (1 Chr 29.1–5), as deliberately excessive in providing for the Temple. The six hundred talents of fine gold is the equivalent of over 20,000 kg (45,000 lbs). 1 Kings 6.19–22 simply speaks of "pure gold." 10–14: Largely abridged from 1 Kings 6.23–28. 10: Cherubim were winged, sphinxlike creatures with human faces (cf. Gen 3.24; 1 Kings 6.23; Ezek 41.18–19). In the ancient Near East, kings were sometimes represented as sitting on a throne supported by ¹⁰In the most holy place he made two carved cherubim and overlaid^a them with gold. ¹¹The wings of the cherubim together extended twenty cubits: one wing of the one, five cubits long, touched the wall of the house, and its other wing, five cubits long, touched the wing of the other cherub; ¹²and of this cherub, one wing, five cubits long, touched the wall of the house, and the other wing, also five cubits long, was joined to the wing of the first cherub. ¹³The wings of these cherubim extended twenty cubits; the cherubim^b stood on their feet, facing the nave. ¹⁴And Solomon^c made the curtain of blue and purple and crimson fabrics and fine linen, and worked cherubim into it.

¹⁵In front of the house he made two pillars thirty-five cubits high, with a capital of five cubits on the top of each. ¹⁶He made encircling^d chains and put them on the tops of the pillars; and he made one hundred pomegranates, and put them on the chains. ¹⁷He set up the pillars in front of the temple, one on the right, the other on the left; the one on the right he called Jachin, and the one on the left, Boaz.

4 He made an altar of bronze, twenty cubits long, twenty cubits wide, and ten cubits high. ²Then he made the molten sea; it was round, ten cubits from rim to rim, and five cubits high. A line of thirty cubits would encircle it completely. ³Under it were panels all around, each of ten cubits, surrounding the sea; there were two rows of panels, cast when it was cast. ⁴It stood on twelve oxen, three facing north, three facing west, three facing south, and three facing east; the sea was set on them. The hindquarters of each were toward the inside. ⁵Its thickness was a handbreadth; its rim was made like the rim of a cup, like the flower of a lily; it held three thousand baths.^e ⁶He also made ten basins in which to wash, and set five on the right side, and five on the left. In these they were to rinse what was used for the burnt offering. The sea was for the priests to wash in.

⁷He made ten golden lampstands as prescribed, and set them in the temple, five on the south side and five on the north. ⁸He also made ten tables and placed them in the temple, five on the right side and five on the left. And he made one hundred basins of gold. ⁹He made the court of the priests, and

^a Heb they overlaid

^b Heb they

^c Heb he

^d Cn: Heb in the inner sanctuary

^e A Hebrew measure of volume

cherubim. In this case, however, the “cherubim” symbolized the invisible LORD’s enthronement in the most holy place. 14: The reference to the curtain draws a parallel between the tabernacle (Ex 26.31) and the Temple. 1 Kings 6.31 instead mentions doors. The Chronicler often buttresses the antiquity of the Jerusalem Temple by stressing the continuity between it and older religious institutions such as the tabernacle. 15–17: On Jachin and Boaz, see 1 Kings 7.15–22n. 15: Pillars, one pillar stood on each side of the Temple’s entrance. Their height of thirty-five cubits is nearly double that registered in 1 Kings 7.15.

4.1–22: The Temple furnishings. Largely taken from 1 Kings 7.23–51 (excepting vv. 27–37). 1: The reference to the altar of bronze may have been drawn from 1 Kings 8.64 (cf. 2 Kings 16.14). See also 2 Chr 1.5 and Ezek 43.13–17. 2–6: The molten sea, made from cast bronze, rested upon a foundation of twelve oxen or bulls, which were traditionally associated with strength and fertility in ancient Canaan. Given that one bath measured approximately 6 gal (23 l), this Temple furnishing was of monumental size. 1 Kings 7.23–26 also describes the molten sea, but does not mention that it was used for priestly ablutions. 4: The twelve oxen supporting the molten sea are grouped in threes and face outward in each of the four directions of the compass. 6: Ten basins, see 1 Kings 7.38–39. The tabernacle had only one basin (Ex 30.17). To wash, the explanation is not found in Kings. It has been drawn from the Priestly description of the tent of meeting (Ex 30.17–21). 7: Ten golden lampstands, Chronicles, in conformity with Kings, mentions multiple lampstands in the Temple (1 Chr 28.15; 2 Chr 4.20 || 1 Kings 7.49). In contrast, the tabernacle has one lampstand (Ex 25.31–40; 31.8; Lev 24.1–4; Num 8.2–4). As “a statute forever throughout your generations” (Lev 24.3), the candelabrum’s lamps were to burn every evening (Ex 25.37; 30.7–8; Lev 24.3; Num 8.2; 2 Chr 13.11). 8: Ten tables, in contrast with the one table in the tabernacle (Ex 25.23–30; 26.35; Lev 24.5–9; 2 Chr 13.11) and the one table in the Temple described by 1 Kings 7.48, the Chronicler’s Temple had ten. On these tables the “bread of the Presence” would be laid. 9: The reference to the court of the priests likely reflects the Temple of the Chronicler’s own day in which the inner court (1 Kings 6.36; 7.12) was reserved for priests and the outer

the great court, and doors for the court; he overlaid their doors with bronze. ¹⁰ He set the sea at the southeast corner of the house.

¹¹ And Hiram made the pots, the shovels, and the basins. Thus Hiram finished the work that he did for King Solomon on the house of God: ¹² the two pillars, the bowls, and the two capitals on the top of the pillars; and the two latticeworks to cover the two bowls of the capitals that were on the top of the pillars; ¹³ the four hundred pomegranates for the two latticeworks, two rows of pomegranates for each latticework, to cover the two bowls of the capitals that were on the pillars. ¹⁴ He made the stands, the basins on the stands, ¹⁵ the one sea, and the twelve oxen underneath it. ¹⁶ The pots, the shovels, the forks, and all the equipment for these Hiram-abi made of burnished bronze for King Solomon for the house of the LORD. ¹⁷ In the plain of the Jordan the king cast them, in the clay ground between Succoth and Zeredah. ¹⁸ Solomon made all these things in great quantities, so that the weight of the bronze was not determined.

¹⁹ So Solomon made all the things that were in the house of God: the golden altar, the tables for the bread of the Presence, ²⁰ the lampstands and their lamps of pure gold to burn before the inner sanctuary, as prescribed; ²¹ the flowers, the lamps, and the tongs, of purest gold; ²² the snuffers, basins, ladles, and firepans, of pure gold. As for the entrance to the temple: the inner doors to the most holy place and the doors of the nave of the temple were of gold.

5 Thus all the work that Solomon did for the house of the LORD was finished. Solomon brought in the things that his father

David had dedicated, and stored the silver, the gold, and all the vessels in the treasuries of the house of God.

² Then Solomon assembled the elders of Israel and all the heads of the tribes, the leaders of the ancestral houses of the people of Israel, in Jerusalem, to bring up the ark of the covenant of the LORD out of the city of David, which is Zion. ³ And all the Israelites assembled before the king at the festival that is in the seventh month. ⁴ And all the elders of Israel came, and the Levites carried the ark. ⁵ So they brought up the ark, the tent of meeting, and all the holy vessels that were in the tent; the priests and the Levites brought them up. ⁶ King Solomon and all the congregation of Israel, who had assembled before him, were before the ark, sacrificing so many sheep and oxen that they could not be numbered or counted. ⁷ Then the priests brought the ark of the covenant of the LORD to its place, in the inner sanctuary of the house, in the most holy place, underneath the wings of the cherubim. ⁸ For the cherubim spread out their wings over the place of the ark, so that the cherubim made a covering above the ark and its poles. ⁹ The poles were so long that the ends of the poles were seen from the holy place in front of the inner sanctuary; but they could not be seen from outside; they are there to this day. ¹⁰ There was nothing in the ark except the two tablets that Moses put there at Horeb, where the LORD made a covenant^a with the people of Israel after they came out of Egypt.

¹¹ Now when the priests came out of the holy place (for all the priests who were

^a Heb lacks a covenant

court was for laity, at least on some occasions (1 Chr 28.12; 2 Chr 7.7; 29.16; Neh 8.16). See also Ezekiel's restored temple (Ezek 41.15; 42.7–14; 44.19; 45.19; 46.1). 11: Hiram, see 2.13–16n. The pots, the shovels, and the basins were employed in sacrificial rituals (Ex 27.3; 1 Kings 7.40). 17: Succoth and Zeredah (Zarethan in 1 Kings 7.46) were towns situated east of the Jordan River. 19: Bread of the Presence, see Ex 25.30; Lev 24.5–9.

5.1–14: The ark and the tent of meeting ascend into the Temple. These verses, except vv. 11b–13a, are largely drawn from 1 Kings 8.1–13. The incorporation of both the tabernacle and the ark into the Temple means that both of these older religious institutions find their fulfillment in the Jerusalem sanctuary. Like the authors of Deuteronomy (ch 12) and the Deuteronomistic History (Joshua–2 Kings), the Chronicler commends the centralization of Yahwistic worship and the abolition of all other sanctuaries. Sacrifices are to be carried out only at the Jerusalem Temple and prayers are to be offered at or toward this site (5.5–6.42), making the Temple the focal point of national life. 2: On the importance of assemblies in Chronicles, see 1.2–13n. 4: That the Levites carry the ark conforms to David's instructions (1 Chr 15.2) and Deuteronomic law (Deut 10.8). In 1 Kings 8.3, the present had sanctified themselves, without regard to their divisions),¹² all the levitical singers, Asaph, Heman, and Jeduthun, their sons and kindred, arrayed in fine linen, with cymbals, harps, and lyres, stood east of the altar with one hundred twenty priests who were trumpeters.¹³ It was the duty of the trumpeters and singers to make themselves heard in unison in praise and thanksgiving to the LORD, and when the song was raised, with trumpets and cymbals and other musical instruments, in praise to the LORD,

“For he is good,

for his steadfast love endures forever,” the house, the house of the LORD, was filled with a cloud,¹⁴ so that the priests could not stand to minister because of the cloud; for the glory of the LORD filled the house of God.

6 Then Solomon said, “The LORD has said that he would reside in thick darkness.² I have built you an exalted house, a place for you to reside in forever.”

³ Then the king turned around and blessed all the assembly of Israel, while all the assembly of Israel stood.⁴ And he said, “Blessed be the LORD, the God of Israel, who with his hand has fulfilled what he promised with his mouth to my father David, saying,⁵ ‘Since the day that I brought my people out of the land of Egypt, I have not chosen a city from any of the tribes of Israel in which to build a house, so that my name might be there, and I chose no one as ruler over my people Israel;⁶ but I have chosen Jerusalem in order that my name may be there, and I have chosen

David to be over my people Israel.’⁷ My father David had it in mind to build a house for the name of the LORD, the God of Israel.⁸ But the LORD said to my father David, ‘You did well to consider building a house for my name;⁹ nevertheless you shall not build the house, but your son who shall be born to you shall build the house for my name.’¹⁰ Now the LORD has fulfilled his promise that he made; for I have succeeded my father David, and sit on the throne of Israel, as the LORD promised, and have built the house for the name of the LORD, the God of Israel.¹¹ There I have set the ark, in which is the covenant of the LORD that he made with the people of Israel.”

¹² Then Solomon^a stood before the altar of the LORD in the presence of the whole assembly of Israel, and spread out his hands.¹³ Solomon had made a bronze platform five cubits long, five cubits wide, and three cubits high, and had set it in the court; and he stood on it. Then he knelt on his knees in the presence of the whole assembly of Israel, and spread out his hands toward heaven.¹⁴ He said, “O LORD, God of Israel, there is no God like you, in heaven or on earth, keeping covenant in steadfast love with your servants who walk before you with all their heart—¹⁵ you who have kept for your servant, my father David, what you promised to him. Indeed, you promised with your mouth and this day have fulfilled with your hand.¹⁶ Therefore, O LORD, God of Israel, keep for your servant, my father David, that which you promised

^a Heb he

“priests” do so. 10: Two tablets, see Deut 10.1–5. Horeb is another name for Sinai. 11–13: The Chronicler’s addition to the Kings narrative points out that David’s levitical and priestly arrangements (1 Chr 15–16; 25–26) were broadly implemented. Asaph, Heman, and Jeduthun, see 1 Chr 6.33n., 44n. 13: For the hymnic excerpt, see 7.3n. Cloud, see 1 Kings 8.10–11n.

6.1–42: Solomon’s blessing and Temple dedication prayer. With the exception of vv. 13 and 41–42, this entire chapter is reproduced, with some significant modifications, from the author’s version of 1 Kings 8.12–52. Solomon’s public speeches situate the Temple’s construction in Israel’s national life—past, present, and future. 4–11: In his blessing, Solomon praises God that a number of the promises to David (1 Chr 17.1–15) have been fulfilled. 12–40: The pattern of divine fidelity recounted in Solomon’s blessing becomes the occasion for Solomon to request that other divine promises be realized (vv. 14–17). The heart of the prayer of dedication (vv. 22–40) consists of seven petitions detailing a variety of predicaments in which the nation may find itself, including defeat by the enemy (vv. 24–25), drought (vv. 26–27), open pitched battles (vv. 34–35), and even exile (vv. 36–39). In each case Solomon prays that God might listen from his heavenly dwelling and be attentive to the prayers of his people. 13: The bronze platform is found only here. 16: My law (Heb “torah”), replacing “before me” of 1 Kings 8.25. This small change likely reflects the new importance of the Torah-book in the postexilic commu-

him, saying, “There shall never fail you a successor before me to sit on the throne of Israel, if only your children keep to their way, to walk in my law as you have walked before me.”¹⁷ Therefore, O LORD, God of Israel, let your word be confirmed, which you promised to your servant David.

¹⁸ “But will God indeed reside with mortals on earth? Even heaven and the highest heaven cannot contain you, how much less this house that I have built! ¹⁹ Regard your servant’s prayer and his plea, O LORD my God, heeding the cry and the prayer that your servant prays to you. ²⁰ May your eyes be open day and night toward this house, the place where you promised to set your name, and may you heed the prayer that your servant prays toward this place. ²¹ And hear the plea of your servant and of your people Israel, when they pray toward this place; may you hear from heaven your dwelling place; hear and forgive.

²² “If someone sins against another and is required to take an oath and comes and swears before your altar in this house, ²³ may you hear from heaven, and act, and judge your servants, repaying the guilty by bringing their conduct on their own head, and vindicating those who are in the right by rewarding them in accordance with their righteousness.

²⁴ “When your people Israel, having sinned against you, are defeated before an enemy but turn again to you, confess your name, pray and plead with you in this house, ²⁵ may you hear from heaven, and forgive the sin of your people Israel, and bring them again to the land that you gave to them and to their ancestors.

²⁶ “When heaven is shut up and there is no rain because they have sinned against you, and then they pray toward this place, confess your name, and turn from their sin, because you punish them, ²⁷ may you hear in heaven, forgive the sin of your servants, your people Israel, when you teach them the good way in which they should walk; and send down rain upon your land, which you have given to your people as an inheritance.

²⁸ “If there is famine in the land, if there is plague, blight, mildew, locust, or caterpillar; if their enemies besiege them in any of the settlements of the lands; whatever suffering, whatever sickness there is; ²⁹ whatever prayer, whatever plea from any individual or from all your people Israel, all knowing their own suffering and their own sorrows so that they stretch out their hands toward this house; ³⁰ may you hear from heaven, your dwelling place, forgive, and render to all whose heart you know, according to all their ways, for only you know the human heart. ³¹ Thus may they fear you and walk in your ways all the days that they live in the land that you gave to our ancestors.

³² “Likewise when foreigners, who are not of your people Israel, come from a distant land because of your great name, and your mighty hand, and your outstretched arm, when they come and pray toward this house, ³³ may you hear from heaven your dwelling place, and do whatever the foreigners ask of you, in order that all the peoples of the earth may know your name and fear you, as do your people Israel, and that they may know that your name has been invoked on this house that I have built.

³⁴ “If your people go out to battle against their enemies, by whatever way you shall send them, and they pray to you toward this city that you have chosen and the house that I have built for your name, ³⁵ then hear from heaven their prayer and their plea, and maintain their cause.

³⁶ “If they sin against you—for there is no one who does not sin—and you are angry with them and give them to an enemy, so that they are carried away captive to a land far or near; ³⁷ then if they come to their senses in the land to which they have been taken captive, and repent, and plead with you in the land of their captivity, saying, ‘We have sinned, and have done wrong; we have acted wickedly’; ³⁸ if they repent with all their heart and soul in the land of their captivity, to which they were taken captive, and pray toward their land, which you gave to their ancestors, the city that you have chosen, and the house that I have built for your name, ³⁹ then hear from heaven your dwelling place their prayer and their pleas, maintain their cause and forgive your people who have sinned against you. ⁴⁰ Now, O my God, let your eyes be open and your ears attentive to prayer from this place.

⁴¹“Now rise up, O LORD God, and go to your resting place, you and the ark of your might. Let your priests, O LORD God, be clothed with salvation, and let your faithful rejoice in your goodness.”

⁴²O LORD God, do not reject your anointed one. Remember your steadfast love for your servant David.”

7 When Solomon had ended his prayer, fire came down from heaven and consumed the burnt offering and the sacrifices; and the glory of the LORD filled the temple. ²The priests could not enter the house of the LORD, because the glory of the LORD filled the LORD’s house. ³When all the people of Israel saw the fire come down and the glory of the LORD on the temple, they bowed down on the pavement with their faces to the ground, and worshiped and gave thanks to the LORD, saying,

“For he is good, for his steadfast love endures forever.”

⁴Then the king and all the people offered sacrifice before the LORD. ⁵King Solomon offered as a sacrifice twenty-two thousand oxen and one hundred twenty thousand sheep. So the king and all the people dedicated the house of God. ⁶The priests stood at their posts; the Levites also, with the instruments for music to the LORD that King David had made for giving thanks to the LORD—for his steadfast love endures forever—whenever David offered praises by their ministry. Opposite them the priests sounded trumpets; and all Israel stood.

⁷Solomon consecrated the middle of the court that was in front of the house of the LORD; for there he offered the burnt offerings and the fat of the offerings of well-being because the bronze altar Solomon had made could not hold the burnt offering and the grain offering and the fat parts.

⁸At that time Solomon held the festival for seven days, and all Israel with him, a very great congregation, from Lebo-hamath to the Wadi of Egypt. ⁹On the eighth day they held a solemn assembly; for they had observed the dedication of the altar seven days and the festival seven days. ¹⁰On the twenty-third day of the seventh month he sent the people away to their homes, joyful and in good spirits because of the goodness that the LORD had shown to David and to Solomon and to his people Israel.

¹¹Thus Solomon finished the house of the LORD and the king’s house; all that Solomon had planned to do in the house of the LORD and in his own house he successfully accomplished.

¹²Then the LORD appeared to Solomon in the night and said to him: “I have heard your prayer, and have chosen this place for myself as a house of sacrifice. ¹³When I shut up the heavens so that there is no rain, or command the locust to devour the land, or send pestilence among my people, ¹⁴if my people who are called by my name humble

nity. 41–42: Solomon’s prayer of 1 Kings 8 is given a new conclusion from Ps 132.8–10.

7.1–22: Divine consecration, national thanksgiving, and a warning. Both the Deuteronomist (1 Kings 9.1–9) and the Chronicler mention a divine response to Solomon’s prayer (vv. 16–22), but the Chronicler also includes other material affirming both the Temple (vv. 1–3,11) and King Solomon’s petitions (vv. 13–15). The divine response to Solomon therefore explicitly validates Jerusalem as the site of Israel’s central sanctuary. 1: The divine consecration of the burnt offering and the sacrifices by fire, not found in 1 Kings 8–9, dramatically legitimates the Jerusalem Temple as an enduring fixture of Israelite life (Lev 9.24; 1 Kings 18.36–39; 1 Chr 21.26). 3: The people’s liturgical refrain—“For he is good, for his steadfast love endures forever”—also found in Ps 136 (and 1 Chr 16.34; 2 Chr 5.13; 7.6; 20.21; Ezra 3.11), was likely a significant element of the postexilic Temple liturgy. 7–8: Taken in part from 1 Kings 8.65–66. From Lebo-hamath to the Wadi of Egypt, the northern and southern limits of Solomon’s rule. Lebo-hamath is probably in the southern Orontes valley in Lebanon. The Wadi of Egypt, either the Wadi Besor or the Wadi el-Arish, both south of Gaza. See map on p. 592 нв. 9–10: The festivities last far longer than in 1 Kings 8.66, in which the Priestly legislation is not a consideration (cf. Lev 23.36; Num 29.35–38; Neh 8.18). 13–14: The Temple is approved as an appropriate means of divine-human communications. Should king or people find themselves in duress, they may respond in four ways: humble themselves, pray, seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways. For his part, the LORD will hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin and heal their land themselves, pray, seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways, then I will hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin and heal their land. ¹⁵ Now my eyes will be open and my ears attentive to the prayer that is made in this place. ¹⁶ For now I have chosen and consecrated this house so that my name may be there forever; my eyes and my heart will be there for all time. ¹⁷ As for you, if you walk before me, as your father David walked, doing according to all that I have commanded you and keeping my statutes and my ordinances, ¹⁸ then I will establish your royal throne, as I made covenant with your father David saying, ‘You shall never lack a successor to rule over Israel.’

¹⁹ “But if you^a turn aside and forsake my statutes and my commandments that I have set before you, and go and serve other gods and worship them, ²⁰ then I will pluck you^b up from the land that I have given you;^b and this house, which I have consecrated for my name, I will cast out of my sight, and will make it a proverb and a byword among all peoples. ²¹ And regarding this house, now exalted, everyone passing by will be astonished, and say, ‘Why has the LORD done such a thing to this land and to this house?’ ²² Then they will say, ‘Because they abandoned the LORD the God of their ancestors who brought them out of the land of Egypt, and they adopted other gods, and worshiped them and served them; therefore he has brought all this calamity upon them.’”

8 At the end of twenty years, during which Solomon had built the house of the LORD and his own house, ² Solomon rebuilt the cities that Hiram had given to him, and settled the people of Israel in them.

³ Solomon went to Hamath-zobah, and captured it. ⁴ He built Tadmor in the wilderness and all the storage towns that he built in Hamath. ⁵ He also built Upper Beth-horon and Lower Beth-horon, fortified cities, with walls, gates, and bars, ⁶ and Baalath, as well as all Solomon’s storage towns, and all the towns for his chariots, the towns for his cavalry, and whatever Solomon desired to build, in Jerusalem, in Lebanon, and in all the land of his dominion. ⁷ All the people who were left of the Hittites, the Amorites, the Perizzites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites, who were not of Israel, ⁸ from their descendants who were still left in the land, whom the people of Israel had not destroyed—these Solomon conscripted for forced labor, as is still the case today. ⁹ But of the people of Israel Solomon made no slaves for his work; they were soldiers, and his officers, the commanders of his chariotry and cavalry. ¹⁰ These were the chief officers of King Solomon, two hundred fifty of them, who exercised authority over the people.

¹¹ Solomon brought Pharaoh’s daughter from the city of David to the house that he had built for her, for he said, “My wife shall not live in the house of King David of Israel, for the places to which the ark of the LORD has come are holy.”

^a The word you in this verse is plural

^b Heb them

(v. 14). 19–22: Israel’s possession of the land, as well as the longevity of the Temple itself, are keyed to national obedience (cf. 1 Chr 28.7).

8.1–18: Solomon the successful king. Following the Temple’s dedication, Solomon advances his program of public works (vv. 3–6,11), continues his patronage of the nation’s worship (vv. 12–15), employs the tribute from a foreign king to good advantage (v. 2; cf. 1 Kings 9.10–14), and engages in international trade (vv. 17–18). 2: This reflects a remarkable reversal of the tradition recorded in 1 Kings 9.11–13. 3: An otherwise unattested campaign. Although in Chronicles Solomon (Heb “shelomoh”) is a man of peace (“shalom”; 1 Chr 22.9), he here expands his kingdom through military means. No place named Hamath-zobah is known; elsewhere Hamath and Zobah are separate kingdoms in Syria. 4: Solomon’s control reaches to Syria (see map on p. 626 HB). The system of twelve prefects and the districts they governed (1 Kings 4.7–19) is not found in Chronicles, possibly because these districts did not follow traditional tribal boundaries. Tadmor is later Palmyra, an important oasis in the desert ca. 225 km (140 mi) northeast of Damascus. Some Hebrew texts of 1 Kings 9.18 read “Tamar,” a small place in Judah, while others read “Tadmor,” as in Chronicles. 7–10: Largely derived from 1 Kings 9.20–23. 7: These are some of the traditional inhabitants of the land of Canaan; see Gen 15.20; Deut 20.17. 11: Compare 1 Kings 3.1;

¹²Then Solomon offered up burnt offerings to the LORD on the altar of the LORD that he had built in front of the vestibule, ¹³as the duty of each day required, offering according to the commandment of Moses for the sabbaths, the new moons, and the three annual festivals—the festival of unleavened bread, the festival of weeks, and the festival of booths. ¹⁴According to the ordinance of his father David, he appointed the divisions of the priests for their service, and the Levites for their offices of praise and ministry alongside the priests as the duty of each day required, and the gatekeepers in their divisions for the several gates; for so David the man of God had commanded. ¹⁵They did not turn away from what the king had commanded the priests and Levites regarding anything at all, or regarding the treasuries.

¹⁶Thus all the work of Solomon was accomplished from^a the day the foundation of the house of the LORD was laid until the house of the LORD was finished completely.

¹⁷Then Solomon went to Ezion-geber and Eloth on the shore of the sea, in the land of Edom. ¹⁸Huram sent him, in the care of his servants, ships and servants familiar with the sea. They went to Ophir, together with the servants of Solomon, and imported from there four hundred fifty talents of gold and brought it to King Solomon.

9 When the queen of Sheba heard of the fame of Solomon, she came to Jerusalem to test him with hard questions, having a very great retinue and camels bearing spices and very much gold and precious stones. When she came to Solomon, she discussed with him all that was on her mind. ²Solomon answered all her questions; there was nothing hidden from Solomon that he could not explain to her. ³When the queen of Sheba had observed the wisdom of Solomon, the house that he had built, ⁴the food of his table, the seating of his officials, and the attendance of his servants, and their clothing, his valets, and their clothing, and his burnt offerings^b that he offered at the house of the LORD, there was no more spirit left in her.

⁵So she said to the king, “The report was true that I heard in my own land of your accomplishments and of your wisdom, ⁶but I did not believe the^c reports until I came and my own eyes saw it. Not even half of the greatness of your wisdom had been told to me; you far surpass the report that I had heard. ⁷Happy are your people! Happy are these your servants, who continually attend you and hear your wisdom! ⁸Blessed be the LORD your God, who has delighted in you and set you on his throne as king for the LORD your God. Because your God loved Israel and would establish them forever, he has made you king over them, that you may execute justice and righteousness.” ⁹Then she gave the king one hundred twenty talents of gold, a very great quantity of spices, and precious stones: there were no spices such as those that the queen of Sheba gave to King Solomon.

¹⁰Moreover the servants of Hiram and the servants of Solomon who brought gold from

^a Gk Syr Vg: Heb to

^b Gk Syr Vg 1 Kings 10.5: Heb ascent

^c Heb their

7.8; 9.24; Ezek 44.9. 12–15: Solomon keeps the commandments of Moses in his offerings and keeps all of the ordinances of his father David in his appointments of priests and Levites (1 Chr 22.7–16; 28.6–10,20–21). 17–18: Largely taken from 1 Kings 9.26–28. 17: Ezion-geber and Eloth (Eliat) are at the northern tip of the west arm of the sea (the Red Sea). 18: Ophir, see 1 Chr 29.4n.

9.1–31: Solomon in all of his glory. The earlier divine promise of unmatched wealth and wisdom (1.11–12) is realized. Solomon receives unprecedented international recognition (vv. 1–8,23–24), continues his endowments of palace and Temple (vv. 15–20), enjoys unsurpassed riches (vv. 22,27), shares in the benefits of international trade (vv. 10–11,13–14,21,28), and presides over a substantial kingdom (vv. 25–26). In Chronicles, the era of David and Solomon (the United Monarchy) is the epitome in the history of Israel, the model of unity and orthodoxy by which both earlier and later leaders, officials, and people will be judged (7.10; 11.17; 30.26; 35.3–4). 1–12: Taken from 1 Kings 10.1–13. 1: Sheba is in Arabia. 4: No more spirit left, that is, she was breathless. 8: Solomon sits on his throne, that is, the LORD’s throne. The Chronicler draws a close link between God’s kingdom, kingship, and throne and those of the two major kings of the United Monarchy—David and Solomon, who discharge their responsibilities well as the LORD’s appointees (1 Chr 17.14; 28.5; 29.11; 2 Chr 13.8). 9: A talent

Ophir brought algum wood and precious stones.¹¹ From the algum wood, the king made steps^a for the house of the LORD and for the king's house, lyres also and harps for the singers; there never was seen the like of them before in the land of Judah.

¹² Meanwhile King Solomon granted the queen of Sheba every desire that she expressed, well beyond what she had brought to the king. Then she returned to her own land, with her servants.

¹³ The weight of gold that came to Solomon in one year was six hundred sixty-six talents of gold,¹⁴ besides that which the traders and merchants brought; and all the kings of Arabia and the governors of the land brought gold and silver to Solomon.¹⁵ King Solomon made two hundred large shields of beaten gold; six hundred shekels of beaten gold went into each large shield.¹⁶ He made three hundred shields of beaten gold; three hundred shekels of gold went into each shield; and the king put them in the House of the Forest of Lebanon.¹⁷ The king also made a great ivory throne, and overlaid it with pure gold.¹⁸ The throne had six steps and a footstool of gold, which were attached to the throne, and on each side of the seat were arm rests and two lions standing beside the arm rests,¹⁹ while twelve lions were standing, one on each end of a step on the six steps. The like of it was never made in any kingdom.

²⁰ All King Solomon's drinking vessels were of gold, and all the vessels of the House of the Forest of Lebanon were of pure gold; silver was not considered as anything in the days of Solomon.²¹ For the king's ships went to Tarshish with the servants of Hiram; once every three years the ships of Tarshish used to come bringing gold, silver, ivory, apes, and peacocks.^b

²² Thus King Solomon excelled all the kings of the earth in riches and in wisdom.²³ All the kings of the earth sought the presence of Solomon to hear his wisdom, which God had put into his mind.²⁴ Every one of them brought a present, objects of silver and gold, garments, weaponry, spices, horses, and mules, so much year by year.²⁵ Solomon had four thousand stalls for horses and chariots, and twelve thousand horses, which he stationed in the chariot cities and with the king in Jerusalem.²⁶ He ruled over all the kings from the Euphrates to the land of the Philistines, and to the border of Egypt.²⁷ The king made silver as common in Jerusalem as stone, and cedar as plentiful as the sycamore of the Shephelah.²⁸ Horses were imported for Solomon from Egypt and from all lands.

²⁹ Now the rest of the acts of Solomon, from first to last, are they not written in the

^a Gk Vg: Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Or baboons

weighed about 75 lb (34 kg). 11: Algum, see 2.8n. 13–28: Largely drawn from 1 Kings 10.14–28a. 15: Large shields, these ornamental objects of great value were later taken by King Shishak of Egypt during his campaign through parts of Canaan (12.9–11). 16: The House of the Forest of Lebanon, perhaps named because of the extensive use of Lebanon cedar inside. This complex, which was probably located south of the Temple, actually contained five buildings. Being most interested in the Temple, the Chronicler does not elaborate on the description and functions of this building (cf. 1 Kings 7.1–12). 17: Great ivory throne, both Solomon's official seat and a symbol of his prestige, wealth, and power (cf. Ex 11.5; 2 Sam 3.10). 18: Footstool, another royal symbol (cf. 1 Kings 10.18–20). The term is also used to represent defeated enemies (Ps 110.1), the ark (1 Chr 28.2), Zion (Lam 2.1), and the earth itself (Isa 66.1). 21: Tarshish, probably the city of Tarsus on the southern coast of Turkey, or perhaps Tartessus in southern Spain. 25–29: Cf. 1.14–16n. Verse 26 is drawn from 1 Kings 4.21; Solomon is the dominant ruler of the region from northern Syria to the border of Egypt (cf. 7.8). 29: Nathan, see 1 Chr 17.1–15; Ahijah, see 1 Kings 11.29–39; Ildo is not known apart from notices such as this (see 12.15; 13.22). 29–31: Solomon's reign ends as it began with a unified nation under an exemplary king. Israel is unhampered by internal factions or strife. The nation enjoys unparalleled glory. Solomon's tenure is untainted by sin or misadventure. Any information found in Kings that would potentially tarnish Solomon's reputation has been omitted (1 Kings 9.11–16; 11.1–38). Solomon is not blamed for the later division of the kingdom (cf. 1 Kings 11.1–13, 31–38). Because the Chronicler heightens the great benefit of Davidic-Solomonic leadership for the people, those who might deviate from this norm (10.3) will be suspect. It is unclear if the sources mentioned in v. 29 and elsewhere are nonbiblical sources, refer to other sections of the Bible, or never existed. Some scholars believe that they are cited here as a way of justi-

Chs 10–12: The divided monarchy. The dashed line shows the approximate boundaries between Israel, Judah, and Philistia.

history of the prophet Nathan, and in the prophecy of Ahijah the Shilonite, and in the visions of the seer Iddo concerning Jeroboam son of Nebat? ³⁰ Solomon reigned in Jerusalem over all Israel forty years. ³¹ Solomon slept with his ancestors and was buried in the city of his father David; and his son Rehoboam succeeded him.

10 Rehoboam went to Shechem, for all Israel had come to Shechem to make him king. ² When Jeroboam son of Nebat heard of it (for he was in Egypt, where he

fyng the Chronicler’s history, which differs in such significant ways from Kings. In any case, it is a credit to Solomon that his reign is the subject of no less than three prophetic works. This is one indication of the high esteem in which prophets and writings associated with prophets were held in the postexilic period (cf. 1 Chr 29.29n.).

10.1–18: The difficult beginning to Rehoboam’s reign (928–911 BCE). Compared with 1 Kings 12.1–24; 14.21–31, Chronicles almost doubles the amount of coverage devoted to Rehoboam and presents a much more complex narration of his reign (10.1–12.16). Rehoboam’s accession is not characterized by the unanimity that both David (1 Chr 11) and Solomon (2 Chr 1) enjoyed. 1: Rehoboam ascends to the throne and immediately finds himself thrust into a national assembly at Shechem bargaining for the future of his nation with disaffected representatives of the northern tribes (cf. 1 Kings 12.1–24). Shechem, in the later Northern Kingdom, was located in the hill country of Ephraim between Mounts Ebal and Gerizim. The national convocation was likely held here because Shechem was an important and historic town in ancient Israel (Josh 8.30–35; 20.7; 17.7; 21.21; 24.1–28; 1 Kings had fled from King Solomon), then Jeroboam returned from Egypt. ³They sent and called him; and Jeroboam and all Israel came and said to Rehoboam, ⁴“Your father made our yoke heavy. Now therefore lighten the hard service of your father and his heavy yoke that he placed on us, and we will serve you.” ⁵He said to them, “Come to me again in three days.” So the people went away.

⁶Then King Rehoboam took counsel with the older men who had attended his father Solomon while he was still alive, saying, “How do you advise me to answer this people?” ⁷They answered him, “If you will be kind to this people and please them, and speak good words to them, then they will be your servants forever.” ⁸But he rejected the advice that the older men gave him, and consulted the young men who had grown up with him and now attended him. ⁹He said to them, “What do you advise that we answer this people who have said to me, ‘Lighten the yoke that your father put on us?’” ¹⁰The young men who had grown up with him said to him, “Thus should you speak to the people who said to you, ‘Your father made our yoke heavy, but you must lighten it for us’; tell them, ‘My little finger is thicker than my father’s loins. ¹¹Now, whereas my father laid on you a heavy yoke, I will add to your yoke. My father disciplined you with whips, but I will discipline you with scorpions.’”

¹²So Jeroboam and all the people came to Rehoboam the third day, as the king had said, “Come to me again the third day.” ¹³The king answered them harshly. King Rehoboam

rejected the advice of the older men; ¹⁴he spoke to them in accordance with the advice of the young men, “My father made your yoke heavy, but I will add to it; my father disciplined you with whips, but I will discipline you with scorpions.” ¹⁵So the king did not listen to the people, because it was a turn of affairs brought about by God so that the LORD might fulfill his word, which he had spoken by Ahijah the Shilonite to Jeroboam son of Nebat.

¹⁶When all Israel saw that the king would not listen to them, the people answered the king,

“What share do we have in David?

We have no inheritance in the son of Jesse.

Each of you to your tents, O Israel!

Look now to your own house, O David.” So all Israel departed to their tents. ¹⁷But Rehoboam reigned over the people of Israel who were living in the cities of Judah. ¹⁸When King Rehoboam sent Hadoram, who was taskmaster over the forced labor, the people of Israel stoned him to death. King Rehoboam hurriedly mounted his chariot to flee to Jerusalem. ¹⁹So Israel has been in rebellion against the house of David to this day.

11 When Rehoboam came to Jerusalem, he assembled one hundred eighty thousand chosen troops of the house of Judah and Benjamin to fight against Israel, to restore the kingdom to Rehoboam. ²But the word of the LORD came to Shemaiah the man of God: ³Say to King Rehoboam of Judah, son of Solomon, and to all Israel in Judah and Benjamin, ⁴“Thus says the LORD: You shall not go up or 12.1–17; 1 Chr 6.52; 7.28). 2–3: Jeroboam, the head of the northern tribes (1 Kings 11.26–43), is both present and an active protagonist in the proceedings (also v. 12). In Chronicles both Jeroboam and Rehoboam are personally responsible for the events of the secession (13.4–12). 15: His word . . . by Ahijah, see 1 Kings 11.29–39. Ultimately, the division is a turn of affairs that could not have occurred without divine assent. This verse assumes familiarity on the part of the reader with 1 Kings 11.29–39, even though the Chronicler, by means of omissions, allusions, rearrangements, and additions, creates his own distinctive version of the division. 16: In Chronicles, the northern Israelites’ cry of secession (1 Kings 12.16) constitutes an abrupt about-face from the allegiance they had displayed since early in David’s reign (1 Chr 12.1–40). Because the Chronicler views both the kingship and the worship of the northern realm as illegitimate, he—unlike the author of Kings—does not recount the independent history of the Northern Kingdom.

11.1–23: Rehoboam’s recovery. The Chronicler enumerates in great detail the fidelity he ascribes to the first three years of Rehoboam’s reign (11.17). The obedience before a prophet (11.1–4) and the fortification of various cities (vv. 5–12) are two steps in this process of renewal. 1–4: Drawn from 1 Kings 12.21–24. 3: The Chronicler does not restrict the use of Israel strictly to the northern tribes (cf. 2 Sam 2.9; 1 Kings 12.18,20). He also regularly fight against your kindred. Let everyone return home, for this thing is from me.” So they heeded the word of the LORD and turned back from the expedition against Jeroboam.

⁵ Rehoboam resided in Jerusalem, and he built cities for defense in Judah. ⁶ He built up Bethlehem, Etam, Tekoa, ⁷ Beth-zur, Soco, Adullam, ⁸ Gath, Mareshah, Ziph, ⁹ Adoraim, Lachish, Azekah, ¹⁰ Zorah, Aijalon, and Hebron, fortified cities that are in Judah and in Benjamin. ¹¹ He made the fortresses strong, and put commanders in them, and stores of food, oil, and wine. ¹² He also put large shields and spears in all the cities, and made them very strong. So he held Judah and Benjamin.

¹³ The priests and the Levites who were in all Israel presented themselves to him from all their territories. ¹⁴ The Levites had left their common lands and their holdings and had come to Judah and Jerusalem, because Jeroboam and his sons had prevented them from serving as priests of the LORD, ¹⁵ and had appointed his own priests for the high places, and for the goat-demons, and for the calves that he had made. ¹⁶ Those who had set their hearts to seek the LORD God of Israel came after them from all the tribes of Israel to Jerusalem to sacrifice to the LORD, the God of their ancestors. ¹⁷ They strengthened the kingdom of Judah, and for three years they made Rehoboam son of Solomon secure, for they walked for three years in the way of David and Solomon.

¹⁸ Rehoboam took as his wife Mahalath daughter of Jerimoth son of David, and of Abihail daughter of Eliab son of Jesse. ¹⁹ She bore him sons: Jeush, Shemariah, and Zaham.

²⁰ After her he took Maacah daughter of Absalom, who bore him Abijah, Attai, Ziza, and Shelomith. ²¹ Rehoboam loved Maacah daughter of Absalom more than all his other wives and concubines (he took eighteen wives and sixty concubines, and became the father of twenty-eight sons and sixty daughters). ²² Rehoboam appointed Abijah son of Maacah as chief prince among his brothers, for he intended to make him king. ²³ He dealt wisely, and distributed some of his sons through all the districts of Judah and Benjamin, in all the fortified cities; he gave them abundant provisions, and found many wives for them.

12 When the rule of Rehoboam was established and he grew strong, he abandoned the law of the LORD, he and all Israel with him. ² In the fifth year of King Rehoboam, because they had been unfaithful to the LORD, King Shishak of Egypt came up against Jerusalem ³ with twelve hundred chariots and sixty thousand cavalry. A countless army came with him from Egypt—Libyans, Sukkiim, and Ethiopians.^a ⁴ He took the fortified cities of Judah and came as far as Jerusalem. ⁵ Then the prophet Shemaiah came to Rehoboam and to the officers of Judah, who had gathered at Jerusalem because of Shishak, and said to them, “Thus says the LORD: You abandoned me, so I have abandoned you to the hand of Shishak.” ⁶ Then the officers of Israel and the king humbled themselves and uses Israel to refer to those Israelites who reside in Judah and Benjamin. 5–12: These verses likely draw upon an unknown source. See map on p. 630 нв. 13–17: The wholesale exodus of priests and Levites from Israel to Judah simultaneously strengthens Judah and indicts Jeroboam, who prevented them from serving as priests of the LORD. On Jeroboam’s religious innovations, see 1 Kings 12.28; 13.33; 14.8–9. 15: Goat-demons, an obscure and polemical reference not found in the source text depicting Jeroboam’s religious innovations (1 Kings 12.28). Worship of goat-demons is outlawed in Priestly legislation (Lev 17.7). 18–21: Large families signify stature in Chronicles (1 Chr 14.3; 2 Chr 11.18–23; 13.21; 14.3–7; cf. Gen 1.28). 22–23: Like his grandfather David, Rehoboam appoints his sons to positions in his administration (1 Chr 18.17).

^a Or Nubians; Heb Cushites

12.1–16: National decline and a reprieve. After a short recovery (11.1–23), Rehoboam and Judah abandon the law of the LORD and therefore Egypt invades (cf. 1 Kings 14.25). The outlines of the Egyptian invasion are found in 1 Kings 14.25–28, but the Chronicler has elaborated them significantly, especially in his addition of v. 1, which suggests that the invasion was punishment for apostasy. 2: Shishak (Shoshenq I) ruled Egypt 945–924 BCE. 3: Sukkiim, unknown. 5: The prophet’s speech, like many other biblical texts, invokes the principle of measure for measure: Those who abandon God will be abandoned by God. 6–8: Because of their repentance (cf. 11.1–4), Rehoboam and the people stave off complete disaster. Hence, Rehoboam is the first of many kings to benefit said, “The LORD is in the right.”⁷ When the LORD saw that they humbled themselves, the word of the LORD came to Shemaiah, saying: “They have humbled themselves; I will not destroy them, but I will grant them some deliverance, and my wrath shall not be poured out on Jerusalem by the hand of Shishak.

⁸ Nevertheless they shall be his servants, so that they may know the difference between serving me and serving the kingdoms of other lands.”

⁹ So King Shishak of Egypt came up against Jerusalem; he took away the treasures of the house of the LORD and the treasures of the king’s house; he took everything. He also took away the shields of gold that Solomon had made; ¹⁰ but King Rehoboam made in place of them shields of bronze, and committed them to the hands of the officers of the guard, who kept the door of the king’s house. ¹¹ Whenever the king went into the house of the LORD, the guard would come along bearing them, and would then bring them back to the guardroom. ¹² Because he humbled himself the wrath of the LORD turned from him, so as not to destroy them completely; moreover, conditions were good in Judah.

¹³ So King Rehoboam established himself in Jerusalem and reigned. Rehoboam was forty-one years old when he began to reign; he reigned seventeen years in Jerusalem, the city that the LORD had chosen out of all the tribes of Israel to put his name there. His mother’s name was Naamah the Ammonite. ¹⁴ He did evil, for he did not set his heart to seek the LORD.

¹⁵ Now the acts of Rehoboam, from first to last, are they not written in the records of the prophet Shemaiah and of the seer Iddo, recorded by genealogy? There were continual wars between Rehoboam and Jeroboam.

¹⁶ Rehoboam slept with his ancestors and was buried in the city of David; and his son Abijah succeeded him.

13 In the eighteenth year of King Jeroboam, Abijah began to reign over Judah. ² He reigned for three years in Jerusalem. His mother’s name was Micaiah daughter of Uriel of Gibeah.

Now there was war between Abijah and Jeroboam. ³ Abijah engaged in battle, having an army of valiant warriors, four hundred thousand picked men; and Jeroboam drew up his line of battle against him with eight hundred thousand picked mighty warriors. ⁴ Then Abijah stood on the slope of Mount Zemaraim that is in the hill country of Ephraim, and said, “Listen to me, Jeroboam and all Israel! ⁵ Do you not know that the LORD God of Israel gave the kingship over Israel forever to David and his sons by a covenant of salt? ⁶ Yet Jeroboam son of Nebat, from God’s promises in response to Solomon’s Temple prayer (7:12–15). 13–16: Cf. 1 Kings 14.21–24,29–31. 15: Iddo, see 9.29n.

13.1–22: The successful reign of Abijah (911–908 BCE). In Chronicles, as opposed to 1 Kings 15.1–8, Abijah (called Abijam in 1 Kings) is one of Judah’s better monarchs. In a war against Jeroboam and all Israel, he defends the standards established by David and Solomon as normative for all Israelites. Much of the chapter is an original composition of the Chronicler, elaborating on 1 Kings 15.6. The fundamental principle illustrated through this narrative is “the people of Judah prevailed, because they relied on the LORD, the God of their ancestors” (v. 8). 2: Micaiah, there is a text-critical issue here. The Hebrew gives Abijah’s mother a Yahwistic name (meaning “Who is like the LORD”), whereas the ancient versions name her “Maacah” in conformity with 1 Kings 15.2 and 2 Chr 11.20. 3: Developing a theme of earlier holy-war narratives (Judg 7.2–8; 1 Sam 14.6; 17.45–47), the Chronicler here and elsewhere stresses that great numbers do not guarantee victory (14.7–14; 20.1–30; 24.24; cf. Zech 4.6). Eight hundred thousand, the Chronicler’s numbers here and elsewhere are sometimes stupendous (e.g., 1 Chr 5.18; 23.3–5; 27.1–15; 2 Chr 14.8–9; 17.14–18; 25.5–6; 26.12–13; 28.6–8). Some scholars have thought that the Hebrew word for “thousand” refers simply to one military unit, meaning that the actual numbers involved would be far less. But it is more likely that the incredible numbers are a literary convention or scribal embellishment to mark off (what is for the Chronicler) Israel’s classical past. The use of large, round numbers is also sometimes found in earlier biblical sources (e.g., 1 Kings 8.5,62–64). 5: In speaking to Jeroboam and all Israel (v. 4) of the kingship over Israel as belonging to the Davidic dynasty, Abijah plays on the different connotations of Israel. Covenant of salt, the reference to “salt” indicates that the kingship that has been covenanted to David will be enduring (Lev 2.13; Num 18.19). In v. 8, the kingdom of the LORD is itself said to be in the hands of David a servant of Solomon son of David, rose up and rebelled against his lord;⁷ and certain worthless scoundrels gathered around him and defied Rehoboam son of Solomon, when Rehoboam was young and irresolute and could not withstand them.

⁸“And now you think that you can withstand the kingdom of the LORD in the hand of the sons of David, because you are a great multitude and have with you the golden calves that Jeroboam made as gods for you. ⁹Have you not driven out the priests of the LORD, the descendants of Aaron, and the Levites, and made priests for yourselves like the peoples of other lands? Whoever comes to be consecrated with a young bull or seven rams becomes a priest of what are no gods. ¹⁰But as for us, the LORD is our God, and we have not abandoned him. We have priests ministering to the LORD who are descendants of Aaron, and Levites for their service. ¹¹They offer to the LORD every morning and every evening burnt offerings and fragrant incense, set out the rows of bread on the table of pure gold, and care for the golden lampstand so that its lamps may burn every evening; for we keep the charge of the LORD our God, but you have abandoned him. ¹²See, God is with us at our head, and his priests have their battle trumpets to sound the call to battle against you. O Israelites, do not fight against the LORD, the God of your ancestors; for you cannot succeed.”

¹³Jeroboam had sent an ambush around to come on them from behind; thus his troops^a were in front of Judah, and the ambush was behind them. ¹⁴When Judah turned, the battle was in front of them and behind them. They cried out to the LORD, and the priests blew the trumpets. ¹⁵Then the people of Judah raised the battle shout. And when the people of Judah shouted, God defeated Jeroboam and all Israel before Abijah and Judah. ¹⁶The Israelites fled before Judah, and God gave them into their hands. ¹⁷Abijah and his army defeated them with great slaughter; five hundred thousand picked men of Israel fell slain. ¹⁸Thus the Israelites were subdued at that time, and the people of Judah prevailed, because they relied on the LORD, the God of their ancestors. ¹⁹Abijah pursued Jeroboam, and took cities from him: Bethel with its villages and Jeshanah with its villages and Ephron^b with its villages. ²⁰Jeroboam did not recover his power in the days of Abijah; the LORD struck him down, and he died. ²¹But Abijah grew strong. He took fourteen wives, and became the father of twenty-two sons and sixteen daughters. ²²The rest of the acts of Abijah, his behavior and his deeds, are written in the story of the prophet Iddo.

^a Heb they

^b Another reading is Ephraim

and his descendants (cf. 1 Chr 17:14; 28:5; 2 Chr 9:8n). 6–7: Disunion occurred when Jeroboam and worthless scoundrels exploited a young and inexperienced Rehoboam. This polemicizes against 1 Kings 11:11–13, 29–38. 8–11: Abijah’s enumeration of the proper religious practices of Judah is heavily indebted to the descriptions of Temple worship during the United Monarchy (1 Chr 15–16; 23–29; 2 Chr 2–4) and the descriptions of tabernacle worship during the era of Moses (Ex 25:30–40; 29:1–9, 38–42; 30:7–10; Lev 24:3–9; Num 8:2–4; 28:3–8). 19: Judah recaptures some of the territory it presumably lost in the secession. The Chronicler commends Judean kings who exercise influence in the northern realm (15:8–9; 17:2; 30:5–12; 34:6–7, 33). 20: Here God himself struck Jeroboam and he died; cf. 1 Kings 14:19–20. 21: See 11:18–21n. 22: The Hebrew word for story (“midrash”) can also be translated as exposition, study, or “commentary” (24:27; cf. Sir 51:23). The reference thus designates a writing or commentary of Iddo (rather than an annalistic account) on the early monarchy. See also 9:29n.; 12:15.

14:1–15:19: Reforms, victory, and expansion: the first period of Asa’s reign (908–867 BCE). The Chronicler’s treatment of Asa (14:1–16:14), almost three times longer than that of 1 Kings 15:9–24, presents two distinct phases in Asa’s reign: a long thirty-four-year period of fidelity and a short seven-year period of infidelity (16:1–12). The shorter text of Kings is supplemented significantly. Kings has a pattern of piety followed by lack of trust in God. The Chronicler subsumes elements of Kings to his retribution theology, creating a pattern of piety and its reward, then impiety and its punishment. Prophetic figures play a significant role in these elaborations. 14:1: In Chronicles rest from war is a sign of divine blessing (1 Chr 17:8–9; 22:9; 2 Chr 14:6; 32:22). 2–8: At the beginning of his reign Asa takes advantage of peaceful conditions to institute religious reforms (cf. 1 Kings 15:12–15) and 14^a So Abijah slept with his ancestors, and they buried him in the city of David. His son Asa succeeded him. In his days the land had rest for ten years.^{2b} Asa did what was good and right in the sight of the LORD his God.

³ He took away the foreign altars and the high places, broke down the pillars, hewed down the sacred poles,^c ⁴ and commanded Judah to seek the LORD, the God of their ancestors, and to keep the law and the commandment. ⁵ He also removed from all the cities of Judah the high places and the incense altars. And the kingdom had rest under him. ⁶ He built fortified cities in Judah while the land had rest. He had no war in those years, for the LORD gave him peace. ⁷ He said to Judah, “Let us build these cities, and surround them with walls and towers, gates and bars; the land is still ours because we have sought the LORD our God; we have sought him, and he has given us peace on every side.” So they built and prospered. ⁸ Asa had an army of three hundred thousand from Judah, armed with large shields and spears, and two hundred eighty thousand troops from Benjamin who carried shields and drew bows; all these were mighty warriors.

⁹ Zerah the Ethiopian^d came out against them with an army of a million men and three hundred chariots, and came as far as Mareshah. ¹⁰ Asa went out to meet him, and they drew up their lines of battle in the valley of Zephathah at Mareshah. ¹¹ Asa cried to the LORD his God, “O LORD, there is no difference for you between helping the mighty and the weak. Help us, O LORD our God, for we rely on you, and in your name we have come against this multitude. O LORD, you are our God; let no mortal prevail against you.” ¹² So the LORD defeated the Ethiopians^e before Asa and before Judah, and the Ethiopians^e fled.

¹³ Asa and the army with him pursued them

as far as Gerar, and the Ethiopians^f fell until no one remained alive; for they were broken before the LORD and his army. The people of Judah^f carried away a great quantity of booty. ¹⁴ They defeated all the cities around Gerar, for the fear of the LORD was on them. They plundered all the cities; for there was much plunder in them. ¹⁵ They also attacked the tents of those who had livestock,^g and carried away sheep and goats in abundance, and camels. Then they returned to Jerusalem.

15 The spirit of God came upon Azariah son of Oded. ² He went out to meet Asa and said to him, “Hear me, Asa, and all Judah and Benjamin: The LORD is with you, while you are with him. If you seek him, he will be found by you, but if you abandon him, he will abandon you. ³ For a long time Israel was without the true God, and without a teaching priest, and without law; ⁴ but when in their distress they turned to the LORD, the God of Israel, and sought him, he was found by them. ⁵ In those times it was not safe for anyone to go or come, for great disturbances afflicted all the inhabitants of the lands. ⁶ They were broken in pieces, nation against nation and city against city, for God troubled them with every sort of distress. ⁷ But you, take courage! Do not let your hands be weak, for your work shall be rewarded.”

⁸ When Asa heard these words, the prophecy of Azariah son of Oded,^h he took

^a Ch 13.23 in Heb

^b Ch 14.1 in Heb

^c Heb Asherim

^d Or Nubian; Heb Cushite

^e Or Nubians; Heb Cushites

^f Heb They

^g Meaning of Heb uncertain

^h Compare Syr Vg: Heb the prophecy, the prophet Obed

embark on a series of public works. 8–9: On the large numbers, see 13.3n. 9–15: Another holy-war narrative (cf. 13.2–20) in which an outnumbered Judah confronts a much more powerful foe (Zerah, who is otherwise unknown). In the midst of battle, Asa calls out to the LORD for deliverance in accordance with the petitions of Solomon’s prayer (6.34–35). When king and people rely on God, they are able to achieve a major victory and take enormous booty (vv. 12–15). 9: Ethiopian, the Hebrew speaks of a Cushite. Cush was an area to the south of Egypt. Sudan, Nubia, and Ethiopia are all possibilities. 10: Mareshah, ca. 40 km (25 mi) southwest of Jerusalem, one of the southern cities fortified by Rehoboam (see 11.5–10). See map on p. 630 HB. 15.1–7: The prophet Azariah (whose name means “the LORD has helped”) appears only in this chapter. His oracle speaks of reciprocity in divine-human relations. The LORD is with you, while you are with him (15.2), the corollary of the measure-for-measure principle articulated earlier by Shemaiah (12.5). Pointing to the chaos of the distant past, the prophet courage, and put away the abominable idols from all the land of Judah and Benjamin and from the towns that he had taken in the hill country of Ephraim. He repaired the altar of the LORD that was in front of the vestibule of the house of the LORD.^a ⁹ He gathered all Judah and Benjamin, and those from Ephraim, Manasseh, and Simeon who were residing as aliens with them, for great numbers had deserted to him from Israel when they saw that the LORD his God was with him. ¹⁰ They were gathered at Jerusalem in the third month of the fifteenth year of the reign of Asa. ¹¹ They sacrificed to the LORD on that day, from the booty that they had brought, seven hundred oxen and seven thousand sheep. ¹² They entered into a covenant to seek the LORD, the God of their ancestors, with all their heart and with all their soul. ¹³ Whoever would not seek the LORD, the God of Israel, should be put to death, whether young or old, man or woman. ¹⁴ They took an oath to the LORD with a loud voice, and with shouting, and with trumpets, and with horns. ¹⁵ All Judah rejoiced over the oath; for they had sworn with all their heart, and had sought him with their whole desire, and he was found by them, and the LORD gave them rest all around.

¹⁶ King Asa even removed his mother Maacah from being queen mother because she had made an abominable image for Asherah. Asa cut down her image, crushed it, and burned it at the Wadi Kidron. ¹⁷ But the high places were not taken out of Israel. Nevertheless the heart of Asa was true all his days. ¹⁸ He brought into the house of God the votive gifts of his father and his own votive gifts—silver, gold, and utensils. ¹⁹ And there was no more war until the thirty-fifth year of the reign of Asa.

16 In the thirty-sixth year of the reign of Asa, King Baasha of Israel went up against Judah, and built Ramah, to prevent anyone from going out or coming into the territory of^b King Asa of Judah. ² Then Asa took silver and gold from the treasures of the house of the LORD and the king's house, and sent them to King Ben-hadad of Aram, who resided in Damascus, saying, ³ "Let there be an alliance between me and you, like that between my father and your father; I am sending to you silver and gold; go, break your alliance with King Baasha of Israel, so that he may withdraw from me." ⁴ Ben-hadad listened to King Asa, and sent the commanders of his armies against the cities of Israel. They conquered Ijon, Dan, Abel-maim, and all the store-cities of Naphtali. ⁵ When Baasha heard of it, he stopped building Ramah, and let his work cease. ⁶ Then King Asa brought all Judah, and they carried away the stones of Ramah and its timber, with which Baasha had been building, and with them he built up Geba and Mizpah.

⁷ At that time the seer Hanani came to King Asa of Judah, and said to him, "Because you relied on the king of Aram, and did not rely on the LORD your God, the army of the king of Aram has escaped you. ⁸ Were not warns Asa about the perils of abandoning God. 8–19: In response to Azariah's admonitions, Asa initiates a covenant renewal (vv. 8–15; cf. Ex 19.3–8) and institutes further religious reforms (vv. 16–18; cf. 1 Kings 15.13–15). 9: From Ephraim, Manasseh, and Simeon. Even though Simeon is located south of Judah, it is often counted among the northern tribes in earlier biblical literature (Gen 29.33; 34.25,30; 35.23; 46.10). That members of these tribes had defected to Asa is an indication of divine blessing.

^a Heb the vestibule of the LORD

^b Heb lacks the territory of

16.1–14: Asa's decline. The war with Baasha (cf. 1 Kings 15.16–22) marks a turning point in Asa's tenure because he enters an alliance with Ben-hadad of Aram to counter an invasion by Baasha of Israel. Even though Asa enters this treaty in self-defense, the Chronicler considers such alliances as compromising Judah's commitment to God, who can defend the powerless from the mighty. Opposition to pacts with foreign powers is also found in earlier biblical literature (Deut 7.2; Hos 7.10–13; 8.9–10; Isa 20; 28.14–28; 30.1–5; Jer 2.14–19,33–37). 1: Ramah was located just 9 km (6 mi) north of Jerusalem. 7–9: The judgment oracle of the seer Hanani (apparently the father of the prophet Jehu; 19.2) heightens the disparity between the two periods of Asa's rule. Whereas Asa formerly relied on God and was able to defeat the vast armies of Ethiopia and Libya (14.7–14; 15.8), Asa's reliance on Ben-hadad is tantamount to nonreliance on the LORD (16.7). Ironically, Asa will now always be plagued by the Ethiopians^a and the Libyans a huge army with exceedingly many chariots and cavalry? Yet because you relied on the LORD, he gave them into your hand. ⁹For the eyes of the LORD range throughout the entire earth, to strengthen those whose heart is true to him. You have done foolishly in this; for from now on you will have wars.” ¹⁰Then Asa was angry with the seer, and put him in the stocks, in prison, for he was in a rage with him because of this. And Asa inflicted cruelties on some of the people at the same time.

¹¹The acts of Asa, from first to last, are written in the Book of the Kings of Judah and Israel. ¹²In the thirty-ninth year of his reign Asa was diseased in his feet, and his disease became severe; yet even in his disease he did not seek the LORD, but sought help from physicians. ¹³Then Asa slept with his ancestors, dying in the forty-first year of his reign. ¹⁴They buried him in the tomb that he had hewn out for himself in the city of David. They laid him on a bier that had been filled with various kinds of spices prepared by the perfumer’s art; and they made a very great fire in his honor.

17 His son Jehoshaphat succeeded him, and strengthened himself against Israel. ²He placed forces in all the fortified cities of Judah, and set garrisons in the land of Judah, and in the cities of Ephraim that his father Asa had taken. ³The LORD was with Jehoshaphat, because he walked in the earlier ways of his father;^b he did not seek the Baals, ⁴but sought the God of his father and walked in his commandments, and not according to the ways of Israel. ⁵Therefore the LORD established the kingdom in his hand. All Judah brought tribute to Jehoshaphat, and he had great riches and honor. ⁶His heart was courageous in the ways of the LORD; and furthermore he removed the high places and the sacred poles^c from Judah.

⁷In the third year of his reign he sent his officials, Ben-hail, Obadiah, Zechariah, Nethanel, and Micaiah, to teach in the cities of Judah. ⁸With them were the Levites, Shemaiah, Nethaniah, Zebadiah, Asahel, Shemiramoth, Jehonathan, Adonijah, Tobijah, and Tob-adonijah; and with these Levites, the priests Elishama and Jehoram. ⁹They taught in Judah, having the book of the law of the LORD with them; they went around through all the cities of Judah and taught among the people.

¹⁰The fear of the LORD fell on all the kingdoms of the lands around Judah, and they did not make war against Jehoshaphat. ¹¹Some of the Philistines brought Jehoshaphat presents, and silver for tribute; and the Arabs also brought him seven thousand seven hundred rams and seven thousand seven hundred male goats. ¹²Jehoshaphat grew steadily greater. He built fortresses and storage cities in Judah. ¹³He carried out great works in the cities of Judah. He had soldiers, mighty warriors, in Jerusalem. ¹⁴This was the muster of them by ancestral houses: Of Judah, the wars (cf. 1 Kings 15:16). 12: The infirmity in Asa’s feet (1 Kings 15:23) becomes another indication of Asa’s unfaithfulness, because in his disease he did not seek the LORD. The comment that he relied on physicians reflects an ironic pun on Asa’s name, which the Chronicler likely construed (based on Aramaic) as “healer” or “physician.”

^a Or Nubians; Heb Cushites

^b Another reading is his father David

^c Heb Asherim

17:1–19: The promising beginning to the reign of Jehoshaphat (870–846 BCE). Both Kings and Chronicles commend Jehoshaphat (1 Kings 22:43–44; 2 Chr 17:3–4; 20:32–33), but the Chronicler’s depiction of Jehoshaphat’s reign is much more extensive and includes major events not recorded in Kings. Scholars continue to debate whether these events were based on the additional sources that the Chronicler had, or were freely composed. Most of the new material, such as Jehoshaphat’s civil, military, and judicial reforms (17:1–19; 19:4–11) and his war against the eastern coalition (20:1–30), reflects well on Jehoshaphat. Upon taking office, Jehoshaphat immediately takes charge of his kingdom. As he institutes reforms, deploys troops, and fortifies cities, Jehoshaphat only grows stronger and more widely respected. Prophetic material concerning the northern prophet Elijah, which is embedded in Jehoshaphat’s reign in Kings, is absent here. 2: Cities of Ephraim, probably referring to 13:19. 7–9: Jehoshaphat initiates a campaign to educate the Judean people in the book of the law of the LORD (cf. Deut 17:18–20; 2 Kings 22:8–13) by sending officers, Levites, and priests throughout the cities of Judah. This addition reflects the growing importance in the postexilic era of the Torah-book, and of the Levites as teachers (see esp. Neh 8). 11: Tribute from the nations is a sign of divine favor (1 Chr 18:6; 2 Chr 8:2; 9:1–9;

commanders of the thousands: Adnah the commander, with three hundred thousand mighty warriors,¹⁵ and next to him Jehohanan the commander, with two hundred eighty thousand,¹⁶ and next to him Amasiah son of Zichri, a volunteer for the service of the LORD, with two hundred thousand mighty warriors.¹⁷ Of Benjamin: Eliada, a mighty warrior, with two hundred thousand armed with bow and shield,¹⁸ and next to him Jehozabad with one hundred eighty thousand armed for war.¹⁹ These were in the service of the king, besides those whom the king had placed in the fortified cities throughout all Judah.

18 Now Jehoshaphat had great riches and honor; and he made a marriage alliance with Ahab.² After some years he went down to Ahab in Samaria. Ahab slaughtered an abundance of sheep and oxen for him and for the people who were with him, and induced him to go up against Ramoth-gilead.³ King Ahab of Israel said to King Jehoshaphat of Judah, “Will you go with me to Ramoth-gilead?” He answered him, “I am with you, my people are your people. We will be with you in the war.”

⁴ But Jehoshaphat also said to the king of Israel, “Inquire first for the word of the LORD.”⁵ Then the king of Israel gathered the prophets together, four hundred of them, and said to them, “Shall we go to battle against Ramoth-gilead, or shall I refrain?” They said, “Go up; for God will give it into the hand of the king.”⁶ But Jehoshaphat said, “Is there no other prophet of the LORD here of whom we may inquire?”⁷ The king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, “There is still one other by whom we may inquire of the LORD, Micaiah son of Imlah; but I hate him, for he never prophesies anything favorable about me, but only disaster.” Jehoshaphat said, “Let the king not say such a thing.”⁸ Then the king of Israel summoned an officer and said, “Bring quickly Micaiah son of Imlah.”⁹ Now the king of Israel and King Jehoshaphat of Judah were sitting on their thrones, arrayed in their robes; and they were sitting at the threshing floor at the entrance of the gate of Samaria; and all the prophets were prophesying before them.¹⁰ Zedekiah son of Chenaanah made for himself horns of iron, and he said, “Thus says the LORD: With these you shall gore the Arameans until they are destroyed.”¹¹ All the prophets were prophesying the same and saying, “Go up to Ramoth-gilead and triumph; the LORD will give it into the hand of the king.”

¹² The messenger who had gone to summon Micaiah said to him, “Look, the words of the prophets with one accord are favorable to the king; let your word be like the word of one of them, and speak favorably.”¹³ But Micaiah said, “As the LORD lives, whatever my God says, that I will speak.”

¹⁴ When he had come to the king, the king said to him, “Micaiah, shall we go to Ramoth-gilead to battle, or shall I refrain?” He answered, “Go up and triumph; they will be given into your hand.”¹⁵ But the king said to him, “How many times must I make you swear to tell me nothing but the truth in the name of the LORD?”¹⁶ Then Micaiah^a said, “I saw all Israel scattered on the mountains, like sheep without a shepherd; and the LORD said, ‘These have no master; let each one go home in peace.’”¹⁷ The king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, “Did I not tell you that he would not prophesy anything favorable about me, but only disaster?”

^a Heb he

26.8). 14–18: On the large numbers, see 13.3n.

18.1–19.3: Jehoshaphat’s first misstep. The Chronicler relates two shortcomings of Jehoshaphat, both involving his relations with northern Israel. The first involves Jehoshaphat’s ill-fated treaty with the king of Israel, Ahab, in 1 Kings 22.1–40, which is reproduced with very few changes. 18.1: Presumably this marriage alliance involved Jehoshaphat’s son, Jehoram, and Ahab’s daughter, Athaliah (21.6; 22.2; cf. 2 Kings 8.18). In the reign of Jehoshaphat’s successors, the relationship with Ahab’s dynasty becomes the conduit for Judah’s royalty to adopt ill-advised and iniquitous policies (21.6; 22.3–5). 2: The lavish feast, during which Ahab incites his Judean counterpart, does not appear in 1 Kings 22. 2–3: Ramoth-gilead was an Israelite city in northern Jordan that had apparently been captured by the Arameans. 3: I am with you, the Chronicler depicts Jehoshaphat as a willing and equal partner to his northern counterpart, Ahab. In Kings, Jehoshaphat appears as the junior partner in the coa-

¹⁸Then Micaiah^a said, “Therefore hear the word of the LORD: I saw the LORD sitting on his throne, with all the host of heaven standing to the right and to the left of him. ¹⁹And the LORD said, ‘Who will entice King Ahab of Israel, so that he may go up and fall at Ramoth-gilead?’ Then one said one thing, and another said another, ²⁰until a spirit came forward and stood before the LORD, saying, ‘I will entice him.’ The LORD asked him, ‘How?’ ²¹He replied, ‘I will go out and be a lying spirit in the mouth of all his prophets.’ Then the LORD^a said, ‘You are to entice him, and you shall succeed; go out and do it.’ ²²So you see, the LORD has put a lying spirit in the mouth of these your prophets; the LORD has decreed disaster for you.”

²³Then Zedekiah son of Chenaanah came up to Micaiah, slapped him on the cheek, and said, “Which way did the spirit of the LORD pass from me to speak to you?” ²⁴Micaiah replied, “You will find out on that day when you go in to hide in an inner chamber.” ²⁵The king of Israel then ordered, “Take Micaiah, and return him to Amon the governor of the city and to Joash the king’s son; ²⁶and say, ‘Thus says the king: Put this fellow in prison, and feed him on reduced rations of bread and water until I return in peace.’” ²⁷Micaiah said, “If you return in peace, the LORD has not spoken by me.” And he said, “Hear, you peoples, all of you!”

²⁸So the king of Israel and King Jehoshaphat of Judah went up to Ramoth-gilead. ²⁹The king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, “I will disguise myself and go into battle, but you wear your robes.” So the king of Israel disguised himself, and they went into battle. ³⁰Now the king of Aram had commanded the captains of his chariots, “Fight with no one small or great, but only with the king of Israel.” ³¹When the captains of the chariots saw Jehoshaphat, they said, “It is the king of Israel.” So they turned to fight against him; and Jehoshaphat cried out, and the LORD helped him. God drew them away from him, ³²for when the captains of the chariots saw that it was not the king of Israel, they turned back from pursuing him. ³³But a certain man drew his bow and unknowingly struck the king of Israel between the scale armor and the breastplate; so he said to the driver of his chariot, “Turn around, and carry me out of the battle, for I am wounded.” ³⁴The battle grew hot that day, and the king of Israel propped himself up in his chariot facing the Arameans until evening; then at sunset he died.

19 King Jehoshaphat of Judah returned in safety to his house in Jerusalem. ²Jehu son of Hanani the seer went out to meet him and said to King Jehoshaphat, “Should you help the wicked and love those who hate the LORD? Because of this, wrath has gone out against you from the LORD. ³Nevertheless, some good is found in you, for you destroyed the sacred poles^b out of the land, and have set your heart to seek God.”

⁴Jehoshaphat resided at Jerusalem; then he went out again among the people, from Beer-sheba to the hill country of Ephraim, litiation. 10: A symbolic action, as elsewhere in the prophetic repertoire. 18: The LORD is meeting with his heavenly council (see Job 1.6; 2.1; Ps 82.1), and the prophet is a witness to the proceedings (see Jer 23.18,22). 21–22: The revelation that the prophets have received is itself false; cf. Deut 13.3. 31: The LORD helped him, this phrase, which does not appear in 1 Kings 22, resonates with the divine promises of 7.12–15. The Chronicler adds this phrase to reinforce his theology: God, who is fair and compassionate, is in control of events.

^a Heb he

^b Heb Asheroth

19.1–20.30: In contrast to the previous Jehoshaphat material, this has no parallel in Kings. 19.1–3: This rebuke by the prophet Jehu son of Hanani (see 16.7–9n.) chastises Jehoshaphat for entering into a coalition with Ahab of Israel (see ch 18). Jehoshaphat was disloyal to God in that he proposed to help the wicked and was loyal to those who hate the LORD. Fidelity to one precludes fidelity to the other.

19.4–11: Recovery and further reforms. Jehoshaphat returns to and develops policies he instituted at the beginning of his reign (17.1–19). The geographic scope of the restoration (v. 4) is extensive, reclaiming Jehoshaphat’s entire realm, including sections of the Northern Kingdom over which he held sway (17.1–2). Other texts depict the juridical responsibilities of monarchs (e.g., 2 Sam 8.15–18; 1 Kings 3.16–28), but only with Jehoshaphat in Chronicles do we find a full-blown judicial reform. He appoints judges . . . in all the fortified cities of and brought them back to the LORD, the God of their ancestors. ⁵He appointed judges in the land in all the fortified cities of Judah, city by city, ⁶and said to the judges, “Consider what you are doing, for you judge not on behalf of human beings but on the LORD’s behalf; he is with you in giving judgment. ⁷Now, let the fear of the LORD be upon you; take care what you do, for there is no perversion of justice with the LORD our God, or partiality, or taking of bribes.”

⁸Moreover in Jerusalem Jehoshaphat appointed certain Levites and priests and heads of families of Israel, to give judgment for the LORD and to decide disputed cases. They had their seat at Jerusalem. ⁹He charged them: “This is how you shall act: in the fear of the LORD, in faithfulness, and with your whole heart; ¹⁰whenever a case comes to you from your kindred who live in their cities, concerning bloodshed, law or commandment, statutes or ordinances, then you shall instruct them, so that they may not incur guilt before the LORD and wrath may not come on you and your kindred. Do so, and you will not incur guilt. ¹¹See, Amariah the chief priest is over you in all matters of the LORD; and Zebadiah son of Ishmael, the governor of the house of Judah, in all the king’s matters; and the Levites will serve you as officers. Deal courageously, and may the LORD be with the good!”

20 After this the Moabites and Ammonites, and with them some of the Meunites,^a came against Jehoshaphat for battle. ²Messengers^b came and told Jehoshaphat, “A great multitude is coming against you from Edom,^c from beyond the sea; already they are at Hazazon-tamar” (that is, En-gedi). ³Jehoshaphat was afraid; he set himself to seek the LORD, and proclaimed a fast throughout all Judah. ⁴Judah assembled to seek help from the LORD; from all the towns of Judah they came to seek the LORD.

⁵Jehoshaphat stood in the assembly of Judah and Jerusalem, in the house of the LORD, before the new court, ⁶and said, “O LORD, God of our ancestors, are you not God in heaven? Do you not rule over all the kingdoms of the nations? In your hand are power and might, so that no one is able to withstand you. ⁷Did you not, O our God, drive out the inhabitants of this land before your people Israel, and give it forever to the descendants of your friend Abraham? ⁸They have lived in it, and in it have built you a sanctuary for your name, saying, ⁹‘If disaster comes upon us, the sword, judgment,^d or pestilence, or famine, we will stand before this house, and before

^a Compare 26.7: Heb Ammonites

^b Heb They

^c One Ms: MT Aram

^d Or the sword of judgment

Judah and established a court of appeals in the capital city of Jerusalem. Some see this as reflecting the creativity of the Chronicler, who derived this reform from the Heb word “shaphat,” “to judge,” in the king’s name (cf. 16.12n.). 11: The distinction between matters of the LORD and the king’s matters is found only in Chronicles (1 Chr 26.30,32; 2 Chr 19.11) and Ezra (7.26), suggesting that the contours of this reform reflect Persian-period realities during which the Judeans were subject to a foreign king.

20.1–30: Dramatic triumph in holy war. Sometime after his judicial reformation, Jehoshaphat is confronted with an international crisis that threatens to overwhelm his people, the invasion of Judah (see v. 2) by a southeastern coalition of powers. 1: Meunites, a textually difficult term. The Meunites are a group of disputed origin, who are mentioned only in late biblical texts (1 Chr 4.41; 2 Chr 20.2; 26.7). In one theory the Meunites were a Transjordanian or Arabian group, while in another the Meunites were from one of several sites or areas called Maon—most likely either Maon 12 mi (20 km) south of Gaza or the Maon region of southwestern Edom. Given the existence of another Maon in Judah (e.g., 1 Chr 2.45), more than one entity with the name “Meunites” may be meant (see Ezra 2.50 || Neh 7.52). 3–4: Afraid, Jehoshaphat set himself to seek the LORD and proclaimed a national fast (cf. Judg 20.26 and 1 Sam 7.6; Jer 36.6,9; Zech 8.19; Joel 2.12; 2 Chr 1.5; 25.20). In resorting to Jerusalem, the people honor the divine directive given at Solomon’s Temple dedication to seek the LORD in times of need (7.14). 6–12: Jehoshaphat’s prayer, which laments Judah’s plight and solicits a divine response, recalls specific features of previous royal prayers (1 Chr 14.9,14; 29.10–19; 2 Chr 14.10–11). By contrasting divine omnipotence with human helplessness, the king lays the foundation for the petition that follows (v. 12). 8–9: Echoing Solomon’s prayer (see 6.28,34), Jehoshaphat’s appeal is based on the existence of the Temple, because you, for your name is in this house, and cry to you in our distress, and you will hear and save.’¹⁰ See now, the people of Ammon, Moab, and Mount Seir, whom you would not let Israel invade when they came from the land of Egypt, and whom they avoided and did not destroy—¹¹ they reward us by coming to drive us out of your possession that you have given us to inherit. ¹² O our God, will you not execute judgment upon them? For we are powerless against this great multitude that is coming against us. We do not know what to do, but our eyes are on you.”

¹³ Meanwhile all Judah stood before the LORD, with their little ones, their wives, and their children. ¹⁴ Then the spirit of the LORD came upon Jahaziel son of Zechariah, son of Benaiah, son of Jeiel, son of Mattaniah, a Levite of the sons of Asaph, in the middle of the assembly. ¹⁵ He said, “Listen, all Judah and inhabitants of Jerusalem, and King Jehoshaphat: Thus says the LORD to you: ‘Do not fear or be dismayed at this great multitude; for the battle is not yours but God’s. ¹⁶ Tomorrow go down against them; they will come up by the ascent of Ziz; you will find them at the end of the valley, before the wilderness of Jeruel. ¹⁷ This battle is not for you to fight; take your position, stand still, and see the victory of the LORD on your behalf, O Judah and Jerusalem.’ Do not fear or be dismayed; tomorrow go out against them, and the LORD will be with you.”

¹⁸ Then Jehoshaphat bowed down with his face to the ground, and all Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem fell down before the LORD, worshiping the LORD. ¹⁹ And the Levites, of the Kohathites and the Korahites, stood up to praise the LORD, the God of Israel, with a very loud voice.

²⁰ They rose early in the morning and went out into the wilderness of Tekoa; and as they went out, Jehoshaphat stood and said, “Listen to me, O Judah and inhabitants of Jerusalem! Believe in the LORD your God and you will be established; believe his prophets.”²¹ When he had taken counsel with the people, he appointed those who were to sing to the LORD and praise him in holy splendor, as they went before the army, saying,

“Give thanks to the LORD,
for his steadfast love endures forever.”

²² As they began to sing and praise, the LORD set an ambush against the Ammonites, Moab, and Mount Seir, who had come against Judah, so that they were routed. ²³ For the Ammonites and Moab attacked the inhabitants of Mount Seir, destroying them utterly; and when they had made an end of the inhabitants of Seir, they all helped to destroy one another.

²⁴ When Judah came to the watchtower of the wilderness, they looked toward the multitude; they were corpses lying on the ground; no one had escaped. ²⁵ When Jehoshaphat and his people came to take the booty from them, they found livestock^a in great numbers, goods, clothing, and precious things, which they took for themselves until they could carry no more. They spent three days taking the booty, because of its abundance. ²⁶ On the fourth day they assembled in the Valley of Beracah, for there they blessed the LORD; therefore that place has been called the Valley of Beracah^b to this day. ²⁷ Then all the people of Judah and Jerusalem, with Jehoshaphat at their head, returned to Jerusalem with joy, for the LORD had enabled them to rejoice over their enemies. ²⁸ They came to Jerusalem, with harps and lyres and trumpets, to the house of the LORD. ²⁹ The fear of God came on all the kingdoms of the countries when

^a Gk: Heb among them

^b That is Blessing

this sanctuary was accepted by God as the place where efficacious prayers could be offered (7:1–2,14). 11–12: The very nations spared by the LORD when the Israelites entered the land (Deut 2:1–22) are now threatening Judah’s existence within it. 14–15: The levitical singer Jahaziel serves as a prophet and as the designate priest, as in other sacral wars (cf. Deut 20:2–4; 1 Chr 25:1–8). His assurance of victory, evoked as elsewhere by faith in God, quotes both Moses (Ex 14:13–14) and David (1 Sam 17:47). 16: Ziz . . . Jeruel, occurring only here and precise location unknown. 17: The residents of Jerusalem and Judah are to play the role of onlookers. 20: Cf. Isa 7:9. 22–23: The divine warrior throws Israel’s enemies into a panic (cf. Judg 7:22; 1 Sam 14:20) so that they attack each other. 29: As in other holy wars, the fear of God descends upon all the kingdoms of the countries (Ex 15:14–16; Deut 2:25;

they heard that the LORD had fought against the enemies of Israel.³⁰ And the realm of Jehoshaphat was quiet, for his God gave him rest all around.

³¹ So Jehoshaphat reigned over Judah. He was thirty-five years old when he began to reign; he reigned twenty-five years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Azubah daughter of Shilhi.³² He walked in the way of his father Asa and did not turn aside from it, doing what was right in the sight of the LORD.³³ Yet the high places were not removed; the people had not yet set their hearts upon the God of their ancestors.

³⁴ Now the rest of the acts of Jehoshaphat, from first to last, are written in the Annals of Jehu son of Hanani, which are recorded in the Book of the Kings of Israel.

³⁵ After this King Jehoshaphat of Judah joined with King Ahaziah of Israel, who did wickedly.³⁶ He joined him in building ships to go to Tarshish; they built the ships in Ezion-geber.³⁷ Then Eliezer son of Dodavahu of Mareshah prophesied against Jehoshaphat, saying, "Because you have joined with Ahaziah, the LORD will destroy what you have made." And the ships were wrecked and were not able to go to Tarshish.

21 Jehoshaphat slept with his ancestors and was buried with his ancestors in the city of David; his son Jehoram succeeded him.² He had brothers, the sons of Jehoshaphat: Azariah, Jehiel, Zechariah, Azariah, Michael, and Shephatiah; all these were the sons of King Jehoshaphat of Judah.^a

³ Their father gave them many gifts, of silver, gold, and valuable possessions, together with fortified cities in Judah; but he gave the kingdom to Jehoram, because he was the firstborn.⁴ When Jehoram had ascended the throne of his father and was established, he put all his brothers to the sword, and also some of the officials of Israel.⁵ Jehoram was thirty-two years old when he began to reign; he reigned eight years in Jerusalem.⁶ He walked in the way of the kings of Israel, as the house of Ahab had done; for the daughter of Ahab was his wife. He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD.⁷ Yet the LORD would not destroy the house of David because of the covenant that he had made with David, and since he had promised to give a lamp to him and to his descendants forever.

⁸ In his days Edom revolted against the rule of Judah and set up a king of their own.⁹ Then Jehoram crossed over with his commanders and all his chariots. He set out by night and attacked the Edomites, who had surrounded him and his chariot commanders.¹⁰ So Edom has been in revolt against the rule of Judah to this day. At that time Libnah also revolted against his rule, because he had forsaken the LORD, the God of his ancestors.

¹¹ Moreover he made high places in the hill country of Judah, and led the inhabitants of Jerusalem into unfaithfulness, and made Judah go astray.¹² A letter came to him from the prophet Elijah, saying: "Thus says the LORD, the 11.25; Josh 2.9,11,24; 5.1; 10.1-2; 1 Sam 4.7-8; 14.15; 1 Chr 14.7; 2 Chr 14.13).

^a Gk Syr: Heb Israel

20.31-37: Jehoshaphat's second misstep. Following the concluding notices to Jehoshaphat's reign (vv. 31-34; on Jehu see 16.7n.; cf. 1 Kings 22.41-45), the author narrates a failure. Again (18.1-19.3), a pact with Israel (vv. 35-37) marks a regression in Jehoshaphat's rule. Here, after the covenant is condemned by a prophet, the ships were wrecked (cf. 1 Kings 22.48-49). 36: Tarshish, see 9.21n. Ezion-geber was a port city on the Red Sea.

21.1-20: Decline under Jehoram (851-843 BCE). Like the Elijah material, the Elisha material, found in Kings as part of the account of Jehoram's reign, is lacking in Chronicles. Jehoram appears as a more wicked king in Chronicles than in the briefer, but also negative, account of 2 Kings 8.16-24. Jehoram intensifies the pattern of close cooperation with the Northern Kingdom begun by his father (21.6; cf. 18.1-34; 20.35-37). 2-4: Jehoram's brothers, who had possessions and administrative responsibilities in their own right (cf. 11.22-23n.), are eliminated by the new king. 5-7: The divine promises (1 Chr 17.1-15) restrain the exercise of divine wrath against the house of David (cf. 2 Kings 8.17-19). 7: Lamp, fief or territorial dominion might be a better translation of the Hebrew. The promises are interpreted as involving continued rule for David's descendants in Jerusalem. 8-10: Largely taken from 2 Kings 8.20-22. 10: The revolt of Libnah (see 2 Kings 8.22) is explained by the Chronicler as another divine punishment. 12-15: Elijah's letter, unparalleled in Kings, is remarkable. Elijah has not previously been mentioned in Chronicles and, according to the chronology in Kings, may have already ascended at this

God of your father David: Because you have not walked in the ways of your father Jehoshaphat or in the ways of King Asa of Judah,¹³ but have walked in the way of the kings of Israel, and have led Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem into unfaithfulness, as the house of Ahab led Israel into unfaithfulness, and because you also have killed your brothers, members of your father's house, who were better than yourself,¹⁴ see, the LORD will bring a great plague on your people, your children, your wives, and all your possessions,¹⁵ and you yourself will have a severe sickness with a disease of your bowels, until your bowels come out, day after day, because of the disease."

¹⁶The LORD aroused against Jehoram the anger of the Philistines and of the Arabs who are near the Ethiopians.¹⁷ They came up against Judah, invaded it, and carried away all the possessions they found that belonged to the king's house, along with his sons and his wives, so that no son was left to him except Jehoahaz, his youngest son.

¹⁸After all this the LORD struck him in his bowels with an incurable disease.¹⁹ In course of time, at the end of two years, his bowels came out because of the disease, and he died in great agony. His people made no fire in his honor, like the fires made for his ancestors.²⁰ He was thirty-two years old when he began to reign; he reigned eight years in Jerusalem. He departed with no one's regret. They buried him in the city of David, but not in the tombs of the kings.

22 The inhabitants of Jerusalem made his youngest son Ahaziah king as his successor; for the troops who came with the Arabs to the camp had killed all the older sons. So Ahaziah son of Jehoram reigned as king of Judah.² Ahaziah was forty-two years old when he began to reign; he reigned one year in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Athaliah, a granddaughter of Omri.³ He also walked in the ways of the house of Ahab, for his mother was his counselor in doing wickedly.⁴ He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, as the house of Ahab had done; for after the death of his father they were his counselors, to his ruin.⁵ He even followed their advice, and went with Jehoram son of King Ahab of Israel to make war against King Hazael of Aram at Ramoth-gilead. The Arameans wounded Joram,⁶ and he returned to be healed in Jezreel of the wounds that he had received at Ramah, when he fought King Hazael of Aram. And Ahaziah son of King Jehoram of Judah went down to see Joram son of Ahab in Jezreel, because he was sick.

⁷But it was ordained by God that the downfall of Ahaziah should come about through his going to visit Joram. For when he came there he went out with Jehoram to meet Jehu son of Nimshi, whom the LORD had anointed to destroy the house of Ahab.⁸ When Jehu was executing judgment on the point. Furthermore, early prophecy was primarily oral. The letter might be used as a way for a northern prophet to communicate with a southern king, but it also reflects the increasing significance of a written book-culture in the Chronicler's time. 16–17: A foreign invasion plunders Judah and leaves Jehoram with only his youngest son still living in Jerusalem (cf. v. 14). On the Ethiopians, see 14.9n. 17: Jehoahaz, see 22.1–9n. 18–19: A fulfillment of Elijah's prediction (v. 15). Disease, cf. 16.12. Fire, cf. 16.14. 20: Cf. 2 Kings 8.23–24.

^a Or Nubians; Heb Cushites

22.1–9: The brief and ill-fated reign of Ahaziah (843–842 BCE). Following the premature death of Jehoram (21.18–20), the inhabitants of Jerusalem install young Ahaziah (also called Jehoahaz in 21.17) as king (v. 1), but this effort at restoration soon fails. The effects of Ahaziah's collaboration with the Northern Kingdom and emulation of northern practices threaten to topple both the Davidic dynasty and the traditional pattern of Temple worship in Jerusalem (23.18; 24.7). 2: Forty-two years, there is a text-critical issue here. The more likely figure is "twenty-two years," as in 2 Kings 8.26. Ahaziah's father died at age forty (21.20). 3–4: The expansion of Ahaziah's evaluation in 2 Kings 8.27 draws attention to the intimate involvement of the house of Ahab from the Northern Kingdom in Judean royal affairs. Athaliah was the daughter of Ahab (18.1n.), son of Omri. Here too the Chronicler assumes familiarity with the book of Kings. 5–9: The failure of the alliance with Joram (2 Kings 8.28–29), the death of Ahaziah's kinsmen (2 Kings 10.12–14), and the death of Ahaziah himself (2 Kings 9.27) leaves a vacuum in Davidic leadership (v. 9). In Chronicles Ahaziah's demise is attributed to divine purpose (v. 7a). On the anointing of Jehu and the assassination of Joram, see 2 Kings 9.1–26.

house of Ahab, he met the officials of Judah and the sons of Ahaziah's brothers, who attended Ahaziah, and he killed them. ⁹ He searched for Ahaziah, who was captured while hiding in Samaria and was brought to Jehu, and put to death. They buried him, for they said, "He is the grandson of Jehoshaphat, who sought the LORD with all his heart." And the house of Ahaziah had no one able to rule the kingdom.

¹⁰ Now when Athaliah, Ahaziah's mother, saw that her son was dead, she set about to destroy all the royal family of the house of Judah. ¹¹ But Jehoshabeath, the king's daughter, took Joash son of Ahaziah, and stole him away from among the king's children who were about to be killed; she put him and his nurse in a bedroom. Thus Jehoshabeath, daughter of King Jehoram and wife of the priest Jehoiada—because she was a sister of Ahaziah—hid him from Athaliah, so that she did not kill him; ¹² he remained with them six years, hidden in the house of God, while Athaliah reigned over the land.

23 But in the seventh year Jehoiada took courage, and entered into a compact with the commanders of the hundreds, Azariah son of Jeroham, Ishmael son of Jehohanan, Azariah son of Obed, Maaseiah son of Adaiah, and Elishaphat son of Zichri. ² They went around through Judah and gathered the Levites from all the towns of Judah, and the heads of families of Israel, and they came to Jerusalem. ³ Then the whole assembly made a covenant with the king in the house of God. Jehoiada^a said to them, "Here is the king's son! Let him reign, as the LORD promised concerning the sons of David. ⁴ This is what you are to do: one-third of you, priests and Levites, who come on duty on the sabbath, shall be gatekeepers, ⁵ one-third shall be at the king's house, and one-third at the Gate of the Foundation; and all the people shall be in the courts of the house of the LORD. ⁶ Do not let anyone enter the house of the LORD except the priests and ministering Levites; they may enter, for they are holy, but all the other^b people shall observe the instructions of the LORD. ⁷ The Levites shall surround the king, each with his weapons in his hand; and whoever enters the house shall be killed. Stay with the king in his comings and goings."

⁸ The Levites and all Judah did according to all that the priest Jehoiada commanded; each brought his men, who were to come on duty on the sabbath, with those who were to go off duty on the sabbath; for the priest Jehoiada did not dismiss the divisions. ⁹ The priest Jehoiada delivered to the captains the spears and the large and small shields that had been King David's, which were in the house of God; ¹⁰ and he set all the people as a guard for the king, everyone with weapon in hand, from the south side of the house to the north side of the house, around the altar and the house. ¹¹ Then he brought out the king's son, put the crown on him, and gave him the covenant;^c they proclaimed him king, and Jehoiada and his sons anointed him; and they shouted, "Long live the king!"

¹² When Athaliah heard the noise of the people running and praising the king, she went into the house of the LORD to the people; ¹³ and when she looked, there was the king standing by his pillar at the entrance, and the captains and the trumpeters beside

^a Heb He

^b Heb lacks other

^c Or treaty, or testimony; Heb eduth

22.10–23.15: The tenure and fall of Athaliah. Athaliah's reign (842–836 BCE; cf. 2 Kings 11.1–16) marks the point of gravest threat in a long sequence of repeated blows to the Davidic dynasty. Her plan to eliminate all potential heirs is thwarted, however, by Jehoshabeath, daughter of King Jehoram (vv. 11–12; called Jehosheba in Kings). 23.1–7: The first steps in the plot against Athaliah (2 Kings 11.4–8) are rewritten according to the Chronicler's characteristic interests in the Levites, priests, gatekeepers, the heads of the families of Israel, and the people at large (cf. 1 Chr 15–16; 23–27). From the outset, the coup is the work of all the people, not just select military officers. 1: Compact, Heb "berit," usually translated "covenant." 3: The restoration honors the enduring political standards bequeathed to Israel during the United Monarchy. A return to normalcy after a period of apostasy or upheaval includes the restoration of the Davidic dynasty (22.1; 23.20–21; 26.1; 33.25; 36.1). 7: On the military dimension of levitical duties, see 1 Chr 26.1–19n. 11: The covenant, Heb "'edut", probably a list of divinely given laws. 13: The pillar, probably Jachin or Boaz; see 3.15–17. On the people of the land see 2 Kings 11.14n.

the king, and all the people of the land rejoicing and blowing trumpets, and the singers with their musical instruments leading in the celebration. Athaliah tore her clothes, and cried, "Treason! Treason!"¹⁴ Then the priest Jehoiada brought out the captains who were set over the army, saying to them, "Bring her out between the ranks; anyone who follows her is to be put to the sword." For the priest said, "Do not put her to death in the house of the LORD."¹⁵ So they laid hands on her; she went into the entrance of the Horse Gate of the king's house, and there they put her to death.

¹⁶ Jehoiada made a covenant between himself and all the people and the king that they should be the LORD's people.¹⁷ Then all the people went to the house of Baal, and tore it down; his altars and his images they broke in pieces, and they killed Mattan, the priest of Baal, in front of the altars.¹⁸ Jehoiada assigned the care of the house of the LORD to the levitical priests whom David had organized to be in charge of the house of the LORD, to offer burnt offerings to the LORD, as it is written in the law of Moses, with rejoicing and with singing, according to the order of David.¹⁹ He stationed the gatekeepers at the gates of the house of the LORD so that no one should enter who was in any way unclean.²⁰ And he took the captains, the nobles, the governors of the people, and all the people of the land, and they brought the king down from the house of the LORD, marching through the upper gate to the king's house. They set the king on the royal throne.²¹ So all the people of the land rejoiced, and the city was quiet after Athaliah had been killed with the sword.

24 Joash was seven years old when he began to reign; he reigned forty years in Jerusalem; his mother's name was Zibiah of Beer-sheba.² Joash did what was right in the sight of the LORD all the days of the priest Jehoiada.³ Jehoiada got two wives for him, and he became the father of sons and daughters.

⁴ Some time afterward Joash decided to restore the house of the LORD.⁵ He assembled the priests and the Levites and said to them, "Go out to the cities of Judah and gather money from all Israel to repair the house of your God, year by year; and see that you act quickly." But the Levites did not act quickly.⁶ So the king summoned Jehoiada the chief, and said to him, "Why have you not required the Levites to bring in from Judah and Jerusalem the tax levied by Moses, the servant of the LORD, on^a the congregation of Israel for the tent of the covenant?"^b⁷ For the children of Athaliah, that wicked woman, had broken into the house of God, and had even used all the dedicated things of the house of the LORD for the Baals.

⁸ So the king gave command, and they made a chest, and set it outside the gate of the house of the LORD.⁹ A proclamation was made throughout Judah and Jerusalem to bring in for the LORD the tax that Moses the servant of God laid on Israel in the wilder-

^a Compare Vg: Heb and

^b Or treaty, or testimony; Heb eduth

23.16–21: The reformation of Jehoiada. This priest leads the people in undoing the damage inflicted by Athaliah and her predecessors (cf. 2 Kings 11.17–20). His efforts result in the destruction of the temple of Baal, the reinstatement of proper personnel at the Temple, and the enthronement of young Joash. 16: As in Asa's reign, a national covenant (Heb "berit") is made or renewed (15.8–19). 18–19: These verses are an addition by the Chronicler in the middle of a narrative that otherwise largely follows Kings. They emphasize two issues that are key to the Chronicler: the role of the law of Moses and the role of David in organizing the Temple service. 21: The quiet that descends on Jerusalem is a sign of divine blessing (1 Chr 4.40; 22.9; 2 Chr 14.1,6; 20.30).

24.1–27: The Temple restoration of Joash (836–798 BCE) and his later regression. Following Kings, where the king's name is Jehoash, the Chronicler devotes considerable attention to Joash's restoration of the Temple, but in contrast to his source, limits it to the life of Jehoiada (cf. 2 Kings 12). After the good priest dies (vv. 15–16), Joash falls under the influence of his officers and backslides (vv. 17–22). He subsequently confronts a disastrous foreign invasion (vv. 23–24) and a successful conspiracy (vv. 25–26). 3: On large families, see 11.18–21n. 4–14: Joash expends great effort to rebuild the neglected Temple. He displays strong leadership in ensuring that the renovations proceed rapidly (vv. 5–6). The Chronicler, in an attempt to bolster the significance of the Temple, adds to his source, insisting that all donated funds were given with great enthusiasm (v. 10). 6: The tax levied by ness.¹⁰ All the leaders and all the people rejoiced and brought their tax and dropped it into the chest until it was full.¹¹ Whenever the chest was brought to the king's officers by the Levites, when they saw that there was a large amount of money in it, the king's secretary and the officer of the chief priest would come and empty the chest and take it and return it to its place. So they did day after day, and collected money in abundance.¹² The king and Jehoiada gave it to those who had charge of the work of the house of the LORD, and they hired masons and carpenters to restore the house of the LORD, and also workers in iron and bronze to repair the house of the LORD.¹³ So those who were engaged in the work labored, and the repairing went forward at their hands, and they restored the house of God to its proper condition and strengthened it.¹⁴ When they had finished, they brought the rest of the money to the king and Jehoiada, and with it were made utensils for the house of the LORD, utensils for the service and for the burnt offerings, and ladles, and vessels of gold and silver. They offered burnt offerings in the house of the LORD regularly all the days of Jehoiada.

¹⁵ But Jehoiada grew old and full of days, and died; he was one hundred thirty years old at his death.¹⁶ And they buried him in the city of David among the kings, because he had done good in Israel, and for God and his house.

¹⁷ Now after the death of Jehoiada the officials of Judah came and did obeisance to the king; then the king listened to them.¹⁸ They abandoned the house of the LORD, the God of their ancestors, and served the sacred poles^a and the idols. And wrath came upon Judah and Jerusalem for this guilt of theirs.¹⁹ Yet he sent prophets among them to bring them back to the LORD; they testified against them, but they would not listen.

²⁰ Then the spirit of God took possession of^b Zechariah son of the priest Jehoiada; he stood above the people and said to them, "Thus says God: Why do you transgress the commandments of the LORD, so that you cannot prosper? Because you have forsaken the LORD, he has also forsaken you."²¹ But they conspired against him, and by command of the king they stoned him to death in the court of the house of the LORD.²² King Joash did not remember the kindness that Jehoiada, Zechariah's father, had shown him, but killed his son. As he was dying, he said, "May the LORD see and avenge!"

²³ At the end of the year the army of Aram came up against Joash. They came to Judah and Jerusalem, and destroyed all the officials of the people from among them, and sent all the booty they took to the king of Damascus.²⁴ Although the army of Aram had come with few men, the LORD delivered into their hand a very great army, because they had abandoned the LORD, the God of their ancestors. Thus they executed judgment on Joash.

²⁵ When they had withdrawn, leaving him severely wounded, his servants conspired against him because of the blood of the son^c of the priest Jehoiada, and they killed him on his bed. So he died; and they buried him in the city of David, but they did not bury him in the tombs of the kings.²⁶ Those who conspired against him were Zabad son of Shimeath the Ammonite, and Jehozabad son of Shimrith the Moabite.²⁷ Accounts of his sons, and of the many oracles against him, and of the rebuilding^d of the house of God are written in the Commentary on the Book of the Kings. And his son Amaziah succeeded him.

^a Heb Asherim

^b Heb clothed itself with

^c Gk Vg: Heb sons

^d Heb founding

Moses, see Ex 30.11–16; Lev 27.1–8. 13–14: The collections for Temple renovation are so successful that funds are left to fashion new utensils, ladles, and vessels. In this respect, the peoples' generosity recalls that displayed in the reign of David (1 Chr 29.11–19). 15–16: The highly positive evaluation of the priest Jehoiada's tenure resembles those written about Judah's better kings. 17–22: These episodes, not found in Kings, detail the extent of Joash's regression. They follow typical patterns of the Chronicler: apostasy, prophet's warning, lack of repentance, (a second warning,) and punishment. 20–21: The assassination of the prophet Zechariah is the work of both Joash and his officials. 25–26: Joash himself falls victim to assassination in retaliation for the murder of Jehoiada's son(s) (v. 22; cf. 2 Kings 12.19–21). 27: Commentary, see 13.22n.

25 Amaziah was twenty-five years old when he began to reign, and he reigned twenty-nine years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Jehoaddan of Jerusalem. ²He did what was right in the sight of the LORD, yet not with a true heart. ³As soon as the royal power was firmly in his hand he killed his servants who had murdered his father the king. ⁴But he did not put their children to death, according to what is written in the law, in the book of Moses, where the LORD commanded, "The parents shall not be put to death for the children, or the children be put to death for the parents; but all shall be put to death for their own sins."

⁵Amaziah assembled the people of Judah, and set them by ancestral houses under commanders of the thousands and of the hundreds for all Judah and Benjamin. He mustered those twenty years old and upward, and found that they were three hundred thousand picked troops fit for war, able to handle spear and shield. ⁶He also hired one hundred thousand mighty warriors from Israel for one hundred talents of silver. ⁷But a man of God came to him and said, "O king, do not let the army of Israel go with you, for the LORD is not with Israel—all these Ephraimites. ⁸Rather, go by yourself and act; be strong in battle, or God will fling you down before the enemy; for God has power to help or to overthrow." ⁹Amaziah said to the man of God, "But what shall we do about the hundred talents that I have given to the army of Israel?" The man of God answered, "The LORD is able to give you much more than this." ¹⁰Then Amaziah discharged the army that had come to him from Ephraim, letting them go home again. But they became very angry with Judah, and returned home in fierce anger.

¹¹Amaziah took courage, and led out his people; he went to the Valley of Salt, and struck down ten thousand men of Seir.

¹²The people of Judah captured another ten thousand alive, took them to the top of Sela, and threw them down from the top of Sela, so that all of them were dashed to pieces.

¹³But the men of the army whom Amaziah sent back, not letting them go with him to battle, fell on the cities of Judah from Samaria to Beth-horon; they killed three thousand people in them, and took much booty.

¹⁴Now after Amaziah came from the slaughter of the Edomites, he brought the gods of the people of Seir, set them up as his gods, and worshiped them, making offerings to them. ¹⁵The LORD was angry with Amaziah and sent to him a prophet, who said to him, "Why have you resorted to a people's gods who could not deliver their own people from your hand?" ¹⁶But as he was speaking the king^a said to him, "Have we made you a royal counselor? Stop! Why should you be put to death?" So the prophet stopped, but said, "I know that God has determined to destroy you, because you have done this and have not listened to my advice."

¹⁷Then King Amaziah of Judah took counsel and sent to King Joash son of Jehoahaz son of Jehu of Israel, saying, "Come, let us look one another in the face." ¹⁸King Joash of Israel sent word to King Amaziah of Judah, "A thornbush on Lebanon sent to a cedar on Lebanon, saying, 'Give your daughter to my son for a wife'; but a wild animal of Lebanon passed by and trampled down the thornbush. ¹⁹You say, 'See, I have defeated Edom,' and your heart has lifted you up in boastfulness. Now stay at home; why should you provoke

^a Heb he

25.1–28: The mixed record of Amaziah (789–769 BCE). The Chronicler expands the coverage devoted to Amaziah (2 Kings 14.2–14,17–20) through the addition of two sections (vv. 5–10 and vv. 12–16), each of which contains a prophetic figure. His reign is divided into two periods similar to other kings: In the first half of his tenure (vv. 1–13) Amaziah proves obedient to the prophetic word and enjoys success, while in the second half of his reign Amaziah engages in idolatry and suffers defeat (vv. 14–28). 3–4: Amaziah avenges his father's death but does not violate Deut 24.16. 5–10: The king's attempt to supplement his country's muster by hiring Israelite mercenaries encounters a prophetic reprimand. 5–6: On the large numbers, see 13.3n. A hundred talents weighed about 3,400 kg (7,000 lb). The Chronicler regards any military alliance, whether with foreign powers or with northern Israel, as illicit (see 16.1–14n.). 11–13: The prophet's counsel of complete reliance on God results in Judah's victory (cf. 13.13–21; 14.7–14; 20.1–30), but the alienated mercenaries wreak some havoc in Judah and trouble so that you fall, you and Judah with you?”

²⁰ But Amaziah would not listen—it was God’s doing, in order to hand them over, because they had sought the gods of Edom.

²¹ So King Joash of Israel went up; he and King Amaziah of Judah faced one another in battle at Beth-shemesh, which belongs to Judah.

²² Judah was defeated by Israel; everyone fled home. ²³ King Joash of Israel captured King Amaziah of Judah, son of Joash, son of Ahaziah, at Beth-shemesh; he brought him to Jerusalem, and broke down the wall of Jerusalem from the Ephraim Gate to the Corner Gate, a distance of four hundred cubits. ²⁴ He seized all the gold and silver, and all the vessels that were found in the house of God, and Obed-edom with them; he seized also the treasuries of the king’s house, also hostages; then he returned to Samaria.

²⁵ King Amaziah son of Joash of Judah, lived fifteen years after the death of King Joash son of Jehoahaz of Israel. ²⁶ Now the rest of the deeds of Amaziah, from first to last, are they not written in the Book of the Kings of Judah and Israel? ²⁷ From the time that Amaziah turned away from the LORD they made a conspiracy against him in Jerusalem, and he fled to Lachish. But they sent after him to Lachish, and killed him there.

²⁸ They brought him back on horses; he was buried with his ancestors in the city of David.

26 Then all the people of Judah took Uzziah, who was sixteen years old, and made him king to succeed his father Amaziah. ² He rebuilt Eloth and restored it to Judah, after the king slept with his ancestors.

³ Uzziah was sixteen years old when he began to reign, and he reigned fifty-two years in Jerusalem. His mother’s name was Jecoliah of Jerusalem. ⁴ He did what was right in the sight of the LORD, just as his father Amaziah had done. ⁵ He set himself to seek God in the days of Zechariah, who instructed him in the fear of God; and as long as he sought the LORD, God made him prosper.

⁶ He went out and made war against the Philistines, and broke down the wall of Gath and the wall of Jabneh and the wall of Ashdod; he built cities in the territory of Ashdod and elsewhere among the Philistines. ⁷ God helped him against the Philistines, against the Arabs who lived in Gur-baal, and against the Meunites. ⁸ The Ammonites paid tribute to Uzziah, and his fame spread even to the border of Egypt, for he became very strong.

⁹ Moreover Uzziah built towers in Jerusalem at the Corner Gate, at the Valley Gate, and at the Angle, and fortified them. ¹⁰ He built towers in the wilderness and hewed out many cisterns, for he had large herds, both in the Shephelah and in the plain, and he had farmers and vinedressers in the hills and in the fertile lands, for he loved the soil. ¹¹ Moreover Uzziah had an army of soldiers, fit for war, in divisions according to the numbers in the muster made by the secretary Jeiel and the officer Maaseiah, under the direction of Hananiah, one of the king’s commanders.

¹² The whole number of the heads of ancestral houses of mighty warriors was two thousand six hundred. ¹³ Under their command was an army of three hundred seven thousand five hundred, who could make war with mighty power, to help the king against the enemy. ¹⁴ Uzziah provided for all the army the

Samaria. 20: The second part of the verse is an expansion of the Chronicler’s source (2 Kings 14.11), emphasizing that this was not a whim, but the fair punishment of God. 22–24: Amaziah and his kingdom suffer further defeat and humiliation. As the people experience military loss, some destruction to Jerusalem, the plunder of the temples and royal palace, and the capture of some of their soldiers as prisoners of war, they enter into a type of exilic situation (cf. 36.1–21) from which they need to be restored.

26.1–15: The builder and reformer, Uzziah (785–733 BCE). In Kings Uzziah (Azariah) is a minor figure (2 Kings 14.21–22; 15.1–7), but the much longer account in Chronicles presents this monarch as a major reformer whose fame extended all the way to Egypt (26.8). The additional material is of various types; some may be based on sources, while other pieces are likely composed by the Chronicler. 1–4: Cf. 2 Kings 14.21–22; 15.2–3. 5: The Chronicler links Uzziah’s good conduct to the influence of Zechariah, an otherwise unattested prophet; cf. 24.22. 6–15: Uzziah’s achievements include territorial expansion, victory in war, rebuilding towns, and amassing a large, well-equipped army. Like David (1 Chr 27.25–31), Uzziah also enhances the condition of his royal estates. 7: Meunites, see 20.2n. 12–13: On the large numbers, see 13.3n.

shields, spears, helmets, coats of mail, bows, and stones for slinging. ¹⁵ In Jerusalem he set up machines, invented by skilled workers, on the towers and the corners for shooting arrows and large stones. And his fame spread far, for he was marvelously helped until he became strong.

¹⁶ But when he had become strong he grew proud, to his destruction. For he was false to the LORD his God, and entered the temple of the LORD to make offering on the altar of incense. ¹⁷ But the priest Azariah went in after him, with eighty priests of the LORD who were men of valor; ¹⁸ they withstood King Uzziah, and said to him, “It is not for you, Uzziah, to make offering to the LORD, but for the priests the descendants of Aaron, who are consecrated to make offering. Go out of the sanctuary; for you have done wrong, and it will bring you no honor from the LORD God.” ¹⁹ Then Uzziah was angry. Now he had a censer in his hand to make offering, and when he became angry with the priests a leprous^a disease broke out on his forehead, in the presence of the priests in the house of the LORD, by the altar of incense. ²⁰ When the chief priest Azariah, and all the priests, looked at him, he was leprous^a in his forehead. They hurried him out, and he himself hurried to get out, because the LORD had struck him. ²¹ King Uzziah was leprous^a to the day of his death, and being leprous^a lived in a separate house, for he was excluded from the house of the LORD. His son Jotham was in charge of the palace of the king, governing the people of the land.

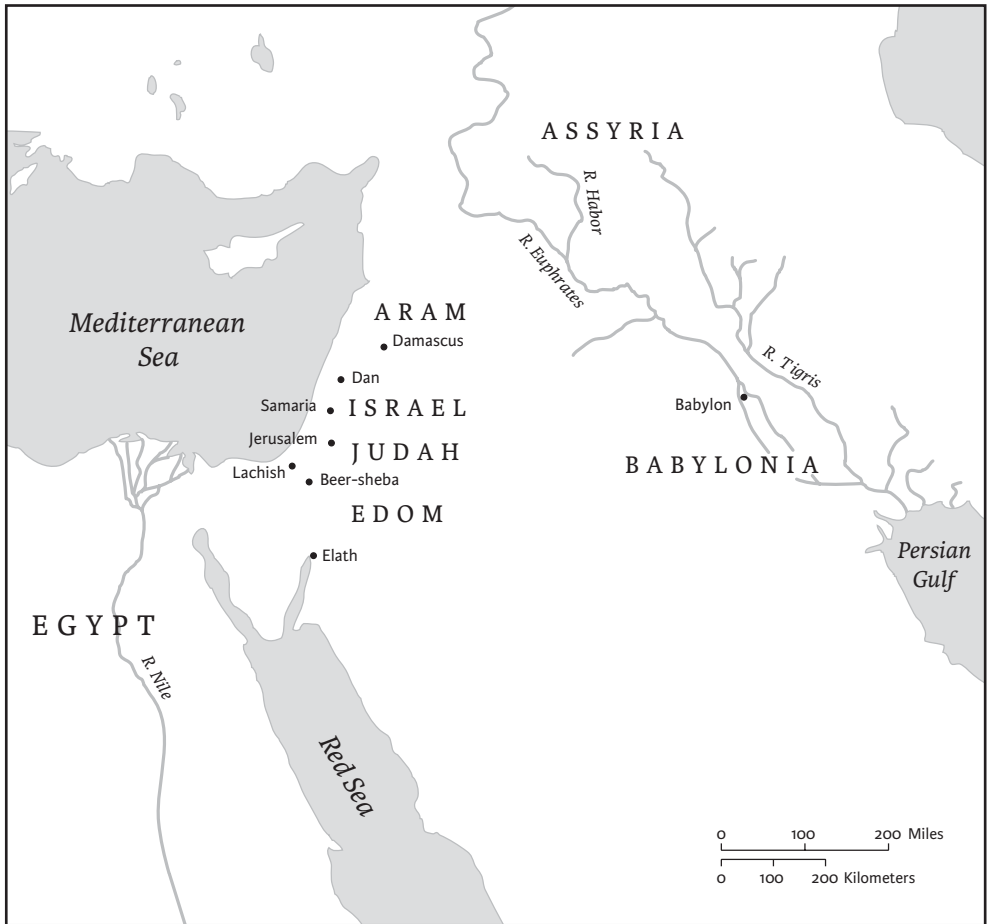

²² Now the rest of the acts of Uzziah, from first to last, the prophet Isaiah son of Amoz wrote. ²³ Uzziah slept with his ancestors; they buried him near his ancestors in the burial field that belonged to the kings, for they said, “He is leprous.”^a His son Jotham succeeded him.

27 Jotham was twenty-five years old when he began to reign; he reigned sixteen years in Jerusalem. His mother’s name was Jerushah daughter of Zadok. ² He did what was right in the sight of the LORD just as his father Uzziah had done—only he did not invade the temple of the LORD. But the people still followed corrupt practices. ³ He built the upper gate of the house of the LORD, and did extensive building on the wall of Ophel. ⁴ Moreover he built cities in the hill country of Judah, and forts and towers on the wooded hills. ⁵ He fought with the king of the Ammonites and prevailed against them. The Ammonites gave him that year one hundred talents of silver, ten thousand cors of wheat and ten thousand of barley. The Ammonites paid him the same amount in the second and the third years. ⁶ So Jotham became strong because he ordered his ways before the LORD his God. ⁷ Now the rest of the acts of Jotham, and all his wars and his ways, are written in the Book of the Kings of Israel and Judah. ⁸ He was twenty-five years old when he began to reign; he reigned sixteen years in Jerusalem.

^a A term for several skin diseases; precise meaning uncertain

26.16–23: Uzziah’s hubris. Having consolidated his rule and realm (1.1; 11.12; 17.1), Uzziah overreaches by turning against God and encroaching on the sacrificial duties of the priests. Most of this material is lacking in Kings, and it is likely a clever composition of the Chronicler, who imagined that the leprosy resulted from assuming Priestly prerogatives and entering the sanctuary with incense. Leprosy caused serious impurity (Lev 13–14), and thus Uzziah could never enter the Temple again. 16: False to the LORD, lit. “acted faithlessly (Heb “m’l”) against the LORD.” 21–23: Except for the reference to Isaiah, this material is taken from 2 Kings 15.5–7. The attribution to Isaiah means that the Chronicler can lay claim to prophetic authority for at least some of the material in his narration of Uzziah’s reign (cf. 1 Chr 29.29; 2 Chr 9.29; 13.22). 22: Isaiah, on the prophets as ancestors of written works, see 1 Chr 29.29n.

27.1–9: The accomplishments of Jotham (759–743 BCE). As in Kings, Jotham is rated positively (2 Kings 15.32–38), but the Chronicler adds more material about his reign, especially about his public works and military might. 4: Like Uzziah (26.6–10), Jotham does not confine his building initiatives to Jerusalem. He establishes towns in the hill country of Judah, and he builds fortresses and towers in the wooded areas. 5: Ammonites, some scholars emend to “Meunites” (20.1n), but no king of the Meunites is mentioned in other biblical texts. A talent weighed about 75 lb (34 kg), and a cor was about 6.5 bu (230 l).

Chs 28–33: Assyria and Israel and Judah.

⁹ Jotham slept with his ancestors, and they buried him in the city of David; and his son Ahaz succeeded him.

28 Ahaz was twenty years old when he began to reign; he reigned sixteen years in Jerusalem. He did not do what was right in the sight of the LORD, as his ancestor David had done,² but he walked in the ways of the kings of Israel. He even made cast images for the Baals;³ and he made offerings in the valley of the son of Hinnom, and made his sons pass through fire, according to the abominable practices of the nations whom the LORD drove out before the people of Israel.⁴ He sacrificed and made offerings on the high places, on the hills, and under every green tree.

⁵ Therefore the LORD his God gave him into the hand of the king of Aram, who defeated him and took captive a great number of his people and brought them to Damascus. He was also given into the hand of the king of Israel, who defeated him with great slaughter. ⁶ Pekah son of Remaliah killed one hundred twenty thousand in Judah in one day, all of them valiant warriors, because they had abandoned the LORD, the God of their ancestors. ⁷ And Zichri, a mighty warrior of Ephraim, killed the king's son Maaseiah, Azrikam the commander of the palace, and Elkanah the next in authority to the king.

28.1–27: Unending failure under Ahaz (743/753–727/715 BCE; the data are inconsistent). Unlike the reigns of almost all monarchs in Chronicles, the reign of Ahaz is one of unmitigated disaster. The author draws on 2 Kings 16, but his own presentation is substantially longer and different. Ahaz's refusal to turn from his wicked ways affords him the dubious distinction of being Judah's worst king (cf. 33.12–17). 3: Pass through fire, see 2 Kings 16.1–4n. 5–7: The Chronicler directly attributes the onslaughts by Assyria and Israel (2 Kings 16.5) to divine retribution for Ahaz's religious transgressions (2 Kings 16.2–4; 2 Chr 28.2–4). Chronicles depicts two

⁸ The people of Israel took captive two hundred thousand of their kin, women, sons, and daughters; they also took much booty from them and brought the booty to Samaria. ⁹ But a prophet of the LORD was there, whose name was Oded; he went out to meet the army that came to Samaria, and said to them, "Because the LORD, the God of your ancestors, was angry with Judah, he gave them into your hand, but you have killed them in a rage that has reached up to heaven. ¹⁰ Now you intend to subjugate the people of Judah and Jerusalem, male and female, as your slaves. But what have you except sins against the LORD your God? ¹¹ Now hear me, and send back the captives whom you have taken from your kindred, for the fierce wrath of the LORD is upon you." ¹² Moreover, certain chiefs of the Ephraimites, Azariah son of Johanan, Berechiah son of Meshillemoth, Jehizkiah son of Shallum, and Amasa son of Hadlai, stood up against those who were coming from the war, ¹³ and said to them, "You shall not bring the captives in here, for you propose to bring on us guilt against the LORD in addition to our present sins and guilt. For our guilt is already great, and there is fierce wrath against Israel."

¹⁴ So the warriors left the captives and the booty before the officials and all the assembly. ¹⁵ Then those who were mentioned by name got up and took the captives, and with the booty they clothed all that were naked among them; they clothed them, gave them sandals, provided them with food and drink, and anointed them; and carrying all the feeble among them on donkeys, they brought them to their kindred at Jericho, the city of palm trees. Then they returned to Samaria.

¹⁶ At that time King Ahaz sent to the king^a of Assyria for help. ¹⁷ For the Edomites had again invaded and defeated Judah, and carried away captives. ¹⁸ And the Philistines had made raids on the cities in the Shephelah and the Negeb of Judah, and had taken Bethshemesh, Aijalon, Gederoth, Soco with its villages, Timnah with its villages, and Gimzo with its villages; and they settled there. ¹⁹ For the LORD brought Judah low because of King Ahaz of Israel, for he had behaved without restraint in Judah and had been faithless to the LORD. ²⁰ So King Tilgath-pilneser of Assyria came against him, and oppressed him instead of strengthening him. ²¹ For Ahaz plundered the house of the LORD and the houses of the king and of the officials, and gave tribute to the king of Assyria; but it did not help him.

²² In the time of his distress he became yet more faithless to the LORD—this same King Ahaz. ²³ For he sacrificed to the gods of Damascus, which had defeated him, and said, "Because the gods of the kings of Aram helped them, I will sacrifice to them so that they may help me." But they were the ruin of him, and of all Israel. ²⁴ Ahaz gathered togethseparate and distinct invasions, whereas Kings presents Syria and Israel as acting in consort (2 Kings 16.5–6). 8–15: The people of Israel seize a vast number of captives, but this act brings a strong prophetic censure and the prisoners are compassionately released. This section, most likely a free composition of the Chronicler, illustrates some of his basic concerns, including the need for prophetic warning before punishment, and the complete efficacy of repentance. That the prophet was a northern Israelite and the Israelites themselves repented indicates that the Northern and Southern Kingdoms still had an essential unity as "kin" (vv. 8,11). 16–20: Invasions by the Edomites and the Philistines prompted Ahaz to send Temple tribute to the king of Assyria (Tiglath-pileser III, 745–727 BCE; here called Tilgath-pilneser) for help (cf. 2 Kings 16.7–8), but the Assyrian king oppressed him instead. On the opposition to alliances, see 16.1–14n. 21: One more sign of Ahaz's desperate state—he plunders his own temple, palace, and official residences in an unsuccessful campaign to win relief from the pressure exerted by the Assyrian king. 22–25: Ahaz's foreign policy disasters lead him to abandon his own religious institutions and worship the gods of the lands who defeated him. In Chronicles this is but one more indication of the ignominy that characterizes Ahaz's rule.

^a Gk Syr Vg Compare 2 Kings 16:7: Heb kings

er the utensils of the house of God, and cut in pieces the utensils of the house of God. He shut up the doors of the house of the LORD and made himself altars in every corner of Jerusalem. ²⁵In every city of Judah he made high places to make offerings to other gods, provoking to anger the LORD, the God of his ancestors. ²⁶Now the rest of his acts and all his ways, from first to last, are written in the Book of the Kings of Judah and Israel. ²⁷Ahaz slept with his ancestors, and they buried him in the city, in Jerusalem; but they did not bring him into the tombs of the kings of Israel. His son Hezekiah succeeded him.

29 Hezekiah began to reign when he was twenty-five years old; he reigned twenty-nine years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Abijah daughter of Zechariah. ²He did what was right in the sight of the LORD, just as his ancestor David had done.

³In the first year of his reign, in the first month, he opened the doors of the house of the LORD and repaired them. ⁴He brought in the priests and the Levites and assembled them in the square on the east. ⁵He said to them, "Listen to me, Levites! Sanctify yourselves, and sanctify the house of the LORD, the God of your ancestors, and carry out the filth from the holy place. ⁶For our ancestors have been unfaithful and have done what was evil in the sight of the LORD our God; they have forsaken him, and have turned away their faces from the dwelling of the LORD, and turned their backs. ⁷They also shut the doors of the vestibule and put out the lamps, and have not offered incense or made burnt offerings in the holy place to the God of Israel. ⁸Therefore the wrath of the LORD came upon Judah and Jerusalem, and he has made them an object of horror, of astonishment, and of hissing, as you see with your own eyes. ⁹Our fathers have fallen by the sword and our sons and our daughters and our wives are in captivity for this. ¹⁰Now it is in my heart to make a covenant with the LORD, the God of Israel, so that his fierce anger may turn away from us. ¹¹My sons, do not now be negligent, for the LORD has chosen you to stand in his presence to minister to him, and to be his ministers and make offerings to him."

¹²Then the Levites arose, Mahath son of Amasai, and Joel son of Azariah, of the sons of the Kohathites; and of the sons of Merari, Kish son of Abdi, and Azariah son of Jehallelel; and of the Gershonites, Joah son of Zimmah, and Eden son of Joah; ¹³and of the sons of Elizaphan, Shimri and Jeuel; and of the sons of Asaph, Zechariah and Mattaniah; ¹⁴and of the sons of Heman, Jehuel and Shimei; and of the sons of Jeduthun, Shemaiah and Uzziel. ¹⁵They gathered their brothers, sanctified themselves, and went in as the king had commanded, by the words of the LORD, to cleanse the house of the LORD. ¹⁶The priests went into the inner part of the house of the LORD to cleanse it, and they brought out all the unclean things that they found in the temple of the LORD into the court of the house of the LORD; and the Levites took them and carried them out to the Wadi Kidron. ¹⁷They began to sanctify on the first day of the first month, and on the eighth day of the month they came to the vestibule of the LORD; then for eight days they sanctified the house of the LORD, and on the sixteenth day of the first month they finished. ¹⁸Then they went inside to King Hezekiah and said, "We have cleansed all the house of the LORD, the altar of burnt offering and all its utensils, and the table for the rows of bread and all

29.1–36: Restoring the Temple: the beginning of Hezekiah's rule. The Chronicler devotes more attention to Hezekiah (ruled 727/715–698/687 BCE; the data are inconsistent) than to any other king except David and Solomon (29.1–32.33); the Chronicler views Hezekiah as an "ideal" king of the post Davidic-Solomonic era, much like Josiah in Kings. Sennacherib's invasion, which dominates the coverage of Hezekiah in 2 Kings 18.9–19.37, thus appears in condensed form (32.1–23). Instead, the Chronicler focuses on Hezekiah's reforms and restoration of the Temple, which are described in much greater detail than in his sources (29.1–31.21; cf. 2 Kings 18.4,16,22). 3–11: Hezekiah begins by engaging a domestic policy crisis—the sorry legacy left by his predecessor (28.24). He oversees the repair of the Temple (vv. 3–4) and encourages the Levites to resume their traditional tasks (vv. 5–11). He makes a covenant with the LORD (v. 10; cf. 15.8–19) to move the nation from a state of wrath (v. 8) to one of blessing. He does this immediately upon assuming the throne (v. 3), reflecting his great righteousness. 12–19: The priests and Levites complete the Temple purification (cf. 13.10–11). 18: Rows of bread, see 2.4n.

its utensils.¹⁹ All the utensils that King Ahaz repudiated during his reign when he was faithless, we have made ready and sanctified; see, they are in front of the altar of the LORD.”

²⁰ Then King Hezekiah rose early, assembled the officials of the city, and went up to the house of the LORD. ²¹ They brought seven bulls, seven rams, seven lambs, and seven male goats for a sin offering for the kingdom and for the sanctuary and for Judah. He commanded the priests the descendants of Aaron to offer them on the altar of the LORD. ²² So they slaughtered the bulls, and the priests received the blood and dashed it against the altar; they slaughtered the rams and their blood was dashed against the altar; they also slaughtered the lambs and their blood was dashed against the altar. ²³ Then the male goats for the sin offering were brought to the king and the assembly; they laid their hands on them, ²⁴ and the priests slaughtered them and made a sin offering with their blood at the altar, to make atonement for all Israel. For the king commanded that the burnt offering and the sin offering should be made for all Israel.

²⁵ He stationed the Levites in the house of the LORD with cymbals, harps, and lyres, according to the commandment of David and of Gad the king’s seer and of the prophet Nathan, for the commandment was from the LORD through his prophets. ²⁶ The Levites stood with the instruments of David, and the priests with the trumpets. ²⁷ Then Hezekiah commanded that the burnt offering be offered on the altar. When the burnt offering began, the song to the LORD began also, and the trumpets, accompanied by the instruments of King David of Israel. ²⁸ The whole assembly worshiped, the singers sang, and

the trumpeters sounded; all this continued until the burnt offering was finished. ²⁹ When the offering was finished, the king and all who were present with him bowed down and worshiped. ³⁰ King Hezekiah and the officials commanded the Levites to sing praises to the LORD with the words of David and of the seer Asaph. They sang praises with gladness, and they bowed down and worshiped.

³¹ Then Hezekiah said, “You have now consecrated yourselves to the LORD; come near, bring sacrifices and thank offerings to the house of the LORD.” The assembly brought sacrifices and thank offerings; and all who were of a willing heart brought burnt offerings. ³² The number of the burnt offerings that the assembly brought was seventy bulls, one hundred rams, and two hundred lambs; all these were for a burnt offering to the LORD. ³³ The consecrated offerings were six hundred bulls and three thousand sheep. ³⁴ But the priests were too few and could not skin all the burnt offerings, so, until other priests had sanctified themselves, their kindred, the Levites, helped them until the work was finished—for the Levites were more conscientious^a than the priests in sanctifying themselves. ³⁵ Besides the great number of burnt offerings there was the fat of the offerings of well-being, and there were the drink offerings for the burnt offerings. Thus the service of the house of the LORD was restored. ³⁶ And Hezekiah and all the people rejoiced because of what God had done for the people; for the thing had come about suddenly.

30 Hezekiah sent word to all Israel and Judah, and wrote letters also to Ephraim and Manasseh, that they should

^a Heb upright in heart

20–36: As in the time of Solomon’s Temple dedication (5.2–7.6), the praises of the Levites follow the offering of sacrifices. The swift (re)establishment of the service of the house of the LORD (vv. 35–36) effectively reverses the neglect of the Temple in Ahaz’s reign. The restoration of the proper Temple service results in great joy (cf. 30.25–26). 22: Cf. Num 18.17; Lev 17.6. 27: The coordination of Temple hymns and Temple sacrifices is a consistent theme in Chronicles (1 Chr 23.30–31n.). 34: Levites, the Chronicler has a special sympathy for the plight of the Levites, even though he normally maintains a distinction between their roles and responsibilities and those of the priests. The Chronicler stresses cooperation and complementarity between the priests and Levites, not competition and hierarchy (1 Chr 23.28–32; 28.12–13,21; 2 Chr 5.4–14; 13.9–12; 23.1–11; 35.3). In Chronicles, the priests and Levites share a common genealogy (1 Chr 6.1–81).

30.1–31.1: National Passover and further religious reforms. The consecration and rededication of the Temple complete, Hezekiah leads the people in celebrating a national Passover. The restoration of proper worship come to the house of the LORD at Jerusalem, to keep the passover to the LORD the God of Israel.² For the king and his officials and all the assembly in Jerusalem had taken counsel to keep the passover in the second month³ (for they could not keep it at its proper time because the priests had not sanctified themselves in sufficient number, nor had the people assembled in Jerusalem).⁴ The plan seemed right to the king and all the assembly.⁵ So they decreed to make a proclamation throughout all Israel, from Beer-sheba to Dan, that the people should come and keep the passover to the LORD the God of Israel, at Jerusalem; for they had not kept it in great numbers as prescribed.⁶ So couriers went throughout all Israel and Judah with letters from the king and his officials, as the king had commanded, saying, “O people of Israel, return to the LORD, the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Israel, so that he may turn again to the remnant of you who have escaped from the hand of the kings of Assyria.⁷ Do not be like your ancestors and your kindred, who were faithless to the LORD God of their ancestors, so that he made them a desolation, as you see.⁸ Do not now be stiff-necked as your ancestors were, but yield yourselves to the LORD and come to his sanctuary, which he has sanctified forever, and serve the LORD your God, so that his fierce anger may turn away from you.⁹ For as you return to the LORD, your kindred and your children will find compassion with their captors, and return to this land. For the LORD your God is gracious and merciful, and will not turn away his face from you, if you return to him.”

¹⁰ So the couriers went from city to city through the country of Ephraim and Manasseh, and as far as Zebulun; but they laughed them to scorn, and mocked them.¹¹ Only a few from Asher, Manasseh, and Zebulun humbled themselves and came to Jerusalem.¹² The hand of God was also on Judah to give them one heart to do what the king and the officials commanded by the word of the LORD.

¹³ Many people came together in Jerusalem to keep the festival of unleavened bread in the second month, a very large assembly.¹⁴ They set to work and removed the altars that were in Jerusalem, and all the altars for offering incense they took away and threw into the Wadi Kidron.¹⁵ They slaughtered the passover lamb on the fourteenth day of the second month. The priests and the Levites were ashamed, and they sanctified themselves and brought burnt offerings into the house of the LORD.¹⁶ They took their accustomed posts according to the law of Moses the man of God; the priests dashed the blood that they received^a from the hands of the Levites.¹⁷ For there were many in the assembly who had not sanctified themselves; moves from the Passover offering, to destroying illicit altars in Jerusalem (vv. 13–14), to celebrating the Festival of Unleavened Bread (vv. 13,21; cf. Ex 23.14–17; Deut 16.16–17), to shattering the pillars, hacking apart the sacred poles, and tearing down the high places and the altars throughout all Judah and Benjamin, and in Ephraim and Manasseh (31.1). The alternation in Hezekiah’s reforms is significant—from reestablishing ritual purity at the Temple to enforcing ritual unity in both Judah and the former Northern Kingdom. 30.1: Wrote letters. The distribution of royal declarations by missives was common in the Persian period. The Persian empire was renowned for its international postal system. 2: A somewhat similar delay in observing the Passover is legislated in Num 9.9–13. 5–9: Hezekiah appeals to the remnant of the northern tribes and invites them to participate in the Passover. In spite of the Assyrian exile (v. 6; cf. 2 Kings 18.9–12), the northerners are still Israelites, and their positive response may elicit compassion for their relatives in exile (v. 9). 5: From Beer-sheba to Dan, the traditional southern and northern limits of Israel; see 1 Chr 21.2. 10–14: Hezekiah’s offer meets with an enthusiastic response from Judah and a mixed response from the northern tribes. 15–27: The national celebration is reminiscent of the heady days of the United Monarchy. 18–20: These verses suggest that the stereotypical view of postexilic Judaism as legalistic and inflexible is incorrect. 25: Resident aliens, cf. Num 9.14.

^a Heb lacks that they received

31.2–19: The priestly and levitical divisions reestablished. Hezekiah continues his reforms by reinstating the priestly and levitical divisions first set out by David (1 Chr 23–26; 28.13,21) and implemented by Solomon (2 Chr 8.14). 4–10: Like David (1 Chr 22.14–16; 29.2–5), the king contributes toward the support of the Temple and its staff. As in David’s time (1 Chr 29.6–9), the people respond with their own generous gifts. 11–20: Heze-

therefore the Levites had to slaughter the passover lamb for everyone who was not clean, to make it holy to the LORD.¹⁸ For a multitude of the people, many of them from Ephraim, Manasseh, Issachar, and Zebulun, had not cleansed themselves, yet they ate the passover otherwise than as prescribed. But Hezekiah prayed for them, saying, “The good LORD pardon all¹⁹ who set their hearts to seek God, the LORD the God of their ancestors, even though not in accordance with the sanctuary’s rules of cleanness.”²⁰ The LORD heard Hezekiah, and healed the people.²¹ The people of Israel who were present at Jerusalem kept the festival of unleavened bread seven days with great gladness; and the Levites and the priests praised the LORD day by day, accompanied by loud instruments for the LORD.²² Hezekiah spoke encouragingly to all the Levites who showed good skill in the service of the LORD. So the people ate the food of the festival for seven days, sacrificing offerings of well-being and giving thanks to the LORD the God of their ancestors.

²³ Then the whole assembly agreed together to keep the festival for another seven days; so they kept it for another seven days with gladness.²⁴ For King Hezekiah of Judah gave the assembly a thousand bulls and seven thousand sheep for offerings, and the officials gave the assembly a thousand bulls and ten thousand sheep. The priests sanctified themselves in great numbers.²⁵ The whole assembly of Judah, the priests and the Levites, and the whole assembly that came out of Israel, and the resident aliens who came out of the land of Israel, and the resident aliens who lived in Judah, rejoiced.²⁶ There was great joy in Jerusalem, for since the time of Solomon son of King David of Israel there had been nothing like this in Jerusalem.

²⁷ Then the priests and the Levites stood up and blessed the people, and their voice was heard; their prayer came to his holy dwelling in heaven.

31 Now when all this was finished, all Israel who were present went out to the cities of Judah and broke down the pillars, hewed down the sacred poles,^a and pulled down the high places and the altars throughout all Judah and Benjamin, and in Ephraim and Manasseh, until they had destroyed them

all. Then all the people of Israel returned to their cities, all to their individual properties.

² Hezekiah appointed the divisions of the priests and of the Levites, division by division, everyone according to his service, the priests and the Levites, for burnt offerings and offerings of well-being, to minister in the gates of the camp of the LORD and to give thanks and praise.³ The contribution of the king from his own possessions was for the burnt offerings: the burnt offerings of morning and evening, and the burnt offerings for the sabbaths, the new moons, and the appointed festivals, as it is written in the law of the LORD.⁴ He commanded the people who lived in Jerusalem to give the portion due to the priests and the Levites, so that they might devote themselves to the law of the LORD.

⁵ As soon as the word spread, the people of Israel gave in abundance the first fruits of grain, wine, oil, honey, and of all the produce of the field; and they brought in abundantly the tithe of everything.⁶ The people of Israel and Judah who lived in the cities of Judah also brought in the tithe of cattle and sheep, and the tithe of the dedicated things that had been consecrated to the LORD their God, and laid them in heaps.⁷ In the third month they began to pile up the heaps, and finished them in the seventh month.⁸ When Hezekiah and the officials came and saw the heaps, they blessed the LORD and his people Israel.⁹ Hezekiah questioned the priests and the Levites about the heaps.¹⁰ The chief priest Azariah, who was of the house of Zadok, answered him, “Since they began to bring the contributions into the house of the LORD, we have had enough to eat and have plenty to spare; for the LORD has blessed his people, so that we have this great supply left over.”

¹¹ Then Hezekiah commanded them to prepare store-chambers in the house of the LORD; and they prepared them.¹² Faithfully they brought in the contributions, the tithes and the dedicated things. The chief officer in charge of them was Conaniah the Levite, with his brother Shimei as second;¹³ while Jehiel, Azaziah, Nahath, Asahel, Jerimoth, Jozabad, Eliel, Ismachiah, Mahath, and Benaiah were overseers assisting Conaniah and his brother

^a Heb Asherim

Shimei, by the appointment of King Hezekiah and of Azariah the chief officer of the house of God. ¹⁴ Kore son of Imnah the Levite, keeper of the east gate, was in charge of the freewill offerings to God, to apportion the contribution reserved for the LORD and the most holy offerings. ¹⁵ Eden, Miniamin, Jeshua, Shemiah, Amariah, and Shecaniah were faithfully assisting him in the cities of the priests, to distribute the portions to their kindred, old and young alike, by divisions, ¹⁶ except those enrolled by genealogy, males from three years old and upwards, all who entered the house of the LORD as the duty of each day required, for their service according to their offices, by their divisions. ¹⁷ The enrollment of the priests was according to their ancestral houses; that of the Levites from twenty years old and upwards was according to their offices, by their divisions. ¹⁸ The priests were enrolled with all their little children, their wives, their sons, and their daughters, the whole multitude; for they were faithful in keeping themselves holy. ¹⁹ And for the descendants of Aaron, the priests, who were in the fields of common land belonging to their towns, town by town, the people designated by name were to distribute portions to every male among the priests and to everyone among the Levites who was enrolled.

²⁰ Hezekiah did this throughout all Judah; he did what was good and right and faithful before the LORD his God. ²¹ And every work that he undertook in the service of the house of God, and in accordance with the law and the commandments, to seek his God, he did with all his heart; and he prospered.

32 After these things and these acts of faithfulness, King Sennacherib of Assyria came and invaded Judah and encamped against the fortified cities, thinking to win them for himself. ² When Hezekiah saw that Sennacherib had come and intended to fight against Jerusalem, ³ he planned with his officers and his warriors to stop the flow of the springs that were outside the city; and they helped him. ⁴ A great many people were gathered, and they stopped all the springs and the wadi that flowed through the land, saying, “Why should the Assyrian kings come and find water in abundance?” ⁵ Hezekiah^a set to work resolutely and built up the entire wall that was broken down, and raised towers on it,^b and outside it he built another wall; he also strengthened the Millo in the city of David, and made weapons and shields in abundance. ⁶ He appointed combat commanders over the people, and gathered them together to him in the square at the gate of the city and spoke encouragingly to them, saying, ⁷ “Be strong and of good courage. Do not be afraid or dismayed before the king of Assyria and all the horde that is with him; for there is one greater with us than with him. ⁸ With him is an arm of flesh; but with us is the LORD our God, to help us and to fight our battles.” The people were encouraged by the words of King Hezekiah of Judah.

⁹ After this, while King Sennacherib of Assyria was at Lachish with all his forces, he sent his servants to Jerusalem to King Hezeki-

^a Heb He

^b Vg: Heb and raised on the towers

chiah ensures that the contributions and tithes will be properly cared for and stored. 20–21: A summation and commendation of Hezekiah’s reforms, which emphasize that anyone who serves God in accordance with the law and the commandments . . . with all his heart will prosper.

32.1–23: Sennacherib’s invasion of Judah and threat to Jerusalem. The Chronicler borrows from and abbreviates 2 Kings 18.13–19.13, omitting Hezekiah’s stripping of the Temple and his tribute to Sennacherib (2 Kings 18.13–16), which might reflect negatively on Hezekiah. The complex account of Kings is simplified, and some parallel texts from the source have been conflated to create a smoother depiction of the events. 1: After these . . . acts of faithfulness, in Chronicles, Sennacherib’s invasion is a complete shock. Some scholars explain this massive foreign invasion as a divinely administered test of Hezekiah (cf. Gen 22.1). It is a test of Hezekiah and Judah, but the Chronicler never maintains that the LORD initiated this war (contrast 12.2; 21.16; 28.5; 33.11–36.17). 2–8: Sennacherib’s campaign took place in 701 BCE. Repairs to Jerusalem’s infrastructure, including the construction of the Siloam water tunnel (see 32.30), are made to prepare for the eventuality of an attack by Sennacherib. To this end, Hezekiah also initiates a program of urban mobilization. 5: Millo, see 1 Chr 11.8n. 9–19: As in Kings, the Assyrians try to convince the Jerusalemites that their God is no different from the defeated deities of other ah of Judah and to all the people of Judah that were in Jerusalem, saying,¹⁰ “Thus says King Sennacherib of Assyria: On what are you relying, that you undergo the siege of Jerusalem? ¹¹Is not Hezekiah misleading you, handing you over to die by famine and by thirst, when he tells you, “The LORD our God will save us from the hand of the king of Assyria?” ¹²Was it not this same Hezekiah who took away his high places and his altars and commanded Judah and Jerusalem, saying, ‘Before one altar you shall worship, and upon it you shall make your offerings?’ ¹³Do you not know what I and my ancestors have done to all the peoples of other lands? Were the gods of the nations of those lands at all able to save their lands out of my hand? ¹⁴Who among all the gods of those nations that my ancestors utterly destroyed was able to save his people from my hand, that your God should be able to save you from my hand? ¹⁵Now therefore do not let Hezekiah deceive you or mislead you in this fashion, and do not believe him, for no god of any nation or kingdom has been able to save his people from my hand or from the hand of my ancestors. How much less will your God save you out of my hand!”

¹⁶His servants said still more against the Lord God and against his servant Hezekiah. ¹⁷He also wrote letters to throw contempt on the LORD the God of Israel and to speak against him, saying, “Just as the gods of the nations in other lands did not rescue their people from my hands, so the God of Hezekiah will not rescue his people from my hand.” ¹⁸They shouted it with a loud voice in the language of Judah to the people of Jerusalem who were on the wall, to frighten and terrify them, in order that they might take the city. ¹⁹They spoke of the God of Jerusalem as if he were like the gods of the peoples of the earth, which are the work of human hands.

²⁰Then King Hezekiah and the prophet Isaiah son of Amoz prayed because of this and cried to heaven. ²¹And the LORD sent an angel who cut off all the mighty warriors and commanders and officers in the camp of the king of Assyria. So he returned in disgrace to his own land. When he came into the house of his god, some of his own sons struck him down there with the sword. ²²So the LORD saved Hezekiah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem from the hand of King Sennacherib of Assyria and from the hand of all his enemies; he gave them rest^a on every side. ²³Many brought gifts to the LORD in Jerusalem and precious things to King Hezekiah of Judah, so that he was exalted in the sight of all nations from that time onward.

Ch 32: Places associated with Sennacherib's invasion of Judah.

^a Gk Vg: Heb guided them

peoples. From the perspective of the Chronicler, this is blasphemy because the deities of other nations are the work of human hands (cf. 2 Kings 18.17–35). 18: The language of Judah, later called Hebrew. 20: Like other pious kings before him, Hezekiah appeals to God in conformity with the precedent established by David (1 Chr 17.16–27; 29.10–19) and Solomon (2 Chr 5.13–6.42); cf. 2 Kings 19.1–34. 21: The LORD's dramatic deliverance of Hezekiah and Jerusalem responds directly to the prayer uttered by Hezekiah and Isaiah (v. 20; cf. 2 Kings 19.1–14) and accords with the LORD's earlier promises to Solomon (7.12–15; cf. 6.28–30). 22–23: Rest on every side is a sign of divine favor (14.1n.), as is tribute from the nations (1 Chr 18.6; 2 Chr 8.2; 17.5,11).

²⁴ In those days Hezekiah became sick and was at the point of death. He prayed to the LORD, and he answered him and gave him a sign. ²⁵ But Hezekiah did not respond according to the benefit done to him, for his heart was proud. Therefore wrath came upon him and upon Judah and Jerusalem. ²⁶ Then Hezekiah humbled himself for the pride of his heart, both he and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, so that the wrath of the LORD did not come upon them in the days of Hezekiah.

²⁷ Hezekiah had very great riches and honor; and he made for himself treasuries for silver, for gold, for precious stones, for spices, for shields, and for all kinds of costly objects; ²⁸ storehouses also for the yield of grain, wine, and oil; and stalls for all kinds of cattle, and sheepfolds.^a ²⁹ He likewise provided cities for himself, and flocks and herds in abundance; for God had given him very great possessions. ³⁰ This same Hezekiah closed the upper outlet of the waters of Gihon and directed them down to the west side of the city of David. Hezekiah prospered in all his works. ³¹ So also in the matter of the envoys of the officials of Babylon, who had been sent to him to inquire about the sign that had been done in the land, God left him to himself, in order to test him and to know all that was in his heart.

³² Now the rest of the acts of Hezekiah, and his good deeds, are written in the vision of the prophet Isaiah son of Amoz in the Book of the Kings of Judah and Israel. ³³ Hezekiah slept with his ancestors, and they buried him on the ascent to the tombs of the descendants of David; and all Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem did him honor at his death. His son Manasseh succeeded him.

33 Manasseh was twelve years old when he began to reign; he reigned fifty-five years in Jerusalem. ² He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, according to the abominable practices of the nations whom the LORD drove out before the people of Israel. ³ For he rebuilt the high places that his father Hezekiah had pulled down, and erected altars to the Baals, made sacred poles,^b worshiped all the host of heaven, and served them. ⁴ He built altars in the house of the LORD, of which the LORD had said, "In Jerusalem shall my name be forever." ⁵ He built altars for all the host of heaven in the two courts of the house of the LORD. ⁶ He made his son pass through fire in the valley of the son of Hinnom, practiced soothsaying and augury and sorcery, and dealt with mediums and with wizards. He did much evil in the sight of the LORD, provoking him to anger. ⁷ The carved image of the idol that he had made he set in the house of God, of which God said to David and to his son Solomon, "In this house, and in Jerusalem, which I have chosen out of all the tribes of Israel, I will put my name forever; ⁸ I will never again remove the feet of Israel from the land that I appointed for your ancestors, if only they will be careful to do all that I have commanded them, all the law, the statutes, and the ordinances given through Moses." ⁹ Manasseh misled Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, so that they did more evil than the nations whom the LORD had destroyed before the people of Israel.

¹⁰ The LORD spoke to Manasseh and to his people, but they gave no heed. ¹¹ Therefore

^a Gk Vg: Heb flocks for folds

^b Heb Asheroth

32.24–33: Hezekiah's sickness, recovery, and wealth. Even this pious king was not without his faults (32.24–26; cf. 2 Kings 20.1–19; Isa 38–39); see 2 Chr 6.36. But like David (1 Chr 21.8,17) and Rehoboam (2 Chr 12.7) before him, Hezekiah humbled himself before God (see 7.14). 27–30: Most of these economic and political initiatives are focused outside Jerusalem (cf. vv. 2–8). 27: Royal wealth indicates divine blessing in Chronicles, and Hezekiah's assets rival those of Solomon (1.11–12,14–17; 9.1–8,23–24). 31: Cf. 2 Kings 20.12–19.

33.1–20: Manasseh: regression and repentance. As in Kings, for the Chronicler, Manasseh (ruled 698/687–642 BCE; the data are inconsistent) is a wicked king (vv. 2–9). Nevertheless, after Manasseh suffers divine punishment in the form of exile (v. 11), he repents, changes course, and is forgiven (vv. 12–19). In so doing, Manasseh is presented as a model for Judean deportees living in other lands. These events have no source in Kings. 2–9: Drawn from 2 Kings 21.2–9. 6: Pass through fire, see 2 Kings 16.3n. 10: The long-range prophecy of terrible disaster in 2 Kings 21.10–15 becomes a summons to repent, which temporarily goes unheeded. 11–13: The exile of Manasseh, which does not appear in Kings, leads the Judean king to entreat the favor of the LORD and humble

the LORD brought against them the commanders of the army of the king of Assyria, who took Manasseh captive in manacles, bound him with fetters, and brought him to Babylon. ¹² While he was in distress he entreated the favor of the LORD his God and humbled himself greatly before the God of his ancestors. ¹³ He prayed to him, and God received his entreaty, heard his plea, and restored him again to Jerusalem and to his kingdom. Then Manasseh knew that the LORD indeed was God.

¹⁴ Afterward he built an outer wall for the city of David west of Gihon, in the valley, reaching the entrance at the Fish Gate; he carried it around Ophel, and raised it to a very great height. He also put commanders of the army in all the fortified cities in Judah. ¹⁵ He took away the foreign gods and the idol from the house of the LORD, and all the altars that he had built on the mountain of the house of the LORD and in Jerusalem, and he threw them out of the city. ¹⁶ He also restored the altar of the LORD and offered on it sacrifices of well-being and of thanksgiving; and he commanded Judah to serve the LORD the God of Israel. ¹⁷ The people, however, still sacrificed at the high places, but only to the LORD their God.

¹⁸ Now the rest of the acts of Manasseh, his prayer to his God, and the words of the seers who spoke to him in the name of the LORD God of Israel, these are in the Annals of the Kings of Israel. ¹⁹ His prayer, and how God received his entreaty, all his sin and his faithlessness, the sites on which he built high places and set up the sacred poles^a and the images, before he humbled himself, these are written in the records of the seers.^b ²⁰ So Manasseh slept with his ancestors, and they buried him in his house. His son Amon succeeded him.

²¹ Amon was twenty-two years old when he began to reign; he reigned two years in Jerusalem. ²² He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, as his father Manasseh had done. Amon sacrificed to all the images that his father Manasseh had made, and served them. ²³ He did not humble himself before the LORD, as his father Manasseh had humbled himself, but this Amon incurred more and more guilt. ²⁴ His servants conspired against him and killed him in his house. ²⁵ But the people of the land killed all those who had conspired against King Amon; and the people of the land made his son Josiah king to succeed him.

34 Josiah was eight years old when he began to reign; he reigned thirty-one years in Jerusalem. ² He did what was right in the sight of the LORD, and walked in the ways of his ancestor David; he did not turn aside to the right or to the left. ³ For in the eighth year of his reign, while he was still a boy, he began himself. 11: Babylon, the reference is not impossible, because the Assyrians maintained a major presence in Babylon at this time. Nevertheless, Assyrian records mention that Manasseh was a loyal vassal. Whether historical or not, the story demonstrates how even one of Judah's worst kings, with God's help, could reverse course in exile, be brought back to his land, institute reforms, and make a new beginning. In this respect, the entire episode offered hope and confirmation to members of the Judean postexilic community, some of whom had ancestors who returned from the Babylonian exile. 13: Going beyond his earlier pledge to Solomon (7.14), God restores Manasseh to his land. Manasseh becomes a model of how to deal with self-made adversity (6.36–39). 14–17: Like other reformer kings (11.5–12; 14.3–7; 17.1–19; 32.27–30), Manasseh constructs fortifications and enforces religious centralization. 18–20: Cf. 2 Kings 21.17–18. 18–19: His prayer, this is the basis for the later composition “The Prayer of Manasseh,” now a book of the Apocrypha and a similar psalm in the Dead Sea Scrolls.

^a Heb Asherim

^b One Ms Gk: MT of Hozai

33.21–25: Degeneracy under Amon (641–640 BCE). This monarch follows the model of the earlier, rather than the later, Manasseh, who humbled himself (33.2–9). The account is adapted from 2 Kings 21.19–26. 23–25: In refusing to correct his policies, Amon follows the obstinate course set by Ahaz (28.1–27), worsens Judah's plight, and is punished. 25: People of the land, see 2 Kings 11.14n.

34.1–33: Josiah (640–609 BCE): the champion of centralization. Both Kings (2 Kings 22.1–23.30) and Chronicles (34.1–35.27) acclaim Josiah's many reforms throughout Jerusalem and the land of Israel and Judah, but the Chronicler makes these reforms the work of all the people and not simply Josiah himself. 3–7: The Chronicler restructures the account of the reform found in Kings in several ways, including the idea that Josiah began to

to seek the God of his ancestor David, and in the twelfth year he began to purge Judah and Jerusalem of the high places, the sacred poles,^a and the carved and the cast images.⁴ In his presence they pulled down the altars of the Baals; he demolished the incense altars that stood above them. He broke down the sacred poles^a and the carved and the cast images; he made dust of them and scattered it over the graves of those who had sacrificed to them.⁵ He also burned the bones of the priests on their altars, and purged Judah and Jerusalem.⁶ In the towns of Manasseh, Ephraim, and Simeon, and as far as Naphtali, in their ruins^b all around,⁷ he broke down the altars, beat the sacred poles^a and the images into powder, and demolished all the incense altars throughout all the land of Israel. Then he returned to Jerusalem.

⁸In the eighteenth year of his reign, when he had purged the land and the house, he sent Shaphan son of Azaliah, Maaseiah the governor of the city, and Joah son of Joahaz, the recorder, to repair the house of the LORD his God.⁹ They came to the high priest Hilkiah and delivered the money that had been brought into the house of God, which the Levites, the keepers of the threshold, had collected from Manasseh and Ephraim and from all the remnant of Israel and from all Judah and Benjamin and from the inhabitants of Jerusalem.¹⁰ They delivered it to the workers who had the oversight of the house of the LORD, and the workers who were working in the house of the LORD gave it for repairing and restoring the house.¹¹ They gave it to the carpenters and the builders to buy quarried stone, and timber for binders, and beams for the buildings that the kings of Judah had let go to ruin.¹² The people did the work faithfully. Over them were appointed the Levites Jahath and Obadiah, of the sons of Merari, along with Zechariah and Meshullam, of the sons of the Kohathites, to have oversight. Other Levites, all skillful with instruments of music,¹³ were over the burden bearers and directed all who did work in every kind of service; and some of the Levites were scribes, and officials, and gatekeepers.

¹⁴While they were bringing out the money that had been brought into the house of the LORD, the priest Hilkiah found the book of the law of the LORD given through Moses.

¹⁵Hilkiah said to the secretary Shaphan, "I have found the book of the law in the house of the LORD"; and Hilkiah gave the book to Shaphan.¹⁶ Shaphan brought the book to the king, and further reported to the king, "All that was committed to your servants they are doing.¹⁷ They have emptied out the money that was found in the house of the LORD and have delivered it into the hand of the overseers and the workers."¹⁸ The secretary Shaphan informed the king, "The priest Hilkiah has given me a book." Shaphan then read it aloud to the king.

¹⁹When the king heard the words of the law he tore his clothes.²⁰ Then the king commanded Hilkiah, Ahikam son of Shaphan, Abdon son of Micah, the secretary Shaphan, and the king's servant Asaiah:²¹ "Go, inquire of the LORD for me and for those who are left in Israel and in Judah, concerning the words of the book that has been found; for the wrath of the LORD that is poured out on us is great, because our ancestors did not keep the word of the LORD, to act in accordance with all that is written in this book."

^a Heb Asherim

^b Meaning of Heb uncertain

see the LORD in the eighth year of his reign, rather than later, as in Kings (2 Kings 22.3). In the twelfth year he initiates a number of national expeditions, which purge Judah and Jerusalem of all rival religious shrines to the Temple. 6: The geographic extent of Josiah's interventions, from Simeon to Naphtali, are an addition to the Kings source material. Josiah restores proper religious observance throughout all Israel. 8–21: Adapted in part from 2 Kings 22.3–13. The discovery of the book of the law of the LORD, while Temple repairs are underway (vv. 8–14), becomes a matter of grave concern to Josiah because its contents bode ill for Judah. 9: Since Josiah has already implemented reforms in North and South, it is no great surprise that funds for the Temple restoration project do not merely stem from the people in Judah (2 Kings 22.4), but also from Manasseh and Ephraim and from all the remnant of Israel. 14: Most scholars think that the book of the law of the LORD refers to Deuteronomy in 2 Kings 22, but in Chronicles it may refer to the entire Pentateuch (or an earlier version of it). The Passover ²² So Hilkiah and those whom the king had sent went to the prophet Huldah, the wife of Shallum son of Tokhath son of Hasrah, keeper of the wardrobe (who lived in Jerusalem in the Second Quarter) and spoke to her to that effect. ²³ She declared to them, “Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel: Tell the man who sent you to me, ²⁴ Thus says the LORD: I will indeed bring disaster upon this place and upon its inhabitants, all the curses that are written in the book that was read before the king of Judah. ²⁵ Because they have forsaken me and have made offerings to other gods, so that they have provoked me to anger with all the works of their hands, my wrath will be poured out on this place and will not be quenched. ²⁶ But as to the king of Judah, who sent you to inquire of the LORD, thus shall you say to him: Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel: Regarding the words that you have heard, ²⁷ because your heart was penitent and you humbled yourself before God when you heard his words against this place and its inhabitants, and you have humbled yourself before me, and have torn your clothes and wept before me, I also have heard you, says the LORD. ²⁸ I will gather you to your ancestors and you shall be gathered to your grave in peace; your eyes shall not see all the disaster that I will bring on this place and its inhabitants.” They took the message back to the king.

²⁹ Then the king sent word and gathered together all the elders of Judah and Jerusalem. ³⁰ The king went up to the house of the LORD, with all the people of Judah, the inhabitants of Jerusalem, the priests and the Levites, all the people both great and small; he read in their hearing all the words of the book of the covenant that had been found in the house of the LORD. ³¹ The king stood

in his place and made a covenant before the LORD, to follow the LORD, keeping his commandments, his decrees, and his statutes, with all his heart and all his soul, to perform the words of the covenant that were written in this book. ³² Then he made all who were present in Jerusalem and in Benjamin pledge themselves to it. And the inhabitants of Jerusalem acted according to the covenant of God, the God of their ancestors. ³³ Josiah took away all the abominations from all the territory that belonged to the people of Israel, and made all who were in Israel worship the LORD their God. All his days they did not turn away from following the LORD the God of their ancestors.

35 Josiah kept a passover to the LORD in Jerusalem; they slaughtered the passover lamb on the fourteenth day of the first month. ² He appointed the priests to their offices and encouraged them in the service of the house of the LORD. ³ He said to the Levites who taught all Israel and who were holy to the LORD, “Put the holy ark in the house that Solomon son of David, king of Israel, built; you need no longer carry it on your shoulders. Now serve the LORD your God and his people Israel. ⁴ Make preparations by your ancestral houses by your divisions, following the written directions of King David of Israel and the written directions of his son Solomon. ⁵ Take position in the holy place according to the groupings of the ancestral houses of your kindred the people, and let there be Levites for each division of an ancestral house.^a ⁶ Slaughter the passover lamb, sanctify yourselves, and on behalf of your kindred make preparations, acting according to the word of the LORD by Moses.”

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

celebration (35.1–19) draws on more than one collection of earlier biblical law. 22–28: Huldah’s oracle, drawn from 2 Kings 22.14–20, portrays a bleak future for Judah. 29–33: Like other noted Judean leaders who wish to avoid or counter a period of decline (15.8–19; 23.16; 29.10), Josiah leads the nation in covenant renewal (cf. 2 Kings 23.1–3). The ratification of the covenant leads to the implementation of reforms throughout his land (cf. 2 Kings 23.4–10). The result is religious unity for the nation all his days.

35.1–19: Passover celebration. As in 2 Kings (23.4–20), national reforms (34.33) lead to a national Passover (2 Kings 23.21–23). Josiah’s Passover offering is described in much more detail than in Kings. 3: The only reference to the ark during the Judahite monarchy (chs 10–36). The pedagogical responsibility of the Levites, who taught all Israel, is found elsewhere (Deut 33.8–11) but is more frequent in postexilic texts (e.g., 17.7–9; Neh 8.7–8). 4–6: The provisions made during the United Monarchy are the model for the levitical and priestly divisions (31.2–

⁷Then Josiah contributed to the people, as passover offerings for all that were present, lambs and kids from the flock to the number of thirty thousand, and three thousand bulls; these were from the king's possessions. ⁸His officials contributed willingly to the people, to the priests, and to the Levites. Hilkiah, Zechariah, and Jehiel, the chief officers of the house of God, gave to the priests for the passover offerings two thousand six hundred lambs and kids and three hundred bulls.

⁹Conaniah also, and his brothers Shemaiah and Nethanel, and Hashabiah and Jeiel and Jozabad, the chiefs of the Levites, gave to the Levites for the passover offerings five thousand lambs and kids and five hundred bulls.

¹⁰When the service had been prepared for, the priests stood in their place, and the Levites in their divisions according to the king's command. ¹¹They slaughtered the passover lamb, and the priests dashed the blood that they received^a from them, while the Levites did the skinning. ¹²They set aside the burnt offerings so that they might distribute them according to the groupings of the ancestral houses of the people, to offer to the LORD, as it is written in the book of Moses. And they did the same with the bulls. ¹³They roasted the passover lamb with fire according to the ordinance; and they boiled the holy offerings in pots, in caldrons, and in pans, and carried them quickly to all the people. ¹⁴Afterward they made preparations for themselves and for the priests, because the priests the descendants of Aaron were occupied in offering the burnt offerings and the fat parts until night; so the Levites made preparations for themselves and for the priests, the descendants of Aaron. ¹⁵The singers, the descendants of Asaph, were in their place according to the command of David, and Asaph, and Heman, and the king's seer Jeduthun. The gatekeepers were at each gate; they did not need to interrupt their service, for their kindred the Levites made preparations for them.

¹⁶So all the service of the LORD was prepared that day, to keep the passover and to offer burnt offerings on the altar of the LORD, according to the command of King Josiah.

¹⁷The people of Israel who were present kept the passover at that time, and the festival of unleavened bread seven days. ¹⁸No passover like it had been kept in Israel since the days of the prophet Samuel; none of the kings of Israel had kept such a passover as was kept by Josiah, by the priests and the Levites, by all Judah and Israel who were present, and by the inhabitants of Jerusalem. ¹⁹In the eighteenth year of the reign of Josiah this passover was kept.

²⁰After all this, when Josiah had set the temple in order, King Neco of Egypt went up to fight at Carchemish on the Euphrates, and Josiah went out against him. ²¹But Neco^b sent envoys to him, saying, "What have I to do with you, king of Judah? I am not coming against you today, but against the house with which I am at war; and God has commanded me to hurry. Cease opposing God, who is with me, so that he will not destroy you."

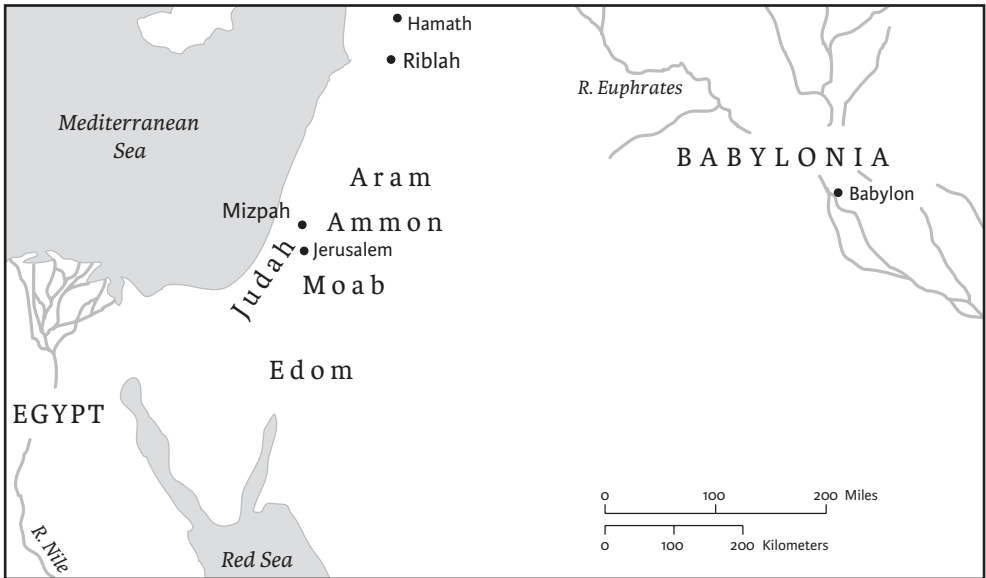

²²But Josiah would not turn away from him, but disguised himself in order to fight with him. He did not listen to the words of Neco 19n.). 7–9: The contributions of king, officials, and Levites (cf. 34.9) help make the Passover a civic event. 13: The preparations of the Passover lamb are said to accord with the ordinance (cf. vv. 6,12). The beginning of the verse, properly translated, reads, "They boiled the Passover lamb with fire." This difficult idea reflects a combination of Ex 12.8, which prescribes that the lamb must be broiled on a fire, and Deut 16.7, which prescribes that it must be boiled. These reflect different customs, which ultimately came into conflict when the Torah was canonized. Chronicles and later rabbinic texts often dealt with such problems through harmonization, thus "boiling with fire." 18: The national Passover is unparalleled since the days of Samuel (cf. 2 Kings 23.22). Chronicles, like 2 Kings 23.21–22, attributes to Josiah an incomparably successful Passover celebration. The Passover of Hezekiah (30.1–22) was also important, but enjoyed more limited participation than Josiah's Passover, which was attended by the priests and the Levites, by all Judah and Israel, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem (cf. 30.10–11).

^a Heb lacks that they received

^b Heb he

35.20–27: Josiah's defeat and death by Pharaoh Neco. Unlike 2 Kings 23.29–30, in Chronicles Neco acts explicitly as a messenger and agent of God. The addition justifies the death of the otherwise righteous Josiah; he did not heed the prophetic voice. 20: Neco, it is unclear why Josiah intervened against one of the superpow-from the mouth of God, but joined battle in the plain of Megiddo. ²³The archers shot King Josiah; and the king said to his servants, “Take me away, for I am badly wounded.” ²⁴So his servants took him out of the chariot and carried him in his second chariot^a and brought him to Jerusalem. There he died, and was buried in the tombs of his ancestors. All Judah and Jerusalem mourned for Josiah. ²⁵Jeremiah also uttered a lament for Josiah, and all the singing men and singing women have spoken of Josiah in their laments to this day. They made these a custom in Israel; they are recorded in the Laments. ²⁶Now the rest of the acts of Josiah and his faithful deeds in accordance with what is written in the law of the LORD, ²⁷and his acts, first and last, are written in the Book of the Kings of Israel and Judah.

Ch 36: Babylon and Judah in the early sixth century BCE.

36 The people of the land took Jehoahaz son of Josiah and made him king to succeed his father in Jerusalem. ²Jehoahaz was twenty-three years old when he began to reign; he reigned three months in Jerusalem. ³Then the king of Egypt deposed him in Jerusalem and laid on the land a tribute of one hundred talents of silver and one talent of gold. ⁴The king of Egypt made his brother Eliakim king over Judah and Jerusalem, and changed his name to Jehoiakim; but Neco took his brother Jehoahaz and carried him to Egypt.

⁵Jehoiakim was twenty-five years old when he began to reign; he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem. He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD his God. ⁶Against him

^a Or the chariot of his deputy

ers of his day. Josiah may have been in an alliance with Neco’s enemies (cf. 2 Kings 23.29). 23: Archers shot, in conformity with Huldah’s prophecy (34.24–28), Josiah is gathered to his fathers (v. 24) and does not see great calamity come to Jerusalem (36.17–21). The Chronicler may understand Huldah’s prophecy to mean that Josiah would die in a time of peace for Judah, rather than to mean the type of death Josiah would suffer himself (cf. 2 Kings 22.20 || 2 Chr 34.28).

36.1–14: Judah’s last four kings. The Chronicler’s history of Judah’s final decades is much briefer and less gruesome than that of 2 Kings 24–25. Either the Chronicler had a shorter version of our book of Kings, or living in the postexilic restoration community, he felt no need to dwell on the details of the disaster of the exile. 1–4: The account of the reign of Jehoahaz (609 BCE) is largely taken from 2 Kings 23.30–34. In Chronicles Jehoahaz receives no evaluation. 5–8: The reign of Jehoiakim (608–598) is much abridged and adapted from

King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon came up, and bound him with fetters to take him to Babylon.⁷ Nebuchadnezzar also carried some of the vessels of the house of the LORD to Babylon and put them in his palace in Babylon.

⁸ Now the rest of the acts of Jehoiakim, and the abominations that he did, and what was found against him, are written in the Book of the Kings of Israel and Judah; and his son Jehoiachin succeeded him.

⁹ Jehoiachin was eight years old when he began to reign; he reigned three months and ten days in Jerusalem. He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD.¹⁰ In the spring of the year King Nebuchadnezzar sent and brought him to Babylon, along with the precious vessels of the house of the LORD, and made his brother Zedekiah king over Judah and Jerusalem.

¹¹ Zedekiah was twenty-one years old when he began to reign; he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem.¹² He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD his God. He did not humble himself before the prophet Jeremiah who spoke from the mouth of the LORD.¹³ He also rebelled against King Nebuchadnezzar, who had made him swear by God; he stiffened his neck and hardened his heart against turning to the LORD, the God of Israel.¹⁴ All the leading priests and the people also were exceedingly unfaithful, following all the abominations of the nations; and they polluted the house of the LORD that he had consecrated in Jerusalem.

¹⁵ The LORD, the God of their ancestors, sent persistently to them by his messengers, because he had compassion on his people and on his dwelling place;¹⁶ but they kept mocking the messengers of God, despising his words, and scoffing at his prophets, until the wrath of the LORD against his people became so great that there was no remedy.

¹⁷ Therefore he brought up against them the king of the Chaldeans, who killed their youths with the sword in the house of their sanctuary, and had no compassion on young man or young woman, the aged or the feeble; he gave them all into his hand.¹⁸ All the vessels of the house of God, large and small, and the treasures of the house of the LORD, and the treasures of the king and of his officials, all these he brought to Babylon.

¹⁹ They burned the house of God, broke down the wall of Jerusalem, burned all its palaces with fire, and destroyed all its precious vessels.²⁰ He took into exile in Babylon those

2 Kings 23.36–24.6. See also Dan 1.1–2. 6: Nebuchadnezzar II who ruled Babylon from 605 to 562 BCE, was one of its most powerful and successful kings. Among his foreign policy accomplishments were the conquest of Tyre (Ezek 27.12) and the invasion of Egypt (Ezek 29.19–21). Both Chronicles and 2 Kings 24.1–17 mention a Babylonian invasion, which affected both Jehoiakim and his son Jehoiachin (598/7 BCE). But only Chronicles claims that the Babylonian king came to Jerusalem to bring both Jehoiakim and later his son Jehoiachin, along with various precious Temple vessels, to Babylon (v. 10). 9–10: Jehoiachin (597) was eighteen years old, not eight years old (see 2 Kings 24.8). He suffers a personal exile, along with the precious vessels of the house of the LORD, but in 2 Kings 24.8–17 the exile of 597 BCE is a much more widespread deportation. 11–14: Taken in part from 2 Kings 25.18–20. Like Ahaz (ch 28) and Amon (33.23), Zedekiah (597–586) refused to humble himself. The Chronicler criticizes Zedekiah, the leading priests, and the people for being exceedingly unfaithful (see 1 Chr 10.1–14n.). Thus, the Chronicler, unlike the author of Kings, offers a specific reason for why the exile occurred under Zedekiah. 13: Rebelled, the Babylonians under Nebuchadnezzar II took swift reprisal against vassals who chose to revolt. In this case, the Chronicler finds fault with Zedekiah himself for violating his oath to God and refusing to reverse his course. 14: The leading priests, the Chronicler blames not only royalty but also higher echelon priests and the people themselves for the exile. 17–22: The fall of Jerusalem took place in 586 BCE.

36.15–23: Exile and the call to return. The Deuteronomist places a great deal of blame for Judah's fall on the sins of Manasseh (2 Kings 21.10–15; 23.26–27; 24.3–4), but this is impossible for the Chronicler, who narrated Manasseh's repentance (33.12–13). Instead, the references to the gradual rise in divine wrath, the repeated lack of repentance, and the succession of unheeded messengers and prophets (cf. 15.1–8; 21.12–15; 25.15–17) suggest that the Chronicler attributes the exile to a preponderance of unrequited sins during the last generations of Judah's independence (cf. 2 Kings 24.20). 17–21: The record of Judah's exile in 586 BCE is partially drawn from 2 Kings 25.1–21. This author does not depict an Egyptian exile of 582 BCE (2 Kings 25.22–26). 17: The Chaldeans, the Babylonians. 20: The kingdom of Persia, under Cyrus the Great (v. 22), defeated the kingdoms of Media, who had escaped from the sword, and they became servants to him and to his sons until the establishment of the kingdom of Persia,²¹ to fulfill the word of the LORD by the mouth of Jeremiah, until the land had made up for its sabbaths. All the days that it lay desolate it kept sabbath, to fulfill seventy years.

²²In the first year of King Cyrus of Persia, in fulfillment of the word of the LORD spoken by Jeremiah, the LORD stirred up the spirit of King Cyrus of Persia so that he sent a herald throughout all his kingdom and also declared in a written edict:²³ “Thus says King Cyrus of Persia: The LORD, the God of heaven, has given me all the kingdoms of the earth, and he has charged me to build him a house at Jerusalem, which is in Judah. Whoever is among you of all his people, may the LORD his God be with him! Let him go up.”

Lydia, and Babylon, thus becoming one of the ancient world's great empires. At the height of its power, Persia ruled a vast territory stretching from Greece in the west to India in the east. 21: On the prophecies of Jeremiah, see Jer 25.11–12; 29.10, which are here conflated with Lev 26.34–35,43. 22–23: Kings ends with the mercies shown to Jehoiachin in exile (2 Kings 25.27–30), but Chronicles offers a clearer hope for the future: King Cyrus's decree in 538 BCE of an end to exile. As Chronicles repeatedly demonstrates, exile need not be a final conclusion, but a condition from which it is possible to return (6.36–39; 7.12–15; 33.12–13). Indeed, from the perspective of the books of Ezra-Nehemiah, Cyrus's decree marks the beginning of Persian-period Judah (Ezra 1.1–3). The return is in fulfillment of the word of the LORD spoken by Jeremiah, emphasizing one last time, at the book's conclusion, the power of the prophetic word. Some manuscripts of the Hebrew Bible end with Chronicles, in which case the scriptures conclude with an optimistic note of anticipation.

This page intentionally left blank

EZRA

NAME AND LOCATION IN CANON

The books of Ezra and Nehemiah form a single book in early Hebrew and Greek manuscripts of the Bible, but are separated into two in later Christian tradition. The books are named for their principal characters, both Jewish leaders of the fifth century BCE. Ezra is featured in chs 7–10 of the book that bears his name, and in Neh 8–9; Nehemiah is prominent in the book that bears his name.

In the traditional order of books in the Hebrew Bible, Ezra–Nehemiah is found in the third division of the canon, the Writings. In modern printed Jewish Bibles, following some ancient manuscripts, Ezra–Nehemiah is near the end and comes just before the last book, Chronicles. In other ancient sources, Ezra–Nehemiah is the last book in the Writings. In most Christian canons, Ezra–Nehemiah is located among the historical books and immediately follows Chronicles. The Greek book of 1 Esdras, which includes sections of both Ezra and Nehemiah, is part of the Apocrypha; in Eastern Orthodox canons it precedes Ezra–Nehemiah. (See further Introduction to 1 Esdras.)

HISTORICAL BACKGROUND

The unified book of Ezra–Nehemiah (Esdras b in Greek manuscripts) describes the return of exiles from Babylonia in 538 BCE, and the reconstruction of Jewish life in Judah under Persian imperial rule between 538 and approximately 420. According to its account, the return, authorized by the edict of the Persian king Cyrus, marked the beginning of a lengthy process of rebuilding Jerusalem and the Temple. During this period Israel reconstituted itself as the “people of the Book,” with scripture, specifically the first five books of the Bible (the Torah, also known as the Law of Moses, or as the Pentateuch), becoming authoritative for communal and personal life. These developments took place during the reign of several Persian kings and under the Jewish leadership of Zerubbabel, Joshua, Ezra, and Nehemiah. While the Temple and its personnel gained unprecedented powers, the community developed new criteria for identity and membership.

Cyrus’s edict permitting the return to Judah sets the agenda for the entire book of Ezra–Nehemiah, launching a national and religious rebirth and reconstruction that includes rebuilding the Temple, the community, and Jerusalem. The edict also establishes official Persian legitimation of Jewish life in the Persian province of Yehud (the name for Judah in Aramaic and other sources), claiming harmony between Persian imperial policies and the will of Israel’s God, a position that pervades Ezra–Nehemiah.

It is difficult to reconstruct the actual history of this period. Based on additional information from the books of Haggai and Zechariah, many scholars think that the return and rebuilding took place in four or more steps, though this is uncertain. First, the earliest returnees, led by Sheshbazzar in 538, began to rebuild the Temple but for some reason abandoned the project. Second, a later group of exiles, under the leadership of Zerubbabel and Jeshua, resumed rebuilding during the reign of the Persian king Darius I (522–486) and completed the Temple reconstruction in 515. Third, a group led by Ezra in 458 during the reign of Artaxerxes I (465–424) reestablished the Torah, the law of Moses, as the authority for Jews in Yehud. Finally, a group led by Nehemiah beginning in 445, later in the reign of Artaxerxes I, restored Jerusalem’s walls and repopulated Jerusalem. Some scholars have suggested that Ezra’s return, with its religious innovations, took place only after Nehemiah’s political improvements. Most scholars favor the reconstruction given above, which follows the biblical sequence and which will be used in the annotations. Archaeological studies suggest only limited development in the province of Judah during the Persian period. This raises questions about the extent and effectiveness of the reconstruction that Ezra–Nehemiah describes.

DATE OF COMPOSITION, LITERARY HISTORY, AND STRUCTURE

Ezra–Nehemiah was probably composed in Judah after 400 BCE. It shares some themes and vocabulary with Chronicles, another Persian-period book, and Ezra 1.1–3 overlaps the end of Chronicles, 2 Chr 36.22–23. However, the books use different vocabulary and have different ideologies, and were most likely composed by different authors (see Introduction to 1 Chronicles, pp. 575–577). Ezra–Nehemiah also shares elements with several later books in antiquity under the name of Ezra that are preserved in the Apocrypha and Pseudepigrapha, including 1 Esdras, which contains all of Ezra 1–10 as well as Nehemiah 8, and 2 Esdras.

EZRA

Ezra–Nehemiah has a complicated literary history. It incorporates what are presented as contemporary sources into its account. These include first-person memoirs of both Ezra (Ezra 7.27–9.15) and Nehemiah (Neh 1.1–7.5; 12.27–13.31); letters of various officials, often written in Aramaic, the lingua franca of the Persian empire; and assorted lists. Moreover, although most of Ezra–Nehemiah is written in Hebrew, Ezra 4.6–6.18 and 7.12–26 are in Aramaic, including not only official documents but also the narrative in which they are quoted.

Despite this composite appearance, however, the final form of Ezra–Nehemiah has a carefully developed structure. The work opens with God's promise and Cyrus's decree allowing the Temple to be rebuilt (Ezra 1.1–4), and continues with exiled Israel's response (Ezra 1.5–Neh 7.73), culminating in celebration of reconstruction (Neh 8–13). After an anticipatory summary of enthusiastic reaction (Ezra 1.5–11) and a framing section of the list of returnees (Ezra 2), the response takes place in three stages: Stage One describes the reconstruction of the Temple in 538–515 BCE (Ezra 3–6); Stage Two describes the mission of Ezra and the formation of the community according to Torah in 458 (Ezra 7–10); and Stage Three describes the rebuilding of Jerusalem under Nehemiah's leadership in 445–444 (Neh 1.1–7.5). These stages close with another framing section, the repeated list of returnees (Neh 7.6–73). The work concludes with celebration of renewal and reconstruction (Neh 8–13). This last section describes the reading and implementation of the Torah (Neh 8); the confession and commitment of the people (Neh 9–10); the repopulation of the city and review of the people (Neh 11.1–12.26); and a service of dedication, including celebration, purification, procession, and separation (Neh 12.27–13.3). The very end is a coda in which Nehemiah recounts some of his reforms and invokes God's remembrance (Neh 13.4–31).

INTERPRETATION AND GUIDE TO READING

Because it has a continuous chronology, Ezra–Nehemiah should be read from beginning to end as a unified narrative. According to this narrative, the returned exiles were not only concerned with restoring preexilic institutions, such as the altar and the Temple, and restoring the city. They also adapted to changed circumstances by establishing religious practices that conformed to their understanding of the book of the Torah, which likely reached its final form in the late postexilic period. To the author, the returned exiles were a godly remnant with a renewed commitment to perpetuate the covenantal teachings that kept them distinct. The returned exiles were also a minority within the vast, polytheistic, and multicultural Persian empire. Consequently, they sought to protect their ethnic and religious identity by establishing rigorous religious boundaries between themselves and their neighbors. The author was especially worried that the community might repeat the mistakes that caused the exile, such as intermarriage, and a new destruction would follow.

Through its structure and narrative, Ezra–Nehemiah emphasizes the role of the people themselves in rebuilding, as well as the power of authoritative documents.

Tamara Cohn Eskenazi

1 In the first year of King Cyrus of Persia, in order that the word of the LORD by the mouth of Jeremiah might be accomplished, the LORD stirred up the spirit of King Cyrus of Persia so that he sent a herald throughout all his kingdom, and also in a written edict declared:

²“Thus says King Cyrus of Persia: The LORD, the God of heaven, has given me all the kingdoms of the earth, and he has charged me to build him a house at Jerusalem in Judah. ³Any of those among you who are of his people—may their God be with them!—are now permitted to go up to Jerusalem in Judah, and rebuild the house of the LORD, the God of Israel—he is the God who is in Jerusalem; ⁴and let all survivors, in whatever place they reside, be assisted by the people of their place with silver and gold, with goods and with animals, besides freewill offerings for the house of God in Jerusalem.”

⁵The heads of the families of Judah and Benjamin, and the priests and the Levites—everyone whose spirit God had stirred—got ready to go up and rebuild the house of the LORD in Jerusalem. ⁶All their neighbors aided them with silver vessels, with gold, with goods, with animals, and with valuable gifts, besides all that was freely offered. ⁷King Cyrus himself brought out the vessels of the house of the LORD that Nebuchadnezzar had carried away from Jerusalem and placed in the house of his gods. ⁸King Cyrus of Persia had them released into the charge of Mithredath the treasurer, who counted them out to Sheshbazzar the prince of Judah. ⁹And this was the inventory: gold basins, thirty; silver basins, one thousand; knives,^a twenty-nine; ¹⁰gold bowls, thirty; other silver bowls, four hundred ten; other vessels, one thousand; ¹¹the total of the gold and silver vessels was five thousand four hundred. All these Sheshbazzar brought up, when the exiles were brought up from Babylonia to Jerusalem.

2 Now these were the people of the province who came from those captive exiles whom King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon had carried captive to Babylonia; they returned to

^a Vg: Meaning of Heb uncertain

1.1–4: God’s promise and Cyrus’s decree. The decree by the Persian king authorizes return to Judah and rebuilding God’s house in Jerusalem, after its destruction by the Babylonians and the deportation to Babylonia in the early sixth century BCE. The rest of the book describes three stages of return and rebuilding. Most of this decree appears in 2 Chr 36.22–23, and in a different form in Ezra 6.2–5. 1: King Cyrus, the Persian king (559–530 BCE) who conquered Babylon in 539 BCE. This edict in 538 (the first year of the text) is consistent with Persian religious and political policy: ancient inscriptions depict Cyrus as restorer of several temples. Jeremiah, a sixth-century BCE prophet who lived through the destruction of Judah and repeatedly promised a restoration; see, e.g., Jer 29.10. 2: God of heaven, a typical postexilic title (e.g., Neh 1.5; Dan 2.18). 3: His people, i.e., worshipers of Israel’s God. Are now permitted, better translated as a command to go up (see 2 Chr 36.23; 1 Esd 2.5). Rebuild the house of the LORD, the Temple had been destroyed by the Babylonians in 586 BCE (see 2 Kings 25). But in Ezra–Nehemiah, the notion of the house of the LORD encompasses more than the Temple and includes eventually the city itself and its dedicated inhabitants. 4: Survivors, primarily referring to Jews still in exile and perhaps those in the land who survived the crisis.

1.5–Neh 7.73: The three stages of return and reconstruction.

1.5–8: These verses sum up the enthusiastic response by the people to the decree, a response that leads to the reconstruction described in Ezra 2–Neh 7. 5: Judah and Benjamin formerly constituted the kingdom of Judah (destroyed by Babylon); the other tribes of the Northern Kingdom of Israel (destroyed and exiled by Assyria in 722 BCE; see 2 Kings 17) did not return. The Levites were religious functionaries; the priests were a subgroup of Levites who according to tradition were descended from Aaron, the first priest (see Ex 28.1) with unique responsibilities for the sanctuary. 7–11: The return of the sacred vessels symbolizes continuity with the destroyed Temple, whose looting is described in 2 Kings 25:13–17. The number of itemized vessels is smaller than the total given of 5,400. 7: Nebuchadnezzar, the Babylonian king who destroyed the first Temple in 586 BCE (see 2 Kings 25.1). 8: Sheshbazzar, a leader of the early return (see also 5.14–16); some scholars think that he was descended from King David.

2.1–70: The list of returnees. With its repetition in Neh 7.6–73a, the list frames the three stages of reconstruction. It also reflects combined waves of immigration, and is thus anachronistic here. It was expanded over

Jerusalem and Judah, all to their own towns.

²They came with Zerubbabel, Jeshua, Nehemiah, Seraiah, Reelaiah, Mordecai, Bilshan, Mispar, Bigvai, Rehum, and Baanah.

The number of the Israelite people: ³the descendants of Parosh, two thousand one hundred seventy-two. ⁴Of Shephatiah, three hundred seventy-two. ⁵Of Arah, seven hundred seventy-five. ⁶Of Pahath-moab, namely the descendants of Jeshua and Joab, two thousand eight hundred twelve. ⁷Of Elam, one thousand two hundred fifty-four. ⁸Of Zattu, nine hundred forty-five. ⁹Of Zaccai, seven hundred sixty. ¹⁰Of Bani, six hundred forty-two. ¹¹Of Bebai, six hundred twenty-three. ¹²Of Azgad, one thousand two hundred twenty-two. ¹³Of Adonikam, six hundred sixty-six. ¹⁴Of Bigvai, two thousand fifty-six. ¹⁵Of Adin, four hundred fifty-four. ¹⁶Of Ater, namely of Hezekiah, ninety-eight. ¹⁷Of Bezai, three hundred twenty-three. ¹⁸Of Jorah, one hundred twelve. ¹⁹Of Hashum, two hundred twenty-three. ²⁰Of Gibbar, ninety-five. ²¹Of Bethlehem, one hundred twenty-three. ²²The people of Netophah, fifty-six. ²³Of Anathoth, one hundred twenty-eight. ²⁴The descendants of Azmaveth, forty-two. ²⁵Of Kiriatharim, Chephirah, and Beeroth, seven hundred forty-three. ²⁶Of Ramah and Geba, six hundred twenty-one. ²⁷The people of Michmas, one hundred twenty-two. ²⁸Of Bethel and Ai, two hundred twenty-three. ²⁹The descendants of Nebo, fifty-two. ³⁰Of Magbish, one hundred fifty-six. ³¹Of the other Elam, one thousand two hundred fifty-four. ³²Of Harim, three hundred twenty. ³³Of Lod, Hadid, and Ono, seven hundred twenty-five. ³⁴Of Jericho, three hundred forty-five. ³⁵Of Sennaah, three thousand six hundred thirty.

³⁶The priests: the descendants of Jediah, of the house of Jeshua, nine hundred seventy-three. ³⁷Of Immer, one thousand fifty-two. ³⁸Of Pashhur, one thousand two hundred forty-seven. ³⁹Of Harim, one thousand seventeen.

⁴⁰The Levites: the descendants of Jeshua and Kadmiel, of the descendants of Hodaviah, seventy-four. ⁴¹The singers: the descendants of Asaph, one hundred twenty-eight. ⁴²The descendants of the gatekeepers: of Shallum, of Ater, of Talmon, of Akkub, of Hatita, and of Shobai, in all one hundred thirty-nine.

⁴³The temple servants: the descendants of Ziha, Hasupha, Tabbaoth, ⁴⁴Keros, Siaha, Padon, ⁴⁵Lebanah, Hagabah, Akkub, ⁴⁶Hagab, Shamlai, Hanan, ⁴⁷Giddel, Gahar, Reaiah, ⁴⁸Rezin, Nekoda, Gazzam, ⁴⁹Uzza, Paseah, Besai, ⁵⁰Asnah, Meunim, Nephisim, ⁵¹Bakbuk, Hakupha, Harhur, ⁵²Bazluth, Mehida, Harsha, ⁵³Barkos, Sisera, Temah, ⁵⁴Neziah, and Hatipha.

⁵⁵The descendants of Solomon's servants: Sotai, Hassophereth, Peruda, ⁵⁶Jaalah, Darkon, Giddel, ⁵⁷Shephatiah, Hattil, Pochereth-hazzebaim, and Ami.

⁵⁸All the temple servants and the descendants of Solomon's servants were three hundred ninety-two.

⁵⁹The following were those who came up from Tel-melah, Tel-harsha, Cherub, Addan, and Immer, though they could not prove their families or their descent, whether they belonged to Israel: ⁶⁰the descendants of Delaiah, Tobiah, and Nekoda, six hundred fifty-two. ⁶¹Also, of the descendants of the priests: the descendants of Habaiah, Hak-decades and includes other members of the restored Judean community between 538 and 444 BCE. The list is organized according to three groups: Israelites (laity), Levites, and priests. 1–2: Zerubbabel, Jeshua, Nehemiah, of the list of leaders, only these three (if this Nehemiah is identical with the governor of Neh 1.1) will play a role in Ezra-Nehemiah. Zerubbabel is among the last known descendants of David in the Hebrew Bible (see 1 Chr 3.19) and is elsewhere called “governor” (e.g., Hag 1.1). He is one of the two major leaders of Stage One of the return and reconstruction. Jeshua the priest is elsewhere called “high priest” (e.g., Hag 1.1). He is the other major leader of Stage One. 2b–35: Lay Israelites are listed by family ancestral names (vv. 2b–20) and towns of origin (vv. 21–35). Archaeology provides evidence of increased population during the Persian period at many of the sites mentioned here. 36–39: Priests include four families claiming descent from Aaron (cf. 1 Chr 24). 40–42: Levites are listed according to their Temple functions in the postexilic period. 43–58: Other Temple personnel and miscellaneous groups. 59–63: As a result of the book's concern with communal identity, uncertain genealogies jeopardize membership in the community. Several of these names, however, are later included as community members. Some of the listed towns (like Tel Melah in v. 59) are in Babylonia. 61–63: Priestly legitimacy depends koz, and Barzillai (who had married one of the daughters of Barzillai the Gileadite, and was called by their name).⁶² These looked for their entries in the genealogical records, but they were not found there, and so they were excluded from the priesthood as unclean;⁶³ the governor told them that they were not to partake of the most holy food, until there should be a priest to consult Urim and Thummim.

⁶⁴ The whole assembly together was forty-two thousand three hundred sixty,⁶⁵ besides their male and female servants, of whom there were seven thousand three hundred thirty-seven; and they had two hundred male and female singers.⁶⁶ They had seven hundred thirty-six horses, two hundred forty-five mules,⁶⁷ four hundred thirty-five camels, and six thousand seven hundred twenty donkeys.

⁶⁸ As soon as they came to the house of the LORD in Jerusalem, some of the heads of families made freewill offerings for the house of God, to erect it on its site.⁶⁹ According to their resources they gave to the building fund sixty-one thousand darics of gold, five thousand minas of silver, and one hundred priestly robes.

⁷⁰ The priests, the Levites, and some of the people lived in Jerusalem and its vicinity;^a and the singers, the gatekeepers, and the temple servants lived in their towns, and all Israel in their towns.

3 When the seventh month came, and the Israelites were in the towns, the people gathered together in Jerusalem.² Then Jeshua son of Jozadak, with his fellow priests, and Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel with his kin set out to build the altar of the God of Israel, to offer burnt offerings on it, as prescribed in the law of Moses the man of God.³ They set up the altar on its foundation, because they were in dread of the neighboring peoples, and they offered burnt offerings upon it to the LORD, morning and evening.⁴ And they kept the festival of booths,^b as prescribed, and offered the daily burnt offerings by number according to the ordinance, as required for each day,⁵ and after that the regular burnt offerings, the offerings at the new moon and at all the sacred festivals of the LORD, and the

^a 1 Esdras 5.46: Heb lacks lived in Jerusalem and its vicinity

^b Or tabernacles; Heb succhoth

on descent from Aaron. Illegitimate priests threaten the sanctity of the Temple. 61: Barzillai the Gileadite, see 2 Sam 17.27; 19.31. The adoption of the father-in-law's name suggests that Barzillai did not have a male heir. 63: Urim and Thummim were a device, like casting lots, that priests used to ascertain divine guidance in certain situations (Ex 28.30; Lev 8.8; Deut 33.8). Governor, Heb "tirshata," a Persian title. 64: The total listed, 42,360, exceeds the sum of the enumerated groups (around 30,000), one of several signs of the list's expansion or an indication that the total includes women. 65–67: The number of servants, as well as of singers and livestock, suggests relatively modest economic means. 69: The precise monetary value of this contribution to the Temple is uncertain because the value of the daric and the mina fluctuated. Nevertheless, the passage suggests that the community invested a great deal in restoring its Temple. The priestly robes are specialized garments for official service. 70: All Israel in their towns, Ezra-Nehemiah emphasizes continuity, suggesting a return to pre-exilic settlements. In reality, however, the Persian province of Yehud was considerably smaller than the earlier kingdom of Judah.

3.1–6.22: Stage One of reconstruction: building the Temple. Ezra 3 emphasizes the determination of the returnees to rebuild the Temple as soon as possible.

3.1–7: First step: rebuilding the altar. The restoration of the altar and a functioning priesthood indicates the resumption of sacrificial worship, a central means of religious expression in the ancient world. 1: The seventh month, Tishri (September–October). 2: Jeshua . . . and Zerubbabel, Ezra-Nehemiah assumes a pattern of dual leadership by a priest and a secular leader. The law (Heb "torah") of Moses, most likely some form of the Pentateuch (see notes to Neh 8). Ezra-Nehemiah is keen on describing conformity to the "torah", or teaching, of Moses (hence to God's teachings) as the guiding principle in reconstruction. 3–6: The detailed catalogue of sacrifices confirms the resumption of worship according to authoritative traditions. 3: Dread of the neighboring peoples, tension with local inhabitants and neighboring peoples is a major theme in Ezra-Nehemiah. Some scholars see in this tension a debate between returning Judeans and those Judeans who remained in the land over who can represent postexilic "Israel"; others suggest that surrounding cultures saw Jewish renewal as a offerings of everyone who made a freewill offering to the LORD. ⁶ From the first day of the seventh month they began to offer burnt offerings to the LORD. But the foundation of the temple of the LORD was not yet laid. ⁷ So they gave money to the masons and the carpenters, and food, drink, and oil to the Sidonians and the Tyrians to bring cedar trees from Lebanon to the sea, to Joppa, according to the grant that they had from King Cyrus of Persia.

⁸ In the second year after their arrival at the house of God at Jerusalem, in the second month, Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel and Jeshua son of Jozadak made a beginning, together with the rest of their people, the priests and the Levites and all who had come to Jerusalem from the captivity. They appointed the Levites, from twenty years old and upward, to have the oversight of the work on the house of the LORD. ⁹ And Jeshua with his sons and his kin, and Kadmiel and his sons, Binnui and Hodaviah^a along with the sons of Henadad, the Levites, their sons and kin, together took charge of the workers in the house of God.

¹⁰ When the builders laid the foundation of the temple of the LORD, the priests in their vestments were stationed to praise the LORD with trumpets, and the Levites, the sons of Asaph, with cymbals, according to the directions of King David of Israel; ¹¹ and they sang responsively, praising and giving thanks to the LORD,

“For he is good,

for his steadfast love endures forever toward Israel.”

And all the people responded with a great shout when they praised the LORD, because the foundation of the house of the LORD was laid. ¹² But many of the priests and Levites and heads of families, old people who had seen the first house on its foundations, wept with a loud voice when they saw this house, though many shouted aloud for joy, ¹³ so that the people could not distinguish the sound of the joyful shout from the sound of the people’s weeping, for the people shouted so loudly that the sound was heard far away.

4 When the adversaries of Judah and Benjamin heard that the returned exiles were building a temple to the LORD, the God of Israel, ² they approached Zerubbabel and the heads of families and said to them, “Let threat, as Ezra 4 indicates. 4: The festival of booths, see Lev 23.34. 5: Offerings at the new moon, see Num 29.6. 7: Sidon and Tyre helped build Solomon’s Temple (1 Kings 5–7).

^a Compare 2.40; Neh 7.43; 1 Esdras 5.58: Heb sons of Judah

3.8–13: Second step: founding the Second Temple. The laying of the foundation of the Temple provokes opposition from the people in the land and causes a delay in building the Temple itself. According to Ezra-Nehemiah, this explains why the Temple was rebuilt only in the time of King Darius. The historical reality was likely more complex; see the description of the people’s loss of interest depicted in the books of Haggai and Zechariah. 8: Second year, 537 or 536. Hag 2.18 dates the founding differently, to 520 BCE. Ezra 5.16 credits Sheshbazzar, not Zerubbabel and Jeshua, with laying the foundations. Ezra-Nehemiah thus compresses various events in its thematic presentation. 10–13: Celebration of temple-foundings is a common ancient Near Eastern practice. 10: David’s crowning achievement for Ezra-Nehemiah (as for Chronicles) is the development of liturgy. 11: The quoted words are a frequently occurring refrain in late Psalms (e.g., 106.1; 107.1; 118.1; 136.1). 12: The first house, Solomon’s Temple, destroyed in 586. Old people . . . wept, postexilic sources contrast the splendor of Solomon’s Temple with the less glorious, postexilic Second Temple. King Herod renovated this Temple magnificently in the first century BCE. 13: The sound was heard far away, the rejoicing alerts the neighbors and triggers the opposition.

4.1–6.22: Opposition and support (including Aramaic documents). The edict of Cyrus authorized rebuilding the Temple, which according to several biblical sources was completed in 515 BCE, during the reign of Darius I. Ezra 4–6 explains the delay in building by describing opposition from neighbors to the building project.

4.1–24: Opposition from neighbors halts rebuilding. The opposition reflects competition for political and perhaps economic privileges within the Persian empire, as well as the definition of religious legitimacy. This section uses material out of chronological order to explain persistent hostilities and thus to account for the delay in rebuilding. 1–6: Initial opposition. Ezra 4 presents the would-be supporters, soon to become adversaries, as self-proclaimed foreigners, which accounts for their exclusion from this particular sacred project. 2: We

us build with you, for we worship your God as you do, and we have been sacrificing to him ever since the days of King Esar-haddon of Assyria who brought us here.”³ But Zerubbabel, Jeshua, and the rest of the heads of families in Israel said to them, “You shall have no part with us in building a house to our God; but we alone will build to the LORD, the God of Israel, as King Cyrus of Persia has commanded us.”

⁴Then the people of the land discouraged the people of Judah, and made them afraid to build,⁵ and they bribed officials to frustrate their plan throughout the reign of King Cyrus of Persia and until the reign of King Darius of Persia.

⁶In the reign of Ahasuerus, in his accession year, they wrote an accusation against the inhabitants of Judah and Jerusalem.

⁷And in the days of Artaxerxes, Bishlam and Mithredath and Tabeel and the rest of their associates wrote to King Artaxerxes of Persia; the letter was written in Aramaic and translated.^a

⁸Rehum the royal deputy and Shimshai the scribe wrote a letter against Jerusalem to King

Artaxerxes as follows⁹ (then Rehum the royal deputy, Shimshai the scribe, and the rest of their associates, the judges, the envoys, the officials, the Persians, the people of Erech, the Babylonians, the people of Susa, that is, the Elamites,¹⁰ and the rest of the nations whom the great and noble Osnappar deported and settled in the cities of Samaria and in the rest of the province Beyond the River wrote—and now¹¹ this is a copy of the letter that they sent):

“To King Artaxerxes: Your servants, the people of the province Beyond the River, send greeting. And now¹² may it be known to the king that the Jews who came up from you to us have gone to Jerusalem. They are rebuilding that rebellious and wicked city; they are finishing the walls and repairing the foundations.¹³ Now may it be known to the

^a Heb adds in Aramaic, indicating that 4.8–6.18 is in Aramaic. Another interpretation is The letter was written in the Aramaic script and set forth in the Aramaic language

worship your God, according to 2 Kings 17, Assyria forcibly repopulated Samaria after deporting the Israelites, and these foreigners developed a syncretistic religion (2 Kings 17.41). Esar-haddon, king of Assyria (681–669). According to 2 Kings 17.3; 18.9, the king who resettled foreigners in northern Israel in 722 BCE was Shalmaneser (727–722); see 2 Kings 17.24. 3: We alone will build . . . as King Cyrus . . . commanded us, the rebuilders claim that Cyrus’s decree applies only to them, the sole legitimate remnant of Judah. Seeking to preserve ethnic and religious boundaries in the multicultural milieu of the Persian empire, as well as to protect the Temple’s sanctity, the returnees initially refuse partnership with other groups. Once the Temple is built, however, Ezra-Nehemiah shows some readiness to include outsiders (see 6.21). 4: The people of the land, local inhabitants. Although Ezra-Nehemiah implies that these people were all of foreign descent, the groups may have included Judeans who had not been in exile and did not share the ideology or practices of those who repatriated. Tension with the people of the land is later expressed in the crisis of mixed marriages (Ezra 9–10). 5: King Darius of Persia ruled 522–486 BCE. The Temple was rebuilt in his time (see 6.15). 6: Ahasuerus, or Xerxes I (486–465 BCE), prominent in the book of Esther. This document is not preserved. 7–24: Further opposition during the reign of Artaxerxes, who reigned in the fifth century BCE, after King Darius. The record of this opposition, which focuses on the rebuilding of Jerusalem’s walls, is out of chronological order and serves to document how foreign adversaries (e.g., 4.10) repeatedly sabotaged Jewish rebuilding. 7a: Artaxerxes I, king of Persia (465–424). According to Ezra 7–Neh 2, the missions of Ezra and Nehemiah took place during his reign. 7b–11: The report to the king comes from Persian officials located around Judah and local inhabitants. 7b: Aramaic, the lingua franca of the Persian period. The text continues in Aramaic until 6:18, suggesting a distinct Aramaic source for this information. 8–10: Various explanatory material. The letter begins only in v. 11. 10: Osnappar, Ashurbanipal, king of Assyria (669–627). Samaria, a designation for the northern Israelite region, named after its capital. In the Persian period Samaria emerged as a center of provincial administration as well. Province Beyond the River, the Persian satrapy west of the Euphrates River, including Yehud (Judah) and Samaria. By the fifth century BCE, Samaria and Yehud were separate provinces, each with its own governor.

4.11–16: The opponents’ letter. 12: Rebuilding that . . . city, Neh 1–7 records the rebuilding of the city in the twentieth year of Artaxerxes (444 BCE). 13–14: The opponents warn that Judean rebuilding will result in sedition and loss of income to the king. Ironically, however, their letter proves the antiquity of the city and of Jewish claims to it. Share the salt of the palace, an idiomatic expression of loyalty to the palace as well as of mutual king that, if this city is rebuilt and the walls finished, they will not pay tribute, custom, or toll, and the royal revenue will be reduced.

¹⁴ Now because we share the salt of the palace and it is not fitting for us to witness the king's dishonor, therefore we send and inform the king, ¹⁵ so that a search may be made in the annals of your ancestors. You will discover in the annals that this is a rebellious city, hurtful to kings and provinces, and that sedition was stirred up in it from long ago. On that account this city was laid waste. ¹⁶ We make known to the king that, if this city is rebuilt and its walls finished, you will then have no possession in the province Beyond the River."

¹⁷ The king sent an answer: "To Rehum the royal deputy and Shimshai the scribe and the rest of their associates who live in Samaria and in the rest of the province Beyond the River, greeting. And now ¹⁸ the letter that you sent to us has been read in translation before me. ¹⁹ So I made a decree, and someone searched and discovered that this city has risen against kings from long ago, and that rebellion and sedition have been made in it. ²⁰ Jerusalem has had mighty kings who ruled over the whole province Beyond the River, to whom tribute, custom, and toll were paid. ²¹ Therefore issue an order that these people be made to cease, and that this city not be rebuilt, until I make a decree. ²² Moreover, take care not to be slack in this matter; why should damage grow to the hurt of the king?"

²³ Then when the copy of King Artaxerxes' letter was read before Rehum and the scribe Shimshai and their associates, they hurried to the Jews in Jerusalem and by force and power made them cease. ²⁴ At that time the work on the house of God in Jerusalem stopped and was discontinued until the second year of the reign of King Darius of Persia.

5 Now the prophets, Haggai^a and Zechariah son of Iddo, prophesied to the Jews who were in Judah and Jerusalem, in the name of the God of Israel who was over them. ² Then Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel and Jeshua son of Jozadak set out to rebuild the house of God in Jerusalem; and with them were the prophets of God, helping them.

³ At the same time Tattenai the governor of the province Beyond the River and Shethar-bozenai and their associates came to them and spoke to them thus, "Who gave you a decree to build this house and to finish this structure?"

⁴ They^b also asked them this, "What are the names of the men who are building this building?" ⁵ But the eye of their God was upon the elders of the Jews, and they did not stop them until a report reached Darius and then answer was returned by letter in reply to it.

^a Aram adds the prophet

^b Gk Syr: Aram We

interests. 15: Annals of your ancestors, the Assyrians and Babylonians kept careful records, and the Persians inherited and enlarged their bureaucracy. Here, as elsewhere in Ezra-Nehemiah, written records play a crucial role in establishing authority. 16: No possession, revolt in Jerusalem will endanger Persian rule throughout the western region of the empire.

4.17–24: Royal response, prohibiting building. This correspondence in Artaxerxes' time in the fifth century BCE anachronistically explains the delay in rebuilding. 19: Rebellion and sedition, presumably a reference to earlier rebellions against Assyria and Babylonia. 21: Until I make a decree, this loophole will enable Nehemiah to secure a new decree. 24: At that time, the narrative resumes the story about the Temple that was interrupted after 4.5. The second year of . . . Darius, i.e., 520 BCE, when rebuilding resumes, as also in the books of Haggai and Zechariah.

5.1–6.12: Third step: resumption of rebuilding of the Temple. The prophets Haggai and Zechariah inspire the people to resume rebuilding, and the Temple is finally completed at the time of Darius, in 515 BCE, after King Darius supports and extends King Cyrus's permission. 5.1–2: Resumption of building begins with the urging of two prophets. 1: Haggai . . . and Zechariah, in the books of Haggai and Zechariah, these prophets exhort leaders and community to build, starting in the second year of Darius (520 BCE). 2: Then Zerubbabel . . . and Jeshua, see 2.1–2n.

5.3–17: New official Persian inquiry and correspondence lead to renewal of building permit. 3: Tattenai, a Persian official mentioned in nonbiblical sources as governor of the entire province Beyond the River, of which Yehud is a subunit (see 4.10n.).

⁶The copy of the letter that Tattenai the governor of the province Beyond the River and Shethar-bozenai and his associates the envoys who were in the province Beyond the River sent to King Darius; ⁷they sent him a report, in which was written as follows: “To Darius the king, all peace! ⁸May it be known to the king that we went to the province of Judah, to the house of the great God. It is being built of hewn stone, and timber is laid in the walls; this work is being done diligently and prospers in their hands. ⁹Then we spoke to those elders and asked them, ‘Who gave you a decree to build this house and to finish this structure?’ ¹⁰We also asked them their names, for your information, so that we might write down the names of the men at their head. ¹¹This was their reply to us: ‘We are the servants of the God of heaven and earth, and we are rebuilding the house that was built many years ago, which a great king of Israel built and finished. ¹²But because our ancestors had angered the God of heaven, he gave them into the hand of King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon, the Chaldean, who destroyed this house and carried away the people to Babylonia. ¹³However, King Cyrus of Babylon, in the first year of his reign, made a decree that this house of God should be rebuilt. ¹⁴Moreover, the gold and silver vessels of the house of God, which Nebuchadnezzar had taken out of the temple in Jerusalem and had brought into the temple of Babylon, these King Cyrus took out of the temple of Babylon, and they were delivered to a man named Sheshbazzar, whom he had made governor. ¹⁵He said to him, “Take these vessels; go and put them in the temple in Jerusalem, and let the house of God be rebuilt on its site.” ¹⁶Then this Sheshbazzar came and laid the foundations of the house of God in Jerusalem; and from that time until now it has been under construction, and it is not yet finished.’ ¹⁷And now, if it seems good to the king, have a search made in the royal archives there in Babylon, to see whether a decree was issued by King Cyrus for the rebuilding of this house of God in Jerusalem. Let the king send us his pleasure in this matter.”

6 Then King Darius made a decree, and they searched the archives where the documents were stored in Babylon. ²But it was in Ecbatana, the capital in the province of Media, that a scroll was found on which this was written: “A record. ³In the first year of his reign, King Cyrus issued a decree: Concerning the house of God at Jerusalem, let the house be rebuilt, the place where sacrifices are offered and burnt offerings are brought;^a its height shall be sixty cubits and its width sixty cubits, ⁴with three courses of hewn stones and one course of timber; let the cost be paid from the royal treasury. ⁵Moreover, let the gold and silver vessels of the house of God, which Nebuchadnezzar took out of the temple in Jerusalem and brought to Babylon, be restored and brought back to the temple in Jerusalem, each to its place; you shall put them in the house of God.”

^a Meaning of Aram uncertain

5.6–17: New correspondence from sympathetic officials reverses the letters of 4.7–16. Tattenai the governor does not stop the builders while waiting for further instructions from King Darius. 8: Judah, Yehud in the Aramaic text, is the name of the province in the Persian period, as is evident in extant seals and seal impressions. Tattenai’s report indicates building activities well in progress. 11–16: This report generally parallels Ezra 1, but emphasizes Sheshbazzar’s role as governor and does not mention Zerubbabel. 11: A great king, Solomon; see 2 Chr 3–4. 12: Nebuchadnezzar, see 1.7n. Chaldean, a late biblical term for the Babylonians. 13: King Cyrus of Babylon, the Persian king who controlled Babylon, where the Temple treasures were stored; see Ezra 1. 14: Sheshbazzar, see 1.7n. 1 Esdras 6.18, which parallels this account, also mentions Zerubbabel. 17: Tattenai seeks to ascertain both whether Cyrus authorized building, and if Darius wishes it to continue.

6.1–12: Darius’s edict in support of the Temple. A discovery of Cyrus’s memorandum confirms the legitimacy of the Temple in Jerusalem and brings additional support from King Darius. 2: Ecbatana, the summer residence of Persian kings, now Hamadan in Iran. 3–5: This archival version of Cyrus’s decree emphasizes building size and funding; it is more generous than the public version (Ezra 1.1–4), explicitly offering royal financial support (v. 4). The relation between the two versions is uncertain. 3: Sixty cubits, a cubit is about 18 in (45 cm). The measurements are incomplete, not mentioning length (unless a square building is intended). 6–12: Darius’s support of

⁶ “Now you, Tattenai, governor of the province Beyond the River, Shethar-bozenai, and you, their associates, the envoys in the province Beyond the River, keep away; ⁷ let the work on this house of God alone; let the governor of the Jews and the elders of the Jews rebuild this house of God on its site. ⁸ Moreover I make a decree regarding what you shall do for these elders of the Jews for the rebuilding of this house of God: the cost is to be paid to these people, in full and without delay, from the royal revenue, the tribute of the province Beyond the River. ⁹ Whatever is needed—young bulls, rams, or sheep for burnt offerings to the God of heaven, wheat, salt, wine, or oil, as the priests in Jerusalem require—let that be given to them day by day without fail, ¹⁰ so that they may offer pleasing sacrifices to the God of heaven, and pray for the life of the king and his children. ¹¹ Furthermore I decree that if anyone alters this edict, a beam shall be pulled out of the house of the perpetrator, who then shall be impaled on it. The house shall be made a dunghill. ¹² May the God who has established his name there overthrow any king or people that shall put forth a hand to alter this, or to destroy this house of God in Jerusalem. I, Darius, make a decree; let it be done with all diligence.”

¹³ Then, according to the word sent by King Darius, Tattenai, the governor of the province Beyond the River, Shethar-bozenai, and their associates did with all diligence what King Darius had ordered. ¹⁴ So the elders of the Jews built and prospered, through the prophesying of the prophet Haggai and Zechariah son of Iddo. They finished their building by command of the God of Israel and by decree of Cyrus, Darius, and King Artaxerxes of Persia; ¹⁵ and this house was finished on the third day of the month of Adar, in the sixth year of the reign of King Darius.

¹⁶ The people of Israel, the priests and the Levites, and the rest of the returned exiles, celebrated the dedication of this house of God with joy. ¹⁷ They offered at the dedication of this house of God one hundred bulls, two hundred rams, four hundred lambs, and as a sin offering for all Israel, twelve male goats, according to the number of the tribes of Israel. ¹⁸ Then they set the priests in their divisions and the Levites in their courses for the service of God at Jerusalem, as it is written in the book of Moses.

the Temple is extremely generous. If the information is reliable, it might indicate Persia's attempt to stabilize its hold in the Mediterranean area by securing the goodwill of the people of Yehud. Nonbiblical sources show that Darius also supported Egypt's religious institutions. 7: Governor, Tattenai does not name a contemporary governor of Yehud itself (presumably Zerubbabel). 8: The cost, Darius designates provincial revenue for the Temple, although this may antagonize other local, taxpaying districts.

6.13–18: The completion of the Temple. The Temple is finally completed, an accomplishment credited to the Judeans guided by God and authorized by three Persian kings. This concludes Stage One of the return and reconstruction. It will be followed by Stage Two, reconstructing the community in Ezra 7–10, and by Stage Three, rebuilding Jerusalem's walls in Neh 1–7. 14: The conclusion highlights the elders and prophetic inspiration. Cyrus, Darius, and King Artaxerxes, according to Ezra 1–6, the Temple itself was rebuilt during Cyrus's and Darius's reigns, and completed in 515 BCE, before the time of Artaxerxes (464–424 BCE); hence his name in the list is at first puzzling. It can be explained in terms of Ezra-Nehemiah's larger understanding that the fuller restoration of the house of God goes beyond the Temple to include the rebuilding of the community by Ezra and the city by Nehemiah, culminating in Neh 7 under Artaxerxes. Ezra 6.14 thus suggests the unity of Ezra-Nehemiah. The joint authorization, first by God and then by kings, is crucial to Ezra-Nehemiah's historical and theological understanding. 15: Finished on the third day . . . of Adar . . . sixth year, March 12, 515 BCE.

6.16–22: The concluding dedication. The dedication of the Temple is described briefly. A more extensive celebration in Ezra-Nehemiah will follow the rebuilding of the city's walls as the completion of the entire “house of God” (Neh 8–13). 16: People of Israel, i.e., the returned exiles (lit. “sons of exile”) who now represent the fullness of Israel. 17: Sin offering, or purification offering; see Num 7. Twelve male goats . . . the number of the tribes, the remnant that includes only Judah, Benjamin, and the Levites nevertheless worships on behalf of the full house of Israel, which it now represents. 18: Written in the book of Moses, Ex 29; Lev 8; and Num 3; 4; and 8 designate priestly and levitical tasks. Ezra-Nehemiah stresses the religious legitimacy of the Temple, which ¹⁹On the fourteenth day of the first month the returned exiles kept the passover. ²⁰For both the priests and the Levites had purified themselves; all of them were clean. So they killed the passover lamb for all the returned exiles, for their fellow priests, and for themselves. ²¹It was eaten by the people of Israel who had returned from exile, and also by all who had joined them and separated themselves from the pollutions of the nations of the land to worship the LORD, the God of Israel. ²²With joy they celebrated the festival of unleavened bread seven days; for the LORD had made them joyful, and had turned the heart of the king of Assyria to them, so that he aided them in the work on the house of God, the God of Israel.

7 After this, in the reign of King Artaxerxes of Persia, Ezra son of Seraiah, son of Azariah, son of Hilkiah, ²son of Shallum, son of Zadok, son of Ahitub, ³son of Amariah, son of Azariah, son of Meraioth, ⁴son of Zerariah, son of Uzzi, son of Bukki, ⁵son of Abishua, son of Phinehas, son of Eleazar, son of the chief priest Aaron— ⁶this Ezra went up from Babylonia. He was a scribe skilled in the law of Moses that the LORD the God of Israel had given; and the king granted him all that he asked, for the hand of the LORD his God was upon him.

⁷Some of the people of Israel, and some of the priests and Levites, the singers and gatekeepers, and the temple servants also went up to Jerusalem, in the seventh year of King Artaxerxes. ⁸They came to Jerusalem in the fifth month, which was in the seventh year of the king. ⁹On the first day of the first month the journey up from Babylon was begun, and on the first day of the fifth month he came to Jerusalem, for the gracious hand of his God was upon him. ¹⁰For Ezra had set his heart to study the law of the LORD, and to do it, and to teach the statutes and ordinances in Israel.

¹¹This is a copy of the letter that King Artaxerxes gave to the priest Ezra, the scribe, a scholar of the text of the commandments of the LORD and his statutes for Israel: ¹²“Arta-complements the political legitimacy granted by Cyrus and Darius. 19–22: Celebrating the passover and the festival of unleavened bread (some five weeks after the Temple’s dedication) has special significance for the reconstruction because the return from exile was viewed by some as a second Exodus (cf. Isa 52.11–12). 20: They killed, the priestly laws of Lev 23.4–6 are followed here. 21: All who had joined them, whereas the returnees excluded others from the act of rebuilding, reserving the task to “God’s people” explicitly commissioned by Cyrus (Ezra 1:2–4 and 4:3), others may join once the Temple is rebuilt, following Ex 12.48, which notes that circumcised non-Israelites may participate in the Passover offering. 22: King of Assyria, an anachronistic reference to the Persian king, alluding to the earliest exile by Assyria, which is now reversed.

7.1–10.44: Stage Two of reconstruction: the mission of Ezra and the reformation of the community according to the Torah. Ezra’s mission focuses on the processes by which the community restructures itself to conform to an interpretation of the law that requires a separation from the people of the land. The implicit chronology in Ezra–Nehemiah places this event in 458 BCE, during the reign of Artaxerxes I, though some scholars believe that the date should be 398 BCE, during the reign of Artaxerxes II.

7.1–10: The narrator’s introduction of Ezra. 1–6: Ezra’s long pedigree establishes his impeccable credentials both as priest of the most distinguished line and as scribe—the two roles that will account for his stature and acceptance within the Jewish community. 1: Artaxerxes, probably Artaxerxes I (465–424 BCE); see Introduction. 5: Chief priest, Ezra is identified as one qualified to serve as a chief or high priest, even though he never undertakes this role in Ezra–Nehemiah. 6: Scribe, a highly educated person, often in an important advisory position to kings. Skilled in the law of Moses, knowledgeable about the Torah. 7: Israel . . . priests . . . Levites, Ezra’s caravan includes the same basic groups as Ezra 2. The seventh year of king Artaxerxes, 458 BCE. 8: The fifth month, Ab (July–August). 9: The first day of the first month, i.e., Nisan (March–April), two weeks before Passover. The dates may be symbolic, reflecting the Exodus from Egypt in the first month (Ex 12.2; Num 33.3) and the destruction of the Temple in the fifth (2 Kings 25.8). However, five months would be a reasonable time for a journey from Babylon to Jerusalem. 10: Ezra’s goals of studying, teaching, and practicing God’s law account for his subsequent actions and model Jewish aspirations. These add to his credentials as priest and establish his qualifications as an authoritative teacher of God’s law.

7.11–26: Royal introduction of Ezra and his mission. This Aramaic royal letter establishes Ezra’s credentials within the Persian bureaucracy. It reauthorizes immigration to Judah (v. 13) and royal subsidy for the Temple (vv.

xerxes, king of kings, to the priest Ezra, the scribe of the law of the God of heaven: Peace.^a And now ¹³I decree that any of the people of Israel or their priests or Levites in my kingdom who freely offers to go to Jerusalem may go with you. ¹⁴For you are sent by the king and his seven counselors to make inquiries about Judah and Jerusalem according to the law of your God, which is in your hand, ¹⁵and also to convey the silver and gold that the king and his counselors have freely offered to the God of Israel, whose dwelling is in Jerusalem, ¹⁶with all the silver and gold that you shall find in the whole province of Babylonia, and with the freewill offerings of the people and the priests, given willingly for the house of their God in Jerusalem. ¹⁷With this money, then, you shall with all diligence buy bulls, rams, and lambs, and their grain offerings and their drink offerings, and you shall offer them on the altar of the house of your God in Jerusalem. ¹⁸Whatever seems good to you and your colleagues to do with the rest of the silver and gold, you may do, according to the will of your God. ¹⁹The vessels that have been given you for the service of the house of your God, you shall deliver before the God of Jerusalem. ²⁰And whatever else is required for the house of your God, which you are responsible for providing, you may provide out of the king's treasury.

²¹"I, King Artaxerxes, decree to all the treasurers in the province Beyond the River: Whatever the priest Ezra, the scribe of the law of the God of heaven, requires of you, let it be done with all diligence, ²²up to one hundred talents of silver, one hundred cors of wheat, one hundred baths^b of wine, one hundred baths^b of oil, and unlimited salt. ²³Whatever is commanded by the God of heaven, let it be done with zeal for the house of the God of heaven, or wrath will come upon the realm of the king and his heirs. ²⁴We also notify you that it shall not be lawful to impose tribute, custom, or toll on any of the priests, the Levites, the singers, the doorkeepers, the temple servants, or other servants of this house of God.

²⁵"And you, Ezra, according to the God-given wisdom you possess, appoint magistrates and judges who may judge all the people in the province Beyond the River who know the laws of your God; and you shall teach those who do not know them. ²⁶All who will not obey the law of your God and the law of the king, let judgment be strictly executed on them, whether for death or for banishment or for confiscation of their goods or for imprisonment."

²⁷Blessed be the LORD, the God of our ancestors, who put such a thing as this into the heart of the king to glorify the house of the LORD in Jerusalem, ²⁸and who extended to me steadfast love before the king and his counselors, and before all the king's mighty officers. I took courage, for the hand of the LORD my God was upon me, and I gathered leaders from Israel to go up with me.

^a Syr Vg 1 Esdras 8.9: Aram Perfect

^b A Heb measure of volume

14–24). It seems to place the Torah on equal footing with royal law (v. 26). 14: Seven counselors, Persian royal advisers (see Esth 1.14 and Herodotus, Histories 3.84). The law of your God, referring in Ezra-Nehemiah to the book of the Torah. 15–19: The royal privileges include financial support for the Temple by the king himself, voluntary contributions from Babylonian Jews for the Temple, and a free hand to use the surplus. 20: Artaxerxes virtually gives Ezra a blank check, showing great trust in Ezra. 21–24: Artaxerxes assures a generous year's supply of provisions for the Temple. 21: Additional support is to come from local officials. 22: A talent was 75 lb (34 kg); a cor 6.5 bushels (230 l); and a bath about 6 gal (23 l). 24: Tax exemption for Temple personnel is unusual. 25: All the people probably means Jews in the province. 26: The king affirms Ezra's comprehensive authority, as well as the Torah's. The law of your God and the law of the king, this crucial phrase sets the Torah as legally authoritative for the Jewish community in Yehud. It implies something akin to autonomy and self-rule in matters of religion and the Temple. For some scholars, it suggests that the Torah was compiled by Ezra as a result of Persian authorization and encouragement, but this is not stated.

7.27–9.15: Ezra's memoirs. The text resumes in Hebrew, with Ezra as narrator. He will describe the journey and the crisis of mixed marriages.

7.27–8.36: Ezra's journey and arrival. 7.27–28: Ezra expresses gratitude to God, rather than to the king.

8 These are their family heads, and this is the genealogy of those who went up with me from Babylonia, in the reign of King Artaxerxes: ²Of the descendants of Phinehas, Gershom. Of Ithamar, Daniel. Of David, Hattush, ³of the descendants of Shecaniah. Of Parosh, Zechariah, with whom were registered one hundred fifty males. ⁴Of the descendants of Pahath-moab, Eliehoenai son of Zeremiah, and with him two hundred males. ⁵Of the descendants of Zattu,^a Shecaniah son of Jahaziel, and with him three hundred males. ⁶Of the descendants of Adin, Ebed son of Jonathan, and with him fifty males. ⁷Of the descendants of Elam, Jeshaiiah son of Athaliah, and with him seventy males. ⁸Of the descendants of Shephatiah, Zebadiah son of Michael, and with him eighty males. ⁹Of the descendants of Joab, Obadiah son of Jehiel, and with him two hundred eighteen males. ¹⁰Of the descendants of Bani,^b Shelomith son of Josiphiah, and with him one hundred sixty males. ¹¹Of the descendants of Bebai, Zechariah son of Bebai, and with him twenty-eight males. ¹²Of the descendants of Azgad, Johanan son of Hakkatan, and with him one hundred ten males. ¹³Of the descendants of Adonikam, those who came later, their names being Eliphelet, Jeuel, and Shemaiah, and with them sixty males. ¹⁴Of the descendants of Bigvai, Uthai and Zaccur, and with them seventy males.

¹⁵I gathered them by the river that runs to Ahava, and there we camped three days. As I reviewed the people and the priests, I found there none of the descendants of Levi.

¹⁶Then I sent for Eliezer, Ariel, Shemaiah, Elnathan, Jarib, Elnathan, Nathan, Zechariah, and Meshullam, who were leaders, and for Jojarib and Elnathan, who were wise,¹⁷ and sent them to Iddo, the leader at the place called Casiphia, telling them what to say to Iddo and his colleagues the temple servants at Casiphia, namely, to send us ministers for the house of our God. ¹⁸Since the gracious hand of our God was upon us, they brought us a man of discretion, of the descendants of Mahli son of Levi son of Israel, namely Sherebiah, with his sons and kin, eighteen;¹⁹ also Hashabiah and with him Jeshaiiah of the descendants of Merari, with his kin and their sons, twenty;²⁰ besides two hundred twenty of the temple servants, whom David and his officials had set apart to attend the Levites. These were all mentioned by name.

²¹Then I proclaimed a fast there, at the river Ahava, that we might deny ourselves^c before our God, to seek from him a safe journey for ourselves, our children, and all our possessions. ²²For I was ashamed to ask the king for a band of soldiers and cavalry to protect us against the enemy on our way, since we had told the king that the hand of our God is gracious to all who seek him, but his power and his wrath are against all who forsake him. ²³So we fasted and petitioned our God for this, and he listened to our entreaty.

²⁴Then I set apart twelve of the leading priests: Sherebiah, Hashabiah, and ten of their kin with them. ²⁵And I weighed out to them the silver and the gold and the vessels, the offering for the house of our God that the king, his counselors, his lords, and all Israel there present had offered; ²⁶I weighed out into their hand six hundred fifty talents of silver, and one hundred silver vessels worth . . .

^a Gk 1 Esdras 8.32: Heb lacks of Zattu

^b Gk 1 Esdras 8.36: Heb lacks Bani

^c Or might fast

8.1–20: Ezra's caravan numbers about 1,500 men (women are not mentioned); like Ezra 2, the list mingles clan names and place names, although some important individuals are also singled out. 2: Hattush, 1 Chr 3.22 mentions a descendant of David with this name, although nothing further is reported about him. Apparently some Davidic descendants remained in Babylonia after the return to Judah had begun. 4–20: The additional members and clans in Ezra's caravan include names that already appeared in Ezra 2 (e.g., Pahath-moab in Ezra 2.6 and 8.4). 15: Ahava, an unknown location along one of the canals of the river Euphrates. None of . . . Levi, Ezra demonstrates concern for the proper maintenance of the Temple and broadens the scope of its personnel to include the lesser officials. 21–30: Ezra requires of the community spiritual as well as physical preparations. 21: Fast, a common preparation for beseeching God. All our possessions, even with the well-guarded royal roads, a long journey was hazardous, especially when transporting gold and silver. 22: I was ashamed, Ezra's timidity and trust indicate that God's power is ultimately greater than that of the Persian king's army. 24–30: Further talents,^a and one hundred talents of gold, ²⁷ twenty gold bowls worth a thousand darics, and two vessels of fine polished bronze as precious as gold. ²⁸ And I said to them, “You are holy to the LORD, and the vessels are holy; and the silver and the gold are a freewill offering to the LORD, the God of your ancestors. ²⁹ Guard them and keep them until you weigh them before the chief priests and the Levites and the heads of families in Israel at Jerusalem, within the chambers of the house of the LORD.” ³⁰ So the priests and the Levites took over the silver, the gold, and the vessels as they were weighed out, to bring them to Jerusalem, to the house of our God.

³¹ Then we left the river Ahava on the twelfth day of the first month, to go to Jerusalem; the hand of our God was upon us, and he delivered us from the hand of the enemy and from ambushes along the way. ³² We came to Jerusalem and remained there three days. ³³ On the fourth day, within the house of our God, the silver, the gold, and the vessels were weighed into the hands of the priest Meremoth son of Uriah, and with him was Eleazar son of Phinehas, and with them were the Levites, Jozabad son of Jeshua and Noadiah son of Binnui. ³⁴ The total was counted and weighed, and the weight of everything was recorded.

³⁵ At that time those who had come from captivity, the returned exiles, offered burnt offerings to the God of Israel, twelve bulls for all Israel, ninety-six rams, seventy-seven lambs, and as a sin offering twelve male goats; all this was a burnt offering to the LORD. ³⁶ They also delivered the king’s commissions to the king’s satraps and to the governors of the province Beyond the River; and they supported the people and the house of God.

9 After these things had been done, the officials approached me and said, “The people of Israel, the priests, and the Levites have not separated themselves from the peoples of the lands with their abominations, from the Canaanites, the Hittites, the Perizzites, the Jebusites, the Ammonites, the Moabites, the Egyptians, and the Amorites. ² For they have taken some of their daughters as wives for themselves and for their sons. Thus the holy seed has mixed itself with the peoples of the lands, and in this faithlessness the officials and leaders have led the way.”

³ When I heard this, I tore my garment and

^a The number of talents is lacking

preparations that empower the clergy. 26: Talents weigh about 75 lbs (34 kg) each. 27: Darics, see 2.69n. 28: The vessels are holy, holiness is derived from their dedication to God; these are not vessels from the First Temple. 31–36: Arrival and celebration. 31: Twelfth day of the first month (Nisan [March–April]), two days before the Passover commemorating the Exodus. A new Exodus may be implicit; however, for reasons of weather, spring was the season for expeditions (see 2 Sam 11.1). 33: Ezra ensures that the gifts are transferred to both priests and Levites. 35: Returned exiles, the restored community. 36: Satraps, high officials in the Persian government, usually provincial governors.

9.1–15: The crisis of mixed marriages. The crisis in Stage Two of the reconstruction comes when men, including Jewish leaders, marry foreign women. To ensure survival as a small (see Ezra 9.8) minority in the midst of surrounding cultures, Ezra-Nehemiah advocates separatist policies. In this section, it calls for excluding foreign wives and their children from the community. The concern with intermarriages resembles the Athenian laws of 451 BCE, which demanded that both parents be Athenian if a person was to be considered a citizen. The similar concern in Ezra-Nehemiah may, therefore, be also related to the greater power bestowed upon community members. 1: Have not separated, Deut 7.1–5 prohibits any relation with the people of Canaan, and Deut 20.15–18 further demands their annihilation on the ground that they lead to religious defection. Ezra-Nehemiah substitutes separation for destruction. Their abominations, from the Canaanites, more accurately, “their abominations like the Canaanites.” The informants equate the religious practices of the present inhabitants with those of the earlier nations at the time of Joshua. Canaanites . . . Amorites, Deut 7 specifically prohibits relations with Canaanites, Perizzites, Hittites, Jebusites, and Amorites. Deut 23.3–8 specifically excludes Ammonites and Moabites from the congregation, but permits the incorporation of Egyptians at some point. This verse has thus extended the range of the earlier prohibition. The targeted prohibited families probably include Judeans who had not gone into exile. 2: Holy seed is progeny dedicated through birth to God. The term probably reflects Isa 6.13, in reference to the purified remnant.

my mantle, and pulled hair from my head and beard, and sat appalled. ⁴ Then all who trembled at the words of the God of Israel, because of the faithlessness of the returned exiles, gathered around me while I sat appalled until the evening sacrifice.

⁵ At the evening sacrifice I got up from my fasting, with my garments and my mantle torn, and fell on my knees, spread out my hands to the LORD my God, ⁶ and said,

“O my God, I am too ashamed and embarrassed to lift my face to you, my God, for our iniquities have risen higher than our heads, and our guilt has mounted up to the heavens. ⁷ From the days of our ancestors to this day we have been deep in guilt, and for our iniquities we, our kings, and our priests have been handed over to the kings of the lands, to the sword, to captivity, to plundering, and to utter shame, as is now the case. ⁸ But now for a brief moment favor has been shown by the LORD our God, who has left us a remnant, and given us a stake in his holy place, in order that he^a may brighten our eyes and grant us a little sustenance in our slavery. ⁹ For we are slaves; yet our God has not forsaken us in our slavery, but has extended to us his steadfast love before the kings of Persia, to give us new life to set up the house of our God, to repair its ruins, and to give us a wall in Judea and Jerusalem.

¹⁰ “And now, our God, what shall we say after this? For we have forsaken your commandments, ¹¹ which you commanded by your servants the prophets, saying, ‘The land that you are entering to possess is a land unclean with the pollutions of the peoples of the lands, with their abominations. They have filled it from end to end with their uncleanness. ¹² Therefore do not give your daughters to their sons, neither take their daughters for your sons, and never seek their peace or prosperity, so that you may be strong and eat the good of the land and leave it for an inheritance to your children forever.’ ¹³ After all that has come upon us for our evil deeds and for our great guilt, seeing that you, our God, have punished us less than our iniquities deserved and have given us such a remnant as this, ¹⁴ shall we break your commandments again and intermarry with the peoples who practice these abominations? Would you not be angry with us until you destroy us without remnant or survivor? ¹⁵ O LORD, God of Israel, you are just, but we have escaped as a remnant, as is now the case. Here we are before you in our guilt, though no one can face you because of this.”

10 While Ezra prayed and made confession, weeping and throwing himself down before the house of God, a very great assembly of men, women, and children gathered to him out of Israel; the people also wept bitterly. ² Shecaniah son of Jehiel, of the

^a Heb our God

9.3–4: Ezra reacts with mourning and prayer. His penitence produces remorse and generates communal action.

9.5–15: Ezra’s prayer. More a sermon than a confession, the prayer rehearses events of the past in order to alter community behavior. Like the prophets and the Deuteronomistic History, Ezra interprets Israel’s political devastation as the consequence of religious and moral failings by Israel, and uses the fear of a recurrence to motivate the community to separate from the other inhabitants of the land. 7: As is now the case, the end of exile is understood as a result of divine forgiveness, not Israel’s changed behavior. 8: Little sustenance, Ezra’s confession expresses the vulnerability of a small remnant. 9: For we are slaves, i.e., a colonized people under Persian control. Repair its ruins, i.e., physical and spiritual reconstruction. A wall, actually “a fence,” a metaphor for a weak protective barrier. 11–12: This paraphrase and blending of Priestly (Lev 18.24–30) and Deuteronomistic (Deut 7.3–4) material is characteristic of this period, when the Torah as a book became authoritative.

10.1–44: Resolution of crisis. The crisis is resolved through communal consensus to reinterpret earlier laws and apply them to present circumstances, and therefore to oppose mixed marriages within the covenant community.

10.1–6: The impact of Ezra’s prayer. Ezra’s prayer (see the similar later prayer in Dan 9) attracts a crowd and inspires remorse and repentance. 2: Have married, (lit. “have settled”), i.e., established on the land. Inheritance of land is a concern (see Ezra 9.12; Deut 7). The proposal to exclude foreign wives comes from Shecaniah, a community member (his father’s name, Jehiel, appears in 10.26 among the transgressors). The resolution will be

Judah and its neighbors in Ezra-Nehemia.

descendants of Elam, addressed Ezra, saying, “We have broken faith with our God and have married foreign women from the peoples of the land, but even now there is hope for Israel in spite of this. ³ So now let us make a covenant with our God to send away all these wives and their children, according to the counsel of my lord and of those who tremble at the commandment of our God; and let it be done according to the law. ⁴ Take action, for it is your duty, and we are with you; be strong, and do it.” ⁵ Then Ezra stood up and made the leading priests, the Levites, and all Israel swear that they would do as had been said. So they swore.

⁶ Then Ezra withdrew from before the house of God, and went to the chamber of Jehohanan son of Eliashib, where he spent the determined by consensus. 3: The children of such marriages are to be sent away as well, thereby not separated from their mothers. Let it be done according to the law, the Pentateuch does not include a law that demands dissolving mixed marriages. The reference implies an interpretation, applying a prohibition against such marriages to these new circumstances. 4-5: The people authorize Ezra to act. Although authorized by the Persian king, Ezra only assumes a leadership role when the community invites him to do so. 6: The chamber, an office night.³ He did not eat bread or drink water, for he was mourning over the faithlessness of the exiles.⁷ They made a proclamation throughout Judah and Jerusalem to all the returned exiles that they should assemble at Jerusalem,⁸ and that if any did not come within three days, by order of the officials and the elders all their property should be forfeited, and they themselves banned from the congregation of the exiles.

⁹ Then all the people of Judah and Benjamin assembled at Jerusalem within the three days; it was the ninth month, on the twentieth day of the month. All the people sat in the open square before the house of God, trembling because of this matter and because of the heavy rain.¹⁰ Then Ezra the priest stood up and said to them, “You have trespassed and married foreign women, and so increased the guilt of Israel.¹¹ Now make confession to the LORD the God of your ancestors, and do his will; separate yourselves from the peoples of the land and from the foreign wives.”¹² Then all the assembly answered with a loud voice, “It is so; we must do as you have said.¹³ But the people are many, and it is a time of heavy rain; we cannot stand in the open. Nor is this a task for one day or for two, for many of us have transgressed in this matter.¹⁴ Let our officials represent the whole assembly, and let all in our towns who have taken foreign wives come at appointed times, and with them the elders and judges of every town, until the fierce wrath of our God on this account is averted from us.”¹⁵ Only Jonathan son of Asahel and Jahzeiah son of Tikvah opposed this, and Meshullam and Shabbethai the Levites supported them.

¹⁶ Then the returned exiles did so. Ezra the priest selected men,^b heads of families, according to their families, each of them designated by name. On the first day of the tenth month they sat down to examine the matter.¹⁷ By the first day of the first month they had come to the end of all the men who had married foreign women.

¹⁸ There were found of the descendants of the priests who had married foreign women, of the descendants of Jeshua son of Jozadak and his brothers: Maaseiah, Eliezer, Jarib, and Gedaliah.¹⁹ They pledged themselves to send away their wives, and their guilt offering

^a 1 Esdras 9.2: Heb where he went

^b 1 Esdras 9.16: Syr: Heb And there were selected Ezra,

within the Temple complex that as a priest, Ezra may use. Jehohanan son of Eliashib appears in the priestly lists (Neh 12.23), although both names are common in the postexilic period.

10.7–8: Steps toward resolution. These include an invitation to an assembly for the purpose of communal decision, and a threat in case of noncompliance. Although Artaxerxes’ letter authorizes Ezra to issue decrees, Ezra resorts to a communal process instead (see 10.5,16). Threats of confiscation apply to those who refuse to participate in the general assembly, not those who offer a different opinion as to what should be done.

10.9–15: A communal process for resolution. The report focuses on the process in which the entire community participates in deciding and enforcing criteria for membership. 9: Heavy rains are typical of the cold ninth month, Chislev (November–December). 10–11: Married (lit. “settled”); see 10.2n. This is Ezra’s first directive; he commands only at the invitation of the community. 12–14: The community assents and offers the mechanism for resolution. 14: Have taken (lit. “have settled”); see 10.2n. Again, the community is responsible for action, devising a representative form (“our officials”) of government. 15: A minority opposition is registered, establishing that majority decision carries even without unanimity. Meshullam could be Ezra’s companion in 8.16.

10.16–44: Results: compliance with communal decision. The issue of mixed marriages constitutes the first test of the new, legal status of the Torah, illustrating how an ancient book may shape the present and future through communal interpretive process. 16: The returned exiles did so on the basis of a democratic process. Ezra . . . selected men, the Hebrew text states that the community selects the committee, with Ezra serving as a member. This is consistent with the rest of Ezra–Nehemiah where the broader community plays a crucial role. 17: By the first day of the first month, the commission’s deliberations began in December 458 (v. 16) and concluded three months later in March 457 BCE, about one year after Ezra’s caravan first set out for Jerusalem (7.9). 18: Had married (lit. “had settled”); see 10.2n. Jeshua son of Jozadak, the high priest in the early return. See 2.1–2n. 18–19: The explicit report that the high priest’s family fully complied with the communal decision is crucial to the book’s reforms. It affirms the ultimate status of the Torah, as the priests, who have the most power, submit was a ram of the flock for their guilt.²⁰ Of the descendants of Immer: Hanani and Zebadiah.

²¹ Of the descendants of Harim: Maaseiah, Elijah, Shemaiah, Jehiel, and Uzziyah.²² Of the descendants of Pashhur: Elioenai, Maaseiah, Ishmael, Nethanel, Jozabad, and Elasaah.

²³ Of the Levites: Jozabad, Shimei, Kelaiah (that is, Kelita), Pethahiah, Judah, and Eliezer.²⁴ Of the singers: Eliashib. Of the gatekeepers: Shallum, Telem, and Uri.

²⁵ And of Israel: of the descendants of Parosh: Ramiah, Izziyah, Malchijah, Mijamin, Eleazar, Hashabiah,^a and Benaiah.²⁶ Of the descendants of Elam: Mattaniah, Zechariah, Jehiel, Abdi, Jeremoth, and Elijah.²⁷ Of the descendants of Zattu: Elioenai, Eliashib, Mattaniah, Jeremoth, Zabad, and Aziza.²⁸ Of the descendants of Bebai: Jehohanan, Hananiah, Zabbai, and Athlai.²⁹ Of the descendants of Bani: Meshullam, Malluch, Adaiah, Jashub, Sheal, and Jeremoth.³⁰ Of the descendants of Pahath-moab: Adna, Chelal, Benaiah, Maaseiah, Mattaniah, Bezalel, Binnui, and Manasseh.³¹ Of the descendants of Harim: Eliezer, Isshijah, Malchijah, Shemaiah, Shimeon,³² Benjamin, Malluch, and Shemariah.³³ Of the descendants of Hashum: Mattenai, Mattattah, Zabad, Eliphelet, Jeremai, Manasseh, and Shimei.³⁴ Of the descendants of Bani: Maadai, Amram, Uel,³⁵ Benaiah, Bedeiah, Cheluhi,³⁶ Vaniah, Meremoth, Eliashib,³⁷ Mattaniah, Mattenai, and Jaasu.³⁸ Of the descendants of Binnui:^b Shimei,³⁹ Shelemiah, Nathan, Adaiah,⁴⁰ Machnadebai, Shashai, Sharai,⁴¹ Azarel, Shelemiah, Shemariah,⁴² Shallum, Amariah, and Joseph.⁴³ Of the descendants of Nebo: Jeiel, Mattithiah, Zabad, Zebina, Jaddai, Joel, and Benaiah.⁴⁴ All these had married foreign women, and they sent them away with their children.^c

^a 1 Esdras 9.26 Gk: Heb Malchijah

^b Gk: Heb Bani, Binnui

^c 1 Esdras 9.36; meaning of Heb uncertain to its teachings. 20–44: List of other offenders. There are more than a hundred offenders (the names are not always distinct), including members of the high priest's family (v. 18). 44: They sent them away with their children, this sentence does not appear in Ezra 10, which ends abruptly, but comes from the later 1 Esdras. The Hebrew in Ezra 10.44 states: "Some had wives with whom they had sons." Ezra 10.44 thus does not report that the women and children of nonpriestly families were expelled. The conclusion of Stage Two (Ezra 7–10) focuses, rather, on establishing boundaries based on the Torah without resorting to military force (with emotional casualties that are not reported).

NEHEMIAH

The book of Nehemiah was originally the second section of a single book (Ezra–Nehemiah, preserved as Esdras b in the ancient Greek versions of the Bible); see further the Introduction to Ezra (pp. 667–668).

The Nehemiah section of Ezra–Nehemiah depicts the final stage of Jewish reconstruction after exile, featuring Nehemiah as the Jewish governor under Persian rule, who rebuilds Jerusalem’s walls (1.1–7.5) and oversees many reforms. Large portions of this book are called the Nehemiah memoir, a first-person account of his activities. The book’s structure continues the narrative that began with Ezra 1. Nehemiah 1 begins with Stage Three of the return from exile, when Nehemiah rebuilds Jerusalem’s walls (Neh 1.1–7.5). This is followed by the repetition of the list of returnees (7.6–7.3; see Ezra 2) that frames the three stages of return and reconstruction. The book concludes with the grand celebration of the reconstruction by the rededicated community, now organized according to the Torah, the “law of Moses” (chs 8–13), with rebuilt Jerusalem as its holy city.

Nehemiah is presented as a dynamic, enterprising man who achieves his goal of rebuilding despite repeated interference from other leaders such as the governor of Samaria (see 2.9–10). Although he does not appear elsewhere in the Hebrew Bible, Nehemiah is mentioned in 2 Macc 1.19–36 and Sirach 49.13.

Tamara Cohn Eskenazi

1 The words of Nehemiah son of Hacaliah. In the month of Chislev, in the twentieth year, while I was in Susa the capital, ² one of my brothers, Hanani, came with certain men from Judah; and I asked them about the Jews that survived, those who had escaped the captivity, and about Jerusalem. ³ They replied, “The survivors there in the province who escaped captivity are in great trouble and shame; the wall of Jerusalem is broken down, and its gates have been destroyed by fire.”

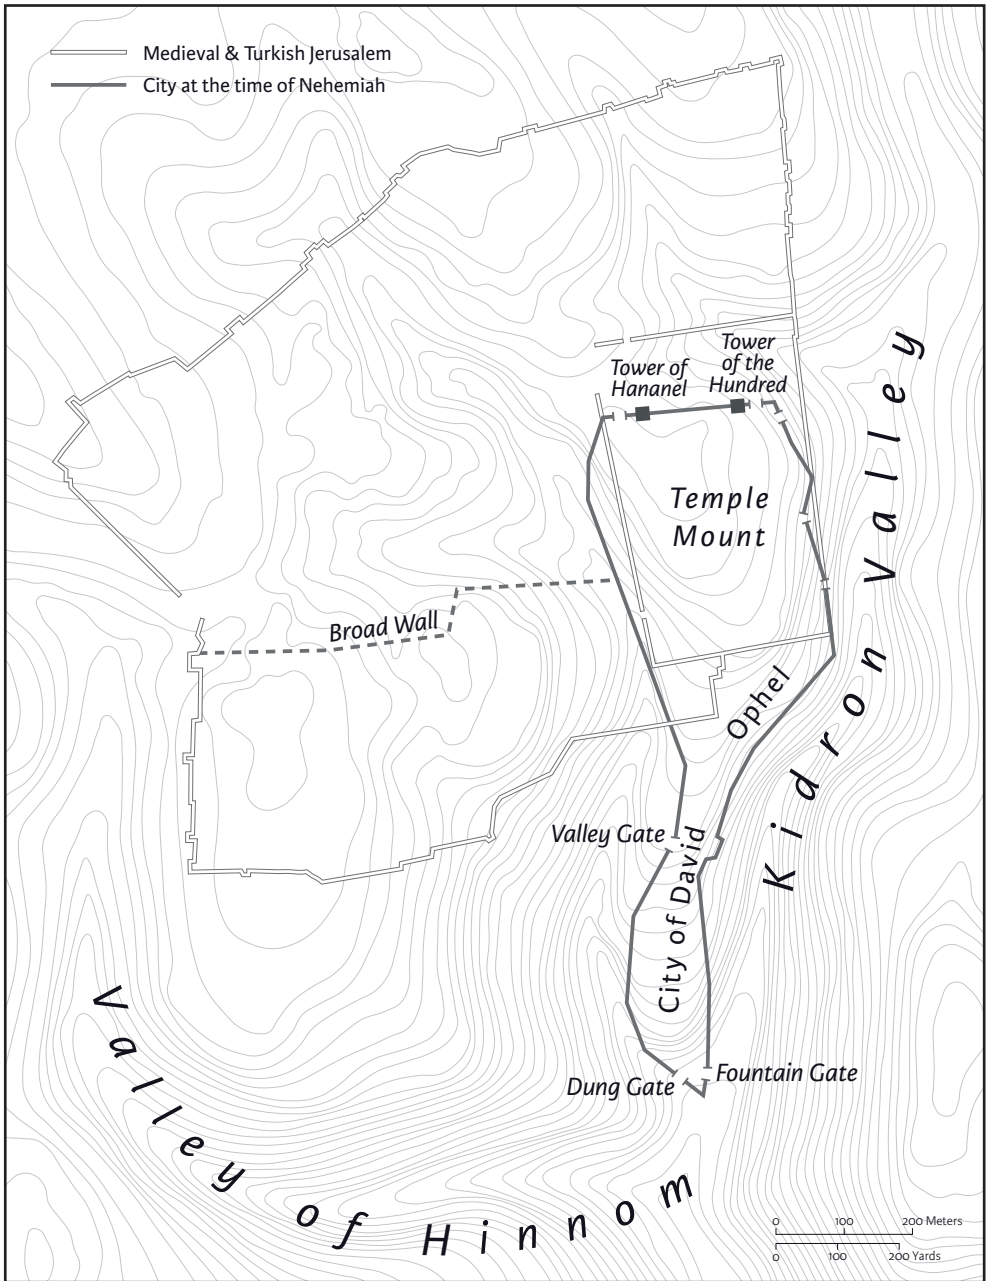

⁴ When I heard these words I sat down and wept, and mourned for days, fasting and praying before the God of heaven. ⁵ I said, “O LORD God of heaven, the great and awesome God who keeps covenant and steadfast love with those who love him and keep his commandments; ⁶ let your ear be attentive and your eyes open to hear the prayer of your servant that I now pray before you day and night for your servants, the people of Israel, confessing the sins of the people of Israel, which we have sinned against you. Both I and my family have sinned. ⁷ We have offended you deeply, failing to keep the commandments, the statutes, and the ordinances that you commanded your servant Moses. ⁸ Remember the word that you commanded your servant Moses, ‘If you are unfaithful, I will scatter you among the peoples; ⁹ but if you

1.1–7.5: Stage Three of reconstruction: rebuilding Jerusalem under Nehemiah’s leadership. These chapters come from what scholars call “the Nehemiah memoir,” first-person material in the name of Nehemiah (also found in chs 12–13). This section describes how Nehemiah, the king’s cupbearer, becomes the governor of Judah and rebuilds Jerusalem’s walls.

1.1–2.10: Nehemiah’s commission. While serving the Persian king in Persia, Nehemiah learns about his people’s plight in Judah and asks permission to go and help them. 1.1: Nehemiah, a cupbearer (see 1.11n.) to King Artaxerxes I (465–424 BCE). Words of Nehemiah son of Hacaliah, this is the beginning of the Nehemiah Memoir. His father’s name and his family are otherwise unknown. Chislev (November–December). In the twentieth year, most likely of Artaxerxes I (2.1), namely 445 BCE. Susa, the winter residence of Persian kings in Persia (modern Iran). Excavations have uncovered a magnificent palace there. 2–3: Jews that survived, this includes those who remained in the land after 586 BCE, as well as those who had returned since (see Ezra 1.1–4). The wall of Jerusalem was broken down by the Babylonians in 586 BCE, and apparently suffered further deterioration, possibly due to later unrecorded conflicts.

1.4–11: Nehemiah’s prayer. The prayer incorporates themes from Deuteronomy about reasons for the dispersion and the possibility of restoration. It reflects Nehemiah’s piety and expresses postexilic hope for restoration. 5: God of heaven, a typical postexilic title (e.g., Ezra 1.2; Dan 2.18). 8–9: A paraphrase of ideas about God return to me and keep my commandments and do them, though your outcasts are under the farthest skies, I will gather them from there and bring them to the place at which I have chosen to establish my name.’¹⁰ They are your servants and your people, whom you redeemed by your great power and your strong hand. ¹¹O Lord, let your ear be attentive to the prayer of your servant, and to the prayer of your servants who delight in revering your name. Give success to your servant today, and grant him mercy in the sight of this man!”

Jerusalem in the time of Nehemiah.

At the time, I was cupbearer to the king.

2 In the month of Nisan, in the twentieth year of King Artaxerxes, when wine was served him, I carried the wine and gave it to the king. Now, I had never been sad in his presence before. ²So the king said to me, “Why is your face sad, since you are not sick? This can only be sadness of the heart.” Then I was very much afraid. ³I said to the king, “May the king live forever! Why should my face not be sad, when the city, the place of my ancestors’ graves, lies waste, and its gates have been destroyed by fire?” ⁴Then the king said to me, “What do you request?” So I prayed to the God of heaven. ⁵Then I said to the king, “If it pleases the king, and if your servant has found favor with you, I ask that you send me to Judah, to the city of my ancestors’ graves, so that I may rebuild it.” ⁶The king said to me (the queen also was sitting beside him), “How long will you be gone, and when will you return?” So it pleased the king to send me, and I set him a date. ⁷Then I said to the king, “If it pleases the king, let letters be given me to the governors of the province Beyond the River, that they may grant me passage until I arrive in Judah; ⁸ and a letter to Asaph, the keeper of the king’s forest, directing him to give me timber to make beams for the gates of the temple fortress, and for the wall of the city, and for the house that I shall occupy.” And the king granted me what I asked, for the gracious hand of my God was upon me.

⁹Then I came to the governors of the province Beyond the River, and gave them the king’s letters. Now the king had sent officers of the army and cavalry with me. ¹⁰When Sanballat the Horonite and Tobiah the Ammonite official heard this, it displeased them greatly that someone had come to seek the welfare of the people of Israel.

¹¹So I came to Jerusalem and was there for three days. ¹²Then I got up during the night, from Deuteronomy (e.g., Deut 30.1–5). 11: This man, Artaxerxes I. Cupbearer, a trusted high royal courtier who sampled wine for quality and safety (see 2.1).

2.1–8: Nehemiah’s mission. Nehemiah uses an opportunity to propose a daring request, risking the king’s disapproval. 1: Nisan, March–April, the month of the Exodus from Egypt. The chronology of 1.1 (November–December) and 2.1 (March–April), both in the twentieth year, makes sense if Nehemiah’s reckoning begins the year in the fall. (Both a spring and a fall new year are found in the Bible.) 2: I was . . . afraid, because his request could imply divided loyalties, even treason. 3: My ancestors’ graves, depicting Jerusalem as graveyard dramatizes the importance of honoring ancestors and minimizes the threat that rebuilding Jerusalem might otherwise suggest. Ezra 4.21 indicates that this king had prohibited rebuilding of Jerusalem’s walls until further notice. 6: The queen’s presence may indicate an intimate setting of the conversation, perhaps accounting for the king’s benevolence. She is not named; according to Greek sources, Artaxerxes’ queen was Damaschia. I set him a date, 5.14 and 13.6 indicate that Nehemiah’s mission as governor lasted twelve years. 8: Temple fortress, Nehemiah explicitly mentions plans for the Temple’s gates and fortifications, including the city’s walls, only after securing the king’s consent.

2.9–10: Journey and opposition. Nehemiah’s military escort visibly testifies to royal support for his mission. His arrival is met with opposition perhaps because it unsettles the political and economic equilibrium, such as control by Samaria or members of the aristocracy. Sanballat and Tobiah head the opposition against Nehemiah’s renewal efforts. 10: Sanballat is mentioned in the Aramaic Elephantine documents from fifth-century BCE Egypt as a governor of Samaria, Judah’s northern neighbor, the former Israelite state now a province named after its chief city; see Ezra 4.10. He was apparently also related by marriage to Jerusalem’s high priest (see 13.28n). Tobiah the Ammonite official, probably a Jew. Nehemiah discredits him because of a connection to Ammon, Judah’s eastern neighbor and a group excluded from membership in Israel according to Deut 23.4–7. His name is a compound Hebrew word for “good” (“tob”) and “Yah”, a reference to Israel’s God (see also 6.18 and 13.4–9n).

I and a few men with me; I told no one what my God had put into my heart to do for Jerusalem. The only animal I took was the animal I rode.¹³ I went out by night by the Valley Gate past the Dragon's Spring and to the Dung Gate, and I inspected the walls of Jerusalem that had been broken down and its gates that had been destroyed by fire.¹⁴ Then I went on to the Fountain Gate and to the King's Pool; but there was no place for the animal I was riding to continue.¹⁵ So I went up by way of the valley by night and inspected the wall. Then I turned back and entered by the Valley Gate, and so returned.¹⁶ The officials did not know where I had gone or what I was doing; I had not yet told the Jews, the priests, the nobles, the officials, and the rest that were to do the work.

¹⁷ Then I said to them, "You see the trouble we are in, how Jerusalem lies in ruins with its gates burned. Come, let us rebuild the wall of Jerusalem, so that we may no longer suffer disgrace."¹⁸ I told them that the hand of my God had been gracious upon me, and also the words that the king had spoken to me. Then they said, "Let us start building!" So they committed themselves to the common good.¹⁹ But when Sanballat the Horonite and Tobiah the Ammonite official, and Geshem the Arab heard of it, they mocked and ridiculed us, saying, "What is this that you are doing? Are you rebelling against the king?"²⁰ Then I replied to them, "The God of heaven is the one who will give us success, and we his servants are going to start building; but you have no share or claim or historic right in Jerusalem."

3 Then the high priest Eliashib set to work with his fellow priests and rebuilt the Sheep Gate. They consecrated it and set up its doors; they consecrated it as far as the Tower of the Hundred and as far as the Tower of Hananel.² And the men of Jericho built next to him. And next to them^a Zaccur son of Imri built.

³ The sons of Hassenaah built the Fish Gate; they laid its beams and set up its

^a Heb him

2.11–18: Nehemiah's initial work in Jerusalem. Nehemiah undertakes a nighttime inspection of the walls, assessing the damage. 12: I told no one (see v. 16), to avoid interference with his plans, Nehemiah keeps his initial inspection secret. 13–15: Nehemiah's circuit of the walls confirms their dilapidated condition. Many of the landmarks can no longer be identified. 13: The Valley Gate is in the western wall, the Dragon's Spring is unknown, and the Dung Gate is at the southern end of the wall (in a different location from the present Dung Gate in Jerusalem). 14: The location of the Fountain Gate is uncertain; the King's Pool is probably the Pool of Siloam (3:15). No place . . . to continue, earlier structures and pathways of the eastern slope have collapsed beyond repair, making passage difficult. The damage on this side of the city seems beyond repair, which accounts for why the rebuilt Jerusalem will be smaller. 17–18: Nehemiah galvanizes the Jews of Judah to rebuild by appealing to communal pride and disclosing divine and royal support.

2.19–20: Opposition. Sanballat and his associates attempt to stop Nehemiah by implying that he is a rebel, a charge that would antagonize Persian authorities. 19: Sanballat . . . and Tobiah, see 2.10n. Geshem, known from nonbiblical sources as king of Qedar in Arabia, controlled territory south-southeast of Judah. Rebelling, a trumped-up charge to arouse Persian authorities' suspicion; cf. Ezra 4. 20: You have no share . . . in Jerusalem, Nehemiah seeks to protect Judah from Samaria's control and interference. At stake may be the status of Yehud as a separate Persian province under Judean control. Like Zerubbabel earlier (Ezra 4), Nehemiah restricts non-Jewish participation in rebuilding.

3.1–32: Building the walls despite opposition. Rebuilding Jerusalem's walls reinforces the religious, political, and commercial power of Jerusalem. The list of participants offers important information for discerning the scope of Jerusalem, showing that it was considerably smaller than it had been before its destruction. The list of builders (some of whom probably subsidized the project rather than physically participating in the building) indicates strong communal support. In Ezra-Nehemiah, the rebuilding of the walls is presented as an extension of rebuilding the Temple in accordance with King Cyrus's edict in Ezra 1.

3.1–5: Restoring Jerusalem's northern boundary. 1: The high priest Eliashib, grandson of the priest Jeshua (12:10; Ezra 3.2). They consecrated it, consecrating the gates marks the project as a holy task: The city as a whole is by extension as holy as a house of God (see Neh 11:1). The Tower of Hananel, a boundary in Zech 14.10 for a doors, its bolts, and its bars. ⁴ Next to them Meremoth son of Uriah son of Hakkoz made repairs. Next to them Meshullam son of Berechiah son of Meshezabel made repairs. Next to them Zadok son of Baana made repairs. ⁵ Next to them the Tekoites made repairs; but their nobles would not put their shoulders to the work of their Lord.^a ⁶ Joiada son of Paseah and Meshullam son of Besodeiah repaired the Old Gate; they laid its beams and set up its doors, its bolts, and its bars. ⁷ Next to them repairs were made by Melatiah the Gibeonite and Jadon the Meronothite—the men of Gibeon and of Mizpah—who were under the jurisdiction of^b the governor of the province Beyond the River. ⁸ Next to them Uzziel son of Harhiah, one of the goldsmiths, made repairs. Next to him Hananiah, one of the perfumers, made repairs; and they restored Jerusalem as far as the Broad Wall. ⁹ Next to them Rephaiah son of Hur, ruler of half the district of^c Jerusalem, made repairs. ¹⁰ Next to them Jedaiah son of Harumaph made repairs opposite his house; and next to him Hattush son of Hashabneiah made repairs. ¹¹ Malchijah son of Harim and Hasshub son of Pahath-moab repaired another section and the Tower of the Ovens. ¹² Next to him Shallum son of Hallohesh, ruler of half the district of^c Jerusalem, made repairs, he and his daughters.

¹³ Hanun and the inhabitants of Zanoah repaired the Valley Gate; they rebuilt it and set up its doors, its bolts, and its bars, and repaired a thousand cubits of the wall, as far as the Dung Gate.

¹⁴ Malchijah son of Rechab, ruler of the district of^d Beth-haccherem, repaired the Dung Gate; he rebuilt it and set up its doors, its bolts, and its bars.

¹⁵ And Shallum son of Col-hozeh, ruler of the district of^d Mizpah, repaired the Fountain Gate; he rebuilt it and covered it and set up its doors, its bolts, and its bars; and he built the wall of the Pool of Shelah of the king's garden, as far as the stairs that go down from the City of David. ¹⁶ After him Nehemiah son of Azbuk, ruler of half the district of^c Beth-zur, repaired from a point opposite the graves of David, as far as the artificial pool and the house of the warriors. ¹⁷ After him the Levites made repairs: Rehum son of Bani; next to him Hashabiah, ruler of half the district of^c Keilah, made repairs for his district. ¹⁸ After him their kin made repairs: Binnui,^e son of Henadad, ruler of half the district of^c Keilah; ¹⁹ next to him Ezer son of Jeshua, ruler^f of Mizpah, repaired another section opposite the ascent to the armory at the Angle. ²⁰ After him Baruch son of Zabbai repaired another section from the Angle to the door of the

^a Or lords

^b Meaning of Heb uncertain

^c Or supervisor of half the portion assigned to

^d Or supervisor of the portion assigned to

^e Gk Syr Compare verse 24, 10.9: Heb Bavvai

^f Or supervisor

newly sanctified Jerusalem. Most of the gates and other places named in the chapter cannot be located with certainty; see 2.13–14n. 2: Men of Jericho, here and in vv. 9–11 volunteers from various districts of Yehud take responsibility for specific segments of the wall. 4: Hakkoz, one of the families whose genealogy had been suspect initially (Ezra 2.61; Neh 7:63), but which has now been integrated. 5: The Tekoites, residents of Tekoa, 10 mi (16 km) south of Jerusalem. Their efforts, despite abstention by leaders, underscore the popular nature of rebuilding.

3.6–14: Restoring Jerusalem's western boundary. The individuals named here are otherwise unknown. 8: Goldsmiths . . . perfumers, traders in luxury items offer evidence of growing commerce and urbanization. They restored, more accurately “they left out,” suggesting that the rebuilt city was smaller than earlier Jerusalem. The Broad Wall was probably originally built by King Hezekiah in the late eighth century BCE (see 2 Chr 32.5) to enlarge the city's defenses. An excavated portion of it can be seen in today's Jerusalem. 9–12: The task is divided among leaders of five districts, some outside Jerusalem. 12: His daughters, their role, like the men's, may have entailed physical participation and financial sponsorship.

3.15–32: Restoring Jerusalem's southern and eastern boundaries. 16: Graves of David, see 2 Chr 33.33. 23–24: Jerusalemites take charge of areas adjacent to their dwellings.

house of the high priest Eliashib. ²¹ After him Meremoth son of Uriah son of Hakkoz repaired another section from the door of the house of Eliashib to the end of the house of Eliashib. ²² After him the priests, the men of the surrounding area, made repairs. ²³ After them Benjamin and Hasshub made repairs opposite their house. After them Azariah son of Maaseiah son of Ananiah made repairs beside his own house. ²⁴ After him Binnui son of Henadad repaired another section, from the house of Azariah to the Angle and to the corner. ²⁵ Palal son of Uzai repaired opposite the Angle and the tower projecting from the upper house of the king at the court of the guard. After him Pedaiah son of Parosh ²⁶ and the temple servants living^a on Ophel made repairs up to a point opposite the Water Gate on the east and the projecting tower. ²⁷ After him the Tekoites repaired another section opposite the great projecting tower as far as the wall of Ophel.

²⁸ Above the Horse Gate the priests made repairs, each one opposite his own house. ²⁹ After them Zadok son of Immer made repairs opposite his own house. After him Shemaiah son of Shecaniah, the keeper of the East Gate, made repairs. ³⁰ After him Hanaiah son of Shelemiah and Hanun sixth son of Zalaph repaired another section. After him Meshullam son of Berechiah made repairs opposite his living quarters. ³¹ After him Malchijah, one of the goldsmiths, made repairs as far as the house of the temple servants and of the merchants, opposite the Muster Gate,^b and to the upper room of the corner. ³² And between the upper room of the corner and the Sheep Gate the goldsmiths and the merchants made repairs.

4^c Now when Sanballat heard that we were building the wall, he was angry and greatly enraged, and he mocked the Jews. ² He said in the presence of his associates and of the army of Samaria, “What are these feeble Jews doing? Will they restore things? Will they sacrifice? Will they finish it in a day? Will they revive the stones out of the heaps of rubbish—and burned ones at that?” ³ Tobiah the Ammonite was beside him, and he said, “That stone wall they are building—any fox going up on it would break it down!” ⁴ Hear, O our God, for we are despised; turn their taunt back on their own heads, and give them over as plunder in a land of captivity. ⁵ Do not cover their guilt, and do not let their sin be blotted out from your sight; for they have hurled insults in the face of the builders.

⁶ So we rebuilt the wall, and all the wall was joined together to half its height; for the people had a mind to work.

⁷ But when Sanballat and Tobiah and the Arabs and the Ammonites and the Ashdodites heard that the repairing of the walls of Jerusalem was going forward and the gaps were beginning to be closed, they were very angry, ⁸ and all plotted together to come and fight against Jerusalem and to cause confusion in it. ⁹ So we prayed to our God, and set a guard as a protection against them day and night.

¹⁰ But Judah said, “The strength of the burden bearers is failing, and there is too much rubbish so that we are unable to work on the wall.” ¹¹ And our enemies said, “They will not know or see anything before we come upon them and kill them and stop the work.” ¹² When the Jews who lived near them came, they said to us ten times, “From all the places where they live^e they will come up against

^a Cn: Heb were living

^b Or Hammiphkad Gate

^c Ch 3.33 in Heb

^d Ch 4.1 in Heb

^e Cn: Heb you return

4.1–6.14: Obstacles to reconstruction. Nehemiah’s memoir about Sanballat’s opposition (2.19) resumes. Nehemiah, like the earlier returnees (Ezra 3–6 and Ezra 7–10), encounters problems that hamper progress. Three types of threats to building activities are mentioned: intimidation by outsiders (4.1–23), economic hardships (5.1–19), and plots against Nehemiah (6.1–14).

4.1–23: First obstacle: intimidation. The neighboring people under Sanballat of Samaria (see 2.10n.) use taunts and threats. The tension with Samaria reproduces ancient competition between the two preexilic capital cities, Samaria of the Northern Kingdom of Israel and Jerusalem, of the Southern Kingdom of Judah, both now under Persian control. 4–5: Nehemiah punctuates his report with several invocations of God, often with a formulaic “remember me” (see 5.19n.). 10–12: The builders temporarily succumb to the difficulties of the work us.”^a ¹³ So in the lowest parts of the space behind the wall, in open places, I stationed the people according to their families,^b with their swords, their spears, and their bows. ¹⁴ After I looked these things over, I stood up and said to the nobles and the officials and the rest of the people, “Do not be afraid of them. Remember the LORD, who is great and awesome, and fight for your kin, your sons, your daughters, your wives, and your homes.”

¹⁵ When our enemies heard that their plot was known to us, and that God had frustrated it, we all returned to the wall, each to his work. ¹⁶ From that day on, half of my servants worked on construction, and half held the spears, shields, bows, and body-armor; and the leaders posted themselves behind the whole house of Judah,¹⁷ who were building the wall. The burden bearers carried their loads in such a way that each labored on the work with one hand and with the other held a weapon. ¹⁸ And each of the builders had his sword strapped at his side while he built. The man who sounded the trumpet was beside me. ¹⁹ And I said to the nobles, the officials, and the rest of the people, “The work is great and widely spread out, and we are separated far from one another on the wall. ²⁰ Rally to us wherever you hear the sound of the trumpet. Our God will fight for us.”

²¹ So we labored at the work, and half of them held the spears from break of dawn

until the stars came out. ²² I also said to the people at that time, “Let every man and his servant pass the night inside Jerusalem, so that they may be a guard for us by night and may labor by day.” ²³ So neither I nor my brothers nor my servants nor the men of the guard who followed me ever took off our clothes; each kept his weapon in his right hand.^c

5 Now there was a great outcry of the people and of their wives against their Jewish kin. ² For there were those who said, “With our sons and our daughters, we are many; we must get grain, so that we may eat and stay alive.” ³ There were also those who said, “We are having to pledge our fields, our vineyards, and our houses in order to get grain during the famine.” ⁴ And there were those who said, “We are having to borrow money on our fields and vineyards to pay the king’s tax. ⁵ Now our flesh is the same as that of our kindred; our children are the same as their children; and yet we are forcing our sons and daughters to be slaves, and some of our daughters have been ravished; we are powerless, and our fields and vineyards now belong to others.”

⁶ I was very angry when I heard their outcry and these complaints. ⁷ After thinking

^a Compare Gk Syr: Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Meaning of Heb uncertain

^c Cn: Heb each his weapon the water and their opponents’ intimidation. 10: Judah, the Jewish community. 13–14: Nehemiah reorganizes the builders and provides them with military protection; he demonstrates readiness for physical combat, confident in God’s help. 15–23: Nehemiah attributes successful rallying of the Jewish builders to improved security measures as well as to God’s support.

5.1–19: Second obstacle: economic hardships. The people’s burden of heavy taxes to the Persian king (5.4) is aggravated by the wealthier Jews who exploit the situation for their own profit. To redress the balance, Nehemiah initiates economic reforms. He attempts to convince the wealthy that their Judean poor are also their kin, thus creating a community despite class and economic differences (see further at 6:17–19n). The poor Judeans describe their decline into slavery. Biblical laws about slavery are inconsistent (compare Ex 21.2–10 and Deut 15.12–18 with Lev 25.35–43) although they all provide for the release of Israelite slaves at some point. 2: We are many, better emended to “we pledge” (see v. 3), suggesting that sons and daughters are pledged as security for loans and become slaves when loans are defaulted. 3: The problem is the default on loans during famine and the consequent loss of property and family. 4: The king’s tax, the heavy levy from the provinces extracted by the Persian government. 5: Results: Farmers are reduced to indentured slavery and lose their land and home (the basic necessity for economic survival) to wealthier compatriots. Ravished, daughters were particularly vulnerable at times of economic hardship. Moreover, unlike males, daughters (according to Ex 21:7–10) cannot be redeemed when they become sexually attached to the master’s household.

5.6–19: Nehemiah’s response. Nehemiah combats economic hardships by reforming the practices of the it over, I brought charges against the nobles and the officials; I said to them, “You are all taking interest from your own people.” And I called a great assembly to deal with them,⁸ and said to them, “As far as we were able, we have bought back our Jewish kindred who had been sold to other nations; but now you are selling your own kin, who must then be bought back by us!” They were silent, and could not find a word to say.⁹ So I said, “The thing that you are doing is not good. Should you not walk in the fear of our God, to prevent the taunts of the nations our enemies?”¹⁰ Moreover I and my brothers and my servants are lending them money and grain. Let us stop this taking of interest.¹¹ Restore to them, this very day, their fields, their vineyards, their olive orchards, and their houses, and the interest on money, grain, wine, and oil that you have been exacting from them.”¹² Then they said, “We will restore everything and demand nothing more from them. We will do as you say.” And I called the priests, and made them take an oath to do as they had promised.¹³ I also shook out the fold of my garment and said, “So may God shake out everyone from house and from property who does not perform this promise. Thus may they be shaken out and emptied.” And all the assembly said, “Amen,” and praised the LORD. And the people did as they had promised.

¹⁴ Moreover from the time that I was appointed to be their governor in the land of Judah, from the twentieth year to the thirty-second year of King Artaxerxes, twelve years, neither I nor my brothers ate the food allowance of the governor.¹⁵ The former governors who were before me laid heavy burdens on the people, and took food and wine from them, besides forty shekels of silver. Even their servants lorded it over the people. But I did not do so, because of the fear of God.¹⁶ Indeed, I devoted myself to the work on this wall, and acquired no land; and all my servants were gathered there for the work.¹⁷ Moreover there were at my table one hundred fifty people, Jews and officials, besides those who came to us from the nations around us.¹⁸ Now that which was prepared for one day was one ox and six choice sheep; also fowls were prepared for me, and every ten days skins of wine in abundance; yet with all this I did not demand the food allowance of the governor, because of the heavy burden of labor on the people.¹⁹ Remember for my good, O my God, all that I have done for this people.

6 Now when it was reported to Sanballat and Tobiah and to Geshem the Arab and to the rest of our enemies that I had built the wall and that there was no gap left in it (though up to that time I had not set up the doors in the gates),² Sanballat and Geshem wealthy and contributing personally to the economy from his own funds. 7: The nobles and the officials, upper-class members exploiting the economic instability. Taking interest, more accurately, “taking pledges,” i.e., keeping items used as pledges (family members, fields, and houses); this practice is prohibited in Ex 22.24–26; Deut 24.10. 8: We have bought back, the reference is to redeeming Israelite sold as slaves to foreigners (as in Lev 25:47–48). 10: Nehemiah shows some sympathy for the nobles by admitting a measure of his own culpability at an earlier stage but urges that the time has come for reform, and leads them by example. Nehemiah’s measures resemble the remission of debts in the jubilee year (Lev 25). 12: Like Ezra (see Ezra 10), Nehemiah extracts a public oath from leaders. The priests administer a religiously binding oath to ensure the efficacy of the appended curses. 13: Symbolic actions could accompany curses in the ancient Near East. Fold, the equivalent of a pocket. The gesture connotes removing all excessive matter (including wealth). 14–19: The Persian government expected local populations to support the governors. Nehemiah foregoes such privileges and subsidizes the office with his own personal funds. He uses this generosity as model for the Jewish aristocracy. 14: Governor, this is the first we hear about Nehemiah’s official position as governor, a title for several different ranks of officials. Twentieth year, see 1.1n. 15: The Bible does not preserve names of other governors after Zerubbabel, although some, possibly from the intervening period, have been found in archaeological discoveries. Forty shekels, about 1 lb (456 gr). 17: Those who to us came from the nations, the reference is to officials and guests from the rest of the empire. 19: Remember for my good, such prayers are typical of Nehemiah (e.g., 4.4–5; 6.14; 13.14,31).

6.1–14: Third obstacle: plots against Nehemiah. Nehemiah describes several attempts to harm him personally. 1–4: Attempts to harm Nehemiah in an unprotected place. 1: Sanballat and Tobiah and . . . Geshem, see sent to me, saying, “Come and let us meet together in one of the villages in the plain of Ono.” But they intended to do me harm.³ So I sent messengers to them, saying, “I am doing a great work and I cannot come down. Why should the work stop while I leave it to come down to you?”⁴ They sent to me four times in this way, and I answered them in the same manner.⁵ In the same way Sanballat for the fifth time sent his servant to me with an open letter in his hand.⁶ In it was written, “It is reported among the nations—and Geshem^a also says it—that you and the Jews intend to rebel; that is why you are building the wall; and according to this report you wish to become their king.⁷ You have also set up prophets to proclaim in Jerusalem concerning you, ‘There is a king in Judah!’ And now it will be reported to the king according to these words. So come, therefore, and let us confer together.”⁸ Then I sent to him, saying, “No such things as you say have been done; you are inventing them out of your own mind”⁹—for they all wanted to frighten us, thinking, “Their hands will drop from the work, and it will not be done.” But now, O God, strengthen my hands.

¹⁰ One day when I went into the house of Shemaiah son of Delaiah son of Mehetabel, who was confined to his house, he said, “Let us meet together in the house of God, within the temple, and let us close the doors of the temple, for they are coming to kill you; indeed, tonight they are coming to kill you.”

¹¹ But I said, “Should a man like me run away? Would a man like me go into the temple to save his life? I will not go in!”¹² Then I perceived and saw that God had not sent him at all, but he had pronounced the prophecy against me because Tobiah and Sanballat had hired him.¹³ He was hired for this purpose, to intimidate me and make me sin by acting in this way, and so they could give me a bad name, in order to taunt me.¹⁴ Remember Tobiah and Sanballat, O my God, according to these things that they did, and also the prophetess Noadiah and the rest of the prophets who wanted to make me afraid.

¹⁵ So the wall was finished on the twenty-fifth day of the month Elul, in fifty-two days.¹⁶ And when all our enemies heard of it, all the nations around us were afraid^b and fell greatly in their own esteem; for they perceived that this work had been accomplished with the help of our God.¹⁷ Moreover in those days the nobles of Judah sent many letters to Tobiah, and Tobiah’s letters came to them.¹⁸ For many in Judah were bound by oath to him, because he was the son-in-law of Shechaniah son of Arah: and his son Jehohanan had married the daughter of Meshullam son of Berechiah.¹⁹ Also they spoke of his good deeds in my presence, and reported my words to him. And Tobiah sent letters to intimidate me.

^a Heb Gashmu

^b Another reading is saw

2.10n., 19n. The opposition comes from several different groups. 2: Plain of Ono, in the northwest of the province of Yehud, far from the safety of Jerusalem. 5–7: Attempts to frighten Nehemiah by threatening to report his alleged rebellion to the king. 7: Prophets in Israel anointed kings (e.g., 1 Kings 1.34; 19.15–16); such an act could imply sedition on Nehemiah’s part. 10–13: Attempts to entice Nehemiah to discredit himself with religious authorities by entering the inner part of the Temple. 10: Shemaiah is a suspected enemy within the community. 13: Entering sections of the Temple reserved for priests would cast Nehemiah as a sinful usurper violating the priestly domain and the Temple’s sanctity. 14: Nehemiah’s repeated plea for divine remembrance (cf. 5.19). The prophetess Noadiah, otherwise unknown, she is one of four named prophetesses in the Hebrew Bible (the others are Miriam, Deborah, and Huldah).

6.15–19: The completion of the walls. The extraordinarily short time (“fifty-two days”) it took to restore the wall reflects the zeal of the community and Nehemiah’s leadership abilities. 15: Elul, August–September. Fifty-two days, excavated remnants of Nehemiah’s wall reflect the haste of the builders. 17–19: The opposition does not fall silent, but only changes its tactics, unsuccessfully. Tobiah’s family ties with distinguished Jerusalemites, like Sanballat’s (see Neh 13.28n.) suggest a conflict in Judah about the nature of the restored community. Nehemiah envisions a community based on Jewish kinship regardless of class; his opponents seek alliances along economic position, with the upper classes uniting across ethnic boundaries. 17: Tobiah, see 2.10n. 19: Some Jerusalemites seek rapprochement or compromise between Nehemiah and Tobiah.

7 Now when the wall had been built and I had set up the doors, and the gatekeepers, the singers, and the Levites had been appointed, ²I gave my brother Hanani charge over Jerusalem, along with Hananiah the commander of the citadel—for he was a faithful man and feared God more than many. ³And I said to them, “The gates of Jerusalem are not to be opened until the sun is hot; while the gatekeepers^a are still standing guard, let them shut and bar the doors. Appoint guards from among the inhabitants of Jerusalem, some at their watch posts, and others before their own houses.” ⁴The city was wide and large, but the people within it were few and no houses had been built.

⁵Then my God put it into my mind to assemble the nobles and the officials and the people to be enrolled by genealogy. And I found the book of the genealogy of those who were the first to come back, and I found the following written in it:

⁶These are the people of the province who came up out of the captivity of those exiles whom King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon had carried into exile; they returned to Jerusalem and Judah, each to his town. ⁷They came with Zerubbabel, Jeshua, Nehemiah, Azariah, Raamiah, Nahamani, Mordecai, Bilshan, Mispereth, Bigvai, Nehum, Baanah.

The number of the Israelite people: ⁸the descendants of Parosh, two thousand one hundred seventy-two. ⁹Of Shephatiah, three hundred seventy-two. ¹⁰Of Arah, six hundred fifty-two. ¹¹Of Pahath-moab, namely the descendants of Jeshua and Joab, two thousand eight hundred eighteen. ¹²Of Elam, one thousand two hundred fifty-four. ¹³Of Zattu, eight hundred forty-five. ¹⁴Of Zaccai, seven hundred sixty. ¹⁵Of Binnui, six hundred forty-eight. ¹⁶Of Bebai, six hundred twenty-eight. ¹⁷Of Azgad, two thousand three hundred twenty-two. ¹⁸Of Adonikam, six hundred sixty-seven. ¹⁹Of Bigvai, two thousand sixty-seven. ²⁰Of Adin, six hundred fifty-five. ²¹Of Ater, namely of Hezekiah, ninety-eight. ²²Of Hashum, three hundred twenty-eight. ²³Of Bezai, three hundred twenty-four. ²⁴Of Hariph, one hundred twelve. ²⁵Of Gibeon, ninety-five. ²⁶The people of Bethlehem and Netophah, one hundred eighty-eight. ²⁷Of Anathoth, one hundred twenty-eight. ²⁸Of Beth-azmaveth, forty-two. ²⁹Of Kiriath-jearim, Chephirah, and Beeroth, seven hundred forty-three. ³⁰Of Ramah and Geba, six hundred twenty-one. ³¹Of Michmas, one hundred twenty-two. ³²Of Bethel and Ai, one hundred twenty-three. ³³Of the other Nebo, fifty-two. ³⁴The descendants of the other Elam, one thousand two hundred fifty-four. ³⁵Of Harim, three hundred twenty. ³⁶Of Jericho, three hundred forty-five. ³⁷Of Lod, Hadid, and Ono, seven hundred twenty-one. ³⁸Of Senaah, three thousand nine hundred thirty.

³⁹The priests: the descendants of Jedaiah, namely the house of Jeshua, nine hundred seventy-three. ⁴⁰Of Immer, one thousand fifty-two. ⁴¹Of Pashhur, one thousand two hundred forty-seven. ⁴²Of Harim, one thousand seventeen.

^a Heb while they

7.1–5: Setting up guards. Nehemiah places religious functionaries to guard the city gates, thereby establishing Jewish control as well as indicating that the city, like the Temple, is now under religious supervision. 1: Gatekeepers . . . singers . . . Levites ordinarily officiated at the Temple. As guards of the city's gates, they symbolize the new sanctity of the city as a whole (see 11.1). 2: Hanani, see 1.2. Citadel, fortress (see 2.8). 3: For reasons of safety, the gates are to be open only during broad daylight. Although foreigners are not thereby excluded, their coming and going is subject to Jewish control. 4: The people within it were few, most returnees had resumed a largely agrarian life in the surrounding countryside. Nehemiah's measures encourage greater urbanization, which is facilitated further in ch 11. 5: The sparse population of Jerusalem is used as an editorial device to repeat this list from Ezra 2.

7.6–73: Frame: repeated list of returnees. Reproducing Ezra 2.1–70 with insignificant variations, the list serves a twofold purpose here. First, it connects the last stage of reconstruction with the successful efforts of the previous generations, as a continuous response to Cyrus's original decree (Ezra 1). By repeating the list from Ezra 2, Ezra-Nehemiah melds the three stages of return and reconstruction (Temple, community, city) into a single, unified event, spanning nearly a century (538–444 BCE). Second, it identifies who now legitimately belongs to the restored community and is subject to the legal and religious practices, privileges, and respon-

⁴³ The Levites: the descendants of Jeshua, namely of Kadmiel of the descendants of Hodevah, seventy-four. ⁴⁴ The singers: the descendants of Asaph, one hundred forty-eight.

⁴⁵ The gatekeepers: the descendants of Shalum, of Ater, of Talmon, of Akkub, of Hatita, of Shobai, one hundred thirty-eight.

⁴⁶ The temple servants: the descendants of Ziha, of Hasupha, of Tabbaoth, ⁴⁷ of Keros, of Sia, of Padon, ⁴⁸ of Lebana, of Hagaba, of Shalmal, ⁴⁹ of Hanan, of Giddel, of Gahar, ⁵⁰ of Reaiah, of Rezin, of Nekoda, ⁵¹ of Gazzam, of Uzza, of Paseah, ⁵² of Besai, of Meunim, of Nephushesim, ⁵³ of Bakbuk, of Hakupha, of Harhur, ⁵⁴ of Bazlith, of Mehida, of Harsha, ⁵⁵ of Barkos, of Sisera, of Temah, ⁵⁶ of Neziah, of Hatipha.

⁵⁷ The descendants of Solomon's servants: of Sotai, of Sophereth, of Perida, ⁵⁸ of Jaala, of Darkon, of Giddel, ⁵⁹ of Shephathiah, of Hattil, of Pochereth-hazzebaim, of Amon.

⁶⁰ All the temple servants and the descendants of Solomon's servants were three hundred ninety-two.

⁶¹ The following were those who came up from Tel-melah, Tel-harsha, Cherub, Addon, and Immer, but they could not prove their ancestral houses or their descent, whether they belonged to Israel: ⁶² the descendants of Delaiah, of Tobiah, of Nekoda, six hundred forty-two. ⁶³ Also, of the priests: the descendants of Hobaiah, of Hakkoz, of Barzillai (who had married one of the daughters of Barzillai the Gileadite and was called by their name). ⁶⁴ These sought their registration among those enrolled in the genealogies, but it was not found there, so they were excluded from the priesthood as unclean; ⁶⁵ the governor told them that they were not to partake of the most holy food, until a priest with Urim and Thummim should come.

⁶⁶ The whole assembly together was forty-two thousand three hundred sixty, ⁶⁷ besides their male and female slaves, of whom there were seven thousand three hundred thirty-seven; and they had two hundred forty-five singers, male and female. ⁶⁸ They had seven hundred thirty-six horses, two hundred forty-five mules, ^a ⁶⁹ four hundred thirty-five camels, and six thousand seven hundred twenty donkeys.

⁷⁰ Now some of the heads of ancestral houses contributed to the work. The governor gave to the treasury one thousand darics of gold, fifty basins, and five hundred thirty priestly robes. ⁷¹ And some of the heads of ancestral houses gave into the building fund twenty thousand darics of gold and two thousand two hundred minas of silver. ⁷² And what the rest of the people gave was twenty thousand darics of gold, two thousand minas of silver, and sixty-seven priestly robes.

⁷³ So the priests, the Levites, the gatekeepers, the singers, some of the people, the temple servants, and all Israel settled in their towns.

When the seventh month came—the people of Israel being settled in their towns—

^a Ezra 2.66 and the margins of some Hebrew Mss: MT lacks They had . . . forty-five mules

sibilities that follow. On the list itself, see the notes to Ezra 2. 66: Forty-two thousand three hundred sixty, same total for the population as Ezra 2.64, although some numbers within the two lists do not match. 70–72: The parallel in Ezra 2.68–69 differs. For the value of such contributions, see note there. 73: The seventh month, Tishri (September–October; see Ezra 3.1), designated as a beginning of the new year in later Judaism. Lev 23.23–24 and Num 29.1–6 specify practices for this date without mention of reading the Torah (see ch 8).

8.1–13.31: Celebration of renewal and reconstruction. The celebration represents the completion of the restoration that began in the time of King Cyrus nearly a century before. The reconstructed “house of God” encompasses the rebuilt Temple (Ezra 3–6), the reformed community (Ezra 7–10), and Jerusalem as a holy city (11.1), surrounded by a wall (Nehemiah 1–7). The rededication and celebration that this chapter inaugurates extend over several weeks, at least from the first day of the seventh month (8.2) to the twenty-fourth (9.1), longer than any other celebration in the Bible.

8.1–18: Celebrating by reading and implementing the Torah. The reconstruction culminates when the community summons Ezra to bring “the book of the law of Moses” (8.1), i.e., the Torah. Neh 8 signals the historical moment when the Torah, probably most of the Pentateuch, is publicly (re)introduced and receives communal sanction. Thus the ceremony in Neh 8 recalls Sinai as the receiving of God’s teachings by the entire people,

8 ¹ all the people gathered together into the square before the Water Gate. They told the scribe Ezra to bring the book of the law of Moses, which the LORD had given to Israel. ² Accordingly, the priest Ezra brought the law before the assembly, both men and women and all who could hear with understanding. This was on the first day of the seventh month. ³ He read from it facing the square before the Water Gate from early morning until midday, in the presence of the men and the women and those who could understand; and the ears of all the people were attentive to the book of the law. ⁴ The scribe Ezra stood on a wooden platform that had been made for the purpose; and beside him stood Mattithiah, Shema, Anaiah, Uriah, Hilkiah, and Maaseiah on his right hand; and Pedaiah, Mishael, Malchijah, Hashum, Hash-baddanah, Zechariah, and Meshullam on his left hand. ⁵ And Ezra opened the book in the sight of all the people, for he was standing above all the people; and when he opened it, all the people stood up. ⁶ Then Ezra blessed the LORD, the great God, and all the people answered, “Amen, Amen,” lifting up their hands. Then they bowed their heads and worshiped the LORD with their faces to the ground. ⁷ Also Jeshua, Bani, Sherebiah, Jamin, Akkub, Shabbethai, Hodiah, Maaseiah, Kelita, Azariah, Jozabad, Hanan, Pelaiah, the Levites,^a helped the people to understand the law, while the people remained in their places. ⁸ So they read from the book, from the law of God, with interpretation. They gave the sense, so that the people understood the reading.

⁹ And Nehemiah, who was the governor, and Ezra the priest and scribe, and the Levites who taught the people said to all the people, “This day is holy to the LORD your God; do not mourn or weep.” For all the people wept when they heard the words of the law. ¹⁰ Then he said to them, “Go your way, eat the fat and drink sweet wine and send portions of them to those for whom nothing is prepared, for this day is holy to our LORD; and do not be grieved, for the joy of the LORD is your strength.” ¹¹ So the Levites stilled all the people, saying, “Be quiet, for this day is holy; do not be grieved.” ¹² And all the people went their way to eat and drink and to send portions and to make great rejoicing, because they had understood the words that were declared to them.

^a 1 Esdras 9.48 Vg: Heb and the Levites

transforming them into “the people of the Book.” The account is no longer Nehemiah’s memoir but an anonymous, third-person report. Some scholars argue that this section was originally attached to the Ezra material, either before or after Ezra 9–10.

8.1–12: The first public reading of the book of Torah. This public reading of scriptures initiates a practice that will continue in Jewish and Christian traditions. The narrative emphasizes through repetition the special bond between the people and the “book.” Only in this and in the following section does Ezra appear as a contemporary of Nehemiah. 1: The water gate, this area is outside the Temple. Neither the Temple nor the priests (except for Ezra) are mentioned in these celebrations until ch. 10. They told the scribe Ezra, the people, not Ezra, initiate the ceremony. The book of the law of Moses, i.e., the Torah. From the people’s reaction and other details in Ezra-Nehemiah, scholars conclude that some form of today’s Pentateuch, especially Deuteronomy, is being used. 2: Both men and women participate in this ceremony of hearing and receiving the Torah (see Deut 31.12). The implicit date for the reading is September 444 (or perhaps 443). 4: Beside him stood . . ., Ezra’s assistants include laity, as well as Levites, who are elsewhere connected to the study of the law. Their participation expresses broadened access to the authoritative teachings, a move away from exclusive control by priests (see Jer 18.18). 5: When he opened it, i.e., unrolled the scroll. All the people stood up, in veneration of God’s presence reflected in the book. This signals a dramatic relocation of divine presence authority away from the Temple. 7: Helped the people to understand, they either translate the Hebrew into the more familiar Aramaic or explain the content for greater clarity. 9: Nehemiah . . . and Ezra, representing political and religious leadership, working harmoniously. This is the only verse that mentions both together. The people wept, either because of the warnings in the Torah or because they were overwhelmed by the moment. Ezra and Nehemiah emphasize that God’s law is ultimately a source of joy.

8.13–18: Implementing Torah: the festival of booths. The people now take initiative to study and implement the Torah, in this case celebrating the festival commanded in Leviticus, Numbers, and Deuteronomy (see

¹³ On the second day the heads of ancestral houses of all the people, with the priests and the Levites, came together to the scribe Ezra in order to study the words of the law.

¹⁴ And they found it written in the law, which the LORD had commanded by Moses, that the people of Israel should live in booths^a during the festival of the seventh month, ¹⁵ and that they should publish and proclaim in all their towns and in Jerusalem as follows, “Go out to the hills and bring branches of olive, wild olive, myrtle, palm, and other leafy trees to make booths,^a as it is written.” ¹⁶ So the people went out and brought them, and made booths^a for themselves, each on the roofs of their houses, and in their courts and in the courts of the house of God, and in the square at the Water Gate and in the square at the Gate of Ephraim. ¹⁷ And all the assembly of those who had returned from the captivity made booths^a and lived in them; for from the days of Jeshua son of Nun to that day the people of Israel had not done so. And there was very great rejoicing. ¹⁸ And day by day, from the first day to the last day, he read from the book of the law of God. They kept the festival seven days; and on the eighth day there was a solemn assembly, according to the ordinance.

9 Now on the twenty-fourth day of this month the people of Israel were assembled with fasting and in sackcloth, and with earth on their heads.^b ² Then those of Israelite descent separated themselves from all foreigners, and stood and confessed their sins and the iniquities of their ancestors. ³ They stood up in their place and read from the book of the law of the LORD their God for a fourth part of the day, and for another fourth they made confession and worshiped the LORD their God. ⁴ Then Jeshua, Bani, Kadmiel, Shebaniah, Bunni, Sherebiah, Bani, and Chenani stood on the stairs of the Levites and cried out with a loud voice to the LORD their God. ⁵ Then the Levites, Jeshua, Kadmiel, Bani, Hashabneiah, Sherebiah, Hodiah, Shebaniah, and Pethahiah, said, “Stand up and bless the LORD your God from everlasting to everlasting. Blessed be your glorious name, which is exalted above all blessing and praise.”

^a Or tabernacles; Heb succhoth

^b Heb on them

v. 18). 14: They found it written, reading the Torah made them aware of the regulations for the festival. They . . . should live in booths (Heb “sukkot”), see Lev 23.42–43. The fast of the Day of Atonement (set for the tenth of the month in Lev 23.26–32) is not mentioned. 15: Lev 23.40 specifies types of tree branches, though it is not clear that these were to be used for building booths. 17: Ezra–Nehemiah identifies the community as those who had returned from the captivity and links it with the first settlement of the land. Jeshua son of Nun, the leader of conquest of the land after the Exodus, and the hero of the book of Joshua. Josh 1.7–8 attributes ultimate successful survival to the study of the Torah, a practice that the restored community seeks to emulate. 18: Deut 31.10–13 demands public readings of the Torah on the feast of booths (Sukkot) only every seventh year. As a result of rabbinic interpretation of chs 8–9, public reading became a weekly feature of Jewish worship. The ordinance, in Lev 23.36.

9.1–10.39: Celebration through confession and commitment. The lengthy prayer that follows restates Israelite history as a tale of divine faithfulness and Israelite faithlessness (Neh 9). To show their difference from their disloyal ancestors and in the hope of reversing the current plight, the postexilic community binds itself to God’s Torah in oath and undertakes additional responsibilities to keep God’s teachings (Neh 10).

9.1–37: The great communal confession rehearses Israel’s history. The people’s prayer illustrates their awareness of their tradition and their commitment to repair damage done to Israel’s relationship with God by earlier generations. The historical review also functions as a pedagogical tool for a new generation, emphasizing important moments in that history. The Temple is never mentioned. 1–5: The preparations for prayer. 1: Fasting as spiritual preparation is undertaken on the twenty-fourth day, a date elsewhere not specified for special worship. 2: The recitation of shared history and confession of ancestral sins apply only to the Israelites. This may account for the separation; alternatively, this separation may be part of retaining ethnic boundaries and excluding foreigners from participating in any joint worship. 3: The combination of prayer and Torah reading will later characterize synagogue worship. 4–5: Some of the Levites who shared the platform with Ezra earlier (8.4,7) now lead the congregation without him.

⁶ And Ezra said:^a “You are the LORD, you alone; you have made heaven, the heaven of heavens, with all their host, the earth and all that is on it, the seas and all that is in them. To all of them you give life, and the host of heaven worships you. ⁷ You are the LORD, the God who chose Abram and brought him out of Ur of the Chaldeans and gave him the name Abraham; ⁸ and you found his heart faithful before you, and made with him a covenant to give to his descendants the land of the Canaanite, the Hittite, the Amorite, the Perizzite, the Jebusite, and the Girgashite; and you have fulfilled your promise, for you are righteous.

⁹ “And you saw the distress of our ancestors in Egypt and heard their cry at the Red Sea.^b ¹⁰ You performed signs and wonders against Pharaoh and all his servants and all the people of his land, for you knew that they acted insolently against our ancestors. You made a name for yourself, which remains to this day. ¹¹ And you divided the sea before them, so that they passed through the sea on dry land, but you threw their pursuers into the depths, like a stone into mighty waters. ¹² Moreover, you led them by day with a pillar of cloud, and by night with a pillar of fire, to give them light on the way in which they should go. ¹³ You came down also upon Mount Sinai, and spoke with them from heaven, and gave them right ordinances and true laws, good statutes and commandments, ¹⁴ and you made known your holy sabbath to them and gave them commandments and statutes and a law through your servant Moses. ¹⁵ For their hunger you gave them bread from heaven, and for their thirst you brought water for them out of the rock, and you told them to go in to possess the land that you swore to give them.

¹⁶ “But they and our ancestors acted presumptuously and stiffened their necks and did not obey your commandments; ¹⁷ they refused to obey, and were not mindful of the wonders that you performed among them; but they stiffened their necks and determined to return to their slavery in Egypt. But you are a God ready to forgive, gracious and merciful, slow to anger and abounding in steadfast love, and you did not forsake them. ¹⁸ Even when they had cast an image of a calf for themselves and said, ‘This is your God who brought you up out of Egypt,’ and had committed great blasphemies, ¹⁹ you in your great mercies did not forsake them in the wilderness; the pillar of cloud that led them in the way did not leave them by day, nor the pillar of fire by night that gave them light on the way by which they should go. ²⁰ You gave your good spirit to instruct them, and did not withhold your manna from their mouths, and gave them water for their thirst. ²¹ Forty years you sustained them in the wilderness so that they lacked nothing; their clothes did not wear out and their feet did not swell. ²² And you gave them kingdoms and peoples, and allotted to them every corner,^c so they took possession of the land of King Sihon of Heshbon and the

^a Gk: Heb lacks And Ezra said

^b Or Sea of Reeds

^c Meaning of Heb uncertain

9.6–37: The communal prayer. This communal profession of faith articulates shared history and leads to renewed formal commitment to God’s teaching (in ch 10). The community recalls the cycles of God’s forbearance despite Israel’s earlier infidelities (vv. 6–31) and hopes to be worthy of it in the present dire circumstances (vv. 32–37). As in the historical psalms, history is not invoked for its own sake (e.g., Pss 105–106). 6: And Ezra said, Ezra’s name does not appear in the Hebrew text but is inserted into the early Greek versions. Ezra’s role in the Hebrew Bible concluded when he placed the Torah into the care of the community and trained others to guide the community accordingly (8:13). The great prayer in the Hebrew Bible is thus assigned to the community and its representatives.

9.7–31: Recitation of historical experience. A summary of traditions preserved in Genesis–2 Kings in which the Israelites repeatedly fail to honor God. 7–8: See Gen 12–26. 8: Made with him a covenant, Abraham appears as the paradigm of faithfulness.

9–23: Highlights of events in Exodus–Deuteronomy describing God’s actions on behalf of Israel. 13: Unlike some of the earlier historical summaries (e.g., Deut 26.5–9; Josh 24.2–13), this one mentions the revelation at Sinai. 19: Pillar, see Ex 13.21. 20: Good spirit, perhaps a reference to the appointment of elders (Num 11.17–29).

land of King Og of Bashan. ²³ You multiplied their descendants like the stars of heaven, and brought them into the land that you had told their ancestors to enter and possess.

²⁴ So the descendants went in and possessed the land, and you subdued before them the inhabitants of the land, the Canaanites, and gave them into their hands, with their kings and the peoples of the land, to do with them as they pleased. ²⁵ And they captured fortress cities and a rich land, and took possession of houses filled with all sorts of goods, hewn cisterns, vineyards, olive orchards, and fruit trees in abundance; so they ate, and were filled and became fat, and delighted themselves in your great goodness.

²⁶ “Nevertheless they were disobedient and rebelled against you and cast your law behind their backs and killed your prophets, who had warned them in order to turn them back to you, and they committed great blasphemies. ²⁷ Therefore you gave them into the hands of their enemies, who made them suffer. Then in the time of their suffering they cried out to you and you heard them from heaven, and according to your great mercies you gave them saviors who saved them from the hands of their enemies. ²⁸ But after they had rest, they again did evil before you, and you abandoned them to the hands of their enemies, so that they had dominion over them; yet when they turned and cried to you, you heard from heaven, and many times you rescued them according to your mercies. ²⁹ And you warned them in order to turn them back to your law. Yet they acted presumptuously and did not obey your commandments, but sinned against your ordinances, by the observance of which a person shall live. They turned a stubborn shoulder and stiffened their neck and would not obey. ³⁰ Many years you were patient with them, and warned them by your spirit through your prophets; yet they would not listen. Therefore you handed them over to the peoples of the lands. ³¹ Nevertheless, in your great mercies you did not make an end of them or forsake them, for you are a gracious and merciful God.

³² “Now therefore, our God—the great and mighty and awesome God, keeping covenant and steadfast love—do not treat lightly all the hardship that has come upon us, upon our kings, our officials, our priests, our prophets, our ancestors, and all your people, since the time of the kings of Assyria until today. ³³ You have been just in all that has come upon us, for you have dealt faithfully and we have acted wickedly; ³⁴ our kings, our officials, our priests, and our ancestors have not kept your law or heeded the commandments and the warnings that you gave them. ³⁵ Even in their own kingdom, and in the great goodness you bestowed on them, and in the large and rich land that you set before them, they did not serve you and did not turn from their wicked works. ³⁶ Here we are, slaves to this day—slaves in the land that you gave to our ancestors to enjoy its fruit and its good gifts. ³⁷ Its rich yield goes to the kings whom you have set over us because of our sins; they have power also over our bodies and over our livestock at their pleasure, and we are in great distress.”

³⁸ ^a Because of all this we make a firm agreement in writing, and on that sealed

^a Ch 10.1 in Heb

22: Sihon . . . Og, kings defeated in the battles for the land of Canaan (Num 21.21–35). 24–25: This conquest is described in Joshua. 26–31: A summary interpretation of the period from Joshua to the destruction of Jerusalem (see Judges–2 Kings) in which Israelites repeatedly spurned God when they were prosperous. 27: Saviors, the same Heb word is translated “deliverer” in Judg 3.9,15.

9.32–37: The present distress. The community now contrasts its circumstances with those of past generations, hoping for God’s compassion. 32: Now therefore, after reciting a history of God’s loyalty and Israel’s disobedience, the community affirms God’s righteousness. The time of the kings of Assyria, Assyria controlled the land from the mid-eighth to the late seventh centuries BCE, destroying the northern kingdom of Israel in 722 BCE. 36: Here we are, slaves to this day, still subject to foreign rulers. In Ezra–Nehemiah, this criticism of Persian rule is unique; elsewhere the book presents Persian rulers as benevolent.

9.38–10.39: Commitment: the communal pledge. Notwithstanding its plight, the community pledges loyalty to Israel’s God and to God’s teachings, namely the Torah. 9.38: Because of all this, because of this history document are inscribed the names of our officials, our Levites, and our priests.

10^a Upon the sealed document are the names of Nehemiah the governor, son of Hacaliah, and Zedekiah; ² Seraiah, Azariah, Jeremiah, ³ Pashhur, Amariah, Malchijah, ⁴ Hattush, Shebaniah, Malluch, ⁵ Harim, Meremoth, Obadiah, ⁶ Daniel, Ginnethon, Baruch, ⁷ Meshullam, Abijah, Mijamin, ⁸ Maaziah, Bilgai, Shemaiah; these are the priests. ⁹ And the Levites: Jeshua son of Azaniah, Binnui of the sons of Henadad, Kadmiel; ¹⁰ and their associates, Shebaniah, Hodiah, Kelita, Pelaiah, Hanan, ¹¹ Mica, Rehob, Hashabiah, ¹² Zaccur, Sherebiah, Shebaniah, ¹³ Hodiah, Bani, Beninu. ¹⁴ The leaders of the people: Parosh, Pahath-moab, Elam, Zattu, Bani, ¹⁵ Bunni, Azgad, Bebai, ¹⁶ Adonijah, Bigvai, Adin, ¹⁷ Ater, Hezekiah, Azzur, ¹⁸ Hodiah, Hashum, Bezai, ¹⁹ Hariph, Anathoth, Nebai, ²⁰ Magpiash, Meshullam, Hezir, ²¹ Meshezabel, Zadok, Jaddua, ²² Pelatiah, Hanan, Anaiah, ²³ Hoshea, Hananiah, Hasshub, ²⁴ Hallohesh, Pilha, Shobek, ²⁵ Rehum, Hashabnah, Maaseiah, ²⁶ Ahiah, Hanan, Anan, ²⁷ Malluch, Harim, and Baanah.

²⁸ The rest of the people, the priests, the Levites, the gatekeepers, the singers, the temple servants, and all who have separated themselves from the peoples of the lands to adhere to the law of God, their wives, their sons, their daughters, all who have knowledge and understanding, ²⁹ join with their kin, their nobles, and enter into a curse and an oath to walk in God's law, which was given by Moses the servant of God, and to observe and do all the commandments of the LORD our Lord and his ordinances and his statutes. ³⁰ We will not give our daughters to the peoples of the land or take their daughters for our sons; ³¹ and if the peoples of the land bring in merchandise or any grain on the sabbath day to sell, we will not buy it from them on the sabbath or on a holy day; and we will forego the crops of the seventh year and the exaction of every debt.

³² We also lay on ourselves the obligation to charge ourselves yearly one-third of a shekel for the service of the house of our God: ³³ for the rows of bread, the regular grain offering, the regular burnt offering, the sabbaths, the new moons, the appointed festivals, the sacred donations, and the sin offerings to make atonement for Israel, and for all the work of the house of our God.

³⁴ We have also cast lots among the priests, the Levites, and the people, for the wood offering, to bring it into the house of our God, by ancestral houses, at appointed times, year by year, to burn on the altar of the LORD our God, as it is written in the law. ³⁵ We obligate

^a Ch 10.2 in Heb

the community commits itself unilaterally by a binding pledge to obedience. 10.1–27: Signatories on behalf of the entire community include persons and clan names from several previous lists (Ezra 2–Neh 7; Ezra 8), but also reflects a broader religious and social participation. 28: The rest of the people, the entire people affirm their voluntary commitment to the pledge. Separated themselves, see 9.2; 13.3. 29: The purpose of the pledge is to have all members bind themselves to God's Torah. 30–39: This section lists voluntarily assumed obligations that reflect practices important for Jewish identity in the fifth century BCE. They express the seriousness with which the community vows to uphold the Torah, and they combine various laws from the Pentateuch/Torah as it now exists.

10.30–31: Protecting religious and ethnic boundaries, an important theme throughout Ezra–Nehemiah. 30: We will not give our daughters, see Ezra 9–10. 31: Buy . . . on the sabbath, sabbath laws prohibit work on this day (e.g., Ex 31.12–17); the pledge classifies buying as work. The sabbath may have become especially important during the Babylonian exile. Forego the crops, see Ex 23.11. Debt, see Deut 15.1–3 (although the vocabulary differs).

10.32–39: Securing religious and social institutions. 32: We also lay on ourselves the obligation, the voluntary Temple tax reflects the commitment to undertake support of the Temple. One-third of a shekel, the Torah does not require annual Temple tax (Ex 30.13 is a one-time requirement). This self-imposed tax endures throughout the Second Temple period (see Mt 17.24). 33–38: Provisions for regular Temple sacrifices and worship. 33: Rows of bread are placed on a special table at the sanctuary on the sabbath (Ex 25.29; Lev 24.5–9). Sin offerings, or purification offerings, regular sacrifices in the Temple for public or personal transgression (Lev 4.13–21). 34: Wood, for the altar's fires. This obligation is also not prescribed by the Pentateuch/Torah. 35: First fruits, see Ex 22.29;

ourselves to bring the first fruits of our soil and the first fruits of all fruit of every tree, year by year, to the house of the LORD;³⁶ also to bring to the house of our God, to the priests who minister in the house of our God, the firstborn of our sons and of our livestock, as it is written in the law, and the firstlings of our herds and of our flocks;³⁷ and to bring the first of our dough, and our contributions, the fruit of every tree, the wine and the oil, to the priests, to the chambers of the house of our God; and to bring to the Levites the tithes from our soil, for it is the Levites who collect the tithes in all our rural towns.³⁸ And the priest, the descendant of Aaron, shall be with the Levites when the Levites receive the tithes; and the Levites shall bring up a tithe of the tithes to the house of our God, to the chambers of the storehouse.³⁹ For the people of Israel and the sons of Levi shall bring the contribution of grain, wine, and oil to the storerooms where the vessels of the sanctuary are, and where the priests that minister, and the gatekeepers and the singers are. We will not neglect the house of our God.

11 Now the leaders of the people lived in Jerusalem; and the rest of the people cast lots to bring one out of ten to live in the holy city Jerusalem, while nine-tenths remained in the other towns.² And the people blessed all those who willingly offered to live in Jerusalem.

³These are the leaders of the province who lived in Jerusalem; but in the towns of Judah all lived on their property in their towns:

Israel, the priests, the Levites, the temple servants, and the descendants of Solomon's servants.⁴ And in Jerusalem lived some of the Judahites and of the Benjaminites. Of the Judahites: Athaiah son of Uzziyah son of Zechariah son of Amariah son of Shephatiah son of Mahalalel, of the descendants of Perez;⁵ and Maaseiah son of Baruch son of Col-hozeh son of Hazaiyah son of Adaiyah son of Joiarib son of Zechariah son of the Shilonite.⁶ All the descendants of Perez who lived in Jerusalem were four hundred sixty-eight valiant warriors.

⁷And these are the Benjaminites: Sallu son of Meshullam son of Joed son of Pedaiah son of Kolaiah son of Maaseiah son of Ithiel son of Jeshaiyah.⁸ And his brothers^a Gabbai, Sallai: nine hundred twenty-eight.⁹ Joel son of Zichri was their overseer; and Judah son of Hassenuah was second in charge of the city.

¹⁰Of the priests: Jedaiah son of Joiarib, Jachin,¹¹ Seraiah son of Hilkiah son of Meshullam son of Zadok son of Meraioth son of Ahitub, officer of the house of God,¹² and their associates who did the work of the house, eight hundred twenty-two; and Adaiyah son of Jeroham son of Pelaliah son of Amzi son of Zechariah son of Pashhur son of Malchijah,¹³ and his associates, heads of ancestral houses, two hundred forty-two; and Amashsai son of Azarel son of Ahzai son of Meshillemoth son of Immer,¹⁴ and their associates, valiant warriors, one hundred

^a Gk Mss: Heb And after him

23.19; Num 18.15–18. 36: Firstborn, see Ex 22.29. 37: Tithes, see Lev 27.30; Num 18.25–32. The chambers were the Temple storerooms (13.13; Ezra 8.29; 10.6). 38: The Levites and priests depended on contributions.

11.1–12.26: The repopulation of Jerusalem and a review. This section reviews the genealogical and geographical extent of the community as part of repopulating Jerusalem.

11.1–36: Repopulation. After identifying the various groups, the restored community requires ten percent of its members to dwell in Jerusalem. The lists of chs 11–12 are compiled from different sources. 1: Holy city, for Ezra–Nehemiah, the entire city, not only the Temple, is now holy (see also Ezek 48.35). Nine-tenths remained, see 11.3–24n.

11.3–24: Census of repopulated Jerusalem. The total of enumerated residents of Jerusalem's population in 11.1–24 is slightly over 3,000. Taking this to represent 10 percent of the population indicates about 30,000 residents for the entire province. This number is considerably smaller than the number of returnees (42,360) in Ezra 2.64 and Neh 7.66, but conforms to estimates reached by archaeologists on the basis of nonbiblical data. It also roughly corresponds to the sum total of numbers in the lists of Ezra 2 and Neh 7. See Ezra 2:64n. 4–6: Judahites are traced back to their ancestor Judah through his three sons: Perez (11.4; cf. Gen 38.29); the Shilonite (11.5), probably Shelah (Gen 38.4); and Zerah (11.24; Gen 38.30). 7–9: Benjaminites. The individual names are otherwise unknown. 10–14: Priests. The group includes three families. Some of these names appear also in Ezra's pedigree twenty-eight; their overseer was Zabdiel son of Haggadolim.

¹⁵ And of the Levites: Shemaiah son of Hashtub son of Azrikam son of Hashabiah son of Bunni; ¹⁶ and Shabbethai and Jozabad, of the leaders of the Levites, who were over the outside work of the house of God; ¹⁷ and Mattaniah son of Mica son of Zabdi son of Asaph, who was the leader to begin the thanksgiving in prayer, and Bakbukiah, the second among his associates; and Abda son of Shammua son of Galal son of Jeduthun. ¹⁸ All the Levites in the holy city were two hundred eighty-four.

¹⁹ The gatekeepers, Akkub, Talmon and their associates, who kept watch at the gates, were one hundred seventy-two. ²⁰ And the rest of Israel, and of the priests and the Levites, were in all the towns of Judah, all of them in their inheritance. ²¹ But the temple servants lived on Ophel; and Ziha and Gishpa were over the temple servants.

²² The overseer of the Levites in Jerusalem was Uzzi son of Bani son of Hashabiah son of Mattaniah son of Mica, of the descendants of Asaph, the singers, in charge of the work of the house of God. ²³ For there was a command from the king concerning them, and a settled provision for the singers, as was required every day. ²⁴ And Pethahiah son of Meshezabel, of the descendants of Zerach son of Judah, was at the king's hand in all matters concerning the people.

²⁵ And as for the villages, with their fields, some of the people of Judah lived in Kiriatharba and its villages, and in Dibon and its villages, and in Jekabzeel and its villages, ²⁶ and in Jeshua and in Moladah and Beth-pelet, ²⁷ in Hazar-shual, in Beer-sheba and its villages, ²⁸ in Ziklag, in Meconah and its villages, ²⁹ in En-rimmon, in Zorah, in Jarmuth, ³⁰ Zanoah, Adullam, and their villages, Lachish and its fields, and Azekah and its villages. So they camped from Beer-sheba to the valley of Hinnom. ³¹ The people of Benjamin also lived from Geba onward, at Michmash, Aija, Bethel and its villages, ³² Anathoth, Nob, Ananiah, ³³ Hazor, Ramah, Gittaim, ³⁴ Hadid, Zeboim, Neballat, ³⁵ Lod, and Ono, the valley of artisans. ³⁶ And certain divisions of the Levites in Judah were joined to Benjamin.

12 These are the priests and the Levites who came up with Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, and Jeshua: Seraiah, Jeremiah, Ezra, ² Amariah, Malluch, Hattush, ³ Shecaniah, Rehum, Meremoth, ⁴ Iddo, Ginnethoi, Abijah, ⁵ Mijamin, Maadiah, Bilgah, ⁶ Shemaiah, Joiarib, Jedaiah, ⁷ Sallu, Amok, Hilkiyah, Jedaiah. These were the leaders of the priests and of their associates in the days of Jeshua.

⁸ And the Levites: Jeshua, Binnui, Kadmiel, Sherebiah, Judah, and Mattaniah, who with his associates was in charge of the songs of thanksgiving. ⁹ And Bakbukiah and Unno their associates stood opposite them in the service. ¹⁰ Jeshua was the father of Joiakim, Joiakim the father of Eliashib, Eliashib the father of Joiada, ¹¹ Joiada the father of Jonathan, and Jonathan the father of Jaddua.

¹² In the days of Joiakim the priests, heads of ancestral houses, were: of Seraiah, Meraiah; of Jeremiah, Hananiah; ¹³ of Ezra, Meshullam; of Amariah, Jehohanan; ¹⁴ of Malluchi, Jonathan; of Shebaniah, Joseph; ¹⁵ of Harim, Adna; of Meraioth, Helkai; ¹⁶ of Iddo, Zechariah; of Ginnethon, Meshullam; ¹⁷ of Abijah, Zichri; of Miniamin, of Moadiah, Piltai; ¹⁸ of Bilgah, Shammua; of Shemaiah, Jehonathan; ¹⁹ of Joiarib, Mattenai; of Jedaiah, Uzzi; ²⁰ of Sallai, Kallai; of Amok, Eber; ²¹ of Hilkiyah, Hashabiah; of Jedaiah, Nethanel.

(Ezra 7:1–5). 19: Gatekeepers, see Ezra 2.42 Neh 7.45. 24: At the king's hand, i.e., directly accountable to the king.

11.25–36: Census of other Jewish settlements. The geographical area spanned by the villages extends beyond the known boundaries of the Persian province of Yehud (Judah). The list, then, is either an ideal echoing Josh 15, envisioning a greater province, or (more likely) a register of Jews also in towns outside Yehud proper or an expanded list from a considerably later time. (For the location of sites that can be identified, see the map on p. 686.)

12.1–26: Review of priestly and levitical genealogies. The reconstituted community again (cf. ch 7) reviews its Temple personnel, spanning the entire era of reconstruction (520–444 BCE). The list is artificial and problematic, but its existence reflects the importance of priests and Levites in this period, a concern also reflected in the books of Chronicles. Although many names are familiar from other lists, the information resists clear chronological schematization. 1: Came up with Zerubbabel . . . and Jeshua, i.e., the governor and priest leading Stage

²² As for the Levites, in the days of Eliashib, Joiada, Johanan, and Jaddua, there were recorded the heads of ancestral houses; also the priests until the reign of Darius the Persian.

²³ The Levites, heads of ancestral houses, were recorded in the Book of the Annals until the days of Johanan son of Eliashib. ²⁴ And the leaders of the Levites: Hashabiah, Sherebiah, and Jeshua son of Kadmiel, with their associates over against them, to praise and to give thanks, according to the commandment of David the man of God, section opposite to section. ²⁵ Mattaniah, Bakbukiah, Obadiah, Meshullam, Talmon, and Akkub were gatekeepers standing guard at the storehouses of the gates. ²⁶ These were in the days of Joiakim son of Jeshua son of Jozadak, and in the days of the governor Nehemiah and of the priest Ezra, the scribe.

²⁷ Now at the dedication of the wall of Jerusalem they sought out the Levites in all their places, to bring them to Jerusalem to celebrate the dedication with rejoicing, with thanksgivings and with singing, with cymbals, harps, and lyres. ²⁸ The companies of the singers gathered together from the circuit around Jerusalem and from the villages of the Netophathites; ²⁹ also from Beth-gilgal and from the region of Geba and Azmaveth; for the singers had built for themselves villages around Jerusalem. ³⁰ And the priests and the Levites purified themselves; and they purified the people and the gates and the wall.

³¹ Then I brought the leaders of Judah up onto the wall, and appointed two great companies that gave thanks and went in procession. One went to the right on the wall to the Dung Gate; ³² and after them went Hoshaiiah and half the officials of Judah, ³³ and Aza-riah, Ezra, Meshullam, ³⁴ Judah, Benjamin, Shemaiah, and Jeremiah, ³⁵ and some of the young priests with trumpets: Zechariah son of Jonathan son of Shemaiah son of Mattaniah son of Micaiah son of Zaccur son of Asaph; ³⁶ and his kindred, Shemaiah, Azarel, Milalai, Gilalai, Maai, Nethanel, Judah, and Hanani, with the musical instruments of David the man of God; and the scribe Ezra went in front of them. ³⁷ At the Fountain Gate, in front of them, they went straight up by the stairs of the city of David, at the ascent of the wall, above the house of David, to the Water Gate on the east.

³⁸ The other company of those who gave thanks went to the left,^a and I followed them with half of the people on the wall, above the Tower of the Ovens, to the Broad Wall, ³⁹ and above the Gate of Ephraim, and by the Old Gate, and by the Fish Gate and the Tower of Hananel and the Tower of the Hundred, to the Sheep Gate; and they came to a halt at the Gate of the Guard. ⁴⁰ So both companies of those who gave thanks stood in the house of God, and I and half of the officials with me; ⁴¹ and the priests Eliakim, Maaseiah, Miniamin, Micaiah, Elioenai, Zechariah, and Hananiah, with trumpets; ⁴² and Maaseiah, Shemaiah, Eleazar, Uzzi, Jehohanan, Malchijah, Elam, and Ezer. And the singers sang with Jezrahiah as their leader. ⁴³ They offered great sacrifices that day and rejoiced, for God had made them rejoice with great joy; the women and children also rejoiced. The joy of Jerusalem was heard far away.

⁴⁴ On that day men were appointed over the chambers for the stores, the contribu-

^a Cn: Heb opposite

One of the return (see Ezra 2.1–2n.). 22: Until the reign of Darius the Persian, Darius I (522–486). Some scholars suggest that the reference is to Darius II (423–404 BCE). 24: David, see Ezra 3.10n. 26: Joiakim . . . Nehemiah . . . Ezra, the three figures—the officiating priest, the governor, and the priest Ezra in his capacity as scribe—mark the period of completion of the task. Now all is ready for the grand finale.

12.27–13.3: Grand finale: a service of dedication: celebration, purification, procession, and separation. 12.27: The initiative again comes from the community (cf. 8.1). 30: This unique ceremony of purification signals that the people are sanctified and Jerusalem is “the holy city” (11.1).

12.31–42: The procession. Two groups circled the city on the wall and alongside it. On the gates named, see 2.13–14n.; 3.1n. 31: Then I, Nehemiah. Two great companies, the groups marched in opposite directions and met at the Temple. 36: The scribe Ezra, this final appearance by Ezra is striking; as a priest (Ezra 7.1–5), he leads the priests. 42: Antiphonal singing by the professional liturgical singers.

12.43–13.3: Final communal actions on the day of dedication. These include sacrifices and separation in tions, the first fruits, and the tithes, to gather into them the portions required by the law for the priests and for the Levites from the fields belonging to the towns; for Judah rejoiced over the priests and the Levites who ministered. ⁴⁵ They performed the service of their God and the service of purification, as did the singers and the gatekeepers, according to the command of David and his son Solomon. ⁴⁶ For in the days of David and Asaph long ago there was a leader of the singers, and there were songs of praise and thanksgiving to God. ⁴⁷ In the days of Zerubbabel and in the days of Nehemiah all Israel gave the daily portions for the singers and the gatekeepers. They set apart that which was for the Levites; and the Levites set apart that which was for the descendants of Aaron.

13 On that day they read from the book of Moses in the hearing of the people; and in it was found written that no Ammonite or Moabite should ever enter the assembly of God, ² because they did not meet the Israelites with bread and water, but hired Balaam against them to curse them—yet our God turned the curse into a blessing. ³ When the people heard the law, they separated from Israel all those of foreign descent.

⁴ Now before this, the priest Eliashib, who was appointed over the chambers of the house of our God, and who was related to Tobiah, ⁵ prepared for Tobiah a large room where they had previously put the grain offering, the frankincense, the vessels, and the tithes of grain, wine, and oil, which were given by commandment to the Levites, singers, and gatekeepers, and the contributions for the priests. ⁶ While this was taking place I was not in Jerusalem, for in the thirty-second year of King Artaxerxes of Babylon I went to the king. After some time I asked leave of the king ⁷ and returned to Jerusalem. I then discovered the wrong that Eliashib had done on behalf of Tobiah, preparing a room for him in the courts of the house of God. ⁸ And I was very angry, and I threw all the household furniture of Tobiah out of the room. ⁹ Then I gave orders and they cleansed the chambers, and I brought back the vessels of the house of God, with the grain offering and the frankincense.

¹⁰ I also found out that the portions of the Levites had not been given to them; so that the Levites and the singers, who had conducted the service, had gone back to their fields. ¹¹ So I remonstrated with the officials and said, “Why is the house of God accordance with the Torah. 12.46: Asaph, see 7.44; 1 Chr 16.5. 47: The days of Zerubbabel and . . . Nehemiah, the description of the celebration reckons from the beginning of the return (Ezra 2) to Nehemiah, the period covered by the unified Ezra-Nehemiah. 13.1–3: The final action on that day implements the Torah by separating from foreigners. Although distinct from the issues of intermarriage (Ezra 9–10 and Neh 13.23–28), the separation is part of the social and religious boundaries that the restored community seeks to maintain within the multicultural setting of the Persian empire. The virtual quotation from Deut 23.4–7 indicates that Deuteronomy was available to the postexilic community as part of its Torah or “law of Moses.” 1. No Ammonite or Moabite should ever enter, see Deut 23.3. 2: Balaam, see Num 22–24 and Deut 23.5–6.

13.4–31: Coda. Nehemiah’s memoir (interrupted in 7.5) resumes with a retrospective from a time after 433 BCE, after Nehemiah had served twelve years as governor (13.6; 5.14). At some point after returning to King Artaxerxes, Nehemiah came back to Jerusalem, discovered violations of the communal pledge of ch 10, and took steps to restore order. These violations pertain to the purity of the Temple, observance of the sabbath, and intermarriage. 4–9: Nehemiah evicts Tobiah from the desecrated Temple precinct. Nehemiah first referred to Tobiah as an “Ammonite official” (2.10), a national connection that may justify his expulsion (see 13.1–3). Apparently other Judeans considered Tobiah (whose name refers to Israel’s God; see 2.10n) a legitimate member of the community. His connection with the priests and installation at the Temple support this conclusion. On Tobiah’s priestly relations, see 6.18. 4: The priest Eliashib, possibly, but not necessarily the high priest (of 3.1 and 13.28); the name was common in this era. Appointed over the chambers, hence controlling the storage and distribution of Temple resources). 6: The thirty-second year, 433 BCE. 9: Cleansed, for Nehemiah, Tobiah’s illegitimate presence ritually contaminated the room.

13.10–13: Nehemiah rectifies violations regarding Levites and singers (cf. 10.37–39). 10: Levites . . . had gone, Nehemiah may imply that Tobiah’s presence hastened the departure of Levites who had not been paid. 11:

forsaken?” And I gathered them together and set them in their stations.¹² Then all Judah brought the tithe of the grain, wine, and oil into the storehouses.¹³ And I appointed as treasurers over the storehouses the priest Shelemiah, the scribe Zadok, and Pedaiah of the Levites, and as their assistant Hanan son of Zaccur son of Mattaniah, for they were considered faithful; and their duty was to distribute to their associates.¹⁴ Remember me, O my God, concerning this, and do not wipe out my good deeds that I have done for the house of my God and for his service.

¹⁵ In those days I saw in Judah people treading wine presses on the sabbath, and bringing in heaps of grain and loading them on donkeys; and also wine, grapes, figs, and all kinds of burdens, which they brought into Jerusalem on the sabbath day; and I warned them at that time against selling food.¹⁶ Tyrians also, who lived in the city, brought in fish and all kinds of merchandise and sold them on the sabbath to the people of Judah, and in Jerusalem.¹⁷ Then I remonstrated with the nobles of Judah and said to them, “What is this evil thing that you are doing, profaning the sabbath day?”¹⁸ Did not your ancestors act in this way, and did not our God bring all this disaster on us and on this city? Yet you bring more wrath on Israel by profaning the sabbath.”

¹⁹ When it began to be dark at the gates of Jerusalem before the sabbath, I commanded that the doors should be shut and gave orders that they should not be opened until after the

sabbath. And I set some of my servants over the gates, to prevent any burden from being brought in on the sabbath day.²⁰ Then the merchants and sellers of all kinds of merchandise spent the night outside Jerusalem once or twice.²¹ But I warned them and said to them, “Why do you spend the night in front of the wall? If you do so again, I will lay hands on you.” From that time on they did not come on the sabbath.²² And I commanded the Levites that they should purify themselves and come and guard the gates, to keep the sabbath day holy. Remember this also in my favor, O my God, and spare me according to the greatness of your steadfast love.

²³ In those days also I saw Jews who had married women of Ashdod, Ammon, and Moab;²⁴ and half of their children spoke the language of Ashdod, and they could not speak the language of Judah, but spoke the language of various peoples.²⁵ And I contended with them and cursed them and beat some of them and pulled out their hair; and I made them take an oath in the name of God, saying, “You shall not give your daughters to their sons, or take their daughters for your sons or for yourselves.”²⁶ Did not King Solomon of Israel sin on account of such women? Among the many nations there was no king like him, and he was beloved by his God, and God made him king over all Israel; nevertheless, foreign women made even him to sin.²⁷ Shall we then listen to you and do all this great evil and act treacherously against our God by marrying foreign women?”

Gathered them, i.e., the dispersed Levites. 12: The opening words should be translated “All Judah had brought.” Nehemiah alleges that the desertion of Levites resulted less from lack of contributions than from mismanagement, possibly by Tobiah. 13: And I appointed, Nehemiah's chooses new supervisors. Considered faithful, an important trait because of previous corruption under Tobiah and Eliashib. 14: Conclusion: Nehemiah's plea for remembrance for these restoration efforts.

13.15–22: Nehemiah rectifies sabbath violations (cf. 10.31). The sabbath constitutes another cultural and religious boundary, one that gains importance in the postexilic period. 15: In those days, when Nehemiah returned to Jerusalem for the second time, after 433 BCE. 16: Tyrians, merchants from Tyre, in modern Lebanon. 19–22: Shutting the gates during the sabbath prevented foreign trading in the city during the sabbath. 22: They should purify themselves, purified Levites guard the gates (7.1–3; 11.1) to secure sanctity, especially on the holy sabbath. Such measures are unique to the book of Ezra–Nehemiah, underscoring the holiness of the entire city.

13.23–29: Intermarriage problems (cf. 10.30). On marriage with foreigners in Ezra–Nehemiah, see Ezra 9–10, especially Ezra 9.1–15n. The problem, as Nehemiah presents it, is different from Ezra 9.2; it concerns loss of Jewish identity exemplified by the disappearance of Hebrew among children of mixed marriages. Intermarriage also signals for him turning away from Israel's God. 23: Ashdod, a Philistine city on the southeast coast of the Mediterranean. 26: King Solomon's marriages corrupted his relations with God (1 Kings 11.1–8) and thus exemplify the danger to the present community. 28: Son of the high priest Eliashib, was the son-in-law of Sanballat, evidently, some Jews, including the high priest's family, considered contracting marriage with Sanballat's family as appropriate. Eliashib consecrated the gates in 3.1. Sanballat, the family of Sanballat, the governor of Samaria (see 2.10n.). His sons had Hebrew names. 2 Kings 17 describes the residents of Samaria as foreigners who accepted some aspects of Yahwistic worship. Samaritans, like the later Samaritans, may have claimed, instead, that they were a remnant of the northern kingdom of Israel and true offspring of Abraham through Jacob. Like Ezra, Nehemiah vehemently objects to what he construes as intermarriage. I chased him away, Nehemiah acts firmly to protect the Temple's purity from illegitimate behavior by a priest. The Jewish historian Josephus reports that the Samaritan Temple near Shechem was built in the fourth century BCE for a priest expelled from Jerusalem Ant. 11.8.2).

²⁸ And one of the sons of Jehoiada, son of the high priest Eliashib, was the son-in-law of Sanballat the Horonite; I chased him away from me. ²⁹ Remember them, O my God, because they have defiled the priesthood, the covenant of the priests and the Levites.

³⁰ Thus I cleansed them from everything foreign, and I established the duties of the priests and Levites, each in his work; ³¹ and I provided for the wood offering, at appointed times, and for the first fruits. Remember me, O my God, for good.

13.30–31: Conclusion. The purification of the priesthood and Temple administration was difficult because of the status of the opposing priests. Therefore, Nehemiah presents restoring order and sanctity to the worship system as the crown of his achievement. 31: I provided for the wood offering . . . and for the first fruits, see 10.34–35, in which the community pledges to provide these. For good, with "good" as the last word, Nehemiah invokes a final blessing.

ESTHER

NAME

The book of Esther takes its name from its heroine, the Jewish woman of the Diaspora who becomes queen of Persia, saves her people from genocide, and with her guardian, Mordecai, inaugurates the new Jewish festival of Purim. This title first appears in the Greek translation (the Septuagint, LXX) of the story and thus may not belong to the Hebrew original. According to 2.7, Esther has a Hebrew name, Hadassah, but is otherwise called Esther, a name that is cognate with Ishtar, the Babylonian goddess of love and war, or with the Persian word stara, “star.” The Latin (Vulgate) translation calls her Hester.

CANONICAL STATUS

Esther is the only book of the Hebrew Bible unattested among the Dead Sea Scrolls (third century BCE to first century CE), nor does the New Testament ever allude to it. Like The Song of Solomon (on which the New Testament is similarly mute), the book of Esther provoked debate among rabbis and church fathers over its scriptural status for reasons that were not always spelled out. Neither book so much as mentions God or such key Jewish concepts as covenant, temple, sacrifice, or prayer. Furthermore, both Esther and Song of Solomon celebrate, albeit in different contexts, the power of feminine sexuality. Another factor in its late admission to the biblical canon may have been the book’s enthusiastic account of the Jewish communities’ slaughter of their enemies, an aspect of Esther that continues to trouble readers today.

Only by the third or fourth centuries CE does the scroll appear to have successfully overcome all rabbinical reservations about its canonicity. Early Christians harbored similar doubts; as late as the fourth century when the Western church had accepted Esther in its Bible, some Eastern Church authorities continued to question it. The sixteenth-century Protestant reformer Martin Luther wished it had never been written.

In the Jewish scriptures (“Tanakh”), the book of Esther appears in the third section, the Writings (“Ketuvim”); coming after Ecclesiastes, it is the last of the five festal scrolls (“Megillot”). Esther is read twice through on the Jewish festival Purim. In Christian Bibles the book is grouped with the Historical Books, after Ezra and Nehemiah, in recognition of the story’s setting in the Persian period (550–333 BCE).

Complicating Esther’s place in the biblical canon are more than a hundred additional verses in the Greek (Septuagint) version that do not appear in surviving Hebrew manuscripts. These verses are excluded from their Bibles by Jews and Protestants, while Roman Catholic and Orthodox Christians accept them. A translation of the full Greek text of Esther, including these additions, is part of the Apocryphal/Deuterocanonical Books in most editions of this Bible.

AUTHORSHIP, DATE, AND LITERARY HISTORY

Esther contains some folktale motifs, but its many allusions to other biblical texts, most notably the Joseph story (Gen 37–48), suggest a literate and cultured author, probably from a socially prominent Jewish family in Persia. The anonymous author makes a case for living a full Jewish life within the strictures imposed by the alien Diaspora environment. The version of Esther contained in the Hebrew Bible was probably composed in the early Hellenistic period (late fourth or early third century BCE).

In light of the extra Greek verses mentioned above, as well as a slightly different version of Esther preserved in a few Greek manuscripts, the existing biblical (canonical) version of Esther clearly evolved over time; many scholars, for example, doubt that the Purim festival figured in earlier versions of the Esther story.

CONTENTS AND INTERPRETATION

Although the action of Esther takes place over a period of ten years in the reign of the Persian King Ahasuerus, the ten chapters of the story progress swiftly. The narrative relates how Esther came to be queen (in place of the disgraced Vashti) and how a rivalry between her uncle Mordecai and his enemy Haman threatened the entire Jewish community. Through Esther’s cleverness and boldness the plot was foiled, and the Jews were given permission to defend themselves. The story serves, perhaps secondarily, as the background for the Jewish holiday of Purim.

ESTHER

Despite the setting and the author's familiarity with Persian customs, vocabulary, and names, Esther is not a work of history but a historical novella, that is, a fictional story within a historical framework. Ahasuerus is probably meant to be Xerxes I of Persia (486–465 BCE), but there is no historical evidence for a Queen Vashti or for a Jewish queen, much less a Queen Esther. The concept of immutable "laws of the Persians and the Medes" (1.19) appears only in Esther. The story's purpose is to entertain, but more importantly to demonstrate the inevitability of retributive justice and, paradoxically, the need for oppressed minorities to act shrewdly and boldly for that justice to prevail. In addition, the book's historical tone legitimates the festival of Purim, which was probably a Babylonian or Persian holiday adopted by Diaspora Jews. Purim is not mentioned in the rest of the Bible.

As a woman, Esther herself mirrors the marginal and sometimes precarious status of Diaspora Jews. The author, in fact, may be advocating a measure of accommodation with the larger Gentile world by ignoring the question of how a good Jew like Esther can justify marrying a Gentile and inevitably violating Jewish dietary rules.

The most intractable interpretive problem of Esther centers on God. Because God is never explicitly named in Esther, scholars are divided as to whether the author excluded divine participation altogether or intended to imply that God was active behind the scenes. The ambiguous reference in 4.14 to help "from another quarter" has been invoked to argue both positions. The Greek additions to Esther took care to mention God frequently, thereby resolving this interpretive dilemma and, incidentally, providing an instance of early Jewish biblical interpretation at work.

GUIDE TO READING

For the fullest appreciation of the story, readers should keep in mind that Esther's narrative style overflows with exaggeration and hyperbole: the duration of royal feasts, the silliness of the king's first decree, Esther's excessive beauty regimen, and the body count of the Jews' victims. Furthermore, in Esther one encounters a surprisingly modern tension between various forms of comedy—such as satire, irony, and farce—and tragedy. The author has adroitly bound these together and balanced them within the narrative by complex patterns of symmetries, reversals, foreshadowing, and recurring motifs. For example, the story begins and ends with a feast, while additional banquets punctuate the narrative at key moments. Royal edicts, often highly ironic, similarly mark the course of the action. At different moments leading characters mirror each other directly or in reverse. The disobedient queen Vashti is deposed, but new queen Esther triumphantly defies royal law. Esther successfully begs the king for the lives of her people whom Haman has doomed; Haman in vain supplicates Esther for his own life. The most cleverly constructed moment of the story occurs in ch 6 when Haman suddenly finds himself in the humiliating position of presenting the royal reward he expected himself to his nemesis, Mordecai, instead.

While the main characters in Esther are essentially stereotypes without distinctive personalities, one character does change over the course of the story. Esther begins as a passive figure, notable only for her beauty and obedient nature. Since all the women in the harem are beautiful, presumably it is her exceptional sexual skills that win her the crown. However, after Mordecai's challenge to Esther in 4.13–14, Esther seems to embrace her Jewishness; with this self-recognition, Esther becomes the decisive actor in the story, risking her life, issuing orders to Mordecai, and, later, to the king himself. Ultimately, it is on Esther's authority, albeit in concert with Mordecai, that Purim is established, making Esther the only woman to authorize a Jewish religious tradition.

Mary Joan Winn Leith

1 This happened in the days of Ahasuerus, the same Ahasuerus who ruled over one hundred twenty-seven provinces from India to Ethiopia.^a ²In those days when King Ahasuerus sat on his royal throne in the citadel of Susa, ³in the third year of his reign, he gave a banquet for all his officials and ministers. The army of Persia and Media and the nobles and governors of the provinces were present, ⁴while he displayed the great wealth of his kingdom and the splendor and pomp of his majesty for many days, one hundred eighty days in all.

⁵When these days were completed, the king gave for all the people present in the citadel of Susa, both great and small, a banquet lasting for seven days, in the court of the garden of the king's palace. ⁶There were white cotton curtains and blue hangings tied with cords of fine linen and purple to silver rings^b and marble pillars. There were couches of gold and silver on a mosaic pavement of porphyry, marble, mother-of-pearl, and colored stones. ⁷Drinks were served in golden goblets, goblets of different kinds, and the royal wine was lavished according to the bounty of the king. ⁸Drinking was by flagons, without restraint; for the king had given orders to all the officials of his palace to do as each one desired. ⁹Furthermore, Queen Vashti gave a banquet for the women in the palace of King Ahasuerus.

¹⁰On the seventh day, when the king was merry with wine, he commanded Mehuman, Biztha, Harbona, Bigtha and Abagtha, Zethar and Carkas, the seven eunuchs who attended him, ¹¹to bring Queen Vashti before the king, wearing the royal crown, in order to show the peoples and the officials her beauty; for she was fair to behold. ¹²But Queen Vashti refused to come at the king's command conveyed by the eunuchs. At this the king was enraged, and his anger burned within him.

¹³Then the king consulted the sages who knew the laws^c (for this was the king's procedure toward all who were versed in law and custom, ¹⁴and those next to him were Carshena, Shethar, Admatha, Tarshish, Meres, Marsena, and Memucan, the seven officials of Persia and Media, who had access to the king, and sat first in the kingdom): ¹⁵"According to the law, what is to be done to Queen Vashti because she has not performed the command of King Ahasuerus conveyed by the eunuchs?" ¹⁶Then Memucan said in the presence of the king and the officials, "Not only has Queen Vashti done wrong to the king, but also to all the officials and all the peoples who are in all the provinces of King Ahasuerus. ¹⁷For this deed of the queen will

^a Or Nubia; Heb Cush

^b Or rods

^c Cn: Heb times

1.1–9: King Ahasuerus holds a feast. 1: Ahasuerus (Ezra 4.6; not the same as in Dan 9.1 or Tob 14.15) is probably Xerxes I (486–465 BCE) whose Persian Empire from India (Indus Valley) to Ethiopia (Heb "Cush," modern Sudan and Ethiopia) included some twenty satrapies (Herodotus 3.89) subdivided into provinces. 2: Susa, Ahasuerus's winter capital in northwestern Iran, 180 mi (400 km) east of ancient Babylon. The citadel was a fortified section of the palace. 3–4: Greek writers mention sumptuous feasts held by Persian kings. The banquet, with its exaggerated length of one hundred and eighty days (see Jdt 1.16), is the first of several that occur at key moments in the story. 5–6: Garden . . . curtains . . . couches, the extravagance emphasizes power and wealth. 8: Drinking was . . . without restraint, demonstrating the king's characteristic permissiveness, excess, and lack of control over his court (cf. 3.11; 5.6; 7.2), which foreshadows his later inability to control Queen Vashti. 9: Vashti, a Persian name meaning "beloved." Xerxes I's queen was Amestris (Herodotus 7.61); no Vashti appears in any ancient records. Vashti's banquet for the women emphasizes the separate, gendered spheres of king and queen, a factor in Esther's later bravery.

1.10–22: Queen Vashti's downfall. 10: A person merry with wine (Prov 15.15) may come to grief (see 5.9; 1 Sam 25.36; 2 Sam 13.28; Dan 5.2). Eunuchs were castrated males who served in the Persian court. The list of their names lends the story an air of authenticity. 12: This episode occurs in reverse in 5.2 when Esther comes uninvited into the king's presence. 13–18: A satirical moment: the king's sages who knew the laws inflate a domestic dispute into a national crisis. 14: Only the closest royal advisers enjoyed free access to the king (see 4.11). The seven officials have Persian names. The fear of a feminine insurrection against patriarchal order lies just below the surface of many ancient myths and legends. Contrary to Memucan's dire imaginings, the real danger will be made known to all women, causing them to look with contempt on their husbands, since they will say, ‘King Ahasuerus commanded Queen Vashti to be brought before him, and she did not come.’¹⁸ This very day the noble ladies of Persia and Media who have heard of the queen’s behavior will rebel against^a the king’s officials, and there will be no end of contempt and wrath!¹⁹ If it pleases the king, let a royal order go out from him, and let it be written among the laws of the Persians and the Medes so that it may not be altered, that Vashti is never again to come before King Ahasuerus; and let the king give her royal position to another who is better than she.²⁰ So when the decree made by the king is proclaimed throughout all his kingdom, vast as it is, all women will give honor to their husbands, high and low alike.”

²¹ This advice pleased the king and the officials, and the king did as Memucan proposed; ²² he sent letters to all the royal provinces, to every province in its own script and to every people in its own language, declaring that every man should be master in his own house.^b

2 After these things, when the anger of King Ahasuerus had abated, he remembered Vashti and what she had done and what had been decreed against her.² Then the king’s servants who attended him said, “Let beautiful young virgins be sought out for the king.³ And let the king appoint commissioners in all the provinces of his kingdom to gather all the beautiful young virgins to the harem in the citadel of Susa under custody of Hegai, the king’s eunuch, who is in charge of the women; let their cosmetic treatments be given them.⁴ And let the girl who pleases the king be queen instead of Vashti.” This pleased the king, and he did so.

⁵ Now there was a Jew in the citadel of Susa whose name was Mordecai son of Jair son of Shimei son of Kish, a Benjaminite.⁶ Kish^c had been carried away from Jerusalem among the captives carried away with King Jeconiah of Judah, whom King Nebuchadnezzar of

^a Cn: Heb will tell

^b Heb adds and speak according to the language of his people

^c Heb a Benjaminite ⁶who

come in the form of a conspiracy by palace bodyguards (2.21). 19: To another who is better than she uses the same words as Samuel’s rejection of Saul in favor of David (1 Sam 15.28). No sources outside the Bible indicate that the laws of the Persians and the Medes could not be altered (8.8; Dan 6.8,12), but here the phrase subtly contrasts excessive legalism with true justice. This royal order is the first in a series of edicts by the king. 20: An instance of narrative irony: by decreeing that all women must give honor to their husbands, the king draws attention to his own failure to control his wife. 22: Persian royal pronouncements were issued in Aramaic, the official language of Persian diplomacy, as well as in the languages of subject peoples (see Ezra 4.7,17). Letters, the Persian postal system was renowned (Herodotus 8.98).

2.1–18: Esther becomes queen. 1–4: The king agrees to seek a new queen. 1: Remembered (i.e., positively; see Gen 40.14); the king may be regretting his treatment of Vashti but cannot risk losing face by reversing his earlier decision (1.19). 2: Patriarchal societies insist on a virgin bride to ensure the paternity of children within the marriage (see Ex 22.16; Lev 21.13). In fact, Persian kings could marry women only from certain noble Persian families. 3: Let the king appoint commissioners echoes the Joseph story (see Gen 41.34–35), a biblical text to which the book of Esther often alludes. Eunuch, see 1.10n. Eunuchs were especially needed as overseers of the king’s harem (lit. “house of women”). Cosmetic treatments (see vv. 9,12).

2.5–11: Introducing two Jewish heroes: Mordecai and Esther. 5–6: Mordecai, a name derived from the Babylonian god Marduk. Mordecai’s Benjaminite ancestry includes King Saul (1 Sam 9.1–2), while Haman’s genealogy (3.1) connects him to Saul’s enemy, the Amalekite King Agag (1 Sam 15). Jew (Heb “yehudi”), originally anyone from the kingdom of Judah (2 Kings 16.6), is used here in its usual later sense of an adherent to Judaism. Mordecai’s presence in the citadel (see 1.2n.) probably means he was a minor court official (see 2.19). The Hebrew wording implies it was Mordecai who was exiled with Judah’s last king, Jehoiachin (here called Jeconiah), when the Babylonian king Nebuchadnezzar conquered Judah in 597 BCE (2 Kings 24), over a hundred years earlier. To avoid an unlikely century-old Mordecai, translators have often emended the text to make Mordecai’s great-grandfather, Kish, part of the original exile. Susa, see 1.2n. 7: Esther’s Hebrew name Hadassah means “myrtle.” Her Gentile name, Esther, derives from Ishtar, Babylonian goddess of sexual allure and war, or from the Persian Babylon had carried away.⁷ Mordecai^a had brought up Hadassah, that is Esther, his cousin, for she had neither father nor mother; the girl was fair and beautiful, and when her father and her mother died, Mordecai adopted her as his own daughter.⁸ So when the king's order and his edict were proclaimed, and when many young women were gathered in the citadel of Susa in custody of Hegai, Esther also was taken into the king's palace and put in custody of Hegai, who had charge of the women.⁹ The girl pleased him and won his favor, and he quickly provided her with her cosmetic treatments and her portion of food, and with seven chosen maids from the king's palace, and advanced her and her maids to the best place in the harem.¹⁰ Esther did not reveal her people or kindred, for Mordecai had charged her not to tell.¹¹ Every day Mordecai would walk around in front of the court of the harem, to learn how Esther was and how she fared.

¹²The turn came for each girl to go in to King Ahasuerus, after being twelve months under the regulations for the women, since this was the regular period of their cosmetic treatment, six months with oil of myrrh and six months with perfumes and cosmetics for women.¹³ When the girl went in to the king she was given whatever she asked for to take with her from the harem to the king's palace.¹⁴ In the evening she went in; then in the morning she came back to the second harem in custody of Shaashgaz, the king's eunuch, who was in charge of the concubines; she did not go in to the king again, unless the king delighted in her and she was summoned by name.

¹⁵When the turn came for Esther daughter of Abihail the uncle of Mordecai, who had adopted her as his own daughter, to go in to the king, she asked for nothing except what Hegai the king's eunuch, who had charge of the women, advised. Now Esther was admired by all who saw her.¹⁶ When Esther was taken to King Ahasuerus in his royal palace in the tenth month, which is the month of Tebeth, in the seventh year of his reign,¹⁷ the king loved Esther more than all the other women; of all the virgins she won his favor and devotion, so that he set the royal crown on her head and made her queen instead of Vashti.¹⁸ Then the king gave a great banquet to all his officials and ministers—"Esther's banquet." He also granted a holiday^b to the provinces, and gave gifts with royal liberality.

¹⁹When the virgins were being gathered together,^c Mordecai was sitting at the king's gate.²⁰ Now Esther had not revealed her kindred or her people, as Mordecai had charged her; for Esther obeyed Mordecai just as when she was brought up by him.²¹ In those days, while Mordecai was sitting at the king's gate, Bigthan and Teresh, two of the king's eunuchs, who guarded the threshold, became angry and conspired to assassinate^d King Ahasuerus.²² But the matter came to

^a Heb He

^b Or an amnesty

^c Heb adds a second time

^d Heb to lay hands on word for "star," or both. Like other Jewish exiles (Dan 1.6–7) Esther has both a Hebrew and a Babylonian name. 9: In winning the favor of Hegai, Esther resembles Joseph in the house of Potiphar (Gen 39.2–6) and Daniel at the Babylonian court (Dan 1.9). Unlike Daniel (1.8), Esther appears unconcerned with Jewish dietary rules.

2.12–18: Esther becomes queen. 14: The impossibility of seeing the king again unless summoned by name foreshadows Esther's dilemma in 4.11–16. 15: As Esther takes her fateful step toward queenship, her father's name (Abihail) is supplied in the manner of preexilic queens of Judah (see 1 Kings 15.2; 22.42; 2 Kings 15.33). In asking only for what Hegai advised, Esther demonstrates the characteristic prudence that will continue to serve her well. 16: Tebeth, December-January. In the seventh year of his reign, Ahasuerus has been testing queen candidates now for about four years. 17: Cf. Gen 37.3. 18: Esther's banquet, probably a wedding feast, foreshadows the two she gives later (5.5; 6.14–7.1), as well as the feast of Purim (9.22). A holiday, declared by a king on special occasions, was primarily economic (see Jer 34.8–11), often involving relief from tribute obligations, taxes, debt-slavery, and military service (see Lev 25.10–11). Gifts foreshadows 9.22.

2.19–23: Mordecai and Esther save the king's life. 19: The king's gate, the gathering place for royal officials. 20: Esther's silence about her kindred or her people indicates her compliant nature and heightens suspense. 21: Some interpreters of Esther have seen divine intervention in this and later mysterious coincidences (see the knowledge of Mordecai, and he told it to Queen Esther, and Esther told the king in the name of Mordecai.²³ When the affair was investigated and found to be so, both the men were hanged on the gallows. It was recorded in the book of the annals in the presence of the king.

3 After these things King Ahasuerus promoted Haman son of Hammedatha the Agagite, and advanced him and set his seat above all the officials who were with him.² And all the king's servants who were at the king's gate bowed down and did obeisance to Haman; for the king had so commanded concerning him. But Mordecai did not bow down or do obeisance.³ Then the king's servants who were at the king's gate said to Mordecai, "Why do you disobey the king's command?"⁴ When they spoke to him day after day and he would not listen to them, they told Haman, in order to see whether Mordecai's words would avail; for he had told them that he was a Jew.⁵ When Haman saw that Mordecai did not bow down or do obeisance to him, Haman was infuriated.⁶ But he thought it beneath him to lay hands on Mordecai alone. So, having been told who Mordecai's people were, Haman plotted to destroy all the Jews, the people of Mordecai, throughout the whole kingdom of Ahasuerus.

⁷ In the first month, which is the month of Nisan, in the twelfth year of King Ahasuerus, they cast Pur—which means "the lot"—before Haman for the day and for the month, and the lot fell on the thirteenth day⁸ of the twelfth month, which is the month of Adar.⁹ Then Haman said to King Ahasuerus, "There is a certain people scattered and separated among the peoples in all the provinces of your kingdom; their laws are different from those of every other people, and they do not keep the king's laws, so that it is not appropriate for the king to tolerate them.⁹ If it pleases the king, let a decree be issued for their destruction, and I will pay ten thousand talents of silver into the hands of those who have charge of the king's business, so that they may put it into the king's treasuries."¹⁰ So the king took his signet ring from his hand and gave it to Haman son of Hammedatha the Agagite, the enemy of the Jews.¹¹ The king said to Haman, "The money is given to you, and the people as well, to do with them as it seems good to you."

¹² Then the king's secretaries were summoned on the thirteenth day of the first month, and an edict, according to all that Haman commanded, was written to the king's satraps and to the governors over all the provinces and to the officials of all the peoples, to every province in its own script and every people in its own language; it was written in the name of King Ahasuerus and sealed with the king's ring.¹³ Letters were sent by couri-

^a Cn Compare Gk and verse 13 below: Heb the twelfth month

4.14; 6.1–3). Conspired to assassinate, see 3.6n. 23: Hanged on the gallows (lit. "on a tree"), i.e., by impalement, a disgraceful death, a foreshadowing of 5.14; 7.9–10; 9.13–14. The book of the annals, an official record of royal acts (cf. 10.2; 1 Kings 14.19,29; 2 Chr 25.26; 32.32).

3.1–15: Haman plots to annihilate the Jews. 1: Agagite, descended from King Agag the Amalekite (see 2.5n.). 2: Suggestions for why Mordecai did not bow down include ancestral enmity between Mordecai and Haman (see 2.5n.) or that Mordecai, like contemporary Greeks, abhorred as dishonorable the Persian custom of abasing oneself on the ground to superiors. 4: Day after day echoes Joseph's rejection of Potiphar's wife (Gen 39.10). 6: In 2.21 the Heb verb to destroy is translated "assassinate" and plotted as "conspired." The identical wording sets up a parallel between Haman's plot and that of the conspirators in 2.21–23. 7: The twelfth year, Esther has been queen for five years. The reference to pur, a Babylonian loanword for "lot," may have been inserted by a later editor to connect the plot of Esther more closely with the Purim festival (see 9.20–32n.). Passover occurs in Nisan (March–April), the first month of the Babylonian and Jewish year. Traditional Jewish interpretation drew elaborate parallels between the Esther story and Passover. Adar, February–March. 8: Haman begins with the truth: the Jews were indeed scattered and separated (Zech 7.14) and, like other subject peoples, their statutes (Deut 4.5–6) were different. He slides into falsehood in asserting that Jews do not keep the king's laws. 9: Ten thousand talents of silver is an astronomical sum, the equivalent of hundreds of millions of US dollars. 10: The signet ring authorizes Haman to sign documents in the king's name (3.12; 8.2,8; cf. Gen 41.41–42; 1 Kings 21.8–9). The first appearance of Haman's epithet, enemy of the Jews (8.1; 9.10,24). 12: Another irony: the deadly edict goes ers to all the king's provinces, giving orders to destroy, to kill, and to annihilate all Jews, young and old, women and children, in one day, the thirteenth day of the twelfth month, which is the month of Adar, and to plunder their goods.¹⁴ A copy of the document was to be issued as a decree in every province by proclamation, calling on all the peoples to be ready for that day.¹⁵ The couriers went quickly by order of the king, and the decree was issued in the citadel of Susa. The king and Haman sat down to drink; but the city of Susa was thrown into confusion.

4 When Mordecai learned all that had been done, Mordecai tore his clothes and put on sackcloth and ashes, and went through the city, wailing with a loud and bitter cry;² he went up to the entrance of the king's gate, for no one might enter the king's gate clothed with sackcloth.³ In every province, wherever the king's command and his decree came, there was great mourning among the Jews, with fasting and weeping and lamenting, and most of them lay in sackcloth and ashes.

⁴ When Esther's maids and her eunuchs came and told her, the queen was deeply distressed; she sent garments to clothe Mordecai, so that he might take off his sackcloth; but he would not accept them.⁵ Then Esther called for Hathach, one of the king's eunuchs, who had been appointed to attend her, and ordered him to go to Mordecai to learn what was happening and why.⁶ Hathach went out to Mordecai in the open square of the city in front of the king's gate,⁷ and Mordecai told him all that had happened to him, and the exact sum of money that Haman had promised to pay into the king's treasuries for the destruction of the Jews.⁸ Mordecai also gave him a copy of the written decree issued in Susa for their destruction, that he might show it to Esther, explain it to her, and charge her to go to the king to make supplication to him and entreat him for her people.

⁹ Hathach went and told Esther what Mordecai had said.¹⁰ Then Esther spoke to Hathach and gave him a message for Mordecai, saying,¹¹ "All the king's servants and the people of the king's provinces know that if any man or woman goes to the king inside the inner court without being called, there is but one law—all alike are to be put to death. Only if the king holds out the golden scepter to someone, may that person live. I myself have not been called to come in to the king for thirty days."¹² When they told Mordecai what Esther had said,¹³ Mordecai told them to reply to Esther, "Do not think that in the king's palace you will escape any more than all the other Jews."¹⁴ For if you keep silence at such a time as this, relief and deliverance will rise for the Jews from another quarter, but you and your father's family will perish. Who knows? Perhaps you have come to royal dignity for just such a time as this."¹⁵ Then Esther said in reply to Mordecai,¹⁶ "Go, gather all the Jews to be found in Susa, and hold a fast on my behalf, and neither eat nor drink for three days, night or day. I and my maids will also fast as you do. After that I will go to the king, though it is against the law; and if I perish, I perish."¹⁷ Mordecai then went away and did everything as Esther had ordered him.

5 On the third day Esther put on her royal robes and stood in the inner court of the king's palace, opposite the king's hall. The out on the day before Passover (v. 7n.; Ex 12.6; Lev 23.5). It is issued in various languages; see 1.22n. 13: Couriers, see 1.22n. 15: Citadel of Susa, see 1.22n.

4.1–17: Mordecai persuades Esther to risk her life to save her people. 1: Sackcloth and ashes and torn clothing were traditional signs of mourning and repentance (2 Sam 3.31; Job 42.6; Dan 9.3; Jon 3.6). 2: No one rendered ritually unclean by mourning could enter the king's gate. 3: Fasting was believed to influence the deity (Lev 16.29–31; Judg 20.26; 2 Sam 12.16; 1 Kings 21.27; Jon 3.5,8; Ezra 8.21–23; Joel 1.14; 2.12–14; 1 Macc 3.47). 4–10: Esther, her Jewish identity still secret, is unaware of the edict. 6: The city square is a traditional place of public mourning (Amos 5.16; Isa 15.3; Jer 48.38). 8: Susa, see 1.2n. 11: Like other biblical heroes called upon to save their people (Ex 3.11; 4.10; Judg 6.15; Jer 1.6), Esther initially objects. I myself have not been called to come in to the king, see 2.14. 14: From another quarter, perhaps a reference to divine providence (see 2.21n.). Who knows? Often precedes an expression of hope for divine mercy (2 Sam 12.22; Joel 2.14; Jon 3.9). 16–17: Esther's request for a community fast foreshadows her religious authority in 9.29. If I perish, Esther voices resignation or selfless dedication (see Gen 43.14).

king was sitting on his royal throne inside the palace opposite the entrance to the palace.² As soon as the king saw Queen Esther standing in the court, she won his favor and he held out to her the golden scepter that was in his hand. Then Esther approached and touched the top of the scepter.³ The king said to her, “What is it, Queen Esther? What is your request? It shall be given you, even to the half of my kingdom.”⁴ Then Esther said, “If it pleases the king, let the king and Haman come today to a banquet that I have prepared for the king.”⁵ Then the king said, “Bring Haman quickly, so that we may do as Esther desires.” So the king and Haman came to the banquet that Esther had prepared.⁶ While they were drinking wine, the king said to Esther, “What is your petition? It shall be granted you. And what is your request? Even to the half of my kingdom, it shall be fulfilled.”⁷ Then Esther said, “This is my petition and request:⁸ If I have won the king’s favor, and if it pleases the king to grant my petition and fulfill my request, let the king and Haman come tomorrow to the banquet that I will prepare for them, and then I will do as the king has said.”

⁹ Haman went out that day happy and in good spirits. But when Haman saw Mordecai in the king’s gate, and observed that he neither rose nor trembled before him, he was infuriated with Mordecai;¹⁰ nevertheless Haman restrained himself and went home. Then he sent and called for his friends and his wife Zeresh,¹¹ and Haman recounted to them the splendor of his riches, the number of his sons, all the promotions with which the king had honored him, and how he had advanced him above the officials and the ministers of the king.¹² Haman added, “Even Queen Esther let no one but myself come with the king to the banquet that she prepared. Tomorrow also I am invited by her, together with the king.¹³ Yet all this does me no good so long as I see the Jew Mordecai sitting at the king’s gate.”¹⁴ Then his wife Zeresh and all his friends said to him, “Let a gallows fifty cubits high be made, and in the morning tell the king to have Mordecai hanged on it; then go with the king to the banquet in good spirits.” This advice pleased Haman, and he had the gallows made.

6 On that night the king could not sleep, and he gave orders to bring the book of records, the annals, and they were read to the king.² It was found written how Mordecai had told about Bigthana and Teresh, two of the king’s eunuchs, who guarded the threshold, and who had conspired to assassinate³ King Ahasuerus.³ Then the king said, “What honor or distinction has been bestowed on Mordecai for this?” The king’s servants who attended him said, “Nothing has been done for him.”⁴ The king said, “Who is in the court?” Now Haman had just entered the outer court of the king’s palace to speak to the king about having Mordecai hanged on the gallows that he had prepared for him.⁵ So the king’s servants told him, “Haman is there, standing in the court.” The king said, “Let him come in.”⁶ So Haman

^a Heb to lay hands on

5.1–8: Esther before the king. 2: Esther resembles women who plead on another’s behalf (1 Sam 25.24–31; 2 Sam 14.4–17). Favor, see 2.9,17 (Ex 12.36). 3: Three times the king will offer half of my kingdom (v. 6; 7.2), exaggeration for emphasis. Typical of folktales, the third offer (7.2) succeeds. 4: Banquet, see 1.3–4n. Food, reassuring and nurturing, is a common motif in stories of women confronting powerful men; Esther works indirectly to achieve her goal (Judg 5.25; Prov 9.1–5; see Jdt 10.5; 12.1,17–20).

5.9–14: Haman’s happiness is spoiled. 9: Good spirits, the same term is used of Ahasuerus (“merry”) in 1.10. 10–14: Zeresh is an exemplary son-bearing wife (5.11; 9.7–10); as Esther’s negative counterpart, Zeresh loyally counsels her husband. Haman’s boasting sets him up as an arrogant fool ripe for a fall, a theme also found in wisdom literature (Prov 11.28; 13.3; 16.5,18; 27.1; 29.20). Gallows, see 2.23n. Fifty cubits, ca. 72 ft (22 m), an exaggerated height. Only the king can order an execution.

6.1–13: Mordecai’s triumph. This masterpiece of ironic narrative uses alliteration, repetition, understatement, and reversal. 1–2: The king’s insomnia, a traditional folktale device (Dan 6.18; 1 Esd 3.3), is not explained and is another instance of opportune fate in Esther (see 2.9,15,17,21; 3.7; 4.14; 5.2; 6.13). Annals, see 2.23n. Herodotus (8.85,90) notes that Persian kings kept records of courtiers’ noble deeds. 6: Whom the king wishes to came in, and the king said to him, “What shall be done for the man whom the king wishes to honor?” Haman said to himself, “Whom would the king wish to honor more than me?”⁷ So Haman said to the king, “For the man whom the king wishes to honor,⁸ let royal robes be brought, which the king has worn, and a horse that the king has ridden, with a royal crown on its head.⁹ Let the robes and the horse be handed over to one of the king’s most noble officials; let him^a robe the man whom the king wishes to honor, and let him^a conduct the man on horseback through the open square of the city, proclaiming before him: “Thus shall it be done for the man whom the king wishes to honor.”¹⁰ Then the king said to Haman, “Quickly, take the robes and the horse, as you have said, and do so to the Jew Mordecai who sits at the king’s gate. Leave out nothing that you have mentioned.”¹¹ So Haman took the robes and the horse and robed Mordecai and led him riding through the open square of the city, proclaiming, “Thus shall it be done for the man whom the king wishes to honor.”

¹² Then Mordecai returned to the king’s gate, but Haman hurried to his house, mourning and with his head covered.¹³ When Haman told his wife Zeresh and all his friends everything that had happened to him, his advisers and his wife Zeresh said to him, “If Mordecai, before whom your downfall has begun, is of the Jewish people, you will not prevail against him, but will surely fall before him.”

¹⁴ While they were still talking with him, the king’s eunuchs arrived and hurried Haman off to the banquet that Esther had prepared.¹ So the king and Haman went in to feast with Queen Esther.² On the second day, as they were drinking wine, the king again said to Esther, “What is your petition, Queen Esther? It shall be granted you. And what is your request? Even to the half of my kingdom, it shall be fulfilled.”³ Then Queen Esther answered, “If I have won your favor, O king, and if it pleases the king, let my life be given me—that is my petition—and the lives of my people—that is my request.⁴ For we have been sold, I and my people, to be destroyed, to be killed, and to be annihilated. If we had been sold merely as slaves, men and women, I would have held my peace; but no enemy can compensate for this damage to the king.”⁵ Then King Ahasuerus said to Queen Esther, “Who is he, and where is he, who has presumed to do this?”⁶ Esther said, “A foe and enemy, this wicked Haman!” Then Haman was terrified before the king and the queen.⁷ The king rose from the feast in wrath and went into the palace garden, but Haman stayed to beg his life from Queen Esther, for he saw that the king had determined to destroy him.⁸ When the king returned from the palace garden to the banquet hall, Haman had thrown himself on the couch where Esther was reclining; and the king said, “Will he even assault the queen in my presence, in my honor, the phrase is repeated six times in vv. 6–11. The king’s omission of the name parallels Haman’s concealment of the identity of those he intended to annihilate (3.8). 8: Royal robes, a gesture of favor (Gen 37.3; 41.42; 1 Sam 18.4; 1 Kings 1.33). Crown, an ornament for the horse’s head depicted on Mesopotamian and Persian reliefs. 11: The open square, previously the site of Mordecai’s mourning (4.6), now witnesses his honor. 12: Head covered, a sign of grief (2 Sam 15.30; 19.4; Jer 14.4), which foreshadows Haman’s own downfall.

^a Heb them

^b Meaning of Heb uncertain

6.14–7.10: Esther’s second banquet and Haman’s fall. 7.2: Half of my kingdom, see 5.3n. 3: No longer self-effacing (see 2.20n.; 5.4n.) Esther seizes the right moment to speak directly of herself and of her people. 4: Sold, probably a reference to Haman’s bribe in 3.11 (see 4.7; but note the metaphorical use of the verb in Deut 32.30; Judg 2.14; 3.8; 4.2,9; 10.7). To be destroyed, etc., Esther quotes from the royal edict (3.13). Damage to the king, perhaps the king would be shamed if his queen were dishonored. 6: Like Esther before the king in 15.5, now Haman is terrified before the king and the queen. 8: Following common custom (8.3; 1 Sam 25.23–24; 2 Kings 4.27), Haman tries to supplicate the queen by falling at her feet. His gesture contrasts with Mordecai’s in 3.2. Assault the queen, Ahasuerus mistakes Haman’s posture as a sexual assault, an unpardonable affront to both male and royal honor and, as such, a capital offense. They covered Haman’s face probably to protect the king from ritual pollution by association with a condemned criminal; access to the Persian king (1.14; 4.11) was restricted for own house?” As the words left the mouth of the king, they covered Haman’s face.⁹ Then Harbona, one of the eunuchs in attendance on the king, said, “Look, the very gallows that Haman has prepared for Mordecai, whose word saved the king, stands at Haman’s house, fifty cubits high.” And the king said, “Hang him on that.”¹⁰ So they hanged Haman on the gallows that he had prepared for Mordecai. Then the anger of the king abated.

8 On that day King Ahasuerus gave to Queen Esther the house of Haman, the enemy of the Jews; and Mordecai came before the king, for Esther had told what he was to her.² Then the king took off his signet ring, which he had taken from Haman, and gave it to Mordecai. So Esther set Mordecai over the house of Haman.

³ Then Esther spoke again to the king; she fell at his feet, weeping and pleading with him to avert the evil design of Haman the Agagite and the plot that he had devised against the Jews.⁴ The king held out the golden scepter to Esther,⁵ and Esther rose and stood before the king. She said, “If it pleases the king, and if I have won his favor, and if the thing seems right before the king, and I have his approval, let an order be written to revoke the letters devised by Haman son of Hammedatha the Agagite, which he wrote giving orders to destroy the Jews who are in all the provinces of the king.⁶ For how can I bear to see the calamity that is coming on my people? Or how can I bear to see the destruction of my kindred?”⁷ Then King Ahasuerus said to Queen Esther and to the Jew Mordecai, “See, I have given Esther the house of Haman, and they have hanged him on the gallows, because he plotted to lay hands on the Jews.⁸ You may write as you please with regard to the Jews, in the name of the king, and seal it with the king’s ring; for an edict written in the name of the king and sealed with the king’s ring cannot be revoked.”

⁹ The king’s secretaries were summoned at that time, in the third month, which is the month of Sivan, on the twenty-third day; and an edict was written, according to all that Mordecai commanded, to the Jews and to the satraps and the governors and the officials of the provinces from India to Ethiopia,^a one hundred twenty-seven provinces, to every province in its own script and to every people in its own language, and also to the Jews in their script and their language.¹⁰ He wrote letters in the name of King Ahasuerus, sealed them with the king’s ring, and sent them by mounted couriers riding on fast steeds bred from the royal herd.^b ¹¹ By these letters the king allowed the Jews who were in every city to assemble and defend their lives, to destroy, to kill, and to annihilate any armed force of any people or province that might attack them, with their children and women, and to plunder their goods¹² on a single day throughout all the provinces of King Ahasuerus, on the thirteenth day of the twelfth month, which is the month of Adar.¹³ A copy of the writ was to be issued as a decree in every province and published to all peoples, and the Jews were to be ready on that day to take revenge on their enemies.¹⁴ So the couriers, mounted on their swift royal steeds, hurried out, urged by the king’s command. The decree was issued in the citadel of Susa.

¹⁵ Then Mordecai went out from the presence of the king, wearing royal robes of blue religious as well as political reasons. 9–10: Gallows, see 2.23n. Poetic justice prevails (cf. Prov 26.27).

^a Or Nubia; Heb Cush

^b Meaning of Heb uncertain

8.1–17: Mordecai rises to power and counteracts the anti-Jewish edict. Reversals abound in this chapter (see 1 Sam 2.1–10). 1: In 3.9, Haman offered the king money; now the king gives Haman’s wealth to Esther. 2: Haman’s exalted position becomes Mordecai’s with the transfer of the king’s signet ring (see v. 8; 3.10n). 3: The edict against the Jews still stands. 5: Devised by Haman, Esther diplomatically dissociates the king from the royal edict. 8: The king’s earlier edict cannot be revoked (see 1.19n.), but a new edict can neutralize the former’s intent. 9: The verse follows the same general structure as 3.12–13 (see 1.19–22) while reversing the effect. Sivan, May–June. Language, see 1.22n. 11: Allowed, not commanded. Destroy . . . annihilate (the same wording appears in 3.13). The hyperbolic style and the pattern of reversals and retribution, rather than any real historical event, account for the excess of bloodshed to come (9.5–16). 12: The date of the intended extermination (3.7,13) becomes a day of triumph and relates to the Purim festival (see 9.21). Adar, February–March. 14: See 1.22n. Citadel and white, with a great golden crown and a mantle of fine linen and purple, while the city of Susa shouted and rejoiced. ¹⁶For the Jews there was light and gladness, joy and honor. ¹⁷In every province and in every city, wherever the king's command and his edict came, there was gladness and joy among the Jews, a festival and a holiday. Furthermore, many of the peoples of the country professed to be Jews, because the fear of the Jews had fallen upon them.

9 Now in the twelfth month, which is the month of Adar, on the thirteenth day, when the king's command and edict were about to be executed, on the very day when the enemies of the Jews hoped to gain power over them, but which had been changed to a day when the Jews would gain power over their foes, ²the Jews gathered in their cities throughout all the provinces of King Ahasuerus to lay hands on those who had sought their ruin; and no one could withstand them, because the fear of them had fallen upon all peoples. ³All the officials of the provinces, the satraps and the governors, and the royal officials were supporting the Jews, because the fear of Mordecai had fallen upon them. ⁴For Mordecai was powerful in the king's house, and his fame spread throughout all the provinces as the man Mordecai grew more and more powerful. ⁵So the Jews struck down all their enemies with the sword, slaughtering, and destroying them, and did as they pleased to those who hated them. ⁶In the citadel of Susa the Jews killed and destroyed five hundred people. ⁷They killed Parshandatha, Dalphon, Aspatha, ⁸Poratha, Adalia, Aridatha, ⁹Parmashta, Arisai, Aridai, Vaizatha, ¹⁰the ten sons of Haman son of Hammedatha, the enemy of the Jews; but they did not touch the plunder.

¹¹That very day the number of those killed in the citadel of Susa was reported to the king. ¹²The king said to Queen Esther, "In the citadel of Susa the Jews have killed five hundred people and also the ten sons of Haman. What have they done in the rest of the king's provinces? Now what is your petition? It shall be granted you. And what further is your request? It shall be fulfilled." ¹³Esther said, "If it pleases the king, let the Jews who are in Susa be allowed tomorrow also to do according to this day's edict, and let the ten sons of Haman be hanged on the gallows." ¹⁴So the king commanded this to be done; a decree was issued in Susa, and the ten sons of Haman were hanged. ¹⁵The Jews who were in Susa gathered also on the fourteenth day of the month of Adar and they killed three hundred persons in Susa; but they did not touch the plunder.

¹⁶Now the other Jews who were in the king's provinces also gathered to defend their lives, and gained relief from their enemies, and killed seventy-five thousand of those who hated them; but they laid no hands on the plunder. ¹⁷This was on the thirteenth day of the month of Adar, and on the fourteenth day they rested and made that a day of feasting and gladness.

of Susa, see 1.2n. 15–17: Mordecai's attire contrasts with 4.1, as the Jews' mourning in 4.1–4 turns to joy. 16: Light and gladness, joy and honor contrast with 4.3. 17: Professed to be Jews, this translation is possible, but the Heb may simply mean that Gentiles joined the Jews in their resistance (see 9.3), not that they converted to Judaism. An earlier version of the book may have ended here with no mention of the festival.

9.1–10.3: The origins of Purim. 9.1–19: The Jews triumph over their enemies. 1: A reminder that the king's edict against the Jews still stands; the terms of the second edict allow the Jews to defend themselves. Adar, February–March. 2–4: The Jews' victory is described in language reminiscent of holy war, the Exodus, and the conquest of Canaan. Opposition to the Jews is implied by no one could withstand them (Josh 23.9). The fear of them, a supernatural terror common in holy war (Ex 15.14–16; Josh 2.8–12; Ps 105.38). 4: Mordecai's power resembles that of Moses (Ex 11.3). 6: Citadel of Susa, see 1.2n. 7–10: Haman boasted unwisely about his many sons (5.11). Hebrew manuscripts arrange the names of Haman's ten sons in unusual formations. The names are recited in a single breath during Purim synagogue services. 10: The note that the Jews did not plunder (as in vv. 15,16; contrast 3.13 and 8.11) is a reminder of the Agag story (see 2.5; 3.1) where the Jews plundered to their own hurt (1 Sam 15.9). 12–15: At Esther's request (5.3,6; 7.2) the king grants the Jews of Susa (as distinct from the citadel of Susa) a second day of revenge and allows them to dishonor Haman further by hanging (impaling, see 2.23n.) the corpses of his sons in public (Josh 8.29; 10.26; 1 Sam 17.54; 31.10). Notice of the extra day is probably

¹⁸ But the Jews who were in Susa gathered on the thirteenth day and on the fourteenth, and rested on the fifteenth day, making that a day of feasting and gladness. ¹⁹ Therefore the Jews of the villages, who live in the open towns, hold the fourteenth day of the month of Adar as a day for gladness and feasting, a holiday on which they send gifts of food to one another.

²⁰ Mordecai recorded these things, and sent letters to all the Jews who were in all the provinces of King Ahasuerus, both near and far, ²¹ enjoining them that they should keep the fourteenth day of the month Adar and also the fifteenth day of the same month, year by year, ²² as the days on which the Jews gained relief from their enemies, and as the month that had been turned for them from sorrow into gladness and from mourning into a holiday; that they should make them days of feasting and gladness, days for sending gifts of food to one another and presents to the poor. ²³ So the Jews adopted as a custom what they had begun to do, as Mordecai had written to them.

²⁴ Haman son of Hammedatha the Agagite, the enemy of all the Jews, had plotted against the Jews to destroy them, and had cast Pur—that is “the lot”—to crush and destroy them; ²⁵ but when Esther came before the king, he gave orders in writing that the wicked plot that he had devised against the Jews should come upon his own head, and that he and his sons should be hanged on the gallows.

²⁶ Therefore these days are called Purim, from the word Pur. Thus because of all that was written in this letter, and of what they had faced in this matter, and of what had happened to them, ²⁷ the Jews established and accepted as a custom for themselves and their descendants and all who joined them, that without fail they would continue to observe these two days every year, as it was written and at the time appointed. ²⁸ These days should be remembered and kept throughout every generation, in every family, province, and city; and these days of Purim should never fall into disuse among the Jews, nor should the commemoration of these days cease among their descendants.

²⁹ Queen Esther daughter of Abihail, along with the Jew Mordecai, gave full written authority, confirming this second letter about Purim. ³⁰ Letters were sent wishing peace and security to all the Jews, to the one hundred twenty-seven provinces of the kingdom of Ahasuerus, ³¹ and giving orders that these days of Purim should be observed at their appointed seasons, as the Jew Mordecai and Queen Esther enjoined on the Jews, just as they had laid down for themselves and for their descendants regulations concerning their fasts and their lamentations. ³² The command of Queen Esther fixed these practices of Purim, and it was recorded in writing.

10 King Ahasuerus laid tribute on the land and on the islands of the sea. ² All the acts of his power and might, and the full aca device to explain why city Jews celebrated Purim for two days and country Jews only one (see vv. 18–19). 18–19: Jews today observe Purim with feasting and gifts of food (see 2.9, “portion of food”; Neh 8.10).

9.20–32: The inauguration of the feast of Purim. The emphasis upon the written word, a particular concern in postexilic Judaism, was probably intended to legitimize a festival not mentioned in the Torah (cf. the origin of Hanukkah: 1 Macc 4.56–59; 2 Macc 1.1–2.28; 10.1–8). 20: Near and far, Isa 57.19. 22: Purim occurs not on the day of the Jews’ military triumph but on the day they obtained their relief. Sorrow into gladness, Isa 61.3; Jer 31.13. 23: Ex 24.3. 24–26: A plot summary that differs slightly from the book. Esther’s name does not appear in the Heb text of v. 25 and has been added by the translator. The festival came to be called Purim for the lot, Heb “pur” (pl. “purim”), which Haman cast (see 3.7n.). 24: Crush (Heb “hummam”), a wordplay on Haman’s name. 28: Remembered; commemoration, see Ex 13.3; 20.8. 29–32: Probably added later. The Heb text is extremely corrupt and the verses do not appear in some ancient versions. 30: Peace and security, the wording suggests Purim fulfills the prophecy of Zech 8.19 (see Isa 39.8; Jer 33.6) and therefore the humanly inaugurated festival is legitimate. 31: Fasts, not the Jewish Fast of Esther, which came to be universally observed on the thirteenth of Adar only beginning in the ninth century CE. 32: Queen Esther is the only woman in the Bible credited with establishing a religious observance.

10.1–3: Postscript: the greatness of Ahasuerus and Mordecai. 1: This seemingly irrelevant comment may imply that the king prospered with Mordecai’s assistance (see Gen 47.1–26). 2: Written in the annals, a standard count of the high honor of Mordecai, to which the king advanced him, are they not written in the annals of the kings of Media and Persia?

³For Mordecai the Jew was next in rank to King

Ahasuerus, and he was powerful among the Jews and popular with his many kindred, for he sought the good of his people and interceded for the welfare of all his descendants.

formula for historical reports in Kings and Chronicles (1 Kings 14.19,29; 2 Chr 25.26; 32.32). 3: The book ends without reference to Esther. Rather, Mordecai is the model of a successful Diaspora Jew and of Jews living harmoniously in the Gentile world.

This page intentionally left blank

INTRODUCTION TO THE POETICAL AND WISDOM BOOKS

PLACEMENT AND CONTENTS

The poetical and wisdom books are Job, Psalms, Proverbs, Ecclesiastes, and the Song of Solomon. The creation of a canonical division called the “Poetical Books” is a relatively late development. In Jewish tradition these five books are included in the Writings, the third division of the canon; their order varies in different sources. The earliest evidence for seeing these five books as a unit comes from the second century CE, though it took many centuries for these five books, in the arrangement found here, to be recognized as the third section of the Bible. The order of these books was variable, and some traditions placed them at the end of the Christian Old Testament, while others put them as the second part of that book immediately following the Torah or Pentateuch, the first five books of the Bible. Its current placement in English Bibles follows some manuscript traditions, which most likely sought to organize the first section of the Bible by placing the Torah, the most authoritative section, first, followed by works about the past (the Historical Books), books about the present (the Poetical Books), and books about the future (the Prophetic Books). This arrangement, which places the prophets last, would be especially significant once the Hebrew Bible became the Old Testament and was seen as an introduction to the New Testament. The Prophetic Books would then immediately precede the Gospels as prophecy followed by fulfillment.

The five Poetical Books were written or collected at widely different times and consist of a number of literary types: love poetry (the Song of Solomon), Temple liturgy (most of Psalms), and wisdom literature (Job, Proverbs, and Ecclesiastes). It is also likely that they entered the canon for quite different reasons: Psalms was used for prayers; the Song of Solomon was probably first canonized as an ancient love poem used in wedding ceremonies; while Job, Proverbs, and Ecclesiastes may have been placed together in the canon because all three belong to a category of writings known as wisdom literature. These books thus do not form a coherent unit, especially when compared to other canonical divisions, such as the Historical Books or the Prophetic Books.

“Wisdom literature” describes works that share, as their focus, reflection on universal human concerns, especially the understanding of individual experiences and the maintenance of ordered relationships that lead both to success on the human plane and to divine approval. Books classified by scholars as “wisdom literature” are thus in some ways a departure from the concerns of other biblical books. They do not focus primarily on the nation of Israel and on its great formative historical memories, such as the Exodus from Egypt, on Jerusalem and the Temple. They do not mention covenant, as the central theological notion that elsewhere in the Bible binds together God, the people of Israel, and the land of Israel. In more recent scholarship, the concept of “wisdom” has been criticized as too elastic and amorphous. Indeed, the three wisdom books in this collection are remarkably different from one another: Proverbs suggests that the righteous are rewarded and do not suffer; the book of Job profoundly challenges this view; while Ecclesiastes, in contrast to both Job and Proverbs, is deeply skeptical of the utility of wisdom. We must recognize that “wisdom” is a modern category, deriving from the beginning of the twentieth century, and thus Job, Proverbs, and Ecclesiastes were not originally grouped together on generic grounds. On the other hand, they share a thematic interdependence. Proverbs is representative of a type of ancient Near Eastern thought that looked for pattern and repetition in nature and in the moral life. In this tradition, the regular recurrence of natural phenomena could provide an analogy to guide human beings in their social interactions:

As charcoal is to hot embers and wood to fire, so is a quarrelsome person for kindling strife (Prov 26.21).

The inevitability of the natural occurrence is mirrored in the inevitability of the social one. This kind of thinking then was extended to moral behavior, with the argument that good behavior, like good farming practice, will be rewarded:

INTRODUCTION TO THE POETICAL AND WISDOM BOOKS

Anyone who tends a fig tree will eat its fruit, and anyone who takes care of a master will be honored (Prov 27:18).

Job and Ecclesiastes relate to this widespread ancient Near Eastern tradition in different ways. Job denies the inevitability of rewards for living an upright life and decisively refutes the idea that human suffering is always deserved. Ecclesiastes treats the idea of inevitability in a different way: The natural repetitions of seasons, tasks, and occupations become an image of futility, in which people are “like fish taken in a cruel net, and like birds caught in a snare” (9:12), powerless to understand their own destiny. The themes of the wisdom tradition are continued in the Apocryphal/Deuterocanonical books of the Wisdom of Solomon and Sirach (Ecclesiasticus), both of which combine didactic themes and style familiar especially from the book of Proverbs with retrospective summaries of Israel’s history.

Although these five books are loosely described as Poetical Books, they are not all poetry, nor are all biblical poetic works found in this canonical section. Although Ecclesiastes contains some poetical sections, such as the poem of 3:1–8 (“For everything there is a season”), or quoted poetic proverbs (e.g., 7:1–6), the book is predominantly prose. Additionally, the nature of the poetry in these books is very different, ranging from the highly structured, largely static poetry of Proverbs, to the intensely erotic, more free-flowing poetry of Song of Solomon.

THE CHARACTERISTICS OF BIBLICAL POETRY

These books do, as noted above, incorporate a large amount of poetry, so it is appropriate to here examine the basic structures of biblical poetry. Poetry is a cross-cultural phenomenon: Most cultures distinguish between an everyday type of discourse (prose), and heightened discourse (poetry). This heightening may be accomplished in a number of different ways, including the use of figuration (e.g., metaphor, simile), meter, and certain types of sound patterning, such as alliteration and rhyme. Yet there is no cross-cultural pattern for poetry. Thus Hebrew poetry, unlike its classical English counterpart, has neither (true) rhythm nor rhyme; nevertheless, it is poetic in that it uses certain devices in significant enough concentration to distinguish it from everyday speech, or prose. The prose-poetry distinction is relative rather than absolute; as in English, we may speak of poetic prose and prosaic poetry. Thus, “pure prose” and “pure poetry” should be seen as opposites on a continuum, within which a large variety of possibilities occur in the Bible as in other literary traditions.

The main shared characteristic between typical English poetry and biblical poetry is the use of figuration. This may be seen, for example, in Ps 23. The central image of this psalm is introduced by the metaphor, “The LORD is my shepherd” (v. 1). The following verses unpack or detail the meaning of this metaphor, noting in vv. 2–3 how God, the ideal shepherd, tends his people/sheep:

He makes me lie down in green pastures;
he leads me beside still waters;
he restores my soul.
He leads me in right paths
for his name’s sake.

Psalms 1 is characterized by a set of two contrasting similes: the righteous

. . . are like trees
planted by streams of water,
which yield their fruit in its season,
and their leaves do not wither (v. 3), while the wicked “are like chaff that the wind drives away” (v. 4). The Song of Solomon is especially rich in similes and metaphors, as in the beginning of ch 2:

I am a rose of Sharon,
a lily of the valleys.

As a lily among brambles,
 so is my love among maidens.
 As an apple tree among the trees of the wood,
 so is my beloved among young men.
 With great delight I sat in his shadow,
 and his fruit was sweet to my taste.

The main characteristic of biblical poetry, nevertheless, is not figuration, but parallelism, in which most poetic lines may be divided into two (or sometimes three) parts; the second part of the line is intimately connected to the first part, and typically seconds it in some way. For example, Ps 6.2 reads:

Be gracious to me, O LORD, for I am languishing;
 O LORD, heal me, for my bones are shaking with terror.

The verse clearly divides into two more or less equal sections, and each element in the first part is mirrored, seconded, or paralleled in the second: Be gracious to me || heal me; O LORD || O LORD; for I am languishing || for my bones are shaking with terror. This parallelism, which is not typical of biblical prose, serves as the backbone of biblical poetry.

Since the eighteenth century, it has been customary to see three main types of parallelism in the Bible: synonymous, antithetical, and synthetic. The quotation above from Ps 6.2 is an example of synonymous parallelism. Antithetical parallelism can be seen in Prov 10.1:

A wise child makes a glad father,
 but a foolish child is a mother's grief.

In this balanced, two-part line, "a wise child" is antithetical, or opposite, to "a foolish child," and "makes a glad father" is antithetical to "is a mother's grief." In synthetic parallelism, the second part of the line completes the thought of the first part, and is neither the same nor the opposite—both parts are needed to complete the thought. For example, Song 1.9 reads:

I compare you, my love,
 to a mare among Pharaoh's chariots.

Here the second part concludes the idea of the first.

The appropriateness of the three labels—synonymous, antithetical, and synthetic—which were accepted in biblical scholarship for two centuries, has been called into question on several grounds. First, some have noted that languages have no true synonyms; thus "synonymous parallelism" is a misleading term. Furthermore, very often two parallel words can be similar, but are not truly synonymous, as may be seen in the example from Ps 6.2: "I am languishing" || "my bones are shaking with terror." The term antithetical parallelism has been questioned because not all elements of part B are the antithesis of part A. This may be seen in the example from Prov 10.1, where "child" is used in both parts A and B; a true antithesis might contrast a "wise child" with a "foolish parent." Finally, "synthetic" has been criticized as too vague a term. These criticisms are fair. Nevertheless, the three terms, if understood as ideal types from which actual lines may deviate to a greater or lesser extent, remain useful.

A much more serious criticism of the classical model emerged in the middle 1980s. Before that, many scholars believed that parallelism is formulaic, and the second half of the poetic line typically adds little to the line, but merely seconds it. Several scholars have suggested just the opposite, that the second part heightens or extends the first. Thus, the typical biblical verse should be read "A, and even more so, B." According to this model, which has gained substantial support in the last three decades, we would not read Ps 6.2b, "O LORD, heal me, for my bones are shaking with terror" as a type of filler that merely restates "Be gracious to me, O LORD, for I am languishing." Rather we would understand the verse as a whole as: "Be gracious to me, O LORD, for I am languishing," and moreover, "O LORD, heal me, for my bones are shaking with terror," where the claim “for my bones are shaking with terror” is a more vivid description that intensifies the verse’s opening “for I am languishing.” Sometimes it is quite clear that the second part of the verse does not merely parallel the first but does go beyond it in some significant fashion, and thus justifies this newer model. Yet there are cases in which the second part actually does seem to function as a filler, carrying little if any semantic weight, let alone intensifying the first. For example, the major image of Ps 121 is the ability of God to protect the individual. This is expressed at the psalm’s center, where God is imagined metaphorically as a “shade” (v. 5) from the intense Mediterranean sun. The psalm continues (v. 6): “The sun shall not strike you by day, nor the moon by night.” Clearly, the second part, “nor the moon by night” is not an intensification; in fact, it makes no sense, since no one in ancient Israel was afflicted with moonburn or moonstroke. The second part here is a(n) antithetical) filler and carries no semantic weight. It should be seen as part of an ancient Near Eastern and biblical pattern of word pairs, where a particular word (e.g., “sun” or “father”) automatically evokes a related (“synonymous” or “antithetical”) word (e.g., “moon” or “mother”).

Thus, parallelism is much more complicated than would appear on the surface. Clearly it is characterized by sets of lines, each of which may be divided into two parts, typically of the same length and mirroring each other on the semantic, syntactic, and phonological levels. It is unclear if the second should typically be read as an intensification of the first, or as a filler that carries little or no semantic value. This uncertainty is extremely frustrating, not only because it leaves us unsure how to read much of biblical poetry, especially the extent to which we do or do not need to pay close attention to the second half of the line, but also because our understanding of biblical poetry will affect our reconstruction of many Israelite institutions. To return to Prov 10.1—“A wise child makes a glad father, but a foolish child is a mother’s grief”—if we follow the older understanding of parallelism, the second half is largely a filler, indicating that the father had the major role in the child’s upbringing in ancient Israel, while if we follow the newer understanding, where the second intensifies the first, the mother was primarily responsible for the child.

Another area that has engendered significant controversy over the last few decades concerns the extent to which meter or rhythm existed in biblical poetry. Much of this debate concerns the definition of meter. In English and other modern Western languages, meter is generally understood as a pattern of stressed and unstressed syllables; if this is how we should understand it in biblical poetic texts, these texts in their current form lack meter or rhythm. Metrical patterns can only be found in biblical texts if they are emended or reconstructed extensively. There is, however, a tendency for the parts of each line, in most poetic works, to be approximately the same length. There is some possibility that this reflects the remnant of some metrical system, and that at an earlier time, each part had not only the same length, but the same meter, but this pattern of stressed and unstressed syllables has been lost as a result of changes in the pronunciation of ancient Hebrew over time. More likely, the similarity of length is part of the larger system of parallelism, which encouraged each part to mirror its counterpart in length, as well as in semantic, syntactic, and phonological structure.

Scholars have until recently been primarily concerned with the line as the main unit of biblical poetry. This is not really surprising, given how foreign biblical parallelism is to the modern Western (but not the ancient Near Eastern) ear. This interest in the line has obscured the significance of the strophe or stanza and of the poem as a whole. But the last few decades have seen a legitimate return to these larger units. For example, it had become a habit when studying passages like Job 3 to concentrate solely on the parallelism of lines like v. 5:

Let gloom and deep darkness claim it.
Let clouds settle upon it;
let the blackness of the day terrify it.

Now, in addition to this type of analysis, scholars study how the poet uses images of day and night, light and darkness, throughout the chapter, in order to create this exquisite poem. This is not, however, an either/or proposition: By studying how the individual line functions as poetry and how these lines join together (sometimes) into stanzas, which combine into complete poems, we gain a much fuller appreciation and understanding of these Poetical Books.

AUTHORSHIP

At least four of the five Poetical Books cohere in terms of their traditional authorship. Many of the Psalms contain superscriptions or titles incorporating “of David,” and many early Jewish and Christian traditions attribute all 150 of the Psalms to David. Proverbs 1.1 (“The proverbs of Solomon son of David, king of Israel”), 10.1, and 25.1 explicitly attribute (sections of) that book to Solomon. Ecclesiastes, in its opening chapter, presents itself as the work of “the Teacher, when king over Israel in Jerusalem” (1.12; cf. 1.1); premodern Jewish and Christian tradition understood this royal teacher to be Solomon, who is described in 1 Kings as being exceedingly rich, just like the protagonist of Ecclesiastes. Finally, the Song of Solomon opens with an explicit (but secondary) note concerning its author: “the Song of Songs, which is Solomon’s.” Given the clear connection of Psalms, Proverbs, Ecclesiastes, and Song of Solomon to David and Solomon, it is not surprising that some early Christian interpreters connected Job as well to the period of Solomon. This canonical division of five books thus likely came into being as the compilations connected to the early kings David and his son Solomon, and was only secondarily labeled the “Poetical Books.” The traditional attributions of authorship, however, have been rejected by modern scholars; see the Introduction to each book for a detailed discussion.

INTRODUCTION TO THE POETICAL AND WISDOM BOOKS

JOB

NAME AND LOCATION IN CANON

The book bears the name of its principal character, Job, a righteous man who is afflicted by God, apparently unjustly, and who demands restitution. In Jewish tradition the book of Job belongs with the poetical books in the division called the Writings (Ketubim). Printed Hebrew Bibles place Job after Psalms and Proverbs, although other positions are found in earlier Hebrew manuscripts and lists. In older Christian Bibles, Job was sometimes placed with the historical books and sometimes with the poetical books; but its consistent place now is as the first of the poetical books, preceding Psalms.

AUTHORSHIP, DATE OF COMPOSITION, AND HISTORICAL CONTEXT

The book is anonymous, and it offers few clues to its historical context or date of composition. Most scholars would date it between the seventh and fourth centuries BCE, but its story is set in much older times.

LITERARY HISTORY, STRUCTURE, AND CONTENTS

Many scholars have proposed that the prose prologue and epilogue reflect a tale about Job older than the poetic dialogues. In the sixth century BCE the prophet Ezekiel mentions Job, along with Noah, the hero of the Flood story (Gen 6–9), and Dan’el, as heroes who saved others by their righteousness (Ezek 14.14,20).

The frame of the book is the prose prologue and epilogue (chs 1–2; 42.7–17). Within that frame are the poetic dialogues: first, three cycles of speeches by Job and his friends (chs 3–31) plus the Elihu speeches (chs 32–37), and second, two speeches by the LORD, each followed by a response from Job (38.1–42.6). The third cycle of speeches by Job and his friends presents many problems, and it is possible that the original order of the book is no longer correctly preserved. It has also commonly been thought that the speeches of Elihu (chs 32–37) and the poem on wisdom (ch 28) are later additions to the book’s first edition, but a tendency among scholars to regard the book as a unified whole is becoming noticeable.

INTERPRETATION

The book of Job is perhaps the most sustained piece of theological writing in the Hebrew Bible, and it is unique in the Bible for its sympathetic portrayal of differing theological points of view. The theme of the book is often described as the problem of suffering, but it is rather that of the injustice of undeserved suffering. By the standards of his day, Job’s suffering can only be a sign that he is a great sinner; resisting that implication, he demands that God explain why he, a righteous man, is being so badly treated. More than that, he reasons that his case shows that God is not governing the world in justice, and he argues that the prosperity of the wicked and the suffering of the righteous in general are further evidence of God’s neglect of justice. When he replies to Job, God speaks only of his designs in creating the universe and does not mention the issue of justice, no doubt implying that Job is right, that justice is not a primary divine concern.

Among the books of the Bible, Job is highly unusual, and, unsurprisingly, its force has often been misunderstood or evaded. In the older history of interpretation, the book was commonly viewed as a repository of wise sayings, and its overall theme was little appreciated. In our own time, it is recognized as a major work of world literature, capable of diverse interpretations.

GUIDE TO READING

The chapters most essential for understanding the narrative and the argument are: chs 1–2 (the prologue); 3–11 (the first cycle of dialogues between Job and the friends); 29–31 (Job’s final speech); 38.1–42.6 (the divine speeches, with Job’s responses); 42.7–17 (the epilogue).

David J. A. Clines

1 There was once a man in the land of Uz whose name was Job. That man was blameless and upright, one who feared God and turned away from evil. ²There were born to him seven sons and three daughters. ³He had seven thousand sheep, three thousand camels, five hundred yoke of oxen, five hundred donkeys, and very many servants; so that this man was the greatest of all the people of the east. ⁴His sons used to go and hold feasts in one another's houses in turn; and they would send and invite their three sisters to eat and drink with them. ⁵And when the feast days had run their course, Job would send and sanctify them, and he would rise early in the morning and offer burnt offerings according to the number of them all; for Job said, "It may be that my children have sinned, and cursed God in their hearts." This is what Job always did.

⁶One day the heavenly beings^a came to present themselves before the LORD, and Satan^b also came among them. ⁷The LORD said to Satan, ^b"Where have you come from?" Satan^b answered the LORD, "From going to and fro on the earth, and from walking up and down on it." ⁸The LORD said to Satan, ^b"Have you considered my servant Job? There is no one like him on the earth, a blameless and upright man who fears God and turns away from evil." ⁹Then Satan^b answered the LORD, "Does Job fear God for nothing? ¹⁰Have you not put a fence around him and his house and all that he has, on every side? You have blessed the work of his hands, and his possessions have increased in the land. ¹¹But stretch out your hand now, and touch all that he has, and he will curse you to your face." ¹²The LORD said to Satan, ^b"Very well, all that he has is in your power; only do not stretch out your hand against him!" So Satan^b went out from the presence of the LORD.

¹³One day when his sons and daughters were eating and drinking wine in the eldest brother's house, ¹⁴a messenger came to Job and said, "The oxen were plowing and the donkeys were feeding beside them, ¹⁵and the Sabeans fell on them and carried them off, and killed the servants with the edge of the sword; I alone have escaped to tell you." ¹⁶While he was still speaking, another came and said, "The fire of God fell from heaven and burned up the sheep and the servants, and consumed them; I alone have escaped to tell you." ¹⁷While he was still speaking, another came and said, "The Chaldeans formed three columns, made a raid on the camels and carried them off, and killed the servants with the edge of the sword; I alone have escaped to tell you." ¹⁸While he was still speaking, another came and said, "Your sons and daughters were eating and drinking wine in their eldest brother's house, ¹⁹and suddenly a great wind came across the desert, struck the four corners of the house, and it fell on the young people,

^a Heb sons of God

^b Or the Accuser; Heb ha-satan

1.1–2.13: Prologue. The prose prologue contains five scenes, artistically arranged: the first, third, and fifth scenes (1.1–5, 13–22; 2.7–13) take place on earth, the second and fourth (1.6–12; 2.1–6) in heaven. All the earthly characters, including Job, remain ignorant throughout the book of what takes place on the heavenly plane. 1.1–5: The naïve language, in the style of a folktale, evokes a distant past. The land of Uz is Edom, southeast of Israel (cf. Jer 25.20; Lam 4.21). Job is not an Israelite; but he is a worshiper of the true God, although he, along with his friends, calls him "El," "Eloah," and "Elohim" (all meaning "God"), and "Shadday" ("the Almighty"), not "Yahweh" ("the LORD"). 2: Seven sons, a perfect number. 4: Hold feasts . . . in turn, lit. "each on his day," presumably on birthdays. 5: Cursed, the Heb text has the word "blessed" here, apparently as a euphemism or pious scribal correction (so also in 1.11; 2.5,9; see also 1 Kings 21.13). 6–12: The gathering of the divine council in heaven (cf. 1 Kings 22.19–22; Ps 82.1) includes "the Satan," i.e., "the adversary" of Job and other humans (cf. Zech 3.1), not of God; he is not the "devil" of later Jewish and Christian literature (see textual note b). Here he acts as God's eyes and ears on earth. He questions whether Job's righteousness is for its own sake or for the sake of its reward. 13–22: Four messengers announce four disasters, from all directions: Sabeans come from the south (Sheba), Chaldeans from the north, the lightning (fire of God) from the west, with storms sweeping and they are dead; I alone have escaped to tell you.”

²⁰ Then Job arose, tore his robe, shaved his head, and fell on the ground and worshiped.

²¹ He said, “Naked I came from my mother’s womb, and naked shall I return there; the LORD gave, and the LORD has taken away; blessed be the name of the LORD.”

²² In all this Job did not sin or charge God with wrongdoing.

2 One day the heavenly beings^a came to present themselves before the LORD, and Satan^b also came among them to present himself before the LORD. ² The LORD said to Satan, ^b “Where have you come from?” Satan^c answered the LORD, “From going to and fro on the earth, and from walking up and down on it.” ³ The LORD said to Satan,^b “Have you considered my servant Job? There is no one like him on the earth, a blameless and upright man who fears God and turns away from evil. He still persists in his integrity, although you incited me against him, to destroy him for no reason.” ⁴ Then Satan^b answered the LORD, “Skin for skin! All that people have they will give to save their lives.^d ⁵ But stretch out your hand now and touch his bone and his flesh, and he will curse you to your face.” ⁶ The LORD said to Satan,^b “Very well, he is in your power; only spare his life.”

⁷ So Satan^b went out from the presence of the LORD, and inflicted loathsome sores on

Job from the sole of his foot to the crown of his head. ⁸ Job^e took a potsherd with which to scrape himself, and sat among the ashes.

⁹ Then his wife said to him, “Do you still persist in your integrity? Curse^f God, and die.” ¹⁰ But he said to her, “You speak as any foolish woman would speak. Shall we receive the good at the hand of God, and not receive the bad?” In all this Job did not sin with his lips.

¹¹ Now when Job’s three friends heard of all these troubles that had come upon him, each of them set out from his home—Eli-phaz the Temanite, Bildad the Shuhite, and Zophar the Naamathite. They met together to go and console and comfort him. ¹² When they saw him from a distance, they did not recognize him, and they raised their voices and wept aloud; they tore their robes and threw dust in the air upon their heads.

¹³ They sat with him on the ground seven days and seven nights, and no one spoke a word to him, for they saw that his suffering was very great.

^a Heb sons of God

^b Or the Accuser; Heb ha-satan

^c Or The Accuser; Heb ha-satan

^d Or All that the man has he will give for his life

^e Heb He

^f Heb Bless

in from the Mediterranean, the great wind from the eastern desert. 21: Job praises the LORD for both good and evil, proving God’s confidence in him justified. The mother’s womb to which Job will return is that of mother earth (cf. Gen 3.19). 2.1–6: Now again in the heavenly council, the LORD remarks that Job still persists in his integrity, i.e., continues blameless as ever. 4: Skin for skin! Job has saved his own skin by piously accepting the death of his children; if God now attacks Job himself, Job will attack God, by cursing him (see 1.5n.). 7–13: The fourth scene dissolves into the fifth: God authorizes the suffering, and immediately the Satan afflicts Job. 7: Loathsome sores, some unspecified skin disease (cf. 7.5; 30.30). 8: To express his sense of desolation and isolation, Job removes himself from society and sits on the rubbish heap outside his city, performing rituals of mourning (cf. Ezek 27.30; Jon 3.6). He uses broken pieces of pottery he finds there to scratch himself to relieve the itchiness. 9: The outcome of all Job’s piety has been to rob his wife of her ten children, her social standing, and her livelihood. When she urges him to curse God (see 1.5n.), and so bring his misery to an end with death, he mildly replies that she is speaking like any foolish woman, i.e., low-class, irreligious women, abandoning their family’s standards of formal and proper behavior. Job did not sin with his lips, it is not implied that he sinned in what he thought. Job has disproved the Satan’s claim that Job would sin with his lips by cursing God. 11–13: Job, being a chieftain of great importance (1.3), has other high-ranking friends. These three, all apparently from other towns in Edom, have kindly intentions toward him, but when they see how badly he is suffering they do not offer him any consolation, but treat him as if he were already dead, throwing dust . . . upon their heads, a mourning ritual (see Josh 7.6; Lam 2.10), and silently mourning him seven days and seven nights (see Gen 50.10; Sir 22.12).

- 3 After this Job opened his mouth and cursed the day of his birth. ²Job said:
³“Let the day perish in which I was born, and the night that said,
 ‘A man-child is conceived.’
⁴Let that day be darkness!
 May God above not seek it, or light shine on it.
⁵Let gloom and deep darkness claim it.
 Let clouds settle upon it;
 let the blackness of the day terrify it.
⁶That night—let thick darkness seize it!
 let it not rejoice among the days of the year;
 let it not come into the number of the months.
⁷Yes, let that night be barren;
 let no joyful cry be heard^a in it.
⁸Let those curse it who curse the Sea,^b
 those who are skilled to rouse up Leviathan.
⁹Let the stars of its dawn be dark;
 let it hope for light, but have none;
 may it not see the eyelids of the morning—¹⁰because it did not shut the doors of my mother’s womb,
 and hide trouble from my eyes.
¹¹“Why did I not die at birth,
 come forth from the womb and expire?
¹²Why were there knees to receive me,

- or breasts for me to suck?
¹³Now I would be lying down and quiet;
 I would be asleep; then I would be at rest ¹⁴with kings and counselors of the earth
 who rebuild ruins for themselves, ¹⁵or with princes who have gold,
 who fill their houses with silver.
¹⁶Or why was I not buried like a stillborn child,
 like an infant that never sees the light?
¹⁷There the wicked cease from troubling,
 and there the weary are at rest.
¹⁸There the prisoners are at ease together;
 they do not hear the voice of the taskmaster.
¹⁹The small and the great are there,
 and the slaves are free from their masters.
²⁰“Why is light given to one in misery,
 and life to the bitter in soul, ²¹who long for death, but it does not come,
 and dig for it more than for hidden treasures;
²²who rejoice exceedingly,
 and are glad when they find the grave?
²³Why is light given to one who cannot see
 the way,

^a Heb come

^b Cn: Heb day

3.1–42.6: The dialogues.

3.1–11.20: First cycle of speeches.

3.1–26: Job’s first speech. After the grandeur and deliberateness of the prologue (chs 1–2), the reader is suddenly plunged into the dramatic turmoil of the poem (3.1–42.6); the external description of suffering gives way to Job’s inner experience. Its three strophes express a wish he had never been born (vv. 3–10); failing that, a wish he had died at birth (vv. 11–19); failing that, a wish that he, and people suffering as he does, could simply die when they are ready (vv. 20–26). 3–10: A curse naturally concerns the future, and a curse on the day of his birth (cf. Jer 20.14–18) is a futile curse, for the past cannot be changed. Job wishes that the day of his birth and conception (viewed poetically as one event) could have been blacked out (vv. 4–6a) so that it would not have entered into the calendar of the year (vv. 6b,c); he wishes that the sorcerers who put a curse on days could have made it one of the unlucky days, in which it would have been impossible for his parents to have conceived him or for his mother to have given birth to him (vv. 8a,10a). 8: Some ancient magicians obviously believed they could rouse up Leviathan, the sea-monster (cf. Ps 104.26; Isa 27.1) and dragon of chaos (see 7.12; Ps 74.13–14), who would perhaps swallow up the sun, so causing the darkness of eclipse. 11–19: If he had to be born, why could he not have died at birth (v. 11a) or, at least, have been stillborn (v. 16)? Death has for him now become sweeter than life, and he compares the quiet peacefulness of the underworld (Sheol; cf. Eccl 6.3–5; Sir 30.3) to his present troubled and anxious lot (vv. 13–19). 14. Near Eastern kings frequently boasted that they had rebuilt famous ruined cities. 20–26: Now Job not only asks why he himself has to go on living, but why people in general cannot simply die when they want to (vv. 20–23). 23: Previously, God’s hedge of protection about his life (cf.

whom God has fenced in?

²⁴For my sighing comes like^a my bread, and my groanings are poured out like
water.

²⁵Truly the thing that I fear comes upon
me,
and what I dread befalls me.

²⁶I am not at ease, nor am I quiet;
I have no rest; but trouble comes.”

4 Then Eliphaz the Temanite answered:
²“If one ventures a word with you, will you be offended?

But who can keep from speaking?

³See, you have instructed many;
you have strengthened the weak hands.

⁴Your words have supported those who were stumbling,
and you have made firm the feeble knees.

⁵But now it has come to you, and you are impatient;
it touches you, and you are dismayed.

⁶Is not your fear of God your confidence, and the integrity of your ways your
hope?

⁷“Think now, who that was innocent ever perished?

Or where were the upright cut off?

⁸As I have seen, those who plow iniquity and sow trouble reap the same.

⁹By the breath of God they perish, and by the blast of his anger they are
consumed.

¹⁰The roar of the lion, the voice of the fierce lion,
and the teeth of the young lions are broken.

¹¹The strong lion perishes for lack of prey,
and the whelps of the lioness are scattered.

¹²“Now a word came stealing to me,
my ear received the whisper of it.

¹³Amid thoughts from visions of the night,
when deep sleep falls on mortals,

¹⁴dread came upon me, and trembling,
which made all my bones shake.

¹⁵A spirit glided past my face;
the hair of my flesh bristled.

¹⁶It stood still,
but I could not discern its appearance.

A form was before my eyes;
there was silence, then I heard a voice:

¹⁷“Can mortals be righteous before^b God?
Can human beings be pure before^b their Maker?

¹⁸Even in his servants he puts no trust,
and his angels he charges with error;

¹⁹how much more those who live in houses of clay,
whose foundation is in the dust,
who are crushed like a moth.

²⁰Between morning and evening they are destroyed;
they perish forever without any regarding it.

²¹Their tent-cord is plucked up within
them,
and they die devoid of wisdom.’

^a Heb before

^b Or more than

1.10) had ensured his well-being; but now that he wants to die, God’s preservation of his life seems an artificial prolongation of his misery, and the hedge has become a prison wall rather than a wall of defense. 26: Unlike the restfulness of the underworld, which is what he desires, his life has no rest, but only trouble.

4.1–5.27: Eliphaz’s first speech. Eliphaz regards Job as a pious man and urges him not to lose heart, since the innocent never finally suffer. Even the pious are not perfect, however, and may experience reproof and discipline (5.17); but they will soon come to an end (4.6). 4.2–6: Eliphaz is not scornful in reminding Job how he has comforted others; he believes that Job’s good deeds are a reason why God will soon restore him. 7–11: Eliphaz describes the fate of the wicked, as a contrast to what Job can expect since he is not one of them. 8: Cf. Hos 10.13; Gal 6.7. 10: Cf. Ps 58.6. 12–21: However, not even the angels are perfect (v. 18), still less the righteous (v. 17; cf. 15.14–16; 25.4–6). They are mere mortals, who, unlike the angels, can expire within a single day (v. 20a) and be so insignificant that they can die without anyone noticing (v. 20b) and without their ever attaining wisdom (v. 21b). Eliphaz’s dream or waking vision terrified him because of its supernatural source, but the message it

5 “Call now; is there anyone who will answer you?

To which of the holy ones will you turn?

² Surely vexation kills the fool,
and jealousy slays the simple.

³ I have seen fools taking root,
but suddenly I cursed their dwelling.

⁴ Their children are far from safety,
they are crushed in the gate,
and there is no one to deliver them.

⁵ The hungry eat their harvest, and they take it even out of the thorns;^a
and the thirsty^b pant after their wealth.

⁶ For misery does not come from the earth, nor does trouble sprout from the ground;

⁷ but human beings are born to trouble
just as sparks^c fly upward.

⁸ “As for me, I would seek God,
and to God I would commit my cause.

⁹ He does great things and unsearchable, marvelous things without number.

¹⁰ He gives rain on the earth and sends waters on the fields;

¹¹ he sets on high those who are lowly,
and those who mourn are lifted to safety.

¹² He frustrates the devices of the crafty,
so that their hands achieve no success.

¹³ He takes the wise in their own craftiness;
and the schemes of the wily are brought to a quick end.

¹⁴ They meet with darkness in the daytime,
and grope at noonday as in the night.

¹⁵ But he saves the needy from the sword of their mouth,
from the hand of the mighty.

¹⁶ So the poor have hope,
and injustice shuts its mouth.

¹⁷ “How happy is the one whom God
reproves;
therefore do not despise the discipline of the Almighty.^d

¹⁸ For he wounds, but he binds up;
he strikes, but his hands heal.

¹⁹ He will deliver you from six troubles;
in seven no harm shall touch you.

²⁰ In famine he will redeem you from death,
and in war from the power of the sword.

²¹ You shall be hidden from the scourge of the tongue,
and shall not fear destruction when it comes.

²² At destruction and famine you shall laugh,
and shall not fear the wild animals of
the earth.

²³ For you shall be in league with the stones of the field,
and the wild animals shall be at peace
with you.

²⁴ You shall know that your tent is safe,
you shall inspect your fold and miss
nothing.

²⁵ You shall know that your descendants will be many,

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Aquila Symmachus Syr Vg: Heb snare

^c Or birds; Heb sons of Resheph

^d Traditional rendering of Heb Shaddai

brought was obvious. Appeals to revelatory experience are unusual in wisdom books, but see 33:15–18. 5:1–7: Suffering, in fact, has to be expected. Not believing that Job really wants to die (as in ch 3), Eliphaz assumes Job is hoping to escape his suffering. But that is wishful thinking, for suffering is natural for humans; they always bring trouble upon themselves (v. 7 may be better translated “Humans beget suffering for themselves”). Even the angels (the holy ones, v. 1) cannot prevent the cycle of cause and effect when humans sin and bring punishment upon themselves. The fools whose vexation or resentment and jealousy bring them to ruin are a case in point (cf. Prov 12:16; 14:30; Sir 30:24). 8–16: As in 4:2–6, Eliphaz regards Job as an essentially pious man, who should patiently leave his cause, or case, in divine hands (v. 8), since God is a great reverser of fortunes (vv. 11–16). 10–15: The destructive acts of God (vv. 12–14) are enclosed within the frame of his saving acts (vv. 10–11, 15), so the chief effect of this picture of God’s working is to give hope to the poor (v. 16; contrast Lk 1:51–53). 17–27: Eliphaz interprets Job’s suffering as God’s disciplining (cf. Ps 94:12; Prov 3:11–12; Hos 6:1), which is a blessing in itself (v. 17) and that “he who wounds is he who soothes the sore” (v. 18, 18b). Job must only recognize and not reject (despise, v. 17) God’s discipline, and “apply it to yourself” (v. 27, NIV).

and your offspring like the grass of the earth.

²⁶You shall come to your grave in ripe old age,
as a shock of grain comes up to the threshing floor in its season.

²⁷See, we have searched this out; it is true.
Hear, and know it for yourself.”

6 Then Job answered:

²“O that my vexation were weighed,
and all my calamity laid in the balances!

³For then it would be heavier than the sand of the sea;
therefore my words have been rash.

⁴For the arrows of the Almighty^a are in me;
my spirit drinks their poison;
the terrors of God are arrayed against me.

⁵Does the wild ass bray over its grass,
or the ox low over its fodder?

⁶Can that which is tasteless be eaten without salt,
or is there any flavor in the juice of mallows?^b

⁷My appetite refuses to touch them;
they are like food that is loathsome to me.^b

⁸“O that I might have my request, and that God would grant my desire;

⁹that it would please God to crush me, that he would let loose his hand and cut me off!

¹⁰This would be my consolation;
I would even exult^b in unrelenting pain;
for I have not denied the words of the Holy One.

¹¹What is my strength, that I should wait?

And what is my end, that I should be patient?

¹²Is my strength the strength of stones,
or is my flesh bronze?

¹³In truth I have no help in me,
and any resource is driven from me.

¹⁴“Those who withhold^c kindness from a friend forsake the fear of the Almighty.^a ¹⁵My companions are treacherous like a torrent-bed,

like freshets that pass away,

¹⁶that run dark with ice,
turbid with melting snow.

¹⁷In time of heat they disappear;
when it is hot, they vanish from their place.

¹⁸The caravans turn aside from their course;
they go up into the waste, and perish.

¹⁹The caravans of Tema look,
the travelers of Sheba hope.

²⁰They are disappointed because they were confident;
they come there and are confounded.

²¹Such you have now become to me;^d
you see my calamity, and are afraid.

²²Have I said, ‘Make me a gift’?
Or, ‘From your wealth offer a bribe for me’?

²³Or, ‘Save me from an opponent’s hand’?
Or, ‘Ransom me from the hand of oppressors’?

^a Traditional rendering of Heb Shaddai

^b Meaning of Heb uncertain

^c Syr Vg Compare Tg: Meaning of Heb uncertain

^d Cn Compare Gk Syr: Meaning of Heb uncertain

6.1–7.21: Job’s second speech. 6.1–13: A soliloquy, addressed to no one. In ch 3 Job had only asked why sufferers like him must go on living; but here he actively yearns for immediate death (vv. 8–9). If he could die now, before his suffering leads him into blasphemy, he could at least have the consolation of not having denied the words, the commandments, of the Holy One. Eliphaz has called on Job to be patient, but patience needs a strength that Job does not have (vv. 11–13). He begins to think of God as his enemy, armed with poisoned arrows and with terrors as his army (v. 4; cf. Deut 32.23; Lam 2.4). 14–30: Turning now to the friends, Job accuses them of defrauding him of friendship’s debt of kindness or, rather, “loyalty” (v. 14), afraid that if they identify themselves too closely with Job they too will come under God’s judgment (v. 21). 15–17: The torrent-bed and freshets are the wadis that are full of water during the rainy seasons but are dry during the summer when water is most needed (cf. Jer 15.18). 18–20: Tema and Sheba, areas in northern and southwestern Arabia, respectively.

²⁴ “Teach me, and I will be silent;
make me understand how I have gone
wrong.

²⁵ How forceful are honest words!
But your reproof, what does it reprove?

²⁶ Do you think that you can reprove
words,
as if the speech of the desperate were
wind?

²⁷ You would even cast lots over the orphan,
and bargain over your friend.

²⁸ “But now, be pleased to look at me;
for I will not lie to your face.

²⁹ Turn, I pray, let no wrong be done.
Turn now, my vindication is at stake.

³⁰ Is there any wrong on my tongue?
Cannot my taste discern calamity?

7 “Do not human beings have a hard service on earth,
and are not their days like the days of a laborer?

² Like a slave who longs for the shadow, and like laborers who look for their wages,

³ so I am allotted months of emptiness,
and nights of misery are apportioned
to me.

⁴ When I lie down I say, ‘When shall I
rise?’
But the night is long,
and I am full of tossing until dawn.

⁵ My flesh is clothed with worms and dirt;
my skin hardens, then breaks out
again.

⁶ My days are swifter than a weaver’s shuttle,
and come to their end without hope.^a

⁷ “Remember that my life is a breath;
my eye will never again see good.

⁸ The eye that beholds me will see me no

more;
while your eyes are upon me, I shall be gone.

⁹ As the cloud fades and vanishes, so those who go down to Sheol do not come up;

¹⁰ they return no more to their houses,
nor do their places know them any
more.

¹¹ “Therefore I will not restrain my mouth;
I will speak in the anguish of my spirit;
I will complain in the bitterness of my soul.

¹² Am I the Sea, or the Dragon,
that you set a guard over me?

¹³ When I say, ‘My bed will comfort me,
my couch will ease my complaint,’

¹⁴ then you scare me with dreams and terrify me with visions,

¹⁵ so that I would choose strangling
and death rather than this body.

¹⁶ I loathe my life; I would not live forever.
Let me alone, for my days are a breath.

¹⁷ What are human beings, that you make
so much of them,
that you set your mind on them,

¹⁸ visit them every morning,
test them every moment?

¹⁹ Will you not look away from me for a while,
let me alone until I swallow my spittle?

²⁰ If I sin, what do I do to you, you watcher of humanity?

Why have you made me your target?
Why have I become a burden to you?

²¹ Why do you not pardon my transgression
and take away my iniquity?

^a Or as the thread runs out

7:1–21: Turning now to God, Job interweaves his own death-wish with his experience of the futility and misery of human life generally. 9: Sheol, the abode of the dead. 12: God, far from letting him alone, treats him like one of the legendary monsters of the deep, Yam (the Sea) or Tannin (the Dragon), who had to be muzzled by God at creation (cf. 3.8n.; 38.8–11; Isa 51.9). 17–18: A bitter parody of Ps 8.4. The psalm expresses wonder at the high status humans have been given as rulers of the earth despite their apparent insignificance on the cosmic scale. Job’s language is a reproof of God for the disproportionate attention God gives to mortals, subjecting them to perpetual hostile scrutiny.

For now I shall lie in the earth;
you will seek me, but I shall not be.”

8 Then Bildad the Shuhite answered:
2 “How long will you say these things,
and the words of your mouth be a great
wind?

3 Does God pervert justice?
Or does the Almighty^a pervert the
right?

4 If your children sinned against him,
he delivered them into the power of their transgression.

5 If you will seek God and make supplication to the Almighty,^a

6 if you are pure and upright, surely then he will rouse himself for
you
and restore to you your rightful place.

7 Though your beginning was small,
your latter days will be very great.

8 “For inquire now of bygone generations, and consider what their ancestors have found;

9 for we are but of yesterday, and we know
nothing,
for our days on earth are but a shadow.

10 Will they not teach you and tell you and utter words out of their understanding?

11 “Can papyrus grow where there is no
marsh?
Can reeds flourish where there is no
water?

12 While yet in flower and not cut down,
they wither before any other plant.

13 Such are the paths of all who forget God;
the hope of the godless shall perish.

14 Their confidence is gossamer,
a spider’s house their trust.

15 If one leans against its house, it will not stand;
if one lays hold of it, it will not endure.

16 The wicked thrive^b before the sun,
and their shoots spread over the garden.

17 Their roots twine around the stoneheap;
they live among the rocks.^c

18 If they are destroyed from their place, then it will deny them, saying, ‘I have never seen you.’

19 See, these are their happy ways,^d and out of the earth still others will spring.

20 “See, God will not reject a blameless person,
nor take the hand of evildoers.

21 He will yet fill your mouth with laughter,
and your lips with shouts of joy.

22 Those who hate you will be clothed with shame,
and the tent of the wicked will be no
more.”

9 Then Job answered:
2 “Indeed I know that this is so;
but how can a mortal be just before
God?

^a Traditional rendering of Heb Shaddai

^b Heb He thrives

^c Gk Vg: Meaning of Heb uncertain

^d Meaning of Heb uncertain

8.1–22: Bildad’s first speech. Like all the friends, Bildad believes that suffering is punishment, and that the death of Job’s children is proof of their sin. Bildad has less confidence in Job’s righteousness than Eliphaz did, and his encouragement to Job depends on a condition, if you are pure and upright (v. 6). 2–7: Job’s children are dead, so they must have sinned (v. 4). By contrast, Job himself is not dead, so he must be innocent of anything deserving of death. He has only to seek God in prayer (v. 5), and if he is pure and upright his prayer will be heard. 8–19: No effect without a cause, as the case of the wicked shows. 8–10: Bildad’s trust in the wisdom of bygone generations instead of we [who] know nothing is contrasted with Job’s reliance on his own experience (6.4–7,30). 20–22: Bildad believes Job may yet prove to be a blameless person (v. 20).

9.1–10.22: Job’s third speech. Here is Job’s strongest statement so far of his feeling of powerlessness (e.g. 9.3–4,14–20,30–31), his sense of being trapped (9.15,20,27–31), and his belief that God’s apparent concern for him throughout his life has not really been for his benefit, but in order to fasten guilt upon him (10.13–14). Novel in this speech is the question of how Job is to be vindicated, that is, shown publicly to be in the right after all. It is a hopeless task to make God declare him innocent (9.2), which eventually throws Job into despair (10.15–16).

³ If one wished to contend with him, one could not answer him once in a thousand.
⁴ He is wise in heart, and mighty in strength
—who has resisted him, and succeeded?—
⁵ he who removes mountains, and they do not know it,
when he overturns them in his anger;
⁶ who shakes the earth out of its place,
and its pillars tremble;
⁷ who commands the sun, and it does not
rise;
who seals up the stars;
⁸ who alone stretched out the heavens and trampled the waves of the Sea;^a ⁹ who made the Bear and Orion, the Pleiades and the chambers of the south;
¹⁰ who does great things beyond
understanding,
and marvelous things without number.
¹¹ Look, he passes by me, and I do not see
him;
he moves on, but I do not perceive him.
¹² He snatches away; who can stop him?
Who will say to him, ‘What are you doing?’
¹³ “God will not turn back his anger;
the helpers of Rahab bowed beneath
him.
¹⁴ How then can I answer him,
choosing my words with him?
¹⁵ Though I am innocent, I cannot answer
him;
I must appeal for mercy to my accuser.^b
¹⁶ If I summoned him and he answered me,

I do not believe that he would listen to my voice.
¹⁷ For he crushes me with a tempest, and multiplies my wounds without
cause;
¹⁸ he will not let me get my breath,
but fills me with bitterness.
¹⁹ If it is a contest of strength, he is the strong one!
If it is a matter of justice, who can summon him?^c
²⁰ Though I am innocent, my own mouth
would condemn me;
though I am blameless, he would prove me perverse.
²¹ I am blameless; I do not know myself;
I loathe my life.
²² It is all one; therefore I say,
he destroys both the blameless and the wicked.
²³ When disaster brings sudden death,
he mocks at the calamity^d of the innocent.
²⁴ The earth is given into the hand of the
wicked;
he covers the eyes of its judges—
if it is not he, who then is it?
²⁵ “My days are swifter than a runner;
they flee away, they see no good.

^a Or trampled the back of the sea dragon

^b Or for my right

^c Compare Gk: Heb me

^d Meaning of Heb uncertain

But it has become an ambition that will only grow in attraction for him as the book progresses (cf. 13.13–23; 16.18–21; 19.23–27; 23.2–14). 9.2: Job is not saying that no one can actually be just in the sight of God, but complaining that because God has such power and wisdom he can defeat any human’s attempt to be declared righteous or “win his case” (רַעַב) against God; God will not give humans the satisfaction of hearing their innocence affirmed. 5–13: Job focuses upon the more negative aspects of God’s power (vv. 5–7) not in order to picture him as a God of chaos but to emphasize his freedom to act, whether for good or ill. His freedom makes him incomprehensible (v. 10), unaccountable (v. 12), and uncontrollable (v. 13). 9: Bear, Orion, Pleiades, in the translation the familiar names of the star groups in Greek tradition are substituted for the Heb terms; cf. 38.31–33; Am 5.8. 13: Rahab, the legendary sea-monster of chaos, similar to or identical with Leviathan, with whom God did battle at creation (see also 26.12; Ps 89.10; Isa 51.9). 14–24: Job believes that even if he could bring God to court he would not get vindication. 15: Job is not going to appeal for mercy for that might sound like an admission of guilt. What he wants is vindication, not relief from his sufferings. 17: Tempest, better “storm.” 22: God destroys both the blameless and the wicked because he is determined upon hostility to humans. 25–35: The monologue has turned

26 They go by like skiffs of reed,
 like an eagle swooping on the prey.
 27 If I say, 'I will forget my complaint;
 I will put off my sad countenance and be of good cheer,'
 28 I become afraid of all my suffering, for I know you will not hold me
 innocent.
 29 I shall be condemned;
 why then do I labor in vain?
 30 If I wash myself with soap and cleanse my hands with lye, 31 yet you will plunge me into filth,
 and my own clothes will abhor me.
 32 For he is not a mortal, as I am, that I might answer him,
 that we should come to trial together.
 33 There is no umpire^a between us,
 who might lay his hand on us both.
 34 If he would take his rod away from me,
 and not let dread of him terrify me, 35 then I would speak without fear of him,
 for I know I am not what I am thought to be.^b

10 "I loathe my life;
 I will give free utterance to my complaint;
 I will speak in the bitterness of my soul.
 2 I will say to God, Do not condemn me;
 let me know why you contend against me.
 3 Does it seem good to you to oppress, to despise the work of your hands
 and favor the schemes of the wicked?
 4 Do you have eyes of flesh?
 Do you see as humans see?
 5 Are your days like the days of mortals,
 or your years like human years,
 6 that you seek out my iniquity
 and search for my sin,
 7 although you know that I am not guilty,
 and there is no one to deliver out of your hand?

8 Your hands fashioned and made me;
 and now you turn and destroy me.^c 9 Remember that you fashioned me like clay;
 and will you turn me to dust again?
 10 Did you not pour me out like milk
 and curdle me like cheese?
 11 You clothed me with skin and flesh, and knit me together with bones and sinews.
 12 You have granted me life and steadfast
 love,
 and your care has preserved my spirit.
 13 Yet these things you hid in your heart;
 I know that this was your purpose.
 14 If I sin, you watch me,
 and do not acquit me of my iniquity.
 15 If I am wicked, woe to me!
 If I am righteous, I cannot lift up my
 head,
 for I am filled with disgrace
 and look upon my affliction.
 16 Bold as a lion you hunt me;
 you repeat your exploits against me.
 17 You renew your witnesses against me,
 and increase your vexation toward me;
 you bring fresh troops against me.^d 18 "Why did you bring me forth from the womb?
 Would that I had died before any eye
 had seen me, 19 and were as though I had not been,
 carried from the womb to the grave.

^a Another reading is Would that there were an umpire

^b Cn: Heb for I am not so in myself

^c Cn Compare Gk Syr: Heb made me together all around, and you destroy me

^d Cn Compare Gk: Heb toward me; changes and a troop are with me into an address to God. 32–35: A legal confrontation with God is doomed because the two parties cannot be on the same level (v. 32). Job needs an umpire or arbitrator, one who would lay his hand upon both parties as a gesture of reconciliation. Since there is no such umpire, Job will have to conduct his lawsuit himself. 10.1–2: Job's intention to begin a legal controversy with God. 3–7: Speculation about God's motives for his treatment of Job. 8–17: The contradiction between God's real and apparent purposes in creating Job and keeping him alive. 9: Cf. 33.6; Gen 2.7; 3.19; Isa 64.8. 10: Human conception is pictured as cheese-making: semen, a milk-like substance, is poured into the womb, where, like cheese, it coagulates into the embryo (cf. Ps 139.13–16; Wis 7.2). 18–22: An appeal for release from God's oppressive presence.

²⁰ Are not the days of my life few?^a Let me alone, that I may find a little comfort^b
²¹ before I go, never to return, to the land of gloom and deep darkness, ²² the land of gloom^c and chaos,
 where light is like darkness.”

11 Then Zophar the Naamathite answered:

² “Should a multitude of words go unanswered,
 and should one full of talk be vindicated?
³ Should your babble put others to silence,
 and when you mock, shall no one shame you?
⁴ For you say, ‘My conduct^d is pure,
 and I am clean in God’s^e sight.’
⁵ But O that God would speak,
 and open his lips to you,
⁶ and that he would tell you the secrets of wisdom!
 For wisdom is many-sided.^f
 Know then that God exacts of you less than your guilt deserves.

⁷ “Can you find out the deep things of God?
 Can you find out the limit of the Almighty?^g
⁸ It is higher than heaven^h—what can you do?
 Deeper than Sheol—what can you
 know?
⁹ Its measure is longer than the earth,
 and broader than the sea.
¹⁰ If he passes through, and imprisons, and assembles for judgment, who can hinder him?
¹¹ For he knows those who are worthless;
 when he sees iniquity, will he not consider it?

¹² But a stupid person will get understanding, when a wild ass is born human.^f

¹³ “If you direct your heart rightly, you will stretch out your hands toward
 him.
¹⁴ If iniquity is in your hand, put it far away,
 and do not let wickedness reside in your tents.
¹⁵ Surely then you will lift up your face
 without blemish;
 you will be secure, and will not fear.
¹⁶ You will forget your misery;
 you will remember it as waters that have passed away.
¹⁷ And your life will be brighter than the noonday;
 its darkness will be like the morning.
¹⁸ And you will have confidence, because there is hope;
 you will be protectedⁱ and take your rest
 in safety.
¹⁹ You will lie down, and no one will make you afraid;
 many will entreat your favor.
²⁰ But the eyes of the wicked will fail;
 all way of escape will be lost to them,
 and their hope is to breathe their last.”

12 Then Job answered:
² “No doubt you are the people,
 and wisdom will die with you.

^a Cn Compare Gk Syr: Heb Are not my days few? Let him cease!

^b Heb that I may brighten up a little

^c Heb gloom as darkness, deep darkness

^d Gk: Heb teaching

^e Heb your

^f Meaning of Heb uncertain

^g Traditional rendering of Heb Shaddai

^h Heb The heights of heaven

ⁱ Or you will look around

11.1–20: Zophar’s first speech. Zophar is the least sympathetic of the three friends. His message to Job is simple: you are suffering because God knows that you are a secret sinner (v. 6); therefore repent (vv. 13–14)! 4–6: Zophar agrees with Job that the real issue is the question of sin. Since it is not obvious that Job is a sinner, his sin must be secret. So bad a sinner is Job that even with all his punishment God is letting Job off lightly (v. 6). 7–12: God’s wisdom is focused on the detection of wrongdoing. 8: Sheol, the abode of the dead. 13–20: Restoration depends entirely on Job’s complete repentance. He must stretch out his hands in prayer and renounce his present sinfulness. The result will be a clear conscience (you will lift up your face) and a sense of security (v. 15).

12.1–20.29: Second cycle of speeches.

³ But I have understanding as well as you;
I am not inferior to you.
Who does not know such things as these?

⁴ I am a laughingstock to my friends;
I, who called upon God and he answered me,
a just and blameless man, I am a laughingstock.

⁵ Those at ease have contempt for misfortune,^a
but it is ready for those whose feet are unstable.

⁶ The tents of robbers are at peace,
and those who provoke God are secure,
who bring their god in their hands.^b

⁷ “But ask the animals, and they will teach
you;
the birds of the air, and they will tell
you;

⁸ ask the plants of the earth,^c and they will teach you;
and the fish of the sea will declare to
you.

⁹ Who among all these does not know that the hand of the LORD has done
this?

¹⁰ In his hand is the life of every living thing
and the breath of every human being.

¹¹ Does not the ear test words
as the palate tastes food?

¹² Is wisdom with the aged,
and understanding in length of days?

¹³ “With God^d are wisdom and strength;
he has counsel and understanding.

¹⁴ If he tears down, no one can rebuild;
if he shuts someone in, no one can open up.

¹⁵ If he withholds the waters, they dry up;
if he sends them out, they overwhelm
the land.

¹⁶ With him are strength and wisdom;
the deceived and the deceiver are his.

¹⁷ He leads counselors away stripped,
and makes fools of judges.

¹⁸ He looses the sash of kings,
and binds a waistcloth on their loins.

¹⁹ He leads priests away stripped,
and overthrows the mighty.

²⁰ He deprives of speech those who are trusted,
and takes away the discernment of the elders.

²¹ He pours contempt on princes,
and looses the belt of the strong.

²² He uncovers the deeps out of darkness,
and brings deep darkness to light.

²³ He makes nations great, then destroys
them;

he enlarges nations, then leads them
away.

²⁴ He strips understanding from the leaders^e of the earth,
and makes them wander in a pathless waste.

²⁵ They grope in the dark without light;
he makes them stagger like a drunkard.

13 “Look, my eye has seen all this,
my ear has heard and understood it.

² What you know, I also know;
I am not inferior to you.

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Or whom God brought forth by his hand; Meaning of Heb uncertain

^c Or speak to the earth

^d Heb him

^e Heb adds of the people

12.1–14.22: Job's fourth speech. In the first part, Job addresses his friends (12.2–13.19) and in the second, God (13.20–14.22). The essence of the whole speech is: I want nothing to do with you worthless physicians (13.4); I desire to speak to the Almighty (13.3). 12.2–13.19: For the first time Job shows himself contemptuous of the friends. He believes his wisdom is superior to theirs (12.2), for he knows something they do not: that it is possible for a righteous person to be afflicted and, equally, that the deeds of the wicked can go unpunished (vv. 4–6). 7–12: Job is not addressing the friends, but ironically imagining what they might say to him. 13–25: This hymn to the destructive power of the Almighty presents Job's new wisdom: God is no calm governor of a well-ordered universe, but an eccentric deity who cannot be comprehended or tamed. His chief characteristic is his upsetting of stable order. 13.1–3: Nevertheless, Job is determined to argue a lawsuit with God. 4–12: The friends have been speaking as false witnesses on behalf of God. Although Job has many doubts about God's justice, he does not doubt that God will

³ But I would speak to the Almighty,^a and I desire to argue my case with God.

⁴ As for you, you whitewash with lies;
all of you are worthless physicians.

⁵ If you would only keep silent,
that would be your wisdom!

⁶ Hear now my reasoning,
and listen to the pleadings of my lips.

⁷ Will you speak falsely for God,
and speak deceitfully for him?

⁸ Will you show partiality toward him,
will you plead the case for God?

⁹ Will it be well with you when he searches
you out?
Or can you deceive him, as one person
deceives another?

¹⁰ He will surely rebuke you
if in secret you show partiality.

¹¹ Will not his majesty terrify you,
and the dread of him fall upon you?

¹² Your maxims are proverbs of ashes,
your defenses are defenses of clay.

¹³ "Let me have silence, and I will speak,
and let come on me what may.

¹⁴ I will take my flesh in my teeth,
and put my life in my hand.^b

¹⁵ See, he will kill me; I have no hope;^c
but I will defend my ways to his face.

¹⁶ This will be my salvation, that the godless shall not come before
him.

¹⁷ Listen carefully to my words,
and let my declaration be in your ears.

¹⁸ I have indeed prepared my case;
I know that I shall be vindicated.

¹⁹ Who is there that will contend with me?
For then I would be silent and die.

²⁰ Only grant two things to me, then I will not hide myself from your face:

²¹ withdraw your hand far from me,
and do not let dread of you terrify me.

²² Then call, and I will answer;
or let me speak, and you reply to me.

²³ How many are my iniquities and my sins?
Make me know my transgression and my sin.

²⁴ Why do you hide your face,
and count me as your enemy?

²⁵ Will you frighten a windblown leaf and pursue dry chaff?

²⁶ For you write bitter things against me,
and make me reap^d the iniquities of my youth.

²⁷ You put my feet in the stocks,
and watch all my paths;
you set a bound to the soles of my feet.

²⁸ One wastes away like a rotten thing,
like a garment that is moth-eaten.

14 "A mortal, born of woman, few of days
and full of trouble,

² comes up like a flower and withers,
flees like a shadow and does not last.

³ Do you fix your eyes on such a one?
Do you bring me into judgment with
you?

⁴ Who can bring a clean thing out of an unclean?
No one can.

⁵ Since their days are determined, and the number of their months is known to you,
and you have appointed the bounds
that they cannot pass,

^a Traditional rendering of Heb Shaddai

^b Gk: Heb Why should I take . . . in my hand?

^c Or Though he kill me, yet I will trust in him

^d Heb inherit punish the friends for their partiality toward himself (v. 10) and their lack of objectivity. 13–19: Ending his address to the friends, Job explains what he will ask of God. Unlike chs 7 and 9–10, where he asked God to stop paying attention to him, he now deliberately calls God into disputation with him (v. 22). It is dangerous (v. 14), suicidal in fact (v. 15); but Job is sure that right is on his side (v. 18). 15: The traditional translation of the verse (see textual note c) is based on an alternate reading of the Hebrew. 20–27: Job first insists that God bring out in the open what he has against Job, but with two conditions for fairness (v. 20): God must withdraw his hand of punishment from him, and he must not terrify him (v. 21). 24: Enemy (Heb "oyeb," possibly a wordplay on Job's name ("iyyob"). 14.1–22: The focus changes from Job himself to the lot of humanity. Humans are too unimportant for God to scrutinize them as he does Job; he could reasonably overlook their sins. 1: The expression born of woman is simply a synonym for any human being (see 15.14). 7–12: The hopes of a tree and of humankind are contrasted. A tree that is cut down can

⁶ look away from them, and desist,^a that they may enjoy, like laborers, their days.

⁷ “For there is hope for a tree,
if it is cut down, that it will sprout
again,
and that its shoots will not cease.

⁸ Though its root grows old in the earth,
and its stump dies in the ground,

⁹ yet at the scent of water it will bud and put forth branches like a young plant.

¹⁰ But mortals die, and are laid low;
humans expire, and where are they?

¹¹ As waters fail from a lake,
and a river wastes away and dries up,

¹² so mortals lie down and do not rise
again;
until the heavens are no more, they will not awake
or be roused out of their sleep.

¹³ O that you would hide me in Sheol, that you would conceal me until your wrath is past,
that you would appoint me a set time,
and remember me!

¹⁴ If mortals die, will they live again?
All the days of my service I would wait until my release should come.

¹⁵ You would call, and I would answer you;
you would long for the work of your hands.

¹⁶ For then you would not^b number my steps,
you would not keep watch over my sin;

¹⁷ my transgression would be sealed up in a bag,
and you would cover over my iniquity.

¹⁸ “But the mountain falls and crumbles
away,
and the rock is removed from its place;

¹⁹ the waters wear away the stones;
the torrents wash away the soil of the
earth;

so you destroy the hope of mortals.

²⁰ You prevail forever against them, and they pass away;
you change their countenance, and send them away.

²¹ Their children come to honor, and they do not know it;
they are brought low, and it goes unnoticed.

²² They feel only the pain of their own bodies,
and mourn only for themselves.”

15 Then Eliphaz the Temanite answered:

² “Should the wise answer with windy
knowledge,
and fill themselves with the east wind?

³ Should they argue in unprofitable talk,
or in words with which they can do no
good?

⁴ But you are doing away with the fear of God,
and hindering meditation before God.

⁵ For your iniquity teaches your mouth,
and you choose the tongue of the crafty.

⁶ Your own mouth condemns you, and not I;
your own lips testify against you.

⁷ “Are you the firstborn of the human race?
Were you brought forth before the hills?

^a Cn: Heb that they may desist

^b Syr: Heb lacks not hope for new life; for humans there is none until the heavens are no more, i.e., never. If only Sheol, the underworld, could be, not a final resting place without an exit, but a temporary hiding-place from God’s scrutiny and anger (v. 13). 14: A rhetorical question, expecting the answer No! 18–19: The only expectation humans can have is that God will final. 18–19: The only expectation humans can have is that God will finally prevail against them.

15.1–35: Eliphaz’s second speech. 2–16: Eliphaz regards Job’s faults as both intellectual and moral. His intellectual mistake is not to realize that even the most perfect human is tainted in God’s sight (vv. 14–16). His moral fault is not to bear his suffering with bravery and patience. Whatever Job’s original fault, it was minor compared with the sin of his present behavior; it is a sin against himself (v. 6) and against God (v. 13) to speak so one-sidedly and bitterly about God. The very passion of Job’s speech is proof that he is in the wrong (vv. 12–13). 2: East wind, the oppressively hot wind from the desert. 4: Fear of God is the emotion of fear proper to a human being in the presence of God. Job’s charges against God imply he has lost his due sense of creatureliness. 7:

- ⁸ Have you listened in the council of God?
And do you limit wisdom to yourself?
- ⁹ What do you know that we do not know?
What do you understand that is not clear to us?
- ¹⁰ The gray-haired and the aged are on our side,
those older than your father.
- ¹¹ Are the consolations of God too small for you,
or the word that deals gently with you?
- ¹² Why does your heart carry you away,
and why do your eyes flash,^a
- ¹³ so that you turn your spirit against God, and let such words go out of your
mouth?
- ¹⁴ What are mortals, that they can be clean?
Or those born of woman, that they can be righteous?
- ¹⁵ God puts no trust even in his holy ones,
and the heavens are not clean in his
sight;
- ¹⁶ how much less one who is abominable
and corrupt,
one who drinks iniquity like water!
- ¹⁷ "I will show you; listen to me;
what I have seen I will declare—
- ¹⁸ what sages have told,
and their ancestors have not hidden,
- ¹⁹ to whom alone the land was given,
and no stranger passed among
them.
- ²⁰ The wicked writhe in pain all their days, through all the years that are laid up for the ruthless.
- ²¹ Terrifying sounds are in their ears;
in prosperity the destroyer will come
upon them.
- ²² They despair of returning from
darkness,
and they are destined for the sword.
- ²³ They wander abroad for bread, saying,
'Where is it?'
- They know that a day of darkness is ready at hand;
- ²⁴ distress and anguish terrify them;
they prevail against them, like a king
prepared for battle.
- ²⁵ Because they stretched out their hands against God,
and bid defiance to the Almighty,^b
- ²⁶ running stubbornly against him with a thick-bossed shield;
- ²⁷ because they have covered their faces
with their fat,
and gathered fat upon their loins,
- ²⁸ they will live in desolate cities,
in houses that no one should inhabit, houses destined to become heaps of ruins;
- ²⁹ they will not be rich, and their wealth
will not endure,
nor will they strike root in the earth;^c
- ³⁰ they will not escape from darkness;
the flame will dry up their shoots,
and their blossom^d will be swept away^e
by the wind.
- ³¹ Let them not trust in emptiness,
deceiving themselves;
for emptiness will be their recompense.
- ³² It will be paid in full before their time,
and their branch will not be green.
- ³³ They will shake off their unripe grape,
like the vine,
and cast off their blossoms, like the olive tree.
- ³⁴ For the company of the godless is barren,
and fire consumes the tents of bribery.
- ³⁵ They conceive mischief and bring forth evil
and their heart prepares deceit."

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Traditional rendering of Heb Shaddai

^c Vg: Meaning of Heb uncertain

^d Gk: Heb mouth

^e Cn: Heb will depart

Council of God, see 1.6–12n. 14: Born of woman, see 14.1n. 16: An extreme generalization about humans as compared with God's purity (cf. 25.4–6). 17–35: This depiction of the miserable life and fearsome fate of the wicked (cf. 18.5–21; 20.4–29) concerns, first, their life-long fear of death (vv. 20–26), and, second, their final destiny (vv. 27–35), that they will die prematurely (vv. 31–33). As always, Eliphaz believes Job is not one of the truly wicked, so this is a depiction of what does not apply to him. But he had better take care that he does not join them in his hostility toward God (v. 25).

16 Then Job answered:
²“I have heard many such things;
 miserable comforters are you all.
³Have windy words no limit?
 Or what provokes you that you keep on talking?
⁴I also could talk as you do,
 if you were in my place;
 I could join words together against you,
 and shake my head at you.
⁵I could encourage you with my mouth,
 and the solace of my lips would assuage
 your pain.
⁶“If I speak, my pain is not assuaged, and if I forbear, how much of it leaves
 me?
⁷Surely now God has worn me out;
 he has^a made desolate all my company.
⁸And he has^a shriveled me up,
 which is a witness against me;
 my leanness has risen up against me,
 and it testifies to my face.
⁹He has torn me in his wrath, and hated
 me;
 he has gnashed his teeth at me;
 my adversary sharpens his eyes against
 me.
¹⁰They have gaped at me with their mouths;
 they have struck me insolently on the cheek;
 they mass themselves together against
 me.
¹¹God gives me up to the ungodly, and casts me into the hands of the
 wicked.
¹²I was at ease, and he broke me in two;

he seized me by the neck and dashed
 me to pieces;
 he set me up as his target;
¹³his archers surround me.
 He slashes open my kidneys, and shows no
 mercy;
 he pours out my gall on the ground.
¹⁴He bursts upon me again and again;
 he rushes at me like a warrior.
¹⁵I have sewed sackcloth upon my skin,
 and have laid my strength in the dust.
¹⁶My face is red with weeping,
 and deep darkness is on my eyelids, ¹⁷though there is no violence in my hands,
 and my prayer is pure.
¹⁸“O earth, do not cover my blood;
 let my outcry find no resting place.
¹⁹Even now, in fact, my witness is in heaven,
 and he that vouches for me is on high.
²⁰My friends scorn me;
 my eye pours out tears to God, ²¹that he would maintain the right of a mortal with God,
 as^b one does for a neighbor.
²²For when a few years have come,
 I shall go the way from which I shall not return.

17 My spirit is broken, my days are extinct,
 the grave is ready for me.
²Surely there are mockers around me,
 and my eye dwells on their provocation.

^a Heb you have

^b Syr Vg Tg: Heb and

16.1–17.16: Job’s fifth speech. This is the most disjointed of Job’s speeches so far. Several earlier themes recur: he criticizes the friends (16.2–6); he then soliloquizes, lamenting the attacks of God (vv. 7–17); he imagines his possible vindication (vv. 18–22); he makes a lament about the friends (17.1–10); he fears that he will die without being vindicated (vv. 11–16). Unlike his previous speech (chs 12–14), the subject here is always Job himself and not humanity in general. 16.7–17: Job depicts God’s assaults as if they were the attacks by various kinds of opponents, a wild animal (vv. 9–10), a traitor (v. 11), a wrestler (v. 12), an archer (vv. 12c–13a), a swordsman (vv. 13b–14). Cf. Lam 3.1–20. 18–22: God’s wrongful attack on Job will probably lead to Job’s death. So he appeals to the earth to take blood revenge for him once he is dead—upon God! 18: O earth, do not cover my blood, is the same kind of cry as Abel’s who was unlawfully killed (Gen 4.10). 19: Even now, while he is still alive, he has a witness . . . in heaven, which cannot be God, since God has been nothing but his enemy (vv. 7–14). His witness is his own innocence. 20: My friends scorn me, better translated “It is my cry that is my spokesman.” 17.1–16: Job is confident that he is in the right, but he does not expect he will live to see his innocence vindicated. 1: He is

³“Lay down a pledge for me with yourself;
who is there that will give surety for
me?”

⁴Since you have closed their minds to
understanding,
therefore you will not let them triumph.

⁵Those who denounce friends for reward—
the eyes of their children will fail.

⁶“He has made me a byword of the
peoples,
and I am one before whom people spit.

⁷My eye has grown dim from grief,
and all my members are like a shadow.

⁸The upright are appalled at this,
and the innocent stir themselves up against the godless.

⁹Yet the righteous hold to their way,
and they that have clean hands grow stronger and stronger.

¹⁰But you, come back now, all of you,
and I shall not find a sensible person
among you.

¹¹My days are past, my plans are broken
off,
the desires of my heart.

¹²They make night into day;
“The light,” they say, “is near to the darkness.”^a

¹³If I look for Sheol as my house,
if I spread my couch in darkness,

¹⁴if I say to the Pit, “You are my father,”
and to the worm, “My mother,” or “My sister,”

¹⁵where then is my hope?
Who will see my hope?

¹⁶Will it go down to the bars of Sheol?

Shall we descend together into the dust?”

18 Then Bildad the Shuhite answered:
²“How long will you hunt for words?
Consider, and then we shall speak.

³Why are we counted as cattle?

Why are we stupid in your sight?

⁴You who tear yourself in your anger—shall the earth be forsaken because of
you,
or the rock be removed out of its place?

⁵“Surely the light of the wicked is put out,
and the flame of their fire does not shine.

⁶The light is dark in their tent,
and the lamp above them is put out.

⁷Their strong steps are shortened,
and their own schemes throw them
down.

⁸For they are thrust into a net by their own feet,
and they walk into a pitfall.

⁹A trap seizes them by the heel;
a snare lays hold of them.

¹⁰A rope is hid for them in the ground,
a trap for them in the path.

¹¹Terrors frighten them on every side,
and chase them at their heels.

¹²Their strength is consumed by hunger,^b and calamity is ready for their stumbling.

¹³By disease their skin is consumed,^c

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Or Disaster is hungry for them

^c Cn: Heb It consumes the limbs of his skin

not literally at death's door (cf. 16:22) but psychologically he is already in the grip of death. 3: Since no one will guarantee his innocence, he must ask God to accept his own person as his pledge. 8–9: Job adopts the point of view of the friends. 11–16: Job falls again into despair, not a despair that robs him of his belief in his own innocence; but a despair that he can ever be shown to be innocent. 13–14: The Pit, another term for Sheol. Job has lost his family and can only expect to join the family of worms in the underworld.

18.1–21: Bildad's second speech. After an opening address to Job (vv. 2–4), this speech contains nothing but a description of the fate of the wicked. This is probably not Bildad's prediction of Job's future but a description of the kind of fate that does not await him (as in his first speech, Bildad does not think Job one of the wicked). Yet he does see in Job, who is fighting a battle between doctrine and experience, someone who is tearing himself to pieces. And he finds Job's demand for a new theology deeply disturbing: shall . . . the rock be removed out of its place? (v. 4). 5–21: Eliphaz's picture of the fate of the wicked in ch 15 focused on how they experience terror and insecurity all their life; but Bildad concentrates on the final days of the wicked, describing how they are trapped by death (vv. 8–10), torn from their dwellings (v. 14), and brought before the lord of the underworld (v.

the firstborn of Death consumes their limbs.

¹⁴They are torn from the tent in which they trusted, and are brought to the king of terrors.

¹⁵In their tents nothing remains; sulfur is scattered upon their habitations.

¹⁶Their roots dry up beneath, and their branches wither above.

¹⁷Their memory perishes from the earth, and they have no name in the street.

¹⁸They are thrust from light into darkness, and driven out of the world.

¹⁹They have no offspring or descendant among their people, and no survivor where they used to live.

²⁰They of the west are appalled at their fate, and horror seizes those of the east.

²¹Surely such are the dwellings of the ungodly, such is the place of those who do not know God.”

19 Then Job answered:

²“How long will you torment me, and break me in pieces with words?

³These ten times you have cast reproach upon me; are you not ashamed to wrong me?

⁴And even if it is true that I have erred, my error remains with me.

⁵If indeed you magnify yourselves against me, and make my humiliation an argument against me,

⁶know then that God has put me in the wrong,

and closed his net around me.

⁷Even when I cry out, ‘Violence!’ I am not answered;

I call aloud, but there is no justice.

⁸He has walled up my way so that I cannot pass,

and he has set darkness upon my paths.

⁹He has stripped my glory from me, and taken the crown from my head.

¹⁰He breaks me down on every side, and I am gone,

he has uprooted my hope like a tree.

¹¹He has kindled his wrath against me, and counts me as his adversary.

¹²His troops come on together; they have thrown up siegeworks^a against me, and encamp around my tent.

¹³“He has put my family far from me, and my acquaintances are wholly estranged from me.

¹⁴My relatives and my close friends have failed me;

¹⁵the guests in my house have forgotten me;

my serving girls count me as a stranger; I have become an alien in their eyes.

¹⁶I call to my servant, but he gives me no answer;

I must myself plead with him.

¹⁷My breath is repulsive to my wife; I am loathsome to my own family.

¹⁸Even young children despise me;

^a Cn: Heb their way

14). 13–14: Death was represented in ancient mythology as a king ruling over the underworld; Death’s firstborn will be one of his offspring, such as disease, and the terrors are his agents who drag people from life down into his kingdom.

19.1–29: Job’s sixth speech. In this speech there is an address to the friends at beginning, middle, and end (vv. 2–6, 21–22, 28–29). Between these addresses there is a complaint (vv. 7–20) and an expression of wish, knowledge, and desire (vv. 23–27). 2–6: Job begins to recognize the friends as his enemies. 3: Ten times, i.e., many times. 4: Job does not admit to any sin. But if he had sinned, it would not have been a sin against the friends; so it is unfair of them to attack him. 7–12: To depict the wrongs God has done him, Job deploys a range of images of assault (cf. 16.9, 12–14): he is like a townsman who has been robbed (v. 7), a traveler who finds his path blocked and nightfall overtaking him (v. 8), a prince humiliated by a foreign ruler (v. 9), a tree pulled out of the ground (v. 10), a person who finds his friend has become his enemy (v. 11), a city besieged by enemies (v. 12). 13–20: Here is the literal truth of what Job is experiencing, as distinct from the feelings his experience provoked when I rise, they talk against me.

¹⁹All my intimate friends abhor me,
 and those whom I loved have turned against me.
²⁰My bones cling to my skin and to my flesh,
 and I have escaped by the skin of my teeth.
²¹Have pity on me, have pity on me, O you
 my friends,
 for the hand of God has touched me!
²²Why do you, like God, pursue me,
 never satisfied with my flesh?
²³“O that my words were written down!
 O that they were inscribed in a book!
²⁴O that with an iron pen and with lead
 they were engraved on a rock forever!
²⁵For I know that my Redeemer^a lives,
 and that at the last he^b will stand upon the earth;^c ²⁶and after my skin has been thus
 destroyed,
 then in^d my flesh I shall see God,^e ²⁷whom I shall see on my side,^f and my eyes shall behold, and not another.
 My heart faints within me!
²⁸If you say, ‘How we will persecute him!’
 and, ‘The root of the matter is found in
 him’;
²⁹be afraid of the sword,
 for wrath brings the punishment of the
 sword,

so that you may know there is a judgment.”

20 Then Zophar the Naamathite answered:

²“Pay attention! My thoughts urge me to answer,
 because of the agitation within me.
³I hear censure that insults me,
 and a spirit beyond my understanding answers me.
⁴Do you not know this from of old,
 ever since mortals were placed on
 earth,
⁵that the exulting of the wicked is short,
 and the joy of the godless is but for a moment?
⁶Even though they mount up high as the
 heavens,
 and their head reaches to the clouds, ⁷they will perish forever like their own dung;
 those who have seen them will say,
 ‘Where are they?’
⁸They will fly away like a dream, and not be found;

^a Or Vindicator

^b Or that he the Last

^c Heb dust

^d Or without

^e Meaning of Heb of this verse uncertain

^f Or for myself

in vv. 7–12. He is isolated and alienated, because his suffering is understood as punishment for sin. 20: Normally bones are the body’s framework, and the flesh and skin cling to them; Job feels so weak that it seems his bones need support. Escaped by the skin of my teeth, or rather, with the skin of my teeth, means that Job feels he has been flayed alive, his skin being stripped from every part of his body except his teeth, which of course have no skin. 21: Have pity on me, i.e., stop persecuting me. 23–27: If his words, his claim to innocence, could be chiseled in stone in an inscription (not a book, v. 23), God would eventually rise last (rather than at the last, v. 25) in the court case to deliver his verdict that would clear Job, even after his death (v. 26a). Nevertheless, what Job really desires is to see his name cleared while he is still alive (v. 26b should probably be translated “Yet, to behold God while still in my flesh—that is my desire, to see him with my own eyes”). 25: The word Redeemer or Vindicator should not be capitalized, since the kinsman or champion (as the Heb “go’el” means) is not God (God is his enemy). The only champion Job has is his own innocence, which he has spoken of in 16.18–21 as his witness, his advocate (“he that vouches for me”), and his spokesman. 28–29: Job turns to the friends again. They say the root of the matter is found in him, i.e., he is the author of his own misfortunes; he says they should be afraid of the sword, since they have accused him unjustly, and that is a crime.

20.1–29: Zophar’s second speech. It is mostly devoted to the theme of the doom of the wicked. But unlike Eliphaz (ch 15), for whom the fate of the wicked is a picture of what Job is not, or Bildad (ch 18), for whom it is a picture of what Job may become, for Zophar it is a picture of what Job will not avoid unless he changes radically.

they will be chased away like a vision of the night.
 9 The eye that saw them will see them no more,
 nor will their place behold them any longer.
 10 Their children will seek the favor of the poor,
 and their hands will give back their wealth.
 11 Their bodies, once full of youth,
 will lie down in the dust with them.
 12 “Though wickedness is sweet in their mouth,
 though they hide it under their tongues, 13 though they are loath to let it go,
 and hold it in their mouths,
 14 yet their food is turned in their stomachs;
 it is the venom of asps within them.
 15 They swallow down riches and vomit them up again;
 God casts them out of their bellies.
 16 They will suck the poison of asps;
 the tongue of a viper will kill them.
 17 They will not look on the rivers,
 the streams flowing with honey and curds.
 18 They will give back the fruit of their toil,
 and will not swallow it down;
 from the profit of their trading
 they will get no enjoyment.
 19 For they have crushed and abandoned the poor, they have seized a house that they did not build.
 20 “They knew no quiet in their bellies;
 in their greed they let nothing escape.
 21 There was nothing left after they had eaten;
 therefore their prosperity will not endure.
 22 In full sufficiency they will be in distress;

all the force of misery will come upon them.
 23 To fill their belly to the full God^a will send his fierce anger into them,
 and rain it upon them as their food.^b 24 They will flee from an iron weapon;
 a bronze arrow will strike them through.
 25 It is drawn forth and comes out of their body,
 and the glittering point comes out of their gall;
 terrors come upon them.
 26 Utter darkness is laid up for their treasures;
 a fire fanned by no one will devour them;
 what is left in their tent will be consumed.
 27 The heavens will reveal their iniquity,
 and the earth will rise up against them.
 28 The possessions of their house will be carried away, dragged off in the day of God’s^c wrath.
 29 This is the portion of the wicked from God,
 the heritage decreed for them by God.”

21 Then Job answered:
 2 “Listen carefully to my words,
 and let this be your consolation.
 3 Bear with me, and I will speak;
 then after I have spoken, mock on.
 4 As for me, is my complaint addressed to mortals?
 Why should I not be impatient?
 5 Look at me, and be appalled,
 and lay your hand upon your mouth.
 6 When I think of it I am dismayed,

^a Heb he

^b Cn: Meaning of Heb uncertain

^c Heb his

4–11: The key image here is the disappearance of the wicked. 12–23: The key image here is eating: nothing the wicked eat brings them lasting benefit. 24–29: A nightmarish collection of images (weapons, law court, fire, flood) of how inescapable is the final doom of the wicked.

21.1–27.23: Third cycle of speeches.

21.1–34: Job’s seventh speech. Job denies the friends’ belief that the wicked do not prosper but come to an early grave. 6–16: The wicked prosper; why is that so? Within three verses Job contradicts Zophar (v. 7; cf. 20.11),

- and shuddering seizes my flesh.
- ⁷Why do the wicked live on,
reach old age, and grow mighty in power?
- ⁸Their children are established in their
presence,
and their offspring before their eyes.
- ⁹Their houses are safe from fear,
and no rod of God is upon them.
- ¹⁰Their bull breeds without fail;
their cow calves and never miscarries.
- ¹¹They send out their little ones like a flock,
and their children dance around.
- ¹²They sing to the tambourine and the
lyre,
and rejoice to the sound of the pipe.
- ¹³They spend their days in prosperity,
and in peace they go down to Sheol.
- ¹⁴They say to God, ‘Leave us alone!
We do not desire to know your ways.
- ¹⁵What is the Almighty,^a that we should serve him?
And what profit do we get if we pray to
him?’
- ¹⁶Is not their prosperity indeed their own achievement?^b
The plans of the wicked are repugnant
to me.
- ¹⁷“How often is the lamp of the wicked put
out?
How often does calamity come upon
them?
How often does God^c distribute pains in his anger?
- ¹⁸How often are they like straw before the
wind,
and like chaff that the storm carries away?
- ¹⁹You say, ‘God stores up their iniquity for their children.’
- Let it be paid back to them, so that they may know it.
- ²⁰Let their own eyes see their destruction,
and let them drink of the wrath of the Almighty.^a
- ²¹For what do they care for their household after them,
when the number of their months is
cut off?
- ²²Will any teach God knowledge, seeing that he judges those that are on high?
- ²³One dies in full prosperity,
being wholly at ease and secure, ²⁴his loins full of milk
and the marrow of his bones moist.
- ²⁵Another dies in bitterness of soul,
never having tasted of good.
- ²⁶They lie down alike in the dust,
and the worms cover them.
- ²⁷“Oh, I know your thoughts,
and your schemes to wrong me.
- ²⁸For you say, ‘Where is the house of the prince?
Where is the tent in which the wicked lived?’
- ²⁹Have you not asked those who travel the roads,
and do you not accept their testimony, ³⁰that the wicked are spared in the day of calamity,
and are rescued in the day of wrath?
- ³¹Who declares their way to their face,
and who repays them for what they have done?
- ^a Traditional rendering of Heb Shaddai
^b Heb in their hand
^c Heb he

Bildad (v. 8; cf. 18.19), and Eliphaz (v. 9; cf. 5.24). 13: Sheol, the abode of the dead. 17–21: Only rarely do the wicked suffer. If the friends say, Well, their children suffer (v. 19), Job replies: Retribution should strike the people who deserve it! 17: Job challenges the notion that the wicked do not live long (cf. 18.5; Prov 13.9; 24.20). 18: Job disputes the axiom that the wicked are straw before the wind (cf. Ps 35.5) or like chaff that the storm carries away (cf. Ps 1.4). 19–21: You say is not in the Hebrew; alternatively, the sentence may be translated, “Is God storing up punishment for their children?” 22–26: Being good or bad makes no difference; the same fate happens to all. 27–34: I know your thoughts, the friends have been thinking: the wicked suffer, Job is suffering, therefore Job belongs with the wicked. But the wicked do not suffer, says Job; ask any traveler, who will tell tales of famous wicked persons who are spared retribution (v. 30), are never denounced (v. 31), and whose tombs are watched over to protect them from grave robbers (v. 32).

³²When they are carried to the grave,
a watch is kept over their tomb.

³³The clods of the valley are sweet to
them;
everyone will follow after,
and those who went before are innumerable.

³⁴How then will you comfort me with empty nothings?
There is nothing left of your answers
but falsehood.”

22 Then Eliphaz the Temanite answered:
²“Can a mortal be of use to God?
Can even the wisest be of service to
him?

³Is it any pleasure to the Almighty^a if you are righteous,
or is it gain to him if you make your ways blameless?

⁴Is it for your piety that he reproves you,
and enters into judgment with you?

⁵Is not your wickedness great?
There is no end to your iniquities.

⁶For you have exacted pledges from your family for no reason,
and stripped the naked of their clothing.

⁷You have given no water to the weary to drink,
and you have withheld bread from the hungry.

⁸The powerful possess the land,
and the favored live in it.

⁹You have sent widows away empty-handed,
and the arms of the orphans you have crushed.^b

¹⁰Therefore snares are around you,
and sudden terror overwhelms you,

¹¹or darkness so that you cannot see;
a flood of water covers you.

¹²“Is not God high in the heavens?
See the highest stars, how lofty they are!

¹³Therefore you say, ‘What does God
know?
Can he judge through the deep
darkness?’

¹⁴Thick clouds enwrap him, so that he does not see,
and he walks on the dome of heaven.’

¹⁵Will you keep to the old way that the wicked have trod?

¹⁶They were snatched away before their time;
their foundation was washed away by a flood.

¹⁷They said to God, ‘Leave us alone,’
and ‘What can the Almighty^a do to us?’^c

¹⁸Yet he filled their houses with good things—

but the plans of the wicked are repugnant to me.

¹⁹The righteous see it and are glad;
the innocent laugh them to scorn,

²⁰saying, ‘Surely our adversaries are cut
off,
and what they left, the fire has
consumed.’

²¹“Agree with God,^d and be at peace;
in this way good will come to you.

²²Receive instruction from his
mouth,
and lay up his words in your heart.

^a Traditional rendering of Heb Shaddai

^b Gk Syr Tg Vg: Heb were crushed

^c Gk Syr: Heb them

^d Heb him

22.1–30: Eliphaz’s third speech. 2–11: As in his first speech (chs 4–5), Eliphaz believes that Job will be delivered because of the cleanness of your hands (v. 30). Surprisingly, however, he here apparently accuses Job of untold wickedness (v. 5), mainly social injustice (vv. 6–9). But he cannot believe that Job has actually exacted pledges . . . for no reason, and stripped the naked of their clothing (v. 6), withheld water and bread, i.e., food, from the hungry (v. 7), and rejected the pleas of widows and orphans (v. 9). He must mean that, since Job is suffering for some cause, and since the cause cannot be found in any wrong that Job has done, his sin must lie in what he has failed to do. 12–20: God can see Job’s secret sins; they are sins of omission. 21–30: How Job can be delivered. The speech ends on an uplifting note: Job has only to return to God (v. 23), pray and fulfil his vows (v. 27); then

²³ If you return to the Almighty,^a you will be restored,
if you remove unrighteousness from your tents,

²⁴ if you treat gold like dust,
and gold of Ophir like the stones of the torrent-bed,

²⁵ and if the Almighty^a is your gold
and your precious silver,

²⁶ then you will delight yourself in the Almighty,^a and lift up your face to God.

²⁷ You will pray to him, and he will hear you,
and you will pay your vows.

²⁸ You will decide on a matter, and it will be established for you,
and light will shine on your ways.

²⁹ When others are humiliated, you say it is pride;
for he saves the humble.

³⁰ He will deliver even those who are guilty;
they will escape because of the cleanness of your hands.”^b

⁶ Would he contend with me in the greatness of his power?

No; but he would give heed to me.

⁷ There an upright person could reason with him,
and I should be acquitted forever by my judge.

⁸ “If I go forward, he is not there;
or backward, I cannot perceive him;

⁹ on the left he hides, and I cannot behold him;

I turn^e to the right, but I cannot see him.

¹⁰ But he knows the way that I take;
when he has tested me, I shall come out like gold.

¹¹ My foot has held fast to his steps;
I have kept his way and have not turned aside.

¹² I have not departed from the commandment of his lips;
I have treasured in^f my bosom the words of his mouth.

¹³ But he stands alone and who can dissuade him?

23 Then Job answered:
² “Today also my complaint is bitter;^c
his^d hand is heavy despite my groaning.

³ Oh, that I knew where I might find him,
that I might come even to his dwelling!

⁴ I would lay my case before him,
and fill my mouth with arguments.

⁵ I would learn what he would answer me,
and understand what he would say to me.

^a Traditional rendering of Heb Shaddai

^b Meaning of Heb uncertain

^c Syr Vg Tg: Heb rebellious

^d Gk Syr: Heb my

^e Syr Vg: Heb he turns

^f Gk Vg: Heb from everything he does will prosper (v. 28). Cf. Zophar’s advice in 11:13–20. 24: There is a pun involving the words for gold (Heb “batser”) and like the stones (Heb “betsur”) and the words dust (Heb “‘apar”) and Ophir (Heb “‘opir”). Ophir was an Arabian city famous for its high-quality gold (Gen 10.29; 1 Kings 9.28; 1 Chr 29.4).

23.1–24.25: Job’s eighth speech. This speech is a soliloquy, addressed neither to the friends nor to God. In ch 23 Job is concerned mainly with himself and his sense of how inaccessible God is to him. In ch 24 his concern is with others, especially the innocent poor, who seem to be neglected by God. If he could gain access to God, he would be vindicated; but he despairs of ever receiving such vindication, since God plainly does not hold regular times for judgment when wrongs are righted (24.1). 23.3–17: Oh, that I knew where I might find him . . . ! God is plainly not entering into the lawsuit that Job desires (cf. 19.26), so Job must search him out. But his quest is a failure (vv. 8–9). God is not acting fairly or legally; what he desires, that he does (v. 13), and that is only to harm Job. 4–7: When Job first imagined a lawsuit with God (9.3–4), he immediately recognized that he could not succeed. But the more he considers the idea, the more it becomes a reality. In a later speech, even though he has no hope of success (13.15), he craves to enter into dispute with him (13.3). In his next speech he announces that he already has a “witness” stationed in heaven, his “cry” that is his spokesman (16.19–20). Still later, he expresses his conviction that his case will be heard, even if after his death (19.27). Now he believes that he would get justice from God if only he could locate him. 8–9: Forward, backward, left, and right designate the four cardinal

What he desires, that he does.

- ¹⁴For he will complete what he appoints for me; and many such things are in his mind.
¹⁵Therefore I am terrified at his presence; when I consider, I am in dread of him.
¹⁶God has made my heart faint; the Almighty^a has terrified me;
¹⁷If only I could vanish in darkness, and thick darkness would cover my face!^b

24 “Why are times not kept by the Almighty,^a and why do those who know him never see his days?

- ²The wicked^c remove landmarks; they seize flocks and pasture them.
³They drive away the donkey of the orphan; they take the widow’s ox for a pledge.
⁴They thrust the needy off the road; the poor of the earth all hide themselves.
⁵Like wild asses in the desert they go out to their toil, scavenging in the wasteland food for their young.
⁶They reap in a field not their own and they glean in the vineyard of the wicked.
⁷They lie all night naked, without clothing, and have no covering in the cold.
⁸They are wet with the rain of the mountains, and cling to the rock for want of shelter.

- ⁹“There are those who snatch the orphan child from the breast, and take as a pledge the infant of the poor.

- ¹⁰They go about naked, without clothing; though hungry, they carry the sheaves;
¹¹between their terraces^d they press out oil; they tread the wine presses, but suffer thirst.
¹²From the city the dying groan, and the throat of the wounded cries for help; yet God pays no attention to their prayer.

¹³“There are those who rebel against the light, who are not acquainted with its ways, and do not stay in its paths.

- ¹⁴The murderer rises at dusk to kill the poor and needy, and in the night is like a thief.
¹⁵The eye of the adulterer also waits for the twilight, saying, ‘No eye will see me’; and he disguises his face.
¹⁶In the dark they dig through houses; by day they shut themselves up; they do not know the light.
¹⁷For deep darkness is morning to all of them; for they are friends with the terrors of deep darkness.
¹⁸“Swift are they on the face of the waters; their portion in the land is cursed;

^a Traditional rendering of Heb Shaddai

^b Or But I am not destroyed by the darkness; he has concealed the thick darkness from me

^c Gk: Heb they

^d Meaning of Heb uncertain

directions: east, west, south, and north. 24.1–25: Why does God not hold regular assize days, i.e., judicial proceedings (times, v. 1), during which the injustices in the world’s government could be cleared up? 2–12: Why is the injustice of the suffering of the innocent poor allowed to go on for so long? God pays no attention to their prayer (v. 12). 2: Landmarks, i.e., boundary stones; removing a neighbor’s landmarks in order to increase the size of one’s own property is prohibited (cf. Deut 9.14; 27.17; Prov 22.28; 23.10; Hos 5.10). 3: The orphan, i.e., the fatherless, and the widow are examples of the poor and underprivileged. Those pictured here are not as poor as the homeless daylaborers of vv. 5–6. 6: Glean, those who owned fields and vineyards were supposed to leave some produce for the poor to gather (Lev 19.9–10; 23.22; Deut 24.1; Ruth 2.1–10). 9: Children could be taken as slaves until parents paid debts to creditors (2 Kings 4.1–7; Neh 5.1–5). 10–11: See v.6n. 13–17: Why is the injustice of the successful evildoer allowed to continue? Three typical rebels against the light (v. 13)—the murderer, the adulterer, and the thief—are allowed to live, though their friends are the terrors of deep darkness (v. 17) and they no treader turns toward their vineyards.

 19 Drought and heat snatch away the snow waters;
 so does Sheol those who have sinned.
 20 The womb forgets them;
 the worm finds them sweet;
 they are no longer remembered;
 so wickedness is broken like a tree.

21 “They harm^a the childless woman,
 and do no good to the widow.
 22 Yet God^b prolongs the life of the mighty
 by his power;
 they rise up when they despair of life.
 23 He gives them security, and they are supported;
 his eyes are upon their ways.
 24 They are exalted a little while, and then
 are gone;
 they wither and fade like the mallow;^c
 they are cut off like the heads of grain.
 25 If it is not so, who will prove me a liar,
 and show that there is nothing in what I say?”

25 Then Bildad the Shuhite answered:
 2 “Dominion and fear are with God;^d
 he makes peace in his high heaven.
 3 Is there any number to his armies?
 Upon whom does his light not arise?
 4 How then can a mortal be righteous before God?
 How can one born of woman be pure?
 5 If even the moon is not bright and the stars are not pure in his
 sight,

6 how much less a mortal, who is a maggot,
 and a human being, who is a worm!”

26 Then Job answered:
 2 “How you have helped one who has no power!
 How you have assisted the arm that has no strength!
 3 How you have counseled one who has no
 wisdom,
 and given much good advice!
 4 With whose help have you uttered words, and whose spirit has come forth from
 you?
 5 The shades below tremble,
 the waters and their inhabitants.
 6 Sheol is naked before God,
 and Abaddon has no covering.
 7 He stretches out Zaphon^e over the void,
 and hangs the earth upon nothing.
 8 He binds up the waters in his thick
 clouds,
 and the cloud is not torn open by them.
 9 He covers the face of the full moon,
 and spreads over it his cloud.
 10 He has described a circle on the face of
 the waters,

^a Gk Tg: Heb feed on or associate with

^b Heb he

^c Gk: Heb like all others

^d Heb him

^e Or the North

should by rights be with them in the underworld. 18–25: These verses about the early death of the wicked are so unlike Job’s views that they must be either a quotation by Job of the friends (rsv adds “You say” at the beginning of v. 16), or, possibly part of the missing third speech of Zophar. See also 27.7–10n.

25.1–26.14: Bildad’s third speech. As it stands, Bildad’s speech is uncommonly short (25.2–6) but although 26.1–14 is now assigned to Job, it was probably originally part of Bildad’s speech. Such a rearrangement would help remove the problem of having three speeches of Job in a row (chaps. 26, 27–28, 29–31) without any intervening words from the friends. The theme of Bildad’s speech would then be the power of God, in three spheres: in the heavens (25.2–6), in the underworld (26.5–6), and in creation (26.7–13). The speech is an address to Job (cf. 25.4,6; 26.14), belittling him (26.2–4), denying his claim to innocence (25.2–6), and putting him in his place by focusing exclusively on God’s untrammled power (26.5–14). 25.2–3: He makes peace in his high heaven, probably an allusion to God’s defeat at creation of the powers of chaos (cf. 9.13; 26.11–13; Isa 51.9). Peace through terror is God’s style, according to Bildad. 26.5: Shades, i.e., the inhabitants of the underworld. 6: Abaddon (meaning “destruction”), another name for Sheol, the abode of the dead. 7: At creation, God stretched out the heavens (here called Zaphon, “the north”) like a tent without a center pole and suspended the earth from nothing. 8: The clouds are conceived as waterskins (cf. 38.37). 10: The circle on the face of the waters appears to be both the

at the boundary between light and darkness.

- ¹¹The pillars of heaven tremble,
and are astounded at his rebuke.
¹²By his power he stilled the Sea;
by his understanding he struck down Rahab.
¹³By his wind the heavens were made fair;
his hand pierced the fleeing serpent.
¹⁴These are indeed but the outskirts of his ways;
and how small a whisper do we hear of
him!
But the thunder of his power who can understand?"

27 Job again took up his discourse and said:

- ²"As God lives, who has taken away my
right,
and the Almighty,^a who has made my soul bitter,
³as long as my breath is in me
and the spirit of God is in my nostrils, ⁴my lips will not speak falsehood,
and my tongue will not utter deceit.
⁵Far be it from me to say that you are right;
until I die I will not put away my integrity from me.
⁶I hold fast my righteousness, and will not let it go;

my heart does not reproach me for any of my days.

- ⁷"May my enemy be like the wicked,
and may my opponent be like the unrighteous.
⁸For what is the hope of the godless when God cuts them off,
when God takes away their lives?
⁹Will God hear their cry
when trouble comes upon them?
¹⁰Will they take delight in the Almighty?^a
Will they call upon God at all times?
¹¹I will teach you concerning the hand of God;
that which is with the Almighty^a I will not conceal.
¹²All of you have seen it yourselves;
why then have you become altogether
vain?
¹³"This is the portion of the wicked with God,
and the heritage that oppressors receive from the Almighty:^a ¹⁴If their children are multiplied, it is for
the sword;

^a Traditional rendering of Heb Shaddai

horizon where the sky meets the earth and the boundary between day and night. 11: The pillars of heaven are envisaged as supporting the solid canopy of heaven; they are the same as the "foundations of the heavens" (2 Sam 22.8). 12: The depiction is still of the creation of the world, when according to some biblical myths God waged a battle against a monster known as Sea or Rahab (cf. 9.13n.; Ps 89.11; Isa 51.9). 13: The fleeing serpent is another of God's primordial enemies, called Leviathan in 3.8 and Isa 27.1. 14: These visible and reputed proofs of God's greatness are but the outskirts of his ways, and convey only a faint whisper of the thunder of his actual power. Humans cannot hope to comprehend the real God, but can catch only a glimpse of him.

27.1–6,11–12: Job's ninth speech. Although chs 27–28 are traditionally ascribed to Job, some of their contents seem more natural in the mouths of other speakers. Chs 27.7–10,11–23 should probably be assigned to Zophar (who otherwise does not have a third speech), and ch 28 may well be the conclusion of Elihu's speeches displaced from this point (see notes on 32.1–37.24), although many think it is an independent poem, not spoken by any of the characters in the book of Job. 1–6: Job's speech here is short and to the point: for the first time, he swears an oath to his innocence. 2: Job swears by the life of God—a bold move, for to do so is effectively a curse upon God if the oath is not true. 5: If he were to accept the friends' reproaches, he would be denying what he knows to be true about himself. 11–12: Job himself, not the stories of the slaying of the dragon at creation, is the best testimony to the power of God and to his intentions.

27.7–10,13–17; 24.18–24; 27.18–23: Zophar's third speech. The remainder of ch 27 is similar to Zophar's second speech in ch 20, except that here the focus is on the fact of the destiny of the wicked, whereas there it had been on the behavior that marks them out as wicked. He does not mean that Job is one of the wicked; rather, he paints this picture of their destiny to frighten Job into amendment of life so as to avoid the fate of the wicked.

and their offspring have not enough to eat.
¹⁵ Those who survive them the pestilence buries,
 and their widows make no lamentation.
¹⁶ Though they heap up silver like dust,
 and pile up clothing like clay—¹⁷ they may pile it up, but the just will wear it, and the innocent will divide the silver.
¹⁸ They build their houses like nests,
 like booths made by sentinels of the vineyard.
¹⁹ They go to bed with wealth, but will do so no more;
 they open their eyes, and it is gone.
²⁰ Terrors overtake them like a flood;
 in the night a whirlwind carries them off.
²¹ The east wind lifts them up and they are gone;
 it sweeps them out of their place.
²² It^a hurls at them without pity;
 they flee from its^b power in headlong flight.
²³ It^a claps its^b hands at them,
 and hisses at them from its^b place.

28 “Surely there is a mine for silver,
 and a place for gold to be refined.

² Iron is taken out of the earth,
 and copper is smelted from ore.
³ Miners put^c an end to darkness, and search out to the farthest bound
 the ore in gloom and deep darkness.

⁴ They open shafts in a valley away from human habitation;
 they are forgotten by travelers,
 they sway suspended, remote from people.
⁵ As for the earth, out of it comes bread;
 but underneath it is turned up as by fire.
⁶ Its stones are the place of sapphires,^d
 and its dust contains gold.
⁷ “That path no bird of prey knows,
 and the falcon’s eye has not seen it.
⁸ The proud wild animals have not trodden it;
 the lion has not passed over it.
⁹ “They put their hand to the flinty rock,
 and overturn mountains by the roots.
¹⁰ They cut out channels in the rocks,
 and their eyes see every precious thing.
¹¹ The sources of the rivers they probe;^e hidden things they bring to light.
¹² “But where shall wisdom be found?
 And where is the place of understanding?

^a Or He (that is God)

^b Or his

^c Heb He puts

^d Or lapis lazuli

^e Gk Vg: Heb bind

Ironically, much of the fate of the wicked has already befallen Job. 27:18: Nests and booths are fragile, temporary structures. 21: The east wind is the sirocco, the hot, violent wind that blew down the house of Job’s children (1.19).

28.1–28: A poem on wisdom, or conclusion of Elihu’s speeches. Although as it stands ch 28 is part of a speech of Job, it is hard to see why Job, who is focused on the question of justice, should be interested in the issue of how wisdom is to be acquired. Most scholars therefore regard the chapter as an independent poem, not spoken by any of the characters in the book of Job, which has found its way into it. Alternatively, its theme of the desirability of wisdom might be seen as most suitable in the mouth of Elihu (and its final sentence is very like 37.24, the final sentence of Elihu’s other speeches). Quite possibly, the speeches of Elihu, now in chs 32–37, originally preceded this poem in ch 28. 1–11: The poem begins, in the fashion of a riddle, with a topic far different from the actual subject of the poem, which is the acquisition of wisdom. The opening topic is that of mining minerals, its theme being the extreme efforts humans will go to in order to acquire things that are precious. In remote places (forgotten by travelers, v. 4) miners dig shafts where they dangle from ropes (sway suspended). Their lamps put an end to darkness underground (v. 3). Their tunnels are a path no bird of prey knows

¹³ Mortals do not know the way to it,^a
and it is not found in the land of the living.
¹⁴ The deep says, 'It is not in me,'
and the sea says, 'It is not with me.'
¹⁵ It cannot be gotten for gold, and silver cannot be weighed out as its price.
¹⁶ It cannot be valued in the gold of Ophir,
in precious onyx or sapphire.^b ¹⁷ Gold and glass cannot equal it, nor can it be exchanged for jewels of fine gold.
¹⁸ No mention shall be made of coral or of crystal;
the price of wisdom is above pearls.
¹⁹ The chrysolite of Ethiopia^c cannot compare with it,
nor can it be valued in pure gold.
²⁰ "Where then does wisdom come from?
And where is the place of
understanding?
²¹ It is hidden from the eyes of all living,
and concealed from the birds of the air.
²² Abaddon and Death say,
'We have heard a rumor of it with our
ears.'

²³ "God understands the way to it,
and he knows its place.
²⁴ For he looks to the ends of the earth,
and sees everything under the heavens.
²⁵ When he gave to the wind its weight, and apportioned out the waters by measure;

²⁶ when he made a decree for the rain,
and a way for the thunderbolt;
²⁷ then he saw it and declared it;
he established it, and searched it out.
²⁸ And he said to humankind,
'Truly, the fear of the Lord, that is wisdom;
and to depart from evil is
understanding.'"

29 Job again took up his discourse and said:

² "O that I were as in the months of old,
as in the days when God watched over
me;
³ when his lamp shone over my head,
and by his light I walked through
darkness;
⁴ when I was in my prime,
when the friendship of God was upon my tent;
⁵ when the Almighty^d was still with me,
when my children were around me;
⁶ when my steps were washed with milk,
and the rock poured out for me streams
of oil!

^a Gk: Heb its price

^b Or lapis lazuli

^c Or Nubia; Heb Cush

^d Traditional rendering of Heb Shaddai

(v. 7). 12: Wisdom is even more desirable, but harder to get at than the precious metals. 13–19: Wisdom is apparently impossible to find or to buy (but see v. 28!). 14: The Deep and the Sea are, unusually, personified, as ancient powers that might know the location of valuable objects like wisdom. 15–19: Even if it could be found, wisdom could not be bought, being more valuable than the most expensive items, gold, silver, precious stones, and glass. 16: Ophir, known as a source of gold; see 22.24n. 17: Glass in pre-Roman times was as expensive as precious stones; it was used in jewelry and inlays. 20–27: Wisdom is apparently inaccessible to humans, its place being known only to God (v. 23), who determined its nature at creation (vv. 24–27). 20–22: Abaddon and Death, see 26.6n. 28: Surprisingly, it turns out, although wisdom is desirable and precious, and cannot be found in any place or bought for any price, there is no secret about its essence. It consists of the fear of the Lord, i.e., the emotion of fear in the presence of God, and of shunning evil—that is, a proper attitude both to religion and to ethics. It is the attitude of Job in 1.1.

29.1–31.40: Job's tenth speech. The speech consists of three sections: in the first Job surveys, in nostalgic mood, his happy former life (ch 29); in the second he portrays, in pathetic mood, his present isolation and degradation (ch 30); in the third, he utters, in defiant mood, a series of self-curses that climax with a desperate appeal to be heard and vindicated (ch 31). The presence of the friends is ignored completely, and, except for 30.20–23, God is not addressed: the focus is entirely on Job's own experience. 29.2–25: Job wishes he were still living his former life. 2–6: A picture of his domestic bliss, realistic description mingling with metaphors like my

⁷When I went out to the gate of the city,
 when I took my seat in the square, ⁸the young men saw me and withdrew,
 and the aged rose up and stood;
⁹the nobles refrained from talking,
 and laid their hands on their mouths;
¹⁰the voices of princes were hushed,
 and their tongues stuck to the roof of their mouths.
¹¹When the ear heard, it commended me,
 and when the eye saw, it approved;
¹²because I delivered the poor who cried,
 and the orphan who had no helper.
¹³The blessing of the wretched came upon
 me,
 and I caused the widow's heart to sing
 for joy.
¹⁴I put on righteousness, and it clothed
 me;
 my justice was like a robe and a turban.
¹⁵I was eyes to the blind,
 and feet to the lame.
¹⁶I was a father to the needy, and I championed the cause of the stranger.
¹⁷I broke the fangs of the unrighteous, and made them drop their prey from their teeth.
¹⁸Then I thought, 'I shall die in my nest, and I shall multiply my days like the phoenix;^a ¹⁹my roots spread out to the waters,
 with the dew all night on my branches;
²⁰my glory was fresh with me,
 and my bow ever new in my hand.'

²¹"They listened to me, and waited,
 and kept silence for my counsel.

²²After I spoke they did not speak again,

and my word dropped upon them like dew.^b

²³They waited for me as for the rain;
 they opened their mouths as for the spring rain.

²⁴I smiled on them when they had no confidence;
 and the light of my countenance they did not extinguish.^c

²⁵I chose their way, and sat as chief,
 and I lived like a king among his troops,
 like one who comforts mourners.

30 "But now they make sport of me,
 those who are younger than I,
 whose fathers I would have disdained
 to set with the dogs of my flock.

²What could I gain from the strength of their hands?

All their vigor is gone.

³Through want and hard hunger
 they gnaw the dry and desolate ground,

⁴they pick mallow and the leaves of bushes,

and to warm themselves the roots of broom.

⁵They are driven out from society;
 people shout after them as after a thief.

⁶In the gullies of wadis they must live,
 in holes in the ground, and in the rocks.

⁷Among the bushes they bray;
 under the nettles they huddle together.

⁸A senseless, disreputable brood,
 they have been whipped out of the land.

^a Or like sand

^b Heb lacks like dew

^c Meaning of Heb uncertain

steps were washed with milk (v. 6), signifying a superabundance of wealth. 7–25: A picture of his social worth, its principal ingredient being the honor accorded by his fellow citizens. 7: The town square at the gate of the city was the place where men would transact business and settle matters of law (cf. Ruth 4.1–12). 8: Young men saw me and withdrew as a mark of deference. 12–17: Job remembers his main role as protector of the underprivileged: the poor, orphans, the dying, widows, the blind, the lame, strangers. 14: Righteousness adorned him, bringing him honor as a costly garment would. 17: Enemies of the underprivileged, the unrighteous, are pictured as wild animals. 18: Phoenix, a mythical bird that lives for 500 years or more and thought to be reborn from its ashes. 25: Job claims to have held an almost royal status. 30.1–31: Job depicts his present situation—his dishonor (vv. 1–15) and his inner suffering (vv. 16–23)—and concludes with an address to God (vv. 20–23), and a lament (vv. 24–31). 1: The young men who despise him are scorned as low-born. Contrast Job's words in 24.1–12. 2–8: Their fathers are imagined by Job as without honor (disreputable, v. 8), excluded from ordinary society (v. 5) and living rough in the wild (v. 6), and with only leaves and roots to eat (v. 4). 4: Mallow, or "saltwort," a leafy plant eaten by the ⁹ “And now they mock me in song;

I am a byword to them.

¹⁰ They abhor me, they keep aloof from
me;
they do not hesitate to spit at the sight
of me.

¹¹ Because God has loosed my bowstring and humbled me,
they have cast off restraint in my
presence.

¹² On my right hand the rabble rise up;
they send me sprawling,
and build roads for my ruin.

¹³ They break up my path,
they promote my calamity;
no one restrains^a them.

¹⁴ As through a wide breach they come;
amid the crash they roll on.

¹⁵ Terrors are turned upon me;
my honor is pursued as by the wind,
and my prosperity has passed away like
a cloud.

¹⁶ “And now my soul is poured out within
me;
days of affliction have taken hold of me.

¹⁷ The night racks my bones,
and the pain that gnaws me takes no rest.

¹⁸ With violence he seizes my garment;^b
he grasps me by^c the collar of my tunic.

¹⁹ He has cast me into the mire,
and I have become like dust and ashes.

²⁰ I cry to you and you do not answer me;
I stand, and you merely look at me.

²¹ You have turned cruel to me;
with the might of your hand you
persecute me.

²² You lift me up on the wind, you make me ride on it,
and you toss me about in the roar of the storm.

²³ I know that you will bring me to death,
and to the house appointed for all
living.

²⁴ “Surely one does not turn against the needy,^d
when in disaster they cry for help.^e

²⁵ Did I not weep for those whose day was hard?

Was not my soul grieved for the poor?

²⁶ But when I looked for good, evil came;
and when I waited for light, darkness came.

²⁷ My inward parts are in turmoil, and are never still;
days of affliction come to meet me.

²⁸ I go about in sunless gloom;
I stand up in the assembly and cry for help.

²⁹ I am a brother of jackals,
and a companion of ostriches.

³⁰ My skin turns black and falls from me,
and my bones burn with heat.

³¹ My lyre is turned to mourning, and my pipe to the voice of those who weep.

31 “I have made a covenant with my eyes;
how then could I look upon a virgin?

² What would be my portion from God
above,
and my heritage from the Almighty^f on
high?

^a Cn: Heb helps

^b Gk: Heb my garment is disfigured

^c Heb like

^d Heb ruin

^e Cn: Meaning of Heb uncertain

^f Traditional rendering of Heb Shaddai

very poor. Broom, the largest bush in the desert; its roots made good charcoal. 9–15: The same young men as in v. 1, who in happier days would have deferred to him (29.6), now scorn Job as a sinner suffering God’s punishment. 11–14: He depicts them as military enemies, attacking him like a besieged city (cf. 16.12–14; 19.12). 16–23: Worse even than his loss of honor is his sense that God has become his torturer, who intends his death (v. 23). 16: My soul is poured out within me, i.e., his life force is running away like liquid from a vessel. 24–31: Job’s misery is a compound of his loss of former dignity, inner turmoil, physical pain. He is in mourning for the loss of what he once had. 29: Job’s miserable cries are like those of jackals and ostriches, creatures that inhabit desolate places. 31.1–40: For the last time, Job summons God to a lawsuit, demanding he state what the charges against him are (v. 35). He imagines himself composing a document affirming his innocence, an oath of clearance, in the form of a curse upon himself that is meant to come into effect if he is lying. He declares his innocence against seven

³ Does not calamity befall the unrighteous,
and disaster the workers of iniquity?

⁴ Does he not see my ways,
and number all my steps?

⁵ “If I have walked with falsehood, and my foot has hurried to deceit—

⁶ let me be weighed in a just balance, and let God know my integrity!—

⁷ if my step has turned aside from the way,
and my heart has followed my eyes,
and if any spot has clung to my hands;

⁸ then let me sow, and another eat;
and let what grows for me be rooted
out.

⁹ “If my heart has been enticed by a woman,
and I have lain in wait at my neighbor’s
door;

¹⁰ then let my wife grind for another,
and let other men kneel over her.

¹¹ For that would be a heinous crime;
that would be a criminal offense;

¹² for that would be a fire consuming down
to Abaddon,
and it would burn to the root all my harvest.

¹³ “If I have rejected the cause of my male or female slaves,
when they brought a complaint against
me;

¹⁴ what then shall I do when God rises up?
When he makes inquiry, what shall I answer him?

¹⁵ Did not he who made me in the womb
make them?

And did not one fashion us in the
womb?

¹⁶ “If I have withheld anything that the poor desired,
or have caused the eyes of the widow
to fail,

¹⁷ or have eaten my morsel alone,
and the orphan has not eaten from it—

¹⁸ for from my youth I reared the orphan^a like a father,
and from my mother’s womb I guided the widow^b—

¹⁹ if I have seen anyone perish for lack of clothing,

or a poor person without covering, ²⁰ whose loins have not blessed me,
and who was not warmed with the fleece of my sheep;

²¹ if I have raised my hand against the
orphan,
because I saw I had supporters at the gate;

²² then let my shoulder blade fall from my shoulder,
and let my arm be broken from its socket.

²³ For I was in terror of calamity from God,
and I could not have faced his majesty.

²⁴ “If I have made gold my trust,
or called fine gold my confidence;

²⁵ if I have rejoiced because my wealth was great,

or because my hand had gotten much;
²⁶ if I have looked at the sun^c when it shone,

^a Heb him

^b Heb her

^c Heb the light

possible charges: deceit (vv. 5–8), adultery (vv. 9–12), disregard of servants (vv. 13–15), disregard of the poor (vv. 16–23), trust in wealth (vv. 24–28), rejoicing at the misfortune of others (vv. 29–34), and assault on the land (vv. 38–40b). 1: He has kept himself so far from sexual misconduct that he has even forbidden his desires. 9–10: In Job’s world, a man’s adultery with a married woman is an offense against the woman’s husband, so the punishment he would deserve is to suffer the multiple adultery of other men with his wife after she had become a prostitute. The verb kneel has a sexual overtone. 12: Abaddon, the abode of the dead (see 26.6n). 13–15: Job goes far beyond the obligations of his time in admitting that slaves have any rights and in affirming their common humanity with him. 16–23: Job’s humanitarian deeds are implicitly a rebuttal of Eliphaz’s claims (24.6–9). Cf. 29.12–17. 21: At the gate, see 29.7n. 24–28: Confidence in one’s wealth and the devotion paid to heavenly bodies or the moon moving in splendor, ²⁷ and my heart has been secretly enticed,

 and my mouth has kissed my hand;
²⁸ this also would be an iniquity to be punished by the judges,
 for I should have been false to God
 above.

²⁹ “If I have rejoiced at the ruin of those who hated me,
 or exulted when evil overtook them—
³⁰ I have not let my mouth sin
 by asking for their lives with a curse—
³¹ if those of my tent ever said, ‘O that we might be sated with his flesh!’^a—³² the stranger has not lodged in the street;
 I have opened my doors to the traveler—
³³ if I have concealed my transgressions as others do,^b
 by hiding my iniquity in my bosom, ³⁴ because I stood in great fear of the multitude,
 and the contempt of families terrified
 me,
 so that I kept silence, and did not go out of doors—
³⁵ O that I had one to hear me!
 (Here is my signature! Let the Almighty^c answer me!)
 O that I had the indictment written by my adversary!

³⁶ Surely I would carry it on my shoulder;
 I would bind it on me like a crown;
³⁷ I would give him an account of all my
 steps;
 like a prince I would approach him.

³⁸ “If my land has cried out against me,
 and its furrows have wept together;
³⁹ if I have eaten its yield without payment,
 and caused the death of its owners;
⁴⁰ let thorns grow instead of wheat,
 and foul weeds instead of barley.”

The words of Job are ended.

32 So these three men ceased to answer Job, because he was righteous in his own eyes. ² Then Elihu son of Barachel the Buzite, of the family of Ram, became angry. He was angry at Job because he justified himself rather than God; ³ he was angry also at Job's three friends because they had found no answer, though they had declared Job to be in the wrong.^d ⁴ Now Elihu had waited to speak to Job, because they were older than he. ⁵ But when Elihu saw that there was no answer in the mouths of these three men, he became angry.

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Or as Adam did

^c Traditional rendering of Heb Shaddai

^d Another ancient tradition reads answer, and had put God in the wrong

are two forms of false worship. ²⁷: My mouth has kissed my hand, to throw a kiss as a gesture of worship. ³¹: O that we might be sated with his flesh!, or better, “O that there were someone not yet satisfied with his meat!” There is no chance of finding anyone who has not benefited from Job's hospitality. ^{35–37}: These verses are the climax to the speech, and it is strange that they are not at the end; perhaps vv. 38–40 have been misplaced and should follow v. 34. ³⁵: One to hear me, i.e., God. ³⁶: Job would be proud to display the sheet of charges God has against him, for it would be blank (or else filled with falsehoods).

32.1–37.24: Elihu's speeches. Many scholars think that the Elihu speeches (chs. 32–37) are a later addition to the book, partly because Elihu is not mentioned in the prologue or epilogue. It may be, however, that the Elihu speeches originally followed directly after the last of the friends' third speeches, i.e., after chap. 27, and that chap. 28 was the last of Elihu's speeches. This rearrangement would make better sense of the phrase these three men in 32.1, and it would also mean that the LORD addresses Job immediately after Job's last speech (chaps. 29–31) is concluded. In any case, the Elihu speeches are part of the book we now have, and Elihu has a distinctive contribution to make to its argument. Elihu, who professes himself opposed both to Job and to his friends (32.2–3,10–12; 33.1–12) is offering a middle way between them. Against the friends, he argues that suffering is not necessarily the penalty for sin already committed, but may be a warning, to keep a person back from sin; it is better understood as discipline or education.

32.1–33.33: Elihu's first speech. 32.6–14: Elihu has hitherto deferred to the other friends on account of their greater age, but he realizes that all humans have an equal access to wisdom, since all have in them the breath of the Almighty (v. 8; cf. Gen 2.7). He feels he must speak because the friends have not answered Job adequately (vv.

⁶ Elihu son of Barachel the Buzite answered:

“I am young in years,
and you are aged;

therefore I was timid and afraid to declare my opinion to you.

⁷ I said, ‘Let days speak,
and many years teach wisdom.’

⁸ But truly it is the spirit in a mortal,
the breath of the Almighty,^a that makes for understanding.

⁹ It is not the old^b that are wise, nor the aged that understand what is
right.

¹⁰ Therefore I say, ‘Listen to me;
let me also declare my opinion.’

¹¹ “See, I waited for your words,
I listened for your wise sayings,
while you searched out what to say.

¹² I gave you my attention, but there was in fact no one that confuted Job,
no one among you that answered his
words.

¹³ Yet do not say, ‘We have found wisdom;
God may vanquish him, not a human.’

¹⁴ He has not directed his words against
me,
and I will not answer him with your speeches.

¹⁵ “They are dismayed, they answer no
more;
they have not a word to say.

¹⁶ And am I to wait, because they do not speak,
because they stand there, and answer
no more?

¹⁷ I also will give my answer;
I also will declare my opinion.

¹⁸ For I am full of words;
the spirit within me constrains me.

¹⁹ My heart is indeed like wine that has no
vent;

like new wineskins, it is ready to burst.

²⁰ I must speak, so that I may find relief;
I must open my lips and answer.

²¹ I will not show partiality to any person or use flattery toward anyone.

²² For I do not know how to flatter—or my Maker would soon put an end to
me!

33 “But now, hear my speech, O Job,
and listen to all my words.

² See, I open my mouth;
the tongue in my mouth speaks.

³ My words declare the uprightness of my heart,
and what my lips know they speak
sincerely.

⁴ The spirit of God has made me,
and the breath of the Almighty^a gives me life.

⁵ Answer me, if you can;
set your words in order before me; take your stand.

⁶ See, before God I am as you are;
I too was formed from a piece of clay.

⁷ No fear of me need terrify you;
my pressure will not be heavy on you.

⁸ “Surely, you have spoken in my hearing, and I have heard the sound of your
words.

⁹ You say, ‘I am clean, without
transgression;
I am pure, and there is no iniquity in
me.

¹⁰ Look, he finds occasions against me,
he counts me as his enemy;

¹¹ he puts my feet in the stocks,
and watches all my paths.’

^a Traditional rendering of Heb Shaddai

^b Gk Syr Vg: Heb many

11–14): 7: I said, i.e., to myself. 9: It is not the old that are wise, he must mean that it is not always the old who have wisdom. 15: From here to the end of ch 33 Elihu addresses Job, referring to the friends as “they.” 17–22: Elihu’s third reason for speaking is that he feels he will explode with frustration if he does not. 19: It is not his heart but his “belly” that is like a wineskin that the new fermenting wine will burst if it is not vented. 33.1–7: Elihu challenges Job to prepare for debate. 8–33: Job believes, says Elihu, that he is faultless (v. 9), that God’s treatment of him is pure malice (vv. 10–11), and that God refuses to answer his complaints of injustice (v. 13). Elihu’s response is that God has various ways of speaking to humans, e.g., dreams (vv. 15–17) and suffering (vv. 19–28). In both ¹² “But in this you are not right. I will answer you:

 God is greater than any mortal.
¹³ Why do you contend against him, saying, ‘He will answer none of my^a words’?
¹⁴ For God speaks in one way, and in two, though people do not perceive it.
¹⁵ In a dream, in a vision of the night, when deep sleep falls on mortals, while they slumber on their beds,
¹⁶ then he opens their ears, and terrifies them with warnings, ¹⁷ that he may turn them aside from their deeds,
 and keep them from pride,
¹⁸ to spare their souls from the Pit, their lives from traversing the River.
¹⁹ They are also chastened with pain upon their beds,
 and with continual strife in their bones,
²⁰ so that their lives loathe bread, and their appetites dainty food.
²¹ Their flesh is so wasted away that it cannot be seen;
 and their bones, once invisible, now stick out.
²² Their souls draw near the Pit, and their lives to those who bring death.
²³ Then, if there should be for one of them an angel, a mediator, one of a thousand, one who declares a person upright, ²⁴ and he is gracious to that person, and says,
 ‘Deliver him from going down into the Pit;
 I have found a ransom;

²⁵ let his flesh become fresh with youth; let him return to the days of his youthful vigor’;
²⁶ then he prays to God, and is accepted by him,
 he comes into his presence with joy, and God^b repays him for his righteousness.
²⁷ That person sings to others and says, ‘I sinned, and perverted what was right, and it was not paid back to me.
²⁸ He has redeemed my soul from going down to the Pit, and my life shall see the light.’
²⁹ “God indeed does all these things, twice, three times, with mortals, ³⁰ to bring back their souls from the Pit, so that they may see the light of life.^c ³¹ Pay heed, Job, listen to me; be silent, and I will speak.
³² If you have anything to say, answer me; speak, for I desire to justify you.
³³ If not, listen to me; be silent, and I will teach you wisdom.”

34 Then Elihu continued and said:
² “Hear my words, you wise men, and give ear to me, you who know;
³ for the ear tests words as the palate tastes food.
⁴ Let us choose what is right; let us determine among ourselves what is good.
⁵ For Job has said, ‘I am innocent, and God has taken away my right;

^a Compare Gk: Heb his

^b Heb he

^c Syr: Heb to be lighted with the light of life

cases, God’s purpose is not to punish but to rescue humans from their sin (vv. 29–30). 18: The Pit, another term for Sheol, the abode of the dead. The River, the underworld stream the dead must cross before they reach Sheol, like the Greek river Styx. 23: An angel, a mediator, one of a thousand, probably “the thousand” were a group of supportive angels (unlike the accusatory angel the Satan), who would take up the cause of humans in the divine court (cf. 5.1, where Eliphaz denies that Job can expect any help from such angels). 24: Ransom is usually money paid to release a guilty person from punishment, but here some unspecified ground for forgiveness. 32: Elihu’s ultimate purpose, to justify Job, is like that of the supportive angels.

34.1–37: Elihu’s second speech. In vv. 2–15 Elihu addresses the friends, in vv. 16–37 Job. God, he argues, cannot do wrong by failing to execute retribution; but Job is doing wrong by claiming that God has acted unjustly toward him. All of Elihu’s criticism of Job concerns Job’s speeches; he does not hold against him anything he may have said or done before the book opened. His focus is not on what Job deserves but on the infamy of his

⁶in spite of being right I am counted a liar;
my wound is incurable, though I am without transgression.’

⁷Who is there like Job,
who drinks up scoffing like water,

⁸who goes in company with evildoers
and walks with the wicked?

⁹For he has said, ‘It profits one nothing to take delight in God.’

¹⁰“Therefore, hear me, you who have sense,
far be it from God that he should do
wickedness,
and from the Almighty^a that he should do wrong.

¹¹For according to their deeds he will repay
them,
and according to their ways he will make it befall them.

¹²Of a truth, God will not do wickedly, and the Almighty^a will not pervert justice.

¹³Who gave him charge over the earth and who laid on him^b the whole world?

¹⁴If he should take back his spirit^c to himself,

and gather to himself his breath,

¹⁵all flesh would perish together,
and all mortals return to dust.

¹⁶“If you have understanding, hear this;
listen to what I say.

¹⁷Shall one who hates justice govern?
Will you condemn one who is righteous
and mighty,

¹⁸who says to a king, ‘You scoundrel!’
and to princes, ‘You wicked men!’;

¹⁹who shows no partiality to nobles,
nor regards the rich more than the poor,
for they are all the work of his hands?

²⁰In a moment they die;
at midnight the people are shaken and
pass away,
and the mighty are taken away by no
human hand.

²¹“For his eyes are upon the ways of
mortals,
and he sees all their steps.

²²There is no gloom or deep darkness
where evildoers may hide themselves.

²³For he has not appointed a time^d for anyone
to go before God in judgment.

²⁴He shatters the mighty without investigation,
and sets others in their place.

²⁵Thus, knowing their works,
he overturns them in the night, and they are crushed.

²⁶He strikes them for their wickedness while others look on,

²⁷because they turned aside from following him,

and had no regard for any of his ways, ²⁸so that they caused the cry of the poor to come to him,

and he heard the cry of the afflicted—

²⁹When he is quiet, who can condemn?
When he hides his face, who can behold
him,

whether it be a nation or an individual?—

^a Traditional rendering of Heb Shaddai

^b Heb lacks on him

^c Heb his heart his spirit

^d Cn: Heb yet

complaints against God. 7: Scoffing is blasphemy against God, which is how Elihu regards Job’s criticism of God. 8: Goes in company with evildoers, metaphorically, by questioning the divine justice, Job puts himself in bad company. 9: According to Job in 21.15, it is the wicked who say that there is no profit in religion, but Elihu asserts that Job’s words, such as those in 9.22 and 21.7, amount to the same thing. Yet if Job were to say that religion is indeed profitable, he would deny that his piety is disinterested and he would accept the calumny of the Satan! 10–15: God acts justly, for the righteous remain alive; if he did not, they might well be dead, for he has only to gather to himself his breath and mortals die. 16–37: Turning to Job, Elihu makes the same argument: God, as the universal ruler, cannot act wrongly, and Job’s suggestion that he can is itself a wickedness. 21: Although Elihu speaks of mortals generally, his concern is purely with rulers. 24–28: Elihu does not refer to all rulers, only to those who have behaved unjustly.

³⁰ so that the godless should not reign,
or those who ensnare the people.

³¹ “For has anyone said to God,
‘I have endured punishment; I will not offend any more;

³² teach me what I do not see;
if I have done iniquity, I will do it no
more?’

³³ Will he then pay back to suit you, because you reject it?

For you must choose, and not I;
therefore declare what you know.^a

³⁴ Those who have sense will say to me,
and the wise who hear me will say,

³⁵ ‘Job speaks without knowledge,
his words are without insight.’

³⁶ Would that Job were tried to the limit, because his answers are those of the
wicked.

³⁷ For he adds rebellion to his sin;
he claps his hands among us,
and multiplies his words against God.”

35 Elihu continued and said:
² “Do you think this to be just?
You say, ‘I am in the right before God.’
³ If you ask, ‘What advantage have I?
How am I better off than if I had sinned?’
⁴ I will answer you and your friends with you.
⁵ Look at the heavens and see;
observe the clouds, which are higher than you.
⁶ If you have sinned, what do you accomplish against him?
And if your transgressions are multiplied, what do you do to him?
⁷ If you are righteous, what do you give to
him;
or what does he receive from your
hand?

⁸ Your wickedness affects others like you, and your righteousness, other human beings.

⁹ “Because of the multitude of oppressions people cry out;
they call for help because of the arm of
the mighty.

¹⁰ But no one says, ‘Where is God my Maker,
who gives strength in the night,

¹¹ who teaches us more than the animals of
the earth,
and makes us wiser than the birds of the air?’

¹² There they cry out, but he does not
answer,
because of the pride of evildoers.

¹³ Surely God does not hear an empty cry,
nor does the Almighty^b regard it.

¹⁴ How much less when you say that you do not see him,
that the case is before him, and you are waiting for him!

¹⁵ And now, because his anger does not punish,
and he does not greatly heed
transgression,^c

¹⁶ Job opens his mouth in empty talk, he multiplies words without
knowledge.”

36 Elihu continued and said:
² “Bear with me a little, and I will show
you,

^a Meaning of Heb of verses 29-33 uncertain

^b Traditional rendering of Heb Shaddai

^c Theodotion Symmachus Compare Vg: Meaning of Heb uncertain

35.1-16: Elihu's third speech. 2-8: Elihu takes up Job's complaints, that he is no better off than if he had sinned (v. 3b), and that there is no benefit in righteousness (v. 3a). Elihu responds that piety should be assessed in terms of benefit, and that justice is not a matter of one's own rights and deserts, but of others benefiting from one's virtue. 6: Reminiscent of Job in 7.20; but whereas Job meant that any sin he may have done is hardly worth retribution since he himself will soon be dead, Elihu means that the important thing is the effect of sin or righteousness upon humans rather than upon God. 9-16: The absence of a response from God does not mean that God cares nothing about humans, as Job claimed (24.12). God responds to the cries of the oppressed only if they deserve justice, for being oppressed is no proof of innocence, and crying out in pain is not the same as crying to God for deliverance.

- for I have yet something to say on God's behalf.
- ³ I will bring my knowledge from far away, and ascribe righteousness to my Maker.
- ⁴ For truly my words are not false; one who is perfect in knowledge is with you.
- ⁵ "Surely God is mighty and does not despise any; he is mighty in strength of understanding.
- ⁶ He does not keep the wicked alive, but gives the afflicted their right.
- ⁷ He does not withdraw his eyes from the righteous, but with kings on the throne he sets them forever, and they are exalted.
- ⁸ And if they are bound in fetters and caught in the cords of affliction,
- ⁹ then he declares to them their work and their transgressions, that they are behaving arrogantly.
- ¹⁰ He opens their ears to instruction, and commands that they return from iniquity.
- ¹¹ If they listen, and serve him, they complete their days in prosperity, and their years in pleasantness.
- ¹² But if they do not listen, they shall perish by the sword, and die without knowledge.
- ¹³ "The godless in heart cherish anger; they do not cry for help when he binds them.
- ¹⁴ They die in their youth, and their life ends in shame.^a
- ¹⁵ He delivers the afflicted by their affliction, and opens their ear by adversity.
- ¹⁶ He also allured you out of distress into a broad place where there was no constraint, and what was set on your table was full of fatness.
- ¹⁷ "But you are obsessed with the case of the wicked; judgment and justice seize you.
- ¹⁸ Beware that wrath does not entice you into scoffing, and do not let the greatness of the ransom turn you aside.
- ¹⁹ Will your cry avail to keep you from distress, or will all the force of your strength?
- ²⁰ Do not long for the night, when peoples are cut off in their place.
- ²¹ Beware! Do not turn to iniquity; because of that you have been tried by affliction.
- ²² See, God is exalted in his power; who is a teacher like him?
- ²³ Who has prescribed for him his way, or who can say, 'You have done wrong'?
- ²⁴ "Remember to extol his work, of which mortals have sung.
- ²⁵ All people have looked on it; everyone watches it from far away.
- ²⁶ Surely God is great, and we do not know him; the number of his years is unsearchable.
- ²⁷ For he draws up the drops of water; he distills^b his mist in rain,
- ²⁸ which the skies pour down and drop upon mortals abundantly.
- ²⁹ Can anyone understand the spreading of the clouds,
- ^a Heb ends among the temple prostitutes
- ^b Cn: Heb they distill

36.1–37.24: Elihu's fourth speech. It has two parts: 36.2–25, continuing the theme of the justice of God, and 36.26–37.24, an instruction on the theme of the God of nature, its subtext being that God's energies in creation and world governance are vehicles of his righteous judgments. 36.5–15: The topic is how God treats those righteous people who fall into sin (vv. 7–12,15) in comparison with how he treats the truly wicked (vv. 6,14). By allowing that the righteous are sometimes sinful, Elihu transcends the traditional dogma that drew a firm line between righteous and wicked. 16–25: Now Elihu offers his personal advice to Job. Finding himself subject to God's punishment, what he should do is not to complain about the injustice of it, but to discover in it God's instruction. 36.26–37.24: Suffering is education, says Elihu, and God is the great Teacher. He has built into the order of creation lessons for the improvement of humans. Rain, for example, is a means of exhibiting divine the thunderings of his pavilion?

³⁰ See, he scatters his lightning around him
and covers the roots of the sea.

³¹ For by these he governs peoples;
he gives food in abundance.

³² He covers his hands with the lightning,
and commands it to strike the mark.

³³ Its crashing^a tells about him;
he is jealous^a with anger against
iniquity.

37 “At this also my heart trembles,
and leaps out of its place.

² Listen, listen to the thunder of his voice and the rumbling that comes from his
mouth.

³ Under the whole heaven he lets it loose, and his lightning to the corners of the
earth.

⁴ After it his voice roars;
he thunders with his majestic voice and he does not restrain the lightnings^b
when his voice is heard.

⁵ God thunders wondrously with his voice;
he does great things that we cannot comprehend.

⁶ For to the snow he says, ‘Fall on the
earth’;
and the shower of rain, his heavy shower of rain,

⁷ serves as a sign on everyone’s hand,
so that all whom he has made may know it.^c

⁸ Then the animals go into their lairs
and remain in their dens.

⁹ From its chamber comes the whirlwind,
and cold from the scattering winds.

¹⁰ By the breath of God ice is given,
and the broad waters are frozen fast.

¹¹ He loads the thick cloud with moisture;
the clouds scatter his lightning.

¹² They turn round and round by his guidance,
to accomplish all that he commands
them

on the face of the habitable world.

¹³ Whether for correction, or for his land,
or for love, he causes it to happen.

¹⁴ “Hear this, O Job;
stop and consider the wondrous works
of God.

¹⁵ Do you know how God lays his command
upon them,
and causes the lightning of his cloud to shine?

¹⁶ Do you know the balancings of the clouds,
the wondrous works of the one whose knowledge is perfect,

¹⁷ you whose garments are hot when the earth is still because of the south wind?

¹⁸ Can you, like him, spread out the skies,
hard as a molten mirror?

¹⁹ Teach us what we shall say to him;
we cannot draw up our case because of
darkness.

²⁰ Should he be told that I want to speak?
Did anyone ever wish to be swallowed up?

²¹ Now, no one can look on the light
when it is bright in the skies,
when the wind has passed and cleared
them.

²² Out of the north comes golden splendor;
around God is awesome majesty.

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Heb them

^c Meaning of Heb of verse 7 uncertain munificence toward humans. 29: Pavilion, God’s heavenly dwelling (cf. 2 Sam 22.12). 30: Covers the roots of the sea, the verb should rather mean “uncovers.” 32: It is here bolt lightning, as distinct from sheet lightning in v. 30. 36.33–37.5: Thunder and lightning are further examples of how God teaches humans. 37.6–8: The snows and rains of winter are both mysterious (v. 5b) and a further communication of the divine, “so that all may recognize that he is at work” (as v. 7b should probably be translated). 9–13: Other meteorological phenomena. 9: The winds are stored in heavenly chambers. Whirlwind, or rather “tempest” (a whirlwind is properly a tornado). 13: Rain can have various significances: it may be a punishment (a correction), a sign of God’s love (or rather, “loyalty”), or a token of his care for his world (as when it falls on uninhabited land; cf. 38.26). In any case, it tells humans something about God’s workings. 14–24: Some of the most obscure verses in the whole book. 22: The north sometimes means the heavens (as in 26.7), and the golden splendor may be simply the sun. For the ²³The Almighty^a—we cannot find him;

 he is great in power and justice,
 and abundant righteousness he will not violate.
²⁴Therefore mortals fear him;
 he does not regard any who are wise in their own conceit.”

¹⁰and prescribed bounds for it,
 and set bars and doors, ¹¹and said, “Thus far shall you come, and
 no farther,
 and here shall your proud waves be stopped?”

38 Then the LORD answered Job out of the whirlwind:

²“Who is this that darkens counsel by words without knowledge?

³Gird up your loins like a man,
 I will question you, and you shall declare to me.

⁴“Where were you when I laid the foundation of the earth?
 Tell me, if you have understanding.

⁵Who determined its measurements—
 surely you know!

Or who stretched the line upon it?

⁶On what were its bases sunk,
 or who laid its cornerstone

⁷when the morning stars sang together and all the heavenly beings^b shouted
 for joy?

⁸“Or who shut in the sea with doors
 when it burst out from the womb?—

⁹when I made the clouds its garment,
 and thick darkness its swaddling band,

¹²“Have you commanded the morning
 since your days began,
 and caused the dawn to know its place, ¹³so that it might take hold of the skirts of
 the earth,

and the wicked be shaken out of it?

¹⁴It is changed like clay under the seal,
 and it is dyed^c like a garment.

¹⁵Light is withheld from the wicked,
 and their uplifted arm is broken.

¹⁶“Have you entered into the springs of
 the sea,
 or walked in the recesses of the deep?

¹⁷Have the gates of death been revealed to
 you,

or have you seen the gates of deep
 darkness?

¹⁸Have you comprehended the expanse of
 the earth?

Declare, if you know all this.

^a Traditional rendering of Heb Shaddai

^b Heb sons of God

^c Cn: Heb and they stand forth possibility that the speeches of Elihu originally ended with the poem about wisdom, see 32.1–37.24n; 28.1–28n.

38.1–42.6: The LORD’s speeches and Job’s responses.

38.1–40.2: The LORD’s first speech. Between the proem in 38.2–3 and the peroration in 40.1–2, the speech is divided into two almost equal halves: 38.4–38 concerning the physical universe, and 38.39–39.30 concerning the world of animals. The divine speeches are notable for their silence over Job’s complaint of injustice, as if God means to say that administering justice is not part of his cosmic plan. 38.1: Whirlwind, better “storm,” see 37.9. 2: Counsel, or rather “the plan,” the set of divine principles according to which the creation is run. Job darkens, or “obscures,” them by focusing on his quest for justice, which is not included in the divine plan. 3: Gird up your loins like a man, as a warrior does in preparation for combat. Job had better understand that summoning God to trial will not lead to a calm, rational, orderly legal process. 4–38: In ten strophes, the LORD sketches his design, or plan, for the universe. 4–7: Creation is conceived as the erection of a building. For the creator as architect, see Prov 8.27–30. The earth was built on foundations (vv. 4–6; see Pss 78.69; 102.25; 104.5; Isa 48.13), and strict limits were set for the primeval waters of chaos (vv. 8–11; 26.10; Pss 104.9; 148.6). 5: The line, the measuring line for its foundations. 6: Cornerstone should properly be “capstone,” the last and topmost stone laid. Sinking the bases and laying the capstone mark the beginning and end of the work. 7: The stars are regarded as heavenly beings. 8–11: The separation of sea and land at creation. There is allusion to the ancient myth of a primordial divine struggle with the sea (cf. 7.12; 9.13), although the imagery uncharacteristically treats the sea as a newborn baby. 12–15: The daily renewal of creation as each day is created afresh. As in 24.13–17, it is assumed that the wicked prefer the cover of darkness for their activities. 16–18: The extent of the world, together with

- 19 “Where is the way to the dwelling of light,
and where is the place of darkness, 20 that you may take it to its territory and that you may discern the paths to its home?
21 Surely you know, for you were born then,
and the number of your days is great!
- 22 “Have you entered the storehouses of the snow,
or have you seen the storehouses of the hail,
23 which I have reserved for the time of
trouble,
for the day of battle and war?
24 What is the way to the place where the light is distributed,
or where the east wind is scattered upon the earth?
- 25 “Who has cut a channel for the torrents
of rain,
and a way for the thunderbolt, 26 to bring rain on a land where no one lives,
on the desert, which is empty of human life,
27 to satisfy the waste and desolate land,
and to make the ground put forth grass?
- 28 “Has the rain a father,
or who has begotten the drops of dew?
29 From whose womb did the ice come forth,
and who has given birth to the hoarfrost of heaven?
- 30 The waters become hard like stone,
and the face of the deep is frozen.
- 31 “Can you bind the chains of the Pleiades,
or loose the cords of Orion?
32 Can you lead forth the Mazzaroth in their season,
or can you guide the Bear with its
children?
33 Do you know the ordinances of the
heavens?
Can you establish their rule on the
earth?
- 34 “Can you lift up your voice to the
clouds,
so that a flood of waters may cover you?
35 Can you send forth lightnings, so that they may go
and say to you, ‘Here we are’?
36 Who has put wisdom in the inward parts,^a
or given understanding to the mind?^a 37 Who has the wisdom to number the clouds?
Or who can tilt the waterskins of the
heavens,
38 when the dust runs into a mass
and the clods cling together?
- 39 “Can you hunt the prey for the lion,
or satisfy the appetite of the young lions,

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

the underworld, death being regarded as a city with gates. 19–21: Light and darkness are thought of as dwelling in the same home, using it each day in turns. 22–24: Snow, hail, and heat are kept in heavenly storehouses. 24: It is probably “heat,” rather than light that is distributed over the earth, often by the hot, violent east wind or sirocco. 25–27: Rainstorms travel via an unseen channel through the air from the clouds to the earth. 28–30: Rain, dew, ice, hoarfrost are more placid forms of moisture than torrents (v. 25). 28: Has the rain a father? No, it has no mythological ancestry, it is not supernatural. 29: Ice is properly “rime” formed when water droplets in fog freeze, as on trees, as distinct from hoarfrost formed when water vapor settles, as on the ground. 31–33: The four constellations, the Pleiades, Orion, Mazzaroth (perhaps the Hyades), and the Bear (or better, Aldebaran), were all regarded as bringers of rain; see 9.9n. Binding and loosing would be interfering with their rain-making. 34–38: The clouds and lightning do not fall of their own accord, but in obedience to their master’s voice. 36: The verse should be translated: “Who gave the ibis its wisdom or endowed the rooster with its intelligence?” Both birds were regarded as foretellers of rain, which is depicted as stored in great jars (v. 37; not waterskins) in the clouds. 38.39–39.30: In seven strophes, nine animals are depicted. They are all undomesticated animals, which live independently of humans. 38.39–41: The lion and the raven—one huge, the other small—both need

⁴⁰ when they crouch in their dens, or lie in wait in their covert?

⁴¹ Who provides for the raven its prey,
when its young ones cry to God,
and wander about for lack of food?

39 “Do you know when the mountain goats give birth?
Do you observe the calving of the deer?

² Can you number the months that they fulfill,
and do you know the time when they give birth,

³ when they crouch to give birth to their offspring,
and are delivered of their young?

⁴ Their young ones become strong, they grow up in the open;
they go forth, and do not return to
them.

⁵ “Who has let the wild ass go free?
Who has loosed the bonds of the swift ass,

⁶ to which I have given the steppe for its home,
the salt land for its dwelling place?

⁷ It scorns the tumult of the city;
it does not hear the shouts of the driver.

⁸ It ranges the mountains as its pasture,
and it searches after every green thing.

⁹ “Is the wild ox willing to serve you?
Will it spend the night at your crib?

¹⁰ Can you tie it in the furrow with ropes,
or will it harrow the valleys after you?

¹¹ Will you depend on it because its strength is great,
and will you hand over your labor to it?

¹² Do you have faith in it that it will return,
and bring your grain to your threshing floor?^a

¹³ “The ostrich’s wings flap wildly, though its pinions lack plumage.^b

¹⁴ For it leaves its eggs to the earth, and lets them be warmed on the
ground,

¹⁵ forgetting that a foot may crush them,
and that a wild animal may trample
them.

¹⁶ It deals cruelly with its young, as if they were not its own;
though its labor should be in vain, yet it has no fear;

¹⁷ because God has made it forget wisdom,
and given it no share in understanding.

¹⁸ When it spreads its plumes aloft,^b it laughs at the horse and its rider.

¹⁹ “Do you give the horse its might?
Do you clothe its neck with mane?

²⁰ Do you make it leap like the locust?
Its majestic snorting is terrible.

²¹ It paws^c violently, exults mightily;
it goes out to meet the weapons.

²² It laughs at fear, and is not dismayed;
it does not turn back from the sword.

²³ Upon it rattle the quiver,
the flashing spear, and the javelin.

²⁴ With fierceness and rage it swallows the
ground;
it cannot stand still at the sound of the trumpet.

²⁵ When the trumpet sounds, it says ‘Aha!’
From a distance it smells the battle,
the thunder of the captains, and the shouting.

²⁶ “Is it by your wisdom that the hawk soars,
and spreads its wings toward the south?

²⁷ Is it at your command that the eagle mounts up

^a Heb your grain and your threshing floor

^b Meaning of Heb uncertain

^c Gk Syr Vg: Heb they dig

to hunt to feed their young. 39.1–4: Mountain goats or ibexes, unlike lions and ravens, are shy and elusive. 5–8: The wild ass or onager was famous for its independence and freedom, in contrast to its domesticated cousin the ass. 9–12: The wild ox or aurochs was a massive animal with long thick horns; it too is contrasted with its obedient and hard-working domesticated counterpart. 13–18: The ostrich is a paradoxical creature: it is a bird that cannot fly, and while reputedly foolish, it is clever enough to escape its predators. 19–25: The war horse is not exactly wild, but it has a will of its own and is not a servant of humans. 26–30: The hawk and the eagle are

and makes its nest on high?

²⁸ It lives on the rock and makes its home
in the fastness of the rocky crag.

²⁹ From there it spies the prey;
its eyes see it from far away.

³⁰ Its young ones suck up blood;
and where the slain are, there it is.”

40 And the LORD said to Job:
² “Shall a faultfinder contend with the Almighty?^a

Anyone who argues with God must respond.”

³ Then Job answered the LORD:

⁴ “See, I am of small account; what shall I answer you?

I lay my hand on my mouth.

⁵ I have spoken once, and I will not answer;
twice, but will proceed no further.”

⁶ Then the LORD answered Job out of the whirlwind:

⁷ “Gird up your loins like a man;
I will question you, and you declare to
me.

⁸ Will you even put me in the wrong?
Will you condemn me that you may be justified?

⁹ Have you an arm like God,
and can you thunder with a voice like his?

¹⁰ “Deck yourself with majesty and dignity;
clothe yourself with glory and splendor.

¹¹ Pour out the overflowings of your anger, and look on all who are proud, and abase them.

¹² Look on all who are proud, and bring them low;
tread down the wicked where they
stand.

¹³ Hide them all in the dust together;
bind their faces in the world below.^b

¹⁴ Then I will also acknowledge to you that your own right hand can give you victory.

¹⁵ “Look at Behemoth,
which I made just as I made you;
it eats grass like an ox.

¹⁶ Its strength is in its loins,
and its power in the muscles of its belly.

¹⁷ It makes its tail stiff like a cedar;
the sinews of its thighs are knit together.

¹⁸ Its bones are tubes of bronze,
its limbs like bars of iron.

¹⁹ “It is the first of the great acts of God—only its Maker can approach it with the sword.

²⁰ For the mountains yield food for it where all the wild animals play.

^a Traditional rendering of Heb Shaddai

^b Heb the hidden place

birds of prey. 26: The wisdom of the hawk is its instinct for its seasonal migration. 27: Eagle, probably vulture. 30: Vultures feed on the dead slain in battle. 40.1–2: Despite the didactic language of the divine speech, this challenge shows that the ruling metaphor is still that of the lawsuit, in which Job must now either concede the case or offer new arguments.

40.3–5: Job’s first response. Strikingly, Job does not capitulate; he says only that he will not repeat what he has already said. He defers his response until he speaks again in 42.2–6.

40.6–41.34: The LORD’s second speech. 40.7–14: God’s question Will you even put me in the wrong? (v. 8) means that he has correctly heard Job’s speeches as not merely a demand for personal vindication but as a far-reaching critique of God’s government of the world and as a demand for an alternative world order. God is obviously not going to change his world order, so his ironic response is: let Job re-order the world to his own taste by crushing the wicked (vv. 11–13); then he will have nothing to complain about. 15–24: Behemoth is an ambiguous figure. It is dangerous, and yet to try capturing it is so absurd that it is beyond being a danger. It is powerful but actually does little except sleep, eat, and procreate. Unlike the animals of the first divine speech, it is a beast without qualities. Yet it is God’s showpiece (v. 19a). Is it because it so well represents God’s freedom to refuse rules and rationality and principles of utility? Behemoth is literally the plural of the common Heb term for “animal.” Scholarly opinion is divided as to whether it is a primeval monster (v. 19) or is to be identified with

²¹ Under the lotus plants it lies, in the covert of the reeds and in the marsh.

²² The lotus trees cover it for shade;
the willows of the wadi surround it.

²³ Even if the river is turbulent, it is not frightened;
it is confident though Jordan rushes
against its mouth.

²⁴ Can one take it with hooks^a or pierce its nose with a snare?

41^b "Can you draw out Leviathan^c with a fishhook,
or press down its tongue with a cord?

² Can you put a rope in its nose,
or pierce its jaw with a hook?

³ Will it make many supplications to you?
Will it speak soft words to you?

⁴ Will it make a covenant with you to be taken as your servant forever?

⁵ Will you play with it as with a bird,
or will you put it on leash for your girls?

⁶ Will traders bargain over it?
Will they divide it up among the merchants?

⁷ Can you fill its skin with harpoons,
or its head with fishing spears?

⁸ Lay hands on it;
think of the battle; you will not do it
again!

⁹^d Any hope of capturing it^e will be disappointed;
were not even the gods^f overwhelmed
at the sight of it?

¹⁰ No one is so fierce as to dare to stir it up.
Who can stand before it?^g

¹¹ Who can confront it^g and be safe?^h
—under the whole heaven, who?ⁱ

¹² "I will not keep silence concerning its limbs,
or its mighty strength, or its splendid frame.

¹³ Who can strip off its outer garment?
Who can penetrate its double coat of mail?^j

¹⁴ Who can open the doors of its face?
There is terror all around its teeth.

¹⁵ Its back^k is made of shields in rows,
shut up closely as with a seal.

¹⁶ One is so near to another that no air can come between them.

¹⁷ They are joined one to another;
they clasp each other and cannot be separated.

¹⁸ Its sneezes flash forth light, and its eyes are like the eyelids of the dawn.

¹⁹ From its mouth go flaming torches;
sparks of fire leap out.

²⁰ Out of its nostrils comes smoke,
as from a boiling pot and burning rushes.

²¹ Its breath kindles coals,
and a flame comes out of its mouth.

²² In its neck abides strength,
and terror dances before it.

²³ The folds of its flesh cling together;
it is firmly cast and immovable.

²⁴ Its heart is as hard as stone,
as hard as the lower millstone.

²⁵ When it raises itself up the gods are afraid;
at the crashing they are beside
themselves.

²⁶ Though the sword reaches it, it does not avail,
nor does the spear, the dart, or the javelin.

^a Cn: Heb in his eyes

^b Ch 40.25 in Heb

^c Or the crocodile

^d Ch 41.1 in Heb

^e Heb of it

^f Cn Compare Symmachus Syr: Heb one is

^g Heb me

^h Gk: Heb that I shall repay

ⁱ Heb to me

^j Gk: Heb bridle

^k Cn Compare Gk Vg: Heb pride

the hippopotamus. It is otherwise not mentioned in the Hebrew Bible; see 2 Esd 6.49,51. 41.1–34: The depiction of Leviathan treats, first, the impossibility of capturing it (vv. 1–11), second, its physical characteristics (vv. 12–24), and third, the creature in motion (vv. 25–32). Unlike Behemoth, who was indolent and unthreatening, Leviathan is nothing but violence and turmoil. Leviathan is described in terms that evoke the crocodile; some ²⁷ It counts iron as straw, and bronze as rotten wood.

²⁸ The arrow cannot make it flee;
slingstones, for it, are turned to chaff.
²⁹ Clubs are counted as chaff;
it laughs at the rattle of javelins.
³⁰ Its underparts are like sharp potsherds;
it spreads itself like a threshing sledge
on the mire.
³¹ It makes the deep boil like a pot;
it makes the sea like a pot of ointment.
³² It leaves a shining wake behind it;
one would think the deep to be white-haired.
³³ On earth it has no equal,
a creature without fear.
³⁴ It surveys everything that is lofty;
it is king over all that are proud.”

42 Then Job answered the LORD:
² “I know that you can do all things, and that no purpose of yours can be thwarted.
³ “Who is this that hides counsel without
knowledge?
Therefore I have uttered what I did not understand,
things too wonderful for me, which I did not know.

⁴ “Hear, and I will speak;
I will question you, and you declare to
me.’
⁵ I had heard of you by the hearing of the ear,
but now my eye sees you;
⁶ therefore I despise myself,
and repent in dust and ashes.”

⁷ After the LORD had spoken these words to Job, the LORD said to Eliphaz the Temanite:
“My wrath is kindled against you and against your two friends; for you have not spoken of me what is right, as my servant Job has. ⁸ Now therefore take seven bulls and seven rams, and go to my servant Job, and offer up for yourselves a burnt offering; and my servant Job shall pray for you, for I will accept his prayer not to deal with you according to your folly; for you have not spoken of me what is right, as my servant Job has done.” ⁹ So Eliphaz the Temanite and Bildad the Shuhite and Zophar the Naamathite went and did what the LORD had told them; and the LORD accepted Job’s prayer.

¹⁰ And the LORD restored the fortunes of Job when he had prayed for his friends;
and the LORD gave Job twice as much as he had before. ¹¹ Then there came to him all his scholars understand it as the mythical chaos monster. (See 3.8n.) 34: As king of beasts, Leviathan is a source of pleasure and pride for its maker.

42.1–6: Job’s second response. Job abandons his lawsuit against God, but his charges have not been answered. He says: (1) I know that you can do all things (v. 2). He has always known that, but he means that he now recognizes that for God questions of justice are collapsed into the issue of his power. Job can only ever confront God’s power, a sphere where he will inevitably be a loser. (2) I have uttered . . . things too wonderful for me (v. 3), Job means that he now realizes that cosmic justice is a marvel beyond human comprehension, like the structure of the universe. Justice is not a principle or value to which God is subject. (3) Now that he has heard God for himself and his eye sees him (a metaphor for his experience of God), he “submits” and “accepts consolation.” I despise myself, no object of the verb is expressed, and the verb is probably not Heb “ma’as,” “despise,” but “masas,” “melt, be discouraged,” as in Josh 2.11 (REB rightly translates “I yield”). Repent, Job has never acknowledged any sin, so he cannot be repenting; the verb means rather “be comforted.” Job means he will now end his period of mourning (in dust and ashes) and resume his normal life.

42.7–17: Epilogue. The naïve narrative of the folktale world of the prologue resumes, as Job is vindicated in the eyes of his friends (vv. 7–9) and his extended family (vv. 10–17). 7: Surprisingly, the LORD is angry with the friends and their folly (v. 8), but says Job has spoken of me what is right. He must be referring to Job’s conclusion that God does not execute justice in the realm of humans, which the friends always denied but which God himself has effectively admitted in his speeches. 10–17: Job’s lost possessions are restored to him twice over—perhaps an acknowledgment that what he had lost at the beginning of the story had actually been stolen from him by God (cf. Ex 22.4, where a thief must pay double restitution). He acquires a new family to replace his dead children, and he is feted by his family and friends. The pious man Job once again becomes the wealthiest man in all the east; so is the doctrine of retribution—which the book of Job has seemed so concerned to refute—here brothers and sisters and all who had known him before, and they ate bread with him in his house; they showed him sympathy and comforted him for all the evil that the LORD had brought upon him; and each of them gave him a piece of money^a and a gold ring. ¹²The LORD blessed the latter days of Job more than his beginning; and he had fourteen thousand sheep, six thousand camels, a thousand yoke of oxen, and a thousand donkeys. ¹³He also had seven sons and three daughters. ¹⁴He named the first Jemimah, the second Keziah, and the third Keren-happuch. ¹⁵In all the land there were no women so beautiful as Job's daughters; and their father gave them an inheritance along with their brothers. ¹⁶After this Job lived one hundred and forty years, and saw his children, and his children's children, four generations. ¹⁷And Job died, old and full of days.

^a Heb a qesitah

affirmed? 11: Bread means "food." The piece of money is not a coin but a piece of silver of guaranteed weight. 14: Jemimah probably means "turtledove," Keziah "cassia" or cinnamon, Keren-happuch "antimony," a black eye-cosmetic, the three names invoking the three senses of hearing, taste, and sight. 15: Along with his sons, Job's daughters are given an inheritance, an unusual practice.

This page intentionally left blank

PSALMS

NAME, LOCATION IN CANON, AND NUMBERING

The word “Psalms” derives from the Greek name of the book, Psalmoi, which means songs played on a stringed instrument. This title reflects the musical character of the Psalms as hymns that were sung, accompanied by strings. The book’s name in Hebrew is Tehillim, “praises,” which reflects the religious character of the psalms.

In Jewish Bibles today the book of Psalms is the first book of the Writings, the third part of the canon. In Christian Bibles it is one of the poetical books, coming after the book of Job. In older manuscripts these books often occur in a slightly different order.

There have been two systems of numbering the psalms, one dependent on the Hebrew text and the other on the Greek Septuagint (LXX). The LXX counted Pss 9–10 and 114–115 as single poems and divided Pss 116 and 148 into two poems, resulting in a discrepancy of one from the Hebrew numbering of Pss 8–147; in the case of Pss 9–10 the LXX is clearly correct: they form a single acrostic (alphabetic) psalm. The Latin Vulgate and older Roman Catholic translations follow the Septuagint numbering; all modern translations follow the Hebrew numbering. There are also two systems of numbering psalm verses. The most common system, used by the NRSV and several other translations, assigns no verse number to the superscription or title, so that “v. 1” is always the first line of the psalm poem. The other system follows printed Hebrew Bibles in assigning a verse number to the superscription and thus often is one verse behind the NRSV verse number.

DATE AND AUTHORSHIP

The book of Psalms is an anthology, or more properly an anthology of anthologies, comprising several collections of hymns that were composed at various times and places in ancient Israel, mostly in the first half of the first millennium BCE. Although many are attributed to King David, and some to other individuals, scholars agree that few if any were actually written by them. Rather, their authors, like those of many of the books of the Hebrew Bible, are anonymous.

STRUCTURE AND SUPERSCRPTIONS

The book of Psalms is divided into five books, a deliberate parallel to the five books of the Torah or Pentateuch. Each of these five parts—Psalms 1–41; 42–72; 73–89; 90–106; 107–150—ends with a doxology or “word of praise.” Psalm 1 introduces this collection by explicitly mentioning “the law (Heb torah) of the LORD.” Psalm 150 serves as a megadoxology, concluding both the fifth part and the book of Psalms as a whole. In it “everything that breathes” praises the LORD in heaven and on earth, using a wide variety of musical instruments.

Both within the five parts, and sometimes ignoring that division, which occurred relatively late in the book’s formation, we find evidence of other collections. A note at the end of Ps 72 states “The prayers of David son of Jesse are ended,” but there follows another eighteen psalms attributed to David. Psalms 42–49; 84; 85; 87; and 88 are attributed to “the Korahites,” members of a priestly family whose ancestor was Korah. Psalms 50 and 73–83 are attributed to Asaph, one of Korah’s sons, and Ps 88 to Heman, another of his sons. Psalms 93–99, clustered together, share the theme of divine kingship. Each of Pss 120–134 is called “A Song of Ascents,” apparently another collection, perhaps sung by pilgrims as they made their way up to Jerusalem or into the Temple precincts. There are repetitions in the psalms as well (e.g., Ps 14 = Ps 53), further showing that the book in its final form is an anthology of collections, some of which contained the same texts.

Scholars have also identified another collection. Psalms 43–83 are called the “Elohistic Psalter,” because in these psalms there is a preference for the divine name “Elohim” (“God”) over “Yahweh” (“the LORD”), which is much more frequent in the other psalms.

Many of the psalms have superscriptions—titles or prefatory verses that were added over the centuries. They are attempts to align the event to a biblical character, especially to David, or more often to inform the reader about the origin of the psalm or its melodies. Unfortunately, few of the technical terms can be identified with any certainty. The phrase “To the leader” occurs fifty-five times, usually with the ascription of the psalm

“Of David.” Some terms may be the names of melodies, for example, “Do not Destroy” (Pss 57–59; 75), and “The Deer of the Dawn” (Ps 22). Other terms that occur are “Prayer” (Heb tepillah), “Maskil” (“instructive poem?”), “Psalm” (Heb mizmor), “Miktam,” and “Song” (shir). Many of these and other terms in the superscriptions are obscure or uncertain, as is the term “Selah,” a Hebrew word occurring seventy-one times in the body of thirty-nine psalms, perhaps to mark stanza divisions.

GENRES

More than eighty psalms fall into one of three main types or genres: hymn, petition (used in these notes for the customary “lament,” that being only one component of the petition), and thanksgiving.

- Hymn (approximately twenty-eight psalms). The structure is simple: a call to worship, often with the subject named (e.g., “Praise the LORD, all you nations,” Ps 117:1), sometimes with musical instruments mentioned (e.g., “Praise him with trumpet sound,” Ps 150:3). The invitatory is often repeated in the final verse. The body of the poem is normally introduced by the preposition “for, because,” giving the basis for the praise. This is typically something God has done, often the act by which Israel came into being as a people: the Exodus from Egypt and entry into Canaan. References to this one event can be in historical terms with human characters prominent (e.g., Ps 105) or in mythical terms with God portrayed as acting directly rather than through human agency (e.g., Ps 114).
- Individual petition. Petitionary psalms begin with an unadorned cry to the LORD (e.g., “Help, O LORD!” Ps 12:1). This is followed by a complaint, namely a description of a difficulty facing the psalmist such as sickness, unfair legal accusation, treachery of former friends, or ostracism from the community as a consequence of sin. Usually there is a statement of trust, uttered despite the trouble, which is often described hyperbolically (e.g., “I am not afraid of ten thousands of people,” Ps 3:6). The worshiper prays for rescue and sometimes also for the downfall of the enemy. Some contain confessions of guilt, while others suggest that the psalmist is persecuted for unclear or unfair reasons. Each petition is a mini-drama with three actors: the psalmist, the enemies (“the wicked”), and God. Psalmists portray themselves as loyal followers of the LORD who are victims of a serious affliction (often personified) from which their LORD, their patron, should rescue them.
- Community petitions complain that the LORD has abandoned the nation to its enemies. They often “remember” or recite before God the event that brought Israel into existence in the hope that God will reactivate that event. Can the LORD allow that founding event to be annulled by an enemy? The foundational event can be described in various ways, for example, transplanting a vine from Egypt (Ps 80:8,14) or defeating Sea and installing the people in their land (Ps 77).
- Individual thanksgiving. Such psalms presume that the LORD has answered the petition and now give thanks to the LORD. In a sense they are a continuation of the individual petition, for they report to the community how God has heard the petition, a biblical way of giving thanks.

About thirty psalms are grouped together by scholars according to their subject: royal songs, Zion songs, festival songs, and liturgies. According to style or tone, others are reckoned “songs of trust” (e.g., Pss 23; 91; 121) and “instructions” (e.g., Pss 37; 49; 73). Three psalms have “torah” (law or instruction) as their subject (Pss 1; 19; 119).

INTERPRETATION

For nearly three thousand years the 150 Psalms have been a lovingly memorized and well-thumbed prayer book, transposing to the daily life of Jews and Christians the meeting of Israel and its LORD. Many were familiar to the prophet Isaiah and to other biblical writers and editors. They were prayed from antiquity onward, by the founders of rabbinic Judaism, the early Christians, the fathers of the church, and the medieval synagogue and church. They are today a treasure shared by Jews and Christians. The psalms’ power lies not only in being sacred scripture but in reflecting human feelings before God and expressing them directly, concretely, and skillfully.

As prayers and schools of prayer, the psalms guide modern believers in their relationship to God. Their range and honesty encourage people to come before God in their weakness and need as well as in their strength. Against a modern tendency to make a relationship to God completely private, most of the poems are communal; even individual petitions and songs of trust display a vivid sense of belonging to a people chosen and blessed by God. Against self-centered worshipers, the psalms are unhesitatingly theocentric—the world is made for and by God—though they balance it with the conviction that the LORD loves the people of Israel and is passionate about their flourishing. Psalms is the most cited Old Testament book in the New Testament. Christians praying the psalms have traditionally linked their prayer with that of Jesus, whose prayer becomes the prayer of the church.

Despite the psalms' splendor and humanity, people often find it difficult to pray them, for many of the psalms seem violent and vindictive. We must remember, however, that the chief issue for biblical worshippers is God's power to save. Can God save from life's dangers and grant protection and prosperity? Since the arena in which power was displayed most vividly is the battlefield, it is not surprising that the LORD was often portrayed as a warrior, ruling with power. The war imagery is, however, secondary to the main point: God is a just ruler and judge, who upholds the faithful and righteous and puts down the wicked and rebellious.

So-called vindictive psalms are especially difficult for those who simplistically view Christianity as uniformly gentle and concerned primarily with the individual soul. Yet these psalms are not interested in punishment for its own sake but in redressing a wrong in the present. The psalmists think concretely rather than abstractly: they view evil as embodied in unjust people and pray for their elimination, including their potential for living on in their children. The psalms generally entrust the carrying out of these wishes into God's hands in the conviction that only God can make the world truly just and good. Sufferers can, however, cry out to God to take action, and even use words that appear extreme. Those who trust in God (see Ps 37.5–6) can pray these psalms by leaving everything—execution and timetable—in God's hands.

Richard J. Clifford

BOOK I PSALMS 1–41

Psalm 1

¹Happy are those who do not follow the advice of the
wicked,
or take the path that sinners tread,
or sit in the seat of scoffers;
²but their delight is in the law of the LORD,
and on his law they meditate day and
night.
³They are like trees
planted by streams of water,
which yield their fruit in its season,
and their leaves do not wither.
In all that they do, they prosper.

⁴The wicked are not so,
but are like chaff that the wind drives
away.
⁵Therefore the wicked will not stand in the judgment,
nor sinners in the congregation of the
righteous;
⁶for the LORD watches over the way of the
righteous,
but the way of the wicked will perish.

Psalm 2

¹Why do the nations conspire,
and the peoples plot in vain?
²The kings of the earth set themselves,
and the rulers take counsel together,
against the LORD and his anointed, saying,

Ps 1: The two ways. A torah or instructional psalm serving as an introduction to the Psalms. Pss 1 and 2 are introductory to the book of Psalms in that both celebrate the saving presence of God—Ps 1 for the individual and Ps 2 for the Davidic king—who offers protection from the wicked. Unlike the following psalms, these introductory works lack a Davidic superscription, suggesting their secondary, editorial function. Using the metaphor of the two ways, one leading to life and the other to death, Psalm 1 declares that reciting God's saving torah or teaching (in this case, including the psalms) keeps one on the path of life. There are themes of wisdom literature in this psalm. 1–3: Any individual who adheres to the torah (law) and rejects the views of the wicked is fortunate. 1: Scoffers, like the wicked and sinners, they contemptuously dismiss God's capacity to rule of the world. 2: Meditate, lit. "recite"; ancients usually read aloud. 3: Trees, possibly the trees in the Temple garden (Pss 52.8; 92.12–15) on Mount Zion, abundantly watered, symbolizing life (Pss 46.4; 65.9; Ezek 47.12). 4–6: In contrast to the well-watered and deeply rooted tree (a vertical image; cf. Jer 17.7–8) is the dry and wind-driven chaff (a horizontal image).

³ “Let us burst their bonds asunder, and cast their cords from us.”

⁴ He who sits in the heavens laughs;
the LORD has them in derision.

⁵ Then he will speak to them in his wrath,
and terrify them in his fury, saying,
⁶ “I have set my king on Zion, my holy hill.”

⁷ I will tell of the decree of the LORD:
He said to me, “You are my son;
today I have begotten you.

⁸ Ask of me, and I will make the nations
your heritage,
and the ends of the earth your possession.

⁹ You shall break them with a rod of iron,
and dash them in pieces like a potter’s
vessel.”

¹⁰ Now therefore, O kings, be wise;
be warned, O rulers of the earth.

¹¹ Serve the LORD with fear, with trembling ¹² kiss his feet,^a or he will be angry, and you will perish in
the way;
for his wrath is quickly kindled.

Happy are all who take refuge in him.

Ps 2: The Israelite king, instrument of God’s rule. In this royal psalm, a court poet asks incredulously why the nations dare to threaten the Davidic king (vv. 1–3) when the Most High has stated that the king is his son and representative, hence in principle the most high among earthly kings. Like Ps 1, Ps 2 is introductory, and there are links between the two psalms, which are considered a single unit in some traditions: Ps 2.11 ends with “happy,” echoing the first word in Ps 1; “the way [of the wicked] will perish” in 1.6 is echoed in 2.11, “you will perish in the way”; thematically, the divine instruction of the psalms protects from evil just as the divine promise protects the Israelite king and people from evil kings. 1–3: In describing hostile nations, the speaker quotes their deluded speech as in Pss 48.4–8; 76; and Ezek 38–39. 2: Anointed (Heb “mashiah”), is always used in the Hebrew Bible of an actual ruler rather than of a future king. 4–9: Dismissing the vain posturing of the kings, the Davidic king cites God’s adoption formula (see 2 Sam 7.14; Ps 89.26–27) and promise of universal sovereignty. 6: Zion, my holy hill, Jerusalem, where the royal palace and the Temple were part of the same architectural complex. 10–11: In the light of the divine promise, the poet warns the kings to end their rebellion and submit. 12: The exact meaning of the words translated kiss his feet is debated.

Ps 3: Threatened by many but trusting still. An individual petition. Threatened by “many enemies” (v. 1) who deny that the LORD can provide “help” and “deliverance” (vv. 2,8), the psalmist calmly affirms God’s presence. Each of the three sections (vv. 1–3; 4–6; 7–8) begins with a prayer and ends with a statement of confidence. Superscription: The superscription, secondarily inserted here, situates the psalm with David fleeing from his rebellious son Absalom (2 Sam 15–18). 1: The psalmist responds to the enemies by addressing God as “you” (v. 3) and using divine titles expressing power to save. 2: Selah (also vv. 4,8) is a musical notation, used a total of seventy-eight times in the Bible, only in Psalms and Hab 3. Its exact meaning is uncertain, but it is typically used after a section of a psalm, perhaps indicating an interlude. 3: My glory, one who restores one’s glory or dignity. 4: His holy hill, Mount Zion, where some psalmists believed God was most present (but contrast, e.g., Ps 2.4,

Psalm 3

A Psalm of David, when he fled from his son Absalom.

¹ O LORD, how many are my foes!
Many are rising against me;

² many are saying to me,
“There is no help for you^b in God.” Selah

³ But you, O LORD, are a shield around me, my glory, and the one who lifts up my
head.

⁴ I cry aloud to the LORD, and he answers me from his holy hill. Selah

⁵ I lie down and sleep;
I wake again, for the LORD sustains me.

⁶ I am not afraid of ten thousands of people
who have set themselves against me all around.

⁷ Rise up, O LORD!
Deliver me, O my God!

^a Cn: Meaning of Heb of verses 11b and 12a is uncertain

^b Syr: Heb him

For you strike all my enemies on the
cheek;
you break the teeth of the wicked.

⁸ Deliverance belongs to the LORD;
may your blessing be on your people!

Selah

Psalm 4

To the leader: with stringed instruments. A Psalm of David.

¹ Answer me when I call, O God of my
right!
You gave me room when I was in distress.
Be gracious to me, and hear my prayer.

² How long, you people, shall my honor suffer shame?
How long will you love vain words, and seek after lies? Selah

³ But know that the LORD has set apart the faithful for himself;
the LORD hears when I call to him.

⁴ When you are disturbed,^a do not sin;
ponder it on your beds, and be silent.
Selah

⁵ Offer right sacrifices,
and put your trust in the LORD.

⁶ There are many who say, "O that we might see some good!
Let the light of your face shine on us,
O LORD!"

⁷ You have put gladness in my heart
more than when their grain and wine abound.

⁸ I will both lie down and sleep in peace;
for you alone, O LORD, make me lie down in safety.

Psalm 5

To the leader: for the flutes. A Psalm of David.

¹ Give ear to my words, O LORD;
give heed to my sighing.

² Listen to the sound of my cry,
my King and my God,
for to you I pray.

³ O LORD, in the morning you hear my
voice;
in the morning I plead my case to you,
and watch.

⁴ For you are not a God who delights in
wickedness;
evil will not sojourn with you.

⁵ The boastful will not stand before your eyes;
you hate all evildoers.

⁶ You destroy those who speak lies;
the LORD abhors the bloodthirsty and deceitful.

⁷ But I, through the abundance of your
steadfast love,
will enter your house,
I will bow down toward your holy temple
in awe of you.

⁸ Lead me, O LORD, in your righteousness
because of my enemies;
make your way straight before me.

⁹ For there is no truth in their mouths;
their hearts are destruction;

^a Or are angry

"He who sits in the heavens"). 5: I lie down, calmly sleeping as enemies lurk is an act of trust. 7: God striking the enemies on the mouth for their words is poetic justice, punishment fitting the crime. The psalmist, however, leaves the actual punishment to God.

Ps 4: Rescue me so I can be an example to sinners. An individual petition, with a strong emphasis on trust. 1–3: Confident in the care God lavishes on the faithful (vv. 1a, 3b), the psalmist boldly demands that the slanderers cease their lies. 2: Selah (also v. 4), see Ps 3.2n. 4: Ponder it on your beds, reflect in private in contrast to public worship, as in v. 5, "offer right sacrifices." 6: Unlike many who demand divine gifts as a right, the psalmist quietly relies upon the LORD to grant joy and security. Light . . . shine, cf. Num 6.24–26.

Ps 5: Prayer for access to the Temple. An individual petition for protection from the wicked who seem to be keeping the psalmist away from the presence of God in the Temple. Two themes alternate: seeking and enjoying God's presence (vv. 1–3, 7–8, 11–12), and the threat of the wicked (vv. 4–6, 9–10). 7: But I . . . will enter your house, emphatically states the psalmist's intent to visit the Temple, and thus asks for God's help through their throats are open graves;

 they flatter with their tongues.
¹⁰ Make them bear their guilt, O God;
 let them fall by their own counsels;
 because of their many transgressions cast
 them out,
 for they have rebelled against you.

¹¹ But let all who take refuge in you rejoice;
 let them ever sing for joy.
 Spread your protection over them,
 so that those who love your name may exult in you.

¹² For you bless the righteous, O LORD;
 you cover them with favor as with a shield.

Psalm 6

To the leader: with stringed instruments; according to The Sheminith. A Psalm of David.

¹ O LORD, do not rebuke me in your anger,
 or discipline me in your wrath.
² Be gracious to me, O LORD, for I am languishing;
 O LORD, heal me, for my bones are shaking with terror.
³ My soul also is struck with terror,
 while you, O LORD—how long?

⁴ Turn, O LORD, save my life;
 deliver me for the sake of your steadfast
 love.

⁵ For in death there is no remembrance of
 you;
 in Sheol who can give you praise?

⁶ I am weary with my moaning;
 every night I flood my bed with tears;
 I drench my couch with my weeping.

⁷ My eyes waste away because of grief;
 they grow weak because of all my foes.

⁸ Depart from me, all you workers of evil,
 for the LORD has heard the sound of my weeping.

⁹ The LORD has heard my supplication;
 the LORD accepts my prayer.

¹⁰ All my enemies shall be ashamed and struck with terror;
 they shall turn back, and in a moment
 be put to shame.

Psalm 7

A Shiggaion of David, which he sang to the LORD concerning Cush, a Benjaminite.

¹ O LORD my God, in you I take refuge;
 save me from all my pursuers, and
 deliver me,

divine steadfast love (Heb “hesed,” a major theme in the Psalms) to travel there safely (v. 8). 9: Mouths, hearts, throats, tongues, the enemies are characterized by their perverted organs of speech and the inconsistency of their words and their intentions. 11–12: The mixing of private longing and public celebration and joy shows that the psalmist hopes to join fellow Israelites in worshipping God.

Ps 6: Plea for God’s help in sickness. An individual petition consisting of petition (vv. 1–2, 4–5), complaint (vv. 2–3, 6–7), mention of enemies (v. 8), and statement of trust (vv. 9–10). Tightly structured in two major parts, vv. 1–5 address God, and vv. 6–10 address God and the enemies. The psalm is one of the seven penitential psalms in Christian tradition (Pss 6; 32; 38; 51; 102; 130; 143). Superscription: Sheminith, “the eighth” (cf. “octave”), a musical term of uncertain significance. 3: The sufferer interprets physical illness and emotional exhaustion as divine abandonment and asks how long the estrangement will last. 4: The opening imperative verb turn (to me), addressed to God, is matched by the imperative verb in v. 8, “depart from me,” addressed to the enemies, whose exact nature is unclear here, as in many psalms. Separation from the God whom the psalmist delights in praising is intolerable. 5: Sheol is the underworld, where all reside after death. The psalmist’s death will diminish the praise due to God; cf. Pss 30.9; 88.10–12; 115.17. 8: A sudden change of mood, caused by renewed confidence in God’s help, which may have been intimidated by a sign or oracle that the psalmist perceived.

Ps 7: Prayer for deliverance from enemies and for justice. This individual petition begins with the psalmist seeking refuge, perhaps in the Temple, and taking an oath of innocence (vv. 1–8); it continues by a plea for justice for the entire world (vv. 9–16), and ends with a statement of trust (v. 17). Superscription: This incident in David’s life is otherwise unknown, suggesting that these superscriptions are based on events beyond those narrated in the books of Samuel. Shiggaion, a musical term of unknown meaning, occurring only here. 1–5: An innocent person could claim sanctuary at the altar (Ex 21.14; 1 Kings 2.28–35), though an oath of innocence involved risk if one did not tell the truth. Job 31 contains a much longer negative oath of self-imprecation, which

² or like a lion they will tear me apart;
they will drag me away, with no one to rescue.

³ O LORD my God, if I have done this,
if there is wrong in my hands,

⁴ if I have repaid my ally with harm
or plundered my foe without cause,

⁵ then let the enemy pursue and overtake
me,
trample my life to the ground,
and lay my soul in the dust. Selah

⁶ Rise up, O LORD, in your anger; lift yourself up against the fury of my enemies;
awake, O my God;^a you have appointed a judgment.

⁷ Let the assembly of the peoples be gathered around you,
and over it take your seat^b on high.

⁸ The LORD judges the peoples;
judge me, O LORD, according to my
righteousness
and according to the integrity that is
in me.

⁹ O let the evil of the wicked come to an end,
but establish the righteous,
you who test the minds and hearts,
O righteous God.

¹⁰ God is my shield, who saves the upright in heart.

¹¹ God is a righteous judge, and a God who has indignation every day.

¹² If one does not repent, God^c will whet
his sword;
he has bent and strung his bow;

¹³ he has prepared his deadly weapons,
making his arrows fiery shafts.

¹⁴ See how they conceive evil,
and are pregnant with mischief,
and bring forth lies.

¹⁵ They make a pit, digging it out,
and fall into the hole that they have made.

¹⁶ Their mischief returns upon their own heads,
and on their own heads their violence
descends.

¹⁷ I will give to the LORD the thanks due to his righteousness,
and sing praise to the name of the LORD,
the Most High.

Psalm 8

To the leader: according to The Gittith. A Psalm of David.

¹ O LORD, our Sovereign,
how majestic is your name in all the
earth!

You have set your glory above the
heavens.

² Out of the mouths of babes and infants
you have founded a bulwark because of your foes,
to silence the enemy and the avenger.

³ When I look at your heavens, the work of your fingers,

^a Or awake for me

^b Cn: Heb return

^c Heb he

was used by ancients to protest their innocence. 5: Selah, see Ps 3.2n. 6–8: The psalmist urgently appeals for protection to the divine judge surrounded, it seems, by members of the heavenly court having responsibility over the nations. 15–16: That the wicked are caught in the traps they set is a common idea in wisdom literature (e.g., Prov 26.27; see also Pss 9.15–16; 35.7–8; 141.10). 17: Thanks given for the anticipated rescue.

Ps 8: Wonder at the LORD's creation of humans. This memorable hymn praises God who has given such honor and responsibility to humans. Superscription: Gittith, an unknown musical term, also in Pss 81; 84. 1: Name, parallel to glory (of God). As often in hymns, the opening invitation is reprised in the final line (v. 9), forming an inclusio or envelope structure. 2: The text is unclear; it may refer to the LORD's victory over chaotic forces (see Pss 89; 93). 3–8: Looking at the vast universe, the poet is awed by the LORD's attentiveness to one small element in that universe: humans, who have been given the honor of ruling the three domains of sky, earth, and sea. The picture is much like Gen 1.26–28, where humans rule over the three domains and enjoy the dignity of being the moon and the stars that you have established;

⁴ what are human beings that you are mindful of them, mortals^a that you care for them?
⁵ Yet you have made them a little lower than God,^b and crowned them with glory and honor.
⁶ You have given them dominion over the works of your hands; you have put all things under their feet,
⁷ all sheep and oxen, and also the beasts of the field,
⁸ the birds of the air, and the fish of the sea, whatever passes along the paths of the seas.
⁹ O LORD, our Sovereign, how majestic is your name in all the earth!

Psalm 9

To the leader: according to Muth-labben. A Psalm of David.

¹ I will give thanks to the LORD with my whole heart;
 I will tell of all your wonderful deeds.
² I will be glad and exult in you;
 I will sing praise to your name, O Most High.
³ When my enemies turned back,
 they stumbled and perished before you.

⁴ For you have maintained my just cause; you have sat on the throne giving righteous judgment.
⁵ You have rebuked the nations, you have destroyed the wicked; you have blotted out their name forever and ever.
⁶ The enemies have vanished in everlasting ruins; their cities you have rooted out; the very memory of them has perished.
⁷ But the LORD sits enthroned forever, he has established his throne for judgment.
⁸ He judges the world with righteousness; he judges the peoples with equity.
⁹ The LORD is a stronghold for the oppressed, a stronghold in times of trouble.
¹⁰ And those who know your name put their trust in you, for you, O LORD, have not forsaken those who seek you.
¹¹ Sing praises to the LORD, who dwells in Zion.
 Declare his deeds among the peoples.
¹² For he who avenges blood is mindful of them; he does not forget the cry of the afflicted.

^a Heb ben adam, lit. son of man

^b Or than the divine beings or angels: Heb elohim

created in the image of God. 4: Contrast Ps 144.3; Job 7.17. 5: God, better, “heavenly beings” (Heb “elohim,” [lit. “gods”]; see textual note b). As the heavenly world is ruled by heavenly beings, so the earthly world, parallel to it, is ruled by earthly beings.

Ps 9–10: Thanks, petition, and pain at God’s delay in coming. Hebrew tradition handed down Pss 9–10 as two poems, but together they form one unit with an acrostic structure: Each section begins with a successive letter of the Hebrew alphabet, though this psalm is poorly transmitted and some of this structure is broken. The Greek text also shows it is a single poem. As in other acrostic poems (Pss 25; 34; 37; 111; 112; 119; 145; Lam 1–4; Prov 31.10–31), the alphabetic structure provides a formal unity, and the content is less systematically structured. The psalm records three successive experiences of God: joyous recognition of benefits to the singer (9.3–4) and the nation (9.5–8), a cry for help during an attack (9.13–14), and a deeply felt desire for justice (10.1–18). Superscription: Muth-labben, a musical term of unknown meaning; see also Ps 48.15n. 9.1: A promise to tell others what God has done for the psalmist (vv. 3–4) and for the nation (vv. 5–8). 7–10: The LORD as righteous judge and defender of the oppressed, a common theme in the Psalms (e.g., 98.9). 13–20: Awareness of God’s salvation inspires fresh petitions (vv. 13–14, 19–20) and a serene statement that divine justice will

¹³ Be gracious to me, O LORD.
See what I suffer from those who hate
me;
you are the one who lifts me up from the gates of death,

¹⁴ so that I may recount all your praises,
and, in the gates of daughter Zion,
rejoice in your deliverance.

¹⁵ The nations have sunk in the pit that they made;
in the net that they hid has their own foot been caught.

¹⁶ The LORD has made himself known, he has executed judgment;
the wicked are snared in the work of their own hands. Higgaion. Selah

¹⁷ The wicked shall depart to Sheol,
all the nations that forget God.

¹⁸ For the needy shall not always be forgotten,
nor the hope of the poor perish forever.

¹⁹ Rise up, O LORD! Do not let mortals
prevail;
let the nations be judged before you.

²⁰ Put them in fear, O LORD;
let the nations know that they are only human. Selah

Psalm 10

¹ Why, O LORD, do you stand far off?
Why do you hide yourself in times of
trouble?

² In arrogance the wicked persecute the poor—
let them be caught in the schemes they have devised.

³ For the wicked boast of the desires of their heart,
those greedy for gain curse and renounce the LORD.

⁴ In the pride of their countenance the wicked say, “God will not seek it out”;
all their thoughts are, “There is no
God.”

⁵ Their ways prosper at all times;
your judgments are on high, out of their
sight;
as for their foes, they scoff at them.

⁶ They think in their heart, “We shall not be moved;
throughout all generations we shall not meet adversity.”

⁷ Their mouths are filled with cursing and deceit and oppression;
under their tongues are mischief and
iniquity.

⁸ They sit in ambush in the villages;
in hiding places they murder the
innocent.

Their eyes stealthily watch for the helpless;

⁹ they lurk in secret like a lion in its covert;
they lurk that they may seize the poor;
they seize the poor and drag them off in their net.

¹⁰ They stoop, they crouch,
and the helpless fall by their might.

¹¹ They think in their heart, “God has forgotten,
he has hidden his face, he will never see it.”

¹² Rise up, O LORD; O God, lift up your
hand;
do not forget the oppressed.

¹³ Why do the wicked renounce God, and say in their hearts, “You will not call us to account”?

prevail (vv. 15–18). 14: A significant theme of the Psalms is that God enjoys being praised; cf. 6.4–5. 15–16: See Ps 7.15–16n. Higgaion, a musical term of unknown meaning, occurring only here. Selah (also v. 20), see Ps 3.2n. 17: Sheol, the underworld, the abode of the dead. 10.1–18: With the question Why? (v. 1), the psalmist complains of the effects of God’s absence—the persecution of the poor by the wealthy (v. 2a)—and gives an unusually long description of the wicked who devote all their energy to evil (vv. 3–11). Rather than requesting only his help, the psalmist here offers a broader argument about the power of evildoers and the suffering of the righteous.

¹⁴ But you do see! Indeed you note trouble and grief,
that you may take it into your hands;
the helpless commit themselves to you;
you have been the helper of the
orphan.

¹⁵ Break the arm of the wicked and
evildoers;
seek out their wickedness until you find none.

¹⁶ The LORD is king forever and ever;
the nations shall perish from his land.

¹⁷ O LORD, you will hear the desire of the meek;
you will strengthen their heart, you will incline your ear

¹⁸ to do justice for the orphan and the oppressed,
so that those from earth may strike terror no more.^a

Psalm 11

To the leader. Of David.

¹ In the LORD I take refuge; how can you say
to me,
“Flee like a bird to the mountains;^b
² for look, the wicked bend the bow, they have fitted their arrow to the string,
to shoot in the dark at the upright in
heart.
³ If the foundations are destroyed,
what can the righteous do?”

⁴ The LORD is in his holy temple;
the LORD’s throne is in heaven.
His eyes behold, his gaze examines humankind.

⁵ The LORD tests the righteous and the
wicked,
and his soul hates the lover of violence.

⁶ On the wicked he will rain coals of fire and sulfur;
a scorching wind shall be the portion of their cup.

⁷ For the LORD is righteous;
he loves righteous deeds;
the upright shall behold his face.

Psalm 12

*To the leader: according to The Sheminith. A Psalm
of David.*

¹ Help, O LORD, for there is no longer
anyone who is godly;
the faithful have disappeared from
humankind.

² They utter lies to each other;
with flattering lips and a double heart
they speak.

³ May the LORD cut off all flattering lips,
the tongue that makes great boasts,

⁴ those who say, “With our tongues we will
prevail;
our lips are our own—who is our master?”

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Gk Syr Jerome Tg: Heb flee to your mountain, O bird

Ps 11: Trust in the LORD and do not panic. A song of trust, which develops one aspect of the individual petition, the statement of trust in the LORD in the Temple (as in Pss 27.8–9,13; 42.2). 1: Flee like a bird to the mountains! Disaster in the form of invading armies and moral collapse has struck and people are urging flight. A fleeing bird is a symbol of panic-stricken flight as in Isa 16.2; Prov 27.8. 4–7: Rejecting the advice of others, the psalmist chooses instead to trust in the LORD’s protective presence in the Temple, confident that the LORD is a just judge who scrutinizes human conduct, curbs the wicked, upholds the loyal. 4: It is uncertain if the psalmist means God’s heavenly temple, in which case the initial ideas are synonymous, or if God is being depicted as present both in heaven and in the earthly temple in Jerusalem. 6: Coals of fire and sulfur and a scorching wind, divine weapons (see Gen 19.24; Am 7.4). 7: The upright see the LORD’s face, i.e., experience the divine presence in the Temple; see Pss 27.8–9; 42.2.

Ps 12: Prayer in a time of moral disorder and lawlessness. An individual petition provoked by the destructive speech of the powerful (vv. 1–4); it is answered by a promise of divine intervention (v. 5) that invites the psalmist’s trust (vv. 6–8). Like Ps 60.6–8, this psalm seems to preserve an oracle of salvation (v. 5), perhaps uttered by a Temple official in response to a petition (cf. 1 Sam 1.11–18). Superscription: Sheminith, see Ps 6n. 3: Cut off all flattering lips, victimized by an ungodly group using lies to control the community (vv. 1–2), the psalmist begs

⁵“Because the poor are despoiled, because the needy groan, I will now rise up,” says the LORD; “I will place them in the safety for which they long.”

⁶The promises of the LORD are promises that are pure, silver refined in a furnace on the ground, purified seven times.

⁷You, O LORD, will protect us; you will guard us from this generation forever.

⁸On every side the wicked prowl, as vileness is exalted among humankind.

Psalm 13

To the leader. A Psalm of David.

¹How long, O LORD? Will you forget me forever?
How long will you hide your face from me?

²How long must I bear pain^a in my soul, and have sorrow in my heart all day long?

How long shall my enemy be exalted over me?

³Consider and answer me, O LORD my God!
Give light to my eyes, or I will sleep the sleep of death,

⁴and my enemy will say, “I have prevailed”; my foes will rejoice because I am shaken.

⁵But I trusted in your steadfast love; my heart shall rejoice in your salvation.

⁶I will sing to the LORD, because he has dealt bountifully with me.

Psalm 14

To the leader. Of David.

¹Fools say in their hearts, “There is no God.”

They are corrupt, they do abominable deeds; there is no one who does good.

²The LORD looks down from heaven on humankind to see if there are any who are wise, who seek after God.

³They have all gone astray, they are all alike perverse; there is no one who does good, no, not one.

⁴Have they no knowledge, all the evildoers who eat up my people as they eat bread, and do not call upon the LORD?

⁵There they shall be in great terror, for God is with the company of the righteous.

⁶You would confound the plans of the poor, but the LORD is their refuge.

^a Syr: Heb hold counsels

God to destroy their capacity to speak. 6–7: The psalmist takes the promises as already operating.

Ps 13: How long will the enemy threaten my life? An individual petition. 1: How long? A request to know exactly how much longer the suffering is destined to last, or perhaps a rhetorical complaint. Hide your face, God has refused to look beneficently at the psalmist, causing his grief. 2: The psalmists blend internal anguish and external danger; often not distinguishing psychological, physical, and social suffering. 3: Consider and answer me, a contemporary paraphrase might be, “Look at me! Talk to me!” Give light to my eyes, i.e., give me joy and vitality (see Prov 29.13). 5: But I trusted, anxiety shifts to trust in the LORD, as is typical of individual petitions.

Ps 14: Refusal to be silenced by those who deny God’s justice. A condemnation of those who deny that God is active in the world and a declaration of trust in the God who cares for the poor (among whom the psalmist wants to be counted). Psalm 53 is a near duplicate of this psalm. 1: There is no God, denies God’s ability to govern, not necessarily God’s existence; see Ps 10.4. 2: God’s scrutiny lays bare the deniers’ folly and malice. In the style of wisdom literature, the rebellious are contrasted with the wise, who seek after God. 4: Evildoers will finally learn that God defends those whom they exploit. 5: There, evidently a reference to Mount Zion as in Pss

⁷O that deliverance for Israel would come from Zion!
When the LORD restores the fortunes of his people,
Jacob will rejoice; Israel will be glad.

Psalm 15

A Psalm of David.

¹O LORD, who may abide in your tent?
Who may dwell on your holy hill?

²Those who walk blamelessly, and do what is right,
and speak the truth from their heart;
³who do not slander with their tongue,
and do no evil to their friends,
nor take up a reproach against their neighbors;
⁴in whose eyes the wicked are despised,
but who honor those who fear the
LORD;
who stand by their oath even to their hurt;
⁵who do not lend money at interest,
and do not take a bribe against the
innocent.

Those who do these things shall never be moved.

Psalm 16

A Miktam of David.

¹Protect me, O God, for in you I take refuge.
²I say to the LORD, “You are my Lord;
I have no good apart from you.”^a

³As for the holy ones in the land, they are the noble,
in whom is all my delight.

⁴Those who choose another god multiply their sorrows;^b
their drink offerings of blood I will not pour out
or take their names upon my lips.

⁵The LORD is my chosen portion and my cup;
you hold my lot.
⁶The boundary lines have fallen for me in pleasant places;
I have a goodly heritage.

⁷I bless the LORD who gives me counsel;
in the night also my heart instructs me.
⁸I keep the LORD always before me;
because he is at my right hand, I shall not be moved.

^a Jerome Tg: Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Cn: Meaning of Heb uncertain

48.6; 76.3. 7: A generalized conclusion, moving from the individual to the community, as Israel lives in the hope that salvation comes from Zion. When the LORD restores may refer to the destruction of Jerusalem in 586 BCE.

Ps 15: Who will be admitted into God’s presence? The psalm seems to reflect a ritual admitting worshipers to the Temple (cf. Ps 24 and Isa 33.14b–16). Ten actions describe the righteousness expected of a genuine worshiper: the first two are positive (v. 2), the second three, negative (v. 3), the third three, negative and positive (v. 4), and the last two negative (v. 5b). 1: Tent, a poetic designation for the Temple (Pss 27.5; 61.4). 2–5b: The ten clauses describing the ideal worshiper overlap and make their effect cumulative. 2: Walk, conduct oneself. Speak the truth from their heart, one does not say one thing while intending another. 4: In whose eyes the wicked are despised, the righteous reject anyone rejected by God. 5: Do not lend money at interest, forbidden by Ex 22.25 and Lev 25.37. Money (i.e., silver that was weighed out) was not regarded as a commodity. 5c: After the confession, an officiant, perhaps a priest or Levite, presumably admitted worshipers to the security of the Temple.

Ps 16: The LORD dwells in the Temple. A declaration of trust in the one God of Israel, though others worship many gods: a daunting yet joyous commitment. Superscription: Mikdam, a technical term of unknown meaning. 1–2: Though seemingly a cry for rescue from an immediate danger, the verses are most probably a declaration of trust in a particular God—the LORD—in traditional client-patron language. 3: NRSV interprets the unclear verse as referring to Israelites whose fellowship one gains when one professes faith in the LORD. 4: Drink offerings of blood, blood offerings are not often attested in biblical religion; see Ps 50.13, and cf. Ex 24.6. 5–6: Portion, lot, boundary lines, heritage, references to the distribution and possession of the land of Israel (Josh 13–19). Possibly the psalmist was a priest; see Num 18.20; Josh 18.7. 7–11: The response of the individual

⁹Therefore my heart is glad, and my soul rejoices;
my body also rests secure.

¹⁰For you do not give me up to Sheol,
or let your faithful one see the Pit.

¹¹You show me the path of life.
In your presence there is fullness of joy;
in your right hand are pleasures
forevermore.

Psalm 17

A Prayer of David.

¹Hear a just cause, O LORD; attend to my cry;
give ear to my prayer from lips free of deceit.

²From you let my vindication come;
let your eyes see the right.

³If you try my heart, if you visit me by night,
if you test me, you will find no
wickedness in me;
my mouth does not transgress.

⁴As for what others do, by the word of your lips
I have avoided the ways of the violent.

⁵My steps have held fast to your paths;
my feet have not slipped.

⁶I call upon you, for you will answer me,
O God;
incline your ear to me, hear my words.

⁷Wondrously show your steadfast love,
O savior of those who seek refuge
from their adversaries at your right hand.

⁸Guard me as the apple of the eye;
hide me in the shadow of your wings, ⁹from the wicked who despoil me,
my deadly enemies who surround me.

¹⁰They close their hearts to pity;
with their mouths they speak
arrogantly.

¹¹They track me down;^a now they surround me;
they set their eyes to cast me to the
ground.

¹²They are like a lion eager to tear,
like a young lion lurking in ambush.

¹³Rise up, O LORD, confront them, overthrow them!
By your sword deliver my life from the
wicked,

¹⁴from mortals—by your hand,
O LORD—
from mortals whose portion in life is in this world.

May their bellies be filled with what you have stored up for them;
may their children have more than enough;
may they leave something over to their little ones.

¹⁵As for me, I shall behold your face in
righteousness;
when I awake I shall be satisfied,
beholding your likeness.

^a One Ms Compare Syr: MT Our steps

whose God is now the LORD, giving praise (v. 8) and rejoicing in God's nearness (vv. 9–11). 10: Sheol . . . the Pit, the abode of the dead.

Ps 17: Rescue me, your loyal client, and let me see your face. An individual petition stressing the psalmist's past loyalty (vv. 1–5), present need (vv. 6–14), and ardent hope to see God in the Temple (v. 15). 1–5: Wishing to gain a fair hearing, the psalmist claims to have passed every testing and been proven loyal. 6: You will answer me, the result of the long-established trust between divine patron and human client. The psalmist personalizes life's many dangers as human enemies. 7: Steadfast love (Heb "hesed"), a covenantal term here, referring to the loving obligations assumed by each partner. 8: Apple of the eye, the pupil. Shadow of your wings (Pss 36.7; 57.1; etc.), either disembodied wings representing divine protection as in Egyptian religion, or the wings of the composite animals guarding the deity's throne in the Temple, the cherubim. 13: Confront them (lit. "come before their face"), anticipating the conclusion of the psalm where the supplicant wants to see God's face. 14: Expresses the wish that the wicked and their families undergo what they have tried to inflict on others. 15: Though presumably still in danger, the psalmist speaks with the certainty that the opening petition has been granted. Although the Priestly source of the Pentateuch depicts the Temple as aniconic, without statue or image, language such as I shall behold your face may suggest that at one point the Temple had an image of God.

Psalm 18

To the leader. A Psalm of David the servant of the LORD, who addressed the words of this song to the LORD on the day when the LORD delivered him from the hand of all his enemies, and from the hand of Saul. He said:

¹ I love you, O LORD, my strength.

² The LORD is my rock, my fortress, and my deliverer,
my God, my rock in whom I take refuge,
my shield, and the horn of my salvation,
my stronghold.

³ I call upon the LORD, who is worthy to be praised,
so I shall be saved from my enemies.

⁴ The cords of death encompassed me;
the torrents of perdition assailed me;

⁵ the cords of Sheol entangled me;
the snares of death confronted me.

⁶ In my distress I called upon the LORD;
to my God I cried for help.
From his temple he heard my voice,
and my cry to him reached his ears.

⁷ Then the earth reeled and rocked;
the foundations also of the mountains
trembled
and quaked, because he was angry.

⁸ Smoke went up from his nostrils,
and devouring fire from his mouth;
glowing coals flamed forth from him.

⁹ He bowed the heavens, and came down;
thick darkness was under his feet.

¹⁰ He rode on a cherub, and flew;
he came swiftly upon the wings of the
wind.

¹¹ He made darkness his covering around
him,

his canopy thick clouds dark with
water.

¹² Out of the brightness before him
there broke through his clouds hailstones and coals of fire.

¹³ The LORD also thundered in the
heavens,
and the Most High uttered his voice.^a

¹⁴ And he sent out his arrows, and scattered them;
he flashed forth lightnings, and routed
them.

¹⁵ Then the channels of the sea were seen,
and the foundations of the world were laid bare
at your rebuke, O LORD,
at the blast of the breath of your nostrils.

¹⁶ He reached down from on high, he took
me;
he drew me out of mighty waters.

¹⁷ He delivered me from my strong enemy,
and from those who hated me;
for they were too mighty for me.

¹⁸ They confronted me in the day of my
calamity;
but the LORD was my support.

¹⁹ He brought me out into a broad place;
he delivered me, because he delighted
in me.

²⁰ The LORD rewarded me according to my
righteousness;
according to the cleanness of my hands
he recompensed me.

^a Gk See 2 Sam 22.14: Heb adds hailstones and coals of fire

Ps 18: A royal thanksgiving. A report of the king's rescue (vv. 1–19) is followed by reflections on his intimate relationship with the LORD and his primacy among earth's kings (vv. 20–45); the psalm ends with a fresh acknowledgment of the LORD's aid (vv. 46–50). Some scholars think that Ps 18 may have been sung at the coronation of the Davidic king to ground his authority in the LORD's creation victory (cf. Ps 89.5–28). An alternate version of the psalm appears in 2 Sam 22. Superscription: Rescues of David from foreign kings and domestic enemies including Saul (e.g., 1 Sam 18.10–30). 2: An unusually long list of divine epithets. 4–5: The enemies from which the LORD delivered the king are cosmic, both the chaotic torrents of the primordial sea, and the power of death, in Sheol, the underworld, the abode of the dead. 7–15: Answering the appeal of the king was a divine appearance or theophany, with the LORD described as a storm god. 10: Cherub, one of the bearers of the divine throne (see Ex 25.18–120; Ezek 1; Ps 17.8n.). 16–19: Deliverance from a tight spot (v. 6) into a broad, unconfined place (see also v. 36). 20–24: According to my righteousness (vv. 20, 24), having fulfilled his covenant

- ²¹ For I have kept the ways of the LORD,
and have not wickedly departed from
my God.
- ²² For all his ordinances were before me,
and his statutes I did not put away from
me.
- ²³ I was blameless before him,
and I kept myself from guilt.
- ²⁴ Therefore the LORD has recompensed me
according to my righteousness,
according to the cleanness of my hands
in his sight.
- ²⁵ With the loyal you show yourself loyal;
with the blameless you show yourself
blameless;
- ²⁶ with the pure you show yourself pure;
and with the crooked you show yourself
perverse.
- ²⁷ For you deliver a humble people,
but the haughty eyes you bring down.
- ²⁸ It is you who light my lamp;
the LORD, my God, lights up my darkness.
- ²⁹ By you I can crush a troop,
and by my God I can leap over a wall.
- ³⁰ This God—his way is perfect;
the promise of the LORD proves true;
he is a shield for all who take refuge in
him.
- ³¹ For who is God except the LORD?
And who is a rock besides our God?—
- ³² the God who girded me with strength, and made my way safe.
- ³³ He made my feet like the feet of a deer,
and set me secure on the heights.
- ³⁴ He trains my hands for war,
so that my arms can bend a bow of
bronze.
- ³⁵ You have given me the shield of your
salvation,
and your right hand has supported me;
your help^a has made me great.
- ³⁶ You gave me a wide place for my steps
under me,
and my feet did not slip.
- ³⁷ I pursued my enemies and overtook
them;
- and did not turn back until they were
consumed.
- ³⁸ I struck them down, so that they were not able to rise;
they fell under my feet.
- ³⁹ For you girded me with strength for the
battle;
you made my assailants sink under me.
- ⁴⁰ You made my enemies turn their backs
to me,
and those who hated me I destroyed.
- ⁴¹ They cried for help, but there was no one to save them;
they cried to the LORD, but he did not
answer them.
- ⁴² I beat them fine, like dust before the
wind;
I cast them out like the mire of the streets.
- ⁴³ You delivered me from strife with the peoples;^b
you made me head of the nations;
people whom I had not known served
me.
- ⁴⁴ As soon as they heard of me they obeyed
me;
foreigners came cringing to me.
- ⁴⁵ Foreigners lost heart,
and came trembling out of their
strongholds.
- ⁴⁶ The LORD lives! Blessed be my rock, and exalted be the God of my
salvation,
- ⁴⁷ the God who gave me vengeance
and subdued peoples under me;
- ⁴⁸ who delivered me from my enemies;
indeed, you exalted me above my adversaries;
you delivered me from the violent.
- ⁴⁹ For this I will extol you, O LORD, among
the nations,
and sing praises to your name.

^a Or gentleness

^b Gk Tg: Heb people

responsibilities, the king counts on his patron's loyal response. 25–45: A new section with fresh topics: the LORD as loyal supporter (vv. 25–31), arming the king and granting him victory (vv. 32–42), and installing him as head of the kings of the world (vv. 43–45). 46–48: Repetition of the epithets of the LORD from vv. 1–3, rock and ⁵⁰ Great triumphs he gives to his king,

and shows steadfast love to his anointed,
to David and his descendants forever.

Psalm 19

To the leader. A Psalm of David.

¹ The heavens are telling the glory of God;
and the firmament^a proclaims his handiwork.

² Day to day pours forth speech,
and night to night declares knowledge.

³ There is no speech, nor are there words;
their voice is not heard;

⁴ yet their voice^b goes out through all the
earth,
and their words to the end of the world.

In the heavens^c he has set a tent for the sun, ⁵ which comes out like a bridegroom from his wedding canopy,
and like a strong man runs its course
with joy.

⁶ Its rising is from the end of the heavens,
and its circuit to the end of them;
and nothing is hid from its heat.

⁷ The law of the LORD is perfect,
reviving the soul;
the decrees of the LORD are sure,
making wise the simple;

⁸ the precepts of the LORD are right,
rejoicing the heart;
the commandment of the LORD is clear,
enlightening the eyes;

deliverer, bring the psalm to a close. 50: The LORD's eternal commitment to the dynasty of David (see 2 Sam 7:13; Ps 89:27–37).

Ps 19: Divine instruction gives light and life to humans. Like Pss 1 and 119, this psalm insists that divine instruction (Heb “torah”) transforms humans. Though many scholars divide the psalm into two distinct parts, a hymn to the sun in vv. 1–6 and a meditation on wisdom in vv. 7–14, the poem is coherent. Divine wisdom, discernible in the daily movements of the heavens (vv. 1–4b), particularly in the sun's steady course (vv. 4c–6), is also visible in the teaching (vv. 7–9) to which humans have access; the psalm concludes with a prayer to fulfill these teachings (vv. 10–14). 1–4: Without a word being said, the sun leads the day-night rhythm of the heavens that manifests divine control. 4: A tent for the sun, God has given authority to the sun to lead the course of the heavens. In comparable religious literature, the head of the pantheon authorized lesser deities to build their tent dwellings. The sun symbolizes divine justice and wisdom because nothing is hid from its rays. 7–10: There are six synonyms for instruction or law (Heb “torah”) in vv. 7–9. The first four describe the law's beneficial effects on humans; the final two are instead concerned with the teaching itself (v. 9). 11–13: May the wisdom contained in the law instruct the psalmist's heart. 12: Errors and hidden faults may refer to inadvertent sins.

Ps 20: Prayer for the king's victory. A communal petition for the king's victory, connected with Ps 21. The first part (vv. 1–5) prays that the king will be victorious in battle, and the second (vv. 6–9) gives an assurance that he will be successful. 1: The LORD answer you, occurs as petition in v. 1, assurance in v. 6, and petition in v. 9.

⁹ the fear of the LORD is pure,
enduring forever;
the ordinances of the LORD are true
and righteous altogether.

¹⁰ More to be desired are they than gold,
even much fine gold;
sweeter also than honey,
and drippings of the honeycomb.

¹¹ Moreover by them is your servant
warned;
in keeping them there is great reward.

¹² But who can detect their errors?
Clear me from hidden faults.

¹³ Keep back your servant also from the insolent;^d
do not let them have dominion over me.
Then I shall be blameless,
and innocent of great transgression.

¹⁴ Let the words of my mouth and the meditation of my heart
be acceptable to you,
O LORD, my rock and my redeemer.

Psalm 20

To the leader. A Psalm of David.

¹ The LORD answer you in the day of trouble!
The name of the God of Jacob protect you!

^a Or dome

^b Gk Jerome Compare Syr: Heb line

^c Heb In them

^d Or from proud thoughts

² May he send you help from the sanctuary, and give you support from Zion.
³ May he remember all your offerings,
and regard with favor your burnt sacrifices. Selah

⁴ May he grant you your heart's desire,
and fulfill all your plans.
⁵ May we shout for joy over your victory,
and in the name of our God set up our banners.
May the LORD fulfill all your petitions.

⁶ Now I know that the LORD will help his anointed;
he will answer him from his holy heaven
with mighty victories by his right hand.
⁷ Some take pride in chariots, and some in horses,
but our pride is in the name of the LORD our God.
⁸ They will collapse and fall,
but we shall rise and stand upright.
⁹ Give victory to the king, O LORD;
answer us when we call.^a

Psalm 21

To the leader. A Psalm of David.

¹ In your strength the king rejoices, O LORD,
and in your help how greatly he exults!
² You have given him his heart's desire,
and have not withheld the request of his lips. Selah

³ For you meet him with rich blessings;
you set a crown of fine gold on his head.

⁴ He asked you for life; you gave it to him—
length of days forever and ever.
⁵ His glory is great through your help;
splendor and majesty you bestow on him.
⁶ You bestow on him blessings forever;
you make him glad with the joy of your presence.
⁷ For the king trusts in the LORD, and through the steadfast love of the Most High he shall not be moved.

⁸ Your hand will find out all your enemies;
your right hand will find out those who hate you.
⁹ You will make them like a fiery furnace
when you appear.
The LORD will swallow them up in his wrath,
and fire will consume them.
¹⁰ You will destroy their offspring from the earth,
and their children from among humankind.
¹¹ If they plan evil against you,
if they devise mischief, they will not succeed.
¹² For you will put them to flight;
you will aim at their faces with your bows.

¹³ Be exalted, O LORD, in your strength!
We will sing and praise your power.

^a Gk: Heb give victory, O LORD; let the King answer us when we call

Day of trouble, a military crisis requiring the king to act as military commander. 3: Offerings and sacrifices could be offered to gain divine favor. Selah, see Ps 3.2n. 6: Now I know, the phrase elsewhere expresses great confidence (Job 19.25; Pss 41.11; 56.9); it may reflect a positive oracle that the king received. 7–8: Victory lies with God rather than superior military technology; cf. Ps 44.3.

Ps 21: Thanksgiving for the king's victory. A royal thanksgiving, a companion piece to Ps 20, reporting a victory gained with the LORD's help (vv. 1–7); it is followed by an assurance of future help (vv. 8–12) and concluded by a prayer (v. 13). The king's military role was understood to implement divine justice in an often hostile world. 1: Rejoices and exults, refers not only to the inner feelings of the king but to the public celebration that would follow a major victory. 2: Selah, see Ps 3.2n. 4–7: The king's divine-like qualities are not intrinsic to him, but are bestowed by God. 4: Life, not only the king's life but the people's as well, for the victory has brought security and prosperity. 5: Glory . . . splendor and majesty, the nimbus of light surrounding gods and kings. 10: Destroy their offspring, no one should be left to carry on the enemies' nefarious work. 13: Such a victory is an occasion for the entire community to rejoice in God.

Psalm 22

To the leader: according to The Deer of the Dawn.

A Psalm of David.

¹ My God, my God, why have you forsaken me?

Why are you so far from helping me,
from the words of my groaning?

² O my God, I cry by day, but you do not answer;
and by night, but find no rest.

³ Yet you are holy,
enthroned on the praises of Israel.

⁴ In you our ancestors trusted;
they trusted, and you delivered them.

⁵ To you they cried, and were saved;
in you they trusted, and were not put to shame.

⁶ But I am a worm, and not human;
scorned by others, and despised by the people.

⁷ All who see me mock at me;
they make mouths at me, they shake their heads;

⁸ “Commit your cause to the LORD; let him deliver—let him rescue the one in whom he delights!”

⁹ Yet it was you who took me from the womb;
you kept me safe on my mother’s breast.

¹⁰ On you I was cast from my birth, and since my mother bore me you have been my God.

¹¹ Do not be far from me, for trouble is near
and there is no one to help.

¹² Many bulls encircle me,
strong bulls of Bashan surround me;

¹³ they open wide their mouths at me,
like a ravening and roaring lion.

¹⁴ I am poured out like water,
and all my bones are out of joint;
my heart is like wax;
it is melted within my breast;

¹⁵ my mouth^a is dried up like a potsherd,
and my tongue sticks to my jaws;
you lay me in the dust of death.

¹⁶ For dogs are all around me;
a company of evildoers encircles me.

My hands and feet have shriveled;^b

¹⁷ I can count all my bones.

They stare and gloat over me;

¹⁸ they divide my clothes among themselves,
and for my clothing they cast lots.

¹⁹ But you, O LORD, do not be far away!
O my help, come quickly to my aid!

²⁰ Deliver my soul from the sword,
my life^c from the power of the dog!

²¹ Save me from the mouth of the lion!

From the horns of the wild oxen you have rescued^d me.

^a Cn: Heb strength

^b Meaning of Heb uncertain

^c Heb my only one

^d Heb answered

Ps 22: Plea to be delivered from relentless enemies. An individual petition remarkable for its intense expressions of anguish (vv. 1–2, 6–8, 12–18), vivid recollections of God’s healing presence (vv. 3–5, 9–11), lively gratitude for rescue (vv. 22–26), and trust in God’s universal sovereignty (vv. 27–31). Superscription: According to the Deer of the Dawn, a musical term, perhaps indicating the melody to which the words were sung. 1–21: The complaint is that the LORD, the patron of Israel’s ancestors (vv. 3–5) has not rescued one who suffers even though he has been faithful (vv. 9–11). 6: The dehumanized psalmist is mocked by his enemies. 12–21: The extensive and diverse metaphors for the supplicant’s trouble express the great extent of his trouble. 12–13: Enemies stalk the psalmist like wild beasts (Ps 7.2; Isa 56.9). The subhuman bestial world is contrasted with the human worshipers in the Temple (v. 22). 12: Bashan, a fertile region in northern Transjordan famous for its cattle. 14: Poured out like water, tears were conceived as welling up from the abdomen, that is, coming from the physical center of the person. 16: My hands and feet have shriveled, textually obscure (lit. “like a lion my hands and feet”); see textual note b. 17–18: I can count all my bones (lit. “ribs”), robbers have stripped the psalmist of his clothes and he is

22 I will tell of your name to my brothers and sisters;^a
in the midst of the congregation I will praise you:

23 You who fear the LORD, praise him!
All you offspring of Jacob, glorify him;
stand in awe of him, all you offspring of Israel!

24 For he did not despise or abhor
the affliction of the afflicted;
he did not hide his face from me,^b
but heard when I^c cried to him.

25 From you comes my praise in the great
congregation;
my vows I will pay before those who fear him.

26 The poor^d shall eat and be satisfied;
those who seek him shall praise the
LORD.
May your hearts live forever!

27 All the ends of the earth shall remember
and turn to the LORD;
and all the families of the nations shall worship before him.^e

28 For dominion belongs to the LORD,
and he rules over the nations.

29 To him,^f indeed, shall all who sleep in^g
the earth bow down;
before him shall bow all who go down
to the dust,
and I shall live for him.^h

30 Posterity will serve him;
future generations will be told about
the Lord,

31 andⁱ proclaim his deliverance to a people
yet unborn,
saying that he has done it.

Psalm 23

A Psalm of David.

1 The LORD is my shepherd, I shall not want.
2 He makes me lie down in green pastures;
he leads me beside still waters;^j
3 he restores my soul.^k
He leads me in right paths^l
for his name's sake.

4 Even though I walk through the darkest valley,^m
I fear no evil;
for you are with me;
your rod and your staff—
they comfort me.

5 You prepare a table before me
in the presence of my enemies;

^a Or kindred

^b Heb him

^c Heb he

^d Or afflicted

^e Gk Syr Jerome: Heb you

^f Cn: Heb They have eaten and

^g Cn: Heb all the fat ones

^h Compare Gk Syr Vg: Heb and he who cannot keep himself alive

ⁱ Compare Gk: Heb it will be told about the Lord to the generation, ³¹they will come and

^j Heb waters of rest

^k Or life

^l Or paths of righteousness

^m Or the valley of the shadow of death

emaciated. 22–31: The psalmist attempts to motivate God to rescue him by promising that he will then give thanks among humans, in the great congregation (v. 25), likely the Temple in Jerusalem; the rescue of a single individual will then have larger, even universal (see v. 27) and future (vv. 30–31) ramifications. 22: Tell of your name, declare to others what God has done, thereby encouraging them to praise God. 27: On praise of God by the nations, see, e.g., Pss 67.2–4; 86.9; 117.1. 29: On worship by the dead, contrast Pss 6.5; 30.9; 88.10–12; 115.17.

Ps 23: The LORD as shepherd and host. The most beloved of the psalms, a song of trust. Though seemingly idyllic, evil lurks at the margin (vv. 4a, 5b), and “nature” is sometimes dangerous (v. 4). The poem transposes to individual experience the Exodus traditions of the divine shepherd guiding Israel (e.g., Ps 78.43–55). There are two distinct images of God in the psalm: shepherd (vv. 1–4), and host of a banquet (v. 5); and two grammatical persons used of God: he in vv. 1–3, you in vv. 4–6. 1: Shepherd, a favorite title of ancient Near Eastern kings, symbolizing especially the king’s compassionate care for his people (Pss 80.1; 95.7; 100.3; Isa 40.11; Jer 10.21; Ezek 34.11–16). Verse 1 can be paraphrased: It is the LORD who is my shepherd; that is why I lack nothing. 2: Still waters, not swiftly running, so the sheep can keep their footing as they drink from the pool. 5: Prepare a table, you anoint my head with oil;

 my cup overflows.
 6 Surely^a goodness and mercy^b shall follow
 me
 all the days of my life,
 and I shall dwell in the house of the LORD
 my whole life long.^c

Psalm 24*Of David. A Psalm.*

1 The earth is the LORD's and all that is
 in it,
 the world, and those who live in it;
 2 for he has founded it on the seas,
 and established it on the rivers.
 3 Who shall ascend the hill of the LORD?
 And who shall stand in his holy place?
 4 Those who have clean hands and pure
 hearts,
 who do not lift up their souls to what is false,
 and do not swear deceitfully.
 5 They will receive blessing from the LORD, and vindication from the God of their
 salvation.
 6 Such is the company of those who seek
 him,
 who seek the face of the God of Jacob.^d

Selah

7 Lift up your heads, O gates!
 and be lifted up, O ancient doors!
 that the King of glory may come in.
 8 Who is the King of glory?
 The LORD, strong and mighty,
 the LORD, mighty in battle.
 9 Lift up your heads, O gates!
 and be lifted up, O ancient doors!
 that the King of glory may come in.
 10 Who is this King of glory?
 The LORD of hosts,
 he is the King of glory.

SelahPsalm 25Of David.

1 To you, O LORD, I lift up my soul.
 2 O my God, in you I trust;
 do not let me be put to shame;
 do not let my enemies exult over me.
 3 Do not let those who wait for you be put to shame;
 let them be ashamed who are wantonly treacherous.
 4 Make me to know your ways, O LORD;
 teach me your paths.

^a Or Only^b Or kindness^c Heb for length of days^d Gk Syr: Heb your face, O Jacob

the image of shepherd changes to that of host of a meal; cf. Ps 78.19. In the presence of my enemies, the LORD's invitation to dine vindicates the psalmist as just, whereas the enemies are not invited. 6: My whole life long, the Hebrew suggests simply long life, not "forever." Residing in the house of the LORD implies divine protection.

Ps 24: The holiness of the house of the LORD. A hymn celebrating the LORD's enthronement that begins, like Ps 15, with a demand of right conduct. The psalm proceeds in three stages: the proclamation of the cosmic victory of the LORD (vv. 1–2), a scrutiny to make certain that only the loyal enter and welcome the Divine Warrior to his dwelling (vv. 3–6), and a call to the Temple gates to welcome God the king. 1–2: Presupposed is the combat myth in which the storm god defeats chaotic Sea, creates the universe, and erects a palace (temple) to commemorate the victory. Israel likely borrowed and transformed this myth from its Canaanite predecessors. 3–6: Only those loyal to the victorious LORD are fit to share the fruits of victory; the questions determine whether worshipers have been loyal. 4: Lift up their souls to what is false, similar to the commandment of the Decalogue, "You shall have no other gods before you" (Ex 20.3; Deut 5.7). 5: Blessing from the LORD, the deity shares the fruits of victory. 6: Selah (also v. 10), see Ps 3.2n. 7: Lift up your heads, O gates! Personified, the Temple gates are invited to lift up their heads in joy and join the chorus welcoming the triumphant warrior; some scholars emend "gates" to "gatekeepers."

Ps 25: Prayer for forgiveness and guidance. An individual petition in acrostic form (see Ps 9–10n.), divided into three parts (vv. 1–7; 8–14; 15–22). The first and third parts are lengthy petitions in which "I" (the singer) addresses "you" (God); the middle part (with the exception of v. 11) is a hymn-lesson, speaking of God in the third person. 1: My soul, Heb "nepesh," the throat, face, and breast area, often rendered "soul" or "life" because one's vital signs are palpable in that part of the body; the Hebrew Bible does not recognize a body-soul dichotomy.

⁵Lead me in your truth, and teach me,
for you are the God of my salvation;
for you I wait all day long.

⁶Be mindful of your mercy, O LORD, and of
your steadfast love,
for they have been from of old.

⁷Do not remember the sins of my youth or my transgressions;
according to your steadfast love
remember me,
for your goodness' sake, O LORD!

⁸Good and upright is the LORD;
therefore he instructs sinners in the way.

⁹He leads the humble in what is right,
and teaches the humble his way.

¹⁰All the paths of the LORD are steadfast love and faithfulness,
for those who keep his covenant and his decrees.

¹¹For your name's sake, O LORD,
pardon my guilt, for it is great.

¹²Who are they that fear the LORD?
He will teach them the way that they should choose.

¹³They will abide in prosperity,
and their children shall possess the
land.

¹⁴The friendship of the LORD is for those who fear him,
and he makes his covenant known to
them.

¹⁵My eyes are ever toward the LORD,
for he will pluck my feet out of the net.

¹⁶Turn to me and be gracious to me,
for I am lonely and afflicted.

¹⁷Relieve the troubles of my heart,
and bring me^a out of my distress.

¹⁸Consider my affliction and my
trouble,
and forgive all my sins.

¹⁹Consider how many are my foes,
and with what violent hatred they hate
me.

²⁰O guard my life, and deliver me;
do not let me be put to shame, for I take refuge in you.

²¹May integrity and uprightness preserve
me,
for I wait for you.

²²Redeem Israel, O God,
out of all its troubles.

Psalm 26

Of David.

¹Vindicate me, O LORD,
for I have walked in my integrity,
and I have trusted in the LORD without wavering.

²Prove me, O LORD, and try me;
test my heart and mind.

³For your steadfast love is before my
eyes,
and I walk in faithfulness to you.^b

⁴I do not sit with the worthless,
nor do I consort with hypocrites;

⁵I hate the company of evildoers,
and will not sit with the wicked.

⁶I wash my hands in innocence,
and go around your altar, O LORD,

^a Or The troubles of my heart are enlarged; bring me

^b Or in your faithfulness

8–14: Apart from v. 11, the middle section is a hymn-lesson about divine guidance with allusions to the Exodus (way, he leads, paths, covenant). Even the petition for forgiveness in v. 11, pardon my guilt, cites Moses' plea in Ex 34.9. 15–22: As motives to move God to help, the psalmist simply says I am lonely (v. 16), my foes are many (v. 19), and I wait for you (v. 21). 22: At its conclusion, the psalm is generalized to the community.

Ps 26: Plea for salvation and for a declaration of righteousness. An individual petition, probably of a priest (presumably only a priest could go around your altar, v. 6) who is awed by the demands of his office. Since a priest represented all Israel (e.g., Ex 28.29–30) and Israel was a priestly people among the nations, a priest's psalm could be used by any individual. Walking occurs at the psalm's beginning and end, suggesting participation in sacred processions. 1: The priest asks God to vindicate his claims of right conduct, for no one's self-assessment is valid without God's acceptance. 4–5: As in Pss 1 and 101, the worshiper hates (rejects) the

⁷ singing aloud a song of thanksgiving, and telling all your wondrous deeds.

⁸ O LORD, I love the house in which you dwell,
and the place where your glory abides.

⁹ Do not sweep me away with sinners,
nor my life with the bloodthirsty,

¹⁰ those in whose hands are evil devices,
and whose right hands are full of bribes.

¹¹ But as for me, I walk in my integrity;
redeem me, and be gracious to me.

¹² My foot stands on level ground;
in the great congregation I will bless the LORD.

Psalm 27

Of David.

¹ The LORD is my light and my salvation;
whom shall I fear?

The LORD is the stronghold^a of my life;
of whom shall I be afraid?

² When evildoers assail me to devour my flesh—
my adversaries and foes—
they shall stumble and fall.

³ Though an army encamp against me,
my heart shall not fear;
though war rise up against me,
yet I will be confident.

⁴ One thing I asked of the LORD,
that will I seek after:

to live in the house of the LORD
all the days of my life,
to behold the beauty of the LORD,
and to inquire in his temple.

⁵ For he will hide me in his shelter
in the day of trouble;
he will conceal me under the cover of his
tent;
he will set me high on a rock.

⁶ Now my head is lifted up above my enemies all around me,
and I will offer in his tent
sacrifices with shouts of joy;
I will sing and make melody to the LORD.

⁷ Hear, O LORD, when I cry aloud,
be gracious to me and answer me!
⁸ “Come,” my heart says, “seek his face!”
Your face, LORD, do I seek.
⁹ Do not hide your face from me.

Do not turn your servant away in anger,
you who have been my help.
Do not cast me off, do not forsake me,
O God of my salvation!
¹⁰ If my father and mother forsake me,
the LORD will take me up.

¹¹ Teach me your way, O LORD,
and lead me on a level path
because of my enemies.

^a Or refuge

company and the projects of the wicked. 4: Sit with, implies partnering (1 Sam 2.8; Ps 101.6). 6: I wash my hands, washing is commanded by priestly rituals (Ex 30.21). 8–10: In contrast to “hating” the wicked in vv. 4–5, the psalmist “loves,” in the sense of choosing, God’s house and ways. 11: Confident of God’s acceptance, the psalmist resolves to continue walking the right path.

Ps 27: Longing to find the LORD in the Temple despite obstacles. Two psalm genres, song of trust (vv. 1–6) and individual petition (vv. 7–14), have been combined to express intense desire and courageous journeying. Mention of enemies and the desire to see God’s face in the Temple unify these two parts. 1–3: Light is associated with the sanctuary as in Pss 36.9; 43.3; 56.13; in antiquity kings and divinities were often depicted as emanating light. 2: Devour my flesh, the enemies are compared to wild animals (Pss 7.2; 17.12). 4: Three metaphors for desiring God: living in God’s house (Ps 84.4), beholding God’s beauty (Ex 24.11), and seeking (inquire) an oracle. 5: There are three metaphors for hope; all refer to the Temple: shelter, tent (Am 9.11; Ps 18.11), and rock (Ps 61.2). 6: Now, the psalmist can now look down from a secure place upon the enemies that once posed a threat. 7–10: A sudden shift to petition/lament as the psalmist becomes aware that enemies still pose a threat. 8: My heart says, a unique variant of the idiom “to say in one’s heart,” connoting utter sincerity. On God’s face, see Ps 17.15n. 10: The image of God as parent is rare in Psalms (see, e.g., 103.13). 11: Lead me on a level path, the psalmist asks ¹²Do not give me up to the will of my adversaries, for false witnesses have risen against me,

and they are breathing out violence.

¹³I believe that I shall see the goodness of the LORD
in the land of the living.

¹⁴Wait for the LORD;
be strong, and let your heart take courage;
wait for the LORD!

Psalm 28

Of David.

¹To you, O LORD, I call;
my rock, do not refuse to hear me,
for if you are silent to me,
I shall be like those who go down to the Pit.

²Hear the voice of my supplication,
as I cry to you for help,
as I lift up my hands toward your most holy sanctuary.^a ³Do not drag me away with the wicked,

with those who are workers of evil,
who speak peace with their neighbors,
while mischief is in their hearts.

⁴Repay them according to their work,
and according to the evil of their deeds;
repay them according to the work of their hands;
render them their due reward.

⁵Because they do not regard the works of the LORD,
or the work of his hands,
he will break them down and build them up no more.

⁶Blessed be the LORD,
for he has heard the sound of my pleadings.

⁷The LORD is my strength and my shield;
in him my heart trusts;
so I am helped, and my heart exults,
and with my song I give thanks to him.

⁸The LORD is the strength of his people;
he is the saving refuge of his anointed.

⁹O save your people, and bless your heritage;
be their shepherd, and carry them forever.

Psalm 29

A Psalm of David.

¹Ascribe to the LORD, O heavenly beings,^b
ascribe to the LORD glory and strength.

²Ascribe to the LORD the glory of his name;
worship the LORD in holy splendor.

³The voice of the LORD is over the waters;
the God of glory thunders,
the LORD, over mighty waters.

^a Heb your innermost sanctuary

^b Heb sons of gods

to be protected on the journey. 13: In the land of the living, better rendered “in the land of life,” an idiom for the Temple as in Pss 52.5; 56.13. 14: Perhaps recited in response, as encouragement to the psalmist.

Ps 28: Plea for the vindication of one falsely accused. An individual petition that asks God to indicate the innocence of a person in the absence of reliable witnesses. The psalmist prays that God not be silent (v. 1) and allow false accusers to win the day. 1: The Pit, a synonym for Sheol, the abode of the dead. 2: Lift up my hands was a posture of prayer. 3: Those . . . who speak peace, false accusers. 6–8: Blessed be the LORD, the LORD has spoken, perhaps through an oracle, and the psalmist responds with intense joy. 7: Strength and shield complement “rock” (v. 1). 8–9: As in other psalms (e.g., 14; 20; 25), the conclusion moves from the individual to the community, and to its leader, the anointed king. 9: Shepherd . . . carry, the final prayer may evoke Isa 40.11, where God carries “[the lambs] in his bosom, and gently leads the mother sheep.”

Ps 29: Acknowledging the LORD’s might in the storm. A hymn in which heavenly beings praise the LORD of the storm who brings life-giving rain; many scholars think that this was a Canaanite psalm adapted by early Israel. 1: The heavenly beings (lit. “sons of gods”) are summoned to acknowledge the LORD returning victorious to the assembly (cf. Pss 82.1; 89.5–7). 2: In holy splendor, perhaps “when the Holy One appears.” 3–9: The symbol of a cosmic event, a massive storm roars in from the Mediterranean and hits the coast with deafening thunderclaps (the voice of the LORD, used seven times in this section), drenching rain, and lightning flashes. The lumi-

⁴The voice of the LORD is powerful;
the voice of the LORD is full of majesty.

⁵The voice of the LORD breaks the cedars;
the LORD breaks the cedars of Lebanon.

⁶He makes Lebanon skip like a calf,
and Sirion like a young wild ox.

⁷The voice of the LORD flashes forth flames of fire.

⁸The voice of the LORD shakes the
wilderness;
the LORD shakes the wilderness of Kadesh.

⁹The voice of the LORD causes the oaks to whirl,^a
and strips the forest bare;
and in his temple all say, "Glory!"

¹⁰The LORD sits enthroned over the flood;
the LORD sits enthroned as king forever.

¹¹May the LORD give strength to his people!
May the LORD bless his people with peace!

Psalm 30

*A Psalm. A Song at the dedication of the temple.
Of David.*

¹I will extol you, O LORD, for you have drawn me up,
and did not let my foes rejoice over me.

²O LORD my God, I cried to you for help,
and you have healed me.

³O LORD, you brought up my soul from
Sheol,

restored me to life from among those gone down to the Pit.^b

⁴Sing praises to the LORD, O you his faithful ones,
and give thanks to his holy name.

⁵For his anger is but for a moment;
his favor is for a lifetime.
Weeping may linger for the night,
but joy comes with the morning.

⁶As for me, I said in my prosperity,
"I shall never be moved."

⁷By your favor, O LORD,
you had established me as a strong mountain;
you hid your face;
I was dismayed.

⁸To you, O LORD, I cried, and to the LORD I made
supplication:

⁹"What profit is there in my death,
if I go down to the Pit?
Will the dust praise you?
Will it tell of your faithfulness?"

¹⁰Hear, O LORD, and be gracious
to me!
O LORD, be my helper!"

¹¹You have turned my mourning into dancing;

^a Or causes the deer to calve

^b Or that I should not go down to the Pit

nous thundercloud is imagined as the LORD's chariot, and the thunder, rain, and lightning are his soldiers. They sweep across the trees and appear to shatter and shake the forested mountain; earthquake also accompanies a divine appearance or theophany (e.g., Pss 18.7; 114.7). 6: Sirion, Mount Hermon (see Deut 3.9), at the southern border of Lebanon. 8: Wilderness of Kadesh, the desert east of the city of Kadesh in central western Syria. 10: Enthroned over the flood, ancient myths sometimes depicted the storm god defeating hostile Sea and building his palace upon its body. The heavenly beings pray that the divine king would extend the fruits of victory to Israel, the LORD's special people.

Ps 30: Praise for deliverance. A thanksgiving with a persistent metaphor system: going down, death, silence; and rising up, life, praise. God moves the psalmist from one state to the other. The divine names ("the LORD" and "God") add up to twelve, the number of the tribes of Israel, suggesting that the healing is a type of what God does for all the tribes. Superscription: The words at the dedication of the temple were added when this psalm was sung at the Feast of Dedication (Hanukkah) commemorating the cleansing of the Temple by Judas Maccabeus in 164 BCE. 3: Language of death and recovery is used by people who were saved by God from life-threatening problems. Sheol . . . the Pit, the abode of the dead. 6: I shall never be moved, the psalmist's smugness preceded the crisis. Withdrawal of divine support led to collapse (cf. Ps 104.27–30). 9: The theme that God should save a psalmist because the dead do not praise God is common in the Psalms (see Ps 6.5n.). 11–12: The

you have taken off my sackcloth
and clothed me with joy, ¹²so that my soul^a may praise you and not be silent.
O LORD my God, I will give thanks to you forever.

Psalm 31

To the leader. A Psalm of David.

¹In you, O LORD, I seek refuge;
do not let me ever be put to shame;
in your righteousness deliver me.
²Incline your ear to me;
rescue me speedily.
Be a rock of refuge for me,
a strong fortress to save me.
³You are indeed my rock and my fortress;
for your name's sake lead me and guide
me, ⁴take me out of the net that is hidden for
me,
for you are my refuge.
⁵Into your hand I commit my spirit;
you have redeemed me, O LORD, faithful
God.
⁶You hate^b those who pay regard to worthless idols,
but I trust in the LORD.
⁷I will exult and rejoice in your steadfast
love,
because you have seen my affliction;
you have taken heed of my adversities, ⁸and have not delivered me into the hand of the enemy;
you have set my feet in a broad place.
⁹Be gracious to me, O LORD, for I am in
distress;
my eye wastes away from grief,
my soul and body also.

¹⁰For my life is spent with sorrow,
and my years with sighing;
my strength fails because of my misery,^c
and my bones waste away.

¹¹I am the scorn of all my adversaries,
a horror^d to my neighbors,
an object of dread to my acquaintances;
those who see me in the street flee from
me.

¹²I have passed out of mind like one who is dead;

I have become like a broken vessel.

¹³For I hear the whispering of many—terror all around!—
as they scheme together against me,
as they plot to take my life.

¹⁴But I trust in you, O LORD;
I say, "You are my God."

¹⁵My times are in your hand;
deliver me from the hand of my enemies and persecutors.

¹⁶Let your face shine upon your servant;
save me in your steadfast love.

¹⁷Do not let me be put to shame, O LORD,
for I call on you;

let the wicked be put to shame;
let them go dumbfounded to Sheol.

¹⁸Let the lying lips be stilled that speak insolently against the
righteous
with pride and contempt.

¹⁹O how abundant is your goodness that you have laid up for those who fear
you,

^a Heb that glory

^b One Heb Ms Gk Syr Jerome: MT I hate

^c Gk Syr: Heb my iniquity

^d Cn: Heb exceedingly psalmist casts off the mourning garments (sackcloth) to dance with joy.

Ps 31: Prayer for deliverance, and thanksgiving. An individual petition that combines features of a petition (vv. 1–4, 9–18) and a thanksgiving (vv. 5–8, 19–24). 2–4: The metaphors for refuge are spatial: rock, fortress (lit. "safe house"), crag (v. 3, NRSV "rock"). The psalmist asks to be led to those places. 9–18: The psalm returns to direct petition. Sickness, or perhaps old age, has cut off the sufferer from family and friends (vv. 9–13). 16: Let your face shine, a likely reference to the Priestly blessing (Num 6.25), meaning to adopt an open countenance that looks directly at the other person (see also Pss 4.6; 80.3). 17: Sheol, the underworld, the abode of the dead. 19: A major change in mood: leaving behind complaints, the psalmist expresses thanks. God hides the loyal in a shelter (a reference to the Temple as in Am 9.11; Pss 18.11; 27.5). The quest for a "safe house" in v. 2 has been and accomplished for those who take refuge in you,

 in the sight of everyone!
²⁰In the shelter of your presence you hide
 them
 from human plots;
 you hold them safe under your shelter
 from contentious tongues.

²¹Blessed be the LORD,
 for he has wondrously shown his steadfast love to me when I was beset as a city under siege.

²²I had said in my alarm,
 “I am driven far^a from your sight.”
 But you heard my supplications
 when I cried out to you for help.

²³Love the LORD, all you his saints.
 The LORD preserves the faithful,
 but abundantly repays the one who acts
 haughtily.

²⁴Be strong, and let your heart take courage,
 all you who wait for the LORD.

Psalm 32

Of David. A Maskil.

¹Happy are those whose transgression is forgiven,
 whose sin is covered.

²Happy are those to whom the LORD
 imputes no iniquity,
 and in whose spirit there is no
 deceit.

³While I kept silence, my body wasted
 away
 through my groaning all day long.

⁴For day and night your hand was heavy
 upon me;
 my strength was dried up^b as by the heat of summer. Selah

⁵Then I acknowledged my sin to you, and I did not hide my iniquity;
 I said, “I will confess my transgressions to
 the LORD,”
 and you forgave the guilt of my sin. Selah

⁶Therefore let all who are faithful offer prayer to you;
 at a time of distress,^c the rush of mighty waters
 shall not reach them.

⁷You are a hiding place for me;
 you preserve me from trouble;
 you surround me with glad cries of deliverance. Selah

⁸I will instruct you and teach you the way
 you should go;
 I will counsel you with my eye upon
 you.

⁹Do not be like a horse or a mule, without
 understanding,

^a Another reading is cut off

^b Meaning of Heb uncertain

^c Cn: Heb at a time of finding only answered by God’s granting admission to the Temple. 23–24: As is often the case in Psalms, at the end the petitioner moves from himself to the broader community. 23: Saints is a misleading translation; it is elsewhere translated “faithful” or “loyal” ones.

Ps 32: Happy the one whose sin is forgiven. An individual thanksgiving, though in Christian tradition it is classed among the seven penitential psalms (Pss 6; 32; 38; 51; 102; 130; 143). The psalm has three mutually reinforcing metaphors for sin and three for forgiveness: sin is a burden one has to bear or carry, forgiveness occurring when God bears it away; sin is an act that God keeps on seeing (it is “in God’s face”), forgiveness occurring when God covers it so it can no longer be seen; sin is “imputing iniquity,” judging someone is a sinner and withholding blessing, and forgiveness consists in changing that judgment. Superscription: Maskil, a technical term of uncertain significance. 1: Whose transgression is forgiven, an indirect way of expressing God’s action. The psalmist’s feverish attempts to cover (lit. “hide”) the sin prevented God from covering it (looking away from it). 4: Your hand was heavy upon me is an idiom for punishment (see 1 Sam 5.6). Selah (also vv. 5,7), see Ps 3.2n. 6–11: Deeply moved by the experience of God’s mercy, the singer tells the faithful what they may not realize: sin need not destroy you or separate you from God. 9: Like a horse or a mule, people can turn away like work animals who do not understand human speech, but joy follows forgiveness.

whose temper must be curbed with bit
and bridle,
else it will not stay near you.

¹⁰ Many are the torments of the wicked,
but steadfast love surrounds those who trust in the LORD.

¹¹ Be glad in the LORD and rejoice,
O righteous,
and shout for joy, all you upright in
heart.

Psalm 33

¹ Rejoice in the LORD, O you righteous.
Praise befits the upright.

² Praise the LORD with the lyre;
make melody to him with the harp of ten strings.

³ Sing to him a new song;
play skillfully on the strings, with loud
shouts.

⁴ For the word of the LORD is upright,
and all his work is done in faithfulness.

⁵ He loves righteousness and justice;
the earth is full of the steadfast love of
the LORD.

⁶ By the word of the LORD the heavens were
made,
and all their host by the breath of his
mouth.

⁷ He gathered the waters of the sea as in a bottle;
he put the deeps in storehouses.

⁸ Let all the earth fear the LORD;
let all the inhabitants of the world
stand in awe of him.

⁹ For he spoke, and it came to be;
he commanded, and it stood firm.

¹⁰ The LORD brings the counsel of the nations to nothing;
he frustrates the plans of the
peoples.

¹¹ The counsel of the LORD stands
forever,
the thoughts of his heart to all
generations.

¹² Happy is the nation whose God is the LORD,
the people whom he has chosen as his heritage.

¹³ The LORD looks down from heaven;
he sees all humankind.

¹⁴ From where he sits enthroned he watches
all the inhabitants of the earth—

¹⁵ he who fashions the hearts of them all,
and observes all their deeds.

¹⁶ A king is not saved by his great army;
a warrior is not delivered by his great
strength.

¹⁷ The war horse is a vain hope for
victory,
and by its great might it cannot save.

¹⁸ Truly the eye of the LORD is on those
who fear him,
on those who hope in his steadfast
love,

¹⁹ to deliver their soul from death,
and to keep them alive in famine.

²⁰ Our soul waits for the LORD;
he is our help and shield.

²¹ Our heart is glad in him,
because we trust in his holy name.

²² Let your steadfast love, O LORD, be upon us,
even as we hope in you.

Ps 33: Praise of the LORD who created the universe. A hymn praising the divine word that made the three-tiered universe and guides it even when humans try to pervert it to their ends. 1–11: The conjunction for in vv. 4 and 9 introduces the motive for giving praise, in this case, God's upright and powerful word that has brought the universe into being (vv. 6–7; cf. Gen 1.6). That creative word determines the course of history, and no human word can contravene it (vv. 10–11). 7: Storehouses, cf. Ps 135.7; Job 38.22. 12–22: Though not mentioned by name, Israel is declared happy or fortunate (v. 12) simply by being chosen out of all the nations. When the LORD scrutinizes humanity, all purely human sources of strength are relativized (vv. 16–17; cf. v. 10; Ps 20.7). Israel's (and the nations') task is not to rely on human strength but to wait on the LORD's goodness and power. 20–22: These verses are connected causally and suggest that God should save Israel because of Israel's trust in God.

Psalm 34

Of David, when he feigned madness before Abimelech, so that he drove him out, and he went away.

¹ I will bless the LORD at all times;
his praise shall continually be in my
mouth.

² My soul makes its boast in the LORD;
let the humble hear and be glad.

³ O magnify the LORD with me,
and let us exalt his name together.

⁴ I sought the LORD, and he answered me,
and delivered me from all my fears.

⁵ Look to him, and be radiant;
so your^a faces shall never be ashamed.

⁶ This poor soul cried, and was heard by
the LORD,
and was saved from every trouble.

⁷ The angel of the LORD encamps around those who fear him, and delivers them.

⁸ O taste and see that the LORD is good;
happy are those who take refuge in him.

⁹ O fear the LORD, you his holy ones,
for those who fear him have no want.

¹⁰ The young lions suffer want and hunger,
but those who seek the LORD lack no
good thing.

¹¹ Come, O children, listen to me;
I will teach you the fear of the LORD.

¹² Which of you desires life,
and covets many days to enjoy good?

¹³ Keep your tongue from evil,
and your lips from speaking deceit.

¹⁴ Depart from evil, and do good;
seek peace, and pursue it.

¹⁵ The eyes of the LORD are on the
righteous,
and his ears are open to their cry.

¹⁶ The face of the LORD is against evildoers, to cut off the remembrance of them from the earth.

¹⁷ When the righteous cry for help, the LORD hears,
and rescues them from all their troubles.

¹⁸ The LORD is near to the brokenhearted, and saves the crushed in spirit.

¹⁹ Many are the afflictions of the righteous,
but the LORD rescues them from them
all.

²⁰ He keeps all their bones;
not one of them will be broken.

²¹ Evil brings death to the wicked, and those who hate the righteous will be condemned.

²² The LORD redeems the life of his servants;
none of those who take refuge in him
will be condemned.

Psalm 35

Of David.

¹ Contend, O LORD, with those who contend with me;
fight against those who fight against me!

² Take hold of shield and buckler,
and rise up to help me!

^a Gk Syr Jerome: Heb their

Ps 34: Praise and acknowledgment of deliverance from danger. An individual thanksgiving in acrostic form (see Ps 9–10n.). Individual thanksgivings publicize the deliverance to encourage others to remain loyal to God. The didactic element is underlined in this psalm. Superscription: According to 1 Sam 21.10–15, David feigned madness before Achish, not Abimelech. The ascription of this psalm to that particular historical situation is likely secondary. 8: Taste, a metaphor for experience. 11–22: Borrowing from the portrait of personified Wisdom (especially Prov 9), the healed psalmist teaches others how to gain life. “Life” here is long life resulting from righteous conduct, in contrast to the brief life of the wicked, who die prematurely. 11: Fear of the LORD, best rendered “revering the LORD.” 16–17: The psalm reads better if this order of the two verses is reversed, following the order of the alphabet found in Lam 2; 3; 4.

Ps 35: Prayer for deliverance from enemies. An individual petition in three sections (vv. 1–10; 11–18; 19–28). It uses many metaphors for enemies—soldiers (vv. 1–3), hunters (v. 7), and lions (v. 17)—and the imagery of war, lawsuit, and conspiracy to show that the whole world is arrayed against a lone individual. Positive petitions (vv. 1–3, 17, 22–24, 27) alternate with imprecations (vv. 4–6, 8, 19, 25–26), promises of thanksgiving (vv. 9–10, 18, 28), and complaints (vv. 7, 11–16). Each of the psalm’s three sections concludes with a promise of praise

³ Draw the spear and javelin against my pursuers;
say to my soul,
“I am your salvation.”

⁴ Let them be put to shame and dishonor who seek after my life.
Let them be turned back and confounded who devise evil against me.

⁵ Let them be like chaff before the wind,
with the angel of the LORD driving them on.

⁶ Let their way be dark and slippery,
with the angel of the LORD pursuing
them.

⁷ For without cause they hid their net^a for
me;
without cause they dug a pit^b for my life.

⁸ Let ruin come on them unawares.
And let the net that they hid ensnare
them;
let them fall in it—to their ruin.

⁹ Then my soul shall rejoice in the LORD, exulting in his deliverance.

¹⁰ All my bones shall say,
“O LORD, who is like you?
You deliver the weak
from those too strong for them,
the weak and needy from those who despoil them.”

¹¹ Malicious witnesses rise up;
they ask me about things I do not know.

¹² They repay me evil for good;
my soul is forlorn.

¹³ But as for me, when they were sick,
I wore sackcloth;
I afflicted myself with fasting.
I prayed with head bowed^c on my bosom,
¹⁴ as though I grieved for a friend or a brother;

I went about as one who laments for a mother,
bowed down and in mourning.

¹⁵ But at my stumbling they gathered in glee,
they gathered together against me;
ruffians whom I did not know
tore at me without ceasing;

¹⁶ they impiously mocked more and more,^d gnashing at me with their teeth.

¹⁷ How long, O LORD, will you look on?
Rescue me from their ravages,
my life from the lions!

¹⁸ Then I will thank you in the great
congregation;
in the mighty throng I will praise you.

¹⁹ Do not let my treacherous enemies
rejoice over me,
or those who hate me without cause
wink the eye.

²⁰ For they do not speak peace,
but they conceive deceitful words against those who are quiet in the land.

²¹ They open wide their mouths against
me;
they say, “Aha, Aha,
our eyes have seen it.”

²² You have seen, O LORD; do not be silent!
O Lord, do not be far from me!

²³ Wake up! Bestir yourself for my defense, for my cause, my God and my Lord!

²⁴ Vindicate me, O LORD, my God,
according to your righteousness,
and do not let them rejoice over me.

²⁵ Do not let them say to themselves,
“Aha, we have our heart’s desire.”
Do not let them say, “We have swallowed you^e up.”

^a Heb a pit, their net

^b The word pit is transposed from the preceding line

^c Or My prayer turned back

^d Cn Compare Gk: Heb like the profanest of mockers of a cake

^e Heb him

(vv. 9–10,18,28). 4: Be put to shame and dishonor, God is asked to bring about the rescue in full view of others. 5–6: The angel of the LORD is God’s emissary, effecting punishment. 7–8: See Ps 7.15–16n. 23: Wake up, the demand reflects the ancient Near Eastern view that God rested after a great deed (as in Gen 2.3) and required a fresh summons (Pss 44.23; 59.5; Isa 51.9).

²⁶ Let all those who rejoice at my calamity be put to shame and confusion;
let those who exalt themselves against me
be clothed with shame and dishonor.

²⁷ Let those who desire my vindication shout for joy and be glad,
and say evermore,
“Great is the LORD,
who delights in the welfare of his servant.”

²⁸ Then my tongue shall tell of your
righteousness
and of your praise all day long.

Psalms 36

To the leader. Of David, the servant of the LORD.

¹ Transgression speaks to the wicked
deep in their hearts;
there is no fear of God
before their eyes.
² For they flatter themselves in their own
eyes
that their iniquity cannot be found out and hated.
³ The words of their mouths are mischief
and deceit;
they have ceased to act wisely and do
good.
⁴ They plot mischief while on their beds;
they are set on a way that is not good;
they do not reject evil.
⁵ Your steadfast love, O LORD, extends to
the heavens,
your faithfulness to the clouds.
⁶ Your righteousness is like the mighty
mountains,

your judgments are like the great deep;
you save humans and animals alike,
O LORD.

⁷ How precious is your steadfast love,
O God!

All people may take refuge in the shadow of your wings.

⁸ They feast on the abundance of your house,
and you give them drink from the river
of your delights.

⁹ For with you is the fountain of life;
in your light we see light.

¹⁰ O continue your steadfast love to those who know you,
and your salvation to the upright of heart!

¹¹ Do not let the foot of the arrogant tread
on me,
or the hand of the wicked drive me away.

¹² There the evildoers lie prostrate;
they are thrust down, unable to rise.

Psalms 37

Of David.

¹ Do not fret because of the wicked;
do not be envious of wrongdoers,
² for they will soon fade like the grass,
and wither like the green herb.

³ Trust in the LORD, and do good;
so you will live in the land, and enjoy security.

⁴ Take delight in the LORD, and he will give you the desires of your
heart.

Ps 36: God sustains the faithful. An individual petition that develops the statement of trust to an unusual degree. Instead of complaining about the attacks of the wicked, the psalmist gives a vivid portrait of the wicked person (vv. 1–4). The statement of trust (vv. 5–9) enlarges on the LORD’s saving power, and the petition is extended (vv. 10–12). 1–4: The self-ruled individual is contrasted with the God-ruled world. 4: While on their beds, i.e., privately, at night; cf. Mic 2.1. 5–9: The wicked are unaware that God works in all parts of the universe—sky, mountains (earth), and sea (vv. 5–6)—and especially in the Temple (your house) from which flows the river of your delights (v. 8); cf. Ps 46.4; Ezek 47.1–2. 7: Shadow of your wings, see Ps 17.8n. 9: In your light we see light, enjoy life (Job 3.16; Ps 49.19), which is made possible by the luminous God present in the Temple. 12: There, possibly a reference to Zion and its Temple as in Pss 48.6; 76.3; 87.4.

Ps 37: Exhortation to courage and endurance. An instructional poem in acrostic form (see Ps 9–10n.), using aphorisms and exhortations to encourage people to a faithful life (see Pss 49; 78; 127; 128). 1–11: One should maintain one’s equanimity when the wicked prosper and are admired. Retribution is inevitable, however, for the wicked will be shamed (their hopes will prove empty) and the righteous rewarded, typically with the pre-

⁵ Commit your way to the LORD;
trust in him, and he will act.
⁶ He will make your vindication shine like
the light,
and the justice of your cause like the
noonday.

⁷ Be still before the LORD, and wait patiently for him;
do not fret over those who prosper in their way,
over those who carry out evil devices.

⁸ Refrain from anger, and forsake wrath.
Do not fret—it leads only to evil.
⁹ For the wicked shall be cut off, but those who wait for the LORD shall inherit the land.

¹⁰ Yet a little while, and the wicked will be
no more;
though you look diligently for their place, they will not be there.

¹¹ But the meek shall inherit the land,
and delight themselves in abundant prosperity.

¹² The wicked plot against the righteous,
and gnash their teeth at them;
¹³ but the LORD laughs at the wicked,
for he sees that their day is coming.

¹⁴ The wicked draw the sword and bend their bows
to bring down the poor and needy,
to kill those who walk uprightly;
¹⁵ their sword shall enter their own heart,
and their bows shall be broken.

¹⁶ Better is a little that the righteous person has
than the abundance of many wicked.
¹⁷ For the arms of the wicked shall be broken,
but the LORD upholds the righteous.

¹⁸ The LORD knows the days of the
blameless,
and their heritage will abide forever;
¹⁹ they are not put to shame in evil times,
in the days of famine they have abundance.

²⁰ But the wicked perish, and the enemies of the LORD are like the glory of the pastures;
they vanish—like smoke they vanish
away.

²¹ The wicked borrow, and do not pay back,
but the righteous are generous and keep giving;

²² for those blessed by the LORD shall
inherit the land,
but those cursed by him shall be
cut off.

²³ Our steps^a are made firm by the LORD,
when he delights in our^b way;
²⁴ though we stumble,^c we^d shall not fall headlong,
for the LORD holds us^e by the hand.

²⁵ I have been young, and now am old,
yet I have not seen the righteous forsaken
or their children begging bread.

²⁶ They are ever giving liberally and lending,
and their children become a blessing.

²⁷ Depart from evil, and do good;
so you shall abide forever.

^a Heb A man's steps

^b Heb his

^c Heb he stumbles

^d Heb he

^e Heb him

cious gift of the land (vv. 3,9,11,22,29,34). 12–20: The wicked try to attack the righteous, but the LORD defends them. 21–26: The same Heb word in vv. 21 and 26 marks off the section (NRSV borrow, lending). To give to others is to show confidence in the LORD and eventually leads to a share in the LORD's land (vv. 21–22). 25: I have not seen the righteous forsaken, a statement of how the universe runs under divine rule, not necessarily an empirical observation. 27–40: Three imperative verbs dominate the section: Depart (v. 27), Wait (v. 34), and Mark (v. 37).

²⁸ For the LORD loves justice;
he will not forsake his faithful ones.

The righteous shall be kept safe forever,
but the children of the wicked shall be
cut off.

²⁹ The righteous shall inherit the land,
and live in it forever.

³⁰ The mouths of the righteous utter
wisdom,
and their tongues speak justice.

³¹ The law of their God is in their hearts;
their steps do not slip.

³² The wicked watch for the righteous, and seek to kill them.

³³ The LORD will not abandon them to their power,
or let them be condemned when they are brought to trial.

³⁴ Wait for the LORD, and keep to his way,
and he will exalt you to inherit the land;
you will look on the destruction of the
wicked.

³⁵ I have seen the wicked oppressing, and towering like a cedar of Lebanon.^a

³⁶ Again I^b passed by, and they were no
more;
though I sought them, they could not
be found.

³⁷ Mark the blameless, and behold the upright,
for there is posterity for the peaceable.

³⁸ But transgressors shall be altogether
destroyed;
the posterity of the wicked shall be cut
off.

³⁹ The salvation of the righteous is from
the LORD;
he is their refuge in the time of trouble.

⁴⁰ The LORD helps them and rescues them;
he rescues them from the wicked, and saves them,
because they take refuge in him.

Psalm 38

A Psalm of David, for the memorial offering.

¹ O LORD, do not rebuke me in your anger,
or discipline me in your wrath.

² For your arrows have sunk into me,
and your hand has come down
on me.

³ There is no soundness in my flesh
because of your indignation;
there is no health in my bones
because of my sin.

⁴ For my iniquities have gone over my
head;
they weigh like a burden too heavy
for me.

⁵ My wounds grow foul and fester
because of my foolishness;

⁶ I am utterly bowed down and prostrate;
all day long I go around mourning.

⁷ For my loins are filled with burning,
and there is no soundness in my flesh.

⁸ I am utterly spent and crushed;
I groan because of the tumult of my
heart.

⁹ O Lord, all my longing is known to you;
my sighing is not hidden from you.

¹⁰ My heart throbs, my strength fails me;
as for the light of my eyes—it also has gone from me.

^a Gk: Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Gk Syr Jerome: Heb he

35–36: Like wisdom literature, this psalm emphasizes experience and observation.

Ps 38: Confession of sin and plea for forgiveness. An individual petition notable for its vivid portrayal of anguish resulting from sin and of patient waiting for healing. People have interpreted the psalmist's illness as divine rejection and therefore keep their distance. An individual lament in the Hebrew Bible, this psalm in Christian tradition is one of the seven penitential psalms (Pss 6; 32; 51; 102; 130; 143). Superscription: For the memorial offering (also Ps 70), meaning uncertain. 1: Compare 6.1, suggesting that this was a stereotypical way of beginning a petition psalm. Psalms 6 and 38 are quite different, however: the petitioner in Ps 6 assumes that he is being unjustly punished, while this psalmist confesses his guilt. 9–10: The verses echo the anguish

¹¹ My friends and companions stand aloof
from my affliction,
and my neighbors stand far off.

¹² Those who seek my life lay their snares;
those who seek to hurt me speak of
ruin,
and meditate treachery all day long.

¹³ But I am like the deaf, I do not hear;
like the mute, who cannot speak.

¹⁴ Truly, I am like one who does not hear,
and in whose mouth is no retort.

¹⁵ But it is for you, O LORD, that I wait;
it is you, O Lord my God, who will answer.

¹⁶ For I pray, “Only do not let them rejoice
over me,
those who boast against me when my foot slips.”

¹⁷ For I am ready to fall,
and my pain is ever with me.

¹⁸ I confess my iniquity;
I am sorry for my sin.

¹⁹ Those who are my foes without cause^a
are mighty,
and many are those who hate me
wrongfully.

²⁰ Those who render me evil for good are my adversaries because I follow after good.

²¹ Do not forsake me, O LORD;
O my God, do not be far from me;

²² make haste to help me,
O Lord, my salvation.

Psalm 39

To the leader: to Jeduthun. A Psalm of David.

¹ I said, “I will guard my ways that I may not sin with my tongue;
I will keep a muzzle on my mouth
as long as the wicked are in my presence.”

² I was silent and still;
I held my peace to no avail;
my distress grew worse,
³ my heart became hot within me.

While I mused, the fire burned;
then I spoke with my tongue:

⁴ “LORD, let me know my end,
and what is the measure of my days;
let me know how fleeting my life is.

⁵ You have made my days a few handbreadths, and my lifetime is as nothing in your
sight.

Surely everyone stands as a mere breath. Selah

⁶ Surely everyone goes about like a shadow.

Surely for nothing they are in turmoil;
they heap up, and do not know who will gather.

⁷ “And now, O Lord, what do I wait for?
My hope is in you.

⁸ Deliver me from all my transgressions.
Do not make me the scorn of the fool.

⁹ I am silent; I do not open my mouth,
for it is you who have done it.

¹⁰ Remove your stroke from me;
I am worn down by the blows^b of your
hand.

^a QMs: MT my living foes

^b Heb hostility

described in vv. 3–8. 11: Cf. Ps 31:9–18n. 15–16: The verses echo the anguish in vv. 11–14. 15: The psalmist trusts God rather than humans. 21–22: The closing petitions are similar in syntax to the opening petitions (vv. 1–2). 21: Do not forsake me is also a stereotypical expression in petitions, e.g., Ps 27:9.

Ps 39: Plea that suffering might end. An individual petition. Forced to remain silent because enemies misinterpret any utterance (vv. 1–3), the psalmist asks God how much longer the suffering will continue (vv. 4–6). Since the suffering comes from God, only God can end it (vv. 7–13). Superscription: Jeduthun (also in the superscriptions of Pss 62 and 77), a Temple singer (1 Chr 25:1; etc.). 1: Sin with my tongue, better, “offend by my speech”; since one’s words might convince others that the suffering is just retribution for rebellion, the psalmist resolves to complain only to God. 4: Let me know my end, better, “Let me know the term (of my affliction), what the length of my days (of suffering) is,” expressing the belief that afflictions lasted for a predetermined period. To the psalmist, it is unfair of God to burden an already short life span with a lengthy affliction. 5: Selah

¹¹“You chastise mortals
in punishment for sin, consuming like a moth what is dear to
them;
surely everyone is a mere breath. Selah

¹²“Hear my prayer, O LORD,
and give ear to my cry;
do not hold your peace at my tears.

For I am your passing guest,
an alien, like all my forebears.

¹³Turn your gaze away from me, that I may smile again,
before I depart and am no more.”

Psalm 40

To the leader. Of David. A Psalm.

¹I waited patiently for the LORD;
he inclined to me and heard my cry.

²He drew me up from the desolate pit,^a
out of the miry bog,
and set my feet upon a rock,
making my steps secure.

³He put a new song in my mouth,
a song of praise to our God.
Many will see and fear,
and put their trust in the LORD.

⁴Happy are those who make the LORD their trust,
who do not turn to the proud,
to those who go astray after false gods.

⁵You have multiplied, O LORD my God, your wondrous deeds and your thoughts toward us;
none can compare with you.

Were I to proclaim and tell of them,
they would be more than can be counted.

⁶Sacrifice and offering you do not desire,
but you have given me an open ear.^b Burnt offering and sin offering you have not required.

⁷Then I said, “Here I am;
in the scroll of the book it is written of me.”^c

⁸I delight to do your will, O my God;
your law is within my heart.”

⁹I have told the glad news of deliverance
in the great congregation;
see, I have not restrained my lips,
as you know, O LORD.

¹⁰I have not hidden your saving help within my heart,
I have spoken of your faithfulness and
your salvation;
I have not concealed your steadfast love
and your faithfulness
from the great congregation.

¹¹Do not, O LORD, withhold your mercy from me;
let your steadfast love and your faithfulness
keep me safe forever.

¹²For evils have encompassed me without number;
my iniquities have overtaken me,
until I cannot see;
they are more than the hairs of my head,
and my heart fails me.

¹³Be pleased, O LORD, to deliver me;
O LORD, make haste to help me.

^a Cn: Heb pit of tumult

^b Heb ears you have dug for me

^c Meaning of Heb uncertain

(also v. 11), see Ps 3.2n. 7: And now, signals the shift from complaint to petition. 12: See Lev 25.23; 1 Chr 29.15. 13: A similar image is found in Job 7.19; in both cases, the sufferer asks God to look less closely, for if God scrutinizes people, they will surely be found guilty.

Ps 40: A thanksgiving with a plea for further help. A hybrid psalm of thanksgiving (vv. 1–10) and individual petition (vv. 11–17). After experiencing salvation, the psalmist faces further adversity. Vv. 13–17 are duplicated in Ps 70. 1–3b: Report of the rescue. 3: New song, “new” refers to the startling new action celebrated in the song. 6–8: Instead of the customary sacrifice offering, God asks for a self-offering through obedience; cf. 1 Sam 15.22; Ps 50.8–9; Mic 6.6–7. 7: Here I am, the psalmist is completely available for the task (cf. Isa 6.8), in this case, to tell of the deliverance and its significance (vv. 9–10). The scroll of the book, what is decreed from on high and immutable; cf. Pss 69.28; 139.16. 8: Observing God’s word is internalized. 11–17: Acceptance of the task of proc-

¹⁴ Let all those be put to shame and confusion who seek to snatch away my life;
 let those be turned back and brought to dishonor
 who desire my hurt.

¹⁵ Let those be appalled because of their shame
 who say to me, "Aha, Aha!"

¹⁶ But may all who seek you rejoice and be glad in you;
 may those who love your salvation say continually, "Great is the LORD!"

¹⁷ As for me, I am poor and needy, but the Lord takes thought for me.
 You are my help and my deliverer;
 do not delay, O my God.

Psalm 41

To the leader. A Psalm of David.

¹ Happy are those who consider the poor;^a
 the LORD delivers them in the day of trouble.

² The LORD protects them and keeps them alive;
 they are called happy in the land.
 You do not give them up to the will of their enemies.

³ The LORD sustains them on their sickbed;
 in their illness you heal all their infirmities.^b

⁴ As for me, I said, "O LORD, be gracious to me;
 heal me, for I have sinned against you."

⁵ My enemies wonder in malice
 when I will die, and my name perish.

⁶ And when they come to see me, they utter empty words,
 while their hearts gather mischief;
 when they go out, they tell it abroad.

⁷ All who hate me whisper together about me;
 they imagine the worst for me.

⁸ They think that a deadly thing has fastened on me,
 that I will not rise again from where I lie.

⁹ Even my bosom friend in whom I trusted, who ate of my bread, has lifted the heel
 against me.

¹⁰ But you, O LORD, be gracious to me,
 and raise me up, that I may repay them.

¹¹ By this I know that you are pleased with me;
 because my enemy has not triumphed
 over me.

¹² But you have upheld me because of my integrity,
 and set me in your presence forever.

¹³ Blessed be the LORD, the God of Israel,
 from everlasting to everlasting.
 Amen and Amen.

BOOK II PSALMS 42–72

Psalm 42

To the leader. A Maskil of the Korahites.

¹ As a deer longs for flowing streams,
 so my soul longs for you, O God.

^a Or weak

^b Heb you change all his bed

lamentation puts the psalmist in fresh danger and in need of God's help. 14: Shame, violating accepted morality brought dishonor upon the violator. The prayer is that the enemies' schemes be publicly frustrated. 15: Aha, Aha, malicious cries of triumph that the psalmist hopes will be proved foolish by God's judgment. 16: God's help will encourage other righteous people. 17: Psalms often depicts the supplicant as poor and needy.

Ps 41: Thanksgiving for rescue. A thanksgiving in which the psalmist in vv. 4–10 cites an earlier prayer as a kind of verbal votive offering. 1: Happy are those who consider the poor (i.e., those who are attentive to the poor) is the psalmist's conclusion after a profound deliverance (like Ps 32.1). Those who help the needy are themselves helped in their need. 4–10: The psalmist's earlier prayer shows fear of enemies who wanted the psalmist to die and leave behind no name, i.e., no children to carry on the family. 4: The psalmist believes that sin is the cause of illness. 10: To be raised from the sickbed constitutes a declaration of the psalmist's innocence to the enemies who wish the psalmist dead. 12: Forever is hyperbolic. 13: Not a part of the psalm, but a doxology or blessing concluding Book I, the first of five editorial sections of the Psalms. The vast majority of the previous psalms were ascribed to David; the following nine are not.

² My soul thirsts for God,
for the living God.

When shall I come and behold
the face of God?

³ My tears have been my food
day and night,
while people say to me continually,
“Where is your God?”

⁴ These things I remember,
as I pour out my soul:
how I went with the throng,^a and led them in procession to the house
of God,
with glad shouts and songs of
thanksgiving,
a multitude keeping festival.

⁵ Why are you cast down, O my soul,
and why are you disquieted within
me?

Hope in God; for I shall again praise him,
my help ⁶ and my God.

My soul is cast down within me;
therefore I remember you
from the land of Jordan and of Hermon, from Mount Mizar.

⁷ Deep calls to deep
at the thunder of your cataracts;
all your waves and your billows
have gone over me.

⁸ By day the LORD commands his steadfast
love,
and at night his song is with me,
a prayer to the God of my life.

⁹ I say to God, my rock,
“Why have you forgotten me?
Why must I walk about mournfully
because the enemy oppresses me?”

¹⁰ As with a deadly wound in my body,
my adversaries taunt me,
while they say to me continually,
“Where is your God?”

¹¹ Why are you cast down, O my soul,
and why are you disquieted within me?
Hope in God; for I shall again praise him,
my help and my God.

Psalm 43

¹ Vindicate me, O God, and defend my
cause
against an ungodly people;
from those who are deceitful and unjust
deliver me!

² For you are the God in whom I take
refuge;
why have you cast me off?
Why must I walk about mournfully
because of the oppression of the enemy?

³ O send out your light and your truth;
let them lead me;
let them bring me to your holy hill
and to your dwelling.

⁴ Then I will go to the altar of God,
to God my exceeding joy;

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

Pss 42–43: Longing to join the community in the Temple. Though handed down as two poems, the psalm is actually one poem (see the identical refrain in 42.6,11 and 43.5), an individual petition to be in the Temple (like Pss 27, 62, and 84). Here the sufferer, away from the protection of the Temple, complains of taunts by unbelievers (42.9–10) and pleads for a guide for the journey home. Distinctive is the psalmist’s inner dialogue between discouragement and resolve, despair and hope. Superscription: Mashil, a technical term of uncertain significance. Korahites, lit. “sons of Korah,” also in Pss 42–49; 84–85; and 87–88). Korah was a Levite priest (see Num 16) and his descendants were Temple singers (2 Chr 20.19) who favored phrases such as the living God (Pss 42.2; 84.2) the face of God (Pss 42.2; 44.24; 88.14) and refuge (Pss 43.2; 46.1,7; 48.3) 42.1–5: The taunts of those who reject God depress the psalmist and awaken painful memories of past worship with believers. Verses 1–5 are unified by water imagery. 6–11: Even in anger against God, the psalmist is able to hope (vv. 8,11b) and pray (vv. 8,9). 6: Land of Jordan and of Hermon, northern sites, near the headwaters of the Jordan and far from Jerusalem. Mizar, precise location unknown. 7: Deep calls to deep, the subterranean cosmic waters that symbolize chaos and death (cf. Jon 2.3–4; Ps 18.4–6). Being distant from the dwelling of the saving God is like being in the power of the chaotic sea. 43.1–5: The tone changes and the prayer becomes more robust, asking God to send your light and your truth, qualities personified as heavenly beings able to lead the psalmist to God’s shrine.

and I will praise you with the harp,
O God, my God.

⁵Why are you cast down, O my soul,
and why are you disquieted within
me?

Hope in God; for I shall again praise him,
my help and my God.

Psalm 44

To the leader. Of the Korahites. A Maskil.

¹We have heard with our ears, O God,
our ancestors have told us,
what deeds you performed in their days,
in the days of old:

²you with your own hand drove out the
nations,
but them you planted;
you afflicted the peoples,
but them you set free;

³for not by their own sword did they win
the land,
nor did their own arm give them
victory;

but your right hand, and your arm,
and the light of your countenance,
for you delighted in them.

⁴You are my King and my God;
you command^a victories for Jacob.

⁵Through you we push down our foes;
through your name we tread down our assailants.

⁶For not in my bow do I trust,
nor can my sword save me.

⁷But you have saved us from our foes, and have put to confusion those who hate us.

⁸In God we have boasted continually,
and we will give thanks to your name
forever. Selah

⁹Yet you have rejected us and abased us,
and have not gone out with our armies.

¹⁰You made us turn back from the foe,
and our enemies have gotten spoil.

¹¹You have made us like sheep for slaughter,
and have scattered us among the
nations.

¹²You have sold your people for a trifle,
demanding no high price for them.

¹³You have made us the taunt of our neighbors,
the derision and scorn of those around
us.

¹⁴You have made us a byword among the
nations,
a laughingstock^b among the peoples.

¹⁵All day long my disgrace is before me,
and shame has covered my face

¹⁶at the words of the taunters and revilers, at the sight of the enemy and the avenger.

¹⁷All this has come upon us,
yet we have not forgotten you,
or been false to your covenant.

¹⁸Our heart has not turned back, nor have our steps departed from your
way,

¹⁹yet you have broken us in the haunt of jackals,
and covered us with deep darkness.

²⁰If we had forgotten the name of our God,
or spread out our hands to a strange
god,

²¹would not God discover this?
For he knows the secrets of the heart.

²²Because of you we are being killed all day long,
and accounted as sheep for the slaughter.

^a Gk Syr: Heb You are my King, O God; command

^b Heb a shaking of the head

Ps 44: Prayer for recovery from national defeat. A communal petition on the occasion of a military defeat. Like similar communal petitions (Pss 77 and 89), it recalls the settling of the people in Canaan (vv. 1–3) to remind God to be faithful to that original moment. Not conscious of having sinned, the community asks why God let them fall into the hands of their enemies. Superscription: Korahites, see Ps 42–43n. Maskil, a technical term of uncertain significance. 1–8: Israel's founding moment was the Exodus-Conquest, though the singer singles out the Conquest. Then, as now, the people trusted entirely in God's protection. 8: Selah, see Ps 3.2n. 9–16: The complaint: You have given us into the hand of our enemies. 17–22: We have done nothing to warrant your ²³ Rouse yourself! Why do you sleep,

O Lord?
Awake, do not cast us off forever!
²⁴ Why do you hide your face?
Why do you forget our affliction and oppression?
²⁵ For we sink down to the dust;
our bodies cling to the ground.
²⁶ Rise up, come to our help.
Redeem us for the sake of your steadfast love.

Psalm 45

*To the leader: according to Lilies. Of the Korahites.
A Maskil. A love song.*

¹ My heart overflows with a goodly theme;
I address my verses to the king;
my tongue is like the pen of a ready scribe.
² You are the most handsome of men;
grace is poured upon your lips;
therefore God has blessed you forever.
³ Gird your sword on your thigh, O mighty
one,
in your glory and majesty.
⁴ In your majesty ride on victoriously for the cause of truth and to defend^a the
right;
let your right hand teach you dread
deeds.

⁵ Your arrows are sharp
in the heart of the king's enemies;
the peoples fall under you.
⁶ Your throne, O God,^b endures forever and ever.
Your royal scepter is a scepter of equity;
⁷ you love righteousness and hate
wickedness.
Therefore God, your God, has anointed
you
with the oil of gladness beyond your companions;
⁸ your robes are all fragrant with myrrh
and aloes and cassia.
From ivory palaces stringed instruments
make you glad;
⁹ daughters of kings are among your ladies of honor;
at your right hand stands the queen in gold of Ophir.
¹⁰ Hear, O daughter, consider and incline
your ear;
forget your people and your father's
house,
¹¹ and the king will desire your beauty.

^a Cn: Heb and the meekness of

^b Or Your throne is a throne of God, it abandoning us. 22: The community struggles with being God's people when God is silent before their pain. 23: As in Pss 35.23; 59.4; Isa 51.9, the psalmist expresses frustration at God's inaction using the ancient Near Eastern motif of the God who needs to be awakened. 26–27: In conclusion, the psalmist offers two motivations for God: Israel's terrible state, and God's steadfast love (Heb "hesed") toward Israel.

Ps 45: Celebration of the king's wedding. A song for the king's wedding to a foreign princess, applied in later interpretation to the messianic king. Jewish tradition sees the singer as a model Torah scholar and the king as messiah. Christianity too sees a messianic reference; see Heb 1.8. Superscription: According to Lilies, probably refers to a melody (also Pss 69; 80; cf. 60). Korahites, see Ps 42–43n. Maskil, a technical term of uncertain significance. 1–6: After an invocation (v. 1), the court poet praises the king's beauty (most handsome of men, v. 2), which implies divine favor (as in Gen 39.6; 1 Sam 16.12; 17.42). Similarly, grace is poured upon your lips in v. 2 means to utter decisions made by a wise heart (as in Prov 22.11). Verses 3–6 speak of the king's military prowess: by his wisdom and military skill, the king is an instrument of divine justice. 6: O God, if a reference to the king, the only time in the Bible that the Davidic king is divinized in this fashion; see also textual note b and v. 17n. 7–16: As vv. 2–6 focused on the king as defender of the land, vv. 7–16 emphasize the virility of the king to beget an heir, an ancient and modern concern. 7: The anointing of the king was the central act of the coronation ritual. Gladness, elsewhere associated with marriage as in Jer 7.34; 16.9; 25.10; 33.11. 8: Myrrh and aloes and cassia, evoke a sensuous and erotic mood (Prov 7.17–18; Song 1.13; 5.13). 9: The queen, most likely the queen mother, since according to vv. 13–14 the bride is "in her chamber" from which she will be led to the king. According to 1 Kings 2.19, the queen mother sat on the king's right as in Ps 45.9, so it is she who addresses the

Since he is your lord, bow to him;
 12 the people^a of Tyre will seek your favor with gifts,
 the richest of the people¹³ with all kinds of wealth.

The princess is decked in her chamber with gold-woven robes;^b 14 in many-colored robes she is led to the king;
 behind her the virgins, her companions,
 follow.

15 With joy and gladness they are led along
 as they enter the palace of the king.

16 In the place of ancestors you, O king,^c
 shall have sons;
 you will make them princes in all the
 earth.

17 I will cause your name to be celebrated
 in all generations;
 therefore the peoples will praise you forever and ever.

Psalm 46

To the leader. Of the Korahites. According to Alamothe. A Song.

1 God is our refuge and strength,
 a very present^d help in trouble.
 2 Therefore we will not fear, though the earth should change, though the mountains shake in the heart of the sea;
 3 though its waters roar and foam, though the mountains tremble with its tumult. Selah

4 There is a river whose streams make glad the city of God,
 the holy habitation of the Most High.
 5 God is in the midst of the city;^e it shall not be moved;
 God will help it when the morning
 dawns.
 6 The nations are in an uproar, the kingdoms totter;
 he utters his voice, the earth melts.
 7 The LORD of hosts is with us;
 the God of Jacob is our refuge.^f Selah
 8 Come, behold the works of the LORD;
 see what desolations he has brought on
 the earth.
 9 He makes wars cease to the end of the
 earth;
 he breaks the bow, and shatters the spear;
 he burns the shields with fire.
 10 "Be still, and know that I am God!
 I am exalted among the nations,
 I am exalted in the earth."
 11 The LORD of hosts is with us;
 the God of Jacob is our refuge.^f Selah

^a Heb daughter

^b Or people. ¹³All glorious is the princess within, gold embroidery is her clothing

^c Heb lacks O king

^d Or well proved

^e Heb of it

^f Or fortress

bride in vv. 10–12. Ophir, in southern Arabia (see Gen 10.29), a famous source of gold. 12: Tyre, in Phoenicia, was known for its luxury items and fine craftsmanship. 17: The court poet fulfills his task of making the king's name known, remarkably attributing to the king the type of praise elsewhere associated with God (e.g., Ps 145.21).

Ps 46: The glory of Mount Zion, residence of the LORD. A song of Zion, like Pss 48, 76, 84, and 122. The first of a cluster of three psalms about the LORD reigning in Jerusalem. Three refrains (vv. 1,7,11) structure the poem. Superscription: Korahites, see Ps 42–43n. Alamothe, probably a melody; see 1 Chr 15.20. 1–3: The psalmist trusts in Zion, which many Israelites believed was the center of the world and residence of the LORD, which remains unshaken though the earth “totter” (NRSV change) and plunge into pre-creation chaos. 3: Selah (also vv. 7,11), see Ps 3.2n. 4–7: In contrast to the tumultuous and dangerous waters in vv. 2–3, the calm river of v. 4 is controlled by God to provide water and fertility for the holy city. The attacks of the rebellious nations in v. 6 function as a historical complement to the cosmic disaster in vv. 2–3. Yet God's voice, thunder, defeats them. 9: Rather than just defeating the enemies, as in most psalms, God ends war. 10: Stop what you are doing and embrace the peace the LORD has achieved. Zion is the place where God's victory is most visible and most appropriately praised.

Psalm 47

To the leader. Of the Korahites. A Psalm.

- ¹ Clap your hands, all you peoples;
shout to God with loud songs of joy.
² For the LORD, the Most High, is awesome,
a great king over all the earth.
³ He subdued peoples under us,
and nations under our feet.
⁴ He chose our heritage for us,
the pride of Jacob whom he loves. Selah
- ⁵ God has gone up with a shout,
the LORD with the sound of a trumpet.
⁶ Sing praises to God, sing praises;
sing praises to our King, sing praises.
⁷ For God is the king of all the earth;
sing praises with a psalm.^a
- ⁸ God is king over the nations;
God sits on his holy throne.
⁹ The princes of the peoples gather as the people of the God of Abraham.
For the shields of the earth belong to God;
he is highly exalted.

Psalm 48

A Song. A Psalm of the Korahites.

- ¹ Great is the LORD and greatly to be praised
in the city of our God.
His holy mountain,² beautiful in elevation,
is the joy of all the earth,

- Mount Zion, in the far north,
the city of the great King.
³ Within its citadels God has shown himself a sure defense.
- ⁴ Then the kings assembled,
they came on together.
⁵ As soon as they saw it, they were astounded;
they were in panic, they took to flight;
⁶ trembling took hold of them there,
pains as of a woman in labor,
⁷ as when an east wind shatters
the ships of Tarshish.
⁸ As we have heard, so have we seen in the city of the LORD of hosts,
in the city of our God,
which God establishes forever. Selah
- ⁹ We ponder your steadfast love, O God,
in the midst of your temple.
¹⁰ Your name, O God, like your praise, reaches to the ends of the earth.
Your right hand is filled with victory.
¹¹ Let Mount Zion be glad,
let the towns^b of Judah rejoice
because of your judgments.

^a Heb Maskil

^b Heb daughters

Ps 47: Acclaim the LORD the king of heaven and earth! An enthronement hymn, like Pss 93; 95–99, celebrating the LORD reigning over heaven and earth. The occasion for the recitation of this psalm is uncertain.

Superscription: Korahites, see Ps 42–43n. 1–4: Presupposed is the LORD’s universal victory also celebrated in Pss 2, 46, 48, 76, 93. Israel’s task is to offer a suitable welcome and receive the territory (our heritage, v. 4) that the victorious LORD assigns. 2: A great king, better “the Great King,” a title of suzerains in Mesopotamia, Egypt, and the Hittite kingdom. 4: Selah, see Ps 3.2n. 5: Gone up, ascended the throne as in 2 Sam 6.15; Isa 14.13. The shout and trumpet were part of the ritual proclaiming the new king (see 1 Kings 1.39–49). 6–8: The threefold repetition of king makes clear the psalm’s theme. 9: Gather as the people of the God of Abraham, a possible translation is “The princes of the people assemble with the people of the God of Abraham.” Shields, i.e., rulers (by metonymy).

Ps 48: A hymn to Zion, the place of God’s peace. A song of Zion, like Pss 46; 76; 84; 122. Comparable Near Eastern texts describe how a particular god became the most high god by defeating chaos and then, after receiving the acclaim of the other heavenly beings, constructed a palace to memorialize the victory. Ps 48 seems to see “the kings” (v. 4) as representing the same disorderly power. Superscription: Korahites, see Ps 42–43n. 1–3: Seven epithets are applied to Zion. The description is highly idealized. In the far north, better “the heights of Zaphon,” the mountain home of the storm god Baal (modern Jebel el-Aqra’ on the coast of northern Syria). The LORD has taken over Baal’s domain. 4–8: Rather than referring to a specific historical battle, the verses probably refer to a symbolic gathering of rebellious kingdoms against the LORD’s governance of the universe. But this is no normal military victory: the nations needed only to see the magnificent Jerusalem, and they capitulated. 7: East wind, the weapon of the storm god. Tarshish, location uncertain; it may be Tarsus in southern Turkey or Tartessus in southern Spain. 8: Selah, see Ps 3.2n. 9–14: The Temple buildings memorialize the LORD’s ¹²Walk about Zion, go all around it,

count its towers, ¹³consider well its ramparts;
go through its citadels,
that you may tell the next generation ¹⁴that this is God,
our God forever and ever.
He will be our guide forever.

Psalm 49

To the leader. Of the Korahites. A Psalm.

¹Hear this, all you peoples;
give ear, all inhabitants of the world, ²both low and high,
rich and poor together.
³My mouth shall speak wisdom;
the meditation of my heart shall be
understanding.
⁴I will incline my ear to a proverb;
I will solve my riddle to the music of the harp.
⁵Why should I fear in times of trouble,
when the iniquity of my persecutors
surrounds me,
⁶those who trust in their wealth and boast of the abundance of their riches?
⁷Truly, no ransom avails for one's life,^a there is no price one can give to God
for it.
⁸For the ransom of life is costly,
and can never suffice, ⁹that one should live on forever
and never see the grave.^b

¹⁰When we look at the wise, they die;
fool and dolt perish together
and leave their wealth to others.
¹¹Their graves^c are their homes forever,
their dwelling places to all
generations,
though they named lands their own.
¹²Mortals cannot abide in their pomp;
they are like the animals that perish.

¹³Such is the fate of the foolhardy,
the end of those^d who are pleased with their lot. Selah ¹⁴Like sheep they are appointed for Sheol;
Death shall be their shepherd;
straight to the grave they descend,^e
and their form shall waste away;
Sheol shall be their home.^f ¹⁵But God will ransom my soul from the power of Sheol,
for he will receive me. Selah

¹⁶Do not be afraid when some become rich,
when the wealth of their houses
increases.
¹⁷For when they die they will carry nothing away;

^a Another reading is no one can ransom a brother

^b Heb the pit

^c Gk Syr Compare Tg: Heb their inward (thought)

^d Tg: Heb after them

^e Cn: Heb *the upright shall have dominion over them
in the morning*

^f Meaning of Heb uncertain

steadfast love (Heb “hesed”) manifested in the victory that brought order and justice to the world. Military might is a means to justice, the right governance of the world. The psalm begins and ends (vv. 1–3, 12–14) with the mountains and the buildings that remind visitors of the mercy and grandeur of God. 12–13: Walk about Zion . . . consider well its ramparts, a command to contemplate the result of the divine victory just won, perhaps referring to a ritual procession through the city. 14: The final word, forever (Heb “al-mut”), may be out of place here and belong with the superscription of the following psalm as “Alamot” (Heb “alamot”; see Ps 46n.).

Ps 49: An instruction on the limits of wealth. Though often classed as a wisdom psalm, instruction is a more apt term, in this case instruction about the folly of relying on wealth rather than God. Two sets of refrains tie the poem together and highlight its theme (vv. 7 and 15, 12 and 20). The text is often obscure, as the textual notes attest. Superscription: Korahites, see Ps 42–43n. 1–4: A formal call for attention like Deut 32.1–3 and Ps 78.1–4. 5–12: As in individual petitions, this psalmist has enemies (the arrogant wealthy), but instead of calling on God for rescue, reflects on the folly of relying on wealth. 12: The psalmist’s well-considered conclusion: wealth cannot stave off death. 13–20: As the poem progresses, the tone grows bolder. 13: Selah (also v. 15), see Ps 3.2n. 14: Sheol, the abode of the dead. 15: Though the wealthy seem to triumph, God will ransom and “take” (NRSV receive) the psalmist from the clutches of the underworld. The Hebrew word for “take” elsewhere describes their wealth will not go down after them.

 18 Though in their lifetime they count themselves happy
 —for you are praised when you do well for yourself—19 they^a will go to the company of their ancestors, who will never again see the light.
 20 Mortals cannot abide in their pomp;
 they are like the animals that perish.

Psalm 50

A Psalm of Asaph.

1 The mighty one, God the LORD, speaks and summons the earth
 from the rising of the sun to its setting.
 2 Out of Zion, the perfection of beauty,
 God shines forth.
 3 Our God comes and does not keep silence,
 before him is a devouring fire,
 and a mighty tempest all around him.
 4 He calls to the heavens above and to the earth, that he may judge his
 people:
 5 “Gather to me my faithful ones, who made a covenant with me by sacrifice!”
 6 The heavens declare his righteousness,
 for God himself is judge. Selah
 7 “Hear, O my people, and I will speak,
 O Israel, I will testify against you.
 I am God, your God.

8 Not for your sacrifices do I rebuke you;
 your burnt offerings are continually
 before me.
 9 I will not accept a bull from your house,
 or goats from your folds.
 10 For every wild animal of the forest is mine,
 the cattle on a thousand hills.
 11 I know all the birds of the air,^b and all that moves in the field is mine.
 12 “If I were hungry, I would not tell you,
 for the world and all that is in it is
 mine.
 13 Do I eat the flesh of bulls,
 or drink the blood of goats?
 14 Offer to God a sacrifice of thanksgiving,^c and pay your vows to the Most High.
 15 Call on me in the day of trouble;
 I will deliver you, and you shall glorify
 me.”
 16 But to the wicked God says:
 “What right have you to recite my statutes,
 or take my covenant on your lips?
 17 For you hate discipline,
 and you cast my words behind you.
 18 You make friends with a thief when you see one,
 and you keep company with adulterers.

^a Cn: Heb you

^b Gk Syr Tg: Heb mountains

^c Or make thanksgiving your sacrifice to God

God’s lifting loyal servants to the safety of heaven (see Ps 73.24; Gen 5.24; 2 Kings 2.10). 20: Repeating v. 12.

Ps 50: A covenant renewal liturgy. A covenant liturgy like Pss 81 and 95. The poem is the first attributed to Asaph, one of David’s musicians (1 Chr 6.39; 15.17; 16.5–7); the other Asaph psalms appear together as a collection in 73–83. 1–6: Appearing in the storm at Mount Sinai (Ex 19), God made a covenant with Israel and now invites Israel to renew it on Mount Zion in Jerusalem. 4: Heavens . . . earth, ancient treaties and covenants invoked such primal pairs as witnesses, and they are appropriately invoked here as the people are questioned about their fidelity to the covenant. 5: My faithful ones, better, “consecrated ones,” those who have become God’s people by entering into the covenant. 6: Selah, see Ps 3.2n. 7–15: On God’s rejection of animal sacrifice, see Isa 1.10–17; Jer 6.20; Am 5.21–24. Aggressive rebukes and questions often preceded renewal of vows, e.g., Ps 81; Josh 24; 1 Sam 12. The goal was positive: to encourage repentance. 7: I am God, your God, a paraphrase of the beginning of the Decalogue (Ex 20.2); perhaps the entire Decalogue was meant to be repeated at this point in the ritual. 14: A sacrifice of thanksgiving was mostly eaten by the worshiper, and thus would not be construed as feeding God in the same way as a burnt offering; contrast Ps 66.13–15. 16–23: Though not everyone is guilty of the sins named in this section, the whole congregation must listen to the rebukes, for each is a member of the community. Verses 8–13 rebuked sacrifices that were a substitute for sincere calling unto God; vv. 16–21

¹⁹“You give your mouth free rein for evil,
and your tongue frames deceit.

²⁰You sit and speak against your kin;
you slander your own mother’s child.

²¹These things you have done and I have been silent;
you thought that I was one just like
yourself.

But now I rebuke you, and lay the charge
before you.

²²“Mark this, then, you who forget God, or I will tear you apart, and there will be no one to deliver.

²³Those who bring thanksgiving as their sacrifice honor me;
to those who go the right way^a
I will show the salvation of God.”

Psalm 51

To the leader. A Psalm of David, when the prophet Nathan came to him, after he had gone in to Bathsheba.

¹Have mercy on me, O God,
according to your steadfast love;
according to your abundant mercy
blot out my transgressions.

²Wash me thoroughly from my
iniquity,
and cleanse me from my sin.

³For I know my transgressions,
and my sin is ever before me.

⁴Against you, you alone, have I sinned,
and done what is evil in your sight,
so that you are justified in your sentence and blameless when you pass
judgment.

⁵Indeed, I was born guilty,
a sinner when my mother conceived me.

⁶You desire truth in the inward being;^b therefore teach me wisdom in my secret
heart.

⁷Purge me with hyssop, and I shall be
clean;
wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow.

⁸Let me hear joy and gladness;
let the bones that you have crushed
rejoice.

⁹Hide your face from my sins,
and blot out all my iniquities.

¹⁰Create in me a clean heart, O God, and put a new and right^c spirit within
me.

¹¹Do not cast me away from your presence, and do not take your holy spirit from
me.

¹²Restore to me the joy of your salvation,
and sustain in me a willing^d spirit.

¹³Then I will teach transgressors your
ways,
and sinners will return to you.

¹⁴Deliver me from bloodshed, O God,
O God of my salvation,
and my tongue will sing aloud of your deliverance.

^a Heb who set a way

^b Meaning of Heb uncertain

^c Or steadfast

^d Or generous

condemns the sins themselves. 22–23: A final warning and blessing.

Ps 51: Prayer of repentance and renewal. An individual petition, one of the most profound of the seven penitential psalms in Christian tradition (Pss 6; 32; 38; 51; 102; 130; 143). It is attributed to David after the prophet Nathan confronted him over his adultery with Bathsheba and the murder of Uriah (2 Sam 12), a reminder that all humans, even the most revered, must ask God for forgiveness. The first section (vv. 1–9) is marked by the repetition of blot out in vv. 1 and 9, and wash in vv. 2 and 7. Repetition of heart, God, and spirit in vv. 10 and 17 frame the second section (vv. 10–19). As in Ps 50, contrition is considered more valuable than sacrifices. 1–8: The psalmist asks forgiveness “as befits your faithfulness” (NRSV according to your abundant mercy, v. 1), i.e., because of who God is. Since the metaphor here for sin is stain, the psalmist asks for cleansing and purifying what is soiled or defiled. 5: I was born guilty, the psalmist was never without sin (cf. Ps 88.15). The sense here, as in some other psalms, is that people are inherently sinful and therefore deserve divine compassion. 7: The branches of hyssop, a wild shrub, were used for sprinkling liquids in purification rituals (Lev 14.4; Nu 19.6). 9–17: The effects of forgiveness—interior renewal, nearness to God, an enlivened spirit, joy—will inspire the

¹⁵ O Lord, open my lips,
and my mouth will declare your praise.
¹⁶ For you have no delight in sacrifice;
if I were to give a burnt offering, you would not be pleased.
¹⁷ The sacrifice acceptable to God^a is a broken spirit;
a broken and contrite heart, O God, you will not despise.
¹⁸ Do good to Zion in your good pleasure;
rebuild the walls of Jerusalem, ¹⁹ then you will delight in right sacrifices,
in burnt offerings and whole burnt
offerings;
then bulls will be offered on your altar.

Psalm 52

To the leader. A Maskil of David, when Doeg the Edomite came to Saul and said to him, "David has come to the house of Ahimelech."

¹ Why do you boast, O mighty one,
of mischief done against the godly?^b
All day long ² you are plotting destruction.
Your tongue is like a sharp razor,
you worker of treachery.
³ You love evil more than good,
and lying more than speaking the truth.
Selah
⁴ You love all words that devour,
O deceitful tongue.

⁵ But God will break you down forever;
he will snatch and tear you from your
tent;
he will uproot you from the land of the living. Selah
⁶ The righteous will see, and fear,
and will laugh at the evildoer,^c saying, ⁷ "See the one who would not take refuge in God,
but trusted in abundant riches,
and sought refuge in wealth!"^d ⁸ But I am like a green olive tree in the house of God.
I trust in the steadfast love of God
forever and ever.
⁹ I will thank you forever,
because of what you have done.
In the presence of the faithful
I will proclaim^e your name, for it is good.

Psalm 53

To the leader: according to Mahalath. A Maskil of David.

¹ Fools say in their hearts, "There is no
God."

^a Or My sacrifice, O God,
^b Cn Compare Syr: Heb the kindness of God
^c Heb him
^d Syr Tg: Heb in his destruction
^e Cn: Heb wait for psalmist to teach sinners (vv. 13–15), which is of more value than sacrifice (v. 17). 18–19: Apparently an addition inspired by the statement that a broken spirit is an acceptable sacrifice (v. 17): the Temple will be rebuilt and then there will be sacrifices again. As in other psalms, a personal petition is turned into a national psalm, here reflecting the destruction of Jerusalem in 586 BCE.

Ps 52: True confidence. A contrast between the self-confident, wicked warrior and the person who trusts God. The psalmist denounces the wicked (vv. 1–4) and confidently awaits God’s punishment of them (vv. 5–7), and concludes with a declaration of trust in God (vv. 8–9). It is similar to Ps 36. Superscription: Maskil, a technical term of uncertain significance. On Doeg’s betrayal of David, see 1 Sam 21.1–8; 22.6–19. 1–4: The psalm uses types, typical ways of behaving (e.g., the wicked plot against the good person), common in wisdom literature. 1: O mighty one, often applied to God (e.g., Ps 50.1), it is ironically applied to the self-important deceiver whose days are numbered. 3: Selah (also v. 5), see Ps 3.2n. 5–7: Justice must be seen to be done. 5: Land of the living, better, “the land of life,” i.e., the Temple, as in Pss 27.13; 116.9. The sinner will be excluded from the Temple, but the psalmist will be like a green olive tree in the house of God (v. 8). 6: A common theme in Psalms: by applying justice in the world, God encourages people to act justly. 8: But I, abruptly shifts attention to the psalmist who enjoys the protection of the Temple. Ancient temples had gardens that symbolized the life-giving capacity of the god worshiped there.

Ps 53: Refusal to be silenced by those who deny God’s justice. A condemnation of those who deny that God is active in the world, and a declaration of trust in the God who cares for the poor (among whom the psalmist

They are corrupt, they commit abominable acts;
there is no one who does good.

² God looks down from heaven on
humankind
to see if there are any who are wise,
who seek after God.

³ They have all fallen away, they are all alike perverse;
there is no one who does good,
no, not one.

⁴ Have they no knowledge, those
evildoers,
who eat up my people as they eat bread,
and do not call upon God?

⁵ There they shall be in great terror,
in terror such as has not been.
For God will scatter the bones of the ungodly;^a
they will be put to shame,^b for God has rejected them.

⁶ O that deliverance for Israel would come
from Zion!
When God restores the fortunes of his
people,
Jacob will rejoice; Israel will be glad.

Psalm 54

To the leader: with stringed instruments. A Maskil of David, when the Ziphites went and told Saul, "David is in hiding among us."

¹ Save me, O God, by your name, and vindicate me by your might.

² Hear my prayer, O God;
give ear to the words of my mouth.

³ For the insolent have risen against me,
the ruthless seek my life;
they do not set God before them. Selah

⁴ But surely, God is my helper;
the Lord is the upholder^c of my life.

⁵ He will repay my enemies for their evil.
In your faithfulness, put an end to
them.

⁶ With a freewill offering I will sacrifice to
you;
I will give thanks to your name, O LORD,
for it is good.

⁷ For he has delivered me from every
trouble,
and my eye has looked in triumph on
my enemies.

^a Cn Compare Gk Syr: Heb him who encamps against you

^b Gk: Heb you have put (them) to shame

^c Gk Syr Jerome: Heb is of those who uphold or is with those who uphold wants to be counted). This psalm is a near duplicate of Ps 14. A major difference is that this psalm is part of the "Elohistic Psalter" (Pss 42–83), which prefers the divine name "Elohim," translated "God" rather than "the LORD," and thus replaces many of the "LORD"s of Ps 14 with "God." Superscription: Mahalath, Maskil, technical terms of uncertain significance. 1: There is no God, denies God's ability to govern, not necessarily God's existence; see Ps 10.4. 2: God's scrutiny lays bare the deniers' folly and malice. In the style of wisdom literature, the rebellious are contrasted with the wise, who seek after God. 4: Evildoers will finally learn that God defends those whom they exploit. 5: Divine judgment will scatter the bones of the wicked to the four winds and they will be deprived of proper burial. There, evidently a reference to Mount Zion as in Pss 48.6; 76.3. 6: A generalized conclusion, moving from the individual to the community, as Israel lives in the hope that salvation comes from Zion. When God restores may refer to the destruction of Jerusalem in 586 BCE.

Ps 54: God's saving power. An individual petition that focuses on the power of God's name (vv. 1,6). Superscription: Maskil, a technical term of uncertain significance. On David's betrayal by the residents of Ziph, see 1 Sam 23.15–29. 1: Name, when a person is presented to others, the name is a pledge, in this case that help is on the way. The psalmist wants to be vindicated, that is, shown to be in the right in a conflict with foes. In addition "name" is important in Psalms since the body of most psalms starts with a divine name or title, as here, where the Heb reads "O God, save me." 3: Selah, see Ps 3.2n. 4: A strong statement of trust in God as helper and upholder who will punish the enemies. 6: The psalmist offers God two motivations to help: a freewill offering, and a promise to thank God publicly, thereby encouraging others.

Psalm 55

To the leader: with stringed instruments. A Maskil of David.

¹ Give ear to my prayer, O God;
do not hide yourself from my
supplication.
² Attend to me, and answer me;
I am troubled in my complaint.
I am distraught ³ by the noise of the enemy,
because of the clamor of the wicked.
For they bring^a trouble upon me,
and in anger they cherish enmity
against me.

⁴ My heart is in anguish within me,
the terrors of death have fallen upon
me.

⁵ Fear and trembling come upon me,
and horror overwhelms me.
⁶ And I say, “O that I had wings like a dove!
I would fly away and be at rest;

⁷ truly, I would flee far away;
I would lodge in the wilderness; Selah
⁸ I would hurry to find a shelter for myself from the raging wind and tempest.”

⁹ Confuse, O Lord, confound their speech;
for I see violence and strife in the city.

¹⁰ Day and night they go around it on its walls,
and iniquity and trouble are within it;
¹¹ ruin is in its midst;
oppression and fraud
do not depart from its marketplace.

¹² It is not enemies who taunt me—
I could bear that;
it is not adversaries who deal insolently
with me—
I could hide from them.

¹³ But it is you, my equal,
my companion, my familiar friend, ¹⁴ with whom I kept pleasant company;
we walked in the house of God with the throng.

¹⁵ Let death come upon them;
let them go down alive to Sheol;
for evil is in their homes and in their hearts.

¹⁶ But I call upon God,
and the LORD will save me.

¹⁷ Evening and morning and at noon
I utter my complaint and moan,
and he will hear my voice.

¹⁸ He will redeem me unharmed
from the battle that I wage,
for many are arrayed against me.

¹⁹ God, who is enthroned from of old, Selah
will hear, and will humble them—
because they do not change,
and do not fear God.

²⁰ My companion laid hands on a friend
and violated a covenant with me^b ²¹ with speech smoother than butter,
but with a heart set on war;
with words that were softer than oil,
but in fact were drawn swords.

²² Cast your burden^c on the LORD,
and he will sustain you;
he will never permit
the righteous to be moved.

^a Cn Compare Gk: Heb they cause to totter

^b Heb lacks with me

^c Or Cast what he has given you

Ps 55: Plea to be delivered from violence and false friends. The petition of an individual emotionally distraught (vv. 4–8) by the violence of the community (the city, v. 9) and the deceit of a friend (vv. 12–15, 22–23). In the second part (vv. 16–23), the psalmist finds solace in the hope that God will bring justice. Superscription: Maskil, a technical term of uncertain significance. 1–2: The Hebrew words rendered O God . . . I am troubled are repeated in vv. 22–23 by moved and O God, which conclude the psalm. 6–7: In contrast to most psalms, the supplicant does not feel he can find security in the Temple and wants to move far away. 7: Selah (also v. 19), see Ps 3.2n. 12–15: Harder to bear than societal corruption is the betrayal of a friend, a thought repeated in vv. 22–23. 12: Not merely crying for revenge; the psalmist wants judgment on the wicked to be visible. 15: Alive, in the prime of life (cf. Num 16.30; Ps 124.3). Sheol, the underworld, the abode of the dead. 17: Either a reference to praying three times a day, as in later Judaism, or a figure of speech, meaning perpetual prayer. 22: The psalmist is assured, perhaps by a priest or prophet, of divine protection.

²³ But you, O God, will cast them down into the lowest pit;
the bloodthirsty and treacherous
shall not live out half their days.
But I will trust in you.

Psalm 56

To the leader: according to The Dove on Far-off Terebinths. Of David. A Miktam, when the Philistines seized him in Gath.

¹ Be gracious to me, O God, for people trample on me;
all day long foes oppress me;
² my enemies trample on me all day long,
for many fight against me.
O Most High, ³ when I am afraid,
I put my trust in you.
⁴ In God, whose word I praise,
in God I trust; I am not afraid;
what can flesh do to me?
⁵ All day long they seek to injure my
cause;
all their thoughts are against me for
evil.
⁶ They stir up strife, they lurk,
they watch my steps.
As they hoped to have my life,
⁷ so repay^a them for their crime;
in wrath cast down the peoples, O God!
⁸ You have kept count of my tossings;
put my tears in your bottle.
Are they not in your record?
⁹ Then my enemies will retreat
in the day when I call.
This I know, that^b God is for me.

¹⁰ In God, whose word I praise,
in the LORD, whose word I praise,
¹¹ in God I trust; I am not afraid.
What can a mere mortal do to me?

¹² My vows to you I must perform, O God;
I will render thank offerings to you.
¹³ For you have delivered my soul from death,
and my feet from falling,
so that I may walk before God
in the light of life.

Psalm 57

To the leader: Do Not Destroy. Of David. A Miktam, when he fled from Saul, in the cave.

¹ Be merciful to me, O God, be merciful to
me,
for in you my soul takes refuge;
in the shadow of your wings I will take
refuge,
until the destroying storms pass by.
² I cry to God Most High,
to God who fulfills his purpose for me.
³ He will send from heaven and save me,
he will put to shame those who trample
on me. Selah
God will send forth his steadfast love and his faithfulness.
⁴ I lie down among lions that greedily devour^c human prey;
their teeth are spears and arrows,
their tongues sharp swords.

^a Cn: Heb rescue

^b Or because

^c Cn: Heb are aflame for

Ps 56: Trust in the midst of oppression. Petition of a victim of oppression, notable for its assertions of trust (vv. 2c–4, 8–13). The poem is structured by its two refrains, vv. 3–4 and 10–11, and is characterized by repetition. Superscription: The Dove on Far-off Terebinths, probably the name of a melody. Miktam, a technical term of unknown meaning. The psalm is associated with David when the Philistines seized him in Gath (1 Sam 21.11–15). 8: My tears in your bottle, as a shepherd keeps track of his animals by putting pebbles in a bag. Record, the same Heb word is translated “book” elsewhere; see Ps 40.7n. With that statement, the tone changes to serene trust in God. 13: In the light of life, in contrast to Sheol, the dark underworld.

Ps 57: A petition for God’s faithfulness and a promise of praise. An individual petition divided by refrains (vv. 5,11) into two parts and unified by mention of God’s steadfast love and faithfulness (vv. 3,10). Superscription: Do Not Destroy, perhaps a melody. Miktam, a technical term of unknown meaning. The psalm is related to David’s being pursued by Saul (1 Sam 22–24). 1: The shadow of your wings, either the wings of the cherubim, protectors of the throne of God in the Temple (1 Kings 6.27; 8.6; Ps 17.8n.) or possibly a comparison of the deity to a bird hovering protectively over its nestlings as in Deut 32.11 and some Egyptian divine images. 3: Steadfast love . . . faithfulness (also v. 10), commonly paired, the two words express one concept, God’s loving fidelity. Selah (also v. 6),

⁵ Be exalted, O God, above the heavens.
Let your glory be over all the earth.

⁶ They set a net for my steps;
my soul was bowed down.
They dug a pit in my path,
but they have fallen into it themselves.

Selah

⁷ My heart is steadfast, O God,
my heart is steadfast.
I will sing and make melody.

⁸ Awake, my soul!
Awake, O harp and lyre!
I will awake the dawn.

⁹ I will give thanks to you, O Lord, among
the peoples;
I will sing praises to you among the
nations.

¹⁰ For your steadfast love is as high as the
heavens;
your faithfulness extends to the
clouds.

¹¹ Be exalted, O God, above the heavens.
Let your glory be over all the earth.

Psalm 58

To the leader: Do Not Destroy. Of David.

A Miktam.

¹ Do you indeed decree what is right, you gods?^a
Do you judge people fairly?

² No, in your hearts you devise wrongs;
your hands deal out violence on earth.

³ The wicked go astray from the womb;
they err from their birth,
speaking lies.

⁴ They have venom like the venom of a serpent,
like the deaf adder that stops its ear,
⁵ so that it does not hear the voice of charmners
or of the cunning enchanter.

⁶ O God, break the teeth in their
mouths;
tear out the fangs of the young lions,
O LORD!

⁷ Let them vanish like water that runs
away;
like grass let them be trodden down^b and wither.

⁸ Let them be like the snail that dissolves
into slime;
like the untimely birth that never sees
the sun.

⁹ Sooner than your pots can feel the heat of thorns,
whether green or ablaze, may he sweep
them away!

¹⁰ The righteous will rejoice when they see vengeance done;
they will bathe their feet in the blood of
the wicked.

¹¹ People will say, "Surely there is a reward for the righteous;
surely there is a God who judges on
earth."

^a Or mighty lords

^b Cn: Meaning of Heb uncertain

see Ps 3.2n. 4: The images of lions and weapons combine to express great danger, as do those of hunters in v. 6. 6: See 7.15–16n. 7–10: With the light of dawn, danger disappears, and the psalmist sings a song of thanksgiving in anticipation of salvation. 9: The psalmist's declaration of a desire to acknowledge God widely is meant to motivate God to save him. 10–11: The psalmist is asking God to act according to his character.

Ps 58: The importance of divine justice. Beginning with a contemptuous dismissal of evil "gods" who sponsor evil humans (vv. 1–5), the psalmist petitions God to break their power (vv. 6–9) and enable the just to enjoy peace (vv. 10–11), encouraging people to recognize that a just deity controls the world. Superscription: Do Not Destroy, see Ps 57n. Miktam, a technical term of unknown meaning. 1: You gods, refers either to wicked humans behaving arrogantly (as in 2 Kings 24.15; Ezek 17:13) or, more likely, to heavenly beings who rebelled against the LORD's absolute authority to incite humans to act wickedly (vv. 3–5). Ps 82 is similar. 6–9: Break the teeth, with a wealth of images the psalmist asks for a divine intervention that will restore God's original intentions. 10–11: A successful intervention will let everyone know that there is a just god. Bathe . . . in the blood, the gory image expresses the totality of God's victory; cf. Ps 68.23; Isa 63.1–6.

Psalm 59

To the leader: Do Not Destroy. Of David. A Miktam, when Saul ordered his house to be watched in order to kill him.

¹ Deliver me from my enemies, O my God;
protect me from those who rise up
against me.

² Deliver me from those who work evil;
from the bloodthirsty save me.

³ Even now they lie in wait for my life;
the mighty stir up strife against me.

For no transgression or sin of mine,

O LORD,

⁴ for no fault of mine, they run and make ready.

Rouse yourself, come to my help and see!

⁵ You, LORD God of hosts, are God of Israel.

Awake to punish all the nations;

spare none of those who treacherously plot evil. Selah

⁶ Each evening they come back, howling like dogs
and prowling about the city.

⁷ There they are, bellowing with their
mouths,

with sharp words^a on their lips—
for “Who,” they think,^b “will hear us?”

⁸ But you laugh at them, O LORD;
you hold all the nations in derision.

⁹ O my strength, I will watch for you;
for you, O God, are my fortress.

¹⁰ My God in his steadfast love will meet me;

my God will let me look in triumph on
my enemies.

¹¹ Do not kill them, or my people may forget;

make them totter by your power, and
bring them down,

O Lord, our shield.

¹² For the sin of their mouths, the words of their lips,

let them be trapped in their pride.

For the cursing and lies that they utter,

¹³ consume them in wrath;
consume them until they are no
more.

Then it will be known to the ends of the
earth

that God rules over Jacob. Selah

¹⁴ Each evening they come back,
howling like dogs
and prowling about the city.

¹⁵ They roam about for food,
and growl if they do not get their fill.

¹⁶ But I will sing of your might;
I will sing aloud of your steadfast love
in the morning.

For you have been a fortress for me and a refuge in the day of my distress.

¹⁷ O my strength, I will sing praises to you,
for you, O God, are my fortress,
the God who shows me steadfast
love.

^a Heb with swords

^b Heb lacks they think

Ps 59: Prayer against the enemies of the community. The designation of the enemies as “all the nations” (vv. 5,8), “the city” (vv. 6,14), and “known to the ends of the earth” (v. 13) suggests that the poem is a petition of the community, perhaps uttered by the king. The doubled structure of the poem (vv. 1–10,11–17; note the refrains in vv. 6,14 and 9,17) enables the sufferer to change from a simple desire for personal rescue to a passion for justice, hope, and eagerness to sing praise. Superscription: Do Not Destroy, see Ps 57n. Miktam, a technical term of unknown meaning. The episode is related in 1 Sam 19.11–17. 4: Rouse yourself, God is imagined as a sleeping warrior needing to be awakened by his frightened people as in Pss 44.23; 78.65; 121.4; Isa 51.9. 5: Selah (also v. 13), see Ps 3.2n. 6–7,14–15: The enemies are like dogs, not attacking but constantly yelping, and their cry is Who . . . will hear us? i.e., God is unable to save the city. 8: But you introduces the statement of praise in vv. 8–10 just as but I (v. 16) introduces the statement of praise in vv. 16–17. This verse is similar to Ps 2.4, in a similar context of God mocking the nations for believing that he is powerless to save Israel. 11–13: The psalmist wants God to make an object lesson out of the enemies. 16–17: As is appropriate to this psalm, God is depicted metaphorically as fortress, refuge, and strength; see Ps 18.1–2. 16: In the morning, see Ps 57.9–10.

PSALM 60

Psalm 60

To the leader: according to the Lily of the Covenant. A Miktam of David; for instruction; when he struggled with Aram-naharaim and with Aram-zobah, and when Joab on his return killed twelve thousand Edomites in the Valley of Salt.

¹O God, you have rejected us, broken our defenses;

you have been angry; now restore us!

²You have caused the land to quake; you have torn it open; repair the cracks in it, for it is tottering.

³You have made your people suffer hard things; you have given us wine to drink that made us reel.

⁴You have set up a banner for those who fear you, to rally to it out of bowshot.^a Selah

⁵Give victory with your right hand, and answer us,^b so that those whom you love may be rescued.

⁶God has promised in his sanctuary:^c “With exultation I will divide up Shechem, and portion out the Vale of Succoth.

⁷Gilead is mine, and Manasseh is mine; Ephraim is my helmet; Judah is my scepter.

⁸Moab is my washbasin; on Edom I hurl my shoe; over Philistia I shout in triumph.”

⁹Who will bring me to the fortified city? Who will lead me to Edom?

¹⁰Have you not rejected us, O God? You do not go out, O God, with our armies.

¹¹O grant us help against the foe, for human help is worthless.

¹²With God we shall do valiantly; it is he who will tread down our foes.

Psalm 61

To the leader: with stringed instruments. Of David.

¹Hear my cry, O God; listen to my prayer.

²From the end of the earth I call to you, when my heart is faint.

Lead me to the rock that is higher than I;

³for you are my refuge, a strong tower against the enemy.

^a Gk Syr Jerome: Heb because of the truth

^b Another reading is me

^c Or by his holiness

Ps 60: May God grant victory! A community petition that God would be faithful to his ancient promise of protection (vv. 6–8) and support the beleaguered army (vv. 9–11). Verses 5–12 also appear in Ps 108.6–13. Superscription: According to the Lily of the Covenant, see Ps 45n.; cf. Ps 80. Mikam, a technical term of unknown meaning. Israel’s struggles with Aram-naharaim (in northeastern Syria) and Aram-zobah (an Aramean city-state) are told in 2 Sam 8.3–8 and 10.6–13; Joab was David’s general. 1–5: Complaint and petition. 4: You have set up a banner, best rendered as a petition: “Set up a banner so that we may rally to it.” Selah, see Ps 3.2n. 6–8: The psalmist cites an ancient oracle, probably uttered after a victory, in order to remind God to be faithful to it in the present crisis. Shechem, a major city in central Israel (Ephraim, the northern kingdom). The Vale of Succoth, in the east Jordan Valley. Gilead and Manasseh, Israelite territory in Transjordan. Judah, the southern kingdom. Moab and Edom, in southern Transjordan, and Philistia, on the southeastern Mediterranean coast, were areas subjected to Israel as vassals (see 2 Sam 8.11–12). I hurl my shoe, probably a reference to the legal gesture of claiming ownership attested in Ruth 4.7. 9–12: Complaint and petition. 9: Who will bring me to the fortified city? A prayer that God lead the commander of Israel’s armies (perhaps the king) against their foes. Fortified city, a seemingly impregnable fort, probably referring to Bozrah, the capital of Edom. 10: Reprises v. 1. Go out . . . with our armies, according to 1 Sam 4, the Israelites could carry the ark with them to bring God along in battle; in later times, divine support was imagined without the ark’s presence. 11–12: A common biblical theme, that victory depends on God alone, not on human might.

Ps 61: Plea to be in God’s Temple. An individual, far away from the Temple, prays to be led there and enjoy its protection and nourishment. 2–4: From the end of the earth, a remote place, far from the center in Jerusalem.

⁴ Let me abide in your tent forever, find refuge under the shelter of your wings. Selah

⁵ For you, O God, have heard my vows;
you have given me the heritage of those who fear your name.

⁶ Prolong the life of the king;
may his years endure to all generations!

⁷ May he be enthroned forever before God;
appoint steadfast love and faithfulness
to watch over him!

⁸ So I will always sing praises to your name,
as I pay my vows day after day.

Psalm 62

To the leader: according to Jeduthun. A Psalm of David.

¹ For God alone my soul waits in
silence;
from him comes my salvation.

² He alone is my rock and my salvation,
my fortress; I shall never be shaken.

³ How long will you assail a person,
will you batter your victim, all of you,
as you would a leaning wall, a tottering fence?

⁴ Their only plan is to bring down a person of prominence.

They take pleasure in falsehood;
they bless with their mouths,
but inwardly they curse. Selah

⁵ For God alone my soul waits in silence, for my hope is from him.

⁶ He alone is my rock and my salvation,
my fortress; I shall not be shaken.

⁷ On God rests my deliverance and my honor;
my mighty rock, my refuge is in God.

⁸ Trust in him at all times, O people;
pour out your heart before him;
God is a refuge for us. Selah

⁹ Those of low estate are but a breath,
those of high estate are a delusion;
in the balances they go up;
they are together lighter than a breath.

¹⁰ Put no confidence in extortion,
and set no vain hopes on robbery;
if riches increase, do not set your heart
on them.

¹¹ Once God has spoken;
twice have I heard this:
that power belongs to God,
¹² and steadfast love belongs to you,
O Lord.

For you repay to all
according to their work.

Psalm 63

A Psalm of David, when he was in the Wilderness of Judah.

¹ O God, you are my God, I seek you,
my soul thirsts for you;

Rock, refuge, tower, tent, shelter of your wings, all can refer to the Temple and its precincts; see also Ps 57:1n. 4: Selah, see Ps 3:2n. 5–8: You . . . have heard my vows, best understood as a prayer of one still far from the Temple, confident that God has heard his vows. 6: The sudden mention of the king is surprising, but the king, as God's anointed, was closely associated with the Temple; he also represented the people and so the psalmist's request is to join the people in their worship as in Pss 42–43.

Ps 62: Trust in God the stronghold. A song of trust, recording the feelings of an individual beset by enemies. Various synonyms for salvation and for God as a fortress predominate. Superscription: Jeduthun, see Ps 39n. 3–4: Instead of speaking about the enemies, the psalmist speaks to the enemies (as in Pss 2:10–11; 4:2; 75:4–7); this is likely a literary conceit. 4: Selah (also v. 8), see Ps 3:2n. 5: For God alone my soul waits in silence, reprises v. 1; the psalmist's attitude differs totally from that of the evildoers (v. 4). 8–10: Lest others be intimidated and cease trusting, the psalmist shares the hard-won conviction that nothing but God suffices. 9: The good deeds of the evildoers are so unsubstantial, they are weightless. 11: Once . . . twice, numerical parallelism, where a number X is paralleled by X+1. This verse thus means that I heard the one thing that God spoke, that power belongs to God.

Ps 63: Longing for God. A song of desire to be protected from enemies (vv. 9–10) and be in God's house (vv. 2–5), like Pss 27; 42–43; 61; and 84. The superscription associates the poem with David hiding from Saul in the wilderness of Judah (1 Sam 23:14–15; 24:1). 1: My soul thirsts, communion with God is expressed in metaphors of my flesh faints for you,

 as in a dry and weary land where there is no water.

² So I have looked upon you in the sanctuary,
 beholding your power and glory.

³ Because your steadfast love is better than
 life,
 my lips will praise you.

⁴ So I will bless you as long as I live;
 I will lift up my hands and call on your
 name.

⁵ My soul is satisfied as with a rich feast,^a and my mouth praises you with joyful
 lips

⁶ when I think of you on my bed, and meditate on you in the watches of the night;

⁷ for you have been my help,
 and in the shadow of your wings I sing
 for joy.

⁸ My soul clings to you;
 your right hand upholds me.

⁹ But those who seek to destroy my life shall go down into the depths of the
 earth;

¹⁰ they shall be given over to the power of
 the sword,
 they shall be prey for jackals.

¹¹ But the king shall rejoice in God;
 all who swear by him shall exult,
 for the mouths of liars will be stopped.

Psalm 64

To the leader. A Psalm of David.

¹ Hear my voice, O God, in my complaint;
 preserve my life from the dread enemy.

² Hide me from the secret plots of the
 wicked,
 from the scheming of evildoers,
³ who whet their tongues like swords,
 who aim bitter words like arrows,
⁴ shooting from ambush at the blameless;
 they shoot suddenly and without fear.

⁵ They hold fast to their evil purpose;
 they talk of laying snares secretly,
 thinking, “Who can see us?”^b

⁶ Who can search out our crimes?^c
 We have thought out a cunningly conceived plot.”
 For the human heart and mind are deep.

⁷ But God will shoot his arrow at them;
 they will be wounded suddenly.

⁸ Because of their tongue he will bring them to ruin;^d
 all who see them will shake with horror.

⁹ Then everyone will fear;
 they will tell what God has brought about,
 and ponder what he has done.

^a Heb with fat and fatness

^b Syr: Heb them

^c Cn: Heb They search out crimes

^d Cn: Heb They will bring him to ruin, their tongue being against them

eating, seeing (v. 2), and praising (vv. 3–5). In Hebrew, the word for soul also means “throat,” so the verse is punning. 2: I have looked, the NRSV translation assumes the psalmist is already in the Temple, but in similar psalms being in the Temple is in the future. Thus one can translate, “I shall look upon.” 3: Better than life, experiencing God in the Temple is better than mere existence elsewhere. 6: On my bed, spontaneous private prayer by the sleepless individual, in contrast to commanded ritual performance as in Pss 4:4b–5a; 149:5b,6–11. 6–11: In contrast to the first part of the psalm (vv. 1–5), which expresses the hope of being in the Temple, the second part (vv. 6–11) acknowledges that God has never ceased being the psalmist’s God. Shadow of your wings, see Ps 57:1n. 11: For a similar concluding prayer mentioning the king, see Ps 61:6n.

Ps 64: Protection from enemies’ plots. A carefully constructed individual petition to be protected from people who deny that God rules society. The second part (vv. 6–10), the statement of hope and trust, reverses the key words of the first part (vv. 1–5): arrows/arrow in vv. 3b and 7a; tongues/tongue in vv. 3a and 8a; suddenly in vv. 4b and 7b; shoot in vv. 4a, 4b, and 7a; fear in vv. 4b and 9a; and see in vv. 5c and 8b. God will shoot his arrow at those who have shot arrows at the righteous; those who use their tongues to attack the righteous and assert God’s impotence will be ruined because of their tongue, that is, their words. The second part expresses the firm hope that God will undo each malicious act. 9: Then everyone will fear, like many individual petitions, the conclusion moves from the single person to the community, here stating that people will be in awe as they

¹⁰Let the righteous rejoice in the LORD and take refuge in him.
Let all the upright in heart glory.

Psalm 65

To the leader. A Psalm of David. A Song.

¹Praise is due to you,
O God, in Zion;
and to you shall vows be performed,
²O you who answer prayer!
To you all flesh shall come.
³When deeds of iniquity overwhelm us,
you forgive our transgressions.
⁴Happy are those whom you choose and bring near
to live in your courts.
We shall be satisfied with the goodness of your house,
your holy temple.

⁵By awesome deeds you answer us with
deliverance,
O God of our salvation;
you are the hope of all the ends of the earth
and of the farthest seas.
⁶By your^a strength you established the
mountains;
you are girded with might.
⁷You silence the roaring of the seas,
the roaring of their waves,
the tumult of the peoples.
⁸Those who live at earth's farthest bounds
are awed by your signs;
you make the gateways of the morning and the evening shout for joy.
⁹You visit the earth and water it,
you greatly enrich it;

recognize God's just action.

Ps 65: Thanksgiving for God's enlivening the world. 1–4: In Hebrew, the opening lines begin with “to you,” underlining the centrality of God, to whom every liturgical act performed on Mount Zion is directed. 2: All flesh shall come, see Pss 22.27n.; 100n. 3–4: Forgive . . . bring near, liturgical vocabulary. 5: Awesome deeds, deeds that elicit wonder. In Ps 106.22 the phrase refers to the Exodus miracles, and in Isa 5.8 to creation victory. 6–7: The divine victory associated with creation: the mountains are placed in their bases (see Pss 89.12; 90.2) and the chaotic primeval waters are defeated (see Ps 89.9–13). 9–13: One benefit of God's creation victory is that the once-dangerous waters now fertilize the earth. The psalmist focuses on the waters that make the earth bloom and give nurture to humans. 9: River of God, see Ps 36.5–9n. 12–13: Implicitly compares the earth to human beings, beautifully attired and singing joyous songs. The abundance of the harvest has a mythological quality.

Ps 66: Thanksgiving to God for help in danger. In this community thanksgiving, an individual calls upon the whole world (vv. 1–4, 16–19) to acknowledge God's rescue of the people from danger (vv. 8–12) and promises to fulfill a vow made in that time of danger (vv. 13–15). 4: Selah (also vv. 7, 15), see Ps 3.2n. 5–6: Come and see, when the river of God is full of water;

you provide the people with grain,
for so you have prepared it.

¹⁰You water its furrows abundantly, settling its ridges,
softening it with showers,
and blessing its growth.
¹¹You crown the year with your bounty;
your wagon tracks overflow with richness.
¹²The pastures of the wilderness overflow,
the hills gird themselves with joy, ¹³the meadows clothe themselves with flocks,
the valleys deck themselves with grain,
they shout and sing together for joy.

Psalm 66

To the leader. A Song. A Psalm.

¹Make a joyful noise to God, all the earth;
²sing the glory of his name;
give to him glorious praise.
³Say to God, “How awesome are your deeds!
Because of your great power, your enemies cringe before you.
⁴All the earth worships you;
they sing praises to you,
sing praises to your name.” Selah ⁵Come and see what God has done:
he is awesome in his deeds among
mortals.
⁶He turned the sea into dry land;
they passed through the river on foot.
There we rejoiced in him,
⁷who rules by his might forever,

^a Gk Jerome: Heb his

whose eyes keep watch on the nations—
let the rebellious not exalt themselves.

Selah

⁸ Bless our God, O peoples,
let the sound of his praise be heard,

⁹ who has kept us among the living,
and has not let our feet slip.

¹⁰ For you, O God, have tested us;
you have tried us as silver is tried.

¹¹ You brought us into the net;
you laid burdens on our backs;

¹² you let people ride over our heads;
we went through fire and through
water;

yet you have brought us out to a spacious place.^a

¹³ I will come into your house with burnt
offerings;

I will pay you my vows,

¹⁴ those that my lips uttered and my mouth promised when I was in trouble.

¹⁵ I will offer to you burnt offerings of fatlings,
with the smoke of the sacrifice of rams;
I will make an offering of bulls and goats.

Selah

¹⁶ Come and hear, all you who fear God,
and I will tell what he has done for me.

¹⁷ I cried aloud to him,
and he was extolled with my tongue.

¹⁸ If I had cherished iniquity in my heart,
the Lord would not have listened.

¹⁹ But truly God has listened;
he has given heed to the words of my prayer.

²⁰ Blessed be God,
because he has not rejected my prayer
or removed his steadfast love from me.

Psalm 67

To the leader: with stringed instruments. A Psalm. A Song.

¹ May God be gracious to us and bless us
and make his face to shine upon us,
Selah

² that your way may be known upon earth,
your saving power among all nations.

³ Let the peoples praise you, O God;
let all the peoples praise you.

⁴ Let the nations be glad and sing for joy,
for you judge the peoples with equity and guide the nations upon earth. Selah

⁵ Let the peoples praise you, O God;
let all the peoples praise you.

⁶ The earth has yielded its increase;
God, our God, has blessed us.

⁷ May God continue to bless us;
let all the ends of the earth revere him.

Psalm 68

To the leader. Of David. A Psalm. A Song.

¹ Let God rise up, let his enemies be scattered;
let those who hate him flee before him.

^a Cn Compare Gk Syr Jerome Tg: Heb to a saturation

grave danger threatened, the psalmist called people to remember the great formative event of the Exodus (see Ex 14.21–22; Josh 4.23), assuming that God will be faithful to that past act. 10: Silver ore was tried or refined by heat, which separated the pure silver from other minerals. 16–20: Ritual thanksgiving is not enough; the psalmist must proclaim God's mighty works to the world.

Ps 67: May the nations acknowledge God in our prosperity! In this communal petition, the psalmist prays that the nations may see how God has caused Israel to prosper, has protected the people, and will judge them equitably, and that the nations will therefore praise him. “Bless” and “praise” are key words, repeated several times, emphasizing the theme of the psalm. 1: Make his face to shine upon us, a reworking of the priestly blessing in Num 6.24–26. Like the sun and moon, the face is a light shining in favor upon the people (Pss 31.16; 80.3,7,19). Selah (also v. 4), see Ps 3.2n. 3–5: The center of the poem is v. 4, the only three-line verse: it is framed by vv. 3 and 5. 6: The earth has yielded, best translated as a prayer, “May the earth yield its increase”: the people pray for their prosperity so that their God might receive more honor.

Ps 68: The victorious Lord comes to the aid of Israel. Psalm 68 is the most difficult psalm in the book, and scholars do not agree on what kind of poem Psalm 68 is, as well as what many of its words or phrases mean. It is perhaps best taken as a communal thanksgiving for defending the people against infertility and attack. The

² As smoke is driven away, so drive them away;

as wax melts before the fire,
let the wicked perish before God.

³ But let the righteous be joyful;
let them exult before God;
let them be jubilant with joy.

⁴ Sing to God, sing praises to his name;
lift up a song to him who rides upon the clouds^a—
his name is the LORD—
be exultant before him.

⁵ Father of orphans and protector of widows is God in his holy habitation.

⁶ God gives the desolate a home to live in;
he leads out the prisoners to prosperity,
but the rebellious live in a parched land.

⁷ O God, when you went out before your people,
when you marched through the wilderness, Selah

⁸ the earth quaked, the heavens poured down rain
at the presence of God, the God of Sinai,
at the presence of God, the God of Israel.

⁹ Rain in abundance, O God, you showered abroad;
you restored your heritage when it languished;

¹⁰ your flock found a dwelling in it;
in your goodness, O God, you provided for the needy.

¹¹ The Lord gives the command;
great is the company of those^b who bore the tidings:

¹² “The kings of the armies, they flee,
they flee!”

The women at home divide the spoil, ¹³ though they stay among the sheepfolds—

the wings of a dove covered with silver,
its pinions with green gold.

¹⁴ When the Almighty^c scattered kings there,
snow fell on Zalmon.

¹⁵ O mighty mountain, mountain of Bashan;
O many-peaked mountain, mountain of Bashan!

¹⁶ Why do you look with envy, O many-peaked mountain,
at the mount that God desired for his abode,
where the LORD will reside forever?

¹⁷ With mighty chariotry, twice ten thousand,
thousands upon thousands,
the Lord came from Sinai into the holy place.^d

¹⁸ You ascended the high mount, leading captives in your train and receiving gifts from people, even from those who rebel against the LORD God’s abiding there.

¹⁹ Blessed be the Lord,
who daily bears us up;
God is our salvation. Selah

²⁰ Our God is a God of salvation, and to God, the Lord, belongs escape from death.

²¹ But God will shatter the heads of his enemies,
the hairy crown of those who walk in their guilty ways.

²² The Lord said,
“I will bring them back from Bashan,

^a Or cast up a highway for him who rides through the deserts

^b Or company of the women

^c Traditional rendering of Heb Shaddai

^d Cn: Heb The Lord among them Sinai in the holy (place)

battle-victory is described in cosmic terms, waged against “the depths of the sea” (v. 22), “wild animals,” and “the herd of bulls” (v. 30), as well as “the kings of the armies” (v. 12). 1–3: A summons for God to act. 4–6: Invitation to sing to the God of justice. 4: Who rides upon the clouds, God’s storm-cloud chariot; see also v. 33. 7–14: God’s victorious campaign to make the earth fertile and safe. 7: Selah (also vv. 19, 32), see Ps 3.2n. 7–8: Cf. Judg 5.4–5. 15–23: The LORD returns to his holy mountain residence, Mount Zion, having earlier appeared at Sinai

I will bring them back from the depths of the sea,
²³ so that you may bathe^a your feet in blood, so that the tongues of your dogs may have their share from the foe.”

²⁴ Your solemn processions are seen,^b
O God,
the processions of my God, my King,
into the sanctuary—
²⁵ the singers in front, the musicians last,
between them girls playing tambourines:
²⁶ “Bless God in the great congregation, the LORD, O you who are of Israel’s
fountain!”
²⁷ There is Benjamin, the least of them, in the lead,
the princes of Judah in a body,
the princes of Zebulun, the princes of Naphtali.

²⁸ Summon your might, O God; show strength, O God, as you have done for us before.
²⁹ Because of your temple at Jerusalem
kings bear gifts to you.
³⁰ Rebuke the wild animals that live among the reeds,
the herd of bulls with the calves of the
peoples.
Trample^c under foot those who lust after tribute;
scatter the peoples who delight in war.^d ³¹ Let bronze be brought from Egypt;
let Ethiopia^e hasten to stretch out its hands to God.

³² Sing to God, O kingdoms of the earth;
sing praises to the Lord, Selah ³³ O rider in the heavens, the ancient
heavens;
listen, he sends out his voice, his mighty voice.

³⁴ Ascribe power to God,
whose majesty is over Israel;
and whose power is in the skies.

³⁵ Awesome is God in his^f sanctuary,
the God of Israel;
he gives power and strength to his
people.

Blessed be God!

Psalm 69

To the leader: according to Lilies. Of David.

¹ Save me, O God,
for the waters have come up to my neck.

² I sink in deep mire,
where there is no foothold;
I have come into deep waters,
and the flood sweeps over me.

³ I am weary with my crying;
my throat is parched.
My eyes grow dim
with waiting for my God.

⁴ More in number than the hairs of my head
are those who hate me without cause;
many are those who would destroy me,
my enemies who accuse me falsely.
What I did not steal must I now restore?

⁵ O God, you know my folly;
the wrongs I have done are not hidden from you.

⁶ Do not let those who hope in you be put to shame because of me,
O Lord God of hosts;

^a Gk Syr Tg: Heb shatter

^b Or have been seen

^c Cn: Heb Trampling

^d Meaning of Heb of verse 30 is uncertain

^e Or Nubia; Heb Cush

^f Gk: Heb from your

(v. 8). 14–15: Zalmon, precise location unknown; perhaps a mountain in Bashan, in northern Transjordan. 23: Bathe . . . in blood, see 58.10n. 24–31: The tribes of Israel follow in procession. 32–35: The nations are to bring tribute to the victorious LORD in the Temple and acknowledge God. 33–35: Cf. Ps 29.1–3,11. Rider in the heavens, see v. 4n.

Ps 69: A loyal servant’s prayer for deliverance. An individual petition, marked by deep commitment to God’s cause. Verses 13d–29 repeat words occurring in vv. 1–13a, unifying the poem and lending it intensity. Another stylistic feature of the poem is the alternation between I (the psalmist) and you (God). Superscription: According to Lilies, probably refers to a melody (also Pss 45; 80). 1–4: References to waters unify vv. 1–3, and references

do not let those who seek you be dishonored because of me,
O God of Israel.

⁷It is for your sake that I have borne reproach,
that shame has covered my face.

⁸I have become a stranger to my kindred,
an alien to my mother's children.

⁹It is zeal for your house that has consumed me;
the insults of those who insult you have fallen on me.

¹⁰When I humbled my soul with fasting,^a they insulted me for doing so.

¹¹When I made sackcloth my clothing,
I became a byword to them.

¹²I am the subject of gossip for those who sit in the gate,
and the drunkards make songs
about me.

¹³But as for me, my prayer is to you,
O LORD.
At an acceptable time, O God,
in the abundance of your steadfast love,
answer me.

With your faithful help ¹⁴rescue me
from sinking in the mire;
let me be delivered from my enemies
and from the deep waters.

¹⁵Do not let the flood sweep over me,
or the deep swallow me up,
or the Pit close its mouth over me.

¹⁶Answer me, O LORD, for your steadfast love is good;
according to your abundant mercy, turn
to me.

¹⁷Do not hide your face from your
servant,
for I am in distress—make haste to answer me.

¹⁸Draw near to me, redeem me,
set me free because of my enemies.

¹⁹You know the insults I receive,
and my shame and dishonor;
my foes are all known to you.

²⁰Insults have broken my heart,
so that I am in despair.
I looked for pity, but there was none;
and for comforters, but I found none.

²¹They gave me poison for food,
and for my thirst they gave me vinegar
to drink.

²²Let their table be a trap for them,
a snare for their allies.

²³Let their eyes be darkened so that they cannot see,
and make their loins tremble
continually.

²⁴Pour out your indignation upon them,
and let your burning anger overtake
them.

²⁵May their camp be a desolation;
let no one live in their tents.

²⁶For they persecute those whom you have struck down,
and those whom you have wounded,
they attack still more.^b

²⁷Add guilt to their guilt;
may they have no acquittal from you.

²⁸Let them be blotted out of the book of the living;
let them not be enrolled among the
righteous.

²⁹But I am lowly and in pain;
let your salvation, O God, protect me.

³⁰I will praise the name of God with a song;
I will magnify him with thanksgiving.

³¹This will please the LORD more than an ox
or a bull with horns and hoofs.

³²Let the oppressed see it and be glad;
you who seek God, let your hearts revive.

^a Gk Syr: Heb I wept, with fasting my soul, or I made my soul mourn with fasting

^b Gk Syr: Heb recount the pain of

to bodily organs (throat, eyes, hairs of my head) unify vv. 3–4. 5–12: The psalmist asks for help promoting the honor of God's house (v. 7), though freely conceding personal weakness and folly (v. 5). 8: See Ps 38:11; Job 19:13–15. 22–29: The psalmist is less interested in personal vengeance than in being publicly vindicated as God's innocent and loyal servant. 28: The book of the living was a scroll containing the fates of individuals. In postbiblical Judaism, the book was inscribed at the New Year, and sealed and finalized on Yom Kippur. 30–31: A verbal

³³ For the LORD hears the needy, and does not despise his own that are in bonds.

³⁴ Let heaven and earth praise him,
the seas and everything that moves in
them.

³⁵ For God will save Zion
and rebuild the cities of Judah;
and his servants shall live^a there and possess it;

³⁶ the children of his servants shall inherit it,
and those who love his name shall live
in it.

Psalm 70

To the leader. Of David, for the memorial offering.

¹ Be pleased, O God, to deliver me.
O LORD, make haste to help me!

² Let those be put to shame and confusion
who seek my life.

Let those be turned back and brought to dishonor
who desire to hurt me.

³ Let those who say, "Aha, Aha!"
turn back because of their shame.

⁴ Let all who seek you rejoice and be glad in you.

Let those who love your salvation say evermore, "God is great!"

⁵ But I am poor and needy;
hasten to me, O God!

You are my help and my deliverer;
O LORD, do not delay!

Psalm 71

¹ In you, O LORD, I take refuge;
let me never be put to shame.

² In your righteousness deliver me and rescue me;
incline your ear to me and save me.

³ Be to me a rock of refuge,
a strong fortress,^b to save me,
for you are my rock and my fortress.

⁴ Rescue me, O my God, from the hand of
the wicked,
from the grasp of the unjust and cruel.

⁵ For you, O Lord, are my hope,
my trust, O LORD, from my youth.

⁶ Upon you I have leaned from my birth;
it was you who took me from my mother's womb.

My praise is continually of you.

⁷ I have been like a portent to many,
but you are my strong refuge.

⁸ My mouth is filled with your praise,
and with your glory all day long.

⁹ Do not cast me off in the time of old age;
do not forsake me when my strength is spent.

¹⁰ For my enemies speak concerning me,
and those who watch for my life consult
together.

¹¹ They say, "Pursue and seize that person whom God has forsaken,
for there is no one to deliver."

^a Syr: Heb and they shall live

^b Gk Compare 31.3: Heb to come continually you have commanded offering is superior to an animal one; cf. Ps 51.16–17. 32–36: The salvation of the supplicant is not for his own sake, but so others will praise God. 35: Perhaps a reference to the attack of the Assyrian king Sennacherib in 701 BCE, or to the destruction of Jerusalem in 586 BCE.

Ps 70: A prayer that the psalmist's persecutors would be defeated. An individual petition, which is also found with a few variants in Ps 40.13–17. Superscription: For the memorial offering (also Ps 38), meaning uncertain. 1–3: God, help, and make haste, the words are echoed in the final lines, bringing closure to the poem. 2: Shame, violating accepted morality brought dishonor upon the violator. The prayer is that the enemies' schemes be publicly frustrated. 3: Aha, Aha, malicious cries of triumph that the psalmist hopes will be proved foolish by God's judgment. 4: God's help of this individual will encourage other righteous people. 5: Psalms often depicts the supplicant as poor and needy.

Ps 71: An elderly person's plea for help. An individual petition that recycles material from Pss 22 and 31. Vv. 1–13 and 14–24 seem to constitute its two parts. 3: Rock of refuge, a massive rock formation, a frequent metaphor

¹² O God, do not be far from me;
 O my God, make haste to help me!
¹³ Let my accusers be put to shame and
 consumed;
 let those who seek to hurt me
 be covered with scorn and disgrace.
¹⁴ But I will hope continually,
 and will praise you yet more and more.
¹⁵ My mouth will tell of your righteous acts,
 of your deeds of salvation all day long,
 though their number is past my
 knowledge.
¹⁶ I will come praising the mighty deeds of the Lord God,
 I will praise your righteousness, yours
 alone.
¹⁷ O God, from my youth you have taught me,
 and I still proclaim your wondrous
 deeds.
¹⁸ So even to old age and gray hairs,
 O God, do not forsake me, until I proclaim your might to all the generations to come.^a Your power¹⁹ and your righteousness, O God, reach the high heavens.
 You who have done great things,
 O God, who is like you?
²⁰ You who have made me see many troubles and calamities will revive me again;
 from the depths of the earth
 you will bring me up again.
²¹ You will increase my honor,
 and comfort me once again.
²² I will also praise you with the harp
 for your faithfulness, O my God;

I will sing praises to you with the lyre,
 O Holy One of Israel.
²³ My lips will shout for joy
 when I sing praises to you;
 my soul also, which you have rescued.
²⁴ All day long my tongue will talk of your righteous help,
 for those who tried to do me harm
 have been put to shame, and disgraced.

Psalm 72

Of Solomon.

¹ Give the king your justice, O God,
 and your righteousness to a king's son.
² May he judge your people with
 righteousness,
 and your poor with justice.
³ May the mountains yield prosperity for
 the people,
 and the hills, in righteousness.
⁴ May he defend the cause of the poor of
 the people,
 give deliverance to the needy,
 and crush the oppressor.
⁵ May he live^b while the sun endures,
 and as long as the moon, throughout all
 generations.
⁶ May he be like rain that falls on the mown grass,
 like showers that water the earth.
⁷ In his days may righteousness flourish and peace abound, until the moon is no
 more.

^a Gk Compare Syr: Heb to a generation, to all that come

^b Gk: Heb may they fear you for God saving and helping someone. 7: A portent to many, an example of God's merciful care for loyal servants. 14–16: The psalmist is unusually buoyant despite the troubles. 17–21: The psalmist looks back at a long life, finds that God has always been faithful, and is inspired by such fidelity. 24: As in many petitions, the person praying imagines that the prayer has already been heard and the problem rectified.

Ps 72: Prayer that the king may prosper and extend God's rule to all lands. A royal psalm that may have been used at the king's coronation or anniversary. It views the Israelite king as the instrument of divine justice and protector of the poor (vv. 1–4, 12–14), ensuring that the riches of creation are available to all (vv. 5–7); and he is the icon of God's universal rule (vv. 8–11). Nonetheless, he is still a human being in constant need of divine help (vv. 1, 15–17). It is one of two psalms attributed to King Solomon (see also Ps 127), probably because an editor imagined that the land boundaries in v. 8 reflected the boundaries of Solomon's kingdom (see 1 Kings 4.24). 1–2: Justice, righteousness, conformity to the divine will, which leads to prosperity (v. 3). 2: Your poor, the existence of the poor (vv. 2, 4) is contrary to the divine will, so the king is to be an instrument of the more equitable distribu-

⁸ May he have dominion from sea to sea, and from the River to the ends of the
earth.

⁹ May his foes^a bow down before him,
and his enemies lick the dust.

¹⁰ May the kings of Tarshish and of the isles
render him tribute,
may the kings of Sheba and Seba
bring gifts.

¹¹ May all kings fall down before him,
all nations give him service.

¹² For he delivers the needy when they call,
the poor and those who have no helper.

¹³ He has pity on the weak and the needy,
and saves the lives of the needy.

¹⁴ From oppression and violence he redeems their life;
and precious is their blood in his sight.

¹⁵ Long may he live!
May gold of Sheba be given to him.
May prayer be made for him continually,
and blessings invoked for him all day
long.

¹⁶ May there be abundance of grain in the
land;
may it wave on the tops of the
mountains;
may its fruit be like Lebanon;
and may people blossom in the cities
like the grass of the field.

¹⁷ May his name endure forever,
his fame continue as long as the sun.
May all nations be blessed in him;^b
may they pronounce him happy.

¹⁸ Blessed be the LORD, the God of Israel,
who alone does wondrous things.

¹⁹ Blessed be his glorious name forever;
may his glory fill the whole earth.
Amen and Amen.

²⁰ The prayers of David son of Jesse are ended.

BOOK III PSALMS 73–89

Psalm 73

A Psalm of Asaph.

¹ Truly God is good to the upright,^c
to those who are pure in heart.

² But as for me, my feet had almost stumbled;

my steps had nearly slipped.

³ For I was envious of the arrogant;
I saw the prosperity of the wicked.

⁴ For they have no pain;
their bodies are sound and sleek.

⁵ They are not in trouble as others are;
they are not plagued like other people.

⁶ Therefore pride is their necklace;
violence covers them like a garment.

⁷ Their eyes swell out with fatness;
their hearts overflow with follies.

⁸ They scoff and speak with malice;
loftily they threaten oppression.

⁹ They set their mouths against heaven,
and their tongues range over the earth.

^a Cn: Heb those who live in the wilderness

^b Or bless themselves by him

^c Or good to Israel

tion of the world's goods. 8–11: As representative of the Lord of the world, the Israelite king receives the tribute of all the kings of the world in God's name. 8: The River, the Euphrates. 10: Tarshish, location uncertain; it may be Tarsus in southern Turkey or Tartessus in southern Spain. The isles, the islands of the eastern Aegean Sea. Sheba and Seba, both in southwestern Arabia. 12–14: A repetition of the royal responsibilities, emphasizing the poor, similar to 2–4. 15–17: Another cycle of blessings, similar to 5–11. 18–19: A doxology, not part of the psalm, which marks the conclusion of Book Two of the Psalter. 20: This verse suggests that at one time the book of Psalms, or at least the psalms attributed to David, ended here. (Other psalms also attributed to David will follow; e.g., 86; 101; 103.) This is important evidence for the growth of the book of Psalms over time.

Ps 73: Declaration of trust. Though sometimes classed as a wisdom psalm because it explores the problem of evil, the psalm actually records the psalmist's passage from despair at the apparent triumph of the wicked (vv. 3–12), through various stratagems to solve the problem (vv. 13–17), to a final appreciation of God's justice, nearness, and care (vv. 18–28). The psalm suggests that the wicked may triumph, but only temporarily. It opens a collection of psalms attributed to Asaph (73–83; see Ps 50n.). 1: A statement of faith, paraphrased in the final

¹⁰ Therefore the people turn and praise them,^a and find no fault in them.^b ¹¹ And they say, “How can God know?
Is there knowledge in the Most High?”
¹² Such are the wicked;
always at ease, they increase in riches.
¹³ All in vain I have kept my heart clean and washed my hands in innocence.
¹⁴ For all day long I have been plagued,
and am punished every morning.

¹⁵ If I had said, “I will talk on in this way,”
I would have been untrue to the circle of your children.
¹⁶ But when I thought how to understand
this,
it seemed to me a wearisome task,
¹⁷ until I went into the sanctuary of God;
then I perceived their end.
¹⁸ Truly you set them in slippery places;
you make them fall to ruin.
¹⁹ How they are destroyed in a moment,
swept away utterly by terrors!
²⁰ They are^c like a dream when one awakes;
on awaking you despise their phantoms.

²¹ When my soul was embittered,
when I was pricked in heart,
²² I was stupid and ignorant;
I was like a brute beast toward you.
²³ Nevertheless I am continually with you;
you hold my right hand.
²⁴ You guide me with your counsel, and afterward you will receive me with honor.^d
²⁵ Whom have I in heaven but you?
And there is nothing on earth that I desire other than you.

²⁶ My flesh and my heart may fail, but God is the strength^e of my heart and my portion forever.
²⁷ Indeed, those who are far from you will perish;
you put an end to those who are false
to you.
²⁸ But for me it is good to be near God;
I have made the Lord God my refuge,
to tell of all your works.

Psalms 74

A Maskil of Asaph.

¹ O God, why do you cast us off forever?
Why does your anger smoke against the sheep of your pasture?
² Remember your congregation, which you acquired long ago,
which you redeemed to be the tribe of
your heritage.
Remember Mount Zion, where you came to dwell.
³ Direct your steps to the perpetual ruins;
the enemy has destroyed everything in the sanctuary.
⁴ Your foes have roared within your holy place;
they set up their emblems there.
⁵ At the upper entrance they hacked
the wooden trellis with axes.^f

^a Cn: Heb his people return here

^b Cn: Heb abundant waters are drained by them

^c Cn: Heb Lord

^d Or to glory

^e Heb rock

^f Cn Compare Gk Syr: Meaning of Heb uncertain

verse (v. 28). The verses in between tell how the psalmist came to such trust. 3–11: Verses 3–7 tell what the psalmist sees (evildoers’ well-fed bodies) and vv. 8–11 tell what the psalmist hears (their arrogant words). 17: I went into the sanctuary, rejecting such strategies as criticizing God’s injustice like Job (v. 15) or trying to reason about it (v. 16), the psalmist resolves to confront God in the sanctuary (v. 17) and there comes to understand their (the wicked) end: they are eventually swept away suddenly (vv. 18–20). 21–22: An admission of guilt and an encouragement for others not to entertain such stupid and brutish thoughts. 24: Receive me, elevate to the security of God’s domain, like Enoch (Gen 5.24), Elijah (2 Kings 2.11–12), and the psalmist in Ps 49.15.

Ps 74: The community begs God to restore the devastated Temple. A community petition that expresses pain over the immense punishment and abandonment symbolized by the ruined Temple (1–11), remembers in liturgical prayer God’s primordial victory that created the world of which the Temple is a central part (vv. 12–17), and turns the experience into a triple prayer that God act now for his own sake (vv. 18–19, 20–21, 22–23). Superscription: Maskil, a technical term of uncertain significance. Asaph, see Ps 73n. 4: Emblems, better, “signs,” as

⁶ And then, with hatchets and hammers,
they smashed all its carved work.
⁷ They set your sanctuary on fire;
they desecrated the dwelling place of
your name,
bringing it to the ground.
⁸ They said to themselves, “We will utterly subdue them”;
they burned all the meeting places of God in the land.
⁹ We do not see our emblems;
there is no longer any prophet,
and there is no one among us who knows how long.
¹⁰ How long, O God, is the foe to scoff?
Is the enemy to revile your name
forever?
¹¹ Why do you hold back your hand;
why do you keep your hand in^a your bosom?
¹² Yet God my King is from of old,
working salvation in the earth.
¹³ You divided the sea by your might;
you broke the heads of the dragons in
the waters.
¹⁴ You crushed the heads of Leviathan;
you gave him as food^b for the creatures
of the wilderness.
¹⁵ You cut openings for springs and torrents;
you dried up ever-flowing streams.
¹⁶ Yours is the day, yours also the night;
you established the luminaries^c and the sun.
¹⁷ You have fixed all the bounds of the
earth;
you made summer and winter.

¹⁸ Remember this, O LORD, how the enemy
scoffs,
and an impious people reviles your
name.
¹⁹ Do not deliver the soul of your dove to the wild animals;
do not forget the life of your poor
forever.
²⁰ Have regard for your^d covenant, for the dark places of the land are full of the haunts of violence.
²¹ Do not let the downtrodden be put to
shame;
let the poor and needy praise your
name.
²² Rise up, O God, plead your cause;
remember how the impious scoff at you
all day long.
²³ Do not forget the clamor of your foes,
the uproar of your adversaries that goes up continually.

Psalm 75

*To the leader: Do Not Destroy. A Psalm of Asaph.
A Song.*

¹ We give thanks to you, O God;
we give thanks; your name is near.
People tell of your wondrous deeds.
² At the set time that I appoint
I will judge with equity.
³ When the earth totters, with all its inhabitants,
it is I who keep its pillars steady. Selah

^a Cn: Heb do you consume your right hand from

^b Heb food for the people

^c Or moon; Heb light

^d GkSyr: Heb the

also in v. 9, a prophetic word telling when divine rescue will come. The psalmist complains in v. 9 that there is no one to give such an assuring word. 12–17: Since God created the Temple as part of the universe, its devastated state calls into question God’s ability to rule the universe. The psalmist therefore reminds God of the triumphant act of creation, using a variant of a Canaanite creation story known from Ugarit about Baal defeating the watery chaos. 14: The mythological creature Leviathan, known from Ugarit, is a manifestation of primeval watery chaos; see also Isa 27:1; Job 3:8; 26:12–13; 41:1). 19: Your dove, unclear; it may be an affectionate term for the king, or the dove may be a symbol of vulnerability (Pss 11:1; 102:7; 124:7). 20: The covenant assured Israel’s perpetual existence. 22–23: In order to motivate God, the psalmist calls Israel’s enemies your [God’s] foes.

Ps 75: The community thanks God for putting down the wicked. A thanksgiving praising God (v. 1) for doing just deeds, in this case, punishing the wicked (vv. 2–5, 6–8). The actual punishment is announced in an oracle of judgment with God speaking (vv. 2–5). Superscription: Do Not Destroy, see Ps 57n. Asaph, see Ps 73n. 3: The

⁴ I say to the boastful, “Do not boast,” and to the wicked, “Do not lift up your horn;

⁵ do not lift up your horn on high,
or speak with insolent neck.”

⁶ For not from the east or from the west and not from the wilderness comes lifting up;

⁷ but it is God who executes judgment,
putting down one and lifting up
another.

⁸ For in the hand of the LORD there is a cup with foaming wine, well mixed;
he will pour a draught from it,
and all the wicked of the earth
shall drain it down to the dregs.

⁹ But I will rejoice^a forever;
I will sing praises to the God of Jacob.

¹⁰ All the horns of the wicked I will cut off, but the horns of the righteous shall be exalted.

Psalm 76

To the leader: with stringed instruments. A Psalm of Asaph. A Song.

¹ In Judah God is known,
his name is great in Israel.

² His abode has been established in Salem,
his dwelling place in Zion.

³ There he broke the flashing arrows,
the shield, the sword, and the weapons of war. Selah

⁴ Glorious are you, more majestic than the everlasting mountains.^b

⁵ The stouthearted were stripped of their spoil;
they sank into sleep;

none of the troops
was able to lift a hand.

⁶ At your rebuke, O God of Jacob,
both rider and horse lay stunned.

⁷ But you indeed are awesome!
Who can stand before you
when once your anger is roused?

⁸ From the heavens you uttered
judgment;
the earth feared and was still

⁹ when God rose up to establish
judgment,
to save all the oppressed of the earth. Selah

¹⁰ Human wrath serves only to praise you, when you bind the last bit of your^c wrath around you.

¹¹ Make vows to the LORD your God, and perform them;
let all who are around him bring gifts

to the one who is awesome, ¹² who cuts off the spirit of princes, who inspires fear in the kings of the
earth.

^a Gk: Heb declare

^b Gk: Heb the mountains of prey

^c Heb lacks your

earth totters, when God speaks, the earth trembles. Selah, see Ps 3.2n. 4: Lifting up a horn represents pride, arrogance, and victory. 6–8: Expansion of the divine command, spoken perhaps by the king, the envoy of God. 8: The cup (of the LORD’s wrath in Isa 51.17; Jer 25.15) is a metaphor for punishment. 9–10: The speaker accepts with joy the divine task of implementing justice.

Ps 76: God is acknowledged as victorious in the holy city. A song of Zion, celebrating Zion as the site where God won the victory that established the world as just and prosperous. Superscription: Asaph, see Ps 73n. 1–3: By the creation-victory described in vv. 4–10, God is now recognized by all Israel as supreme over all other powers, and dwelling in Salem (an alternate name for Jerusalem, as in Gen 14.18). 3: Selah (also v. 9), see Ps 3.2n. 7–10: The psalm presumes that the cosmic battle was fought at the base of Mount Zion; comparable religious texts also tell how the storm god defeated his enemies at the base of his holy mountain. After the battle, God established the rules of justice to which the universe must conform (8–9); even the typically noisy rider and horse (v. 6), and the earth (v. 8) were still and quiet. 10: Human wrath serves only to praise you, better “Even wrathful Edom praises you, the remnant of Hamath keeps your feast,” referring to frequent enemies of Israel to the southeast and to the north, respectively. 11–12: Because Zion is the site of the LORD’s victory and of his dwelling, all nations must come there to pay homage. The pilgrimage of the nations is a significant theme in the Bible (Isa 2.1–4 || Mic 4.1–3; Isa 60–62; 66.20–21).

Psalm 77

To the leader: according to Jeduthun. Of Asaph.

A Psalm.

- ¹ I cry aloud to God,
aloud to God, that he may hear me.
- ² In the day of my trouble I seek the Lord;
in the night my hand is stretched out without wearying;
my soul refuses to be comforted.
- ³ I think of God, and I moan;
I meditate, and my spirit faints. Selah
- ⁴ You keep my eyelids from closing;
I am so troubled that I cannot speak.
- ⁵ I consider the days of old,
and remember the years of long ago.
- ⁶ I commune^a with my heart in the night;
I meditate and search my spirit:^b
- ⁷ “Will the Lord spurn forever,
and never again be favorable?
- ⁸ Has his steadfast love ceased forever?
Are his promises at an end for all time?
- ⁹ Has God forgotten to be gracious?
Has he in anger shut up his compassion?” Selah
- ¹⁰ And I say, “It is my grief that the right hand of the Most High has changed.”
- ¹¹ I will call to mind the deeds of the LORD;
I will remember your wonders of old.
- ¹² I will meditate on all your work,
and muse on your mighty deeds.

- ¹³ Your way, O God, is holy.
What god is so great as our God?
- ¹⁴ You are the God who works wonders;
you have displayed your might among
the peoples.
- ¹⁵ With your strong arm you redeemed
your people,
the descendants of Jacob and Joseph. Selah
- ¹⁶ When the waters saw you, O God,
when the waters saw you, they were afraid;
the very deep trembled.
- ¹⁷ The clouds poured out water;
the skies thundered;
your arrows flashed on every side.
- ¹⁸ The crash of your thunder was in the
whirlwind;
your lightnings lit up the world;
the earth trembled and shook.
- ¹⁹ Your way was through the sea,
your path, through the mighty waters;
yet your footprints were unseen.
- ²⁰ You led your people like a flock
by the hand of Moses and Aaron.

Psalm 78

A Maskil of Asaph.

- ¹ Give ear, O my people, to my teaching;
incline your ears to the words of my
mouth.

^a Gk Syr: Heb My music

^b Syr Jerome: Heb my spirit searches

Ps 77: The mighty acts of God in national trouble. Though often classed as an individual lament or petition, the psalm is a community petition in which a speaker expresses the personal distress of all (vv. 1–10) and recalls God’s past fidelity to the nation (vv. 11–20). Superscription: Jeduthun, see Ps 39n. Asaph, see Ps 73n. 3: Selah (also vv. 9,15), see Ps 3.2n. 10: The right hand of the Most High has changed, right hand connotes supreme power. That the LORD seems unable to save the people depresses the singer. 11–12: Call to mind, remember, meditate, muse, the verbs here mean to recite aloud as in a ritual, as if the very recital in God’s hearing would spur God to renew the acts that established the community. 11–20: Combining historical and cosmic language, the psalmist describes the Exodus from Egypt, Israel’s great founding event, noting that even then no visible trace of God’s power was seen (v. 19c). 15: The descendants of Jacob and Joseph, i.e., the Israelites. 16–19: Cf. Pss 18.7–15; 114.3–6.

Ps 78: A lesson from history. Ps 78 juxtaposes two series of events in Israel’s history (vv. 12–39,40–72) to demonstrate that the people’s sin has triggered divine punishment, but, even more important, the offer of a new beginning. The first series of events is limited to those that took place “in the wilderness . . . in the desert” (v. 40; cf. Ex 14–Num 11); the second set is broader, embracing the entire Exodus including the conquest of Canaan, the founding of the national shrine at Shiloh, its rejection, and the choice of Zion and of David. The psalmist’s attempt to persuade the northern kingdom of Israel (“the Ephraimites,” v. 9) to accept the Davidic king suggests a time of composition in the eighth or seventh century BCE when the Northern and Southern Kingdoms were separated. The psalm makes clear that history is not recalled for its own sake, but for didactic reasons (see vv. 6–8). Superscription: Maskil, a technical term of uncertain significance. Asaph, see Ps 73n. 1–11:

² I will open my mouth in a parable;
 I will utter dark sayings from of old,
³ things that we have heard and known,
 that our ancestors have told us.
⁴ We will not hide them from their
 children;
 we will tell to the coming generation
 the glorious deeds of the LORD, and his might,
 and the wonders that he has done.

⁵ He established a decree in Jacob,
 and appointed a law in Israel,
 which he commanded our ancestors
 to teach to their children;
⁶ that the next generation might know
 them,
 the children yet unborn,
 and rise up and tell them to their children,
⁷ so that they should set their hope in God,
 and not forget the works of God,
 but keep his commandments;
⁸ and that they should not be like their ancestors,
 a stubborn and rebellious generation,
 a generation whose heart was not steadfast,
 whose spirit was not faithful to God.

⁹ The Ephraimites, armed with^a the bow, turned back on the day of battle.
¹⁰ They did not keep God's covenant, but refused to walk according to his law.
¹¹ They forgot what he had done,
 and the miracles that he had shown
 them.
¹² In the sight of their ancestors he worked marvels
 in the land of Egypt, in the fields of Zoan.
¹³ He divided the sea and let them pass through it,
 and made the waters stand like a heap.

¹⁴ In the daytime he led them with
 a cloud,
 and all night long with a fiery light.
¹⁵ He split rocks open in the wilderness, and gave them drink abundantly as from the deep.
¹⁶ He made streams come out of the rock,
 and caused waters to flow down like rivers.

¹⁷ Yet they sinned still more against him, rebelling against the Most High in the desert.
¹⁸ They tested God in their heart
 by demanding the food they craved.
¹⁹ They spoke against God, saying,
 "Can God spread a table in the wilderness?
²⁰ Even though he struck the rock so that water gushed out
 and torrents overflowed,
 can he also give bread,
 or provide meat for his people?"

²¹ Therefore, when the LORD heard, he was full of rage;
 a fire was kindled against Jacob,
 his anger mounted against Israel, ²² because they had no faith in God,
 and did not trust his saving power.
²³ Yet he commanded the skies
 above,
 and opened the doors of heaven;
²⁴ he rained down on them manna to eat,
 and gave them the grain of heaven.
²⁵ Mortals ate of the bread of angels;
 he sent them food in abundance.
²⁶ He caused the east wind to blow in the
 heavens,
 and by his power he led out the south
 wind;

^a Heb armed with shooting

Like Moses in Deut 5 and 18:18–19, the psalmist promises to interpret the national tradition so that the hearers might respond properly to God's new gracious act: choosing David as king and Zion as the national shrine. 2: Parable, better, "lessons." 12–40: Casting the wilderness traditions in a different order from the Pentateuch, the psalm mentions gracious act (vv. 12–16), rebellion (vv. 17–20), divine anger and punishment (vv. 21–31), and then, surprisingly, God's forgiveness and fresh invitation (vv. 32–39). 12: Zoan, a city in northern Egypt. 13: Ex 14.21, 29; 15.8. 14: Ex 13.21–22; 14.19–20. 15–16: Ex 17.6; Num 20.11; Isa 48.21. The deep, the chaotic waters

²⁷ he rained flesh upon them like dust, winged birds like the sand of the seas;

²⁸ he let them fall within their camp,
all around their dwellings.

²⁹ And they ate and were well filled,
for he gave them what they craved.

³⁰ But before they had satisfied their craving,
while the food was still in their mouths,

³¹ the anger of God rose against them and he killed the strongest of them,
and laid low the flower of Israel.

³² In spite of all this they still sinned;
they did not believe in his wonders.

³³ So he made their days vanish like a
breath,
and their years in terror.

³⁴ When he killed them, they sought for
him;
they repented and sought God
earnestly.

³⁵ They remembered that God was their
rock,
the Most High God their redeemer.

³⁶ But they flattered him with their
mouths;
they lied to him with their tongues.

³⁷ Their heart was not steadfast toward
him;
they were not true to his covenant.

³⁸ Yet he, being compassionate,
forgave their iniquity,
and did not destroy them;

often he restrained his anger,
and did not stir up all his wrath.

³⁹ He remembered that they were but
flesh,
a wind that passes and does not come
again.

⁴⁰ How often they rebelled against him in the wilderness
and grieved him in the desert!

⁴¹ They tested God again and again,
and provoked the Holy One of Israel.

⁴² They did not keep in mind his power, or the day when he redeemed them
from the foe;

⁴³ when he displayed his signs in Egypt,
and his miracles in the fields of Zoan.

⁴⁴ He turned their rivers to blood, so that they could not drink of their streams.

⁴⁵ He sent among them swarms of flies,
which devoured them,
and frogs, which destroyed them.

⁴⁶ He gave their crops to the caterpillar, and the fruit of their labor to the locust.

⁴⁷ He destroyed their vines with hail,
and their sycamores with frost.

⁴⁸ He gave over their cattle to the hail,
and their flocks to thunderbolts.

⁴⁹ He let loose on them his fierce anger,
wrath, indignation, and distress,
a company of destroying angels.

⁵⁰ He made a path for his anger;
he did not spare them from death,
but gave their lives over to the plague.

⁵¹ He struck all the firstborn in Egypt,
the first issue of their strength in the tents of Ham.

⁵² Then he led out his people like sheep, and guided them in the wilderness like
a flock.

⁵³ He led them in safety, so that they were not afraid;
but the sea overwhelmed their enemies.

⁵⁴ And he brought them to his holy hill, to the mountain that his right hand had won.

⁵⁵ He drove out nations before them;
he apportioned them for a possession and settled the tribes of Israel in their tents.

⁵⁶ Yet they tested the Most High God,
and rebelled against him.

They did not observe his decrees, ⁵⁷ but turned away and were faithless like their ancestors;

they twisted like a treacherous bow.

⁵⁸ For they provoked him to anger with their high places;
they moved him to jealousy with their idols.

vanquished by God, which served Israel's need for water; cf. Ps 104.5–14. 18–31: The provisioning of the people with food after the Exodus is drawn from Ex 16 and Num 11. 40–54: Different traditions but the same order: gracious act (vv. 40–55), rebellion (vv. 56–58), divine anger and punishment (vv. 59–64), forgiveness and offer

59 When God heard, he was full of wrath,
 and he utterly rejected Israel.
 60 He abandoned his dwelling at Shiloh,
 the tent where he dwelt among
 mortals,
 61 and delivered his power to captivity,
 his glory to the hand of the foe.
 62 He gave his people to the sword,
 and vented his wrath on his heritage.
 63 Fire devoured their young men,
 and their girls had no marriage song.
 64 Their priests fell by the sword,
 and their widows made no
 lamentation.
 65 Then the Lord awoke as from sleep,
 like a warrior shouting because of wine.
 66 He put his adversaries to rout;
 he put them to everlasting disgrace.
 67 He rejected the tent of Joseph,
 he did not choose the tribe of Ephraim;
 68 but he chose the tribe of Judah,
 Mount Zion, which he loves.
 69 He built his sanctuary like the high
 heavens,
 like the earth, which he has founded
 forever.
 70 He chose his servant David,
 and took him from the sheepfolds;
 71 from tending the nursing ewes he brought him
 to be the shepherd of his people Jacob,
 of Israel, his inheritance.
 72 With upright heart he tended them,
 and guided them with skillful hand.

Psalm 79

A Psalm of Asaph.

1 O God, the nations have come into your inheritance;
 they have defiled your holy temple;
 they have laid Jerusalem in ruins.
 2 They have given the bodies of your servants
 to the birds of the air for food,
 the flesh of your faithful to the wild animals of the earth.
 3 They have poured out their blood like
 water
 all around Jerusalem,
 and there was no one to bury them.
 4 We have become a taunt to our
 neighbors,
 mocked and derided by those around us.
 5 How long, O LORD? Will you be angry
 forever?
 Will your jealous wrath burn like fire?
 6 Pour out your anger on the nations
 that do not know you,
 and on the kingdoms
 that do not call on your name.
 7 For they have devoured Jacob and laid waste his habitation.
 8 Do not remember against us the iniquities of our ancestors;
 let your compassion come speedily to meet us,
 for we are brought very low.

(vv. 65–72). Here too the traditions are not identical to what is preserved in the books of Exodus and Numbers. 45–51: The plagues (Ex 7–11; Ps 105.26–36). 51: Ham, Egypt; see Gen 10.6. 52–55: Cf. Ex 15.13; Ps 77.20. 60: The ark of the covenant was in Shiloh according to 1 Sam 3–4 before it was brought to Jerusalem. It is uncertain when Shiloh was destroyed, even though Jeremiah also mentions this event (26.6,9). 61: His power . . . his glory, referring to the ark, captured by the Philistines (1 Sam 4–6). 67–68: God rejected the Northern Kingdom of Israel (Joseph, Ephraim) in favor of the Southern Kingdom of Judah. 71–72: The image of the king as shepherd of the people is common in the ancient Near East.

Ps 79: A community petition for punishment for those dishonoring God. Though the prayer might seem concerned only with revenge, it actually seeks to maintain the community's relationship to God and uphold the divine honor. The initial verses suggest that it reflects the destruction of Jerusalem and the Temple by the Babylonian army in 586 BCE. Superscription: Asaph, see Ps 73n. 1: Your inheritance, the land given by God. 2: The bodies . . . to the wild animals, leaving bodies unburied shows the disrespect of victors and created grief for those defeated. 5: How long? not necessarily a rhetorical question; people in antiquity sought to know how long an affliction would last. 8: Do not remember . . . the iniquities of our ancestors, more accurately, "our past iniquities." The people do not deny they have sinned and deserve punishment, but object that their enemies have sinned

⁹ Help us, O God of our salvation,
for the glory of your name;
deliver us, and forgive our sins,
for your name's sake.

¹⁰ Why should the nations say,
"Where is their God?"
Let the avenging of the outpoured blood of your servants
be known among the nations before our
eyes.

¹¹ Let the groans of the prisoners come
before you;
according to your great power preserve
those doomed to die.

¹² Return sevenfold into the bosom of our neighbors
the taunts with which they taunted you,
O Lord!

¹³ Then we your people, the flock of your pasture,
will give thanks to you forever;
from generation to generation we will recount your praise.

Psalm 80

To the leader: on Lilies, a Covenant. Of Asaph.

A Psalm.

¹ Give ear, O Shepherd of Israel, you who lead Joseph like
a flock!
You who are enthroned upon the cherubim, shine forth
² before Ephraim and Benjamin and Manasseh.

Stir up your might,
and come to save us!

³ Restore us, O God;
let your face shine, that we may be
saved.

⁴ O LORD God of hosts,
how long will you be angry with your people's prayers?

⁵ You have fed them with the bread of tears,
and given them tears to drink in full
measure.

⁶ You make us the scorn^a of our neighbors;
our enemies laugh among themselves.

⁷ Restore us, O God of hosts;
let your face shine, that we may be saved.

⁸ You brought a vine out of Egypt;
you drove out the nations and planted it.

⁹ You cleared the ground for it;
it took deep root and filled the land.

¹⁰ The mountains were covered with its shade,
the mighty cedars with its branches;

¹¹ it sent out its branches to the sea,
and its shoots to the River.

¹² Why then have you broken down its walls,
so that all who pass along the way pluck its fruit?

¹³ The boar from the forest ravages it,
and all that move in the field feed on it.

^a Syr: Heb strife

much more by attacking the LORD's Temple and deserve immediate and severe punishment. 9–13: A set of reasons why God should respond. 11–13: Keep us as your people and defend your Temple and you are guaranteed praise forever! Like Pss 77 and 78, Ps 79 ends with—and Ps 80 begins with—the image of the divine shepherd, connecting these psalms “of Asaph.”

Ps 80: Prayer that the shepherd of Israel would restore the people. A community petition: vv. 1–7 ask God to aid the northern tribes suffering from the effects of God's anger, vv. 8–13 recall Israel's founding event (the Exodus and settlement of Canaan) called into question by the enemies' triumph, and vv. 12–19 pray that God act now. The psalm imagines the founding event as the transplanting of a vine to Canaan; cf. Isa 5.1–7; Ezek 17.1–10. Superscription: On Lilies, probably refers to a melody (cf. Pss 45; 69). Covenant, cf. Ps 60. Asaph, see Ps 73n. 1: Ephraim and Benjamin and Manasseh, northern tribes separated from Judah since the schism of ca. 922 BCE. In 722, Assyria defeated the Northern Kingdom and seized its territory. God is imagined as enthroned upon the cherubim, namely present above the ark of the covenant in the Temple. 4: The epithet God of hosts, which refers to God with his heavenly army, is especially suitable here, since God is asked to fight on behalf of Israel. 8–13: Ex 15.17; Ps 44.2; and Ezek 19.10–14 also speak of the founding of Israel as a planting. 11: The River, the Euphrates. 14–19: May God protect the vine and the one at your right hand (v. 17, the Davidic king). Then we will

¹⁴ Turn again, O God of hosts;
 look down from heaven, and see;
 have regard for this vine,
¹⁵ the stock that your right hand planted.^a ¹⁶ They have burned it with fire, they have cut it down;^b
 may they perish at the rebuke of your countenance.
¹⁷ But let your hand be upon the one at your right hand,
 the one whom you made strong for
 yourself.
¹⁸ Then we will never turn back from you;
 give us life, and we will call on your
 name.
¹⁹ Restore us, O LORD God of hosts;
 let your face shine, that we may be saved.

Psalm 81

To the leader: according to The Gittith. Of Asaph.

¹ Sing aloud to God our strength;
 shout for joy to the God of Jacob.
² Raise a song, sound the tambourine,
 the sweet lyre with the harp.
³ Blow the trumpet at the new moon,
 at the full moon, on our festal day.
⁴ For it is a statute for Israel,
 an ordinance of the God of Jacob.
⁵ He made it a decree in Joseph,
 when he went out over^c the land of Egypt.
 I hear a voice I had not known:
⁶ "I relieved your^d shoulder of the burden;
 your^d hands were freed from the basket.

⁷ In distress you called, and I rescued you;
 I answered you in the secret place of thunder;
 I tested you at the waters of Meribah. Selah
⁸ Hear, O my people, while I admonish you;
 O Israel, if you would but listen to me!
⁹ There shall be no strange god among you;
 you shall not bow down to a foreign god.
¹⁰ I am the LORD your God, who brought you up out of the land of Egypt.
 Open your mouth wide and I will fill it.
¹¹ "But my people did not listen to my
 voice;
 Israel would not submit to me.
¹² So I gave them over to their stubborn
 hearts,
 to follow their own counsels.
¹³ O that my people would listen to me,
 that Israel would walk in my ways!
¹⁴ Then I would quickly subdue their
 enemies,
 and turn my hand against their foes.
¹⁵ Those who hate the LORD would cringe
 before him,
 and their doom would last forever.
¹⁶ I would feed you^e with the finest of the wheat,

^a Heb adds from verse 17 and upon the one whom you made strong for yourself

^b Cn: Heb it is cut down

^c Or against

^d Heb his

^e Cn Compare verse 16b: Heb he would feed him

be restored and faithful to God.

Ps 81: Invitation to renew the covenant. A covenant renewal liturgy like Ps 50 in which the community is invited to renew the covenant (vv. 1–5b) and is confronted with the consequences of disobedience (vv. 5c–16). Superscription: Gittith, see Ps 8n. Asaph, see Ps 73n. 3: Festal day, the exact reference is uncertain; little is known about the covenant renewal ceremony in ancient Israel. 5: Joseph, referring to the tribes of Ephraim and Manasseh, the principal constituents of the Northern Kingdom of Israel. I hear a voice I had not known, introduces an oracle in which God, speaking in the first person (vv. 6–10), describes the people's liberation from Egyptian bondage, their encounter with the LORD at Sinai, and guidance in the wilderness (vv. 6–7), and reminds the people of the commandment of loving the LORD alone (vv. 8–10). 7: The secret place of thunder, Mount Sinai where God appeared in thunder (Ex 19.16,18; 20.18). For the waters of Meribah, see Ex 17.17; Num 20.13. Selah, see Ps 3.2n. 9–10: A restatement of the beginning of the Decalogue. 9: Foreign god, see Deut 32.12. 10: Open your mouth wide and I will fill it, to accept the LORD's food in the wilderness is equivalently to accept the LORD as their God. 11–16: A similar harsh scrutiny is found in Josh 24.19–21. Such language is meant to explain why all is not well with Is-

and with honey from the rock I would satisfy you.”

Psalm 82

A Psalm of Asaph.

- ¹ God has taken his place in the divine council;
in the midst of the gods he holds judgment:
² “How long will you judge unjustly and show partiality to the wicked? Selah
³ Give justice to the weak and the orphan;
maintain the right of the lowly and the destitute.
⁴ Rescue the weak and the needy;
deliver them from the hand of the wicked.”
⁵ They have neither knowledge nor understanding,
they walk around in darkness;
all the foundations of the earth are shaken.
⁶ I say, “You are gods,
children of the Most High, all of you;
⁷ nevertheless, you shall die like mortals,
and fall like any prince.”^a

⁸ Rise up, O God, judge the earth;
for all the nations belong to you!

Psalm 83

A Song. A Psalm of Asaph.

- ¹ O God, do not keep silence;
do not hold your peace or be still, O God!
² Even now your enemies are in tumult;
those who hate you have raised their heads.
³ They lay crafty plans against your people;
they consult together against those you protect.
⁴ They say, “Come, let us wipe them out as a nation;
let the name of Israel be remembered no more.”
⁵ They conspire with one accord;
against you they make a covenant—
⁶ the tents of Edom and the Ishmaelites, Moab and the Hagrites,
⁷ Gebal and Ammon and Amalek,
Philistia with the inhabitants of Tyre;
⁸ Assyria also has joined them;
they are the strong arm of the children
of Lot. Selah

^a Or fall as one man, O princes

rael in the psalmist’s period. 16: Finest of the wheat, see Deut 32.14; Ps 147.14. Honey from the rock, see Deut 32.13.

Ps 82: Petition for divine justice. As in Ps 29, and to a lesser extent Pss 58 and 75, the setting is the assembly of the heavenly beings, who were thought to rule the nations of the earth under God’s supervision (cf. Deut 32.8–9). This psalm tells how these beings lost their authority by ruling unjustly, and how God took over their rule. The psalm shares mythic and historical material with Gen 6.1–2; Isa 14.12–21; and Ezek 28.1–19. A variant of this judgment scene is Ps 58. Superscription: Asaph, see Ps 73n. 1: Divine council, in 1 Kings 22.19–22; Isa 6; 40.1–9, the assembly is thoroughly obedient to God. In Ps 82, the gods are summoned to trial, found guilty of misrule, and punished with mortality, i.e., loss of divine status and expulsion from heaven. 2–4: Acting both as prosecuting attorney and judge, God accuses them of not giving justice to the weak, i.e., not aiding them. 2: Selah, see Ps 3.2n. 5: Either a comment of the psalmist or of the heavenly prosecutor. 6–7: The verdict. 8: The implication of what precedes: A call for God, now acting alone, to judge fairly.

Ps 83: A plea that God would protect the community. A community petition that God might protect the people from ten nations bent on annihilating Israel. Ten is symbolic for many as in Gen 5 (ten individuals before the Flood); Gen 31.7; Num 14.22; Job 19.3. The list reflects no single historical reality but is cumulative, like the listing of enemies in Ezek 38–39, designating all enemies of God’s people. In structure, v. 1 is the opening plea, vv. 2–8 the complaint (a conspiracy against Israel), and vv. 9–18 the plea that God wipe out all enemies (vv. 9–12) using the weapons of storm (vv. 13–17), so God’s holy name may be exalted on earth (v. 18). Superscription: Asaph, see Ps 73n. 4–8: The psalmist cites the speech of conspirators (v. 4) as in Ex 1.10 and Ps 2.3. 6: The tents of Edom, the territory south and east of the Dead Sea. Ishmaelites, nomads (Gen 37.25) related to the Edomites (Gen 36.3, 9–10). Moab, east of the Dead Sea. Hagrites, their territory was east of Gilead (1 Chr 5.10,19–20). 7: Gebal, later known as Byblos, on the coast of Lebanon. Ammon, in central Transjordan. Amalek, a people dispossessed by Israel in Ex 17.8–16; they disappear from the Bible after the time of David (1 Sam 15 and 30:13–25). 8: Assyria

⁹ Do to them as you did to Midian,
as to Sisera and Jabin at the Wadi Kishon,

¹⁰ who were destroyed at En-dor,
who became dung for the ground.

¹¹ Make their nobles like Oreb and Zeeb, all their princes like Zebah and Zalmunna,

¹² who said, "Let us take the pastures of God
for our own possession."

¹³ O my God, make them like whirling dust,^a like chaff before the wind.

¹⁴ As fire consumes the forest,
as the flame sets the mountains ablaze,

¹⁵ so pursue them with your tempest and terrify them with your hurricane.

¹⁶ Fill their faces with shame,
so that they may seek your name, O LORD.

¹⁷ Let them be put to shame and dismayed
forever;
let them perish in disgrace.

¹⁸ Let them know that you alone,
whose name is the LORD,
are the Most High over all the earth.

Psalm 84

To the leader: according to The Gittith. Of the Korahites. A Psalm.

¹ How lovely is your dwelling place,
O LORD of hosts!

² My soul longs, indeed it faints
for the courts of the LORD;
my heart and my flesh sing for joy
to the living God.

³ Even the sparrow finds a home,
and the swallow a nest for herself,
where she may lay her young,
at your altars, O LORD of hosts,
my King and my God.

⁴ Happy are those who live in your house,
ever singing your praise. Selah

⁵ Happy are those whose strength is in
you,
in whose heart are the highways to Zion.^b

⁶ As they go through the valley of Baca
they make it a place of springs;
the early rain also covers it with pools.

⁷ They go from strength to strength;
the God of gods will be seen in Zion.

⁸ O LORD God of hosts, hear my prayer;
give ear, O God of Jacob! Selah

⁹ Behold our shield, O God;
look on the face of your anointed.

¹⁰ For a day in your courts is better than a thousand elsewhere.
I would rather be a doorkeeper in the house of my God
than live in the tents of wickedness.

¹¹ For the LORD God is a sun and shield;
he bestows favor and honor.
No good thing does the LORD withhold from those who walk uprightly.

¹² O LORD of hosts,
happy is everyone who trusts in you.

^a Or a tumbleweed

^b Heb lacks to Zion

conquered the northern kingdom of Israel in 722 BCE and thereafter harassed Judah. The children of Lot were Moab and Ammon (Gen 19.36–38). Selah, see Ps 3.2n. 9–18: May you show your enemies that you are supreme. The events in vv. 10–12 are narrated in Judg 4–8. 9: Midian, a confederation of desert tribes. 10: En-dor, near Mount Tabor in central Israel. 11: Oreb and Zeeb, Midianite captains slain by Ephraimites (Judg 7.25; 8.3). Zebah and Zalmunna, Midianite kings slain by Gideon (Judg 8.4–21). 13–14: These verses may have been accompanied by symbolic actions.

Ps 84: Longing for the Temple and a prayer for the Davidic king. A song of Zion, with emphasis on the desire to participate in its worship (cf. Pss 42–43; 63). Superscription: Gittith, see Ps 8n. Korahites, see Ps 42–43n. 1: Lovely, better, "beloved" as in Isa 5.1 and Deut 33.12. 3: At your altars, NRSV wrongly assumes birds' nests are at the altar, where birds' nests would never be allowed. The comparison is to a homeless bird finding a home for its young. It is unclear, however, if people could live on the Temple grounds, as suggested here and in Ps 23.6. 4: Selah (also v. 8), see Ps 3.2n. 5–7: The joyous final stage of the journey to Zion. 6: Baca, precise location unknown. 9: Our shield, your anointed, the Davidic king played an important role in the ceremonies in Zion.

Psalm 85

To the leader. Of the Korahites. A Psalm.

- ¹ LORD, you were favorable to your land;
you restored the fortunes of Jacob.
² You forgave the iniquity of your people;
you pardoned all their sin. Selah
³ You withdrew all your wrath;
you turned from your hot anger.
⁴ Restore us again, O God of our salvation, and put away your indignation toward
us.
⁵ Will you be angry with us forever?
Will you prolong your anger to all
generations?
⁶ Will you not revive us again,
so that your people may rejoice in you?
⁷ Show us your steadfast love, O LORD,
and grant us your salvation.
⁸ Let me hear what God the LORD will
speak,
for he will speak peace to his people,
to his faithful, to those who turn to him
in their hearts.^a ⁹ Surely his salvation is at hand for those
who fear him,
that his glory may dwell in our land.
¹⁰ Steadfast love and faithfulness will meet;
righteousness and peace will kiss each other.
¹¹ Faithfulness will spring up from the ground,
and righteousness will look down from the sky.
¹² The LORD will give what is good,
and our land will yield its increase.
¹³ Righteousness will go before him,
and will make a path for his steps.

Ps 85: A prayer for forgiveness. A community petition that God would be merciful as in the past (vv. 1–3) and forgive this discouraged generation (vv. 4–13). Superscription: Korahites, see Ps 42–43n. 2: Pardoned, lit. “covered.” Selah, see Ps 3.2n. 8: Though the exact mechanisms are unclear, worshipers expected to be able to discern the divine will, especially at the Temple. 10–13: The effects of divine forgiveness on land and people are expressed in memorable metaphors and personifications: courtiers greeting each other with exquisite courtesy (v. 10), the land itself growing righteousness like a plant (vv. 11–12), and messengers preparing for the LORD’s arrival (v. 13); cf. Ps 89.14.

Ps 86: Desire for God as helper. An individual petition that expresses the psalmist’s desire to be God’s loyal servant (vv. 1–7); it celebrates God’s incomparability (vv. 8–13) prior to asking for help in a particular need (vv. 14–17). 1: Incline your ear . . . answer me, repeated in v. 7 (NRSV call . . . answer), which concludes the section. The poet is proud to be the servant of so responsive a Lord. Poor and needy, to express one’s poverty makes a claim

Psalm 86

A Prayer of David.

- ¹ Incline your ear, O LORD, and answer me,
for I am poor and needy.
² Preserve my life, for I am devoted to you;
save your servant who trusts in you.
You are my God; ³ be gracious to me, O Lord,
for to you do I cry all day long.
⁴ Gladden the soul of your servant,
for to you, O Lord, I lift up my soul.
⁵ For you, O Lord, are good and forgiving, abounding in steadfast love to all who call on you.
⁶ Give ear, O LORD, to my prayer;
listen to my cry of supplication.
⁷ In the day of my trouble I call on you,
for you will answer me.
⁸ There is none like you among the gods,
O Lord,
nor are there any works like yours.
⁹ All the nations you have made shall come and bow down before you, O Lord,
and shall glorify your name.
¹⁰ For you are great and do wondrous things;
you alone are God.
¹¹ Teach me your way, O LORD,
that I may walk in your truth;
give me an undivided heart to revere
your name.
¹² I give thanks to you, O Lord my God,
with my whole heart,
and I will glorify your name forever.
¹³ For great is your steadfast love toward
me;
you have delivered my soul from the depths of Sheol.

^a Gk: Heb but let them not turn back to folly

- ¹⁴ O God, the insolent rise up against me;
a band of ruffians seeks my life,
and they do not set you before them.
- ¹⁵ But you, O Lord, are a God merciful and gracious,
slow to anger and abounding in steadfast love and faithfulness.
- ¹⁶ Turn to me and be gracious to me;
give your strength to your servant;
save the child of your serving girl.
- ¹⁷ Show me a sign of your favor,
so that those who hate me may see it
and be put to shame, because you, LORD, have helped me and comforted me.

Psalm 87

Of the Korahites. A Psalm. A Song.

- ¹ On the holy mount stands the city he founded;
² the LORD loves the gates of Zion
more than all the dwellings of Jacob.
- ³ Glorious things are spoken of you,
O city of God. Selah
- ⁴ Among those who know me I mention
Rahab and Babylon;
Philistia too, and Tyre, with Ethiopia^a—
“This one was born there,” they say.
- ⁵ And of Zion it shall be said,
“This one and that one were born in it”;

- for the Most High himself will establish it.
- ⁶ The LORD records, as he registers the
peoples,
“This one was born there.” Selah
- ⁷ Singers and dancers alike say,
“All my springs are in you.”

Psalm 88

A Song. A Psalm of the Korahites. To the leader: according to Mahalath Leannoth. A Maskil of Heman the Ezrahite.

- ¹ O LORD, God of my salvation, when, at night, I cry out in your
presence,
² let my prayer come before you;
incline your ear to my cry.
- ³ For my soul is full of troubles,
and my life draws near to Sheol.
- ⁴ I am counted among those who go down to the Pit;
I am like those who have no help,
⁵ like those forsaken among the dead,
like the slain that lie in the grave,
like those whom you remember no
more,
for they are cut off from your hand.
- ⁶ You have put me in the depths of the Pit,
in the regions dark and deep.

^a Or Nubia; Heb Cush

against God, for God wants the faithful to enjoy the goods of creation. 8: Cf. Pss 71.19; 89.6–7; Ex 15.11. 9: See Ps 22.27n. 14–17: Having praised the LORD’s graciousness in vv. 1–7 and 8–13, the psalmist now asks for the same compassion and justice in the present need. 13: Sheol, the abode of the dead. 15: Citing the attributes of God’s compassionate nature from Ex 34.6.

Ps 87: Zion, God’s chosen city. A song of Zion, probably from the sixth or fifth century BCE, assuring exiled Israelites their true home is Zion and welcoming the nations who bring them home. Superscription: Korahites, see Ps 42–43n. 3: Glorious things, hymns sung in the city of God, as in Pss 48.1; 76.1. Selah (also v. 6), see Ps 3.2n. 4: Rahab, probably Egypt (see Isa 30.7). Philistia, on the southeastern Mediterranean coast. Tyre, an important coastal city north of Israel, standing for Phoenicia (modern Lebanon). This one was born there, either Zion or the country where the exiles dwell. In the similar phrases in vv. 5 and 6, the referent is clearly Zion. Birth in a foreign country does not prevent one from calling Zion mother; cf. Isa 40–55 where Zion regains her husband and children. 7: All my springs, citation of a song celebrating Zion as a source of fertility as in Ps 46.4.

Ps 88: The prayer of a near-hopeless individual. Perhaps the bleakest individual petition in the Psalms, with no expressions of trust and, strikingly, no mention of enemies; in a sense God is regarded as the enemy. The poem has three sections (vv. 1–9a, 9b–12, 13–18), each introduced by a verb of crying and a mention of the LORD (vv. 1a, 9b, 13a). The middle section develops the theme of God’s withdrawal through six questions. Superscription: Korahites, see Ps 42–43n. Mahalath Leannoth, probably a melody. Maskil, a technical term of uncertain significance. Heman the Ezrahite, a legendary wise man (1 Kings 4.31) or Temple musician (see, e.g., 1 Chr 6.33); only ⁷Your wrath lies heavy upon me, and you overwhelm me with all your waves. Selah

⁸You have caused my companions to shun
me;
you have made me a thing of horror to
them.

I am shut in so that I cannot escape;

⁹my eye grows dim through sorrow.

Every day I call on you, O LORD;

I spread out my hands to you.

¹⁰Do you work wonders for the dead?

Do the shades rise up to praise you?

Selah

¹¹Is your steadfast love declared in the grave,

or your faithfulness in Abaddon?

¹²Are your wonders known in the darkness, or your saving help in the land of forgetfulness?

¹³But I, O LORD, cry out to you;
in the morning my prayer comes before
you.

¹⁴O LORD, why do you cast me off?
Why do you hide your face from me?

¹⁵Wretched and close to death from my youth up,

I suffer your terrors; I am desperate.^a ¹⁶Your wrath has swept over me;

your dread assaults destroy me.

¹⁷They surround me like a flood all day
long;

from all sides they close in on me.

¹⁸You have caused friend and neighbor to shun me;
my companions are in darkness.

Psalm 89

A Maskil of Ethan the Ezrahite.

¹I will sing of your steadfast love, O LORD,^b
forever;

with my mouth I will proclaim your faithfulness to all generations.

²I declare that your steadfast love is established forever;

your faithfulness is as firm as the
heavens.

³You said, "I have made a covenant with my chosen one,

I have sworn to my servant David:

⁴"I will establish your descendants
forever,

and build your throne for all generations."

Selah

⁵Let the heavens praise your wonders,
O LORD,
your faithfulness in the assembly of the holy ones.

⁶For who in the skies can be compared to
the LORD?

Who among the heavenly beings is like
the LORD,

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Gk: Heb the steadfast love of the LORD

this psalm is ascribed to him. 3–4: Sheol . . . the Pit, the underworld where all go upon death; the psalmist is seeing that he is almost dead. 7: Your wrath, more impersonal than in English, something like "away from your favor and blessing." Your waves, Sheol was sometimes imagined as a watery place (e.g., Ps 42.7; Jon 2.3). Selah (also v. 10), see Ps 3.2n. 8: The psalmist feels that God is the direct cause of all of his problems. 11–12: If I die, the psalmist is saying, I will be in the underworld where you are not praised; see Ps 6.5n. Abaddon (lit. "destruction"), another name for the abode of the dead. 13–18: Extending the thought of the first section, these verses detail the cruel behavior of God, asking Why? (v. 14). Yet the psalmist holds out the hope that God will return to him.

Ps 89: A plea that God will remain faithful to the covenant with David. Written when the king was important to national life (the tenth to the sixth centuries BCE), the community petition asks God to honor the ancient promise to give victory to the Davidic king (vv. 1–37) since that promise has been called into question by an unspecified defeat (vv. 38–51). Superscription: Maskil, a technical term of uncertain significance. Ethan the Ezrahite, according to 1 Kings 4.31 a sage, and according to 1 Chr 15.17,19, a Temple musician. Only this psalm is ascribed to him. 1: Steadfast love, occurring seven times, the Heb word "hesed" underscores God's close relationship to the Davidic king. 1–4: God's promise to David is no less rooted in creation than the never-failing cycle of the heavens. 4: Selah (also vv. 37,45,48), see Ps 3.2n. 5–14: According to several biblical passages (e.g., Ps 74.12–17), at the time of the creation of the universe, the heavenly assembly acknowledges the supremacy

⁷ a God feared in the council of the holy ones,
great and awesome^a above all that are around him?

⁸ O LORD God of hosts,
who is as mighty as you, O LORD?
Your faithfulness surrounds you.

⁹ You rule the raging of the sea;
when its waves rise, you still them.

¹⁰ You crushed Rahab like a carcass;
you scattered your enemies with your mighty arm.

¹¹ The heavens are yours, the earth also is yours;
the world and all that is in it—you have founded them.

¹² The north and the south^b—you created them;
Tabor and Hermon joyously praise your name.

¹³ You have a mighty arm;
strong is your hand, high your right hand.

¹⁴ Righteousness and justice are the foundation of your throne;
steadfast love and faithfulness go before you.

¹⁵ Happy are the people who know the festal shout,
who walk, O LORD, in the light of your countenance;

¹⁶ they exult in your name all day long,
and extol^c your righteousness.

¹⁷ For you are the glory of their strength;
by your favor our horn is exalted.

¹⁸ For our shield belongs to the LORD,
our king to the Holy One of Israel.

¹⁹ Then you spoke in a vision to your faithful one, and said:
“I have set the crown^d on one who is mighty,
I have exalted one chosen from the people.

²⁰ I have found my servant David;
with my holy oil I have anointed him;
²¹ my hand shall always remain with him;
my arm also shall strengthen him.

²² The enemy shall not outwit him,
the wicked shall not humble him.

²³ I will crush his foes before him and strike down those who hate him.

²⁴ My faithfulness and steadfast love shall be with him;
and in my name his horn shall be exalted.

²⁵ I will set his hand on the sea and his right hand on the rivers.

²⁶ He shall cry to me, ‘You are my Father,
my God, and the Rock of my salvation!’

²⁷ I will make him the firstborn,
the highest of the kings of the earth.

²⁸ Forever I will keep my steadfast love for him,
and my covenant with him will stand firm.

²⁹ I will establish his line forever,
and his throne as long as the heavens endure.

³⁰ If his children forsake my law
and do not walk according to my ordinances,

³¹ if they violate my statutes and do not keep my commandments,

³² then I will punish their transgression with the rod
and their iniquity with scourges;

³³ but I will not remove from him my
steadfast love,
or be false to my faithfulness.

³⁴ I will not violate my covenant,
or alter the word that went forth from my lips.

^a Gk Syr: Heb greatly awesome

^b Or Zaphon and Yamin

^c Cn: Heb are exalted in

^d Cn: Heb help of the God who defeated Sea (vv. 9–10), arranged heaven and earth (vv. 11–12), and ascended to the throne (vv. 13–14). 6: Cf. Pss 71.19; 86.8; Ex 15.11. 10: Rahab, a name for the primeval chaos monster; Job 26.12; Isa 51.9. 12: Tabor and Hermon, two prominent mountains, in southern and northern Galilee respectively. 14: Cf. Ps 85.10–14. 15–18: Paralleling the celebration in the heavens is the celebration of God’s victory on earth. 19–37: Time is collapsed, and David is chosen as king and anointed immediately after the conquest of chaos, as a human king who represents the divine. 25: The king shares the divine task of controlling the primeval forces of watery chaos. 28–37: The promise to David is unconditional: as in 2 Sam 7, on which this is based, if one of David’s

35 Once and for all I have sworn by my holiness;
I will not lie to David.
36 His line shall continue forever,
and his throne endure before me like the sun.
37 It shall be established forever like the moon,
an enduring witness in the skies.” Selah 38 But now you have spurned and rejected him;
you are full of wrath against your anointed.
39 You have renounced the covenant with your servant;
you have defiled his crown in the dust.
40 You have broken through all his walls;
you have laid his strongholds in ruins.
41 All who pass by plunder him;
he has become the scorn of his neighbors.
42 You have exalted the right hand of his foes;
you have made all his enemies rejoice.
43 Moreover, you have turned back the edge of his sword,
and you have not supported him in battle.
44 You have removed the scepter from his hand,^a and hurled his throne to the ground.
45 You have cut short the days of his youth;
you have covered him with shame. Selah
46 How long, O LORD? Will you hide yourself forever?
How long will your wrath burn like fire?
47 Remember how short my time is—^b

for what vanity you have created all mortals!
48 Who can live and never see death?
Who can escape the power of Sheol? Selah
49 Lord, where is your steadfast love of old,
which by your faithfulness you swore to David?
50 Remember, O Lord, how your servant is taunted;
how I bear in my bosom the insults of the peoples,^c 51 with which your enemies taunt, O LORD, with which they taunted the footsteps of your anointed.
52 Blessed be the LORD forever.
Amen and Amen.

BOOK IV PSALMS 90–106

Psalm 90

A Prayer of Moses, the man of God.

¹ Lord, you have been our dwelling place^d
in all generations.
² Before the mountains were brought forth,
or ever you had formed the earth and the world,
from everlasting to everlasting you are God.
³ You turn us^e back to dust,
and say, “Turn back, you mortals.”

^a Cn: Heb removed his cleanness

^b Meaning of Heb uncertain

^c Cn: Heb bosom all of many peoples

^d Another reading is our refuge

^e Heb humankind

descendants is unfaithful to the covenant, that king will be punished but the dynasty will not be rejected. 26–27: Language of (divine) adoption; see 2 Sam 7:14; Ps 2:9. 38–51: A Davidic king has suffered defeat, and the community speaker insists that God remember the promise of fidelity. 48: Sheol, the abode of the dead. 52: This doxology or praise of God is not part of the psalm, but was inserted by an editor to mark the end of the third book of psalms. It is possible that the book of Psalms at one point began with Psalm 2 and ended with this psalm, focusing on Davidic kingship.

Ps 90: A prayer that God would rein in his wrath. Though scholars interpret the psalm as a meditation on human frailty and God’s eternity, it is best viewed as a community petition complaining that God’s wrath has lasted beyond the human life span and asking how much longer this unhappy state will continue (vv. 11–12). This interpretation rests on two pieces of evidence: ancients sought to know exactly how long tribulations were fated to last (Jer 25:11,12; 2 Sam 24:13; Pss 39:4; 74:9); and the proper translation of vv. 11–12: “Who knows the [pre-determined] extent of your anger, . . . Teach us how to calculate our days [of affliction], let us bring that

⁴For a thousand years in your sight
are like yesterday when it is past, or like a watch in the night.

⁵You sweep them away; they are like a dream,
like grass that is renewed in the
morning;

⁶in the morning it flourishes and is renewed;
in the evening it fades and withers.

⁷For we are consumed by your anger;
by your wrath we are overwhelmed.

⁸You have set our iniquities before you,
our secret sins in the light of your
countenance.

⁹For all our days pass away under your
wrath;
our years come to an end^a like a sigh.

¹⁰The days of our life are seventy years,
or perhaps eighty, if we are strong;
even then their span^b is only toil and
trouble;
they are soon gone, and we fly
away.

¹¹Who considers the power of your anger?
Your wrath is as great as the fear that is due you.

¹²So teach us to count our days
that we may gain a wise heart.

¹³Turn, O LORD! How long?
Have compassion on your servants!

¹⁴Satisfy us in the morning with your
steadfast love,

so that we may rejoice and be glad all our days.

¹⁵Make us glad as many days as you have afflicted us,
and as many years as we have seen evil.

¹⁶Let your work be manifest to your
servants,
and your glorious power to their
children.

¹⁷Let the favor of the Lord our God be
upon us,
and prosper for us the work of our hands—

O prosper the work of our hands!

Psalm 91

¹You who live in the shelter of the Most High,
who abide in the shadow of the Almighty,^c

²will say to the LORD, “My refuge and my fortress;
my God, in whom I trust.”

³For he will deliver you from the snare of the fowler
and from the deadly pestilence;

⁴he will cover you with his pinions, and under his wings you will find
refuge;

his faithfulness is a shield and buckler.

⁵You will not fear the terror of the night,
or the arrow that flies by day,

⁶or the pestilence that stalks in darkness,
or the destruction that wastes at
noonday.

^a Syr: Heb we bring our years to an end

^b Cn Compare Gk Syr Jerome Tg: Heb pride

^c Traditional rendering of Heb Shaddai

awareness into our minds.” Superscription: Only this psalm is attributed to Moses, who often asked God to turn and have compassion (e.g., Ex 32.12) as in Ps 90.13. 1–6: Divine eternity is contrasted with human mortality. 3: Turn back, God decreed mortality and a short life span for humans. 5–6: Like grass, cf. Ps 102.11; Isa 40.6–8. 7–12: The psalmist complains that it is unfair to live one’s entire life span in a period of divine wrath, i.e., withdrawal of divine blessing. Seventy years . . . eighty, even an exceptionally old person would never have enjoyed a period of blessing; an example of numerical parallelism (see Ps 62.11n.). 13–17: May God turn from wrath so the community might experience God as being near and favorable.

Ps 91: Trust in God as protector. A song of trust that makes three promises of assistance, each of progressively decreasing length: vv. 1–8; 9–13; 14–16. Through v. 13, a person speaks in God’s name; in vv. 14–16, God speaks in the first person. Striking imagery is used to show how the person who trusts God is protected, even when surrounded by death. 4: Pinions . . . wings, possibly a reference to the winged cherubim guarding the Holy

⁷ A thousand may fall at your side,
 ten thousand at your right hand,
 but it will not come near you.
⁸ You will only look with your eyes and see the punishment of the wicked.

⁹ Because you have made the LORD your refuge,^a
 the Most High your dwelling place, ¹⁰ no evil shall befall you,
 no scourge come near your tent.

¹¹ For he will command his angels concerning you
 to guard you in all your ways.
¹² On their hands they will bear you up,
 so that you will not dash your foot against a stone.
¹³ You will tread on the lion and the adder,
 the young lion and the serpent you will trample under foot.

¹⁴ Those who love me, I will deliver;
 I will protect those who know my name.
¹⁵ When they call to me, I will answer
 them;
 I will be with them in trouble,
 I will rescue them and honor them.
¹⁶ With long life I will satisfy them,
 and show them my salvation.

Psalm 92

A Psalm. A Song for the Sabbath Day.

¹ It is good to give thanks to the LORD, to sing praises to your name, O Most
 High;

² to declare your steadfast love in the
 morning,
 and your faithfulness by night,
³ to the music of the lute and the harp,
 to the melody of the lyre.
⁴ For you, O LORD, have made me glad by
 your work;
 at the works of your hands I sing for joy.

⁵ How great are your works, O LORD!
 Your thoughts are very deep!
⁶ The dullard cannot know,
 the stupid cannot understand this:
⁷ though the wicked sprout like grass
 and all evildoers flourish,
 they are doomed to destruction forever,
⁸ but you, O LORD, are on high forever.
⁹ For your enemies, O LORD,
 for your enemies shall perish;
 all evildoers shall be scattered.
¹⁰ But you have exalted my horn like that of the wild ox;
 you have poured over me^b fresh oil.
¹¹ My eyes have seen the downfall of my
 enemies;
 my ears have heard the doom of my evil
 assailants.
¹² The righteous flourish like the palm tree,
 and grow like a cedar in Lebanon.

^a Cn: Heb Because you, LORD, are my refuge; you have made

^b Sy: Meaning of Heb uncertain

of Holies in the Temple (Ex 25.20; 1 Kings 6.23–28,32; Ezek 1.4–9), but more likely a reference to a protecting bird as in Egyptian iconography and Ex 19.4; Deut 32.10–12. 7: Thousand . . . ten thousand, an example of numerical parallelism; see Ps 62.11n. 9–13: His angels, angels (divine messengers) lead one through perils, as in Ex 23.20,23 and 32.34. Here they serve to explain how the lone individual is saved from the surrounding destruction: God has appointed protective angels for him. 14–16: The last assurance is the most intense, for God speaks in the first person; there are seven verbs depicting God's protection. It is striking that there is no demand for absolute righteousness in order to be saved, only love and trust of God.

Ps 92: Thanksgiving for God's governance of the world. A thanksgiving for God's governance has been developed into a hymn, which according to the superscription was recited on the Sabbath Day, perhaps because it deals with creation and uses the name of God seven times. 1: It is good to give thanks, perhaps in the sense of "Come let us give thanks." 6–11: God's just rule works in hidden ways that the foolish do not grasp. 8: The exact center of the poem, asserting God's triumph in a short, indirect and reverential manner. 10: Horn, a metaphor for strength. 12–15: The righteous person is compared to a tree as in Pss 1.3; 52.8; Jer 17.8. The tree grows in the garden within the Jerusalem Temple. Ancient temples had orchards that symbolized the fertility that comes

¹³They are planted in the house of the
LORD;
they flourish in the courts of our God.
¹⁴In old age they still produce fruit;
they are always green and full of sap, ¹⁵showing that the LORD is upright;
he is my rock, and there is no unrighteousness in him.

Psalm 93

¹The LORD is king, he is robed in majesty;
the LORD is robed, he is girded with
strength.
He has established the world; it shall never
be moved;
²your throne is established from of old;
you are from everlasting.
³The floods have lifted up, O LORD,
the floods have lifted up their voice;
the floods lift up their roaring.
⁴More majestic than the thunders of mighty waters,
more majestic than the waves^a of the sea,
majestic on high is the LORD!
⁵Your decrees are very sure;
holiness befits your house,
O LORD, forevermore.

Psalm 94

¹O LORD, you God of vengeance,
you God of vengeance, shine forth!

²Rise up, O judge of the earth;
give to the proud what they deserve!
³O LORD, how long shall the wicked,
how long shall the wicked exult?

⁴They pour out their arrogant words;
all the evildoers boast.
⁵They crush your people, O LORD,
and afflict your heritage.
⁶They kill the widow and the stranger,
they murder the orphan, ⁷and they say, “The LORD does not see;
the God of Jacob does not perceive.”

⁸Understand, O dullest of the people;
fools, when will you be wise?
⁹He who planted the ear, does he not hear?
He who formed the eye, does he not see?
¹⁰He who disciplines the nations,
he who teaches knowledge to humankind,
does he not chastise?
¹¹The LORD knows our thoughts,^b
that they are but an empty breath.

¹²Happy are those whom you discipline,
O LORD,
and whom you teach out of your law, ¹³giving them respite from days of trouble,
until a pit is dug for the wicked.
¹⁴For the LORD will not forsake his people;
he will not abandon his heritage;

^a Cn: Heb majestic are the waves

^b Heb the thoughts of humankind

from God. The flourishing of the righteous, like creation, testifies to God’s power and righteousness.

Ps 93: The LORD is enthroned as supreme. Like Pss 95–99, Ps 93 praises the LORD as sole king of the universe. Early Israel shared the ancient view that a deity became supreme by defeating chaos and creating a stable and fertile world. In hymns such as this, the LORD defeats chaos (vv. 3–4), and the victory brings an orderly world into being (v. 1c). It is unclear if these psalms celebrating God’s kingship were recited at a particular festival commemorating these events. 1: On his return a victorious warrior would be robed in magnificent garments symbolizing the victory. 3–4: In the cosmic battle, the LORD, using the weapons of a storm (lightning, thunder, wind, rain), defeats Sea (referring to the Canaanite myth in which Baal, the storm god, defeats Sea) attempting to encroach upon the land; cf. Pss 29; 48; 76.12–14; 89.9–10; 104.1–6. 5: The victorious king proclaims the decrees that will govern the new universe.

Ps 94: Rise up, O LORD, to bring justice. A community petition that God would directly rectify wrongs against Israel. The Hebrew word for such rectifying or vindication is “naqam” (v. 1), upholding the rights of the poor; NRSV vengeance is misleading. The poem has a petition (vv. 1–2), complaint (vv. 3–7), questioning of God (vv. 3,20), challenge to the wicked (vv. 9–10,16), and statements of trust (vv. 17–18,22). The psalmist models confidence in God (vv. 17–18), boldly addressing God (vv. 1–3,12–13) and the wicked (vv. 8–11). 6: God is called upon here as “father of orphans and protector of widows” (Ps 68.5). 12: As in Prov 3.12, a justification for the

¹⁵ for justice will return to the righteous, and all the upright in heart will follow it.

¹⁶ Who rises up for me against the wicked?
Who stands up for me against
evildoers?

¹⁷ If the LORD had not been my help, my soul would soon have lived in the land of silence.

¹⁸ When I thought, “My foot is slipping,”
your steadfast love, O LORD, held me up.

¹⁹ When the cares of my heart are many,
your consolations cheer my soul.

²⁰ Can wicked rulers be allied with you,
those who contrive mischief by statute?

²¹ They band together against the life of the
righteous,
and condemn the innocent to death.

²² But the LORD has become my stronghold,
and my God the rock of my refuge.

²³ He will repay them for their iniquity and wipe them out for their wickedness;
the LORD our God will wipe them out.

Psalm 95

¹ O come, let us sing to the LORD;
let us make a joyful noise to the rock of our salvation!

² Let us come into his presence with
thanksgiving;
let us make a joyful noise to him with songs of praise!

³ For the LORD is a great God,
and a great King above all gods.

⁴ In his hand are the depths of the earth;
the heights of the mountains are his also.

⁵ The sea is his, for he made it,

suffering of the seemingly innocent.

Ps 95: Worship and obedience to the glorious LORD. A hymn celebrating the LORD enthroned as supreme (see Ps 93n.). It invites Israel to sing (vv. 1–5), bow down before the LORD (vv. 6–7c), and obey (vv. 7d–11). Themes and phrases of Pss 95–99 overlap and interchange. 1: The rock, a common metaphor for God—a massive cliff or mesa that serves as a refuge (salvation). 3: A great King, a title of suzerains in Mesopotamia, Egypt, and the Hittite kingdom. 7: The sheep of his hand, connotes special love in that God does not delegate the care of Israel to hirelings. 7d–11: The tone and speaker change, and the community is told that as the LORD’s own flock, they are held to a high standard (cf. Pss 50; 81.8–9). 8: Meribah, a place in the wilderness, related by popular etymology to “place of strife”; Massah, another place in the wilderness, in popular etymology, “place of testing”; for both see Ex 17.1–7; Num 21.1–9. 10–11: God’s refusal to allow the first generation to enter the land (my rest) is told in Num 14 and Deut 1.34–2.15; here it serves as a reminder for the community to obey God.

Ps 96: Praise of the LORD who comes to judge the world. A hymn celebrating the LORD’s kingship (see Ps and the dry land, which his hands have formed.

⁶ O come, let us worship and bow down,
let us kneel before the LORD, our Maker!

⁷ For he is our God,
and we are the people of his pasture,
and the sheep of his hand.

O that today you would listen to his voice!

⁸ Do not harden your hearts, as at Meribah,
as on the day at Massah in the wilderness,

⁹ when your ancestors tested me,
and put me to the proof, though they had seen my work.

¹⁰ For forty years I loathed that generation and said, “They are a people whose hearts go astray,
and they do not regard my ways.”

¹¹ Therefore in my anger I swore,
“They shall not enter my rest.”

Psalm 96

¹ O sing to the LORD a new song;
sing to the LORD, all the earth.

² Sing to the LORD, bless his name;
tell of his salvation from day to day.

³ Declare his glory among the nations,
his marvelous works among all the
peoples.

⁴ For great is the LORD, and greatly to be praised;
he is to be revered above all gods.

⁵ For all the gods of the peoples are idols,
but the LORD made the heavens.

⁶ Honor and majesty are before him;
strength and beauty are in his
sanctuary.

⁷ Ascribe to the LORD, O families of the peoples,
ascribe to the LORD glory and strength.

⁸ Ascribe to the LORD the glory due his name;
bring an offering, and come into his courts.

⁹ Worship the LORD in holy splendor;
tremble before him, all the earth.

¹⁰ Say among the nations, “The LORD is king!
The world is firmly established; it shall never be moved.

He will judge the peoples with equity.”

¹¹ Let the heavens be glad, and let the earth rejoice;

let the sea roar, and all that fills it;

¹² let the field exult, and everything in it.

Then shall all the trees of the forest sing for joy

¹³ before the LORD; for he is coming, for he is coming to judge the earth.

He will judge the world with righteousness,
and the peoples with his truth.

Psalm 97

¹ The LORD is king! Let the earth rejoice;
let the many coastlands be glad!

² Clouds and thick darkness are all around him;
righteousness and justice are the foundation of his throne.

³ Fire goes before him,
and consumes his adversaries on every side.

⁴ His lightnings light up the world;
the earth sees and trembles.

⁵ The mountains melt like wax before the LORD,
before the Lord of all the earth.

⁶ The heavens proclaim his righteousness;
and all the peoples behold his glory.

⁷ All worshipers of images are put to shame,
those who make their boast in worthless idols;
all gods bow down before him.

⁸ Zion hears and is glad,
and the towns^a of Judah rejoice,
because of your judgments, O God.

⁹ For you, O LORD, are most high over all the earth;
you are exalted far above all gods.

¹⁰ The LORD loves those who hate^b evil;
he guards the lives of his faithful;
he rescues them from the hand of the wicked.

¹¹ Light dawns^c for the righteous,
and joy for the upright in heart.

¹² Rejoice in the LORD, O you righteous,
and give thanks to his holy name!

Psalm 98

A Psalm.

¹ O sing to the LORD a new song,
for he has done marvelous things.

^a Heb daughters

^b Cn: Heb You who love the LORD hate

^c Gk Syr Jerome: Heb is sown

93n.) in which vv. 1–6 invite the whole world to sing, vv. 7–10 the family of nations, and vv. 11–13 heaven and earth. 1: New song, celebrating God’s arrival as a just king. 7: O families of the peoples, the nations are to turn from their own deities to worship the LORD who has become king (v. 10). How the nations are meant to know this is unclear, but many of these psalms address peoples who are not physically present. Verses 7–9 quote Ps 29.1–2, with changes in the groups addressed. 10: The LORD has gained royal supremacy by his powerful deeds. 13: Only God, rather than any human king can judge the world with righteousness; this is the cause of great rejoicing.

Ps 97: Rejoice in the LORD who reigns over heaven and earth! A hymn celebrating the LORD who comes to rule the earth (v. 1; see Ps 93n.). The LORD’s triumph is manifested in storm and theophany imagery (vv. 2–5). Worshipers of other deities are shamed as they see the LORD triumphant (vv. 6–7). Zion and its surrounding towns rejoice at the coming of so exalted a God (vv. 8–9). The psalm ends with an exhortation to show reverence to the powerful LORD, who, as in the previous psalm, will be manifest in justice (vv. 10–12).

Ps 98: Praise of the LORD, just and victorious ruler of the world. A hymn celebrating the victory of the LORD over the forces of evil, a victory that brought peace and justice to the world; see Ps 93n. Verses 1–3 invite Israel

His right hand and his holy arm
 have gotten him victory.
²The LORD has made known his
 victory;
 he has revealed his vindication in the sight of the nations.
³He has remembered his steadfast love and faithfulness
 to the house of Israel.
 All the ends of the earth have seen
 the victory of our God.

⁴Make a joyful noise to the LORD, all the
 earth;
 break forth into joyous song and sing
 praises.
⁵Sing praises to the LORD with the
 lyre,
 with the lyre and the sound of melody.
⁶With trumpets and the sound of the horn
 make a joyful noise before the King,
 the LORD.

⁷Let the sea roar, and all that fills it;
 the world and those who live in it.
⁸Let the floods clap their hands;
 let the hills sing together for
 joy
⁹at the presence of the LORD, for he is coming
 to judge the earth.
 He will judge the world with
 righteousness,
 and the peoples with equity.

Psalm 99

¹The LORD is king; let the peoples tremble!
 He sits enthroned upon the cherubim;
 let the earth quake!
²The LORD is great in Zion;
 he is exalted over all the peoples.
³Let them praise your great and awesome
 name.
 Holy is he!
⁴Mighty King,^a lover of justice,
 you have established equity;
 you have executed justice
 and righteousness in Jacob.
⁵Extol the LORD our God;
 worship at his footstool.
 Holy is he!

⁶Moses and Aaron were among his priests,
 Samuel also was among those who called on his name.
 They cried to the LORD, and he answered them.
⁷He spoke to them in the pillar of cloud;
 they kept his decrees,
 and the statutes that he gave them.

⁸O LORD our God, you answered them;
 you were a forgiving God to them,
 but an avenger of their wrongdoings.
⁹Extol the LORD our God,
 and worship at his holy mountain;
 for the LORD our God is holy.

^a Cn: Heb And a king's strength to sing praise, vv. 4–6 invite the inhabitants of the earth to join in the song, and vv. 7–9 invite the inanimate elements of the world. The poem begins by announcing that the LORD has won a great victory and ends by introducing the LORD to his new subjects. 1: On a new song, see Ps 96.1. 4–8: The noisy acclamation of God as king mimics the human coronation ceremony. 9: Judge, not judgment at the end of time but judgment in the biblical sense of ruling justly now.

Ps 99: Announcement that the LORD the king rules with justice. The last of the enthronement hymns (Pss 93; 95–99) celebrates the LORD's victory, enthronement, and authoritative decrees. Verses 1–5 call on the nations to recognize the LORD who establishes justice in the world, and vv. 6–9 describe how divine justice is mediated by Israel's traditions. Each section is concluded by the exhortation "Extol the LORD our God." 1: The cherubim form a throne, on which God is enthroned; cf. 1 Sam 4.4; Ps 17.8n. 3: Holy is he! the phrase appears again in v. 5 and is repeated climactically in v. 9, the LORD our God is holy. 4: As in the other psalms about God's kingship, the emphasis is on divine justice. Human kings served as a type of supreme court; here God the king takes over this role, but unlike human kings he adjudicates fairly and impartially. 5: The footstool of the cherubim throne (see v. 1) was the ark of the covenant. 6: Moses and Aaron . . . Samuel, these ancient leaders mediated God's decrees to Israel. 9: A variant of v. 5, forming a refrain.

Psalm 100*A Psalm of thanksgiving.*¹Make a joyful noise to the LORD, all the earth.²Worship the LORD with gladness;
come into his presence with singing.³Know that the LORD is God.It is he that made us, and we are his;^a we are his people, and the sheep of his pasture.⁴Enter his gates with thanksgiving,
and his courts with praise.

Give thanks to him, bless his name.

⁵For the LORD is good;his steadfast love endures forever, and his faithfulness to all generations.Psalm 101Of David. A Psalm.*¹I will sing of loyalty and of justice;
to you, O LORD, I will sing.²I will study the way that is blameless.
When shall I attain it?I will walk with integrity of heart within my house;³I will not set before my eyes anything that is base.I hate the work of those who fall away;
it shall not cling to me.⁴Perverseness of heart shall be far from
me;
I will know nothing of evil.⁵One who secretly slanders a neighbor
I will destroy.A haughty look and an arrogant heart
I will not tolerate.⁶I will look with favor on the faithful in
the land,
so that they may live with me;
whoever walks in the way that is
blameless
shall minister to me.⁷No one who practices deceit shall remain in my house;
no one who utters lies shall continue in my presence.⁸Morning by morning I will destroy all the wicked in the land, cutting off all evildoers
from the city of the LORD.Psalm 102A prayer of one afflicted, when faint and pleading before the LORD.*¹Hear my prayer, O LORD;
let my cry come to you.^a Another reading is and not we ourselves

Ps 100: A call to the nations to worship the LORD. A hymn echoing the call to the nations in the enthronement psalms (Pss 93; 95–99). There are seven invitations to worship: make a joyful noise, worship, come, know, enter, give thanks, and bless. The motives for giving praise are introduced by that in v. 3a and for in v. 5a. Vv. 1–3 and 4–5 are parallel sections, expressing a similar sentiment in different words. The pilgrimage of the nations to Mount Zion is also found in Pss 22.27; 76.11–12; Isa 2.1–4; 60–62; 66.18–23. 3: Sheep of his pasture, sheep that the LORD personally pastures, not delegating it to anyone else, as in Pss 74.1; 79.13; 95.7; Jer 23.1; Ezek 34.31.

Ps 101: Commitment to executing justice. Although explicitly stated, the psalm was most likely recited by the king, who proclaimed a commitment to rule in a manner befitting his divine patron. Acknowledging the divine loyalty and . . . justice (v. 1) that brought him to his throne, the king prays for the strength to fulfill his duties (v. 2ab). He makes twelve promises (I will . . .), being loyal (vv. 2c–4), forbidding abuses by members of the court (v. 5), appointing only God-fearing administrators (v. 6), expelling the wicked (v. 7), and administering a fair judicial system (v. 8). Underlying the king's vows is the desire to be a good servant and ruler, blessed by his divine patron. 8: Morning by morning, that is, each morning. At night sin is rampant; justice comes with the morning sun as in Job 38.12–13. Ps 19 also associates the law with the all-seeing sun. The city of the LORD is Jerusalem, also the royal city.

Ps 102: A plea for the restoration of the psalmist and of Zion. This individual petition blends personal and national complaints into a single prayer. It is one of the seven penitential psalms in Christian tradition (Pss 6; 32; 38; 51; 102; 130; 143). Drawing a contrast between fragile mortal humans (vv. 3–11, 23–24b) and the eternal

² Do not hide your face from me in the day of my distress.
Incline your ear to me;
answer me speedily in the day when I call.

³ For my days pass away like smoke,
and my bones burn like a furnace.

⁴ My heart is stricken and withered like
grass;
I am too wasted to eat my bread.

⁵ Because of my loud groaning
my bones cling to my skin.

⁶ I am like an owl of the wilderness,
like a little owl of the waste places.

⁷ I lie awake;
I am like a lonely bird on the housetop.

⁸ All day long my enemies taunt me;
those who deride me use my name for a curse.

⁹ For I eat ashes like bread,
and mingle tears with my drink,

¹⁰ because of your indignation and anger;
for you have lifted me up and thrown me aside.

¹¹ My days are like an evening shadow;
I wither away like grass.

¹² But you, O LORD, are enthroned
forever;
your name endures to all generations.

¹³ You will rise up and have compassion on Zion,
for it is time to favor it;
the appointed time has come.

¹⁴ For your servants hold its stones dear,
and have pity on its dust.

¹⁵ The nations will fear the name of the LORD,
and all the kings of the earth your glory.

¹⁶ For the LORD will build up Zion;
he will appear in his glory.

¹⁷ He will regard the prayer of the destitute,
and will not despise their prayer.

¹⁸ Let this be recorded for a generation to come,
so that a people yet unborn may praise
the LORD:

¹⁹ that he looked down from his holy height,
from heaven the LORD looked at the
earth,

²⁰ to hear the groans of the prisoners, to set free those who were doomed to
die;

²¹ so that the name of the LORD may be declared in Zion,
and his praise in Jerusalem,

²² when peoples gather together,
and kingdoms, to worship the LORD.

²³ He has broken my strength in midcourse;
he has shortened my days.

²⁴ "O my God," I say, "do not take me away
at the midpoint of my life,
you whose years endure
throughout all generations."

²⁵ Long ago you laid the foundation of the
earth,
and the heavens are the work of your
hands.

²⁶ They will perish, but you endure;
they will all wear out like a garment.
You change them like clothing, and they
pass away;

²⁷ but you are the same, and your years
have no end.

²⁸ The children of your servants shall live secure;
their offspring shall be established in your presence.

LORD (vv. 12–22, 24c–27), the psalm begs for the healing that will win for the LORD the praise of the nations (vv. 15, 18–22) and nurture a new generation of Israelite worshipers (v. 28). There are three parallel sections: vv. 1–11: Hear me, for my days swiftly pass away; vv. 12–22: When you show compassion, all will honor you in your Temple; vv. 23–28: Do not make my short life (shorten my days) even briefer, O Eternal One. The mixture of private petition and request for the restoration of Zion may suggest that private prayer is more efficacious if it includes broader, communal requests. The superscription, A prayer of one afflicted, when faint and pleading before the LORD, suggests that anyone beset with woes or afflicted may recite this prayer. 3–11: The diverse figures of speech combine to express the psalmist's desperation. 13: Implies that this is the time to rebuild the Temple, which would date the psalm in the early postexilic period (late fifth century BCE). 11: Like grass, cf. Ps 90.5–6; Isa

Psalm 103

Of David.

- ¹ Bless the LORD, O my soul,
and all that is within me,
bless his holy name.
- ² Bless the LORD, O my soul,
and do not forget all his benefits—
- ³ who forgives all your iniquity,
who heals all your diseases,
- ⁴ who redeems your life from the Pit,
who crowns you with steadfast love and
mercy,
- ⁵ who satisfies you with good as long as you live^a
so that your youth is renewed like the eagle's.
- ⁶ The LORD works vindication
and justice for all who are oppressed.
- ⁷ He made known his ways to Moses,
his acts to the people of Israel.
- ⁸ The LORD is merciful and gracious,
slow to anger and abounding in
steadfast love.
- ⁹ He will not always accuse,
nor will he keep his anger forever.
- ¹⁰ He does not deal with us according to our sins,
nor repay us according to our iniquities.
- ¹¹ For as the heavens are high above the earth,
so great is his steadfast love toward
those who fear him;
- ¹² as far as the east is from the west,
so far he removes our transgressions
from us.

- ¹³ As a father has compassion for his children,
so the LORD has compassion for those
who fear him.
- ¹⁴ For he knows how we were made;
he remembers that we are dust.
- ¹⁵ As for mortals, their days are like grass;
they flourish like a flower of the field;
- ¹⁶ for the wind passes over it, and it is gone,
and its place knows it no more.
- ¹⁷ But the steadfast love of the LORD is from everlasting to everlasting
on those who fear him,
and his righteousness to children's
children,
- ¹⁸ to those who keep his covenant
and remember to do his commandments.
- ¹⁹ The LORD has established his throne in
the heavens,
and his kingdom rules over all.
- ²⁰ Bless the LORD, O you his angels,
you mighty ones who do his bidding,
obedient to his spoken word.
- ²¹ Bless the LORD, all his hosts,
his ministers that do his will.
- ²² Bless the LORD, all his works,
in all places of his dominion.
Bless the LORD, O my soul.

Psalm 104

- ¹ Bless the LORD, O my soul.
O LORD my God, you are very great.

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

40.6–8. 22: For the idea of all nations worshiping at the Temple, see Ps 100n.

Ps 103: Praise to the LORD for forgiveness. As Ps 102 combined national and personal complaints into one petition, so Ps 103 blends personal and national benefits into one hymn. The poem draws two distinct parallels: God heals individuals (vv. 1–5) and the nation (vv. 6–14); God summons earthly beings (vv. 15–18) and heavenly beings (vv. 19–22) to give praise. 1–5: The opening verses match the closing verses (19–22) in length and in the repeated Bless! 3–5: The six blessings are essentially one: the healing of life-threatening forces. The first blessing mentioned, who forgives all your iniquity, is the key: God is fundamentally forgiving. The Pit, the abode of the dead. Having been personally healed, the psalmist hopes that the nation will be similarly healed (vv. 6–14). 5: Renewed like the eagle's, like the vigor that seems to come with the annual molting of the eagle. 8: Echoes Ex 34.6, when God forgave Israel after their apostasy with the golden calf. The psalm views the Exodus more as the forgiveness of Israel rather than the defeat of Egypt. 14: As dust (see Gen 2.7), people cannot be judged too harshly, and deserve divine compassion. 15–18: Even though they are grass (see Ps 102.11n.), they receive God's steadfast love (Heb “hesed”) and righteousness. 22: the psalm ends as it began, the words Bless the LORD, O my soul forming an inclusio.

Ps 104: Praise to the LORD who made the universe beautiful and life-giving. The hymn praises divine wisdom through a series of vignettes (vv. 1–9, 10–12, 13–18, 19–23, 24–26), a reflection (vv. 27–30) and a prayer (vv.

You are clothed with honor and majesty,
² wrapped in light as with a garment.

You stretch out the heavens like a tent,
³ you set the beams of your^a chambers
 on the waters,

you make the clouds your^a chariot,
 you ride on the wings of the wind,

⁴ you make the winds your^a messengers,
 fire and flame your^a ministers.

⁵ You set the earth on its foundations,
 so that it shall never be shaken.

⁶ You cover it with the deep as with a garment;
 the waters stood above the
 mountains.

⁷ At your rebuke they flee;
 at the sound of your thunder they take to flight.

⁸ They rose up to the mountains, ran down to the valleys
 to the place that you appointed for
 them.

⁹ You set a boundary that they may not pass,
 so that they might not again cover the
 earth.

¹⁰ You make springs gush forth in the valleys;
 they flow between the hills,

¹¹ giving drink to every wild animal;
 the wild asses quench their thirst.

¹² By the streams^b the birds of the air have their habitation;
 they sing among the branches.

¹³ From your lofty abode you water the
 mountains;
 the earth is satisfied with the fruit of
 your work.

¹⁴ You cause the grass to grow for the cattle,
 and plants for people to use,^c

to bring forth food from the earth, ¹⁵ and wine to gladden the human heart,
 oil to make the face shine,
 and bread to strengthen the human heart.

¹⁶ The trees of the LORD are watered abundantly,
 the cedars of Lebanon that he planted.

¹⁷ In them the birds build their nests;
 the stork has its home in the fir trees.

¹⁸ The high mountains are for the wild goats;
 the rocks are a refuge for the coney.

¹⁹ You have made the moon to mark the seasons;
 the sun knows its time for setting.

²⁰ You make darkness, and it is night, when all the animals of the forest come creeping out.

²¹ The young lions roar for their prey,
 seeking their food from God.

²² When the sun rises, they withdraw and lie down in their dens.

²³ People go out to their work and to their labor until the evening.

²⁴ O LORD, how manifold are your works!
 In wisdom you have made them all;
 the earth is full of your creatures.

²⁵ Yonder is the sea, great and wide,
 creeping things innumerable are there,
 living things both small and great.

²⁶ There go the ships, and Leviathan that you formed to sport
 in it.

²⁷ These all look to you to give them their food in due season;

^a Heb his

^b Heb By them

^c Or to cultivate

31–35). God, luminous and triumphant (vv. 1–4), organizes the primordial waters (vv. 5–18, 24–26) and darkness (vv. 19–23) into a harmonious whole that supports life (vv. 27–35). The depiction owes much to the mythology of neighboring cultures: the storm god who vanquishes Sea (vv. 1–18), and the Egyptian sun-disk Aten whose rays illuminate the world (vv. 19–30); it also shares language and themes with Job 38–39. Psalms 103 and 104 begin and end similarly, but are very different in theme and tone. 1: Honor and majesty are royal qualities. God is depicted in the psalm as a king who has constructed the superlative building project: the world. 2: Stretch out the heavens, cf. Job 9.8; Isa 40.22; 42.5; Zech 12.1. 4: Cf. Ps 148.8. 9: Cf. Job 38.8–11; Prov 8.29; Jer 5.22. 13: See Pss

²⁸ when you give to them, they gather it up;
when you open your hand, they are filled with good things.

²⁹ When you hide your face, they are dismayed;
when you take away their breath, they die
and return to their dust.

³⁰ When you send forth your spirit,^a they are created;
and you renew the face of the ground.

³¹ May the glory of the LORD endure
forever;

may the LORD rejoice in his works—³² who looks on the earth and it trembles, who touches the mountains and they
smoke.

³³ I will sing to the LORD as long as I live;
I will sing praise to my God while I have being.

³⁴ May my meditation be pleasing to him,
for I rejoice in the LORD.

³⁵ Let sinners be consumed from the earth,
and let the wicked be no more.

Bless the LORD, O my soul.
Praise the LORD!

Psalm 105

¹ O give thanks to the LORD, call on his
name,
make known his deeds among the
peoples.

² Sing to him, sing praises to him;
tell of all his wonderful works.

³ Glory in his holy name;
let the hearts of those who seek the LORD rejoice.

⁴ Seek the LORD and his strength;
seek his presence continually.

⁵ Remember the wonderful works he has done,
his miracles, and the judgments he has uttered,

⁶ O offspring of his servant Abraham,^b
children of Jacob, his chosen ones.

⁷ He is the LORD our God;
his judgments are in all the earth.

⁸ He is mindful of his covenant forever, of the word that he commanded, for a thousand generations,

⁹ the covenant that he made with Abraham,

his sworn promise to Isaac,
¹⁰ which he confirmed to Jacob as a statute,
to Israel as an everlasting covenant,

¹¹ saying, “To you I will give the land of Canaan
as your portion for an inheritance.”

¹² When they were few in number,
of little account, and strangers in it,

¹³ wandering from nation to nation,
from one kingdom to another people,

¹⁴ he allowed no one to oppress them;
he rebuked kings on their account,

¹⁵ saying, “Do not touch my anointed ones;
do my prophets no harm.”

¹⁶ When he summoned famine against the
land,

and broke every staff of bread,
¹⁷ he had sent a man ahead of them,
Joseph, who was sold as a slave.

¹⁸ His feet were hurt with fetters,
his neck was put in a collar of iron;

^a Or your breath

^b Another reading is Israel (compare 1 Chr 16.13)

36.8n.; 65.9. 21: See Job 38.39. 24: The psalm’s key verse, summarizing the wonder of the world. 26: Leviathan, see Ps 74.14n. 27–30: The world continues to depend on God. 29–30: Cf. Gen 1.30; 2.7; 3.19. 31–32: A prayer that God will continue to act beneficently. Mountains . . . smoke, see Ps 144.5. 35: Sinners and the wicked destroy the harmony of the world.

Ps 105: Praise of the LORD who has acted wonderfully toward Israel. A hymn to God’s wondrous guidance of Israel, like Pss 135 and 136. Ps 105 makes the land of Canaan a symbol of God’s generosity and fidelity. The promise is realized differently in each of the four historical periods selected. From v. 7 forward, a form of the key words “word/promise,” “land,” and “servant” occurs in each section. After an invitation to praise (vv. 1–6) and mention of the covenant promise of land (vv. 7–11; see Gen 15; 17; 28.13–14), the psalm follows the traditional historical periods: Abraham in Canaan (vv. 12–15; Gen 12–26), Joseph in the land of Egypt (vv. 16–22; Gen 37–47); Israel in Egypt (vv. 23–38; Ex 1–15); and Israel in the wilderness (vv. 39–45; Ex 16–17). 15: Abraham is called a

¹⁹ until what he had said came to pass,
the word of the LORD kept testing him.

²⁰ The king sent and released him;
the ruler of the peoples set him free.

²¹ He made him lord of his house,
and ruler of all his possessions,

²² to instruct^a his officials at his pleasure,
and to teach his elders wisdom.

²³ Then Israel came to Egypt; Jacob lived as an alien in the land of Ham.

²⁴ And the LORD made his people very fruitful,
and made them stronger than their foes,

²⁵ whose hearts he then turned to hate his
people,
to deal craftily with his servants.

²⁶ He sent his servant Moses,
and Aaron whom he had chosen.

²⁷ They performed his signs among them,
and miracles in the land of Ham.

²⁸ He sent darkness, and made the land
dark;
they rebelled^b against his words.

²⁹ He turned their waters into blood,
and caused their fish to die.

³⁰ Their land swarmed with frogs,
even in the chambers of their kings.

³¹ He spoke, and there came swarms of flies,
and gnats throughout their country.

³² He gave them hail for rain, and lightning that flashed through their
land.

³³ He struck their vines and fig trees,
and shattered the trees of their country.

³⁴ He spoke, and the locusts came,
and young locusts without number;

³⁵ they devoured all the vegetation in their
land,
and ate up the fruit of their ground.

³⁶ He struck down all the firstborn in their
land,
the first issue of all their strength.

³⁷ Then he brought Israel^c out with silver and gold,
and there was no one among their tribes who stumbled.

³⁸ Egypt was glad when they departed,
for dread of them had fallen upon it.

³⁹ He spread a cloud for a covering,
and fire to give light by night.

⁴⁰ They asked, and he brought quails, and gave them food from heaven in abundance.

⁴¹ He opened the rock, and water gushed
out;
it flowed through the desert like a river.

⁴² For he remembered his holy promise,
and Abraham, his servant.

⁴³ So he brought his people out with joy,
his chosen ones with singing.

⁴⁴ He gave them the lands of the nations,
and they took possession of the wealth
of the peoples,

⁴⁵ that they might keep his statutes and observe his laws.

Praise the LORD!

Psalm 106

¹ Praise the LORD!

O give thanks to the LORD, for he is
good;

for his steadfast love endures forever.

^a Gk.Syr Jerome: Heb to bind

^b Cn Compare Gk Syr: Heb they did not rebel

^c Heb them

prophet in Gen 20.7; none of the patriarchs are ever called anointed (Heb “mashiah”) elsewhere (except for 1 Chr 16.23, which quotes this psalm). 18: This is one of many cases in this psalm where the retelling of the past differs in detail from the narratives in the Torah. 27–36: In terms of number and order, this differs strikingly from the plague narrative in Exodus. 38: This contrasts with the account in Ex 14–15 of the Egyptians chasing after the Israelites and drowning in the Reed Sea. 42: The relation between Israel and its land is permanent and unalterable, predicated on his holy promise. 45: But the gift of the land depends on obedience to God. If written in the exilic period, this psalm would remind the people to return to God so that they might return to the land, and to remind God of his absolute, unalterable promise.

Ps 106: A confession of sin and record of divine forgiveness. A storytelling poem, describing seven occa-

² Who can utter the mighty doings of the LORD,
or declare all his praise?

³ Happy are those who observe justice,
who do righteousness at all times.

⁴ Remember me, O LORD, when you show favor to your people;
help me when you deliver them;

⁵ that I may see the prosperity of your chosen ones,
that I may rejoice in the gladness of your nation,
that I may glory in your heritage.

⁶ Both we and our ancestors have sinned;
we have committed iniquity, have done
wickedly.

⁷ Our ancestors, when they were in Egypt,
did not consider your wonderful
works;

they did not remember the abundance of
your steadfast love,
but rebelled against the Most High^a at the Red Sea.^b

⁸ Yet he saved them for his name's sake, so that he might make known his mighty power.

⁹ He rebuked the Red Sea,^b and it became dry;
he led them through the deep as through a desert.

¹⁰ So he saved them from the hand of the foe,
and delivered them from the hand of the enemy.

¹¹ The waters covered their adversaries;
not one of them was left.

¹² Then they believed his words;
they sang his praise.

¹³ But they soon forgot his works;
they did not wait for his counsel.

¹⁴ But they had a wanton craving in the wilderness,
and put God to the test in the desert;

¹⁵ he gave them what they asked,
but sent a wasting disease among
them.

¹⁶ They were jealous of Moses in the camp,
and of Aaron, the holy one of the
LORD.

¹⁷ The earth opened and swallowed up Dathan,
and covered the faction of Abiram.

¹⁸ Fire also broke out in their
company;
the flame burned up the wicked.

¹⁹ They made a calf at Horeb
and worshiped a cast image.

²⁰ They exchanged the glory of God^c for the image of an ox that eats
grass.

²¹ They forgot God, their Savior, who had done great things in Egypt,

²² wondrous works in the land of Ham,
and awesome deeds by the Red Sea.^b

²³ Therefore he said he would destroy
them—
had not Moses, his chosen one,
stood in the breach before him,
to turn away his wrath from destroying
them.

^a Cn Compare 78.17, 56: Heb rebelled at the sea

^b Or Sea of Reeds

^c Compare Gk Mss: Heb exchanged their glory

sions of sin and forgiveness (vv. 6–46). Seven seems to symbolize completeness. Each occasion is identified by a place name (noted in italics): Rebellion and rescue at the Red Sea (vv. 6–12; Ex 14–15); testing God in the desert (vv. 13–15; Ex 16–17); jealousy of Moses in the camp (vv. 16–18; Num 16); the calf at Horeb and Moses' intercession (vv. 19–23; Ex 32); refusal to attack from the south and divine threat (vv. 23–27; Num 14), the sin with Baal of Peor and Phinehas' intercession (vv. 28–31; Num 25); sin at the waters of Meribah (vv. 32–33; Num 20); sacrifice of children in Canaan (vv. 34–46). The seventh and climactic occasion is complex, for the sin is typical rather than a single act: the sacrifice of infants (vv. 34–39) representing the people's adoption of corrupt native ways. The punishment is also typical, a series of punishments (v. 41) and mercies. In terms of theme (history) and opening (Praise the LORD), it is connected to the previous psalm, although its theme and understanding of the Israelite past is quite different from it. The past, presented in cycles of Israelite sin and divine forgiveness, is recounted

²⁴ Then they despised the pleasant land, having no faith in his promise.
²⁵ They grumbled in their tents,
 and did not obey the voice of the LORD.
²⁶ Therefore he raised his hand and swore to them
 that he would make them fall in the wilderness,
²⁷ and would disperse^a their descendants
 among the nations,
 scattering them over the lands.
²⁸ Then they attached themselves to the Baal of Peor,
 and ate sacrifices offered to the dead;
²⁹ they provoked the LORD to anger with their deeds,
 and a plague broke out among them.
³⁰ Then Phinehas stood up and interceded,
 and the plague was stopped.
³¹ And that has been reckoned to him as
 righteousness
 from generation to generation forever.
³² They angered the LORD^b at the waters of Meribah,
 and it went ill with Moses on their account;
³³ for they made his spirit bitter,
 and he spoke words that were rash.
³⁴ They did not destroy the peoples,
 as the LORD commanded them, ³⁵ but they mingled with the nations
 and learned to do as they did.
³⁶ They served their idols,
 which became a snare to them.
³⁷ They sacrificed their sons
 and their daughters to the demons; ³⁸ they poured out innocent blood,
 the blood of their sons and daughters,
 whom they sacrificed to the idols of Canaan;
 and the land was polluted with blood.

³⁹ Thus they became unclean by their acts, and prostituted themselves in their doings.
⁴⁰ Then the anger of the LORD was kindled against his people,
 and he abhorred his heritage;
⁴¹ he gave them into the hand of the nations,
 so that those who hated them ruled over them.
⁴² Their enemies oppressed them,
 and they were brought into subjection
 under their power.
⁴³ Many times he delivered them,
 but they were rebellious in their purposes,
 and were brought low through their
 iniquity.
⁴⁴ Nevertheless he regarded their distress
 when he heard their cry.
⁴⁵ For their sake he remembered his
 covenant,
 and showed compassion according to the abundance of his steadfast love.
⁴⁶ He caused them to be pitied
 by all who held them captive.
⁴⁷ Save us, O LORD our God,
 and gather us from among the nations,
 that we may give thanks to your holy name
 and glory in your praise.
⁴⁸ Blessed be the LORD, the God of Israel,
 from everlasting to everlasting.
 And let all the people say, "Amen."
 Praise the LORD!

BOOK V PSALMS 107–150

Psalms 107

¹ O give thanks to the LORD, for he is good;
 for his steadfast love endures forever.

^a Syr Compare Ezek 20.23: Heb cause to fall

^b Heb him

in order to call upon God to forgive again (v. 47). 19: Horeb, an alternate name for Sinai. 22: Ham, see Ps 78.51n. 24: In other words, they heeded the spies who recommended against fighting against the Canaanites. 37–38: Exile is blamed on child-sacrifice, which made the land ritually impure; see 2 Kings 16.3; 21.6; Jer 19.5; Ezek 20.31; 23.37. 47: A reference to the exile to Babylon in the early sixth century BCE. 48: The plea of v. 47 was the original end of the psalm; the doxology in v. 48 was inserted by an editor when the Psalms were divided into five books or sections.

Ps 107: Thanksgiving for bringing back the people from exile. This community thanksgiving logically fol-

- ² Let the redeemed of the LORD say so,
those he redeemed from trouble
- ³ and gathered in from the lands,
from the east and from the west,
from the north and from the south.^a
- ⁴ Some wandered in desert wastes,
finding no way to an inhabited town;
- ⁵ hungry and thirsty,
their soul fainted within them.
- ⁶ Then they cried to the LORD in their
trouble,
and he delivered them from their
distress;
- ⁷ he led them by a straight way,
until they reached an inhabited town.
- ⁸ Let them thank the LORD for his steadfast
love,
for his wonderful works to humankind.
- ⁹ For he satisfies the thirsty,
and the hungry he fills with good
things.
- ¹⁰ Some sat in darkness and in gloom,
prisoners in misery and in irons,
- ¹¹ for they had rebelled against the words
of God,
and spurned the counsel of the Most High.
- ¹² Their hearts were bowed down with hard labor;
they fell down, with no one to help.
- ¹³ Then they cried to the LORD in their
trouble,
and he saved them from their distress;
- ¹⁴ he brought them out of darkness and gloom,
and broke their bonds asunder.
- ¹⁵ Let them thank the LORD for his steadfast
love,
for his wonderful works to humankind.
- ¹⁶ For he shatters the doors of bronze,
and cuts in two the bars of iron.
- ¹⁷ Some were sick^b through their sinful
ways,
and because of their iniquities endured affliction;
- ¹⁸ they loathed any kind of food,
and they drew near to the gates of
death.
- ¹⁹ Then they cried to the LORD in their
trouble,
and he saved them from their
distress;
- ²⁰ he sent out his word and healed them,
and delivered them from destruction.
- ²¹ Let them thank the LORD for his steadfast
love,
for his wonderful works to
humankind.
- ²² And let them offer thanksgiving
sacrifices,
and tell of his deeds with songs of joy.
- ²³ Some went down to the sea in ships,
doing business on the mighty waters;
- ²⁴ they saw the deeds of the LORD,
his wondrous works in the deep.
- ²⁵ For he commanded and raised the stormy wind,
which lifted up the waves of the sea.
- ²⁶ They mounted up to heaven, they went down to the depths;
their courage melted away in their
calamity;
- ²⁷ they reeled and staggered like drunkards,
and were at their wits' end.

^a Cn: Heb sea^b Cn: Heb fools

lows the two pleas for the exile to end in the previous Pss 105 and 106. Ps 107 provides four examples of divine deliverance (vv. 4–9; 10–16; 17–22; 23–32), followed by a final section (vv. 33–43) transposing the deliverance of vv. 4–32 into the daily governance of the land. The number four may suggest totality; cf. Isa 11.12. In each panel a danger occurs (vv. 4–5; 10–12; 17–18; 23–27), the afflicted cry out to the LORD (vv. 6; 13; 19; 28) who rescues them (vv. 6b–7; 13b–14; 19b–20; 28b–30), prompting them to respond with thanksgiving (vv. 8–9; 15–16; 21–22; 31–32). Verse 33 marks a new section with its initial verb (he turns). Vv. 1–3 invited the returned exiles to give praise; vv. 4–32 depict the four rescued groups: those hungering and thirsting in the wilderness (vv. 4–9); prisoners (vv. 10–16); the sick (vv. 17–22); those caught in an ocean storm (vv. 23–32); these are all metaphorical for the tribulations of the Babylonian exile of the sixth century BCE, and the difficulties of returning by foot from Babylon. Vv. 33–43 describe the LORD's rescue and governance of Israel. 2: The redeemed of the LORD, in its

²⁸ Then they cried to the LORD in their trouble, and he brought them out from their distress;
²⁹ he made the storm be still,
 and the waves of the sea were hushed.
³⁰ Then they were glad because they had quiet,
 and he brought them to their desired haven.
³¹ Let them thank the LORD for his steadfast love,
 for his wonderful works to humankind.
³² Let them extol him in the congregation of the people,
 and praise him in the assembly of the elders.
³³ He turns rivers into a desert,
 springs of water into thirsty ground, ³⁴ a fruitful land into a salty waste,
 because of the wickedness of its inhabitants.
³⁵ He turns a desert into pools of water,
 a parched land into springs of water.
³⁶ And there he lets the hungry live,
 and they establish a town to live in;
³⁷ they sow fields, and plant vineyards,
 and get a fruitful yield.
³⁸ By his blessing they multiply greatly,
 and he does not let their cattle decrease.
³⁹ When they are diminished and brought low through oppression, trouble, and sorrow, ⁴⁰ he pours contempt on princes and makes them wander in trackless wastes; ⁴¹ but he raises up the needy out of distress,
 and makes their families like flocks.
⁴² The upright see it and are glad;
 and all wickedness stops its mouth.

⁴³ Let those who are wise give heed to these things,
 and consider the steadfast love of the LORD.

Psalm 108

A Song. A Psalm of David.

¹ My heart is steadfast, O God, my heart is steadfast;^a
 I will sing and make melody.
 Awake, my soul!^b
² Awake, O harp and lyre!
 I will awake the dawn.
³ I will give thanks to you, O LORD, among the peoples,
 and I will sing praises to you among the nations.
⁴ For your steadfast love is higher than the heavens,
 and your faithfulness reaches to the clouds.
⁵ Be exalted, O God, above the heavens,
 and let your glory be over all the earth.
⁶ Give victory with your right hand, and answer me,
 so that those whom you love may be rescued.
⁷ God has promised in his sanctuary:^c
 “With exultation I will divide up Shechem, and portion out the Vale of Succoth.
⁸ Gilead is mine; Manasseh is mine;
 Ephraim is my helmet;
 Judah is my scepter.
⁹ Moab is my washbasin;
 on Edom I hurl my shoe;
 over Philistia I shout in triumph.”

^a Heb Mss Gk Syr: MT lacks my heart is steadfast

^b Compare 57.8: Heb also my soul

^c Or by his holiness

one other biblical use, the inhabitants of restored Zion (Isa 62.12). 11: The exile was a punishment for Israel's behavior. 35: Cf. Isa 41.18; 43.19. 41–42: Two main themes of psalms: the vindication of the needy, which leads to public recognition of God's greatness. 43: The wise understand that the LORD's steadfast love (Heb “hesed”) allows for periods of tribulation and defeat, but Israel will always be restored.

Ps 108: A prayer for victory. A community petition using material from other psalms; vv. 1–5 appear also in Ps 57.7–11 and vv. 6–13 appear in Ps 60.5–12. For detailed comments, see the annotations to those texts. In vv. 1–6, the psalmist resolves to praise God's love and faithfulness; vv. 7–9 cite an ancient oracle; and vv. 10–13

¹⁰ Who will bring me to the fortified city?

Who will lead me to Edom?

¹¹ Have you not rejected us, O God?

You do not go out, O God, with our armies.

¹² O grant us help against the foe,
for human help is worthless.

¹³ With God we shall do valiantly;
it is he who will tread down our foes.

Psalm 109

To the leader. Of David. A Psalm.

¹ Do not be silent, O God of my praise.

² For wicked and deceitful mouths are opened against me,
speaking against me with lying tongues.

³ They beset me with words of hate,
and attack me without cause.

⁴ In return for my love they accuse me,
even while I make prayer for them.^a

⁵ So they reward me evil for good,
and hatred for my love.

⁶ They say,^b “Appoint a wicked man against
him;

let an accuser stand on his right.

⁷ When he is tried, let him be found guilty;
let his prayer be counted as sin.

⁸ May his days be few;
may another seize his position.

⁹ May his children be orphans,
and his wife a widow.

¹⁰ May his children wander about and beg;
may they be driven out of^c the ruins
they inhabit.

¹¹ May the creditor seize all that he has;
may strangers plunder the fruits of his toil.

¹² May there be no one to do him a kindness,
nor anyone to pity his orphaned
children.

¹³ May his posterity be cut off;
may his name be blotted out in the second generation.

¹⁴ May the iniquity of his father^d be remembered before the LORD, and do not let the sin of his mother be blotted out.

¹⁵ Let them be before the LORD
continually,
and may his^e memory be cut off from
the earth.

¹⁶ For he did not remember to show
kindness,
but pursued the poor and needy
and the brokenhearted to their death.

¹⁷ He loved to curse; let curses come on
him.

He did not like blessing; may it be far from him.

¹⁸ He clothed himself with cursing as his coat,
may it soak into his body like water,
like oil into his bones.

¹⁹ May it be like a garment that he wraps around himself,
like a belt that he wears every day.”

²⁰ May that be the reward of my accusers
from the LORD,
of those who speak evil against my
life.

²¹ But you, O LORD my Lord,
act on my behalf for your name’s sake;
because your steadfast love is good,
deliver me.

^a Syr: Heb I prayer

^b Heb lacks They say

^c Gk: Heb and seek

^d Cn: Heb fathers

^e Gk: Heb their

complain and pray.

Ps 109: Prayer for vindication. An urgent petition of an individual accused of exploiting the poor (v. 16) and who has therefore been cursed by enemies (vv. 6–19). Petitioners typically complain to God of their perilous plight; in this case the complaint is in the form of a quotation of the enemies’ curses (twelve curses in vv. 6–19). NRSV adds They (the enemies) say in v. 6a to make clear the psalmist is citing the enemy’s curses rather than personally cursing; other translations understand the curses to be those of the psalmist against his enemies. 6: The word for accuser, Heb “satan,” later means Satan, the devil. 14: Following Ex 34.7 (“visiting the iniquity of the parents upon the children”) and other texts, may he be subject to intergenerational punishment. 20: May that be the reward, a prayer that the curses fall on the enemies so as to demonstrate to all that the LORD has

²² For I am poor and needy,
and my heart is pierced within me.
²³ I am gone like a shadow at evening;
I am shaken off like a locust.
²⁴ My knees are weak through fasting;
my body has become gaunt.
²⁵ I am an object of scorn to my accusers;
when they see me, they shake their heads.
²⁶ Help me, O LORD my God!
Save me according to your steadfast
love.
²⁷ Let them know that this is your hand;
you, O LORD, have done it.
²⁸ Let them curse, but you will bless.
Let my assailants be put to shame;^a may your servant be glad.
²⁹ May my accusers be clothed with
dishonor;
may they be wrapped in their own
shame as in a mantle.
³⁰ With my mouth I will give great thanks to the LORD;
I will praise him in the midst of the
throng.
³¹ For he stands at the right hand of the needy,
to save them from those who would condemn them to death.

Psalm 110

Of David. A Psalm.

¹ The LORD says to my lord, “Sit at my right hand
until I make your enemies your footstool.”

² The LORD sends out from Zion your mighty scepter.
Rule in the midst of your foes.
³ Your people will offer themselves willingly
on the day you lead your forces
on the holy mountains.^b
From the womb of the morning,
like dew, your youth^c will come to you.
⁴ The LORD has sworn and will not change
his mind,
“You are a priest forever according to the order of Melchizedek.”^d ⁵ The Lord is at your right hand;
he will shatter kings on the day of his
wrath.
⁶ He will execute judgment among the
nations,
filling them with corpses;
he will shatter heads
over the wide earth.
⁷ He will drink from the stream by the path;
therefore he will lift up his head.

Psalm 111

¹ Praise the LORD!
I will give thanks to the LORD with my whole heart,
in the company of the upright, in the congregation.

^a Gk: Heb They have risen up and have been put to shame

^b Another reading is in holy splendor

^c Cn: Heb the dew of your youth

^d Or forever, a rightful king by my edict

vindicated the psalmist. Cf. also v. 29. 22: I am poor and needy, far from persecuting the poor as the enemies have asserted (v. 16), the psalmist is himself poor and needy and thus has a claim on God's protection. 28: For the psalmist, curses are not automatically effective but depend on God. 31: The word for right hand links this psalm with the next (see 110.1)

Ps 110: Victory to the Davidic king. A royal psalm in which a court official cites promises of victory made to the Davidic king (vv. 1,4) and then elaborates them (vv. 2–3,5–7). Christian interpretation has understood the king's victory as prefiguring Jesus' resurrection and rule over the nations (Acts 2.34; 1 Cor 15.25; Heb 1.3,13). 1–3: Sit, take your throne; right hand is the place of honor; footstool, victorious kings were depicted with their feet on their defeated foes' necks. 3: Though very obscure, the general sense is clear: the king will lead the army and defeat the LORD's enemies. 4–7: Melchizedek, priest-king of pre-Israelite Jerusalem who greeted Abraham in Gen 14.17–20; the tradition is applied only here to the Davidic king. As elsewhere in the ancient Near East, Israelite kings are sometimes described as exercising priestly duties (e.g., 2 Sam 6.13–14; 8.18; 1 Kings 3.4). 7: Obscure, possibly referring to a ritual of the warrior returning from victory.

- ²Great are the works of the LORD, studied by all who delight in them.
- ³Full of honor and majesty is his work,
and his righteousness endures forever.
- ⁴He has gained renown by his wonderful
deeds;
the LORD is gracious and merciful.
- ⁵He provides food for those who fear him;
he is ever mindful of his covenant.
- ⁶He has shown his people the power of his
works,
in giving them the heritage of the nations.
- ⁷The works of his hands are faithful and just;
all his precepts are trustworthy.
- ⁸They are established forever and ever,
to be performed with faithfulness and uprightness.
- ⁹He sent redemption to his people;
he has commanded his covenant forever.
Holy and awesome is his name.
- ¹⁰The fear of the LORD is the beginning of
wisdom;
all those who practice it^a have a good
understanding.
His praise endures forever.
- the generation of the upright will be blessed.
- ³Wealth and riches are in their houses,
and their righteousness endures forever.
- ⁴They rise in the darkness as a light for the
upright;
they are gracious, merciful, and
righteous.
- ⁵It is well with those who deal generously
and lend,
who conduct their affairs with justice.
- ⁶For the righteous will never be moved;
they will be remembered forever.
- ⁷They are not afraid of evil tidings;
their hearts are firm, secure in the LORD.
- ⁸Their hearts are steady, they will not be afraid;
in the end they will look in triumph on their foes.
- ⁹They have distributed freely, they have given to the poor;
their righteousness endures forever;
their horn is exalted in honor.
- ¹⁰The wicked see it and are angry;
they gnash their teeth and melt away;
the desire of the wicked comes to nothing.

Psalm 112

- ¹Praise the LORD!
Happy are those who fear the LORD,
who greatly delight in his commandments.
- ²Their descendants will be mighty in the
land;

Ps 111: Hymn to God's great deeds. A hymn in acrostic form (see Ps 9–10n.) celebrating the great deeds of the Exodus–Conquest. 5: Food may refer to the manna and quail that God provided in the wilderness (see Ex 16; Num 11; Ps 105.40). 7: The verse is the transition from admiring the divine deeds (v. 2b) to imitating the God who did them (all his precepts; those who practice it, v. 10). 10: Fear of the LORD (best rendered “revering the LORD”), pointing forward to v. 1 of Ps 112, its companion piece. See Ps 19.9; Prov 1.7; 9.10; etc.

Ps 112: Blessings on those who treasure God's acts and give to the poor. An instruction in acrostic form (see Ps 9–10n.) and companion piece to Psalm 111, depicting the righteous person as one who ponders God's works (cf. Ps 111.2) and puts into practice God's precepts (cf. Ps 111.7). The virtue singled out is mercy shown in giving to the poor (vv. 4,5,9). Paradoxically, generous givers do not deprive their children of an inheritance (vv. 2–3) nor suffer the shame that comes with poverty (vv. 6,8,10), for the LORD will recompense them. This psalm and Prov 19.17 influenced Jewish and Christian views of almsgiving (e.g., Dan 4.24; Matt 6.12). 1: Fear the LORD, see Ps 110.10n. 3: And their righteousness endures forever helps to join this psalm to Ps 111; see 111.3. 9: Horn, a metaphor for strength.

Ps 113: A hymn to the just God. Like other hymns, this one opens and closes with a call to praise, and specifically names those called to praise (“servants of the LORD,” v. 1). Ps 113 concludes the three Hallelujah psalms (Pss 111–113) and begins the “Egyptian Hallel” (= Heb “praise”) psalms (113–118) sung at major Jewish festivals even though the Bible does not suggest that they are a collection. Many scholars think that Pss 113–114 were sung before the Passover meal and Pss 115–118 after it. Images of “high” and “low” unify the psalm. 1: It is uncertain

Psalm 113

- ¹Praise the LORD!
Praise, O servants of the LORD;
praise the name of the LORD.

^a GkSyr: Heb them

- ²Blessed be the name of the LORD
from this time on and forevermore.
- ³From the rising of the sun to its setting
the name of the LORD is to be praised.
- ⁴The LORD is high above all nations,
and his glory above the heavens.
- ⁵Who is like the LORD our God,
who is seated on high, ⁶who looks far down
on the heavens and the earth?
⁷He raises the poor from the dust,
and lifts the needy from the ash
heap, ⁸to make them sit with princes,
with the princes of his people.
⁹He gives the barren woman a home, making her the joyous mother of
children.
Praise the LORD!

Psalm 114

- ¹When Israel went out from Egypt,
the house of Jacob from a people of strange language,
²Judah became God's^a sanctuary,
Israel his dominion.
- ³The sea looked and fled;
Jordan turned back.

- ⁴The mountains skipped like rams,
the hills like lambs.
- ⁵Why is it, O sea, that you flee?
O Jordan, that you turn back?
- ⁶O mountains, that you skip like rams?
O hills, like lambs?
- ⁷Tremble, O earth, at the presence of the
LORD,
at the presence of the God of Jacob, ⁸who turns the rock into a pool of
water,
the flint into a spring of water.

Psalm 115

- ¹Not to us, O LORD, not to us, but to your name give glory,
for the sake of your steadfast love and your faithfulness.
- ²Why should the nations say,
"Where is their God?"
- ³Our God is in the heavens;
he does whatever he pleases.
- ⁴Their idols are silver and gold,
the work of human hands.
- ⁵They have mouths, but do not speak;
eyes, but do not see.

^a Heb his

if the servants of the LORD refer to all worshipers or is a technical term for a specific group in the Temple. The name represents the person, here the LORD who rules earth and heaven (vv. 2–4). In late biblical and in postbiblical texts, the name of God was used as a surrogate for God. 5–6: A rhetorical question expecting the answer “None.” 6: Who looks far down, better “who rules over.” 7–9: Two typical examples of divine ruling: enabling a poor man to sit with honor among the village elders, and giving the barren woman a child; cf. 1 Sam 2.4–8.

Ps 114: The wonder of the Exodus. A unique psalm with hymnlike features, celebrating the Exodus from Egypt and the Conquest, with the crossing of the sea and the Jordan River. An apt Hallel psalm (Pss 113–118) with standard synonymous parallelism and internal repetition (vv. 3–4 || 5–6). 1–4: Somewhat abruptly, the psalm describes Israel leaving Egypt through the sea (see Ex 14–15) to a safe land. Telescoping events, this poem has the people cross from Egypt directly into Canaan (Judah, Israel, v. 2, where the Southern and Northern kingdoms are meant). 2: Strikingly, it is at the Exodus, and not at Sinai, that Israel becomes God's holy people (a preferable translation to sanctuary). 3: The sea is parallel to Jordan and is personified as a defeated warrior (cf. Pss 77.16; 104.7). The LORD taunts sea and mountains as they tremble and flee (Ps 96.9; Deut 2.25). 8: A reference to God providing water in the wilderness from a rock; see Ps 78.15,20; Ex 17.6; Num 20.11.

Ps 115: Show forth your glory to the nations. A community petition that the LORD in the heavens (v. 3), too powerful to be contained in earthly statues (vv. 4–8), might display his glory on earth and enable Israel to live in trust (vv. 9–18). 1: Not to us, better, “Not for our sake, O LORD, not for our sake, but for the sake of your name display your glory.” The Hebrew phrase, lit., “to give glory,” actually means “display glory” as in Ezek 39.21. 2: Where is their God? a taunt that Israel's God is powerless. 3–8: There are two contrasts: between our God (singular) in the heavens and their gods (images, plural) on earth; between God who acts and the gods who cannot. 3:

⁶They have ears, but do not hear;
 noses, but do not smell.
⁷They have hands, but do not feel;
 feet, but do not walk;
 they make no sound in their throats.
⁸Those who make them are like them;
 so are all who trust in them.
⁹O Israel, trust in the LORD!
 He is their help and their shield.
¹⁰O house of Aaron, trust in the LORD!
 He is their help and their shield.
¹¹You who fear the LORD, trust in the
 LORD!
 He is their help and their shield.
¹²The LORD has been mindful of us; he will bless us;
 he will bless the house of Israel;
 he will bless the house of Aaron;
¹³he will bless those who fear the LORD,
 both small and great.
¹⁴May the LORD give you increase,
 both you and your children.
¹⁵May you be blessed by the LORD,
 who made heaven and earth.
¹⁶The heavens are the LORD's heavens, but the earth he has given to human beings.
¹⁷The dead do not praise the LORD,
 nor do any that go down into silence.
¹⁸But we will bless the LORD
 from this time on and forevermore.
 Praise the LORD!

Psalm 116

¹I love the LORD, because he has heard
 my voice and my supplications.
²Because he inclined his ear to me,
 therefore I will call on him as long as I live.
³The snares of death encompassed me;
 the pangs of Sheol laid hold on me;
 I suffered distress and anguish.
⁴Then I called on the name of the LORD:
 "O LORD, I pray, save my life!"
⁵Gracious is the LORD, and righteous;
 our God is merciful.
⁶The LORD protects the simple;
 when I was brought low, he saved me.
⁷Return, O my soul, to your rest, for the LORD has dealt bountifully with
 you.
⁸For you have delivered my soul from
 death,
 my eyes from tears,
 my feet from stumbling.
⁹I walk before the LORD
 in the land of the living.
¹⁰I kept my faith, even when I said,
 "I am greatly afflicted";
¹¹I said in my consternation,
 "Everyone is a liar."
¹²What shall I return to the LORD
 for all his bounty to me?
¹³I will lift up the cup of salvation
 and call on the name of the LORD, ¹⁴I will pay my vows to the LORD
 in the presence of all his people.

Our God is in the heavens, a bold response to the taunt Where is their God? Ridicule of divine images is common in illic texts and later (e.g., Jer 10.1–16; Isa 40.18–20; 41.6–7; Bel). 9: Trust in the LORD, those who trust in images will be frustrated (vv. 8) and those who trust in the LORD will find a help and shield (vv. 9–11). 10: House of Aaron, the priests, who claimed Aaron as their ancestor. 12–13: The psalmist turns to God, asking him to bless the same three groups who were just asked (vv. 10–11) to have trust in the LORD. 15: Who made heaven and earth, see Ps 124.8n. 17: According to the biblical worldview, all who died went down to Sheol, the underworld, where all was quiet; the dead could thus be called those that go down into silence. See also 6.5n.

Ps 116: Thanksgiving to a saving God. An individual thanksgiving for having found a saving God rather than for a particular rescue. God is attentive (vv. 1–2) and merciful (vv. 5–6), and the psalmist resolves to respond by acts of trust (vv. 7, 9–11) and worship (vv. 12–19). There seem to be four sections: the rescue and the resulting relationship (vv. 1–4); the nature of God revealed by the rescue and the psalmist's response (vv. 5–8); resolve to live as a trusting client of the divine patron (vv. 9–11); resolve to offer appropriate ritual thanks (vv. 12–19). 1: I love the LORD, in the sense of choose (Prov 12.1; 20.13; Isa 41.8); the Hebrew reads "I love that the LORD has heard." 3: Sheol, the underworld, the abode of the dead. 7: Soul refers to breathing or life-force.

¹⁵ Precious in the sight of the LORD is the death of his faithful ones.
¹⁶ O LORD, I am your servant;
I am your servant, the child of your serving girl.
You have loosed my bonds.
¹⁷ I will offer to you a thanksgiving sacrifice
and call on the name of the LORD.
¹⁸ I will pay my vows to the LORD
in the presence of all his people, ¹⁹ in the courts of the house of the LORD,
in your midst, O Jerusalem.
Praise the LORD!

Psalm 117

¹ Praise the LORD, all you nations!
Extol him, all you peoples!
² For great is his steadfast love toward us,
and the faithfulness of the LORD
endures forever.
Praise the LORD!

Psalm 118

¹ O give thanks to the LORD, for he is good;
his steadfast love endures forever!
² Let Israel say,
“His steadfast love endures forever.”
³ Let the house of Aaron say,
“His steadfast love endures forever.”
⁴ Let those who fear the LORD say,
“His steadfast love endures forever.”
⁵ Out of my distress I called on the LORD;
the LORD answered me and set me in a broad place.

⁶ With the LORD on my side I do not fear.
What can mortals do to me?
⁷ The LORD is on my side to help me;
I shall look in triumph on those who hate me.
⁸ It is better to take refuge in the LORD
than to put confidence in mortals.
⁹ It is better to take refuge in the LORD
than to put confidence in princes.
¹⁰ All nations surrounded me;
in the name of the LORD I cut them off!
¹¹ They surrounded me, surrounded me on every side;
in the name of the LORD I cut them off!
¹² They surrounded me like bees;
they blazed^a like a fire of thorns;
in the name of the LORD I cut them off!
¹³ I was pushed hard,^b so that I was falling,
but the LORD helped me.
¹⁴ The LORD is my strength and my might;
he has become my salvation.
¹⁵ There are glad songs of victory in the tents of the righteous:
“The right hand of the LORD does
valiantly;
¹⁶ the right hand of the LORD is exalted;
the right hand of the LORD does
valiantly.”
¹⁷ I shall not die, but I shall live,
and recount the deeds of the LORD.

^a Gk: Heb were extinguished

^b Gk: Syr Jerome: Heb You pushed me hard

13: Cup of salvation, a drink offering poured out in thanksgiving (e.g., Ex 25.29; Lev 23.37). 14: A person in a precarious situation could make a vow that would be fulfilled upon being saved. 15: Precious, in the sense of “too precious” as in Ps 72.14, i.e., grievous in the LORD’s sight. 17–18: When in distress, the psalmist vowed to offer a thanksgiving sacrifice.

Ps 117: Invitation to the nations to worship. In the Bible’s shortest chapter, this psalm is a hymn with an invitatory, which is repeated in the last verse, and the motive for praise is introduced by for (v. 2a). Oddly, the motive for the nations to give praise is the LORD’s steadfast love and faithfulness toward Israel. Perhaps for the psalmist Israel showcases the LORD’s generosity and exemplifies what the LORD intends for all peoples.

Ps 118: Giving thanks in a solemn procession. A thanksgiving, spoken in the first person, possibly by the king speaking for the people. The salvation is described twice, in vv. 5–9 as a transfer from a tight spot to a broad place, and in vv. 10–18 as rescue from hostile nations. As the procession enters the Temple precincts, the leader asks for admittance (v. 19) and an officiant states the qualifications necessary for entering (v. 20). In v. 21, the speaker, now within the Temple, gives fresh thanks, and in vv. 22–27, the congregation takes up the praise. The final verse repeats the beginning, forming an inclusio. 1–4: His steadfast love, a covenant term (Heb “hesed”); the speaker gives thanks for the LORD’s fidelity to past promises of protection. 5: Distress, lit. “restricted

¹⁸The LORD has punished me severely,
but he did not give me over to death.

¹⁹Open to me the gates of righteousness,
that I may enter through them
and give thanks to the LORD.

²⁰This is the gate of the LORD;
the righteous shall enter through it.

²¹I thank you that you have answered me
and have become my salvation.

²²The stone that the builders rejected
has become the chief cornerstone.

²³This is the LORD's doing;
it is marvelous in our eyes.

²⁴This is the day that the LORD has made;
let us rejoice and be glad in it.^a

²⁵Save us, we beseech you, O LORD!
O LORD, we beseech you, give us success!

²⁶Blessed is the one who comes in the name of the LORD.^b

We bless you from the house of the
LORD.

²⁷The LORD is God,
and he has given us light.

Bind the festal procession with branches,
up to the horns of the altar.^c

²⁸You are my God, and I will give thanks
to you;
you are my God, I will extol you.

²⁹O give thanks to the LORD, for he is
good,
for his steadfast love endures forever.

Psalm 119

¹Happy are those whose way is
blameless,
who walk in the law of the LORD.

²Happy are those who keep his decrees,
who seek him with their whole heart,

³who also do no wrong,
but walk in his ways.

⁴You have commanded your precepts
to be kept diligently.

⁵O that my ways may be steadfast
in keeping your statutes!

^a Or in him

^b Or Blessed in the name of the LORD is the one who comes

^c Meaning of Heb uncertain

place." 12: Bees, a metaphor for enemies as in Deut 1.44. 14: Copied from Ex 15.2. 22: The stone, the unsuitable stone becomes the very cornerstone toward which all the building blocks are oriented; such a transformation from low to high is a sign of divine intervention (v. 23). 27: Bind the festal procession with branches, up to the horns of the altar was probably a ritual instruction that accidentally became part of the psalm. The horns were four projections at the corners of the altar.

Ps 119: The grandeur and the necessity of divine teaching. An individual petition that the LORD's teaching (Heb "torah," NRSV "law") guide one's every moment: in danger and discouragement, in joy and exultation. The psalm is an elaborate acrostic (see Ps 9–10n.): Each of the twenty-two stanzas begins with a successive letter of the Hebrew alphabet, and each stanza has eight verses and (usually) eight synonyms of "law," more accurately "authoritative teaching": "law," "word," "promise(s)," "ordinances," "statutes," "commandments," "decrees," and "precepts." Though for the most part synonymous in this psalm, each term may retain its own shade of meaning: illumination ("law," "word"), moral demand ("ordinances," "statutes," "commandments"), guidance ("decrees, precepts"), and promise ("promise"). Life is regarded as warfare with the evil principle; definitive victory lies only in the future. The major weapon in the battle is the divine word, for its observance trains the passions, gives strength in temptation, and elevates the mind to God. The psalm is constructed as a petition, as seen in its multiple imperatives, as in v. 149. Often petitions and references to "torah" (the two main themes), are combined in a single verse, as in v. 173. Yet, even after reading the entire psalm, it is uncertain exactly what "torah" means: if it refers to the law of Moses, it is odd that there is no mention of him or of Sinai.

This is the longest psalm in the Bible and is innovative in the manner that it refers to the Torah with words typically used of God, such as "love" (e.g., vv. 47,97), "truth" (v. 142), and "true" (v. 151). This reflects the growing importance of the Torah in the postexilic period, and anticipates the idea that the Torah is a type of stand-in for God, who is no longer regarded as imminent. 1: Law, teaching that is authoritative because of divine origin. "Law" is a less satisfactory rendering. 135: Shine, see Num 6.24–26.

- ⁶ Then I shall not be put to shame, having my eyes fixed on all your
commandments.
- ⁷ I will praise you with an upright heart,
when I learn your righteous ordinances.
- ⁸ I will observe your statutes;
do not utterly forsake me.
- ⁹ How can young people keep their way
pure?
By guarding it according to your word.
- ¹⁰ With my whole heart I seek you;
do not let me stray from your
commandments.
- ¹¹ I treasure your word in my heart,
so that I may not sin against you.
- ¹² Blessed are you, O LORD;
teach me your statutes.
- ¹³ With my lips I declare
all the ordinances of your mouth.
- ¹⁴ I delight in the way of your decrees
as much as in all riches.
- ¹⁵ I will meditate on your precepts,
and fix my eyes on your ways.
- ¹⁶ I will delight in your statutes;
I will not forget your word.
- ¹⁷ Deal bountifully with your servant,
so that I may live and observe your word.
- ¹⁸ Open my eyes, so that I may behold wondrous things out of your law.
- ¹⁹ I live as an alien in the land;
do not hide your commandments from
me.
- ²⁰ My soul is consumed with longing
for your ordinances at all times.
- ²¹ You rebuke the insolent, accursed ones, who wander from your
commandments;
- ²² take away from me their scorn and
contempt,
for I have kept your decrees.
- ²³ Even though princes sit plotting against
me,
your servant will meditate on your
statutes.
- ²⁴ Your decrees are my delight,
they are my counselors.
- ²⁵ My soul clings to the dust;
revive me according to your word.
- ²⁶ When I told of my ways, you answered
me;
teach me your statutes.
- ²⁷ Make me understand the way of your precepts,
and I will meditate on your wondrous
works.
- ²⁸ My soul melts away for sorrow;
strengthen me according to your word.
- ²⁹ Put false ways far from me;
and graciously teach me your law.
- ³⁰ I have chosen the way of faithfulness;
I set your ordinances before me.
- ³¹ I cling to your decrees, O LORD;
let me not be put to shame.
- ³² I run the way of your commandments,
for you enlarge my understanding.
- ³³ Teach me, O LORD, the way of your
statutes,
and I will observe it to the end.
- ³⁴ Give me understanding, that I may keep your law
and observe it with my whole heart.
- ³⁵ Lead me in the path of your
commandments,
for I delight in it.
- ³⁶ Turn my heart to your decrees,
and not to selfish gain.
- ³⁷ Turn my eyes from looking at vanities;
give me life in your ways.
- ³⁸ Confirm to your servant your promise,
which is for those who fear you.
- ³⁹ Turn away the disgrace that I dread,
for your ordinances are good.
- ⁴⁰ See, I have longed for your precepts;
in your righteousness give me life.
- ⁴¹ Let your steadfast love come to me,
O LORD,
your salvation according to your promise.
- ⁴² Then I shall have an answer for those who taunt me,
for I trust in your word.
- ⁴³ Do not take the word of truth utterly out of my mouth,
for my hope is in your ordinances.
- ⁴⁴ I will keep your law continually,
forever and ever.
- ⁴⁵ I shall walk at liberty,
for I have sought your precepts.

- ⁴⁶ I will also speak of your decrees before kings,
 and shall not be put to shame;
⁴⁷ I find my delight in your commandments,
 because I love them.
⁴⁸ I revere your commandments, which I love,
 and I will meditate on your statutes.
- ⁴⁹ Remember your word to your servant,
 in which you have made me hope.
⁵⁰ This is my comfort in my distress,
 that your promise gives me life.
⁵¹ The arrogant utterly deride me,
 but I do not turn away from your law.
⁵² When I think of your ordinances from of old,
 I take comfort, O LORD.
⁵³ Hot indignation seizes me because of the wicked,
 those who forsake your law.
⁵⁴ Your statutes have been my songs
 wherever I make my home.
⁵⁵ I remember your name in the night,
 O LORD,
 and keep your law.
⁵⁶ This blessing has fallen to me,
 for I have kept your precepts.
- ⁵⁷ The LORD is my portion;
 I promise to keep your words.
⁵⁸ I implore your favor with all my heart;
 be gracious to me according to your promise.
⁵⁹ When I think of your ways,
 I turn my feet to your decrees;
⁶⁰ I hurry and do not delay
 to keep your commandments.
⁶¹ Though the cords of the wicked ensnare me,
 I do not forget your law.
⁶² At midnight I rise to praise you,
 because of your righteous ordinances.
⁶³ I am a companion of all who fear you,
 of those who keep your precepts.
⁶⁴ The earth, O LORD, is full of your steadfast love;
 teach me your statutes.
- ⁶⁵ You have dealt well with your servant,
 O LORD, according to your word.
- ⁶⁶ Teach me good judgment and knowledge,
 for I believe in your commandments.
⁶⁷ Before I was humbled I went astray,
 but now I keep your word.
⁶⁸ You are good and do good;
 teach me your statutes.
⁶⁹ The arrogant smear me with lies,
 but with my whole heart I keep your precepts.
⁷⁰ Their hearts are fat and gross,
 but I delight in your law.
⁷¹ It is good for me that I was humbled,
 so that I might learn your statutes.
⁷² The law of your mouth is better to me than thousands of gold and silver pieces.
- ⁷³ Your hands have made and fashioned me;
 give me understanding that I may learn your commandments.
⁷⁴ Those who fear you shall see me and rejoice,
 because I have hoped in your word.
⁷⁵ I know, O LORD, that your judgments are right,
 and that in faithfulness you have humbled me.
⁷⁶ Let your steadfast love become my comfort
 according to your promise to your servant.
⁷⁷ Let your mercy come to me, that I may live;
 for your law is my delight.
⁷⁸ Let the arrogant be put to shame,
 because they have subverted me with guile;
 as for me, I will meditate on your precepts.
⁷⁹ Let those who fear you turn to me,
 so that they may know your decrees.
⁸⁰ May my heart be blameless in your statutes,
 so that I may not be put to shame.
- ⁸¹ My soul languishes for your salvation;
 I hope in your word.
⁸² My eyes fail with watching for your promise;
 I ask, "When will you comfort me?"

⁸³ For I have become like a wineskin in the smoke,
yet I have not forgotten your statutes.

⁸⁴ How long must your servant endure?
When will you judge those who persecute me?

⁸⁵ The arrogant have dug pitfalls for me;
they flout your law.

⁸⁶ All your commandments are enduring;
I am persecuted without cause; help me!

⁸⁷ They have almost made an end of me on
earth;
but I have not forsaken your precepts.

⁸⁸ In your steadfast love spare my life,
so that I may keep the decrees of your
mouth.

⁸⁹ The LORD exists forever;
your word is firmly fixed in heaven.

⁹⁰ Your faithfulness endures to all
generations;
you have established the earth, and it stands fast.

⁹¹ By your appointment they stand today,
for all things are your servants.

⁹² If your law had not been my delight,
I would have perished in my misery.

⁹³ I will never forget your precepts,
for by them you have given me life.

⁹⁴ I am yours; save me,
for I have sought your precepts.

⁹⁵ The wicked lie in wait to destroy me,
but I consider your decrees.

⁹⁶ I have seen a limit to all perfection, but your commandment is exceedingly broad.

⁹⁷ Oh, how I love your law!
It is my meditation all day long.

⁹⁸ Your commandment makes me wiser than my enemies,
for it is always with me.

⁹⁹ I have more understanding than all my teachers,
for your decrees are my meditation.

¹⁰⁰ I understand more than the aged,
for I keep your precepts.

¹⁰¹ I hold back my feet from every evil way,
in order to keep your word.

¹⁰² I do not turn away from your ordinances,
for you have taught me.

¹⁰³ How sweet are your words to my taste,
sweeter than honey to my mouth!

¹⁰⁴ Through your precepts I get
understanding;
therefore I hate every false way.

¹⁰⁵ Your word is a lamp to my feet
and a light to my path.

¹⁰⁶ I have sworn an oath and confirmed it,
to observe your righteous ordinances.

¹⁰⁷ I am severely afflicted;
give me life, O LORD, according to your
word.

¹⁰⁸ Accept my offerings of praise, O LORD,
and teach me your ordinances.

¹⁰⁹ I hold my life in my hand continually,
but I do not forget your law.

¹¹⁰ The wicked have laid a snare for me,
but I do not stray from your precepts.

¹¹¹ Your decrees are my heritage forever;
they are the joy of my heart.

¹¹² I incline my heart to perform your statutes
forever, to the end.

¹¹³ I hate the double-minded,
but I love your law.

¹¹⁴ You are my hiding place and my shield;
I hope in your word.

¹¹⁵ Go away from me, you evildoers, that I may keep the commandments of
my God.

¹¹⁶ Uphold me according to your promise,
that I may live,
and let me not be put to shame in my
hope.

¹¹⁷ Hold me up, that I may be safe and have regard for your statutes
continually.

¹¹⁸ You spurn all who go astray from your
statutes;
for their cunning is in vain.

¹¹⁹ All the wicked of the earth you count as dross;
therefore I love your decrees.

¹²⁰ My flesh trembles for fear of you,
and I am afraid of your judgments.

¹²¹ I have done what is just and right;
do not leave me to my oppressors.

¹²² Guarantee your servant's well-being;
do not let the godless oppress me.

¹²³ My eyes fail from watching for your salvation,
and for the fulfillment of your righteous promise.

¹²⁴ Deal with your servant according to your steadfast love,
and teach me your statutes.

¹²⁵ I am your servant; give me understanding,
so that I may know your decrees.

¹²⁶ It is time for the LORD to act,
for your law has been broken.

¹²⁷ Truly I love your commandments more than gold, more than fine gold.

¹²⁸ Truly I direct my steps by all your precepts;^a
I hate every false way.

¹²⁹ Your decrees are wonderful;
therefore my soul keeps them.

¹³⁰ The unfolding of your words gives light;
it imparts understanding to the simple.

¹³¹ With open mouth I pant,
because I long for your commandments.

¹³² Turn to me and be gracious to me,
as is your custom toward those who love your name.

¹³³ Keep my steps steady according to your promise,
and never let iniquity have dominion over me.

¹³⁴ Redeem me from human oppression,
that I may keep your precepts.

¹³⁵ Make your face shine upon your servant,
and teach me your statutes.

¹³⁶ My eyes shed streams of tears
because your law is not kept.

¹³⁷ You are righteous, O LORD,
and your judgments are right.

¹³⁸ You have appointed your decrees in righteousness and in all faithfulness.

¹³⁹ My zeal consumes me
because my foes forget your words.

¹⁴⁰ Your promise is well tried,
and your servant loves it.

¹⁴¹ I am small and despised,
yet I do not forget your precepts.

¹⁴² Your righteousness is an everlasting righteousness, and your law is the truth.

¹⁴³ Trouble and anguish have come upon me,
but your commandments are my delight.

¹⁴⁴ Your decrees are righteous forever;
give me understanding that I may live.

¹⁴⁵ With my whole heart I cry; answer me,
O LORD.
I will keep your statutes.

¹⁴⁶ I cry to you; save me,
that I may observe your decrees.

¹⁴⁷ I rise before dawn and cry for help;
I put my hope in your words.

¹⁴⁸ My eyes are awake before each watch of the night,
that I may meditate on your promise.

¹⁴⁹ In your steadfast love hear my voice;
O LORD, in your justice preserve my life.

¹⁵⁰ Those who persecute me with evil purpose draw near;
they are far from your law.

¹⁵¹ Yet you are near, O LORD,
and all your commandments are true.

¹⁵² Long ago I learned from your decrees that you have established them forever.

¹⁵³ Look on my misery and rescue me,
for I do not forget your law.

¹⁵⁴ Plead my cause and redeem me;
give me life according to your promise.

¹⁵⁵ Salvation is far from the wicked,
for they do not seek your statutes.

¹⁵⁶ Great is your mercy, O LORD;
give me life according to your justice.

¹⁵⁷ Many are my persecutors and my adversaries,
yet I do not swerve from your decrees.

¹⁵⁸ I look at the faithless with disgust,
because they do not keep your commands.

¹⁵⁹ Consider how I love your precepts;
preserve my life according to your steadfast love.

¹⁶⁰ The sum of your word is truth;
and every one of your righteous ordinances endures forever.

¹⁶¹ Princes persecute me without cause,
but my heart stands in awe of your words.

^a Gk Jerome: Meaning of Heb uncertain

¹⁶² I rejoice at your word like one who finds great spoil.
¹⁶³ I hate and abhor falsehood,
 but I love your law.
¹⁶⁴ Seven times a day I praise you for your righteous ordinances.
¹⁶⁵ Great peace have those who love your law;
 nothing can make them stumble.
¹⁶⁶ I hope for your salvation, O LORD,
 and I fulfill your commandments.
¹⁶⁷ My soul keeps your decrees;
 I love them exceedingly.
¹⁶⁸ I keep your precepts and decrees,
 for all my ways are before you.
¹⁶⁹ Let my cry come before you, O LORD;
 give me understanding according to your word.
¹⁷⁰ Let my supplication come before you;
 deliver me according to your
 promise.
¹⁷¹ My lips will pour forth praise,
 because you teach me your statutes.
¹⁷² My tongue will sing of your promise,
 for all your commandments are right.
¹⁷³ Let your hand be ready to help me,
 for I have chosen your precepts.
¹⁷⁴ I long for your salvation, O LORD,
 and your law is my delight.
¹⁷⁵ Let me live that I may praise you,
 and let your ordinances help me.
¹⁷⁶ I have gone astray like a lost sheep; seek out your servant,

for I do not forget your commandments.

Psalm 120

A Song of Ascents.

¹ In my distress I cry to the LORD,
 that he may answer me:
² “Deliver me, O LORD,
 from lying lips,
 from a deceitful tongue.”
³ What shall be given to you?
 And what more shall be done to you,
 you deceitful tongue?
⁴ A warrior’s sharp arrows,
 with glowing coals of the broom tree!
⁵ Woe is me, that I am an alien in Meshech,
 that I must live among the tents of Kedar.
⁶ Too long have I had my dwelling among those who hate peace.
⁷ I am for peace;
 but when I speak,
 they are for war.

Psalm 121

A Song of Ascents.

¹ I lift up my eyes to the hills—
 from where will my help come?
² My help comes from the LORD,
 who made heaven and earth.

Ps 120: Prayer for rescue from slanderers. This is the first of the collection of Songs of Ascents, Pss 120–134. The meaning of this superscription is debated; it may refer to the steplike parallelism in many of the poems (e.g., Ps 127:1: “unless the LORD builds the house . . . unless the LORD guards the city”), or to songs sung while going up to Jerusalem for pilgrimage. This psalm is an individual petition with the expected petitions for the punishment of enemies (vv. 3–4) and complaints (vv. 2–3, 5–7), though without a statement of hope. The two complaints—slandering attacks (vv. 2–4) and unwilling exile in a hostile country far from Jerusalem (vv. 5–7)—tell the same story with two metaphor systems (tongues as weapons, being in a distant, hostile land). Reputation, a community, and a home—all these have been taken from the psalmist. Others’ words have become weapons (vv. 2–3, 7) and the only rescue the psalmist can imagine is retaliation in military terms (vv. 3–4). 4: Broom, a desert shrub. 5: Meshech . . . Kedar, places far from Jerusalem in the remote north (southern Asia Minor [see Ezek 38.2]), and remote south (northern Arabia [Isa 21.13–17]), symbolizing distance. 7: Peace (Heb “shalom”), perhaps a play on the name of Jerusalem.

Ps 121: Confidence in God’s care. A declaration of trust shaped by tight, steplike parallelism: “not slumber” links vv. 3–4; “keep” links vv. 3–5 and 7–8. “Coming” in v. 8 echoes “come” in v. 1, concluding the poem. Perhaps this was recited by a traveler, even a pilgrim to Zion who asks the question, which he first answers (v. 2); the answer is then expanded upon by a priest conscious that the LORD dwells in Zion (vv. 3–8). God’s careful protection is the dominant image; the LORD guides one’s steps and does not slumber even when people sleep.

³He will not let your foot be moved;
 he who keeps you will not slumber.
⁴He who keeps Israel
 will neither slumber nor sleep.

⁵The LORD is your keeper;
 the LORD is your shade at your right
 hand.

⁶The sun shall not strike you by day,
 nor the moon by night.

⁷The LORD will keep you from all evil;
 he will keep your life.

⁸The LORD will keep your going out and your coming in
 from this time on and forevermore.

Psalm 122

A Song of Ascents. Of David.

¹I was glad when they said to me,
 “Let us go to the house of the LORD!”

²Our feet are standing within your gates, O Jerusalem.

³Jerusalem—built as a city that is bound firmly together.

⁴To it the tribes go up,
 the tribes of the LORD,
 as was decreed for Israel,
 to give thanks to the name of the LORD.

⁵For there the thrones for judgment were set up,
 the thrones of the house of David.

⁶Pray for the peace of Jerusalem:
 “May they prosper who love you.

⁷Peace be within your walls,
 and security within your towers.”

⁸For the sake of my relatives and friends
 I will say, “Peace be within you.”

⁹For the sake of the house of the LORD our God,
 I will seek your good.

Psalm 123

A Song of Ascents.

¹To you I lift up my eyes,
 O you who are enthroned in the
 heavens!

²As the eyes of servants
 look to the hand of their master,
 as the eyes of a maid
 to the hand of her mistress,
 so our eyes look to the LORD our God,
 until he has mercy upon us.

³Have mercy upon us, O LORD, have mercy
 upon us,
 for we have had more than enough of
 contempt.

Superscription: Song of Ascents, see Ps 120n. 1: Hills, probably those around Jerusalem. 2: Who made heaven and earth, see Ps 124.8n. 5: The LORD is your keeper, the exact center of the poem.

Ps 122: Longing to go to Zion and a prayer for its peace. A song of Zion celebrating the sacred city for its beautiful buildings (v. 3), worship in common (v. 4), and just legal decisions (v. 5). One can imagine a pilgrim, awed by the holiness of the place, uttering the prayer for the welfare of the city (vv. 6–9). Superscription: Song of Ascents, see Ps 120n. 1: Let us go, Passover, Weeks (Pentecost), and Tabernacles were pilgrimage festivals, requiring heads of households to travel to Jerusalem and ascend its hills (Ex 23.17; 34.23; Deut 16.16). The house of the LORD, the Temple (also v. 9). 5: Thrones for judgment, Jerusalem was the city of the Davidic king; judgment can refer to legal decisions as well as to ordinary governance. 6–7: The other pilgrims are probably being addressed here. 6: Pray for the peace of Jerusalem, alliterative in Hebrew (“sha’alu shalom yerushalaim”) 9: The concluding reference to the Temple forms an inclusio with v. 1, emphasizing that it is the presence of God in the Temple that makes Jerusalem such a significant and holy city.

Ps 123: A plea for divine mercy. A community petition, perhaps composed in the Second Temple period when the nation felt the indignity (v. 3) of being a small state in the vast Persian empire. Feeling like a powerless slave (NRSV “servant,” v. 2), the community speaker (“I” in v. 1) feels constricted, repeating a plea for divine mercy three times. The psalmist’s hope is not constricted, however, for the prayer is directed to the divine king “enthroned in the heavens” (v. 1). Superscription: Song of Ascents, see Ps 120n. 2: The eyes of servants, the metaphor of looking expectantly to the LORD is developed through servants looking at their masters; contrasts are maximized—male and female, plural and singular—to express completeness: all look to you. Female images of God are very rare in the Bible (e.g., Isa 49.14–16), especially in Psalms, making the comparison of God to mistress noteworthy.

⁴ Our soul has had more than its fill
of the scorn of those who are at ease,
of the contempt of the proud.

Psalm 124

A Song of Ascents. Of David.

¹ If it had not been the LORD who was on our side
—let Israel now say—
² if it had not been the LORD who was on
our side,
when our enemies attacked us,
³ then they would have swallowed us up alive,
when their anger was kindled against
us;
⁴ then the flood would have swept us
away,
the torrent would have gone over us;
⁵ then over us would have gone
the raging waters.
⁶ Blessed be the LORD,
who has not given us
as prey to their teeth.
⁷ We have escaped like a bird from the snare of the fowlers;
the snare is broken,
and we have escaped.

⁸ Our help is in the name of the LORD,
who made heaven and earth.

Psalm 125

A Song of Ascents.

¹ Those who trust in the LORD are like Mount Zion,
which cannot be moved, but abides
forever.
² As the mountains surround Jerusalem,
so the LORD surrounds his people,
from this time on and forevermore.
³ For the scepter of wickedness shall not rest
on the land allotted to the righteous,
so that the righteous might not stretch out their hands to do wrong.
⁴ Do good, O LORD, to those who are good,
and to those who are upright in their hearts.
⁵ But those who turn aside to their own crooked ways
the LORD will lead away with evildoers.
Peace be upon Israel!

Psalm 126

A Song of Ascents.

¹ When the LORD restored the fortunes of Zion,^a

^a Or brought back those who returned to Zion

Ps 124: Giving thanks after a narrow escape. A community thanksgiving notable for its simple theme: give thanks for we would have died if the LORD had not rescued us. The simple theme is mirrored by a simple structure: the first two verses begin “If it had not been the LORD who was on our side” and the next three begin with “then” followed by a complex step-parallelism. Such step-parallelism, common in the Songs of Ascents (see Ps 120n.), adds drama and movement. 1: Let Israel now say, the singer provides the community with the proper words to express their intense relief and gratitude. 3–5: The metaphors of devouring beasts and waters flooding the earth are used for the enemies. 7: Like a bird, a totally different metaphor for the rescued nation: a little bird flying upward to freedom from a broken trap, a perfect symbol of miraculous deliverance. 8: Who made heaven and earth, a frequent postexilic epithet for God (see also Pss 115.15; 121.2; 146.6); here it emphasizes that God the powerful creator can still help Israel.

Ps 125: Prayer for Zion’s purification from evildoers. A Zion song that, unlike most other such songs, prays that sinners be removed from its midst so it might truly be worthy of the LORD (vv. 4–5). Examples of such purifying judgments are Isa 1.21–28; 65; Zeph 3.11–13. Like other Songs of Ascents (Pss 122; 123; 124; 126; see Ps 120n.), Ps 125 has an opening statement (vv. 1–3) followed by a prayer (vv. 4–5). 2: The mountains, majestic pillars of the universe, the hills surrounding Jerusalem are an apt symbol of the powerful and ever-present LORD present in Zion. 3: Scepter of wickedness: A scepter wielded by an unjust ruler cannot rest (figuratively) on the land given to the righteous lest they be led to do wrong. 4: Do good . . . to those who are upright, justice means upholding the righteous as well as punishing the wicked. 5: Peace be upon Israel! is repeated later in this collection, in 128.6.

Ps 126: A prayer for the return of all the exiles. A community prayer for the return of all exiles and the restoration of Israel. Like other Songs of Ascents (Pss 122–125; see 120n.), it has an opening statement (vv. 1–3) developed into a prayer (vv. 4–5). It also is characterized by step-parallelism: “restore the fortunes,” “then,”

we were like those who dream.
²Then our mouth was filled with laughter,
 and our tongue with shouts of joy;
 then it was said among the nations,
 “The LORD has done great things for
 them.”
³The LORD has done great things for us, and we rejoiced.
⁴Restore our fortunes, O LORD,
 like the watercourses in the Negeb.
⁵May those who sow in tears reap with shouts of joy.
⁶Those who go out weeping,
 bearing the seed for sowing,
 shall come home with shouts of joy,
 carrying their sheaves.

Psalm 127

A Song of Ascents. Of Solomon.

¹Unless the LORD builds the house,
 those who build it labor in vain.
 Unless the LORD guards the city,

the guard keeps watch in vain.
²It is in vain that you rise up early and go late to rest,
 eating the bread of anxious toil;
 for he gives sleep to his beloved.^a ³Sons are indeed a heritage from the LORD,

 the fruit of the womb a reward.
⁴Like arrows in the hand of a warrior
 are the sons of one's youth.
⁵Happy is the man who has his quiver full of them.
 He shall not be put to shame when he speaks with his enemies in the gate.

Psalm 128

A Song of Ascents.

¹Happy is everyone who fears the LORD,
 who walks in his ways.
²You shall eat the fruit of the labor of your
 hands;

^a Or for he provides for his beloved during sleep

“the LORD has done great things,” “shouts of joy,” and the verb “bearing/carrying.” The psalmist regards the return of the exiles from Babylon, where they had been deported in the early sixth century BCE, as a past event, yet prays for the return of all in the spirit of grand promises such as Isa 60:10. The book of Ezra suggests that in fact few returned from Babylon, the return was a disappointment, and the hyperbolic prophecies of Isa 40–55 were not fulfilled. 4: Restore our fortunes, picks up “restored the fortunes” (v. 1) and prays for its completion. The watercourses in the Negeb, riverbeds in the arid south, dry except when a rare rainstorm in an instant creates torrents sweeping away all in their path, a bold metaphor for sudden transformation of infertile land. The metaphor is ironic, since such watercourses are destructive, yet it sets the stage for the positive water and agricultural imagery in the following verses.

Ps 127: An instruction and prayer for the house. This psalm does not fit the usual categories. It is a declaration that one of God's greatest blessings is children (in that culture, sons), and is a companion piece to Ps 128. Step-parallelism highlights the words unless, in vain, and sons. Hebrew wordplay unites vv. 1–2 and 3–5: builds (“yibneh”) and those who build (“bonayo”) in v. 1, and sons (“banim”) in vv. 3–4. Those same sons will protect the family head when he confronts enemies in the city gate, thereby linking v. 4 and v. 1cd (guards the city). Superscription: Song of Ascents, see Ps 120n. Since it deals with building, the psalm is ascribed to King Solomon (see Ps 72n.), who built the First Temple (see also v. 2n.). 1: House, can refer both to the Temple and to the dynasty, as well as to a household. 2: Beloved (Heb “yedid”) recalls Solomon's birth name Jedidiah (“yedidyah,” 2 Sam 12.25). 3–5: Asserting the uselessness of human effort alone to build a house and protect the city (vv. 1–2), vv. 3–5 declare that it is through sons that the LORD builds a house(hold) and protects the community. The gate was the setting for legal and commercial transactions; see, e.g., Ruth 4.1–12; Prov 30.23,31.

Ps 128: The blessings of the man who fears God. A companion piece to Ps 127, declaring that he “who fears the LORD” (v. 1) will flourish in his family (v. 3), national, and religious life (vv. 5–6). The three spheres were closely related, for the father was paterfamilias of the house, the king was paterfamilias of the house of Israel, and the LORD functioned as the patrimonial lord to whom Israel was bound through covenant. Correspondingly, the blessings include family (fruitful wife, many children), nation (prosperity of Jerusalem, seat of the dynasty), and God (font of blessings). Like several Songs of Ascents (see Ps 120n.), the poem has two parts: a statement of trust (vv. 1–4) and a prayer that builds on the statement (vv. 5–6). 1: Happy, fortunate because of a quality

you shall be happy, and it shall go well
with you.

³Your wife will be like a fruitful vine
within your house;
your children will be like olive shoots
around your table.

⁴Thus shall the man be blessed who fears the LORD.

⁵The LORD bless you from Zion.
May you see the prosperity of Jerusalem
all the days of your life.

⁶May you see your children's children.
Peace be upon Israel!

Psalm 129

A Song of Ascents.

¹"Often have they attacked me from my
youth"
—let Israel now say—
²"often have they attacked me from my
youth,
yet they have not prevailed against me.
³The plowers plowed on my back;
they made their furrows long."
⁴The LORD is righteous;
he has cut the cords of the wicked.
⁵May all who hate Zion
be put to shame and turned backward.

⁶Let them be like the grass on the housetops
that withers before it grows up, ⁷with which reapers do not fill their hands
or binders of sheaves their arms, ⁸while those who pass by do not say,
"The blessing of the LORD be upon you!
We bless you in the name of the LORD!"

Psalm 130

A Song of Ascents.

¹Out of the depths I cry to you, O LORD.
²Lord, hear my voice!
Let your ears be attentive
to the voice of my supplications!

³If you, O LORD, should mark iniquities,
Lord, who could stand?
⁴But there is forgiveness with you,
so that you may be revered.

⁵I wait for the LORD, my soul waits,
and in his word I hope;
⁶my soul waits for the Lord
more than those who watch for the
morning,
more than those who watch for the
morning.

possessed or a choice made. 3: The verse both expresses and reinforces the status of the father as head of the household. 6: Peace be upon Israel! see Ps 125.5n.

Ps 129: Prayer against Zion's enemies. A community petition that the LORD punish those who have persecuted Israel. As often in Songs of Ascents (see Ps 120n.), step-parallelism highlights key phrases, "often have they attacked me from my youth" and "blessing/bless." The complaint is not so much of present suffering but of relentless, unending sufferings "from my youth" (vv. 1,2), perhaps referring to Egyptian bondage (cf. Hos 2.15; Jer 2.2; Ezek 23.3). 3: Plowed on my back, perhaps echoing Isa 51.23, which quotes Israel's tormentors in the exile. Thus the psalmist complains about the sufferings of being the LORD's people in the world, selecting two typical instances of suffering, one from the Exodus (vv. 1,2) and the other from the sixth-century BCE exile (v. 3). 6: Grass on the housetops, weeds growing on mud-plastered roofs; cf. 2 Kings 19.26; Isa 37.27. 9: Likely a standard blessing formula used in the postexilic period.

Ps 130: Waiting for the LORD's redemption. One of the seven penitential psalms in Christian tradition (Pss 6; 32; 38; 51; 102; 130; 143), this individual petition seeks rescue "out of the depths" (v. 1), but seems even more intent on simply being heard by God. The usual statement of trust takes the form of resolutions to wait for the LORD (vv. 5–6) and the other common feature of petitions, teaching others to revere the LORD, appears in vv. 7–8. Verses 1–6 detail the psalmist's desire to be heard, and vv. 7–8 detail the psalmist's and Israel's waiting for the redeeming LORD (vv. 5–8). Its central theme is that humans are inherently sinful, and thus God must be inherently forgiving. Superscription: Song of Ascents, see Ps 120n. 1: Out of the depths, Latin Vulgate, "de profundis"; God seems too distant to hear the psalmist's voice. 4: At the middle of the psalm, the psalmist reminds God of his forgiving nature. 5–6: Wait, repeated three times in step-parallelism; waiting expectantly is a form of prayer.

⁷O Israel, hope in the LORD!
 For with the LORD there is steadfast love,
 and with him is great power to redeem.
⁸It is he who will redeem Israel
 from all its iniquities.

Psalm 131

A Song of Ascents. Of David.

¹O LORD, my heart is not lifted up,
 my eyes are not raised too high;
 I do not occupy myself with things too great and too marvelous for me.
²But I have calmed and quieted my soul,
 like a weaned child with its mother;
 my soul is like the weaned child that is with me.^a ³O Israel, hope in the LORD
 from this time on and forevermore.

Psalm 132

A Song of Ascents.

¹O LORD, remember in David's favor
 all the hardships he endured; ²how he swore to the LORD
 and vowed to the Mighty One of Jacob, ³"I will not enter my house
 or get into my bed;

⁴I will not give sleep to my eyes
 or slumber to my eyelids, ⁵until I find a place for the LORD,
 a dwelling place for the Mighty One of Jacob."

⁶We heard of it in Ephrathah;
 we found it in the fields of Jaar.
⁷"Let us go to his dwelling place;
 let us worship at his footstool."
⁸Rise up, O LORD, and go to your resting
 place,
 you and the ark of your might.
⁹Let your priests be clothed with
 righteousness,
 and let your faithful shout for joy.
¹⁰For your servant David's sake do not turn away the face of your anointed one.

¹¹The LORD swore to David a sure oath
 from which he will not turn back:
 "One of the sons of your body
 I will set on your throne.

^a Or my soul within me is like a weaned child

Ps 131: Waiting for the LORD like a child. A declaration of trust with an extraordinary central metaphor: a weaned child, in that culture a three- to five-year-old. The poem is framed by its opening and closing occurrences of "the LORD" and its opening and closing statements, the first put negatively ("my heart is not lifted up") and the second put positively ("I have calmed and quieted my soul"). The three-fold denial in v. 1 and the doubled affirmation in v. 2 show deep feeling. V. 3, as in many other psalms, moves from the individual to the community, here inviting all Israel to imitate the singer's calm and trust. Superscription: Song of Ascents, see Ps 120n. 2: Like a weaned child with its mother, the singer, like the child, has been nurtured daily and would not doubt the mother's further care. The image of God as female is the second in the Songs of Ascents; cf. Ps 125.2.

Ps 132: Bringing the LORD to reign in Zion. A royal psalm narrating in four stanzas David's desire to be affirmed as king and to transfer the ark-throne of the LORD to Zion. In vv. 1–5, David swears to provide a dwelling place for the LORD; in vv. 6–10, the ark is found and taken solemnly to Jerusalem; in vv. 11–13, the LORD swears to give David an eternal dynasty and ratifies the choice of Zion; vv. 14–18 affirm and expand these choices. Each of the four stanzas has five couplets and each contains the name "David"; the last line of each stanza is linked to the first line of the following stanza by word repetition ("find/found" in vv. 5 and 6; "David" in vv. 10 and 11; "desired" in vv. 13 and 14). In both structure and content, it is quite atypical of the Songs of Ascents (see Ps 120n.). 2–5: An extensive elaboration of 2 Sam 7.2. 2: The Mighty One of Jacob (also v. 5), see Gen 49.24; Isa 1.24; 49.26. 6–10: The singer asks that the LORD allow the ark to be transferred to Zion (vv. 6–9) and that he support David (v. 10; cf. v. 1). 6–7: A poetic version of the discovery of the ark of the covenant, the visible symbol of God's presence, and its transfer to Jerusalem; cf. 2 Sam 6. 6: Ephrathah, near Bethlehem, in Judah. Jaar, a variant of Kiriath-jearim (1 Sam 7.1–2). 7: The ark was the footstool component of the divine cherubim throne; cf. Ps 99.5. 8: Cf. Num 10.35–36. 11–14: The first request is answered in vv. 11–12 and the second in vv. 13–14. This is a paraphrase of 1 Sam 7.5–17, though that passage (like Ps 89.28–37) makes an unconditional promise of dynasty to David, while in this psalm (v. 12: If your sons) it is conditional. The choice of Zion, however, is presented as uncondi-

¹² If your sons keep my covenant and my decrees that I shall teach them,
their sons also, forevermore,
shall sit on your throne.”

¹³ For the LORD has chosen Zion;
he has desired it for his habitation:
¹⁴ “This is my resting place forever;
here I will reside, for I have desired it.
¹⁵ I will abundantly bless its provisions;
I will satisfy its poor with bread.
¹⁶ Its priests I will clothe with salvation,
and its faithful will shout for joy.
¹⁷ There I will cause a horn to sprout up for David;
I have prepared a lamp for my anointed
one.
¹⁸ His enemies I will clothe with disgrace,
but on him, his crown will gleam.”

Psalm 133

A Song of Ascents.

¹ How very good and pleasant it is when kindred live together in unity!
² It is like the precious oil on the head,
running down upon the beard,
on the beard of Aaron,
running down over the collar of his robes.

³ It is like the dew of Hermon,
which falls on the mountains of Zion.
For there the LORD ordained his blessing, life forevermore.

Psalm 134

A Song of Ascents.

¹ Come, bless the LORD, all you servants of
the LORD,
who stand by night in the house of the
LORD!
² Lift up your hands to the holy place,
and bless the LORD.
³ May the LORD, maker of heaven and
earth,
bless you from Zion.

Psalm 135

¹ Praise the LORD!
Praise the name of the LORD;
give praise, O servants of the LORD,
² you that stand in the house of the LORD,
in the courts of the house of our God.
³ Praise the LORD, for the LORD is good;
sing to his name, for he is gracious.
⁴ For the LORD has chosen Jacob for himself,
Israel as his own possession.

tional and eternal (v. 14: This is my resting place forever). 17: Horn, a symbol of strength. Lamp, cf. 2 Sam 21.17.

Ps 133: The divine gift of unity. A song of Zion like several Songs of Ascents (Pss 122; 125; 128; 129; 132; see Ps 120n.). Like them, it has step-parallelism: “running down” three times in vv. 2–3 (NRSV “falls down” in v. 3). Like Ps 122, it celebrates Jerusalem as the place where the tribes of Israel happily gather on holy days. The famous first line of Ps 133 recalls Ps 122.4. The references to Aaron and Zion, although somewhat obscure, connect it to the previous psalm. 2: Oil was used for washing in antiquity, and in the ordination rite of priests (Lev 8.12) and thus stirs thoughts of joyous Temple celebrations that bring the community together. The abundance of oil in the ceremonies evokes the plentiful dew of Mount Hermon in the north that was so important in the agricultural life of Israel, especially in the dry summer months.

Ps 134: Come, bless the LORD. The final Song of Ascents (see Ps 120n.) is a blessing, similar to the blessings concluding each of the five books of the Psalms. It mentions themes prominent in the collection such as the Temple in Zion and its ceremonies. It is also similar to the opening and closing of the following psalm. The repeated invitation “Bless the LORD” and the response to it in v. 3 provides structure. 1: It is uncertain exactly which group is meant by all you servants of the LORD, who stand by night in the house of the LORD! 2: Lifting up . . . hands was the position of prayer in antiquity.

Ps 135: Praise of the LORD who brought Israel to its land. A hymn praising the LORD the creator for defeating Pharaoh and the nations who held the land intended for Israel. It forms a pair with Ps 136. The psalm has drawn heavily on earlier tradition (e.g., v. 4 from Deut 7.6; v. 7 from Jer 10.13). These borrowings, late linguistic features, and the attack on images (vv. 15–18) were characteristic of postexilic times when the concept of authoritative scripture was developing. Ps 135 has a concentric or sandwich structure: “Praise the LORD / Blessed is the LORD” is the frame (vv. 1a, 21b), within which vv. 1b–4 match 19–20, and vv. 5–7 match 15–18; the center is vv. 8–14, which describe the LORD’s great acts on behalf of Israel. 4: Possession, Heb “segullah,” something treasured and

- ⁵ For I know that the LORD is great;
our Lord is above all gods.
- ⁶ Whatever the LORD pleases he does,
in heaven and on earth,
in the seas and all deeps.
- ⁷ He it is who makes the clouds rise at the end of the earth;
he makes lightnings for the rain and brings out the wind from his storehouses.
- ⁸ He it was who struck down the firstborn
of Egypt,
both human beings and animals;
- ⁹ he sent signs and wonders
into your midst, O Egypt, against Pharaoh and all his servants.
- ¹⁰ He struck down many nations and killed mighty kings—
- ¹¹ Sihon, king of the Amorites,
and Og, king of Bashan,
and all the kingdoms of Canaan—
- ¹² and gave their land as a heritage,
a heritage to his people Israel.
- ¹³ Your name, O LORD, endures forever,
your renown, O LORD, throughout all ages.
- ¹⁴ For the LORD will vindicate his people,
and have compassion on his servants.
- ¹⁵ The idols of the nations are silver and gold,
the work of human hands.

- ¹⁶ They have mouths, but they do not
speak;
they have eyes, but they do not see;
- ¹⁷ they have ears, but they do not hear,
and there is no breath in their mouths.
- ¹⁸ Those who make them
and all who trust them
shall become like them.
- ¹⁹ O house of Israel, bless the LORD!
O house of Aaron, bless the LORD!
- ²⁰ O house of Levi, bless the LORD!
You that fear the LORD, bless the LORD!
- ²¹ Blessed be the LORD from Zion,
he who resides in Jerusalem.
Praise the LORD!

Psalm 136

- ¹ O give thanks to the LORD, for he is good,
for his steadfast love endures forever.
- ² O give thanks to the God of gods,
for his steadfast love endures forever.
- ³ O give thanks to the Lord of lords,
for his steadfast love endures forever;
- ⁴ who alone does great wonders,
for his steadfast love endures forever;
- ⁵ who by understanding made the heavens,
for his steadfast love endures forever;
- ⁶ who spread out the earth on the waters,
for his steadfast love endures forever;
- ⁷ who made the great lights,
for his steadfast love endures forever;

set apart (“stashed”) by a god or a king. 5: I know, a confession of faith like that in Ex 18.10–11. Above all gods, see Pss 29.1; 89.6–8. 6–7: God’s actions in nature are a preface to his actions in history; both illustrate God’s immense power. Storehouses, cf. Ps 33.11; Job 38.22. 8–14: The great founding act of Israel was the Exodus, here presented in two panels, as in Ps 114 linking Exodus and Conquest. The first concerns Egypt (i.e., the Exodus proper), and the second concerns the Transjordanian kings Sihon and Og, and the kingdoms of Canaan (i.e., the Conquest). 8: See Ex 12.29. 9: A reference to the plagues; see Ex 7.3; Deut 6.22. 11: Sihon (king of the Amorites, in central Transjordan) and Og (king of Bashan, in northern Transjordan), see Num 21.21–35; Deut 2.24–3.7. 12: Heritage, Canaan as a land that is to be inherited by successive generations of Israelites. 13: A restatement of Ex 3.15. 15–18: Cf. Ps 115.4–11. 19–20: Similar to and likely based on Ps 118.3–4.

Ps 136: Praise of the LORD who created the world and Israel. A hymn telling of the creation of the world and of the Exodus and Conquest, the holy people designed to motivate Israel to give praise, and perhaps for God to remember Israel in its “low estate” (v. 23), when it is persecuted and suffers from famine (vv. 24–25). Pss 135 and 136 share vocabulary and a similar view of sacred history, though Ps 136 uniquely preserves the antiphonal reply “for his steadfast love endures forever” (26 times), which was frequently used in ritual in the postexilic period (see Ezra 3.11; 1 Chr 16.34; Ps 118.1–4). 1–3: Give thanks to the LORD/God (vv. 1–3, 26) opens and closes Ps 136 and also Ps 118 (vv. 1, 29), suggesting that Pss 113–118 and 135–136 were meant to frame the Songs of Ascents (Pss 120–134). As the psalm progresses, each new stage of divine activity is introduced by the participle form of the verb (vv. 4a, 5a, 6a, 7a, 10a, 13a, 16a, and 17a). The psalm narrates a single series of divine actions, beginning

⁸ the sun to rule over the day,
 for his steadfast love endures forever;
⁹ the moon and stars to rule over the night,
 for his steadfast love endures forever;
¹⁰ who struck Egypt through their firstborn,
 for his steadfast love endures forever;
¹¹ and brought Israel out from among them,
 for his steadfast love endures forever;
¹² with a strong hand and an outstretched arm,
 for his steadfast love endures forever;
¹³ who divided the Red Sea^a in two,
 for his steadfast love endures forever;
¹⁴ and made Israel pass through the midst
 of it,
 for his steadfast love endures forever;
¹⁵ but overthrew Pharaoh and his army in the Red Sea,^a
 for his steadfast love endures forever;
¹⁶ who led his people through the wilderness,
 for his steadfast love endures forever;
¹⁷ who struck down great kings,
 for his steadfast love endures forever;
¹⁸ and killed famous kings,
 for his steadfast love endures forever;
¹⁹ Sihon, king of the Amorites,
 for his steadfast love endures forever;
²⁰ and Og, king of Bashan,
 for his steadfast love endures forever;
²¹ and gave their land as a heritage,
 for his steadfast love endures forever;
²² a heritage to his servant Israel,
 for his steadfast love endures forever.

²³ It is he who remembered us in our low estate,
 for his steadfast love endures forever;
²⁴ and rescued us from our foes,
 for his steadfast love endures forever;
²⁵ who gives food to all flesh,
 for his steadfast love endures forever.
²⁶ O give thanks to the God of heaven,
 for his steadfast love endures forever.

Psalms 137

¹ By the rivers of Babylon—
 there we sat down and there we wept
 when we remembered Zion.
² On the willows^b there
 we hung up our harps.
³ For there our captors
 asked us for songs,
 and our tormentors asked for mirth, saying,
 “Sing us one of the songs of Zion!”
⁴ How could we sing the LORD’s song
 in a foreign land?
⁵ If I forget you, O Jerusalem,
 let my right hand wither!
⁶ Let my tongue cling to the roof of my
 mouth,
 if I do not remember you,
 if I do not set Jerusalem
 above my highest joy.

^a Or Sea of Reeds

^b Or poplars

with creation and ending with deliverance and guidance into the land. 7–9: Cf. Gen 1.16. 10–14: Like Ps 135, Ps 136 sees the Exodus primarily as two events: liberation through defeating Pharaoh in Egypt (vv. 10–14) and the giving of land through overcoming kings in Transjordan and Canaan (vv. 17–22). 19–20: Sihon . . . and Og, see Ps 135.11n. 23–25: Changes in syntax and grammatical person (from third to second person) indicate the shift from recital of the past to speaking of Israel dwelling in the land of Canaan. In Canaan, God still wondrously protects and feeds the people.

Ps 137: A lament over destroyed Jerusalem. A community petition that complains vigorously of the destruction of Jerusalem by the Babylonians in 586 BCE. The first stanza (vv. 1–3) is framed by “Zion,” the second (vv. 4–6) by “Jerusalem,” and the third, a cry for justice against Edom and Babylon, the enemies responsible for the destruction. Although the last stanza is repugnant to modern readers and is often omitted in modern uses of the psalm, one must understand it as the cry of one singer who feels acutely the dishonor inflicted by an arrogant empire and its helpers. 1: Rivers, irrigation canals. 3: Mirth, to be understood as “songs of joy,” abstract for concrete. Such songs (e.g., Pss 46; 48; 76; 84; 122) told of the grandeur of Zion where the LORD defeated enemy kings and dwelled in the midst of Israel. It is humiliating to sing them now, especially to people who laugh at them. 5: Wordplay: the Heb word “shakah” is a homonym for two different verbs, “to forget” and “to wither.”

⁷ Remember, O LORD, against the Edomites
the day of Jerusalem's fall,
how they said, "Tear it down! Tear it down!
Down to its foundations!"
⁸ O daughter Babylon, you devastator!^a Happy shall they be who pay you back
what you have done to us!
⁹ Happy shall they be who take your little ones
and dash them against the rock!

Psalm 138*Of David.*

¹ I give you thanks, O LORD, with my whole
heart;
before the gods I sing your praise;
² I bow down toward your holy temple and give thanks to your name for your steadfast love and your faithfulness;
for you have exalted your name and
your word
above everything.^b
³ On the day I called, you answered me,
you increased my strength of soul.^c
⁴ All the kings of the earth shall praise you,
O LORD,
for they have heard the words of your
mouth.
⁵ They shall sing of the ways of the LORD,
for great is the glory of the LORD.
⁶ For though the LORD is high, he regards
the lowly;
but the haughty he perceives from far
away.

⁷ Though I walk in the midst of trouble, you preserve me against the wrath of
my enemies;
you stretch out your hand,
and your right hand delivers me.
⁸ The LORD will fulfill his purpose for me;
your steadfast love, O LORD, endures
forever.
Do not forsake the work of your hands.

Psalm 139*To the leader. Of David. A Psalm.*

¹ O LORD, you have searched me and known me.
² You know when I sit down and when I rise up;
you discern my thoughts from far away.
³ You search out my path and my lying
down,
and are acquainted with all my ways.
⁴ Even before a word is on my tongue,
O LORD, you know it completely.
⁵ You hem me in, behind and before,
and lay your hand upon me.
⁶ Such knowledge is too wonderful for me;
it is so high that I cannot attain it.
⁷ Where can I go from your spirit?
Or where can I flee from your
presence?

^a Or you who are devastated^b Cn: Heb you have exalted your word above all your name^c Syr Compare Gk Tg: Heb you made me arrogant in my soul with strength

5–6: Hand and tongue are the means of making music. 7: Edom, south of the Dead Sea, Edom was an ally in the Babylonian destruction of the city (Lam 4.21; Ezek 25.12–14; 36.5; Obad 8–14). 8: Babylon, by poetic justice, it will suffer what it forced others to suffer.

Ps 138: From personal to universal thanks. An individual thanksgiving that gives thanks for a rescue (vv. 1–3), invites the kings of the world to offer their praise (vv. 4–6), and asserts confidence in the LORD's future protection (vv. 7–8). The first in a collection of David psalms (Pss 138–145). 1: Before the gods, either the heavenly beings who serve in the court of the Most High God (see Ps 29.1n.), or the "gods" of the kings mentioned in vv. 4–6. 3: Going beyond a conventional thanksgiving; the psalmist seems to give thanks for protection throughout life. 4–5: So wonderful has been God's protection that kings, representing the nations, should offer praise (cf. Pss 67.3–5; 126.2). Exactly what is meant by the words of your mouth is unclear. 8: As v. 3 sums up the psalmist's past relationship, this verse sums up the psalmist's hope that the relationship will continue.

Ps 139: A request for guidance from a powerful God. Often classed as an individual petition, this poem is unique, recording an individual's experience of God, first as an intimidating outsider (vv. 1–12), and then as a nurturing insider (vv. 13–18). Only after experiencing the range of God's power and beauty does the psalmist comprehend his or her own place and the malice of sin (vv. 19–24). 2: Sit down . . . rise up, i.e., always; a merism,

⁸ If I ascend to heaven, you are there;
if I make my bed in Sheol, you are there.

⁹ If I take the wings of the morning and settle at the farthest limits of the sea,

¹⁰ even there your hand shall lead me,
and your right hand shall hold me fast.

¹¹ If I say, “Surely the darkness shall cover
me,
and the light around me become
night,”

¹² even the darkness is not dark to you;
the night is as bright as the day,
for darkness is as light to you.

¹³ For it was you who formed my inward parts;
you knit me together in my mother’s
womb.

¹⁴ I praise you, for I am fearfully and wonderfully made.

Wonderful are your works;
that I know very well.

¹⁵ My frame was not hidden from you,
when I was being made in secret, intricately woven in the depths of the
earth.

¹⁶ Your eyes beheld my unformed substance.

In your book were written
all the days that were formed for me,
when none of them as yet existed.

¹⁷ How weighty to me are your thoughts,
O God!

How vast is the sum of them!

¹⁸ I try to count them—they are more than the sand;

I come to the end^a—I am still with you.

¹⁹ O that you would kill the wicked, O God,
and that the bloodthirsty would depart
from me—

²⁰ those who speak of you maliciously, and lift themselves up against you for evil!^b

²¹ Do I not hate those who hate you,
O LORD?

And do I not loathe those who rise up against you?

²² I hate them with perfect hatred;
I count them my enemies.

²³ Search me, O God, and know my heart;
test me and know my thoughts.

²⁴ See if there is any wicked^c way in me,
and lead me in the way everlasting.^d

Psalm 140

To the leader. A Psalm of David.

¹ Deliver me, O LORD, from evildoers;
protect me from those who are violent,

² who plan evil things in their minds and stir up wars continually.

³ They make their tongue sharp as a snake’s, and under their lips is the venom of vipers. Selah

^a Or I awake

^b Cn: Meaning of Heb uncertain

^c Heb hurtful

^d Or the ancient way. Compare Jer 6.16

in which the ends of a spectrum represent the entire spectrum. 9: The wings of the morning, if I leave at dawn. 8: Sheol, the underworld, the abode of the dead. 13: For it was you, better “It was surely you.” The perspective suddenly shifts from outside to inside as the psalmist realizes that the divine power that seemed to loom over life and constrict it (vv. 1–12) also gives life and shapes it in the maternal womb. Delicacy, growth, and “maternal” involvement are also God’s work. 14: I am . . . wonderfully made, the psalmist’s own creation is as wondrous as the other great deeds of the LORD (e.g., Pss 65.5; 106.22; 145.6). 18: I am still with you, no longer feeling alone and judged, the psalmist knows God is near and has been so from the beginning. God’s great power and omnipresence (vv. 1–12) are complemented by nearness and personal care (vv. 13–18). 19–24: The psalmist’s solidarity with God, whom he asks for protection from his wicked enemies.

Ps 140: Petition, complaint, and hope. An individual petition that helps the sufferer move from pain to peaceful hope. NRSV correctly marks the stanzas: vv. 1–3, 4–5, 6–8, 9–11, 12–13 on the basis of their syntax, content, and word count. Vv. 1–3 and 4–5 are paired by their syntax, each beginning with similar petitions and descriptions of enemies (“Protect me from those who are violent, who plan . . .”), and each section ends with “Selah,” which typically marks a disjunction (see Ps 3.2n.). Vv. 6–8 are distinct by their initial verb “I say” and assertions of loyalty to the LORD. Vv. 9–11 reverse the order of previous sections by beginning with a complaint (v. 9a) and ending with a petition (vv. 9b–11). The final section, vv. 12–13, the statement of trust, is marked by

⁴Guard me, O LORD, from the hands of the wicked; protect me from the violent
who have planned my downfall.

⁵The arrogant have hidden a trap for me,
and with cords they have spread a net,^a
along the road they have set snares
for me. Selah

⁶I say to the LORD, "You are my God;
give ear, O LORD, to the voice of my supplications."

⁷O LORD, my Lord, my strong deliverer, you have covered my head in the day of battle.

⁸Do not grant, O LORD, the desires of the
wicked;
do not further their evil plot.^b Selah

⁹Those who surround me lift up their heads;^c
let the mischief of their lips overwhelm
them!

¹⁰Let burning coals fall on them!
Let them be flung into pits, no more to rise!

¹¹Do not let the slanderer be established in
the land;
let evil speedily hunt down the violent!

¹²I know that the LORD maintains the cause of the needy,
and executes justice for the poor.

¹³Surely the righteous shall give thanks to
your name;
the upright shall live in your presence.

Psalm 141

A Psalm of David.

¹I call upon you, O LORD; come quickly to
me;

give ear to my voice when I call to you.

²Let my prayer be counted as incense
before you,
and the lifting up of my hands as an evening sacrifice.

³Set a guard over my mouth, O LORD;
keep watch over the door of my lips.

⁴Do not turn my heart to any evil,
to busy myself with wicked deeds
in company with those who work
iniquity;
do not let me eat of their delicacies.

⁵Let the righteous strike me;
let the faithful correct me.
Never let the oil of the wicked anoint my head,^d
for my prayer is continually^e against their wicked deeds.

⁶When they are given over to those who shall condemn them,
then they shall learn that my words
were pleasant.

⁷Like a rock that one breaks apart and shatters on the land,

^a Or they have spread cords as a net

^b Heb adds they are exalted

^c Cn Compare Gk: Heb those who surround me are uplifted in head; Heb divides verses 8 and 9 differently

^d Gk: Meaning of Heb uncertain

^e Cn: Heb for continually and my prayer

its initial verb I know. 6: I say, shifts from petition to confession that the LORD has been loyal in the past. 7: You have covered my head, you protected my head. 12: I know, shifts back from petition to confession (as in v. 6), affirming God's fidelity as in Jon 4.2; Pss 20.6; 56.9; 135.5. The psalmist wants to be counted among the needy and poor whom the LORD always helps. 13: Surely emphasizes the psalmist's triumphant hope that the righteous will be rescued.

Ps 141: Save me from my own evil impulses and from evil companions. An individual petition. Vv. 1–2 ask God to give special attention to the psalmist's plea, and vv. 3–4 beg to be kept from sin and evil companions (vv. 3–4). Vv. 5–7 are textually uncertain. Vv. 8–10 express total trust in God and hope of future protection. 2: As incense before you, according to Ex 30.6, priests offered incense every morning, and according to Ex 29.38–42, the evening sacrifice was burned at the entrance of the tent of meeting. 3: My mouth, in the Bible, the most expressive human organ is the mouth, for words reveal the inner self, the heart. Acknowledging the perversity of the human heart (cf. Jer 17.5; 23.17), the psalmist asks God to purify that vital organ (cf. Ps 51.10). 4: Eat of their

so shall their bones be strewn at the mouth of Sheol.^a

⁸ But my eyes are turned toward you,
O GOD, my Lord;
in you I seek refuge; do not leave me
defenseless.

⁹ Keep me from the trap that they have laid
for me,
and from the snares of evildoers.

¹⁰ Let the wicked fall into their own nets,
while I alone escape.

Psalm 142

A Maskil of David. When he was in the cave.

A Prayer.

¹ With my voice I cry to the LORD;
with my voice I make supplication to
the LORD.

² I pour out my complaint before him;
I tell my trouble before him.

³ When my spirit is faint,
you know my way.

In the path where I walk
they have hidden a trap for me.

⁴ Look on my right hand and see—
there is no one who takes notice
of me;

no refuge remains to me;
no one cares for me.

⁵ I cry to you, O LORD;
I say, “You are my refuge,
my portion in the land of the living.”

⁶ Give heed to my cry,
for I am brought very low.

Save me from my persecutors,
for they are too strong for me.

⁷ Bring me out of prison,
so that I may give thanks to your name.

The righteous will surround me,
for you will deal bountifully with me.

Psalm 143

A Psalm of David.

¹ Hear my prayer, O LORD; give ear to my supplications in your
faithfulness;
answer me in your righteousness.

² Do not enter into judgment with your
servant,
for no one living is righteous before
you.

^a Meaning of Heb of verses 5-7 is uncertain

delicacies, share their fellowship; cf. Ps 41.9. 7: Some scholars suggest that the words Like a rock that one breaks apart and shatters on the land were accompanied with the ritual shattering of a rock. Sheol, the underworld, the abode of the dead. 10: See Ps 7.15–16n.

Ps 142: Prayer of a friendless person for God's help. An individual petition that proceeds in two stages: the first stage (vv. 1–4) simply lists the peril and danger and declares there is no one else to turn to, and the second (vv. 5–7), with more confidence, calls God “my refuge, my portion in the land of the living” (v. 5) and promises praise. Superscription: Maskil, a technical term of uncertain significance. In the cave, most likely referring to the story of David fleeing from Saul (1 Sam 24). 4: Loyal friends customarily stood at one's right hand (Ps 109.31), but no one is there for the psalmist. 5: For the first time, the psalmist addresses God, using two impressive metaphors that illustrate God's ability to help at this time of crisis. Refuge is elsewhere parallel to mighty rock (Pss 62.7; 91.2; 94.22). Portion means a share in land (cf. Josh 18.5,6,9), which in that agrarian society was the source of food and clothing. You are . . . my portion, cf. Num 18.20. 7: As a motivation for divine help, so that I may give thanks to your name is similar to Ps 86.12; these psalmists assume that God wants to be thanked, and this motivates divine behavior.

Ps 143: A plea that God would act out of fidelity to a loyal servant. An individual petition that requests divine attention and deliverance from enemies, insisting that no person is righteous before God. It is one of the seven penitential psalms in Christian tradition (Pss 6; 32; 38; 51; 102; 130; 143). Though old material has been recycled, Ps 143 is unique, establishing the idea that dealings with God must be based on divine faithfulness and righteousness (vv. 1–2, 10c–12), rather than on human actions. The poetic structure is not easy to determine. “I remember” in v. 5 changes the topic from petition to remembering past times. Verse 7 clearly begins a new section, for each verse in vv. 7–10a begins with a verb in the imperative mood. The final section, vv. 10b–12, is indicated by a shift in syntax: all the verbs except the last are placed at or near the end of the colon (unit). 5:

³For the enemy has pursued me,
crushing my life to the ground,
making me sit in darkness like those long dead.

⁴Therefore my spirit faints within me;
my heart within me is appalled.

⁵I remember the days of old,
I think about all your deeds,
I meditate on the works of your hands.

⁶I stretch out my hands to you;
my soul thirsts for you like a parched land. Selah

⁷Answer me quickly, O LORD;
my spirit fails.
Do not hide your face from me,
or I shall be like those who go down to the Pit.

⁸Let me hear of your steadfast love in the
morning,
for in you I put my trust.
Teach me the way I should go,
for to you I lift up my soul.

⁹Save me, O LORD, from my enemies;
I have fled to you for refuge.^a ¹⁰Teach me to do your will,

for you are my God.
Let your good spirit lead me
on a level path.

¹¹For your name's sake, O LORD, preserve
my life.
In your righteousness bring me out of trouble.

¹²In your steadfast love cut off my enemies,
and destroy all my adversaries,
for I am your servant.

Psalm 144

Of David.

¹Blessed be the LORD, my rock, who trains my hands for war, and my fingers for battle;

²my rock^b and my fortress,
my stronghold and my deliverer,
my shield, in whom I take refuge,
who subdues the peoples^c under
me.

³O LORD, what are human beings that you regard them,
or mortals that you think of them?

⁴They are like a breath;
their days are like a passing shadow.

⁵Bow your heavens, O LORD, and come
down;
touch the mountains so that they
smoke.

⁶Make the lightning flash and scatter
them;
send out your arrows and rout
them.

⁷Stretch out your hand from on high;
set me free and rescue me from the
mighty waters,
from the hand of aliens,

⁸whose mouths speak lies,
and whose right hands are false.

⁹I will sing a new song to you, O God;
upon a ten-stringed harp I will play
to you,

^a One Heb Ms Gk: MT to you I have hidden

^b With 18.2 and 2 Sam 22.2: Heb my steadfast love

^c Heb Mss Syr Aquila Jerome: MT my people

The days of old refers to God's great actions in creation and history; see Ps 77:11–12. 6: Thirsts, see Pss 42.1; 63.1. Selah, see Ps 3.2n. 7: Do not hide your face from me refers to the idea that God on occasion, for no reason, ignores innocent supplicants. The Pit, a synonym for Sheol, the abode of the dead. 8: Morning was an especially propitious time for a good judgment (see Ps 90.14). 11: Since the psalmist is assuming a relationship with God that depends on divine mercy rather than fair judgment of human actions, he evokes God's name (reputation), as in some prophetic literature (e.g., Ezek 20.9) and some psalms (e.g., 23.3).

Ps 144: A royal request for divine assistance. A psalm in which an individual, possibly the king, asks for divine assistance and general peace and security. The manner in which this late psalm quotes other psalms makes it especially difficult to interpret. 1: Blessed be the LORD, a formula for praising God for a beneficial act, in this case for equipping the supplicant, possibly to wage war. 3: Cf. Ps 8.4; Job 7.17. 4: Cf. Pss 102.11; 109.23. 5: The beginning of the verse is taken from 2 Sam 22.10=Ps 18.10. 7: Mighty waters . . . the hand of aliens, a mixture of cosmic language and historic language, the first referring to the waters of chaos and the second to the human

¹⁰ the one who gives victory to kings, who rescues his servant David.
¹¹ Rescue me from the cruel sword,
 and deliver me from the hand of aliens,
 whose mouths speak lies,
 and whose right hands are false.

¹² May our sons in their youth
 be like plants full grown,
 our daughters like corner pillars,
 cut for the building of a palace.

¹³ May our barns be filled,
 with produce of every kind;
 may our sheep increase by thousands,
 by tens of thousands in our fields, ¹⁴ and may our cattle be heavy with young.

May there be no breach in the walls,^a no exile,
 and no cry of distress in our streets.

¹⁵ Happy are the people to whom such blessings fall;
 happy are the people whose God is the LORD.

Psalm 145

Praise. Of David.

¹ I will extol you, my God and King,
 and bless your name forever and ever.

² Every day I will bless you,
 and praise your name forever and ever.

³ Great is the LORD, and greatly to be praised;
 his greatness is unsearchable.

⁴ One generation shall laud your works to
 another,
 and shall declare your mighty acts.

⁵ On the glorious splendor of your majesty, and on your wondrous works, I will meditate.

⁶ The might of your awesome deeds shall be proclaimed,
 and I will declare your greatness.

⁷ They shall celebrate the fame of your abundant goodness,
 and shall sing aloud of your
 righteousness.

⁸ The LORD is gracious and merciful,
 slow to anger and abounding in
 steadfast love.

⁹ The LORD is good to all,
 and his compassion is over all that he has made.

¹⁰ All your works shall give thanks to you,
 O LORD,
 and all your faithful shall bless you.

¹¹ They shall speak of the glory of your kingdom,
 and tell of your power,

¹² to make known to all people your^b mighty deeds,
 and the glorious splendor of your^c
 kingdom.

^a Heb lacks in the walls

^b Gk Jerome Syr: Heb his

^c Heb his

agents of chaotic forces. 9–10: King David was a famous poet and musician; see 1 Sam 16.18; 2 Sam 1.17. 12–15: In an agrarian society, political peace and agricultural fertility go together; this psalm seems to assume a period of distress. This blessing that the psalmist requests would be suitable for a royal psalm since the king protects the land from invaders and blesses its fertility (cf. Ps 72.3–7).

Ps 145: Praise of the goodness of the LORD the king. A hymn ending the Davidic collection (Pss 138–145) and preparing for the hymns (Pss 146–150) that conclude the Psalms in a symphony of praise. This psalm too is an acrostic (see Ps 9–10n.), although the fourteenth letter (“nun”) is missing in the Hebrew text. The singer’s own voice is prominent: “I will extol you, my God” (vv. 1–2) and “My mouth will speak the praise of the LORD” (v. 21). In vv. 3–7, one generation tells the next of the acts of the LORD. V. 8, “the LORD is gracious and merciful,” emphasizes the loving governance behind those acts (vv. 11–13) and the generosity toward human beings (vv. 10–20). The final verse (v. 21) reprises the first. 1: My . . . King, most of the attributes mentioned in the psalm are connected to royalty; this initial reference also points forward to the four occurrences of kingdom in vv. 11–13. 2: Your name, your presence. 4: One generation shall laud your works to another, like the process of education in Ps 78.4 (cf. Ex 13.8,14; Deut 6.20). The children experience the effects of the mighty deeds of old that are constantly renewed. 5: Glory, splendor and majesty are royal qualities that God as king possesses. 8: Citation of the divine attributes in Ex 34.6. 11: Your kingdom, occurs four times at the psalm’s center in vv. 11–13. The contexts

¹³Your kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and your dominion endures throughout all generations.

The LORD is faithful in all his words,
and gracious in all his deeds.^a ¹⁴The LORD upholds all who are falling,

and raises up all who are bowed down.

¹⁵The eyes of all look to you, and you give them their food in due season.

¹⁶You open your hand,
satisfying the desire of every living thing.

¹⁷The LORD is just in all his ways,
and kind in all his doings.

¹⁸The LORD is near to all who call on him,
to all who call on him in truth.

¹⁹He fulfills the desire of all who fear him;
he also hears their cry, and saves them.

²⁰The LORD watches over all who love him,
but all the wicked he will destroy.

²¹My mouth will speak the praise of the LORD,
and all flesh will bless his holy name
forever and ever.

Psalm 146

¹Praise the LORD!
Praise the LORD, O my soul!

²I will praise the LORD as long as I live;
I will sing praises to my God all my life
long.

³Do not put your trust in princes,
in mortals, in whom there is no help.

⁴When their breath departs, they return to
the earth;
on that very day their plans perish.

⁵Happy are those whose help is the God of Jacob,

whose hope is in the LORD their God, ⁶who made heaven and earth,

the sea, and all that is in them;
who keeps faith forever;

⁷who executes justice for the
oppressed;
who gives food to the hungry.

The LORD sets the prisoners free;

⁸the LORD opens the eyes of the blind.

The LORD lifts up those who are bowed
down;

the LORD loves the righteous.

⁹The LORD watches over the strangers;
he upholds the orphan and the widow,
but the way of the wicked he brings to
ruin.

¹⁰The LORD will reign forever,
your God, O Zion, for all generations.
Praise the LORD!

Psalm 147

¹Praise the LORD!
How good it is to sing praises to our God;
for he is gracious, and a song of praise
is fitting.

^a These two lines supplied by Q Ms Gk Syr

make clear that the word means active rule, reigning, rather than static kingdom. 13: Cf. Dan 4.3. 14–16: Cf. Pss 104.27; 146.7–8. 17–18: The word all appears twice in each of these verses, and another three times before the psalm concludes, for a total of seventeen times, emphasizing God's incomparability.

Ps 146: Praise of the LORD, savior of the downtrodden. A hymn, like Pss 147–150; together, these five psalms form the concluding doxology to the entire book of Psalms. Each of these hymns begins and ends with “Hal-lelujah” (traditionally translated “Praise the LORD”). The singer in Ps 146 engages in an inner dialogue (“O my soul!” v. 1b) before addressing the community in v. 3. Such reflection enables the singer to appreciate the vanity of human resources (vv. 3–4) and the compassion of the LORD's governance of the world (vv. 5–9). 5: In contrast to placing one's hopes in human helpers, weak and mortal (vv. 3–4), the psalmist's hopes are in the LORD, already covenanted to Israel, the powerful and just creator and judge (vv. 6–7). 6: Who made heaven and earth, see Ps 124.8n. 7–9: All the LORD's actions here are rescues of beleaguered individuals, inspiring the psalmist to hope and praise for rescues in the future. 9: God's justice is complete; the way of the wicked he brings to ruin, before their plans reach fruition. 10: These aspects of God—creator, righteous judge—are related to his kingship, mentioned explicitly only in the final verse. This connects Pss 145 and 146.

Ps 147: Praise the LORD who restores Jerusalem. The second of the five hymns concluding the Psalms. Each of its three sections (vv. 1–6, 7–11, and 12–20) begins with an invitation in the imperative to praise the LORD and

²The LORD builds up Jerusalem;
 he gathers the outcasts of Israel.
³He heals the brokenhearted,
 and binds up their wounds.
⁴He determines the number of the stars;
 he gives to all of them their names.
⁵Great is our Lord, and abundant in power;
 his understanding is beyond measure.
⁶The LORD lifts up the downtrodden;
 he casts the wicked to the ground.
⁷Sing to the LORD with thanksgiving;
 make melody to our God on the lyre.
⁸He covers the heavens with clouds,
 prepares rain for the earth,
 makes grass grow on the hills.
⁹He gives to the animals their food,
 and to the young ravens when they cry.
¹⁰His delight is not in the strength of the horse,
 nor his pleasure in the speed of a runner;^a ¹¹but the LORD takes pleasure in those who
 fear him,
 in those who hope in his steadfast love.
¹²Praise the LORD, O Jerusalem!
 Praise your God, O Zion!
¹³For he strengthens the bars of your gates;
 he blesses your children within you.
¹⁴He grants peace^b within your borders;
 he fills you with the finest of wheat.

¹⁵He sends out his command to the
 earth;
 his word runs swiftly.
¹⁶He gives snow like wool;
 he scatters frost like ashes.
¹⁷He hurls down hail like crumbs—
 who can stand before his cold?
¹⁸He sends out his word, and melts them;
 he makes his wind blow, and the waters
 flow.
¹⁹He declares his word to Jacob,
 his statutes and ordinances to Israel.
²⁰He has not dealt thus with any other nation;
 they do not know his ordinances.
 Praise the LORD!

Psalms 148

¹Praise the LORD!
 Praise the LORD from the heavens;
 praise him in the heights!
²Praise him, all his angels;
 praise him, all his host!
³Praise him, sun and moon;
 praise him, all you shining stars!
⁴Praise him, you highest heavens,
 and you waters above the heavens!

^a Heb legs of a person

^b Or prosperity

lists the divine acts for which praise is to be given. Vv. 1–6 cite the LORD’s restoration of Jerusalem and gathering of exiles; vv. 7–11 cite the LORD’s control of fertility for the nurture of humans, and vv. 12–20 cite the LORD’s gift to Israel of his powerful word. Written for a scattered, malnourished, and demoralized people, most likely in the exilic or postexilic period, the psalm teaches them how to see divine purpose and give thanks. 4: He determines the number of the stars, creating the heavens and rebuilding Zion are parallel works as in Isa 51:16, for God ensures that the original creation continues. The psalm interprets creation in the manner of Isaiah 40–55. 7–11: Again directing creation to benefit Israel, God promises to restore the devastated lands to provide food. 7: It is unclear if thanksgiving is a sacrifice or verbal thanks. 15: His word, vv. 15–20 have seven terms for the word of God, some repeated: command, word, statutes, ordinances. 19–20: The LORD spoke his word at Sinai and afterward. It made Israel distinctive then (Deut 4.5–8) and does so now, for God has not dealt thus with any other nation (v. 20a). The Torah here is recognized as Israel’s special gift (his ordinances) from God.

Ps 148: Let heaven and earth praise the LORD. The third of the hymns that make up the doxology concluding the Psalms. More formal than the two preceding psalms, it employs the verb “to praise” twelve times, “LORD” four times, and “the name (of the LORD)” three times; it is neatly composed of two almost equal panels, vv. 1–6, introduced by “Praise the LORD from the heavens,” and vv. 7–14, introduced by “Praise the LORD from the earth.” Unlike other hymns, it focuses on the groups invited to praise, the inhabitants of heaven (vv. 1–4), and the inhabitants of earth (vv. 7–12). The divine acts meriting praise are mentioned only briefly: for the first group (vv. 5–6), the motive for giving praise is that the LORD created them and assigned them all their tasks; for the second (v. 13), the motive is that the LORD’s name and glory are exalted above heaven and earth. 3: This may

⁵ Let them praise the name of the LORD, for he commanded and they were created.

⁶ He established them forever and ever;
he fixed their bounds, which cannot be passed.^a

⁷ Praise the LORD from the earth,
you sea monsters and all deeps, ⁸ fire and hail, snow and frost,
stormy wind fulfilling his command!

⁹ Mountains and all hills,
fruit trees and all cedars!
¹⁰ Wild animals and all cattle, creeping things and flying birds!

¹¹ Kings of the earth and all peoples,
princes and all rulers of the earth!
¹² Young men and women alike,
old and young together!

¹³ Let them praise the name of the LORD,
for his name alone is exalted;
his glory is above earth and heaven.

¹⁴ He has raised up a horn for his
people,
praise for all his faithful,
for the people of Israel who are close to him.

Praise the LORD!

Psalm 149

¹ Praise the LORD!
Sing to the LORD a new song, his praise in the assembly of the faithful.

² Let Israel be glad in its Maker;
let the children of Zion rejoice in their King.

³ Let them praise his name with
dancing,
making melody to him with tambourine
and lyre.

⁴ For the LORD takes pleasure in his
people;
he adorns the humble with victory.

⁵ Let the faithful exult in glory;
let them sing for joy on their couches.

⁶ Let the high praises of God be in their throats
and two-edged swords in their hands, ⁷ to execute vengeance on the nations
and punishment on the peoples, ⁸ to bind their kings with fetters
and their nobles with chains of iron, ⁹ to execute on them the judgment decreed.

This is glory for all his faithful ones.
Praise the LORD!

^a Or he set a law that cannot pass away

recall other ancient cultures, in which astral bodies were deities. 5: For he commanded and they were created, the psalm recognizes here and elsewhere the orderly Priestly story of creation by word in Gen 1, emphasizing that God continues to have this role in the universe. 7–8: Somewhat autonomous deities in surrounding cultures, but under God’s strict control here. 14: A horn for his people, a symbol of strength.

Ps 149: Praise for Israel’s task in the world. This fourth hymn in the series of five concluding the Psalms may disturb readers with its apparent call to vengeance against foreigners. Ps 149 develops the ideas of two psalms, the immediately preceding Ps 148, which singles out Israel as having a mission to proclaim the supremacy of the LORD to the nations (Ps 148.14), and Ps 2 (second from the beginning as Ps 149 is second from the last) in which the Davidic king is given authority to subdue the nations. Ps 149 transposes the royal role of Ps 2 to the entire nation (as in Isa 55.3). Ps 149 has two stanzas, vv. 1–4 and 5–9, the first inviting praise for the LORD’s victory and second equating that praise metaphorically with weapons of war against the rebellious kings. 1: New song, as in Isa 42.10 and other psalms (e.g., 33.3; 96.1; 98.1); here in response to creation, for Israel is glad in its Maker (v. 2); the act establishes the kingship of the LORD. In the previous psalm, God as king is creating the universe, while here he creates Israel. 5: On their couches, symbolizes private (in contrast to public) expression as in Pss 4.4; 6.6; 36.4; Hos 7.14. 6: Wielding a sword (and the other military actions in vv. 7–9) is a metaphor for proclaiming the LORD’s sovereignty over kings and nations. The conjunction and makes the statements of v. 6a and 6b into a comparison: praising God is like wielding a sword. Israel has the task of embodying divine sovereignty and rendering it visible in the world. This unmasking false gods and invites the nations to join in God’s praise and recognition of Israel. 7: Vengeance, best rendered “retribution” for the kings’ refusal to recognize their true suzerain. 9: Judgment decreed, the ultimate triumph of the LORD.

PSALM 150

Psalm 150

¹ Praise the LORD!

Praise God in his sanctuary;
praise him in his mighty firmament!^a

² Praise him for his mighty deeds;
praise him according to his surpassing greatness!

³ Praise him with trumpet sound;
praise him with lute and harp!

⁴ Praise him with tambourine and dance;
praise him with strings and pipe!

⁵ Praise him with clanging cymbals;
praise him with loud clashing cymbals!

⁶ Let everything that breathes praise the
LORD!

Praise the LORD!

^a Or dome

Ps 150: Climactic praise for the LORD's total sovereignty. The last of the final five hymns ending the Psalms. All the verses except the final one (v. 6) begin with the same verb in the imperative mood: Praise him . . . ! The verb occurs thirteen times in this final outburst of praise. Each of the first four books of the Psalms ends with a one- or two-verse doxology (Pss 41.13; 72.18–19; 89.52; 106.48), and it is fitting that a whole poem be the final doxology that notes where (v. 1), why (v. 2), and how (vv. 3–5) God should be praised. The invitatory extends throughout the whole poem; the poem is one long invitation to give praise. The group summoned to give praise, whom most psalms name almost immediately, is not revealed until the end, and it is vast: “everything that breathes” (v. 6). It goes beyond Israel to the entire human race, even to animals. The vast reach of the poem is a reminder that the call of one people is made in view of God’s commitment to all.

PROVERBS

NAME AND PLACE IN CANON

In Jewish tradition the Proverbs of Solomon (Heb mishle shelomoh), shortened to Proverbs (mishle), is found in the third division of the canon, the Writings, grouped with Psalms and Job. The order of the books varies in early manuscripts, with Proverbs either after Psalms and Job or sandwiched between them. In Christian Bibles, Proverbs is one of the poetical and wisdom books and is placed between Psalms and Ecclesiastes.

AUTHORSHIP

The book of Proverbs is traditionally attributed to King Solomon (1.1; 10.1; 25.1), who ruled in the mid-tenth century BCE. Although he had a reputation for wisdom (1 Kings 4.29–34), it is unlikely that this is more than a general attribution to lend authority to the collection. The proverbs in the main section (10.1–22.16) have the character of folk wisdom, generated in an oral culture and passed down over many generations. At some point in the preexilic period they were collected and written down, a process that may have taken place at the hands of sages or scribes at the court of a king such as Solomon or Hezekiah (715–687 BCE), who is mentioned in 25.1. Later sections, such as chs 1–9, were probably added by scribes in the attempt to bring the collection together.

LITERARY HISTORY AND DATING

The book of Proverbs is a composite, consisting of several different collections dating from different periods and most likely with different authors. Proverbs 10.1–22.16 (“The proverbs of Solomon”) is the main sayings collection and probably the oldest. Proverbs 25–29 forms a distinct unit of further proverbial material, with some repeats from the main collection (e.g., 21.9 = 25.24) and is dated to the time of Hezekiah. Proverbs 22.17–24.34 (“The words of the wise”) is also a separate collection, which has close connections with an Egyptian wisdom text “The Instruction of Amenemope.” This Egyptian text, which dates to ca. 1100 BCE, was copied by schoolchildren learning to read and write. Proverbs 22.17–23.11 especially may contain evidence of copying from “Amenemope,” suggesting a school context for at least part of the book of Proverbs. Proverbs 25–29 (“Proverbs of Solomon that the officials of King Hezekiah of Judah copied”) is another distinct unit, with some repetitions from the main collection (e.g., 21.9 = 25.24). There are two attributions at the end of the book, to Agur (30.1) and Lemuel (31.1), confirming that Proverbs is essentially a collection of collections. Finally, Proverbs 1–9, which opens the book, is often regarded as its latest part, with a more advanced theology and reflection on the nature of the wisdom, although it no doubt contains older material.

The complex stages of oral and literary development make it difficult to situate the book historically. The major sayings collections are likely preexilic, written down in the ninth or eighth century BCE. Other sections, such as chs 1–9, are later, probably from the exilic or early postexilic period, the sixth and fifth centuries BCE. The book as a whole probably was shaped in the early postexilic period.

CONTENTS AND INTERPRETATION

In chs 1–9, Proverbs presents itself as a handbook of the experience of others designed to offer insight and guidance to any, but especially the young, who seek its advice. The purpose of the book is set out in the introduction (1.2–7), which mentions learning about “wisdom” and “instruction.” Instruction refers both to the educational role of this teaching and to a genre of literature paralleled in Egypt and found in Proverbs 1–9, that of instruction from father and mother to child (1.8; 4.1–4; 6.20–21). There is a moral dimension to this teaching, which includes learning about “righteousness, justice, and equity” (1.3, terms familiar from elsewhere in the Bible), accompanied by a highly practical purpose which includes “shrewdness, knowledge, and prudence” (1.4).

At the climax of the introduction to Proverbs is the idea that “the fear of the LORD is the beginning of knowledge” (1.7; cf. 9.10; 15.33), a sentiment that introduces the divine dimension to the apparently human quest for wisdom. In this phrase is the recognition that at the beginning and end of the quest stands God, who is the author of all wisdom and understanding. Although only a part of this is accessible to human beings (16.1–2,9; 21.30), the person who seeks wisdom will truly gain insight by first fearing the Lord. Wisdom, personified as a woman in chs 1–9, is the mediator of that divine wisdom in her offer of its fruits to human beings (1.20–33;

PROVERBS

8.4–5; 9.5–6), leading them on the path to “life” (3.16–18). The threat to the gaining of wisdom comes from her antithesis, the strange woman (chs 2; 5; 7; 9) whose path leads to death (2.18–19). Woman Wisdom is not just the embodiment of the kind of woman any young man might seek as a wife, but she is also described in cosmic terms as having been present with God during creation (8.22–31). This depiction underscores the underlying theological emphasis of the book of Proverbs on God as creator. God creates the world and sustains it; Woman Wisdom delights in all that he has made (8.30–31). God set up an order in the world and in society that can be known by human beings through wisdom, an order that helps them to lead a virtuous, moral, successful life. The rewards of wise living are longevity, offspring, wealth, the respect of others, and a fulfilled existence. This rather simplistic view of behaving well, and hence automatically reaping wisdom’s rewards, was challenged by the later wisdom books of Job and Ecclesiastes, whose authors argue that experience teaches otherwise.

Although the NRSV translation “my child” opens up the audience to all seekers of wisdom, the Hebrew actually reads “my son,” and the material is essentially addressed to men. They would have been the main recipients of education in the home and in schools. However, this orientation is balanced by reference to the mother’s involvement in the teaching process (1.8; 6.20; cf. 31.1), by the figure of the ideal wife in 31.10–31, and by the two female figures of chs 1–9.

In the body of the book the main literary form for transmitting wisdom is the proverb (1.6), a pithy one- or two-line saying that conveys truth by the use of comparison between unlike phenomena or parallel thoughts that extend understanding. Proverbs occur in two main types: antithetical, and synonymous. Antithetical proverbs provide a contrast in the second line, while synonymous proverbs use the second line to extend the thought of the first. The former type predominates in chs 10–15, while the latter is more frequent from ch 16 onward. Interpreting proverbs is an intellectual discipline, not for the fool (26.7,9), and proverbs that are in tension or even contradictory are sometimes juxtaposed (e.g., 17.27–28; 26.4–5). For the most part the arrangement of proverbs seems random, however, although there are some small thematic clusters (e.g., 25.1–7), and there is some evidence of catchwords, plays on words, alliteration, and assonance in the Hebrew, which may have been aides to memorization. The binary form of proverbs and their perspective on the world are related. There is often a stress on opposite types: the righteous and the wicked, the rich and the poor, the diligent and the lazy, the patient person and the angry one, the restrained speaker and the gossip. This schematic organization of types is matched by the view of divine retribution, whereby the good are rewarded and the wicked punished.

The authors of texts such as Ecclesiasticus (Sirach; early second century BCE) and the Wisdom of Solomon (first century BCE or first century CE) were clearly familiar with Proverbs. For example, Sirach 24 rereads Proverbs 8 by identifying Wisdom with Torah; and the Wisdom of Solomon sees personified Wisdom as a hypostasis of the LORD (e.g., Wis 7.22; 8.2). Fragments of Proverbs were found at Qumran, and a few previously unknown wisdom texts seem to use its imagery (e.g., in 4Q185 the figure of Woman Folly from Prov 5; 7; 9 reappears). Proverbs seems to have influenced the rabbinic wisdom collection Pirque Abot (“The sayings of the Fathers”) in the Mishnah. Early Christians saw Jesus in part as a wisdom teacher (see especially the Q material in the Synoptic Gospels) and employed traditions about personified Wisdom to understand his identity and mission (e.g., Jn 1.1–18; Col 1.15–20). The letter of James in the New Testament contains wisdom instruction, and its author exalts “wisdom from above” (3.13–18), echoing portrayals of Woman Wisdom in Proverbs.

GUIDE TO READING

Despite its heterogeneous nature, the book of Proverbs can be read from beginning to end. The beginning and end of the book are formed by representations of two symbolically related women: personified wisdom (chs 1–9), and the “woman of substance” (31.10–31) who is a human embodiment of Woman Wisdom. Thus, the introductory chapters invite the reader to acquire wisdom. The body of the book provides sustained training in the perceptiveness and values needed to become wise. And the conclusion portrays the fulfillment of living in wisdom’s household.

It is equally appropriate, however, to read each of the different collections independently, appreciating their distinct literary forms and tropes. Indeed, since there seldom seems to be an intentional order to the proverbial sayings, readers may also ponder them individually, thinking about life contexts to which they are applicable. The book of Proverbs invites multiple forms of reading.

Katharine Dell

1 The proverbs of Solomon son of David,
king of Israel:

²For learning about wisdom and instruction,
for understanding words of insight,

³for gaining instruction in wise dealing,
righteousness, justice, and equity;

⁴to teach shrewdness to the simple,
knowledge and prudence to the young—

⁵let the wise also hear and gain in learning,
and the discerning acquire skill,

⁶to understand a proverb and a figure,
the words of the wise and their riddles.

⁷The fear of the LORD is the beginning of
knowledge;
fools despise wisdom and instruction.

⁸Hear, my child, your father's instruction,
and do not reject your mother's teaching;

⁹for they are a fair garland for your head,
and pendants for your neck.

¹⁰My child, if sinners entice you,
do not consent.

¹¹If they say, "Come with us, let us lie in wait for blood;

let us wantonly ambush the innocent;

¹²like Sheol let us swallow them alive and whole, like those who go down to
the Pit.

¹³We shall find all kinds of costly things;
we shall fill our houses with booty.

¹⁴Throw in your lot among us;
we will all have one purse"—

¹⁵my child, do not walk in their way,
keep your foot from their paths;

¹⁶for their feet run to evil,
and they hurry to shed blood.

¹⁷For in vain is the net baited
while the bird is looking on;

¹⁸yet they lie in wait—to kill themselves!
and set an ambush—for their own lives!

¹⁹Such is the end^a of all who are greedy for gain;

^a Gk: Heb are the ways

1.1–7: Introduction. 1: Solomon son of David, king of Israel, King Solomon, successor to his father, David (see 1 Kings 1–11) ruled a united kingdom of Israel in the mid-tenth century BCE. He is famed for his wisdom (1 Kings 4) and his role as Temple builder (1 Kings 6). The latter role is not mentioned here, nor is there much mention of ritual activity in Proverbs. The attribution is probably pseudonymous, though Solomon may have coined some proverbs. His court is a possible setting for the collection of proverbial material and may have witnessed a time of cultural expansion and international connections. 2–6: The instructional purpose of the book; see the Introduction. The address is to the simple and the young, but also to the wise who never cease the learning process. 6: A proverb (see Introduction) . . . figure, an artistic saying or terse poem; riddles, enigmatic puzzles in brief, concentrated form that challenge the reader to find a solution. 7: The divine dimension. Fear of the LORD, i.e., reverence and awe, is a prerequisite for wisdom (9.10; 15.33; 31.30b; Job 28.28; Ps 111.10; Sir 1.14). A contrast is made here between God-fearers and fools, unlike the usual contrast between wise person and fool. Fools have no desire to learn: they are not just unintelligent, but their conduct is unethical.

1.8–19: Parental warning against the enticements of sinners. 8: My child (lit. "my son") could reflect the home educational situation or represent a student in a teacher/pupil relationship in a school setting. Father and mother have parallel teaching roles within the family, at least in the child's early years. The term teaching (Heb "torah") refers here not to law specifically (as frequently elsewhere in the Hebrew Bible) but to wisdom instruction. It is significant that the same term can refer to covenant law, which also contains ethical instruction (as in Deuteronomy). Sirach 24 identifies the two. 9: Fair garland and pendants, wisdom instruction is often associated with adornment (cf. the portrayal of Woman Wisdom as beautifully adorned and yet more valuable than costly jewels in ch 8). Here the metaphor means that the teaching should be an intimate part of one, as if worn on head and neck (cf. 3.22; 4.9; 6.21; 7.3; Job 31.35–36). 12: Sheol . . . the Pit, the abode of the dead (see also 5.5; 7.27; 9.18; 23.27; 27.30; 30.16). Cf. the depiction in Ugaritic mythology of Mot, the god of death, with a vast throat stretching from earth to heaven into which he swallows his victims whole and alive. 15: Way . . . paths, a frequently used image in Proverbs for a life course (e.g., 2.7–20; 3.6,17,23; 8.13,20; 11.5; 28.18). 16: Cf. Isa 59.7. 17–18: The citation of a popular proverb, using animal imagery: if a bird is watching, there is no use in setting a trap for it. Ironically, these wicked but stupid ambushers are both those who set the traps and those who fall into them.

it takes away the life of its possessors.

- ²⁰ Wisdom cries out in the street;
in the squares she raises her voice.
²¹ At the busiest corner she cries out;
at the entrance of the city gates she speaks:
²² “How long, O simple ones, will you love
being simple?
How long will scoffers delight in their scoffing
and fools hate knowledge?
²³ Give heed to my reproof;
I will pour out my thoughts to you;
I will make my words known to you.
²⁴ Because I have called and you refused, have stretched out my hand and no one heeded,
²⁵ and because you have ignored all my counsel
and would have none of my reproof, ²⁶ I also will laugh at your calamity;
I will mock when panic strikes you,
²⁷ when panic strikes you like a storm,
and your calamity comes like a whirlwind,
when distress and anguish come upon
you.
²⁸ Then they will call upon me, but I will not answer;
they will seek me diligently, but will not find me.
²⁹ Because they hated knowledge
and did not choose the fear of the LORD,

- ³⁰ would have none of my counsel,
and despised all my reproof, ³¹ therefore they shall eat the fruit of their way
and be sated with their own devices.
³² For waywardness kills the simple,
and the complacency of fools destroys
them;
³³ but those who listen to me will be secure and will live at ease, without dread of disaster.”

- 2 My child, if you accept my words
and treasure up my commandments
within you,
² making your ear attentive to wisdom and inclining your heart to
understanding;
³ if you indeed cry out for insight,
and raise your voice for
understanding;
⁴ if you seek it like silver,
and search for it as for hidden treasures—
⁵ then you will understand the fear of the LORD
and find the knowledge of God.
⁶ For the LORD gives wisdom;
from his mouth come knowledge and
understanding;
⁷ he stores up sound wisdom for the
upright;
he is a shield to those who walk
blamelessly,

1.20–33: Wisdom personified as a prophet. Wisdom speaks out in the street, the squares, the busiest corner and the city gates, i.e., the hub of city social life where legal decisions were often made (cf. Ruth 4.1). This portrayal has many similarities to the prophetic role (v. 22, cf. Jer 4.14,21; v. 24, cf. Isa 65.2,12; 66.4; Jer 7.13,24–27), and contains a strong, reproof tone (vv. 26–32). Listening and hearing are an important part of the pedagogical relationship in Proverbs. 22: The simple (see 1.4) can learn if inclined to do so, but scoffers and fools are generally beyond hope of instruction (1.7; 15.12; 26.3). 23: Reproof (Heb “tokahat”), also translated as “rebuke” and “admonition,” is a central part of wisdom instruction (e.g., 1.23,30; 3.11; 5.12; 12.1; 15.5,31–32; 29.1). 32–33: The contrast between not listening to Wisdom and heeding her is drawn sharply in these verses: life or death, security or disaster.

2.1–22: The advantages of following wisdom. This poem of 22 lines (the number of letters in the Hebrew alphabet) expresses the benefits of following wisdom in contrast to succumbing to the enticements of a “strange woman” (see v. 16n.) who is loose. The conditional aspect of reaping wisdom’s rewards is stressed by the key-word “if” and a strong note of warning is sounded. 2: Heart denotes not only the seat of the emotions but also the rational center of a person (i.e., the mind; see 4.23). 4: Wisdom is often compared to silver or treasure or other precious metals (3.14–16; 8.10–11,19; Job 28.15–19); the inference is that both are hard to find (hence hidden treasures; contrast 8.1–5 where wisdom’s treasures are openly offered). 5: Fear of the LORD, see 1.7n. 6: Wisdom comes directly from the mouth of God (cf. Sir 24.3). Wis 7.25 makes the close identification of wisdom with God

⁸ guarding the paths of justice and preserving the way of his faithful
ones.
⁹ Then you will understand righteousness and justice
and equity, every good path;
¹⁰ for wisdom will come into your heart, and knowledge will be pleasant to your
soul;
¹¹ prudence will watch over you;
and understanding will guard you.
¹² It will save you from the way of evil,
from those who speak perversely,
¹³ who forsake the paths of uprightness
to walk in the ways of darkness, ¹⁴ who rejoice in doing evil
and delight in the perverseness of evil; ¹⁵ those whose paths are crooked,
and who are devious in their ways.
¹⁶ You will be saved from the loose^a woman,
from the adulteress with her smooth
words,
¹⁷ who forsakes the partner of her youth
and forgets her sacred covenant; ¹⁸ for her way^b leads down to death,
and her paths to the shades;
¹⁹ those who go to her never come back,
nor do they regain the paths of life.
²⁰ Therefore walk in the way of the good,
and keep to the paths of the just.
²¹ For the upright will abide in the land,
and the innocent will remain in it;
²² but the wicked will be cut off from the
land,

and the treacherous will be rooted out
of it.

3 My child, do not forget my teaching,
but let your heart keep my
commandments;
² for length of days and years of life and abundant welfare they will give
you.
³ Do not let loyalty and faithfulness forsake
you;
bind them around your neck,
write them on the tablet of your heart.
⁴ So you will find favor and good repute
in the sight of God and of people.
⁵ Trust in the LORD with all your heart,
and do not rely on your own insight.
⁶ In all your ways acknowledge him,
and he will make straight your paths.
⁷ Do not be wise in your own eyes;
fear the LORD, and turn away from evil.
⁸ It will be a healing for your flesh
and a refreshment for your body.
⁹ Honor the LORD with your substance and with the first fruits of all your produce;
¹⁰ then your barns will be filled with plenty,
and your vats will be bursting with wine.

^a Heb strange

^b Cn: Heb house

into a metaphysical claim. 8: Paths and way (see 1.15n.), a major theme of chs 1–9 is the choice between the path of wisdom, and hence of life, or the path of the loose woman that leads to death (see final summary in vv. 20–22). Paths of justice denotes the righteous behavior God requires. 9: Here the qualities listed in 1.3 are reiterated and associated with every good path (i.e., a range of moral options one might take). 16: Loose, Heb “zarah” (lit. “strange, foreign”); see 5.1–23n.; 7.5; 22.14. Adulteress, Heb “nokriyyah” (lit. “alien” or possibly “foreign” woman); see 5.20; 6.24; 7.5; 23.27. These are parallel terms for the same woman who is essentially “other” and clearly threatens marital life. 17: Sacred covenant (lit. “covenant of her God”) refers to marriage (cf. Mal 2.10–16). 18: The shades, the dead. 19: Never come back, the route to death is a one-way ticket (Job 7.9).

3.1–12: Instruction in the fear of the LORD. 2: Length of days and years of life, longevity is a gift of wisdom (3.18; 8.25; 9.11). 3: Wisdom’s values are to be worn around the neck as an amulet or ornament (cf. Deut 6.6–9 in reference to the commandments of God), i.e., intimately and personally appropriated and written on the tablet of your heart, i.e., memorized and internalized; cf. 3.22; 6.20–21; 7.3. 5: Do not rely on your own insight, not an anti-intellectual admonition but a warning against arrogance. 7b: See 1.7n. 8: In addition to being associated with life (3.2n.) wisdom is also linked with health and healing (4.22; 12.18). 9–10: First fruits, see Ex 23.19; Deut 26.1–11. This is one of the few references in Proverbs to ritual practices (see also 7.14n.). Honoring God in this

¹¹ My child, do not despise the LORD's discipline or be weary of his reproof, ¹² for the LORD reproves the one he loves,
as a father the son in whom he delights.

¹³ Happy are those who find wisdom,
and those who get understanding, ¹⁴ for her income is better than silver,
and her revenue better than gold.

¹⁵ She is more precious than jewels, and nothing you desire can compare with her.

¹⁶ Long life is in her right hand;
in her left hand are riches and honor.

¹⁷ Her ways are ways of pleasantness,
and all her paths are peace.

¹⁸ She is a tree of life to those who lay hold of her;
those who hold her fast are called happy.

¹⁹ The LORD by wisdom founded the earth;
by understanding he established the
heavens;
²⁰ by his knowledge the deeps broke open,
and the clouds drop down the dew.

²¹ My child, do not let these escape from your sight:
keep sound wisdom and prudence,
²² and they will be life for your soul
and adornment for your neck.

²³ Then you will walk on your way securely and your foot will not stumble.

²⁴ If you sit down,^a you will not be afraid;
when you lie down, your sleep will be sweet.

²⁵ Do not be afraid of sudden panic,
or of the storm that strikes the wicked;

²⁶ for the LORD will be your confidence and will keep your foot from being caught.

²⁷ Do not withhold good from those to whom it is due,^b
when it is in your power to do it.

²⁸ Do not say to your neighbor, "Go, and come again,
tomorrow I will give it"—when you have it with you.

²⁹ Do not plan harm against your neighbor
who lives trustingly beside you.

³⁰ Do not quarrel with anyone without
cause,
when no harm has been done to you.

³¹ Do not envy the violent and do not choose any of their ways;

³² for the perverse are an abomination to
the LORD,
but the upright are in his confidence.

^a Gk: Heb lie down

^b Heb from its owners

way leads to future plentiful harvests. 11–12: Suffering is understood here as a sign of God's discipline (Deut 8.5; Ps 94.12–13), a sentiment echoed by the friends of Job (e.g., Job 5.17–18).

3.13–20: A description of Wisdom. 13: Happy are those is a characteristic wisdom formula (8.34; 20.7; 28.14; 29.18; 31.28; Ps 1.1) often called a beatitude (cf. Mt 5.3–11; Lk 6.20–23). Beatitudes extol a virtue or experience by exclaiming how fortunate its possessor is. 14–15: Cf. Job 28.15–19 and see 2.4n. Wisdom transcends all attempts at comparison. 16: The imagery echoes that of the Egyptian goddess Ma'at, who represents right order. She was portrayed with the symbols of life in one hand and of wealth and prestige in the other. 18: Tree of life, a symbol of longevity and well-being, but also a source of eternal life in Gen 2.9; 3.22, from which humans are barred. It is also an Egyptian motif, associated with the sycamore tree. 19–20: This is the first association of wisdom with creation, expanded in 8.22–31. It shows the integral part that wisdom played in the divine creative act. The deeps represent the subterranean waters of chaos over which God has ultimate control (cf. Ps 29.10); the dew, the moisture from above that continues to sustain the earth.

3.21–35: An admonition, six prohibitions and three aphorisms on the fate of righteous and wicked. 22: Cf. v. 3n. 23–26: Along with life (v. 2n.) and health (v. 8n.), security is one of the benefits of wisdom (e.g., 2.11–12; 4.12; 10.25). 25: Do not is the language of prohibition, used six times in succession here in short, proverbial-type sentences. Sudden panic is usually associated with unexpected disaster (cf. 1.26–27). 27–28: The language suggests that the issue concerns loans and their repayment (cf. 6.1–5; 11.24). 31: Envy of the violent may spring from their seeming prosperity. 32: Abomination to the LORD has a special meaning in Proverbs in reference of moral offenses that God finds loathsome, often concerning falsity in speech, thought, or words.

³³The LORD's curse is on the house of the wicked,
but he blesses the abode of the righteous.

³⁴Toward the scorners he is scornful,
but to the humble he shows favor.

³⁵The wise will inherit honor,
but stubborn fools, disgrace.

4 Listen, children, to a father's instruction, and be attentive, that you may gain^a insight;

²For I give you good precepts:
do not forsake my teaching.

³When I was a son with my father,
tender, and my mother's favorite,

⁴he taught me, and said to me,

"Let your heart hold fast my words;
keep my commandments, and live.

⁵Get wisdom; get insight: do not forget, nor turn away
from the words of my mouth.

⁶Do not forsake her, and she will keep you;
love her, and she will guard you.

⁷The beginning of wisdom is this: Get
wisdom,
and whatever else you get, get insight.

⁸Prize her highly, and she will exalt you;
she will honor you if you embrace her.

⁹She will place on your head a fair garland;
she will bestow on you a beautiful crown."

¹⁰Hear, my child, and accept my words,
that the years of your life may be many.

¹¹I have taught you the way of wisdom;
I have led you in the paths of
uprightness.

¹²When you walk, your step will not be hampered;

and if you run, you will not stumble.

¹³Keep hold of instruction; do not let go;
guard her, for she is your life.

¹⁴Do not enter the path of the wicked,
and do not walk in the way of evildoers.

¹⁵Avoid it; do not go on it;
turn away from it and pass on.

¹⁶For they cannot sleep unless they have done wrong;
they are robbed of sleep unless they have made someone stumble.

¹⁷For they eat the bread of wickedness and drink the wine of violence.

¹⁸But the path of the righteous is like the light of dawn,
which shines brighter and brighter until full day.

¹⁹The way of the wicked is like deep
darkness;
they do not know what they stumble
over.

²⁰My child, be attentive to my words;
incline your ear to my sayings.

²¹Do not let them escape from your sight;
keep them within your heart.

²²For they are life to those who find them,
and healing to all their flesh.

²³Keep your heart with all vigilance,
for from it flow the springs of life.

²⁴Put away from you crooked speech,
and put devious talk far from you.

²⁵Let your eyes look directly forward,
and your gaze be straight before you.

²⁶Keep straight the path of your feet,
and all your ways will be sure.

²⁷Do not swerve to the right or to the left;
turn your foot away from evil.

^a Heb know

4.1–9: Get wisdom, get insight. The father's instruction is now emphasized, and he recalls his instruction from his own father (v. 3). The message passed down from generation to generation remains the same: "Get wisdom, get insight" (vv. 5,7). 6–8: Love . . . embrace suggests the metaphor of wisdom as the beloved wife (cf. 5.15–20; 7.4; 31.20–31). 9: See 1.9n.

4.10–27: The two paths. The father's instruction continues with the image of two alternate paths: that of wisdom/righteousness or that of the wicked. It is a common image in the book (1.15–6; 2.7–20; 3.6,17,23; 5.5,21; 6.23; 7.25; 8.13,20,32; 9.6; 10.9; 11.5; 16.17; 28.6). 18–19: In keeping with the binary way of understanding reality common in Proverbs, the ways of righteous and wicked are compared to light and dark. 24: Crooked speech is the dark side of Proverbs' emphasis on proper speech and speech ethics. 25–27: What is straight is an image of righteousness and correct conduct. The contrast between crooked and straight is a fundamental metaphor in the wisdom tradition (cf. 8.8–9).

5 My child, be attentive to my wisdom;
 incline your ear to my understanding, ²so that you may hold on to prudence,
 and your lips may guard knowledge.
³For the lips of a loose^a woman drip honey,
 and her speech is smoother than oil; ⁴but in the end she is bitter as wormwood,
 sharp as a two-edged sword.
⁵Her feet go down to death;
 her steps follow the path to Sheol.
⁶She does not keep straight to the path of
 life;
 her ways wander, and she does not know it.

⁷And now, my child,^b listen to me,
 and do not depart from the words of my
 mouth.

⁸Keep your way far from her,
 and do not go near the door of her
 house;

⁹or you will give your honor to others,
 and your years to the merciless, ¹⁰and strangers will take their fill of your wealth,
 and your labors will go to the house of an alien;

¹¹and at the end of your life you will groan, when your flesh and body are
 consumed,

¹²and you say, “Oh, how I hated discipline, and my heart despised reproof!”

¹³I did not listen to the voice of my teachers
 or incline my ear to my instructors.

¹⁴Now I am at the point of utter ruin
 in the public assembly.”

¹⁵Drink water from your own cistern, flowing water from your own well.

¹⁶Should your springs be scattered abroad,
 streams of water in the streets?

¹⁷Let them be for yourself alone,
 and not for sharing with strangers.

¹⁸Let your fountain be blessed,
 and rejoice in the wife of your youth,
¹⁹a lovely deer, a graceful doe.
 May her breasts satisfy you at all times;
 may you be intoxicated always by her
 love.

²⁰Why should you be intoxicated, my son,
 by another woman
 and embrace the bosom of an adulteress?

²¹For human ways are under the eyes of
 the LORD,
 and he examines all their paths.

²²The iniquities of the wicked ensnare them, and they are caught in the toils of their sin.

²³They die for lack of discipline, and because of their great folly they are lost.

6 My child, if you have given your pledge to your neighbor,
 if you have bound yourself to another,^c

^a Heb strange

^b Gk Vg: Heb children

^c Or a stranger

5.1–23: Avoid the temptations of the loose woman. The antithesis to woman Wisdom is the loose or strange woman (Heb “zarah,” vv. 3,20a) who is also described as an adulteress (Heb “nokriyyah,” v. 20b; lit., “alien”). Since the Heb words literally mean “strange” and “foreign,” the terminology may reflect the postexilic prohibition of marriage to foreign women (Ezra 9–10; Neh 13.23–30). See 2.16n. Probably a prostitute, she may also be another man’s wife (7.19). She is aligned with the path of the wicked which is ultimately the path to death (v. 5). 3: Smooth speech, like crooked talk (4.24n.) is another dark side of speech. 4: Wormwood, an extremely bitter and poisonous herbal extract. 5: Sheol, the abode of the dead; see 1.12n. 9: Probably a reference to the young man’s youthful, sexual vigor, wasted on a union that will bear no fruit. 10: Probably a reference to loss of earnings: prostitutes are expensive! 14: Ruin in the public assembly, public shame was a strong deterrent and was used for social control (cf. Ezra 10.8). 15–16: Water is a euphemism for sexual activity (cf. Song 4.12b,15). Your own cistern and well refer to “your wife” as the source of that water. Springs refer to male sexual activity, which is wasted in this context, with water in the streets possibly indicating offspring outside marriage. 18–19: Exhortation to rejoice in sexual intimacy with one’s own wife. Fountain refers to her sexual organs, seen as the property of her husband, and possibly to the offspring that will ensue. Comparing a lover to deer or doe, cf. Song 2.9,17; 4.5. 22–23: The metaphor represents humans as game animals and folly and sin as hidden, fatal traps that require discipline (Heb “musar”; 1.23n.) to avoid. Cf. 1.17–18.

- ² you are snared by the utterance of your lips,^a caught by the words of your mouth.
- ³ So do this, my child, and save yourself,
 for you have come into your neighbor's
 power:
 go, hurry,^b and plead with your
 neighbor.
- ⁴ Give your eyes no sleep
 and your eyelids no slumber;
- ⁵ save yourself like a gazelle from the hunter,^c
 like a bird from the hand of the fowler.
- ⁶ Go to the ant, you lazybones;
 consider its ways, and be wise.
- ⁷ Without having any chief
 or officer or ruler,
- ⁸ it prepares its food in summer,
 and gathers its sustenance in
 harvest.
- ⁹ How long will you lie there, O lazybones?
 When will you rise from your sleep?
- ¹⁰ A little sleep, a little slumber,
 a little folding of the hands to rest,
- ¹¹ and poverty will come upon you like a robber,
 and want, like an armed warrior.
- ¹² A scoundrel and a villain
 goes around with crooked speech, ¹³ winking the eyes, shuffling the feet,
 pointing the fingers,
- ¹⁴ with perverted mind devising evil,
 continually sowing discord;
- ¹⁵ on such a one calamity will descend
 suddenly;
 in a moment, damage beyond repair.
- ¹⁶ There are six things that the LORD
 hates,
 seven that are an abomination to
 him:
- ¹⁷ haughty eyes, a lying tongue,
 and hands that shed innocent blood,
- ¹⁸ a heart that devises wicked plans,
 feet that hurry to run to evil,
- ¹⁹ a lying witness who testifies falsely,
 and one who sows discord in a family.
- ²⁰ My child, keep your father's commandment,
 and do not forsake your mother's teaching.
- ²¹ Bind them upon your heart always;
 tie them around your neck.
- ²² When you walk, they^d will lead you;
 when you lie down, they^d will watch
 over you;
 and when you awake, they^d will talk
 with you.
- ²³ For the commandment is a lamp and the teaching a light,
 and the reproofs of discipline are the way of life,
- ²⁴ to preserve you from the wife of another,^e
 from the smooth tongue of the
 adulteress.
- ²⁵ Do not desire her beauty in your
 heart,
- ^a Cn Compare Gk Syr: Heb the words of your mouth
^b Or humble yourself
^c Cn: Heb from the hand
^d Heb it
^e Gk: MT the evil woman

6.1–19: Practical admonitions. 1–5: The dangers of acting as a surety or guarantor for another who is borrowing money because he is in debt (cf. 11.15; 17.18; 20.16; 22.26–27). 5: See 5.22–23n. Admonition to extricate oneself, however debasing or difficult it may seem, suggests the seriousness of the danger. 6–11: Didactic comparison with plants or animals is a common technique in wisdom literature (cf. 30.15–19; 24–31; see also Judg 9.5–8; 1 Kings 4.33–34). Laziness is a frequent topic in Proverbs (cf. 10.26; 18.9; 20.4,13; 22.13; 24.30–34; 26.13–16). 12–15: Warnings against worthless and unsavory types. 12: Crooked speech indicates deceitful talk. 13: Winking the eyes, shuffling the feet, and pointing the fingers are forms of body language that indicate character. 16–19: A numerical saying (cf. 30.18–21; Am 1.3–2.8) concerning seven vices disliked by the LORD. Abomination, see 3.32n.

6.20–35: The dangers of adultery. 20: Father and mother, see 1.8n. 21: For the idea of binding and tying the teachings to the body, cf. 3.3n.; Deut 6.6–8. 23: The importance of discipline is a favorite theme of the wise. 24–29: The wife of another, i.e., an adulteress, is the subject here. A contrast is made (v. 26) between a mere and do not let her capture you with her eyelashes;

²⁶ for a prostitute's fee is only a loaf of bread,^a
 but the wife of another stalks a man's very life.
²⁷ Can fire be carried in the bosom
 without burning one's clothes?
²⁸ Or can one walk on hot coals
 without scorching the feet?
²⁹ So is he who sleeps with his neighbor's wife;
 no one who touches her will go
 unpunished.
³⁰ Thieves are not despised who steal only to satisfy their appetite when they are hungry.
³¹ Yet if they are caught, they will pay
 sevenfold;
 they will forfeit all the goods of their
 house.
³² But he who commits adultery has no
 sense;
 he who does it destroys himself.
³³ He will get wounds and dishonor,
 and his disgrace will not be wiped away.
³⁴ For jealousy arouses a husband's fury, and he shows no restraint when he takes revenge.
³⁵ He will accept no compensation, and refuses a bribe no matter how great.

keep my teachings as the apple of your eye;
³ bind them on your fingers,
 write them on the tablet of your heart.
⁴ Say to wisdom, "You are my sister,"
 and call insight your intimate friend,
⁵ that they may keep you from the loose^b
 woman,
 from the adulteress with her smooth
 words.
⁶ For at the window of my house
 I looked out through my lattice,
⁷ and I saw among the simple ones,
 I observed among the youths,
 a young man without sense,
⁸ passing along the street near her corner,
 taking the road to her house
⁹ in the twilight, in the evening, at the time of night and darkness.
¹⁰ Then a woman comes toward him, decked out like a prostitute, wily of heart.^c ¹¹ She is loud and wayward;
 her feet do not stay at home;
¹² now in the street, now in the squares,
 and at every corner she lies in wait.
¹³ She seizes him and kisses him,
 and with impudent face she says to him:
¹⁴ "I had to offer sacrifices,
 and today I have paid my vows;

7 My child, keep my words and store up my commandments with
 you;
² keep my commandments and live,

^a Cn Compare Gk Syr Vg Tg: Heb for because of a harlot to a piece of bread
^b Heb strange
^c Meaning of Heb uncertain

prostitute and the social harm caused by succumbing to another man's wife. This suggests that the issue was not simply sexual conduct itself but the danger posed to the social system—including the system of inheritance—by adultery, which could result in uncertainty about paternity. 30–31: The comparison is made with thieves for whom punishment for a seemingly minor crime is quite extensive, including forfeiture of property. 32–35: For the adulterer retribution is worse and inescapable. In Lev 20.10 adultery is explicitly a capital crime; Proverbs seems to be aware of this (see v. 26), but focuses on the emotions and personal revenge of the cuckolded husband.

7.1–27: Another warning against the loose woman. 2–3: Apple of your eye, i.e., pupil. The triad of eye, fingers, and heart denotes the whole person. Binding on fingers and writing on the tablet of your heart recalls Deuteronomic exhortations about the law (Deut 6.8; 11.18); cf. 3.3n. 4: Sister here does not imply kinship, but is a conventional term of endearment for the beloved (Song 4.9–12; 5.1). Intimate friend could be male or female, and the envisaged relationship is an egalitarian one. 6–23: A seduction by the loose woman is described in narrative form. 10: It is not clear whether the woman is a prostitute or simply dressed as one. Since she is married (vv. 19–20), the act is clearly one of adultery (cf. 6.24–35). 11: Loud, also characteristic of folly in 9.13. 12: Street,

¹⁵so now I have come out to meet you,
to seek you eagerly, and I have found
you!

¹⁶I have decked my couch with coverings,
colored spreads of Egyptian linen;

¹⁷I have perfumed my bed with myrrh,
aloes, and cinnamon.

¹⁸Come, let us take our fill of love until
morning;
let us delight ourselves with love.

¹⁹For my husband is not at home;
he has gone on a long journey.

²⁰He took a bag of money with him;
he will not come home until full moon.”

²¹With much seductive speech she persuades him;
with her smooth talk she compels him.

²²Right away he follows her,
and goes like an ox to the slaughter,
or bounds like a stag toward the trap^a ²³until an arrow pierces its entrails.
He is like a bird rushing into a snare,
not knowing that it will cost him his life.

²⁴And now, my children, listen to me,
and be attentive to the words of my
mouth.

²⁵Do not let your hearts turn aside to her
ways;
do not stray into her paths.

²⁶For many are those she has laid low,
and numerous are her victims.

²⁷Her house is the way to Sheol,
going down to the chambers of death.

8 Does not wisdom call,
and does not understanding raise her
voice?

²On the heights, beside the way,
at the crossroads she takes her stand;

³beside the gates in front of the town,
at the entrance of the portals she cries
out:

⁴“To you, O people, I call,
and my cry is to all that live.

⁵O simple ones, learn prudence;
acquire intelligence, you who lack it.

⁶Hear, for I will speak noble things, and from my lips will come what is
right;

⁷for my mouth will utter truth;
wickedness is an abomination to my lips.

⁸All the words of my mouth are righteous;
there is nothing twisted or crooked in
them.

⁹They are all straight to one who understands
and right to those who find
knowledge.

¹⁰Take my instruction instead of silver,
and knowledge rather than choice gold;

¹¹for wisdom is better than jewels, and all that you may desire cannot compare with her.

¹²I, wisdom, live with prudence,^b and I attain knowledge and discretion.

¹³The fear of the LORD is hatred of evil.

^a Cn Compare Gk: Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Meaning of Heb uncertain

squares, corner, also spaces where wisdom is found in 1.20. The seductive woman is her polar opposite. 14: The act of offering sacrifices and vows could suggest that this woman was participating in a non-Israelite fertility ritual, although an Israelite worship situation is possible (cf. Lev 7.16). 17: Myrrh is an aromatic resin; aloes and cinnamon are expensive aromatic spices imported from Arabia and South Asia. Their mention creates an atmosphere of expensive lushness (cf. Song 1.13; 3.6; 4.6,11,14–16; 5.5,13). 21: Seductive speech and smooth talk (cf. 2.16) are part of the repertoire of negative and dangerous forms of speech Proverbs warns against (see 4.24n.). 22–27: The emphasis on the “strange woman’s” inexorable pull toward death heightens her stark opposition to Wisdom, personified as a woman who offers life (3.16; 8.35–36). 27: Sheol, the abode of the dead. Sheol was thought to have many chambers (probably seven), of which the “depths” was the worst (cf. 9.18).

8.1–36: Woman Wisdom calls (cf. Sir 24.1–34; Wis 7.22–8.1). This chapter contains the most profoundly developed depiction of Woman Wisdom in Proverbs, especially vv. 22–31 where she is aligned with God at creation. 1–5: Public address of Wisdom to all people; cf. 1.20–33, and especially to those who need to learn prudence and intelligence. 6–9: Woman Wisdom is the antithesis to the loose woman and her deceptively smooth speech (2.16; 5.3; 7.21): she utters truth, and righteous and straight words. 10–11: See 2.4n. Wisdom is more valuable than any precious metals or jewels (cf. v. 19; 2.4; Job 28.15–19). 13: Fear of the LORD, see 1.7n. The divine

Pride and arrogance and the way of evil and perverted speech I hate.

¹⁴ I have good advice and sound wisdom;
I have insight, I have strength.

¹⁵ By me kings reign,
and rulers decree what is just;

¹⁶ by me rulers rule,
and nobles, all who govern rightly.

¹⁷ I love those who love me, and those who seek me diligently find
me.

¹⁸ Riches and honor are with me,
enduring wealth and prosperity.

¹⁹ My fruit is better than gold, even fine
gold,
and my yield than choice silver.

²⁰ I walk in the way of righteousness,
along the paths of justice,

²¹ endowing with wealth those who love
me,
and filling their treasuries.

²² The LORD created me at the beginning^a of his work,^b
the first of his acts of long ago.

²³ Ages ago I was set up, at the first, before the beginning of the
earth.

²⁴ When there were no depths I was brought forth,
when there were no springs abounding
with water.

²⁵ Before the mountains had been shaped,

before the hills, I was brought forth—²⁶ when he had not yet made earth and fields,^c

or the world's first bits of soil.

²⁷ When he established the heavens, I was there,
when he drew a circle on the face of the deep,

²⁸ when he made firm the skies above, when he established the fountains of the deep,

²⁹ when he assigned to the sea its limit,
so that the waters might not transgress
his command,

when he marked out the foundations of
the earth,

³⁰ then I was beside him, like a master worker;^d

and I was daily his^e delight, rejoicing before him always,

³¹ rejoicing in his inhabited world
and delighting in the human race.

³² "And now, my children, listen to me:
happy are those who keep my
ways.

^a Or me as the beginning

^b Heb way

^c Meaning of Heb uncertain

^d Another reading is little child

^e Gk: Heb lacks his dimension is introduced and it is clear that this figure and God are at one in their opposition to evil. 15–16: Her authority is that by which kings reign. For the close association between wisdom and just rule see also 16.10,13; 20.26,28; 25.1–7; 28.2–3,15–16; 29.2,12,14,16,26; 30.27–31; 31.1–9. Solomon's prayer for wisdom (1 Kings 3.7–9), his wise judgment (1 Kings 3.16–29), and administrative skill (1 Kings 4) are narrative examples of this idea. 17: In contrast to Job 28, which represents wisdom as hidden and elusive, Proverbs emphasizes the responsiveness and accessibility of wisdom to those who love and seek her; cf. Sir 4.14; Wis 6.12–13. The relationship is two-way: Wisdom will respond to those who love me. 18–21: The word translated prosperity in v. 18 and righteousness in v. 20 is the same in Hebrew ("tsedaqah"). In general the wisdom tradition believed that moral well-being led to material well-being, though the "better than" sayings (e.g., 16.8) stress the superiority of moral values. 21: Following Wisdom leads to material wealth; the wise are ever pragmatic. 22–31: Wisdom recounts her origins as created by God before the physical world came into being and her role as God's helper in creation (cf. Sir 1.4; 24.9). God's ordered creation of the world is then described. 22: Created, the proper translation of the Heb word ("qanah") is debated, but "acquired" (see 4.5,7) or "engendered, conceived" (Gen 4.1) are also possible. 23: Set up, the same term used in Ps 2.6 for the Israelite king. 24–29: An account of creation; cf. Gen 1; Job 28.25–27; 38.4–11; Ps 104.5–9. 30: The word translated master worker or "little child" (see textual note d) suggests either an actual role for Wisdom in setting up the world or an image related to the sense of delight expressed in v. 30b. Comparisons have been made with the Egyptian goddess Ma'at, daughter of the creator god Amun Re, who is sometimes depicted as a little child playing on his lap. 32–36: The life . . . death contrast is a fundamental trope in Proverbs. See 2.18–19; 3.2,16–18; 4.4,13; 5.5–6; 7.27; 9.11; 11.19; etc.

- ³³Hear instruction and be wise,
and do not neglect it.
³⁴Happy is the one who listens to me,
watching daily at my gates,
waiting beside my doors.
³⁵For whoever finds me finds life
and obtains favor from the LORD;
³⁶but those who miss me injure themselves;
all who hate me love death.”

- 9 Wisdom has built her house,
she has hewn her seven pillars.
²She has slaughtered her animals, she has mixed her wine,
she has also set her table.
³She has sent out her servant-girls, she calls
from the highest places in the town,
⁴“You that are simple, turn in here!”
To those without sense she says,
⁵“Come, eat of my bread
and drink of the wine I have mixed.
⁶Lay aside immaturity,^a and live,
and walk in the way of insight.”
- ⁷Whoever corrects a scoffer wins abuse;
whoever rebukes the wicked gets hurt.
⁸A scoffer who is rebuked will only hate
you;
the wise, when rebuked, will love you.
⁹Give instruction^b to the wise, and they will become wiser still;
teach the righteous and they will gain in
learning.

- ¹⁰The fear of the LORD is the beginning of
wisdom,
and the knowledge of the Holy One is
insight.
¹¹For by me your days will be multiplied,
and years will be added to your life.
¹²If you are wise, you are wise for
yourself;
if you scoff, you alone will bear it.
- ¹³The foolish woman is loud;
she is ignorant and knows nothing.
¹⁴She sits at the door of her house,
on a seat at the high places of the town, ¹⁵calling to those who pass by,
who are going straight on their way,
¹⁶“You who are simple, turn in here!”
And to those without sense she says, ¹⁷“Stolen water is sweet,
and bread eaten in secret is pleasant.”
¹⁸But they do not know that the dead^c are
there,
that her guests are in the depths of Sheol.

- 10 The proverbs of Solomon.
A wise child makes a glad father,
but a foolish child is a mother’s grief.

^a Or simpleness

^b Heb lacks instruction

^c Heb shades

9.1–18: Wisdom’s banquet. The tension between invitations to a banquet given by Wisdom and one given by the foolish woman (v. 13; Heb “eshet kesilut,” a variant on the loose woman), is developed here, with a section of aphorisms contrasting scoffers with the wise dividing the two calls (vv. 7–12). 1: Seven pillars may allude simply to the pillars of Wisdom’s house or may suggest the pillars on which the earth was founded (Job 9.6; 26.11; Ps 75.3; cf. 8.29–30). The number seven denotes completeness. 2: Slaughtered her animals and mixed her wine suggests a feast. Wine was sometimes mixed with spices (cf. Song 8.2). 4: Her call is to the simple, meaning the untutored rather than simpletons, and to those without sense, who are clearly susceptible to seduction (cf. v. 16 in reference to the foolish woman’s charms). 7–9: Proverbs uses several different terms to contrast with the wise. The scoffer is characterized by arrogance and self-absorption (21.24) and hence lacks the receptiveness to correction displayed by the wise (cf. 13.1; 15.12). 10: Fear of the LORD, see 1.7n. 17: Stolen water is probably a euphemism for illicit sex (see 5.15–16n.). 18: This woman’s banquet (like that of the loose woman, 2.18–19; 5.5; 7.27) entertains the dead in the deepest chamber of Sheol (see 7.27n.).

10.1–22.16: Proverbial sayings. A long series of separate two-line sayings, sometimes connected by catchwords and thematic associations or forming small clusters. Most probably originally circulated orally. Opposites such as wise and foolish, righteous and wicked are frequently juxtaposed. Antithetic parallelism, in which the second line restates the first line in an opposite way, is used more frequently in chs 10–15, while 16–22 favor synonymous or synthetic parallelism, in which the second line repeats or extends the thought of the first. 10.1:

²Treasures gained by wickedness do not profit,
but righteousness delivers from death.

³The LORD does not let the righteous go hungry,
but he thwarts the craving of the wicked.

⁴A slack hand causes poverty,
but the hand of the diligent makes rich.

⁵A child who gathers in summer is prudent,
but a child who sleeps in harvest brings shame.

⁶Blessings are on the head of the righteous,
but the mouth of the wicked conceals violence.

⁷The memory of the righteous is a blessing,
but the name of the wicked will rot.

⁸The wise of heart will heed commandments,
but a babbling fool will come to ruin.

⁹Whoever walks in integrity walks securely,
but whoever follows perverse ways will be found out.

¹⁰Whoever winks the eye causes trouble,
but the one who rebukes boldly makes peace.^a ¹¹The mouth of the righteous is a fountain of life,

but the mouth of the wicked conceals violence.

¹²Hatred stirs up strife,
but love covers all offenses.

¹³On the lips of one who has understanding wisdom is found, but a rod is for the back of one who lacks sense.

¹⁴The wise lay up knowledge,
but the babbling of a fool brings ruin near.

¹⁵The wealth of the rich is their fortress;
the poverty of the poor is their ruin.

¹⁶The wage of the righteous leads to life,
the gain of the wicked to sin.

¹⁷Whoever heeds instruction is on the path to life,
but one who rejects a rebuke goes astray.

¹⁸Lying lips conceal hatred,
and whoever utters slander is a fool.

¹⁹When words are many, transgression is not lacking,
but the prudent are restrained in speech.

²⁰The tongue of the righteous is choice silver;
the mind of the wicked is of little worth.

²¹The lips of the righteous feed many,
but fools die for lack of sense.

²²The blessing of the LORD makes rich,
and he adds no sorrow with it.^b

²³Doing wrong is like sport to a fool,
but wise conduct is pleasure to a person of understanding.

²⁴What the wicked dread will come upon them,

^a Gk: Heb but a babbling fool will come to ruin

^b Or and toil adds nothing to it

Proverbs of Solomon, see Introduction. This proverb (cf. 15.20) links with the parental instruction found in chs 1–9 (e.g., 1.8) and acts as a bridge between the two sections. The effects of wise and foolish children is a frequent topic; cf. v. 5; 13.1; 15.20; 17.21,25; 19.13,26. 2–3: Affirmation of the doctrine of divine retribution whereby the righteous are rewarded and the wicked punished; cf. 3.2,16; 9.11; 10.27; 13.12. Other proverbs complicate this doctrine of divine reward and punishment (e.g., 15.16; 16.8), and the books of Job and Ecclesiastes challenge it profoundly. 4–5: Laziness is a major theme of Proverbs: it leads directly to poverty, while diligence leads to material prosperity (cf. 6.6–11; 12.24,27; 13.4; 15.19). 7: The remembering of one’s name and deeds by children and community is a sign of blessing in biblical and Jewish tradition. 8: Numerous proverbs in this chapter address the topic of the power of speech for good or ill. See vv. 11,13–14,18–21,31–32. The topic is prominent throughout Proverbs, e.g., 2.12; 12.13–14,17–19,22–23; 13.3; 22.14; 24.26; 25.15; 26.28; 31.26. 9: Walks . . . ways, see 1.15n. 10: He who winks the eye is not to be trusted as it suggests covert activity (cf. 6.13). 11: Four things are said to be a fountain of life in this section: the teaching of the wise (13.14), revering the LORD (14.27), Wisdom (16.22), and here, the mouth of the righteous, i.e., their speech. 15–16: Verse 15 is a neutral observation about the reality of wealth and poverty; v. 16 adds ethical comments on the gain of the wicked. Cf. 11.28 and 18.11, where the protection of wealth is declared to be illusory. 18–21: See v. 8n. Different parts of the mouth are featured to reiter-

but the desire of the righteous will be granted.

²⁵ When the tempest passes, the wicked are no more,
but the righteous are established forever.

²⁶ Like vinegar to the teeth, and smoke to the eyes,
so are the lazy to their employers.

²⁷ The fear of the LORD prolongs life,
but the years of the wicked will be short.

²⁸ The hope of the righteous ends in gladness,
but the expectation of the wicked comes to nothing.

²⁹ The way of the LORD is a stronghold for the upright,
but destruction for evildoers.

³⁰ The righteous will never be removed,
but the wicked will not remain in the land.

³¹ The mouth of the righteous brings forth wisdom,
but the perverse tongue will be cut off.

³² The lips of the righteous know what is acceptable,
but the mouth of the wicked what is perverse.

11 A false balance is an abomination to the LORD,
but an accurate weight is his delight.

² When pride comes, then comes disgrace;
but wisdom is with the humble.

³ The integrity of the upright guides them,
but the crookedness of the treacherous destroys them.

⁴ Riches do not profit in the day of wrath,
but righteousness delivers from death.

⁵ The righteousness of the blameless keeps their ways straight,
but the wicked fall by their own wickedness.

⁶ The righteousness of the upright saves them,
but the treacherous are taken captive by their schemes.

⁷ When the wicked die, their hope perishes,
and the expectation of the godless comes to nothing.

⁸ The righteous are delivered from trouble,
and the wicked get into it instead.

⁹ With their mouths the godless would destroy their neighbors,
but by knowledge the righteous are delivered.

¹⁰ When it goes well with the righteous, the city rejoices;
and when the wicked perish, there is jubilation.

¹¹ By the blessing of the upright a city is exalted,
but it is overthrown by the mouth of the wicked.

¹² Whoever belittles another lacks sense,
but an intelligent person remains silent.

¹³ A gossip goes about telling secrets,
but one who is trustworthy in spirit keeps a confidence.

¹⁴ Where there is no guidance, a nation^a falls,
but in an abundance of counselors there is safety.

¹⁵ To guarantee loans for a stranger brings trouble,
but there is safety in refusing to do so.

¹⁶ A gracious woman gets honor,
but she who hates virtue is covered with shame.^b

^a Or an army

^b Compare Gk Syr: Heb lacks but she . . . shame

ate the need for restraint. 24: See vv. 2–3n. 25: The tempest may represent divine judgment (e.g., 1.27; Isa 21.2; 29.6; 66.15; Ps 83.16). 26: See 6.6–11n. 27: The fear of the LORD, see 1.7n and 3.2n. 28–30: See vv. 2–3n. 31–32: See v. 8n. 11.1: Weights and balances and their misuse is another recurring theme in Proverbs (see 16.11; 20.10,23; cf. Lev 19.35–37; Deut 25.13–16). 2: The humble are closely associated with the wise (15.33; 18.12; 22.4; Sir 3.17–24). 3: The wisdom tradition often observes how those who intend to harm others end up harming themselves; cf. v. 6; 26.27; Job 18.7–8. 5–11: Here, in vv. 18–21, and throughout chs 10–15 the primary contrast terms are the righteous and the wicked rather than the wise and the foolish. Passages like 9.7–9 suggest that these terms are roughly equivalent. 12–13: The issue of speech ethics is prominent in Proverbs; see 4.24n. and 5.21n. For gossip cf. 20.19; 25.9; Sir 27.16–17. 14: Counselors, a possible role for the wise themselves. 15: See 6.1–5n. 16–17: In v. 16 the NRSV follows the Septuagint, which adds lines b and c. The original MT contrast may have been between the gracious woman who gets honor versus aggressive men who gain temporary riches. Taken in parallel with v.

The timid become destitute,^a but the aggressive gain riches.
 17 Those who are kind reward themselves,
 but the cruel do themselves harm.
 18 The wicked earn no real gain,
 but those who sow righteousness get a true reward.
 19 Whoever is steadfast in righteousness
 will live,
 but whoever pursues evil will die.
 20 Crooked minds are an abomination to
 the LORD,
 but those of blameless ways are his delight.
 21 Be assured, the wicked will not go
 unpunished,
 but those who are righteous will escape.
 22 Like a gold ring in a pig's snout is a beautiful woman without good
 sense.
 23 The desire of the righteous ends only in
 good;
 the expectation of the wicked in
 wrath.
 24 Some give freely, yet grow all the richer;
 others withhold what is due, and only suffer want.
 25 A generous person will be enriched,
 and one who gives water will get water.
 26 The people curse those who hold back
 grain,
 but a blessing is on the head of those who sell it.
 27 Whoever diligently seeks good seeks favor,
 but evil comes to the one who searches
 for it.
 28 Those who trust in their riches will wither,^b

but the righteous will flourish like green leaves.

29 Those who trouble their households will inherit wind,
 and the fool will be servant to the wise.
 30 The fruit of the righteous is a tree of life,
 but violence^c takes lives away.
 31 If the righteous are repaid on earth,
 how much more the wicked and the sinner!

12 Whoever loves discipline loves
 knowledge,
 but those who hate to be rebuked are stupid.

2 The good obtain favor from the LORD,
 but those who devise evil he condemns.

3 No one finds security by wickedness, but the root of the righteous will never
 be moved.

4 A good wife is the crown of her husband,
 but she who brings shame is like rottenness in his bones.

5 The thoughts of the righteous are just;
 the advice of the wicked is treacherous.

6 The words of the wicked are a deadly ambush,
 but the speech of the upright delivers
 them.

7 The wicked are overthrown and are no
 more,
 but the house of the righteous will
 stand.

8 One is commended for good sense,
 but a perverse mind is despised.

9 Better to be despised and have a servant,

^a Gk: Heb lacks The timid . . . destitute

^b Cn: Heb fall

^c Cn Compare Gk Syr: Heb a wise man

17 there is a pairing with the kind versus the cruel. 18–21: See 10.2–3n. 22: A single-line proverb containing a criticism of superficial esteem for beauty using an animal comparison. Ear and nose rings were common adornments of women. Such beauty is wasted on both a senseless woman and an unclean pig. 24–26: These proverbs are linked thematically by the idea of generosity versus greed. The paradox of v. 24 is explained by v. 25: a generous person inspires others to reciprocate (cf. v. 17). In contrast, those who hold back grain in a time of scarcity, waiting for the price to rise, are cursed by the community. 27: Seeking and finding that which you seek. Divine favor accompanies human favor (cf. 8.35; 12.2; 18.22). 28,30: Plant imagery often describes the flourishing of the righteous (cf. v. 30; Pss 1.3; 92.12–14). 12.1: The place of discipline (Heb “musar”) is an important theme in Proverbs (cf. 3.11; 5.12; 13.1; 15.5) and is often paired with the concept of reproof. See 1.23n. 2–3: See 10.2–3n. 4: A preoccupation of the wise is the choice of a good wife for the young initiate in wisdom (cf. 18.22; 19.31–34; 31.10–31; Sir 26.1–3,13–18). 9: The “better” saying conveys insight through paradox (cf. 15.16–17; 16.8,19,32; 17.1,12; 19.1,22; 21.9,19; 22.1; 25.24; 27.5,10c; 28.6; Eccl 4.6,13; 7.1–3; 9.4). Despised is a strong translation. The word can mean “of than to be self-important and lack food.

 10 The righteous know the needs of their animals,
 but the mercy of the wicked is cruel.
 11 Those who till their land will have plenty of food,
 but those who follow worthless pursuits have no sense.
 12 The wicked covet the proceeds of wickedness,^a but the root of the righteous bears fruit.
 13 The evil are ensnared by the transgression of their lips,
 but the righteous escape from trouble.
 14 From the fruit of the mouth one is filled with good things,
 and manual labor has its reward.
 15 Fools think their own way is right,
 but the wise listen to advice.
 16 Fools show their anger at once,
 but the prudent ignore an insult.
 17 Whoever speaks the truth gives honest evidence,
 but a false witness speaks deceitfully.
 18 Rash words are like sword thrusts,
 but the tongue of the wise brings healing.
 19 Truthful lips endure forever,
 but a lying tongue lasts only a moment.
 20 Deceit is in the mind of those who plan evil,
 but those who counsel peace have joy.
 21 No harm happens to the righteous,
 but the wicked are filled with trouble.
 22 Lying lips are an abomination to the LORD,
 but those who act faithfully are his delight.
 23 One who is clever conceals knowledge,
 but the mind of a fool^b broadcasts folly.
 24 The hand of the diligent will rule,
 while the lazy will be put to forced labor.

25 Anxiety weighs down the human heart,
 but a good word cheers it up.
 26 The righteous gives good advice to friends,^c
 but the way of the wicked leads astray.
 27 The lazy do not roast^d their game,
 but the diligent obtain precious wealth.^d 28 In the path of righteousness there is life,
 in walking its path there is no death.
13 A wise child loves discipline,^e
 but a scoffer does not listen to rebuke.
 2 From the fruit of their words good persons eat good things,
 but the desire of the treacherous is for wrongdoing.
 3 Those who guard their mouths preserve their lives;
 those who open wide their lips come to ruin.
 4 The appetite of the lazy craves, and gets nothing,
 while the appetite of the diligent is richly supplied.
 5 The righteous hate falsehood,
 but the wicked act shamefully and disgracefully.
 6 Righteousness guards one whose way is upright,
 but sin overthrows the wicked.
 7 Some pretend to be rich, yet have nothing;
 others pretend to be poor, yet have great wealth.
 8 Wealth is a ransom for a person's life,
 but the poor get no threats.

^a Or covet the catch of the wicked

^b Heb the heart of fools

^c Syr: Meaning of Heb uncertain

^d Meaning of Heb uncertain

^e Cn: Heb A wise child the discipline of his father

little account." Cf. Sir 10.27. 10: What passes for mercy with the wicked is in fact cruel. On the treatment of animals in the first half of the verse, cf. Deut 25.4. 11: Cf. 28.19. 13–23: A cluster of sayings on the theme of speech. See 10.8n.,18–21. 17: The setting is the law court (cf. 14.25; 25.18). 24: See 6.6–11n. 25–26: Internal worry versus encouragement from outside (cf. 15.13; 17.22). 27: Some are too lazy to cook their own food and so starve in the midst of abundance (cf. 13.4; 19.24). The diligent do not waste such opportunities: an exhortation to good use of resources. 13.1–3: Care in listening and speaking is a frequent topic, e.g., vv. 13–14,18; see also 10.8n.,18–21n. 4: Cf. v. 25. 7–8,11: Paradoxes of wealth and poverty. The wise were against excessive wealth, but in favor of a moderate amount, enough to feel secure. Wealth can even put one in danger of criminal threats (v. 8). Get-rich-

- ⁹The light of the righteous rejoices,
but the lamp of the wicked goes out.
- ¹⁰By insolence the heedless make strife,
but wisdom is with those who take advice.
- ¹¹Wealth hastily gotten^a will dwindle,
but those who gather little by little will increase it.
- ¹²Hope deferred makes the heart sick,
but a desire fulfilled is a tree of life.
- ¹³Those who despise the word bring destruction on themselves, but those who respect the commandment will be rewarded.
- ¹⁴The teaching of the wise is a fountain of
life,
so that one may avoid the snares of
death.
- ¹⁵Good sense wins favor,
but the way of the faithless is their ruin.^b
- ¹⁶The clever do all things intelligently,
but the fool displays folly.
- ¹⁷A bad messenger brings trouble,
but a faithful envoy, healing.
- ¹⁸Poverty and disgrace are for the one who ignores instruction,
but one who heeds reproof is honored.
- ¹⁹A desire realized is sweet to the soul,
but to turn away from evil is an abomination to fools.
- ²⁰Whoever walks with the wise becomes
wise,
but the companion of fools suffers
harm.

- ²¹Misfortune pursues sinners,
but prosperity rewards the righteous.
- ²²The good leave an inheritance to their children's children,
but the sinner's wealth is laid up for the
righteous.
- ²³The field of the poor may yield much
food,
but it is swept away through injustice.
- ²⁴Those who spare the rod hate their
children,
but those who love them are diligent to discipline them.
- ²⁵The righteous have enough to satisfy
their appetite,
but the belly of the wicked is empty.
- 14 The wise woman^c builds her house,
but the foolish tears it down with her own hands.
- ²Those who walk uprightly fear the LORD,
but one who is devious in conduct despises him.
- ³The talk of fools is a rod for their backs,^d
but the lips of the wise preserve them.
- ⁴Where there are no oxen, there is no
grain;
abundant crops come by the strength of the ox.
- ⁵A faithful witness does not lie,
but a false witness breathes out lies.
- ⁶A scoffer seeks wisdom in vain,

^a Gk Vg: Heb from vanity

^b Cn Compare Gk Syr Vg Tg: Heb is enduring

^c Heb Wisdom of women

^d Cn: Heb a rod of pride

quick schemes are not favored but rather careful saving (v. 11). 9: Light and lamp are symbols of life (20.20; 24.20; Job 3.20; Ps 97.11). 12: Tree of life is a symbol of the fullness of life, such as humans feel when a desire is fulfilled (cf. v. 19; 3.18n.; 11.30). 13: Word and commandment refer to the advice of the sages, but came to be understood as references to the Torah (Deut 30.11–14; Sir 24.23; Bar 4.1). 14: See 10.11n. 17: The messenger played an important role (cf. 22.21; 25.13,25; 26.6). They were professionally trained to high standards and enjoyed a high status in society. 21–23: Prosperity is the reward of the righteous according to the doctrine of retribution. This in turn enables those rewards to be passed down through the generations. That the wicked were sometimes prosperous troubled the sages, who resolved the contradiction by assuming that the sinner's wealth (only temporarily enjoyed) goes eventually to the righteous (cf. Job 27.13–17). 23: Despite their belief in the doctrine of retribution, the sages recognized that not all poverty is caused by laziness or bad judgment but also by the injustice of the powerful. 24: Spare the rod indicates the emphasis placed on necessary discipline (cf. 22.15; 23.13–14; 26.3; 29.15); the sages, however, were opposed to cruelty in any form. 14.1: The wise woman could be Woman Wisdom who also builds her house (cf. 9.1) and the foolish, her antithesis (cf. 9.13–18), but the saying also alludes to the critical role of women in Israelite society; cf. 31.10–31. 2: See 1.7n. Beginning with ch 14, proverbs that mention the LORD appear with increasing frequency. 4: The ox was a highly valued work animal (cf. 12.10; Deut

- but knowledge is easy for one who understands.
- ⁷ Leave the presence of a fool,
for there you do not find words of knowledge.
- ⁸ It is the wisdom of the clever to understand where they go,
but the folly of fools misleads.
- ⁹ Fools mock at the guilt offering,^a
but the upright enjoy God's favor.
- ¹⁰ The heart knows its own bitterness,
and no stranger shares its joy.
- ¹¹ The house of the wicked is destroyed,
but the tent of the upright flourishes.
- ¹² There is a way that seems right to a person,
but its end is the way to death.^b
- ¹³ Even in laughter the heart is sad,
and the end of joy is grief.
- ¹⁴ The perverse get what their ways deserve,
and the good, what their deeds deserve.^c
- ¹⁵ The simple believe everything,
but the clever consider their steps.
- ¹⁶ The wise are cautious and turn away from evil,
but the fool throws off restraint and is careless.
- ¹⁷ One who is quick-tempered acts foolishly,
and the schemer is hated.
- ¹⁸ The simple are adorned with^d folly,
but the clever are crowned with knowledge.
- ¹⁹ The evil bow down before the good,
the wicked at the gates of the righteous.
- ²⁰ The poor are disliked even by their neighbors,
but the rich have many friends.
- ²¹ Those who despise their neighbors are sinners,
but happy are those who are kind to the poor.
- ²² Do they not err that plan evil?
Those who plan good find loyalty and faithfulness.
- ²³ In all toil there is profit,
but mere talk leads only to poverty.
- ²⁴ The crown of the wise is their wisdom,^e
but folly is the garland^f of fools.
- ²⁵ A truthful witness saves lives,
but one who utters lies is a betrayer.
- ²⁶ In the fear of the LORD one has strong confidence,
and one's children will have a refuge.
- ²⁷ The fear of the LORD is a fountain of life,
so that one may avoid the snares of death.
- ²⁸ The glory of a king is a multitude of people;
without people a prince is ruined.
- ²⁹ Whoever is slow to anger has great understanding,
but one who has a hasty temper exalts folly.
- ³⁰ A tranquil mind gives life to the flesh,
but passion makes the bones rot.

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Heb ways of death

^c Cn: Heb from upon him

^d Or inherit

^e Cn Compare Gk: Heb riches

^f Cn: Heb is the folly

22.10; 1 Kings 19.19). 6: For the scoffer see 9.7–8a; 13.1; 15.12; 21.24; 22.10. 9: Guilt offering (see Lev 5.14–19; 6.1–7) is an offering of reparation or compensation; cf. 3.9–10n. The upright have no need to do so as they already enjoy God's favor. 10: The heart is the seat of the inner person and no one else can know its deepest emotions. 11: See 10.2–3n. 12: Choices can be misleading, and no one can predict the future (cf. 16.25). 13: Cf. Eccl 7.2–4. 15–18: A series of sayings about good and bad judgment. 17: Anger, as an uncontrolled and anti-social expression of emotion, is often warned against; see v. 29; 16.32; 19.11; 27.4; 29.11,22. 19: Righteousness is ultimately stronger than wickedness according to the doctrine of retribution. 20–21: A social reality that connects wealth with popularity in v. 20 (cf. 19.4) is relativized by v. 21, which chastises the very neighbors who ignore the poor (cf. v. 31; 17.5). 24: The image of the crown is also used to describe a good wife (12.4), knowledge (14.18), old age (16.31), and grandchildren (17.6). 26–27: Fear of the LORD, see 1.7n. Fountain of life, see 10.11n. 28: A king needs his people; his glory does not simply rest on himself. 29–30: Self-control is a key virtue in Proverbs (cf. 12.16; 15.18; 19.19; 20.3; 25.28). Here “passion” refers not to sexual passion but to strong, unregulated emotion of any sort. Flesh

³¹Those who oppress the poor insult their Maker,
but those who are kind to the needy honor him.

³²The wicked are overthrown by their evildoing,
but the righteous find a refuge in their integrity.^a ³³Wisdom is at home in the mind of one who has understanding, but it is not^b known in the heart of fools.

³⁴Righteousness exalts a nation,
but sin is a reproach to any people.

³⁵A servant who deals wisely has the king's favor,
but his wrath falls on one who acts shamefully.

15 A soft answer turns away wrath,
but a harsh word stirs up anger.

²The tongue of the wise dispenses knowledge,^c
but the mouths of fools pour out folly.

³The eyes of the LORD are in every place,
keeping watch on the evil and the good.

⁴A gentle tongue is a tree of life,
but perverseness in it breaks the spirit.

⁵A fool despises a parent's instruction,
but the one who heeds admonition is prudent.

⁶In the house of the righteous there is much treasure,
but trouble befalls the income of the wicked.

⁷The lips of the wise spread knowledge;
not so the minds of fools.

⁸The sacrifice of the wicked is an abomination to the LORD,
but the prayer of the upright is his delight.

⁹The way of the wicked is an abomination to the LORD,
but he loves the one who pursues righteousness.

¹⁰There is severe discipline for one who forsakes the way,
but one who hates a rebuke will die.

¹¹Sheol and Abaddon lie open before the LORD,
how much more human hearts!

¹²Scoffers do not like to be rebuked;
they will not go to the wise.

¹³A glad heart makes a cheerful countenance,
but by sorrow of heart the spirit is broken.

¹⁴The mind of one who has understanding seeks knowledge,
but the mouths of fools feed on folly.

¹⁵All the days of the poor are hard,
but a cheerful heart has a continual feast.

¹⁶Better is a little with the fear of the LORD
than great treasure and trouble with it.

¹⁷Better is a dinner of vegetables where love is than a fatted ox and hatred with it.

¹⁸Those who are hot-tempered stir up strife,
but those who are slow to anger calm contention.

¹⁹The way of the lazy is overgrown with thorns,
but the path of the upright is a level highway.

²⁰A wise child makes a glad father,
but the foolish despise their mothers.

²¹Folly is a joy to one who has no sense,
but a person of understanding walks straight ahead.

²²Without counsel, plans go wrong,
but with many advisers they succeed.

^a Gk Syr: Heb in their death

^b Gk Syr: Heb lacks not

^c Cn: Heb makes knowledge good and bones is a frequent fixed pair in the Bible (cf. Gen 2.23; Judg. 9.2; Job 2.5). 31: Concern for the poor is a theme in the wisdom literature (cf. 17.5; 19.17; 21.13; 22.16; 28.3), in the prophets (e.g., Ezek 22.29; Am 4.1; Zech 7.10), and in the law (e.g., Ex 22.25–27; Lev 25.36–37; Deut 14.28–29; 24.19–22). 35: Cf. 16.14; 19.12. 15.1–2,4,7: A series of sayings on proper and improper speech. See 10.8n.,18–21; 12.13–23. 4: Tree of life, see 13.12n. 5: Cf. vv. 31–33. 8: Sincerity in worship is essential (v. 29; 21.3,27). 11: Sheol, the underworld; Abaddon (lit. “Destruction”) is an alternative abode for the place and state of the dead (cf. 1.13; for 11b, cf. 20.27; Sir 42.18). 16–17: Two better . . . than sayings that put in question the value of prosperity (cf. 16.8; 17.1). A dinner of vegetables is simple fare in contrast to the luxury of eating a fatted ox. 20: See 10.1n. 22: The importance of counsel and planning is a favorite theme ²³To make an apt answer is a joy to anyone,

 and a word in season, how good it is!
²⁴For the wise the path of life leads upward,
 in order to avoid Sheol below.
²⁵The LORD tears down the house of the proud,
 but maintains the widow's boundaries.
²⁶Evil plans are an abomination to the LORD,
 but gracious words are pure.
²⁷Those who are greedy for unjust gain make trouble for their households,
 but those who hate bribes will live.
²⁸The mind of the righteous ponders how to answer,
 but the mouth of the wicked pours out
 evil.
²⁹The LORD is far from the wicked,
 but he hears the prayer of the righteous.
³⁰The light of the eyes rejoices the heart,
 and good news refreshes the body.
³¹The ear that heeds wholesome admonition
 will lodge among the wise.
³²Those who ignore instruction despise
 themselves,
 but those who heed admonition gain
 understanding.
³³The fear of the LORD is instruction in
 wisdom,
 and humility goes before honor.

16 The plans of the mind belong to
 mortals,
 but the answer of the tongue is from
 the LORD.

²All one's ways may be pure in one's own
 eyes,
 but the LORD weighs the spirit.
³Commit your work to the LORD,
 and your plans will be established.
⁴The LORD has made everything for its purpose,
 even the wicked for the day of
 trouble.
⁵All those who are arrogant are an abomination to the LORD;
 be assured, they will not go
 unpunished.
⁶By loyalty and faithfulness iniquity is atoned for,
 and by the fear of the LORD one avoids
 evil.
⁷When the ways of people please the
 LORD,
 he causes even their enemies to be at peace with them.
⁸Better is a little with righteousness
 than large income with injustice.
⁹The human mind plans the way,
 but the LORD directs the steps.
¹⁰Inspired decisions are on the lips of a
 king;
 his mouth does not sin in judgment.
¹¹Honest balances and scales are the LORD'S;
 all the weights in the bag are his work.
¹²It is an abomination to kings to do evil,
 for the throne is established by
 righteousness.
¹³Righteous lips are the delight of a king,
 and he loves those who speak what is
 right.

of the wise (cf. 11.14; 13.10; 19.20; 20.18); see v. 26 for its antithesis. 24: Slight variant on the image of the path (see 1.15n.), this time leading upward (representing success) or downward (representing failure), because of Sheol's location below the earth's surface. 25: Boundaries are the markers that indicate the extent of a field (see 22.28; Deut 19.4). Widows were lowly members of society and vulnerable to the encroachments of the powerful (cf. Job 24.2–3), hence the special divine protection (cf. 23.10–11). 27: The wise oppose bribery in all its forms, cf. 17.23; Sir 20.29. 30: The light of the eyes refers to the friendly looks of another person. A frequent theme in Proverbs is the effect others, and particularly their words, have upon a person (cf. 12.25). 31–33: On the importance of admonition see 1.23n. The word translated instruction in vv. 5,32,33 (Heb "musar") is elsewhere often translated as discipline; see 12.1n. 33: Fear of the LORD, see 1.7n. 16.1–7: A string of proverbs that stress the role of the LORD in directing the lives both of individuals and of wider communities. 1: Cf. vv. 9,33; 19.21; 20.24; 21.30–31. 2: Cf. 17.3; 21.2; 24.12. 4: The day of trouble is a day on which disaster strikes unexpectedly (cf. 11.4; Eccl 7.17). 6: Loyalty and faithfulness indicate proper devotion (cf. 3.3; 14.22). Fear of the LORD, see 1.7n. 7: God's pleasure leads not only to internal but also to external peace in relation to enemies. 8: Cf. 15.16–17. 10–15: A small group of sayings concerning the king. 10: Inspired decisions indicate the king's wisdom and authority. Solomon embodies the 14 A king's wrath is a messenger of death, and whoever is wise will appease it.

15 In the light of a king's face there is life,
and his favor is like the clouds that bring the spring rain.

16 How much better to get wisdom than
gold!
To get understanding is to be chosen
rather than silver.

17 The highway of the upright avoids evil;
those who guard their way preserve their lives.

18 Pride goes before destruction,
and a haughty spirit before a fall.

19 It is better to be of a lowly spirit among the poor
than to divide the spoil with the proud.

20 Those who are attentive to a matter will prosper,
and happy are those who trust in the
LORD.

21 The wise of heart is called perceptive,
and pleasant speech increases
persuasiveness.

22 Wisdom is a fountain of life to one who has it,
but folly is the punishment of fools.

23 The mind of the wise makes their speech judicious,
and adds persuasiveness to their lips.

24 Pleasant words are like a honeycomb, sweetness to the soul and health to the body.

25 Sometimes there is a way that seems to be right,
but in the end it is the way to death.

26 The appetite of workers works for them;
their hunger urges them on.

27 Scoundrels concoct evil,
and their speech is like a scorching fire.

28 A perverse person spreads strife,

and a whisperer separates close friends.

29 The violent entice their neighbors,
and lead them in a way that is not good.

30 One who winks the eyes plans^a perverse
things;
one who compresses the lips brings evil
to pass.

31 Gray hair is a crown of glory;
it is gained in a righteous life.

32 One who is slow to anger is better than
the mighty,
and one whose temper is controlled
than one who captures a city.

33 The lot is cast into the lap,
but the decision is the LORD's alone.

17 Better is a dry morsel with quiet
than a house full of feasting with strife.

² A slave who deals wisely will rule over a child who acts shamefully, and will share the inheritance as one of the family.

³ The crucible is for silver, and the furnace is for gold,
but the LORD tests the heart.

⁴ An evildoer listens to wicked lips;
and a liar gives heed to a mischievous
tongue.

⁵ Those who mock the poor insult their Maker;
those who are glad at calamity will not go unpunished.

⁶ Grandchildren are the crown of the aged,
and the glory of children is their parents.

⁷ Fine speech is not becoming to a fool;
still less is false speech to a ruler.^b

⁸ A bribe is like a magic stone in the eyes of those who give it;

^a Gk.Syr Vg Tg; Heb to plan

^b Or a noble person

ideal of the wise king (1 Kings 3.7–9, 16–28). 11: Cf. 11.1n. 14: A king's wrath is more dangerous than that of most people because of the power he wields, hence it is worth appeasing (cf. 19.12; 20.2). 15: Royal favor is compared to the clouds that precede the spring rains and water the first crop, valued as a great blessing (cf. Hos 6.3). 16: Cf. 8.10–11. 18–19: Cf. 11.2. 21: Perception and eloquence are keynotes of the wise person who needs at times to employ powers of persuasion (cf. v. 23). Contrast the persuasive seductiveness of the loose woman in 2.16; 5.3; 7.5. 22: Cf. 10.11. 25: =14.12. 26: Hunger is appreciated as a motive for diligence; cf. Eccl 6.7. 27–30: Four sayings on different types of wicked people and their dangerous speech; see 10.8n. 31: The gray hair of the elderly is related to righteous living, which was thought to produce longevity (cf. 20.29; Sir 25.3–6). 32: See 14.17n. 33: Casting lots was a common way of making decisions. All destinies are in God's hands, even the direction in which the lot falls (cf. 18.18). 17.1: Cf. 15.16–17. 2: Wisdom can trump even the norms of law and custom (cf.

- wherever they turn they prosper.
- ⁹ One who forgives an affront fosters friendship,
but one who dwells on disputes will alienate a friend.
- ¹⁰ A rebuke strikes deeper into a discerning person than a hundred blows into a fool.
- ¹¹ Evil people seek only rebellion,
but a cruel messenger will be sent against them.
- ¹² Better to meet a she-bear robbed of its cubs
than to confront a fool immersed in folly.
- ¹³ Evil will not depart from the house of one who returns evil for good.
- ¹⁴ The beginning of strife is like letting out water;
so stop before the quarrel breaks out.
- ¹⁵ One who justifies the wicked and one who condemns the righteous are both alike an abomination to the LORD.
- ¹⁶ Why should fools have a price in hand to buy wisdom, when they have no mind to learn?
- ¹⁷ A friend loves at all times,
and kinsfolk are born to share adversity.
- ¹⁸ It is senseless to give a pledge,
to become surety for a neighbor.
- ¹⁹ One who loves transgression loves strife;
one who builds a high threshold invites broken bones.
- ²⁰ The crooked of mind do not prosper,
and the perverse of tongue fall into calamity.
- ²¹ The one who begets a fool gets trouble;
the parent of a fool has no joy.
- ²² A cheerful heart is a good medicine,
but a downcast spirit dries up the bones.
- ²³ The wicked accept a concealed bribe to pervert the ways of justice.
- ²⁴ The discerning person looks to wisdom,
but the eyes of a fool to the ends of the earth.
- ²⁵ Foolish children are a grief to their father and bitterness to her who bore them.
- ²⁶ To impose a fine on the innocent is not right,
or to flog the noble for their integrity.
- ²⁷ One who spares words is knowledgeable;
one who is cool in spirit has understanding.
- ²⁸ Even fools who keep silent are considered wise;
when they close their lips, they are deemed intelligent.
- 18 The one who lives alone is self-indulgent,
showing contempt for all who have sound judgment.^a
- ² A fool takes no pleasure in understanding, but only in expressing personal opinion.
- ^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

19.10b). 3: A crucible tests for impurities in precious metal; cf. 27.21. 4: See 14.7n. 5: See 14.31n. 8: An unusual observation that a bribe works. In the eyes of, however, indicates self-delusion. Gifts to curry favor were acceptable up to a point (cf. 18.16; 21.14), but elsewhere bribery is condemned (e.g., v. 23). 9: Forgiveness in the context of friendship; cf. 10.12. 10: A hundred blows, Deut 25.3 limits corporal punishment to forty blows. 12: Meeting an angry she-bear, a popular image for great danger (cf. 2 Sam 17.8; 2 Kings 2.23–24; Hos 13.8). 14: Letting out water from a dam, a process that is unstoppable once it is started. 15: The abuse of judicial power was a serious concern; cf. v. 26; 19.5; Deut 25.1; Ex 23.2–3, 6–8; Isa 5.23. 16: A price in hand is probably a fee to the wise. Such fools think they can buy wisdom with no commitment to it. 17: A true friend is supportive in good times and bad, while relatives are regarded as more of a safety net in adversity (cf. 18.24). 18: Cf. 6.1–5; 11.15; 20.16. 19: Builds a high threshold, a “cause and effect” proverb. Just as a badly built (and perhaps ostentatious) threshold invites problems, so deliberate provocation to transgression causes conflict. 20: See 10.2–3n. 21: See 10.1n. 22: Dries up the bones indicates the withering effect of depression on the whole body. 23: Cf. v. 8; 15.27. 24: The eyes of a fool gaze on the distant horizon (and unattainable goals) when wisdom is actually close at hand and readily attainable to the discerning person (cf. Deut 30.11–15). 25: See 10.1n. 26: See v. 15n.; cf. 18.5; Deut 22.19; Am 2.8. 27–28: A pair of proverbs on the ambiguity of silence, normally a virtue of the wise (cf. 10.19; 12.23; 13.3; 15.28), but paradoxically when fools keep silent they are considered wise. 18.1–2: The loner and the fool have this in com-

- ³ When wickedness comes, contempt comes also;
and with dishonor comes disgrace.
- ⁴ The words of the mouth are deep waters;
the fountain of wisdom is a gushing stream.
- ⁵ It is not right to be partial to the guilty,
or to subvert the innocent in judgment.
- ⁶ A fool's lips bring strife,
and a fool's mouth invites a flogging.
- ⁷ The mouths of fools are their ruin,
and their lips a snare to themselves.
- ⁸ The words of a whisperer are like
delicious morsels;
they go down into the inner parts of the
body.
- ⁹ One who is slack in work
is close kin to a vandal.
- ¹⁰ The name of the LORD is a strong tower;
the righteous run into it and are safe.
- ¹¹ The wealth of the rich is their strong city;
in their imagination it is like a high wall.
- ¹² Before destruction one's heart is haughty,
but humility goes before honor.
- ¹³ If one gives answer before hearing,
it is folly and shame.
- ¹⁴ The human spirit will endure sickness;
but a broken spirit—who can bear?
- ¹⁵ An intelligent mind acquires knowledge,
and the ear of the wise seeks
knowledge.
- ¹⁶ A gift opens doors;
it gives access to the great.
- ¹⁷ The one who first states a case seems
right,

- until the other comes and cross-examines.
- ¹⁸ Casting the lot puts an end to disputes and decides between powerful contenders.
- ¹⁹ An ally offended is stronger than a city;^a such quarreling is like the bars of a castle.
- ²⁰ From the fruit of the mouth one's stomach is satisfied;
the yield of the lips brings satisfaction.
- ²¹ Death and life are in the power of the
tongue,
and those who love it will eat its fruits.
- ²² He who finds a wife finds a good thing,
and obtains favor from the LORD.
- ²³ The poor use entreaties,
but the rich answer roughly.
- ²⁴ Some^b friends play at friendship^c
but a true friend sticks closer than one's nearest kin.

19 Better the poor walking in integrity than one perverse of speech who is a fool.

- ² Desire without knowledge is not good,
and one who moves too hurriedly
misses the way.
- ³ One's own folly leads to ruin,
yet the heart rages against the LORD.
- ⁴ Wealth brings many friends,
but the poor are left friendless.
- ⁵ A false witness will not go unpunished,
and a liar will not escape.

^a Gk Syr Vg Tg: Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Syr Tg: Heb A man of

^c Cn Compare Syr Vg Tg: Meaning of Heb uncertain

mon: neither listens to the other (cf. v. 13). The proverbs are linked by a wordplay in Hebrew. 4: The deep waters of speech are ambiguous: words can be life-giving as wisdom is, but they can also be dangerous (cf. v. 21; 10.11). By the first alternative, the two lines would be synonymous, otherwise antithetical. 5: See 17.15n., 26. 6–7: The danger of foolish speech is a common topic; cf. 10.13–14; 12.13; 13.3; 14.3. 8: A whisperer indicates a gossip for whom scandal is as essential as food (= 26.22). 9: See 6.6–11n. 10–11: A proverb pair containing a subtle contrast: the name of the LORD (a phrase found only here in Proverbs) offers security (cf. Pss 61.4; 124.8), but the protection of wealth may prove to be imaginary (cf. 10.15–16; 11.4). 12: Cf. 11.2; 15.33; 16.18; 18.3. 14: The contrast here is between physical illness and psychological depression. 16: See 17.8n. 17–18: Legal language suggesting that both sides of a case must be argued for a fair airing of opposing views, and that intractable disputes can only be settled by casting the lot, i.e., seeking God's decision; cf. 16.33. 19: An ally offended is likely to build up impenetrable barriers due to a strong sense of personal injury. 20–21: See 10.8n. 22: See 12.4n. 23: The powerlessness of the poor leads to entreaties while the rich can answer as they please; cf. Sir 13.3. 19.1: A “better than” saying; cf. 15.16–17; 16.8; 17; 28.6. 2: Desire indicates intention, and hurried movement represents action; hastiness in both creates problems. 3: The fool is self-deceived and misplaces blame; cf. Sir 15.11–20. 4: The poor are

- ⁶ Many seek the favor of the generous,
and everyone is a friend to a giver of gifts.
- ⁷ If the poor are hated even by their kin,
how much more are they shunned by their friends!
When they call after them, they are not there.^a
- ⁸ To get wisdom is to love oneself;
to keep understanding is to prosper.
- ⁹ A false witness will not go unpunished,
and the liar will perish.
- ¹⁰ It is not fitting for a fool to live in luxury,
much less for a slave to rule over princes.
- ¹¹ Those with good sense are slow to anger,
and it is their glory to overlook an offense.
- ¹² A king's anger is like the growling of a lion,
but his favor is like dew on the grass.
- ¹³ A stupid child is ruin to a father,
and a wife's quarreling is a continual dripping of rain.
- ¹⁴ House and wealth are inherited from
parents,
but a prudent wife is from the LORD.
- ¹⁵ Laziness brings on deep sleep;
an idle person will suffer hunger.
- ¹⁶ Those who keep the commandment will
live;
those who are heedless of their ways
will die.
- ¹⁷ Whoever is kind to the poor lends to the LORD,
and will be repaid in full.
- ¹⁸ Discipline your children while there is
hope;
do not set your heart on their destruction.
- ¹⁹ A violent tempered person will pay the penalty;

- if you effect a rescue, you will only have to do it again.^a
- ²⁰ Listen to advice and accept instruction, that you may gain wisdom for the future.
- ²¹ The human mind may devise many plans,
but it is the purpose of the LORD that will be established.
- ²² What is desirable in a person is loyalty,
and it is better to be poor than a liar.
- ²³ The fear of the LORD is life indeed;
filled with it one rests secure and suffers no harm.
- ²⁴ The lazy person buries a hand in the dish,
and will not even bring it back to the
mouth.
- ²⁵ Strike a scoffer, and the simple will learn prudence;
reprove the intelligent, and they will gain knowledge.
- ²⁶ Those who do violence to their father and chase away their mother are children who cause shame and bring reproach.
- ²⁷ Cease straying, my child, from the words
of knowledge,
in order that you may hear instruction.
- ²⁸ A worthless witness mocks at justice,
and the mouth of the wicked devours
iniquity.
- ²⁹ Condemnation is ready for scoffers,
and flogging for the backs of fools.
- 20 Wine is a mocker, strong drink a brawler,
and whoever is led astray by it is not wise.

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

left friendless, see vv. 6–7; see also 14.20n. 5: A court of law is envisaged; the false witness is a frequent topic (see v. 9; 6.19; 12.17; 14.5,25; 21.28; 25.7c–10,18; Ex 20.16; 23.1–3,7). 10: This proverb decries a situation that has gone topsy-turvy; cf. 30.21–22; Eccl 10.6–7. 11–12: Warnings against anger; see 14–17n. For the king's anger and favor see 16.14–15n. 13–14: A male perspective on domestic unhappiness contrasted with the advantages of a prudent wife; cf. 31.10–31. 16: The commandment is that of any legitimate authority such as parent, sage, or the LORD (cf. 13.13). 17: God's commitment to the poor, cf. 14.31n.; 17.5; 28.27. 18: While there is hope, during childhood, when there is potential for change and lasting formation can occur. 19: The violent tempered person will be punished. He is locked into a repeated pattern and cannot be helped. 20: The value of seeking advice and instruction is a frequent topic; cf. 1.8; 4.1,10; 23.12. 21: Cf. 16.1,9,33; 21.30–31. 22: Loyalty has overtones of covenant loyalty. 23: Fear of the LORD, see 1.7n. 24: See 6.6–11n. 25: See 9.7–9n.; 12.1n. 26: See 10.1n. 20.1: Warnings about the effects

- ²The dread anger of a king is like the growling of a lion; anyone who provokes him to anger forfeits life itself.
- ³It is honorable to refrain from strife, but every fool is quick to quarrel.
- ⁴The lazy person does not plow in season; harvest comes, and there is nothing to be found.
- ⁵The purposes in the human mind are like deep water, but the intelligent will draw them out.
- ⁶Many proclaim themselves loyal, but who can find one worthy of trust?
- ⁷The righteous walk in integrity—happy are the children who follow them!
- ⁸A king who sits on the throne of judgment winnows all evil with his eyes.
- ⁹Who can say, “I have made my heart clean; I am pure from my sin”?
- ¹⁰Diverse weights and diverse measures are both alike an abomination to the LORD.
- ¹¹Even children make themselves known by their acts, by whether what they do is pure and right.
- ¹²The hearing ear and the seeing eye—the LORD has made them both.
- ¹³Do not love sleep, or else you will come to poverty; open your eyes, and you will have plenty of bread.
- ¹⁴“Bad, bad,” says the buyer, then goes away and boasts.
- ¹⁵There is gold, and abundance of costly stones; but the lips informed by knowledge are a precious jewel.
- ¹⁶Take the garment of one who has given surety for a stranger; seize the pledge given as surety for foreigners.
- ¹⁷Bread gained by deceit is sweet, but afterward the mouth will be full of gravel.
- ¹⁸Plans are established by taking advice; wage war by following wise guidance.
- ¹⁹A gossip reveals secrets; therefore do not associate with a babbler.
- ²⁰If you curse father or mother, your lamp will go out in utter darkness.
- ²¹An estate quickly acquired in the beginning will not be blessed in the end.
- ²²Do not say, “I will repay evil”; wait for the LORD, and he will help you.
- ²³Differing weights are an abomination to the LORD, and false scales are not good.
- ²⁴All our steps are ordered by the LORD; how then can we understand our own ways?
- ²⁵It is a snare for one to say rashly, “It is holy,” and begin to reflect only after making a vow.
- ²⁶A wise king winnows the wicked, and drives the wheel over them.
- ²⁷The human spirit is the lamp of the LORD, searching every inmost part.
- ²⁸Loyalty and faithfulness preserve the king, and his throne is upheld by righteousness.^a
- ²⁹The glory of youths is their strength,

^a Gk: Heb loyalty

of wine and strong drink (cf. 23.19–21,29–35; 31.4–5). 2: See 16.14; 19.12. 3: Cf. 17.14; 26.17. 4: See 6.6–11n. 5: The wise have good powers of expression of their deepest thoughts (see 18.4). 6: Many . . . but, for similar contrasts see 18.24; 31.29. 8: Winnows refers to spotting evil quickly, cf. v. 26. 9: A rhetorical question anticipating the answer “no one.” 10: See v. 23; 11.1n. 13: See 6.6–11n. 14: In the world of bartering, the buyer misleadingly downgrades the deal to get a good price and then is pleased with his deception. 15: See 2.4n. 16: See 6.1–5n.; 27.13. Giving surety for a stranger or foreigner, who has no ties to the community, is a high-risk strategy. 17: The difference between initial appearance and later reality; cf. 9.17–18; Job 20.12–14. 18: See 15.22n.; 24.5–6. 20: Lamp will go out, see 13.9n. 21: Quickly acquired, not properly inherited. On the insubstantiality of hastily or unjustly acquired wealth see 1.10–19; 10.2; 13.11; 15.6; 16.8; 28.8,20,22. 23: See v. 10; 11.1n. 24: On divine control see 16.1–7. 25: See the reckless vow by Jephthah in Judg 11.29–40; cf. Eccl 5.4–6. 26: The wheel is a threshing implement (v.

but the beauty of the aged is their gray hair.

³⁰ Blows that wound cleanse away evil; beatings make clean the innermost parts.

21 The king's heart is a stream of water in the hand of the LORD; he turns it wherever he will.

² All deeds are right in the sight of the doer, but the LORD weighs the heart.

³ To do righteousness and justice is more acceptable to the LORD than sacrifice.

⁴ Haughty eyes and a proud heart—the lamp of the wicked—are sin.

⁵ The plans of the diligent lead surely to abundance, but everyone who is hasty comes only to want.

⁶ The getting of treasures by a lying tongue is a fleeting vapor and a snare^a of death.

⁷ The violence of the wicked will sweep them away, because they refuse to do what is just.

⁸ The way of the guilty is crooked, but the conduct of the pure is right.

⁹ It is better to live in a corner of the housetop than in a house shared with a contentious wife.

¹⁰ The souls of the wicked desire evil; their neighbors find no mercy in their eyes.

¹¹ When a scoffer is punished, the simple become wiser; when the wise are instructed, they increase in knowledge.

¹² The Righteous One observes the house of the wicked; he casts the wicked down to ruin.

¹³ If you close your ear to the cry of the poor, you will cry out and not be heard.

¹⁴ A gift in secret averts anger; and a concealed bribe in the bosom, strong wrath.

¹⁵ When justice is done, it is a joy to the righteous, but dismay to evildoers.

¹⁶ Whoever wanders from the way of understanding will rest in the assembly of the dead.

¹⁷ Whoever loves pleasure will suffer want; whoever loves wine and oil will not be rich.

¹⁸ The wicked is a ransom for the righteous, and the faithless for the upright.

¹⁹ It is better to live in a desert land than with a contentious and fretful wife.

²⁰ Precious treasure remains^b in the house of the wise, but the fool devours it.

²¹ Whoever pursues righteousness and kindness will find life^c and honor.

²² One wise person went up against a city of warriors and brought down the stronghold in which they trusted.

²³ To watch over mouth and tongue is to keep out of trouble.

²⁴ The proud, haughty person, named “Scoffer,” acts with arrogant pride.

²⁵ The craving of the lazy person is fatal, for lazy hands refuse to labor.

²⁶ All day long the wicked covet,^d

^a Gk: Heb seekers

^b Gk: Heb and oil

^c Gk: Heb life and righteousness

^d Gk: Heb all day long one covets covetously

8; Isa 28.27). 27: Lamp, cf. Zeph 1.12. See also 15.11; 16.2; 17.3. 29: See 16.31. 30: Corporal punishment as a component of pedagogical discipline (cf. 13.24; 22.15; 23.13–14). 21.1: Even the mind of a king is controlled by God (cf. vv. 30–31). 2: Cf. 16.2. 3: Cf. 15.8,29; 28.9,13. The fixed pair righteousness and justice is common, cf. 18.19; Ps 33.5; and in the opposite order, Isa 56.1; Job 37.28; 2 Sam 8.15. 6: See 20.21n. 9: Contentious wife, cf. v. 19; 25.24; 27.15; cf. also 19.13–14n. In a corner of the housetop, either an exposed roof or a small room constructed on top of the house (2 Kings 4.10). 12: Righteous One, i.e., God (cf. 13.6; 19.3) 13: See 14.31n. 14: See 17.8n. 16: Assembly of the dead, i.e., Sheol. 17: Warnings against overindulgence and overspending; cf. v. 20. 18: Ransom indicates compensation money. The righteous are rescued from danger and the wicked put in their place (cf. 11.8; 13.8). 19: Cf. 19.13–14; 21.9. 22: One wise person indicates a narrative about the superiority of wisdom to military strength; cf.

but the righteous give and do not hold back.

²⁷The sacrifice of the wicked is an abomination;
how much more when brought with evil intent.

²⁸A false witness will perish,
but a good listener will testify successfully.

²⁹The wicked put on a bold face,
but the upright give thought to^a their ways.

³⁰No wisdom, no understanding, no counsel,
can avail against the LORD.

³¹The horse is made ready for the day of battle,
but the victory belongs to the LORD.

22 A good name is to be chosen rather than great riches,
and favor is better than silver or gold.

²The rich and the poor have this in common:
the LORD is the maker of them all.

³The clever see danger and hide;
but the simple go on, and suffer for it.

⁴The reward for humility and fear of the LORD is riches and honor and life.

⁵Thorns and snares are in the way of the perverse;
the cautious will keep far from them.

⁶Train children in the right way,
and when old, they will not stray.

⁷The rich rule over the poor,
and the borrower is the slave of the lender.

⁸Whoever sows injustice will reap calamity,

and the rod of anger will fail.

⁹Those who are generous are blessed,
for they share their bread with the poor.

¹⁰Drive out a scoffer, and strife goes out;
quarreling and abuse will cease.

¹¹Those who love a pure heart and are gracious in speech will have the king as a friend.

¹²The eyes of the LORD keep watch over knowledge,
but he overthrows the words of the faithless.

¹³The lazy person says, “There is a lion outside!
I shall be killed in the streets!”

¹⁴The mouth of a loose^b woman is a deep pit;
he with whom the LORD is angry falls into it.

¹⁵Folly is bound up in the heart of a boy,
but the rod of discipline drives it far away.

¹⁶Oppressing the poor in order to enrich oneself,
and giving to the rich, will lead only to loss.

¹⁷The words of the wise:

Incline your ear and hear my words,^c
and apply your mind to my teaching;
¹⁸for it will be pleasant if you keep them within you,

^a Another reading is establish

^b Heb strange

^c Cn Compare Gk: Heb Incline your ear, and hear the words of the wise

Ecdl 9.13–16. 23: See 10.8n. 24: See 9.7–9n. 25: See 6.6–11n. 27: See v. 3n. 28: See 19.5n. 30–31: The limitations of human wisdom in the light of the LORD’s superior wisdom; cf. 16.1–7. 22.1: A good name, cf. Sir 41.12–13. 2: God as creator of all, cf. 29.13; Job 31.13–15. 4–5: See 10.2–3n. 7: The borrower is the slave, debt slavery was a reality in ancient Israel (Ex 21.2–7; 2 Kings 4.1; Neh 5.5). 9: See 14.31n. 13: The excuses of the lazy person become more and more ridiculous; cf. 26.13. 14: Cf. 2.16–17; 7.10–27. 15: See 13.24n. 16: Giving to the rich probably indicates attempting to bribe them.

22.17–24.22: The words of the wise. This section forms a separate collection. Its sayings are formulated as longer units of second-person address, like the Egyptian “Instruction” genre and like Proverbs 1–9. The unit 22.17–23.11 has close similarities to the Egyptian “Instruction of Amenemope” (ca. 1100 BCE; see CoS 1.115–22), a text widely copied in schools. 22.17–23.11 follows its topical order and hence could be a Hebrew adaptation of the Egyptian text. 22.17–21: A prologue, patterned after the introduction to “Amenemope.” 20: Thirty sayings may correspond to the thirty sections of “Amenemope,” though it is not clear how there are thirty units in this

if all of them are ready on your lips.
¹⁹ So that your trust may be in the LORD,
 I have made them known to you today—yes, to you.
²⁰ Have I not written for you thirty sayings
 of admonition and knowledge, ²¹ to show you what is right and true,
 so that you may give a true answer to those who sent you?
²² Do not rob the poor because they are
 poor,
 or crush the afflicted at the gate;
²³ for the LORD pleads their cause and despoils of life those who despoil
 them.
²⁴ Make no friends with those given to
 anger,
 and do not associate with hotheads, ²⁵ or you may learn their ways
 and entangle yourself in a snare.
²⁶ Do not be one of those who give pledges,
 who become surety for debts.
²⁷ If you have nothing with which to pay,
 why should your bed be taken from under you?
²⁸ Do not remove the ancient landmark that your ancestors set up.
²⁹ Do you see those who are skillful in their work?
 They will serve kings;
 they will not serve common people.

23 When you sit down to eat with a ruler,
 observe carefully what^a is before you,
² and put a knife to your throat
 if you have a big appetite.
³ Do not desire the ruler's^b delicacies,
 for they are deceptive food.
⁴ Do not wear yourself out to get rich;
 be wise enough to desist.
⁵ When your eyes light upon it, it is gone;
 for suddenly it takes wings to itself,

flying like an eagle toward heaven.
⁶ Do not eat the bread of the stingy;
 do not desire their delicacies;
⁷ for like a hair in the throat, so are they.^c
 "Eat and drink!" they say to you;
 but they do not mean it.
⁸ You will vomit up the little you have eaten,
 and you will waste your pleasant
 words.
⁹ Do not speak in the hearing of a fool, who will only despise the wisdom of your words.
¹⁰ Do not remove an ancient landmark or encroach on the fields of orphans, ¹¹ for their redeemer is strong;
 he will plead their cause against you.
¹² Apply your mind to instruction and your ear to words of knowledge.
¹³ Do not withhold discipline from your
 children;
 if you beat them with a rod, they will not die.
¹⁴ If you beat them with the rod,
 you will save their lives from Sheol.
¹⁵ My child, if your heart is wise,
 my heart too will be glad.
¹⁶ My soul will rejoice
 when your lips speak what is right.
¹⁷ Do not let your heart envy sinners, but always continue in the fear of the
 LORD.
¹⁸ Surely there is a future,
 and your hope will not be cut off.

¹⁹ Hear, my child, and be wise,
 and direct your mind in the way.
²⁰ Do not be among winebibbers,
 or among gluttonous eaters of meat;

^a Or who

^b Heb his

^c Meaning of Heb uncertain

section. 22–23: As in “Amenemope,” concern for the poor follows the prologue. The LORD replaces the Egyptian Ma’at here as the one who pleads their cause. 24–25: See 14.7n. 26–27: See 6.1–5n. 28: Ancient landmark is a marker indicating a property boundary (cf. Deut 19.14; 27.17) which has ancestral authority. “Amenemope” contains a similar admonition. 29: Serve kings, cf. the similar comment in “Amenemope.” 23.1–3: Etiquette at the table of the powerful is an important topic in “Amenemope” and in other Egyptian instructions. See also Sir 31.12–18. 2: Knife to your throat, i.e., restrain your hunger. 4–5: “Amenemope” has a corresponding image using geese instead of an eagle. 6–8: “Amenemope” has a similar metaphor. 10–11: See 15.25; 22.28; redeemer refers to God. 13–14: See 13.24n. Sheol, the abode of the dead. 17–18: Cautions against envy; cf. 3.31; 24.1,19–20; 27.4. 20–

²¹ for the drunkard and the glutton will come to poverty, and drowsiness will clothe them with rags.

²² Listen to your father who begot you, and do not despise your mother when she is old.

²³ Buy truth, and do not sell it; buy wisdom, instruction, and understanding.

²⁴ The father of the righteous will greatly rejoice; he who begets a wise son will be glad in him.

²⁵ Let your father and mother be glad; let her who bore you rejoice.

²⁶ My child, give me your heart, and let your eyes observe^a my ways.

²⁷ For a prostitute is a deep pit; an adulteress^b is a narrow well.

²⁸ She lies in wait like a robber and increases the number of the faithless.

²⁹ Who has woe? Who has sorrow? Who has strife? Who has complaining?

Who has wounds without cause? Who has redness of eyes?

³⁰ Those who linger late over wine, those who keep trying mixed wines.

³¹ Do not look at wine when it is red, when it sparkles in the cup and goes down smoothly.

³² At the last it bites like a serpent, and stings like an adder.

³³ Your eyes will see strange things, and your mind utter perverse things.

³⁴ You will be like one who lies down in the midst of the sea, like one who lies on the top of a mast.^c

³⁵ “They struck me,” you will say,^d “but I was not hurt; they beat me, but I did not feel it.

When shall I awake?
I will seek another drink.”

24 Do not envy the wicked, nor desire to be with them;
² for their minds devise violence, and their lips talk of mischief.

³ By wisdom a house is built, and by understanding it is established;

⁴ by knowledge the rooms are filled with all precious and pleasant riches.

⁵ Wise warriors are mightier than strong ones,^e

and those who have knowledge than those who have strength;

⁶ for by wise guidance you can wage your war, and in abundance of counselors there is victory.

⁷ Wisdom is too high for fools; in the gate they do not open their mouths.

⁸ Whoever plans to do evil will be called a mischief-maker.

⁹ The devising of folly is sin, and the scoffer is an abomination to all.

¹⁰ If you faint in the day of adversity, your strength being small;

¹¹ if you hold back from rescuing those taken away to death, those who go staggering to the slaughter;

¹² if you say, “Look, we did not know this”— does not he who weighs the heart perceive it?

Does not he who keeps watch over your soul know it?

^a Another reading is delight in

^b Heb an alien woman

^c Meaning of Heb uncertain

^d Gk Syr Vg Tg: Heb lacks you will say

^e Gk Compare Syr Tg: Heb A wise man is strength

21: Warning against excessive eating and drinking; cf. Deut 21.18–21. 22–25: Parental relationships; see 10.1n. 26–28: A briefer version of Prov 7. Cf. 2.16; 6.26; 7.10. 29–35: A humorous mocking of the ill effects of drunkenness (cf. vv. 20–21; 20.1; 31.4–5; cf. Isa 5.11) with a comparison to seasickness in v. 34 (cf. Ps 107.26–27). 24.3–4: House indicates both building and household; cf. v. 27; 9.1; 14.1; 31.10–31. 5–6: Wise strategy outdoes might (cf. 21.22; but contrast 21.30–31). 10–12: God sees through excuses for not helping victims of violence and weighs

- And will he not repay all according to their deeds?
- ¹³ My child, eat honey, for it is good, and the drippings of the honeycomb are sweet to your taste.
- ¹⁴ Know that wisdom is such to your soul; if you find it, you will find a future, and your hope will not be cut off.
- ¹⁵ Do not lie in wait like an outlaw against the home of the righteous; do no violence to the place where the righteous live;
- ¹⁶ for though they fall seven times, they will rise again; but the wicked are overthrown by calamity.
- ¹⁷ Do not rejoice when your enemies fall, and do not let your heart be glad when they stumble,
- ¹⁸ or else the LORD will see it and be displeased, and turn away his anger from them.
- ¹⁹ Do not fret because of evildoers. Do not envy the wicked;
- ²⁰ for the evil have no future; the lamp of the wicked will go out.
- ²¹ My child, fear the LORD and the king, and do not disobey either of them;^a
- ²² for disaster comes from them suddenly, and who knows the ruin that both can bring?
- ²³ These also are sayings of the wise:
- will be cursed by peoples, abhorred by nations;
- ²⁵ but those who rebuke the wicked will have delight, and a good blessing will come upon them.
- ²⁶ One who gives an honest answer gives a kiss on the lips.
- ²⁷ Prepare your work outside, get everything ready for you in the field; and after that build your house.
- ²⁸ Do not be a witness against your neighbor without cause, and do not deceive with your lips.
- ²⁹ Do not say, "I will do to others as they have done to me; I will pay them back for what they have done."
- ³⁰ I passed by the field of one who was lazy, by the vineyard of a stupid person;
- ³¹ and see, it was all overgrown with thorns; the ground was covered with nettles, and its stone wall was broken down.
- ³² Then I saw and considered it; I looked and received instruction.
- ³³ A little sleep, a little slumber, a little folding of the hands to rest,
- ³⁴ and poverty will come upon you like a robber, and want, like an armed warrior.

25 These are other proverbs of Solomon that the officials of King Hezekiah of Judah copied.

Partiality in judging is not good.

²⁴ Whoever says to the wicked, "You are innocent,"

^a Gk: Heb do not associate with those who change

the heart (cf. 16.2; 21.2). 13–14: Honey refers to wisdom here (cf. 16.24; Ps 19.10; Ezek 3.3; Ps 119.103). 16: The doctrine of retribution is affirmed (see 10:2–3n.), though it is assumed that the righteous do encounter hardship. 17–18: Cf. Ps 35.11–16,19; Job 31.29. Contrast Pss 37:10–13; 52.5–7; 58.10–11. 19–20: See 10.2–3n.; cf. Job 18.5–6. 21–22: The LORD and the king are often associated in authority and respect; cf. 16.10; 21.1; Ex 22.28; 1 Kings 21.13.

24.23–34: Further words of the wise. A short separate section, an appendix to the words of the wise in 22.17–24.22. 23b–25,28: Legal language; cf. 17.15n.; 28.21; Lev 19.15; Deut 16.19. 26: Kiss on the lips, a gesture of respect and affection that should accompany truth. 27: The importance of correct priorities and advance preparation. 29: Human beings should not take punishment into their own hands; cf. vv. 17–18. 30–34: A short teaching-narrative about laziness; see 6.6–11n.

² It is the glory of God to conceal things, but the glory of kings is to search things
out.

³ Like the heavens for height, like the earth
for depth,
so the mind of kings is unsearchable.

⁴ Take away the dross from the silver, and the smith has material for a
vessel;

⁵ take away the wicked from the presence of the king,
and his throne will be established in
righteousness.

⁶ Do not put yourself forward in the king's
presence

or stand in the place of the great;
⁷ for it is better to be told, "Come up here," than to be put lower in the presence of a noble.

What your eyes have seen

⁸ do not hastily bring into court;
for^a what will you do in the end,
when your neighbor puts you to
shame?

⁹ Argue your case with your neighbor directly,
and do not disclose another's secret;

¹⁰ or else someone who hears you will bring shame upon you,
and your ill repute will have no end.

¹¹ A word fitly spoken is like apples of gold in a setting of silver.

¹² Like a gold ring or an ornament of gold is a wise rebuke to a listening ear.

¹³ Like the cold of snow in the time of harvest

are faithful messengers to those who send them;
they refresh the spirit of their masters.

¹⁴ Like clouds and wind without rain is one who boasts of a gift never given.

¹⁵ With patience a ruler may be persuaded,
and a soft tongue can break bones.

¹⁶ If you have found honey, eat only enough for you,
or else, having too much, you will vomit it.

¹⁷ Let your foot be seldom in your neighbor's house, otherwise the neighbor will become weary of you and hate you.

¹⁸ Like a war club, a sword, or a sharp arrow is one who bears false witness against a neighbor.

¹⁹ Like a bad tooth or a lame foot is trust in a faithless person in time of trouble.

²⁰ Like vinegar on a wound^b
is one who sings songs to a heavy heart.
Like a moth in clothing or a worm in wood,
sorrow gnaws at the human heart.^c

²¹ If your enemies are hungry, give them bread to eat;
and if they are thirsty, give them water
to drink;

²² for you will heap coals of fire on their heads,
and the LORD will reward you.

²³ The north wind produces rain,
and a backbiting tongue, angry looks.

^a Cn: Heb or else

^b Gk: Heb Like one who takes off a garment on a cold day, like vinegar on lye

^c Gk Syr Tg: Heb lacks Like a moth . . . human heart

25.1–29.27: Proverbial sayings copied by Hezekiah's officials. The heading refers not only to Solomon (cf. 1.1; 10.1), to whom the proverbial sayings are attributed, but also to the officials of King Hezekiah (king of Judah ca. 715–687 BCE) who were involved in their transmission. This note gives a rare indication of a historical context for this collection. 25.1: Copied refers to the editing and arranging of older sayings. 2–3: God's world is mysterious, but the king is endowed with the profound wisdom to seek to comprehend it. Cf. 1 Kings 4.29–34. Glory here means "action worthy of glory." 4–5: For similar uses of the metaphor of refining metals, see 27.21–22; Job 33.10; Isa 1.25; 48.10; Jer 6.29–30; Ezek 22.17–22. 6–7a: Proverb against self-promotion. 7c–10: Caution about haste in going to court with a grievance, advising direct mediation where possible. 11–12: The comparison of wisdom and its good practices to ornaments is a frequent motif; see 2.4n. On good speech cf. 15.23; 16.24; 20.15. 13–14: Use of weather imagery to illuminate human behavior (cf. v. 23). 15: A positive view of the power of persuasion. 16–17: The merits of restraint; cf. Sir 37.27–31. 18: See 19.5n. 22: Heap coals of fire on their heads, undeserved kindness awakens remorse; cf. Rom 12.17–21. A similar Egyptian penitential ritual was possibly known to the sages

²⁴ It is better to live in a corner of the housetop
than in a house shared with a contentious wife.

²⁵ Like cold water to a thirsty soul,
so is good news from a far country.

²⁶ Like a muddied spring or a polluted
fountain
are the righteous who give way before
the wicked.

²⁷ It is not good to eat much honey,
or to seek honor on top of honor.

²⁸ Like a city breached, without walls,
is one who lacks self-control.

26 Like snow in summer or rain in
harvest,
so honor is not fitting for a fool.

² Like a sparrow in its flitting, like a swallow in its flying,
an undeserved curse goes nowhere.

³ A whip for the horse, a bridle for the donkey,
and a rod for the back of fools.

⁴ Do not answer fools according to their folly,
or you will be a fool yourself.

⁵ Answer fools according to their folly,
or they will be wise in their own eyes.

⁶ It is like cutting off one's foot and drinking down violence,
to send a message by a fool.

⁷ The legs of a disabled person hang limp;
so does a proverb in the mouth of a fool.

⁸ It is like binding a stone in a sling
to give honor to a fool.

⁹ Like a thornbush brandished by the hand of a drunkard
is a proverb in the mouth of a fool.

¹⁰ Like an archer who wounds everybody is one who hires a passing fool or drunkard.^a

¹¹ Like a dog that returns to its vomit

is a fool who reverts to his folly.

¹² Do you see persons wise in their own
eyes?

There is more hope for fools than for
them.

¹³ The lazy person says, "There is a lion in the road!

There is a lion in the streets!"

¹⁴ As a door turns on its hinges,
so does a lazy person in bed.

¹⁵ The lazy person buries a hand in the dish, and is too tired to bring it back to the
mouth.

¹⁶ The lazy person is wiser in self-esteem than seven who can answer discreetly.

¹⁷ Like somebody who takes a passing dog
by the ears
is one who meddles in the quarrel of
another.

¹⁸ Like a maniac who shoots deadly firebrands and arrows,

¹⁹ so is one who deceives a neighbor and says, "I am only joking!"

²⁰ For lack of wood the fire goes out,
and where there is no whisperer,
quarreling ceases.

²¹ As charcoal is to hot embers and wood
to fire,
so is a quarrelsome person for kindling strife.

²² The words of a whisperer are like
delicious morsels;
they go down into the inner parts of the
body.

²³ Like the glaze^b covering an earthen
vessel
are smooth^c lips with an evil heart.

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Cn: Heb silver of dross

^c Gk: Heb burning

of Israel. 24: Cf. 21.9n. 26: A muddied spring refers to a befouled supply of fresh water, thus rendered useless (cf. Ezek. 34.18). 27–28: Cf. vv. 16–17.

26.1–12: A section on fools. The term used for fool here (Heb "kesil") refers to someone who is self-complacent to the point of obtuseness. 4–5: Juxtaposing two proverbs provokes reflection on their competing claims. Answering fools according to their folly means speaking to them on their level. On the one hand, doing so likens you to them; on the other, not doing so means they will think they have outwitted you. 8: Binding a stone in a sling is used as a metaphor for doing something that defeats the purpose; stones are meant to be thrown from a sling, not bound in it. 9: The expression may indicate uselessness (cf. vv. 7–8) or the use of a proverb in a hurtful way. 13–16: A section on lazy people; see 6.6–11n. 13: A ridiculous excuse; a lion is not likely to appear in the streets. 15: Such people are too lazy to eat (cf. 19.24). 17–28: A section on the consequences of antisocial speech

- ²⁴ An enemy dissembles in speaking while harboring deceit within;
²⁵ when an enemy speaks graciously, do not believe it, for there are seven abominations concealed within;
²⁶ though hatred is covered with guile, the enemy's wickedness will be exposed in the assembly.
²⁷ Whoever digs a pit will fall into it, and a stone will come back on the one who starts it rolling.
²⁸ A lying tongue hates its victims, and a flattering mouth works ruin.
- 27 Do not boast about tomorrow, for you do not know what a day may bring.
- ² Let another praise you, and not your own mouth— a stranger, and not your own lips.
³ A stone is heavy, and sand is weighty, but a fool's provocation is heavier than both.
⁴ Wrath is cruel, anger is overwhelming, but who is able to stand before jealousy?
⁵ Better is open rebuke than hidden love.
⁶ Well meant are the wounds a friend inflicts, but profuse are the kisses of an enemy.
⁷ The sated appetite spurns honey, but to a ravenous appetite even the bitter is sweet.
⁸ Like a bird that strays from its nest is one who strays from home.
⁹ Perfume and incense make the heart glad, but the soul is torn by trouble.^a ¹⁰ Do not forsake your friend or the friend of your parent; do not go to the house of your kindred in the day of your calamity.

- Better is a neighbor who is nearby than kindred who are far away.
¹¹ Be wise, my child, and make my heart glad, so that I may answer whoever reproaches me.
¹² The clever see danger and hide; but the simple go on, and suffer for it.
¹³ Take the garment of one who has given surety for a stranger; seize the pledge given as surety for foreigners.^b
¹⁴ Whoever blesses a neighbor with a loud voice, rising early in the morning, will be counted as cursing.
¹⁵ A continual dripping on a rainy day and a contentious wife are alike; ¹⁶ to restrain her is to restrain the wind or to grasp oil in the right hand.^c
¹⁷ Iron sharpens iron, and one person sharpens the wits^d of another.
¹⁸ Anyone who tends a fig tree will eat its fruit, and anyone who takes care of a master will be honored.
¹⁹ Just as water reflects the face, so one human heart reflects another.
²⁰ Sheol and Abaddon are never satisfied, and human eyes are never satisfied.
²¹ The crucible is for silver, and the furnace is for gold, so a person is tested^e by being praised.
²² Crush a fool in a mortar with a pestle along with crushed grain, but the folly will not be driven out.

^a Gk: Heb the sweetness of a friend is better than one's own counsel

^b Vg and 20.16: Heb for a foreign woman

^c Meaning of Heb uncertain

^d Heb face

^e Heb lacks is tested

and behavior. On concern for speech see 10.8n. 22: See 18.18. 27: A kind of “poetic justice” (cf. Ps 7.15; Eccl 10.8). 27.1–22: A miscellaneous collection featuring proverb pairs. 1–2: The words boast and praise are the same in Hebrew. 3–4: The imagery of overwhelming weight or force links these proverbs. 5–6: Two proverbs on the paradoxes of true friendship. 7: The same insight as expressed in Benjamin Franklin’s proverb, “Hunger is a good pickle.” 10: A tripartite proverb in which the main maxim is in the final part of the verse. 12: Cf. 22.3. 13: See 20.16. Repetition of earlier proverbs occurs frequently in this section. 14: A humorous proverb on untimely behavior; cf. Eccl 3.1–8. 15–16: See 19.13–14n. 17–19: Proverbs on beneficial interpersonal relationships. 20: Sheol

²³ Know well the condition of your flocks,
and give attention to your herds;
²⁴ for riches do not last forever,
nor a crown for all generations.
²⁵ When the grass is gone, and new growth appears,
and the herbage of the mountains is gathered,
²⁶ the lambs will provide your clothing,
and the goats the price of a field;
²⁷ there will be enough goats' milk for your
food,
for the food of your household
and nourishment for your servant-girls.

28 The wicked flee when no one pursues,
but the righteous are as bold as a lion.

² When a land rebels
it has many rulers;
but with an intelligent ruler
there is lasting order.^a

³ A ruler^b who oppresses the poor is a beating rain that leaves no food.

⁴ Those who forsake the law praise the
wicked,
but those who keep the law struggle against them.

⁵ The evil do not understand justice, but those who seek the LORD understand it completely.

⁶ Better to be poor and walk in
integrity
than to be crooked in one's ways even though rich.

⁷ Those who keep the law are wise
children,
but companions of gluttons shame their
parents.

⁸ One who augments wealth by exorbitant interest
gathers it for another who is kind to the poor.

⁹ When one will not listen to the law,
even one's prayers are an abomination.

¹⁰ Those who mislead the upright into evil
ways
will fall into pits of their own making,
but the blameless will have a goodly
inheritance.

¹¹ The rich is wise in self-esteem,
but an intelligent poor person sees through the pose.

¹² When the righteous triumph, there is great glory,
but when the wicked prevail, people go into hiding.

¹³ No one who conceals transgressions will
prosper,
but one who confesses and forsakes
them will obtain mercy.

¹⁴ Happy is the one who is never without fear,
but one who is hard-hearted will fall into calamity.

¹⁵ Like a roaring lion or a charging bear
is a wicked ruler over a poor people.

¹⁶ A ruler who lacks understanding is a cruel oppressor;
but one who hates unjust gain will enjoy a long life.

¹⁷ If someone is burdened with the blood
of another,

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Cn: Heb A poor person

and Abaddon, see 15.11n. 21: Cf. 17.3 where it is the LORD who tests. 22: The Heb term for fool here is “ewil,” a person of obstinate disposition without proper moral orientation. 23–27: A section of practical advice on tending flocks and herds (cf. 12.10; Sir 7.22). The reference to a crown in v. 24 and the traditional link of king and shepherd imagery (e.g., 1 Kings 22.17; Isa 44.28) means that it could be read as royal advice.

28.1–29.7: A distinct unit characterized by many antithetical proverbs and a concern for just government. 28.1 and 29.27 both contrast the righteous and the wicked. 28.2: Many rulers may refer to factions in the reign of a weak king or to a period of political instability. 3: A beating rain that leaves no food refers to the ruining of a ripe crop by heavy rain (cf. 26.1). 4: The law (Heb “torah”; cf. vv. 7,9; 29.18) can mean either revealed law or teaching, as often in Proverbs (e.g., 3.1). 5: Cf. 29.7. 8: Exorbitant interest is forbidden in biblical law; see Ex 22.25; Lev 25.36; Deut 23.19. By the principle of retribution, the oppressor should not profit (cf. 13.22; 14.31; 19.17). 9: Cf. 15.8,29. 11: In self-esteem, (lit., “in his own eyes”), the characteristic of a fool (cf. 3.7; 14.12; 26.5,12; 28.26). 14: Fear, a different word than in the phrase “the fear of the LORD.” The wise understand danger; fools do not (cf.

let that killer be a fugitive until death;
let no one offer assistance.

¹⁸ One who walks in integrity will be safe, but whoever follows crooked ways will fall into the Pit.^a

¹⁹ Anyone who tills the land will have plenty of bread,
but one who follows worthless pursuits
will have plenty of poverty.

²⁰ The faithful will abound with blessings, but one who is in a hurry to be rich will not go unpunished.

²¹ To show partiality is not good—yet for a piece of bread a person may do
wrong.

²² The miser is in a hurry to get rich and does not know that loss is sure to come.

²³ Whoever rebukes a person will afterward find more favor
than one who flatters with the tongue.

²⁴ Anyone who robs father or mother and says, “That is no crime,” is partner to a thug.

²⁵ The greedy person stirs up strife, but whoever trusts in the LORD will be enriched.

²⁶ Those who trust in their own wits are fools;
but those who walk in wisdom come through safely.

²⁷ Whoever gives to the poor will lack
nothing,
but one who turns a blind eye will get many a curse.

²⁸ When the wicked prevail, people go into hiding;
but when they perish, the righteous
increase.

29 One who is often reprov-ed, yet
remains stubborn,
will suddenly be broken beyond healing.

² When the righteous are in authority, the people rejoice;

but when the wicked rule, the people groan.

³ A child who loves wisdom makes a parent glad,
but to keep company with prostitutes is to squander one’s substance.

⁴ By justice a king gives stability to the
land,
but one who makes heavy exactions
ruins it.

⁵ Whoever flatters a neighbor is spreading a net for the neighbor’s
feet.

⁶ In the transgression of the evil there is a snare,
but the righteous sing and rejoice.

⁷ The righteous know the rights of the poor;
the wicked have no such
understanding.

⁸ Scoffers set a city aflame,
but the wise turn away wrath.

⁹ If the wise go to law with fools,
there is ranting and ridicule without relief.

¹⁰ The bloodthirsty hate the blameless,
and they seek the life of the upright.

¹¹ A fool gives full vent to anger,
but the wise quietly holds it back.

¹² If a ruler listens to falsehood,
all his officials will be wicked.

¹³ The poor and the oppressor have this in common:
the LORD gives light to the eyes of both.

¹⁴ If a king judges the poor with equity,
his throne will be established forever.

¹⁵ The rod and reproof give wisdom,
but a mother is disgraced by a neglected child.

¹⁶ When the wicked are in authority,
transgression increases,
but the righteous will look upon their downfall.

^a Syr: Heb fall all at once

14.16; 27.12). 17: Cf. Cain in Gen 4.12. 18: The Pit, i.e., Sheol, the abode of the dead; see 1.12n. 19: See 6.6–11n.; 20.21n. 21: For a piece of bread, bribery (cf. 18.5; 24.23b), accompanied by greed. 23: See 1.23n. 25–26: Proper and misplaced trust connect these sayings. 27: See 14.31n. 29.1: See 1.23n. 3: See 10.1n. 4: Cf. 16.10–13; 20.28. 5–6: Two proverbs linked by the imagery of a hidden trap. 7: Cf. 28.5. Wisdom literature often associates evil with a failure to perceive the true nature of things. 8: Set a city aflame, i.e., ignite anger. 9: With fools it is impossible to conduct a reasonable dispute (cf. 26.4). 11–13: On self-restraint see 12.16; 14.17. 12: On the critical role of the

¹⁷ Discipline your children, and they will give you rest; they will give delight to your heart.

¹⁸ Where there is no prophecy, the people cast off restraint, but happy are those who keep the law.

¹⁹ By mere words servants are not disciplined, for though they understand, they will not give heed.

²⁰ Do you see someone who is hasty in speech? There is more hope for a fool than for anyone like that.

²¹ A slave pampered from childhood will come to a bad end.^a

²² One given to anger stirs up strife, and the hothead causes much transgression.

²³ A person's pride will bring humiliation, but one who is lowly in spirit will obtain honor.

²⁴ To be a partner of a thief is to hate one's own life; one hears the victim's curse, but discloses nothing.^b

²⁵ The fear of others^c lays a snare, but one who trusts in the LORD is secure.

²⁶ Many seek the favor of a ruler, but it is from the LORD that one gets justice.

²⁷ The unjust are an abomination to the righteous, but the upright are an abomination to the wicked.

² Surely I am too stupid to be human; I do not have human understanding.

³ I have not learned wisdom, nor have I knowledge of the holy ones.^e

⁴ Who has ascended to heaven and come down?

Who has gathered the wind in the hollow of the hand?

Who has wrapped up the waters in a garment?

Who has established all the ends of the earth?

What is the person's name?

And what is the name of the person's child?

Surely you know!

⁵ Every word of God proves true; he is a shield to those who take refuge in him.

⁶ Do not add to his words, or else he will rebuke you, and you will be found a liar.

⁷ Two things I ask of you; do not deny them to me before I die:

⁸ Remove far from me falsehood and lying;

give me neither poverty nor riches; feed me with the food that I need,

⁹ or I shall be full, and deny you, and say, "Who is the LORD?"

^a Vg: Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Meaning of Heb uncertain

^c Or human fear

^d Or I am spent. Meaning of Heb uncertain

^e Or Holy One

30 The words of Agur son of Jakeh. An oracle.

Thus says the man: I am weary, O God, I am weary, O God. How can I prevail?^d king see 14.25; 16.10,12–13; 25.5; 29.4. 13: Cf. 22.2. The LORD gives life irrespective of a person's moral nature. 18: Prophecy, lit. "vision." Law, cf. 28.4n. A society lacking guidance experiences chaos. 19,21: The concern with servants suggests that the audience of Proverbs is the upper class. 23: Cf. 15.33; 16.18–19; 18.12. 24: Partner of a thief, not an actual accomplice, but someone with knowledge of the crime who discloses nothing (cf. Lev. 5.1). 25: Anxious fear of others detracts from trusting the LORD.

30.1–14: The words of Agur. A separate section with its own attribution to "Agur son of Jakeh," an unknown figure. 1: An oracle (Heb "massa"); cf. Num 24.14–25 (the oracle of Balaam). Others understand the Heb to mean "from Massa," a region of northern Arabia with a tribal group of that name, attested in Assyrian sources as early as 734 BCE, indicating that Agur was a non-Israelite sage. 2–3: The writer acknowledges his limitations in self-deprecating terms (cf. Ps 73.21–2; Job 25.4–6). 4: Rhetorical questions implying the answer "God" and referring to his work in creation (cf. Job 38.4–41). 5–6: A pious response to vv. 1–4; cf. Ps 18.30 (v. 5); Deut 4.2 (v. 6). 7–10: A prayer to God to be kept from falsehood and to be given just enough. This is the only prayer in the book of or I shall be poor, and steal,

and profane the name of my God.

¹⁰ Do not slander a servant to a master, or the servant will curse you, and you will be held guilty.

¹¹ There are those who curse their fathers and do not bless their mothers.

¹² There are those who are pure in their own eyes
yet are not cleansed of their filthiness.

¹³ There are those—how lofty are their
eyes,
how high their eyelids lift!—

¹⁴ there are those whose teeth are swords,
whose teeth are knives,
to devour the poor from off the earth,
the needy from among mortals.

¹⁵ The leech^a has two daughters;
“Give, give,” they cry.

Three things are never satisfied;
four never say, “Enough”:

¹⁶ Sheol, the barren womb,
the earth ever thirsty for water,
and the fire that never says, “Enough.”^a

¹⁷ The eye that mocks a father and scorns to obey a mother will be pecked out by the ravens of the valley
and eaten by the vultures.

¹⁸ Three things are too wonderful for me;
four I do not understand:

¹⁹ the way of an eagle in the sky,
the way of a snake on a rock,

the way of a ship on the high seas,
and the way of a man with a girl.

²⁰ This is the way of an adulteress:
she eats, and wipes her mouth,
and says, “I have done no wrong.”

²¹ Under three things the earth trembles;
under four it cannot bear up:

²² a slave when he becomes king,
and a fool when glutted with food;

²³ an unloved woman when she gets a husband,
and a maid when she succeeds her mistress.

²⁴ Four things on earth are small,
yet they are exceedingly wise:

²⁵ the ants are a people without strength,
yet they provide their food in the summer;

²⁶ the badgers are a people without power, yet they make their homes in the rocks;

²⁷ the locusts have no king,
yet all of them march in rank;

²⁸ the lizard^b can be grasped in the hand,
yet it is found in kings’ palaces.

²⁹ Three things are stately in their stride;
four are stately in their gait:

³⁰ the lion, which is mightiest among wild animals

and does not turn back before any;

³¹ the strutting rooster,^c the he-goat,
and a king striding before^a his people.

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Or spider

^c Gk Syr Tg Compare Vg: Meaning of Heb uncertain

Proverbs and could be a later addition (cf. Sir 31.1–4). 11–14: Four types of sinners are described: the unfilial, the self-deluded, the arrogant, and those who exploit the poor. The sayings are linked by repetition of keywords.

30.15–31: Numerical sayings. 15: The leech is a bloodsucking worm, an image of the insatiable. Two daughters, the suckers by which the leech attaches. Three . . . four, a numerical saying. 16: Four unlike phenomena are listed as insatiable: Sheol, the abode of the dead, never ceases claiming victims; the barren womb (cf. Gen 30.1) in that the woman’s desire for a child does not go away; the thirst of the dry earth for water; and the consuming fire (cf. Amos 7.4). 18–19: The catchword way, although used in different senses (course, manner, path, and sexual relations) unites the phenomena; cf. Wis 5.10–11. 20: A moralizing comment on v. 19d in the context of adultery; eats, engages in illicit sex (cf. 5.15; 9.17). 21–23: Four intolerable situations. Maid . . . mistress; cf. Sarah and Hagar in Gen 16.3–4. 24–28: Four small yet instructive creatures. Wisdom is valued over size and power. 29–31: Four examples of grandeur; cf. the association of lion and king in 19.12; 20.2.

- ³² If you have been foolish, exalting yourself,
or if you have been devising evil,
put your hand on your mouth.
³³ For as pressing milk produces curds,
and pressing the nose produces blood,
so pressing anger produces strife.

31 The words of King Lemuel. An oracle that his mother taught him:

- ² No, my son! No, son of my womb!
No, son of my vows!
³ Do not give your strength to women,
your ways to those who destroy kings.
⁴ It is not for kings, O Lemuel,
it is not for kings to drink wine,
or for rulers to desire^a strong drink;
⁵ or else they will drink and forget what has been decreed,
and will pervert the rights of all the afflicted.
⁶ Give strong drink to one who is perishing,
and wine to those in bitter distress;
⁷ let them drink and forget their poverty,
and remember their misery no more.
⁸ Speak out for those who cannot speak,
for the rights of all the destitute.^b ⁹ Speak out, judge righteously, defend the rights of the poor and
needy.
¹⁰ A capable wife who can find?
She is far more precious than jewels.
¹¹ The heart of her husband trusts in her,
and he will have no lack of gain.
¹² She does him good, and not harm,
all the days of her life.
¹³ She seeks wool and flax,
and works with willing hands.

- ¹⁴ She is like the ships of the merchant,
she brings her food from far away.
¹⁵ She rises while it is still night
and provides food for her household and tasks for her servant-girls.
¹⁶ She considers a field and buys it;
with the fruit of her hands she plants a vineyard.
¹⁷ She girds herself with strength,
and makes her arms strong.
¹⁸ She perceives that her merchandise is profitable.
Her lamp does not go out at night.
¹⁹ She puts her hands to the distaff,
and her hands hold the spindle.
²⁰ She opens her hand to the poor, and reaches out her hands to the needy.
²¹ She is not afraid for her household when it snows,
for all her household are clothed in crimson.
²² She makes herself coverings;
her clothing is fine linen and purple.
²³ Her husband is known in the city gates, taking his seat among the elders of the
land.
²⁴ She makes linen garments and sells
them;
she supplies the merchant with sashes.
²⁵ Strength and dignity are her clothing,
and she laughs at the time to come.
²⁶ She opens her mouth with wisdom,
and the teaching of kindness is on her
tongue.
²⁷ She looks well to the ways of her
household,

^a Cn: Heb where

^b Heb all children of passing away

31.1–9: The words of Lemuel, an unknown king who, like Agur (30.1), may have been a non-Israelite. 1: An oracle, see 30.1n. His mother, cf. 1.8b; 6.2ob. 2–9: Warnings against women and wine (only to be used for those in distress), and stress on his duties as king, notably to protect the powerless.

31.10–31 The capable wife. An acrostic poem of 22 lines (in which each verse begins with a subsequent letter of the Hebrew alphabet) from the point of view of the husband (vv. 11,23,28) and children (v. 28) about the ideal wife (v. 10) whose virtues are listed in hymnic style. 10: Capable (Heb “hayil”), variously rendered as “good,” “perfect,” “virtuous,” “noble,” “worthy,” or “valiant” (cf. 12.4; Ruth 3.11). Who can find? suggests it is difficult to do so (cf. 18.22; 19.14). More precious than jewels echoes personified Wisdom in 3.15; 8.11. 11–19: Her varied economic activities contribute to the well-being of the household. 19: Spindle, distaff, tools used in spinning. 20: Opens her hand, see Deut 15.7. 21–22: Crimson . . . purple, luxury items. 23: The city gates, where commercial and legal transactions took place (22.22; 24.7; Deut 21.19; 25.7; Ruth 4.1–12). 25: She is independent and confident;

PROVERBS 31

and does not eat the bread of idleness.

²⁸ Her children rise up and call her happy;
her husband too, and he praises her:

²⁹ “Many women have done excellently,
but you surpass them all.”

³⁰ Charm is deceitful, and beauty is vain, but a woman who fears the LORD is to be praised.

³¹ Give her a share in the fruit of her hands,
and let her works praise her in the city gates.

cf. Job 5.22; 39.22. 26: Cf. personified Wisdom in 8.6–10. 31: Praise from both family and the community. As one who fears the LORD (see 1.7n.) she is the embodiment of wisdom.

ECCLESIASTES

NAME AND AUTHOR

Ecclesiastes is the Latin transliteration of the Greek rendering of the pen-name of the author, known in Hebrew as Qohelet (also Qoheleth), which literally means “Gatherer” or “Acquirer” (of wisdom, wealth, pleasures). The Hebrew term indicates something of the acquisitive environment in which the author lived and taught. The Greek term, though, meant a member of an assembly and “Ecclesiastes” was soon interpreted, incorrectly, to mean “one who gathers the assembly,” hence, “Preacher.” Modern scholars noting that the author of the book is more like a philosopher than a preacher, sometimes prefer to translate the name as “Teacher” (cf. 12.9). The superscription of the book (1.2) presents Qohelet as “the son of David” who ruled in Jerusalem, evoking the memory of Solomon, king of Israel (968–928 BCE), the consummate sage and gatherer of wealth and wisdom (see 1 Kings 3–4; 10). Apart from the superscription and 1.12–2.11, however, the author never speaks as king, and the epilogue portrays the author as a teacher rather than as a king (12.9–14). Moreover, the perspective in most of the book is that of an outsider to the royal court (3.16; 4.13–16; 8.1–6; 10.16–20).

CANONICAL STATUS AND LOCATION IN THE CANON

Ecclesiastes is one of the poetical and wisdom books in the Christian canon. It shares many generic features of form and content with Proverbs and Job, the other books commonly referred to as wisdom literature. In the Jewish canon, it is placed in the third division of the canon, the Writings, as one of the Megillot or “five scrolls” (Ruth, Song of Solomon, Ecclesiastes, Lamentations, Esther). Perhaps because of its radical ideas, it was a controversial book in antiquity. In Jewish tradition the canonical status of Ecclesiastes was debated as late as the second century CE. Although Ecclesiastes is included on second-century Christian canonical lists, Bishop Theodore of Mopsuestia (fifth century) questioned its sacred status.

DATE OF COMPOSITION, HISTORICAL CONTEXT, AND INTERPRETATION

The date of the book is disputed, although most scholars argue on linguistic grounds that it should be dated to the postexilic period (after 539 BCE). The presence of two indisputable Persian loan words (“parks” in 2.5; “sentence” in 8.11) points to a date some time after 450 BCE, for there are no Persian loan words or Persian names in the Hebrew Bible that can be dated earlier. The abundance of Aramaisms (i.e., Aramaic loan words, forms, and constructions) also points to the postexilic period, when Aramaic became widely used in Palestine. A number of specific idioms regarding inheritance, grants, prisons, social abuses, judicial problems, and socioeconomic classes are attested in documents from the Persian period; in no other periods in history do we find such a coincidence of terminology. These features, together with the absence of Greek loan words or ideas with an indisputably Greek origin, suggest that the book should be probably dated sometime before the Hellenistic period, between 450 and 330 BCE, although many scholars date it a century later, based in part on putative links between Ecclesiastes and Greek philosophical ideas. The book is better understood, however, against the background of the ancient Near East.

The Persian period was characterized by tremendous economic activity, spurred on by the introduction of standardized coinage by the Persian central government beginning around 515 BCE. Money subsequently became a commodity, desired for its own sake (cf. 5.10; 7.12; 10.19). Standardized currency helped to democratize economic opportunities, so that it became possible for even the poorest people in society to become wealthy. As in any era of significant economic innovation, the Persian period brought both opportunities and risks to the average person in the empire.

The volatile economy led to widespread insecurity as people toiled to get ahead or simply to gain some control over their lives, and thus understand what was happening in their world. Qohelet uses the attitudes in that uncertain period as a trope to speak theologically about human attempts to control their lives and understand a world that is contradictory, if not altogether absurd. The sense of the individual as a small part of a large scene is evident in the political allusions (e.g., 4.1), which should be read against the background of the empire. Many descriptions of life and death emphasize the impotence of individuals to change their environment (8.8). The inevitability of one's fate (3.15; 6.10), the unavoidability of death (3.19), and the repetitions of life (3.1–8) all work together to create a vision of the remoteness, the inscrutability, and ultimately the indifference of the world to the individual. In a vision of bleak grandeur the author faces this indifference, acknowledges it, and admits an inability to transcend it, but nevertheless derives from it a hard-won wisdom: This is how the world is.

ECCLESIASTES

The author appears to have drawn lessons from the wider wisdom tradition, yet he often approached the preoccupation of his audience through socioeconomic idioms current in his generation. Despite the newness of their environment, the fundamental problems they faced about the possibility of coping with life in a world that is inconsistent, if not contradictory, were not new after all (see 1.10). Every generation must deal with the fact that mortals inevitably live in a world in which they do not have control (“all is vanity”) and life can only be lived before a sovereign God who alone determines all that happens on earth.

LITERARY STRUCTURE AND GUIDE TO READING

Opinions as to the literary structure of Ecclesiastes have ranged from the claim that there is no structure at all to attempts to work out intricate patterns. Most readers, however, discern only a rough structure. Clearly marked is the superscription (1.1) and the epilogue (12.9–14), and the motto of the book (“vanity of vanities”), which appears first in 1.2 and for the last time in 12.8. The opening poem (1.3–11) is matched at the end by a concluding poem (12.1–7). Between them the book has two halves of approximately equal length (1.12–6.9; 6.10–11.10). Within each half the first part presents a problematic situation (1.12–4.16; 6.10–8.17), and the second part contains advice on how to cope with that situation (5.1–6.9; 9.1–11.10).

Because the book is relatively short, it should be read in a single sitting. Readers should be alert for the repeated phrases that underline the recurrent perceptions of the author (e.g., “vanity of vanities,” “chasing after wind,” “under the sun”). Also, the reader is likely to note certain tensions, if not contradictions, in the book. Whether these represent the author's quotation and refutation of current opinion or whether they represent the author's own internal sense of contradictory experience remains debated. But the different perspectives, as well as the ironic tone, give the book a lively quality and the reader the sense of having been plunged into the midst of a conversation about important ideas.

Choon-Leong Seow

1 The words of the Teacher,^a the son of David, king in Jerusalem.
 2 Vanity of vanities, says the Teacher,^a vanity of vanities! All is vanity.
 3 What do people gain from all the toil at which they toil under the sun?
 4 A generation goes, and a generation comes, but the earth remains forever.
 5 The sun rises and the sun goes down, and hurries to the place where it rises.
 6 The wind blows to the south, and goes around to the north; round and round goes the wind, and on its circuits the wind returns.
 7 All streams run to the sea, but the sea is not full; to the place where the streams flow, there they continue to flow.
 8 All things^b are wearisome; more than one can express;

the eye is not satisfied with seeing, or the ear filled with hearing.
 9 What has been is what will be, and what has been done is what will be done; there is nothing new under the sun.
 10 Is there a thing of which it is said, “See, this is new”? It has already been, in the ages before us.
 11 The people of long ago are not remembered, nor will there be any remembrance of people yet to come by those who come after them.
 12 I, the Teacher,^a when king over Israel in Jerusalem,¹³ applied my mind to seek and to search out by wisdom all that is done under heaven; it is an unhappy business that God has given to human beings to be busy with.

^a Heb Qoheleth, traditionally rendered Preacher

^b Or words

1.1: Superscription. The author is identified by his pen-name, Teacher (Heb “Qohelet”; cf. 12.9), properly, “Gatherer”—one who is supposed to have accumulated plenty of everything, including wisdom, wealth, and pleasure. The description of the author as the son of David, king in Jerusalem evokes images of Solomon, the consummate gatherer of wealth, wisdom, and pleasure (see also 1.2–2.11; 1 Kings 3–4; 10).

1.2–11: Preface. Despite constant activity, the world seems always to remain the same. 2: Vanity, Heb “hebel,” which literally means “breath” or “vapor” (Isa 57.13; Ps 62.9). In Ecclesiastes, it is used as a metaphor for things that cannot be grasped either physically or intellectually, things that are ephemeral, insubstantial, enigmatic, or absurd. Elsewhere in the Bible, the human life span and human beings themselves are said to be “hebel” (see Pss 39.4–11; 62.9; 78.33; Job 7.16). Vanity of vanities is a way of expressing the superlative in Hebrew; hence the phrase means “utter vanity.” Virtually identical words are found in 12.8, the last verse of the book before the epilogue (12.9–14); the epigram thus frames the book. 3: The term gain does not mean just “benefit,” but “excess,” “advantage,” or “surplus.” Toil is not the same as “work.” The normal Hebrew word for the latter is also the word for “worship,” but the word for toil typically bears negative connotations. From all the toil may also be translated as “in exchange for all their toil.” Here, as elsewhere in the book, toil refers not only to the process of toiling, but to the fruit of one’s toiling (see 2.10). The phrase under the sun occurs in the Bible only in Ecclesiastes, but it is attested elsewhere in the ancient Near East. It is a near synonym of “under the heavens” (1.13; 2.3; 3.1). “Under the heavens,” however, is a spatial designation (referring to what is happening “everywhere in the world”), whereas under the sun refers to the realm of the living as opposed to the realm of the dead (cf. 4.15; 9.6,9). 4: The earth remains forever, better “the world always stays the same.” Despite human toiling and the coming and going of human generations, the world remains as it was. 5–7: The elements of nature—light, air, and water—are also engaged in daily activities, with no new results. The sun . . . hurries (lit. “stomps” or “pants”) to its destination, only to have to recommence its routine. The winds blow every which way and streams flow endlessly, with no new results. 8–11: As with nature, so with knowledge; human speculations and endless instructions produce nothing new. 11: Cf. 2.16; 9.5.

1.12–2.11: The author’s experiences and accomplishments. The style of this passage is similar to that of many royal inscriptions in the ancient Near East. The author, in his assumed role as king, has experienced it all and done it all, but even he has to admit that nothing is ultimately reliable. 1.12: The author takes on the persona of Solomon (1.1n.; 2.9). 13: Unhappy business or “terrible preoccupation” may refer to human anxiety

¹⁴ I saw all the deeds that are done under the sun; and see, all is vanity and a chasing after wind.^a

¹⁵ What is crooked cannot be made straight, and what is lacking cannot be counted.

¹⁶ I said to myself, “I have acquired great wisdom, surpassing all who were over Jerusalem before me; and my mind has had great experience of wisdom and knowledge.”¹⁷ And I applied my mind to know wisdom and to know madness and folly. I perceived that this also is but a chasing after wind.^a ¹⁸ For in much wisdom is much vexation, and those who increase knowledge increase sorrow.

2 I said to myself, “Come now, I will make a test of pleasure; enjoy yourself.” But again, this also was vanity. ² I said of laughter, “It is mad,” and of pleasure, “What use is it?” ³ I searched with my mind how to cheer my body with wine—my mind still guiding me with wisdom—and how to lay hold on folly, until I might see what was good for mortals to do under heaven during the few days of their life. ⁴ I made great works; I built houses and planted vineyards for myself; ⁵ I made myself gardens and parks, and planted in them all kinds of fruit trees. ⁶ I made myself pools from which to water the forest of growing trees. ⁷ I bought male and female slaves, and had slaves who were born in my house; I also had great possessions of herds and flocks, more than any who had been before me in Jerusalem. ⁸ I also gathered for myself silver and gold and the treasure of kings and of the provinces; I got singers, both men and women, and delights of the flesh, and many concubines.^b

⁹ So I became great and surpassed all who were before me in Jerusalem; also my wisdom remained with me. ¹⁰ Whatever

my eyes desired I did not keep from them; I kept my heart from no pleasure, for my heart found pleasure in all my toil, and this was my reward for all my toil. ¹¹ Then I considered all that my hands had done and the toil I had spent in doing it, and again, all was vanity and a chasing after wind,^a and there was nothing to be gained under the sun.

¹² So I turned to consider wisdom and madness and folly; for what can the one do who comes after the king? Only what has already been done. ¹³ Then I saw that wisdom excels folly as light excels darkness.

¹⁴ The wise have eyes in their head, but fools walk in darkness.

Yet I perceived that the same fate befalls all of them. ¹⁵ Then I said to myself, “What happens to the fool will happen to me also; why then have I been so very wise?” And I said to myself that this also is vanity. ¹⁶ For there is no enduring remembrance of the wise or of fools, seeing that in the days to come all will have been long forgotten. How can the wise die just like fools? ¹⁷ So I hated life, because what is done under the sun was grievous to me; for all is vanity and a chasing after wind.^a

¹⁸ I hated all my toil in which I had toiled under the sun, seeing that I must leave it to those who come after me ¹⁹—and who knows whether they will be wise or foolish? Yet they will be master of all for which I toiled and used my wisdom under the sun. This also is vanity. ²⁰ So I turned and gave my heart up to despair concerning all the toil of my labors under the sun, ²¹ because sometimes one who has toiled with wisdom

^a Or a feeding on wind. See Hos 12.1

^b Meaning of Heb uncertain

over all that is happening in the world. 14: Under the sun, see 1.3n. Chasing after wind, i.e., pursuit of futility (Hos 12.2; Prov 15.14; Sir 34.1–2). 15: A proverb about humanly impossible tasks (cf. 7.13). 2.4–11: A summary of accomplishments like those found in royal inscriptions. Despite his worldly successes, the author concludes that everything is but “vanity”—that is, beyond the grasp of mortals. 11: Nothing to be gained, cf. 1.3n.

2.12–26: The leveling effect of death. Whatever advantage anyone might have in life is negated by death. 12–17: Wisdom is better than folly (as light excels darkness, v. 13), yet the wise and fools face the same fate of death (v. 14; cf. 3.19–20; 9.2–3), and they are all forgotten after their death (cf. 1.11). 17: Chasing after wind, see 1.14n. 18–23: Toil does not give an advantage in the face of death. People cannot take the fruit of their toil with them when they die, and thus are discontented with it when they live. Even the possibility of passing an inheritance to heirs does not give enjoyment, for the heirs may not deserve the inheritance. 18: Under the sun, see and knowledge and skill must leave all to be enjoyed by another who did not toil for it. This also is vanity and a great evil.²² What do mortals get from all the toil and strain with which they toil under the sun?²³ For all their days are full of pain, and their work is a vexation; even at night their minds do not rest. This also is vanity.

²⁴There is nothing better for mortals than to eat and drink, and find enjoyment in their toil. This also, I saw, is from the hand of God;²⁵ for apart from him^a who can eat or who can have enjoyment?²⁶ For to the one who pleases him God gives wisdom and knowledge and joy; but to the sinner he gives the work of gathering and heaping, only to give to one who pleases God. This also is vanity and a chasing after wind.^b

3 For everything there is a season, and a time for every matter under heaven:
² a time to be born, and a time to die;
 a time to plant, and a time to pluck up what is planted;
³ a time to kill, and a time to heal;
 a time to break down, and a time to build up;
⁴ a time to weep, and a time to laugh;
 a time to mourn, and a time to dance; ⁵ a time to throw away stones, and a time to gather stones together;

a time to embrace, and a time to refrain from embracing;
⁶ a time to seek, and a time to lose;
 a time to keep, and a time to throw away;
⁷ a time to tear, and a time to sew;
 a time to keep silence, and a time to speak;
⁸ a time to love, and a time to hate;
 a time for war, and a time for peace.

⁹What gain have the workers from their toil?¹⁰ I have seen the business that God has given to everyone to be busy with.¹¹ He has made everything suitable for its time; moreover he has put a sense of past and future into their minds, yet they cannot find out what God has done from the beginning to the end.¹² I know that there is nothing better for them than to be happy and enjoy themselves as long as they live;¹³ moreover, it is God's gift that all should eat and drink and take pleasure in all their toil.¹⁴ I know that whatever God does endures forever; nothing can be added to it, nor anything taken from it; God has done this, so that all should stand in awe before him.¹⁵ That which is, already has been; that which is to be, already is; and God seeks out what has gone by.^c

^a GkSyr: Heb apart from me

^b Or a feeding on wind. See Hos 12.1

^c Heb what is pursued

1.3n. 24–26: People do not have control over their future; the only good is to partake of life fully in the present, for enjoyment is from the hand of God (v. 24). Cf. 3.13; 5.18; 9.7–10. The sovereign God arbitrarily gives the possibility of enjoyment to those who are somehow favored, but not to the sinner, a term that may simply mean “the one who misses out,” the loser (cf. 7.26; 9.2,18; Prov 8.36; 13.22; 14.21; 19.2; 20.2).

3.1–15: The determination of events. God determines time and timing. 1–8: A rhythmic series of contrary pairs (seven sets, each with two pairs of opposites) that together represent the totality and variety of the times and seasons humans encounter. These events include those that simply happen to people (like being born and dying) and occasions to which they must respond (like planting and plucking up what is planted). 9: The rhetorical question is essentially the same as in 1.3; 2.22; 6.11, except that human beings are called the workers (lit. “the one who acts”), even though God is the one who acts effectively in the following verses. 10: Business, see 1.13n. 11: The same God who made everything suitable for its time ironically puts a sense of past and future (lit. “eternity”) into human consciousness. Human beings must live with this paradox of knowing the reality that transcends the moment (“eternity”) while being able to cope only with the moment. 12–13: In view of human limitations, one should partake of good, for it is God's gift to do so; cf. 5.18. 14: Whatever God does endures forever, the Hebrew should be taken to mean that God's deeds are “eternal,” i.e., not bound by time (see 3.11n.). The timeless, eternal character of God's doing stands in stark contrast to the “eternity” that exists only in human hearts (v. 11). Human activity is always only “in its time” (v. 11), whereas God's activity is not bound by time. The language of adding and subtracting is used elsewhere for matters that are decisive, authoritative, and invariable (Deut 4.2; 12.32; cf. Jer 26.2; Prov 30.6). God establishes the difference so that human beings might know their place, that is, stand in awe of God. 15: What has gone by, lit. “what is pursued.”

¹⁶ Moreover I saw under the sun that in the place of justice, wickedness was there, and in the place of righteousness, wickedness was there as well. ¹⁷ I said in my heart, God will judge the righteous and the wicked, for he has appointed a time for every matter, and for every work. ¹⁸ I said in my heart with regard to human beings that God is testing them to show that they are but animals. ¹⁹ For the fate of humans and the fate of animals is the same; as one dies, so dies the other. They all have the same breath, and humans have no advantage over the animals; for all is vanity. ²⁰ All go to one place; all are from the dust, and all turn to dust again. ²¹ Who knows whether the human spirit goes upward and the spirit of animals goes downward to the earth? ²² So I saw that there is nothing better than that all should enjoy their work, for that is their lot; who can bring them to see what will be after them?

4 Again I saw all the oppressions that are practiced under the sun. Look, the tears of the oppressed—with no one to comfort them! On the side of their oppressors there was power—with no one to comfort them. ² And I thought the dead, who have already died, more fortunate than the living, who are still alive; ³ but better than both is the one who has not yet been, and has not seen the evil deeds that are done under the sun.

⁴ Then I saw that all toil and all skill in work come from one person's envy of another. This also is vanity and a chasing after wind.^a

⁵ Fools fold their hands and consume their own flesh.

⁶ Better is a handful with quiet than two handfuls with toil, and a chasing after wind.^a

⁷ Again, I saw vanity under the sun: ⁸ the case of solitary individuals, without sons or brothers; yet there is no end to all their toil, and their eyes are never satisfied with riches. “For whom am I toiling,” they ask, “and depriving myself of pleasure?” This also is vanity and an unhappy business.

⁹ Two are better than one, because they have a good reward for their toil. ¹⁰ For if they fall, one will lift up the other; but woe to one who is alone and falls and does not have another to help. ¹¹ Again, if two lie together, they keep warm; but how can one keep warm alone? ¹² And though one might prevail against another, two will withstand one. A threefold cord is not quickly broken.

¹³ Better is a poor but wise youth than an old but foolish king, who will no longer take advice. ¹⁴ One can indeed come out of prison to reign, even though born poor in the kingdom. ¹⁵ I saw all the living who, moving about under the sun, follow that^b youth who replaced the king;^c ¹⁶ there was no end to all those people whom he led. Yet those who come later will not rejoice in him. Surely this also is vanity and a chasing after wind.^a

^a Or a feeding on wind. See Hos 12.1

^b Heb the second

^c Heb him

3.16–22: The determination of humanity's fate. There are injustices in the world, even in places where one might expect justice; cf. 8.14. God will, however, adjudicate the situation in God's own time; cf. 12.14. 19: As far as mortality is concerned, human beings have no advantage over animals: All must die. 20: One place, Sheol, the abode of the dead (9.10). Dust, 12.7; Gen 3:19. 21: Who knows, a rhetorical question. The author is apparently skeptical about the belief in survival after death, an idea which was beginning to be developed.

4.1–16: Relative good. In the light of the author's insistence that there is nothing better for humanity than to enjoy work (3.22), these verses make plain that everything thought by mortals to be good is only relatively so. 1–3: The living still have to witness the injustices of life, whereas the dead no longer have to do so and those who have never been born never have to do so. 4–6: On the one hand, human toil and strivings are driven by envy. On the other hand, the idleness of fools is self-destructive. The better alternative, even if only relatively good, is to have a little (material goods, enjoyment, or both), but to have it with peace. 6: Sayings of the form “better . . . than” are common in Proverbs (12.9; 15.16–17; 16.8). 7–8: People toil for no reason other than habit or obsessive compulsion. 7: Under the sun, 1.3n. 9–12: There is relative advantage in numbers, but no guarantee. A three-ply cord may still snap, although not as easily as a cord with only two strands or one. 13–16: It is better to start out poorly and end up well. Every generation will have its new underdog-turned-hero, who will seem to have limitless support from populace, until the next hero comes along. 16: Vanity, 1.2n. Chasing after wind, 1.14n.

5^a Guard your steps when you go to the house of God; to draw near to listen is better than the sacrifice offered by fools; for they do not know how to keep from doing evil.^b ² ^cNever be rash with your mouth, nor let your heart be quick to utter a word before God, for God is in heaven, and you upon earth; therefore let your words be few.

³ For dreams come with many cares, and a fool's voice with many words.

⁴ When you make a vow to God, do not delay fulfilling it; for he has no pleasure in fools. Fulfill what you vow. ⁵ It is better that you should not vow than that you should vow and not fulfill it. ⁶ Do not let your mouth lead you into sin, and do not say before the messenger that it was a mistake; why should God be angry at your words, and destroy the work of your hands?

⁷ With many dreams come vanities and a multitude of words;^d but fear God.

⁸ If you see in a province the oppression of the poor and the violation of justice and right, do not be amazed at the matter; for the high official is watched by a higher, and there are yet higher ones over them. ⁹ But all things considered, this is an advantage for a land: a king for a plowed field.^d

¹⁰ The lover of money will not be satisfied with money; nor the lover of wealth, with gain. This also is vanity.

¹¹ When goods increase, those who eat them increase; and what gain has their owner but to see them with his eyes?

¹² Sweet is the sleep of laborers, whether they eat little or much; but the surfeit of the rich will not let them sleep.

¹³ There is a grievous ill that I have seen under the sun: riches were kept by their owners to their hurt, ¹⁴ and those riches were lost in a bad venture; though they are parents of children, they have nothing in their hands. ¹⁵ As they came from their mother's womb, so they shall go again, naked as they came; they shall take nothing for their toil, which they may carry away with their hands. ¹⁶ This also is a grievous ill: just as they came, so shall they go; and what

^a Ch 4.17 in Heb

^b Cn: Heb they do not know how to do evil

^c Ch 5.1 in Heb

^d Meaning of Heb uncertain

5.1–7: Attitude before God. God and human beings do not belong to the same realm. It is necessary, therefore, to have the right attitude before God. 1: It is more acceptable to obey God than to show off one's religiosity, as fools often do (cf. Prov 21.3; 1 Sam 15.22; Am 5.22–24; Hos 6.6). They do not know how to keep from doing evil, fools are often described as lacking perceptiveness (Prov 10.21,23; 14.8; 18.2). 3: In the ancient Near East, dreams were often seen as foreshadowing the future, though in coded symbols (cf. the anxiety-producing dreams of Pharaoh in Gen 41 and Nebuchadnezzar in Dan 2; 4). 4–7: Vows must be taken seriously; cf. Deut 23.21–22; Sir 18.2. The text warns against the lack of restraint in speech, for the mouth may bring condemnation to the entire person (cf. Lev 5.4; Prov 10.19). It is unclear who the messenger in v. 6 refers to; perhaps the Temple priest to whom people went to confess that they had erred (see Num 15.22–31; Lev 4.2,22,27–30). The confession would be useless, however, because God would still be angry at the foolish utterances. 7: Fear God, respect and awe before God are central values in wisdom literature (Job 1.1,8; 2.3; 28.28; Prov 1.7).

5.8–6.9: Enjoy, but do not be greedy. The passage is arranged in such a way that the outer sections lead inward toward its center in 5.20, with its call for enjoyment. 5.8: High official (lit. “high one”), a term elsewhere used of someone who is arrogant (Job 41.34; Ps 138.6; Isa 10.33; Ezek 21.26) and never of officials of any sort. This text does not refer to a government bureaucracy, but to ambitious people who strive to get ahead of one another and commit injustice in the process. No matter how high they get, however, there will always be people higher than they who look down upon them. 9: The meaning of this verse is obscure. 10: Wealth itself is not the problem here but greed—the insatiability of the rich (see Sir 31.5–7). Vanity, 1.2n. 11: The rhetorical question presupposes a negative answer. To see them with his eyes implies that wealth is good only for present enjoyment. 12: The contrast is not between one who works and one who is a sluggard, but between poor laborers (or “employees”) and the rich who cannot stop worrying despite the plenty they already possess (Sir 31:1). Surfeit, overindulgence in food or perhaps possessions. The rich consume so much that they are unable to sleep either because of indigestion or worry, or both. 13–14: The case of the rich person who accumulates much wealth, only to lose it all. 15: When people are buried, they figuratively return to the womb of mother earth; cf. Job 1.21;

gain do they have from toiling for the wind?¹⁷ Besides, all their days they eat in darkness, in much vexation and sickness and resentment.

¹⁸ This is what I have seen to be good: it is fitting to eat and drink and find enjoyment in all the toil with which one toils under the sun the few days of the life God gives us; for this is our lot.¹⁹ Likewise all to whom God gives wealth and possessions and whom he enables to enjoy them, and to accept their lot and find enjoyment in their toil—this is the gift of God.²⁰ For they will scarcely brood over the days of their lives, because God keeps them occupied with the joy of their hearts.

6 There is an evil that I have seen under the sun, and it lies heavy upon humankind:² those to whom God gives wealth, possessions, and honor, so that they lack nothing of all that they desire, yet God does not enable them to enjoy these things, but a stranger enjoys them. This is vanity; it is a grievous ill.³ A man may beget a hundred children, and live many years; but however many are the days of his years, if he does not enjoy life's good things, or has no burial, I say that a still-born child is better off than he.⁴ For it comes into vanity and goes into darkness, and in darkness its name is covered;⁵ moreover it has not seen the sun or known anything; yet it finds rest rather than he.⁶ Even though he should live a thousand years twice over, yet enjoy no good—do not all go to one place?

⁷ All human toil is for the mouth, yet the appetite is not satisfied.⁸ For what advantage have the wise over fools? And what do the poor have who know how to conduct themselves before the living?⁹ Better is the sight of the eyes than the wandering of desire; this also is vanity and a chasing after wind.^a

¹⁰ Whatever has come to be has already been named, and it is known what human beings are, and that they are not able to dispute with those who are stronger.¹¹ The more words, the more vanity, so how is one the better?¹² For who knows what is good for mortals while they live the few days of their vain life, which they pass like a shadow? For who can tell them what will be after them under the sun?

^a Or a feeding on wind. See Hos 12.1

Sir 40.1. 17: The preceding verses focus on the loss of possessions; this one highlights the complementary ill of not enjoying what one does possess. 18–19: The right to enjoy life is, as a rule, given by God to all humanity. 18: Under the sun, 1.3n. 19: Gift of God, cf. 3.12–13n. 20: They will scarcely brood over the days of their lives, perhaps better “they should not much call to mind the days of their lives.” Rather than constantly thinking about their lives and their mortality they should enjoy the present because God has given them joy. The Hebrew word translated keeps them occupied is the same form for the word “answer” (Prov 15.1,23; 16.1; 29.19; Job 32.3,5). 6.1–2: Whereas God has given some people the opportunity to enjoy (5.18–19), sometimes God does the contrary. 3: But however many are the days of his years, perhaps better “and yet he complains that the days of his years will come to pass.” Even though this person has everything that anyone might desire, including abundant wealth, progeny, and long life, he complains about the days ahead of him, dissatisfied with all that he has, and even worried about proper burial when he dies. In that case, he is no better off than a stillborn child (cf. Job 3.16–18). 4–6: There is no point in having a long life if one cannot enjoy it. 7: The appetite is not satisfied, the language here alludes to the insatiability of Death in Canaanite mythology (cf. Isa 5.14; Hab 2.5; Prov 27.20; 30.16). Compare the similar perspective on unending activity in 1.3–8. 8–9: Sight of the eyes . . . wandering of desire, the contrast appears to be between what is present and the insatiable appetite for what is not. The answer lies in the enjoyment of what one has, i.e., in contentment. 9: For the form of the saying, see 4.6n. Vanity . . . chasing after wind, 1.2n.; 1.14n.

6.10–7.14: The limits of knowledge. The passage begins (6.10–12) and ends (7.13–14) with statements that emphasize human ignorance and weakness, over against divine determination and the deity's incomprehensible activity. The “better . . . than” sayings in 7.1–12 are, therefore, quoted in mockery: they illustrate the sort of sayings proffered by those who believe that mortals know what is really good. 6.10–12: Despite the passive verbs (v. 10), it is clear that the author means that God is the one who has named and known. 10: Dispute with those who are stronger, a possible allusion to Job 9.1–4. 11–12: The reference to abundant and empty words anticipates the sayings to follow (7.1–12). By using rhetorical questions, the author suggests that humans have no advantage, because no one knows what is good for mortals. Neither the foolish nor the wise can give others

- 7 A good name is better than precious ointment,
and the day of death, than the day of birth.
- ² It is better to go to the house of mourning
than to go to the house of feasting;
for this is the end of everyone,
and the living will lay it to heart.
- ³ Sorrow is better than laughter,
for by sadness of countenance the heart is made glad.
- ⁴ The heart of the wise is in the house of mourning;
but the heart of fools is in the house of mirth.
- ⁵ It is better to hear the rebuke of the wise
than to hear the song of fools.
- ⁶ For like the crackling of thorns under a pot,
so is the laughter of fools;
this also is vanity.
- ⁷ Surely oppression makes the wise foolish,
and a bribe corrupts the heart.
- ⁸ Better is the end of a thing than its beginning;
the patient in spirit are better than the proud in spirit.
- ⁹ Do not be quick to anger,
for anger lodges in the bosom of fools.
- ¹⁰ Do not say, “Why were the former days better than these?”
For it is not from wisdom that you ask this.

- ¹¹ Wisdom is as good as an inheritance,
an advantage to those who see the sun.
- ¹² For the protection of wisdom is like the protection of money, and the advantage of knowledge is that wisdom gives life to the one who possesses it.
- ¹³ Consider the work of God;
who can make straight what he has made crooked?
- ¹⁴ In the day of prosperity be joyful, and in the day of adversity consider; God has made the one as well as the other, so that mortals may not find out anything that will come after them.
- ¹⁵ In my vain life I have seen everything;
there are righteous people who perish in their righteousness, and there are wicked people who prolong their life in their evildoing. ¹⁶ Do not be too righteous, and do not act too wise; why should you destroy yourself? ¹⁷ Do not be too wicked, and do not be a fool; why should you die before your time? ¹⁸ It is good that you should take hold of the one, without letting go of the other; for the one who fears God shall succeed with both.
- ¹⁹ Wisdom gives strength to the wise more than ten rulers that are in a city.
- ²⁰ Surely there is no one on earth so righteous as to do good without ever sinning.
- ²¹ Do not give heed to everything that people say, or you may hear your servant cursing you; ²² your heart knows that many times you have yourself cursed others.

advice on what is universally good. 7:1–12: A series of “better . . . than” sayings imitating the style of traditional proverbs (see 4.6n.), with their tendency to present issues in dialectical pairs: fame and luxury (v. 1a), birth and death (v. 1b), funeral and wedding (v. 2), merriment and sadness (v. 3), mourning and pleasure (v. 4), rebuke and praise (v. 5), the wise and the fool (vv. 6–7), beginning and end (v. 8), patience and arrogance (v. 8). The sayings are all subverted and relativized, however. The effect of the overall presentation is to show that no one knows what is universally good. Each saying may contain an element of truth, but the sum total of these many words is, again, “vanity” (v. 6; see 1.2n.)—just so much empty talk (cf. 6.11). 13–14: People should accept good when it is accessible and face adversity when that is a reality; see 1.15; 3.14.

7:15–29: Righteousness and wisdom are elusive. This passage consists of two parts: The first concerns the dangers of extreme behavior, including excessive righteousness and wisdom (vv. 15–22); the second concerns the elusiveness of wisdom (vv. 23–29). 15: The traditional doctrine of retribution (e.g., Prov 11.3–11) is often contradicted by experience. 16: Those who aspire to extreme righteousness (also meaning “rightness”) may destroy themselves. 17: Those who are too wicked and foolish will suffer the consequences. The wisdom tradition often advocates moderation (see Sir 7.4–5). 18: The one . . . the other refers to the two ideas in vv. 16–17. Whoever is religious (fears God) will follow both precepts. 19: Perhaps a proverbial illustration of the value people place on wisdom and power, although neither will avert death. 20: Perfect righteousness (“rightness”) is impossible, for every mortal misses the mark (cf. 1 Kings 8.46; 2 Chr 6.26; Pss 14.1–3; 53.1–3; 143.2; Prov 20.9; Job 4.17).

²³ All this I have tested by wisdom; I said, “I will be wise,” but it was far from me. ²⁴ That which is, is far off, and deep, very deep; who can find it out? ²⁵ I turned my mind to know and to search out and to seek wisdom and the sum of things, and to know that wickedness is folly and that foolishness is madness. ²⁶ I found more bitter than death the woman who is a trap, whose heart is snares and nets, whose hands are fetters; one who pleases God escapes her, but the sinner is taken by her. ²⁷ See, this is what I found, says the Teacher,^a adding one thing to another to find the sum, ²⁸ which my mind has sought repeatedly, but I have not found. One man among a thousand I found, but a woman among all these I have not found. ²⁹ See, this alone I found, that God made human beings straightforward, but they have devised many schemes.

8 Who is like the wise man?
And who knows the interpretation of a thing?

Wisdom makes one’s face shine,
and the hardness of one’s countenance is changed.

² Keep^b the king’s command because of your sacred oath. ³ Do not be terrified; go from his presence, do not delay when the matter is unpleasant, for he does whatever he pleases. ⁴ For the word of the king is powerful, and who can say to him, “What are you doing?” ⁵ Whoever obeys a command will meet no harm, and the wise mind will know the time and way. ⁶ For every matter has its time and way, although the troubles of mortals lie heavy upon them. ⁷ Indeed, they do not know what is to be, for who can tell them how it will be? ⁸ No one has power over the wind^c to restrain the wind,^c or power over the day of death; there is no discharge from the battle, nor does wickedness deliver those who practice it. ⁹ All this I observed, applying my mind to all that is done under the sun, while one person exercises authority over another to the other’s hurt.

¹⁰ Then I saw the wicked buried; they used to go in and out of the holy place, and were praised in the city where they had done such things.^d This also is vanity. ¹¹ Because sentence against an evil deed is not executed speedily, the human heart is fully set to do evil. ¹² Though sinners do evil a hundred times and prolong their lives, yet I know

^a Qoheleth, traditionally rendered Preacher

^b Heb I keep

^c Or breath

^d Meaning of Heb uncertain

26: The woman who is a trap, this is not a polemic against women in general but echoes in allegorical fashion the warnings in other wisdom writings against Folly, personified as a seductive woman (Prov 2.16–19; 5.20; 6.24–35; 7.5–27; 23.27–28). Wisdom is elusive, but Folly is on a hunt to catch people unawares. 27: Teacher, see 1.1n. Adding one thing to another, an image of an accountant or merchant working on a ledger (cf. v. 25). 28: One man among a thousand . . . a woman among all these, this notoriously difficult sentence may be a gloss prompted by misinterpretation of v. 26 as referring to women in general. The first part of the verse refers to the elusiveness of wisdom (cf. Prov 1.28; 3.13–15; 31.10).

8.1–17: Reflections on the limits of power. 1–5: Traditional advice on how to react to arbitrary power only shows the limits of wisdom. 1: Makes one’s face shine, elsewhere it is always God who “makes one’s face shine” (Num 6.25; Pss 31.16; 67.1; 80.3,7,19; 119.135; etc.). The idiom means “to be gracious” or “to be pleasant.” Wisdom causes one to act pleasantly. 2: Because of, perhaps “in the manner of.” Sacred oath, an oath sworn in the name of God (Ex 22.11; 2 Sam 21.7; 1 Kings 2.43), hence, the most solemn oath. A king’s command should be taken that seriously. 3: Do not delay when the matter is unpleasant, or “do not persist in a harmful thing,” possibly an allusion to sedition. In the face of overwhelming odds, one should not do anything dangerous. 5b–7: Time and way, lit. “time and judgment” (cf. 3.1,16–17). There are a proper time and a proper judgment, although no one knows when and how until after the fact. 8: Power over the wind to restrain the wind, or “power over the (life-) breath to hold back the (life-)breath.” No one has the power to avert death. No discharge from battle, better “no substitution in battle.” No one can send a substitute to take his or her place in the final battle that is death. 10: The wicked are properly interred and honored upon their death (Job 21.32–33). Vanity, 1.2n. 11: The slow judicial process encourages the wicked to do even more evil (Job 21.19–21). 12–13: The wicked may live long, but the human life span is finally limited: they will not prolong their days (that are) like a shadow, a transient and unreliable that it will be well with those who fear God, because they stand in fear before him,¹³ but it will not be well with the wicked, neither will they prolong their days like a shadow, because they do not stand in fear before God.

¹⁴ There is a vanity that takes place on earth, that there are righteous people who are treated according to the conduct of the wicked, and there are wicked people who are treated according to the conduct of the righteous. I said that this also is vanity.¹⁵ So I commend enjoyment, for there is nothing better for people under the sun than to eat, and drink, and enjoy themselves, for this will go with them in their toil through the days of life that God gives them under the sun.

¹⁶ When I applied my mind to know wisdom, and to see the business that is done on earth, how one's eyes see sleep neither day nor night,¹⁷ then I saw all the work of God, that no one can find out what is happening under the sun. However much they may toil in seeking, they will not find it out; even though those who are wise claim to know, they cannot find it out.

9 All this I laid to heart, examining it all, how the righteous and the wise and their deeds are in the hand of God; whether it is love or hate one does not know. Everything that confronts them² is vanity,^a since the same fate comes to all, to the righteous and the wicked, to the good and the evil,^b to the clean and the unclean, to those who sacrifice and those who do not sacrifice. As are the good, so are the sinners; those who swear are like those who shun an oath.³ This is an evil in all that happens under the sun, that the same fate comes to everyone. Moreover, the hearts of all are full of evil; madness is in their hearts while they live, and after that they go to the dead.⁴ But whoever is joined with all the living has hope, for a living dog is better than a dead lion.⁵ The living know that they will die, but the dead know nothing; they have no more reward, and even the memory of them is lost.⁶ Their love and their hate and their envy have already perished; never again will they have any share in all that happens under the sun.

⁷ Go, eat your bread with enjoyment, and drink your wine with a merry heart; for God has long ago approved what you do.⁸ Let your garments always be white; do not let oil be lacking on your head.⁹ Enjoy life with the wife whom you love, all the days of your vain life that are given you under the sun, because that is your portion in life and in your toil at which you toil under the sun.¹⁰ Whatever your hand finds to do, do with your might; for there is no work or thought or knowledge or wisdom in Sheol, to which you are going.

¹¹ Again I saw that under the sun the race is not to the swift, nor the battle to the strong,

^a Syr Compare Gk: Heb *Everything that confronts them*² is everything

^b Gk Syr Vg: Heb lacks and the evil

thing (cf. 6.12; Pss 102.11; 109.23; 144.4; Job 8.9; 14.2; 17.7). 14: Vanity . . . vanity, here means an incomprehensible situation (see 1.2n.). 15: To eat, and drink, and enjoy, traditionally “to eat, and to drink, and to be merry” (KJV); cf. 2.24; 3.13; 5.18; 9.7. 16–17: One's eyes see sleep neither day nor night, an idiom for constant effort. Even those who are so dedicated to understanding God's mysterious activity cannot find what they yearn to know.

9.1–10: Enjoy life. All people face the common fate of death, regardless of their character. Yet life is better than death and one should enjoy life whenever able to do so. 1–2: Love and hate may refer to human emotions that accompany their deeds, or to divine favor and disfavor. Since death comes to all (cf. 2.14–15; 3.19), one cannot deduce God's attitude. Vanity, 1.2n. 4–6: For all its limitations, life is still better than death, for the dead will not have whatever life has to offer. For the living, there are still some possibilities, however uncertain and ephemeral those may be. 7–10: Enjoy life while you can, for God has already approved what you do; when you die this will be impossible. A similar passage in the ancient Mesopotamian epic of Gilgamesh suggests that the advice to enjoy life in the full knowledge of certain death was a piece of folk wisdom. 8: Let your garments always be white, clean garments indicate a happy, prosperous life. Oil . . . on your head, another indication of happiness and prosperity (cf. Ps 23.5). 9: Vain life, lit. “days of vanity,” here refers to the ephemeral nature of life (see 1.2n.). 10: Whatever your hand finds to do, means one's ability to act (cf. Lev 12.8; 25.28; 1 Sam 10.7). Sheol, the abode of the dead.

9.11–10.15: The world is full of risks. 9.11–12: The author disputes the cause-and-effect or act-and-consequence logic that characterizes Proverbs' view of life. Outcomes are not predictable. Time and chance, i.e., death nor bread to the wise, nor riches to the intelligent, nor favor to the skillful; but time and chance happen to them all. ¹²For no one can anticipate the time of disaster. Like fish taken in a cruel net, and like birds caught in a snare, so mortals are snared at a time of calamity, when it suddenly falls upon them.

¹³I have also seen this example of wisdom under the sun, and it seemed great to me.

¹⁴There was a little city with few people in it. A great king came against it and besieged it, building great siegeworks against it. ¹⁵Now there was found in it a poor wise man, and he by his wisdom delivered the city. Yet no one remembered that poor man. ¹⁶So I said, “Wisdom is better than might; yet the poor man’s wisdom is despised, and his words are not heeded.”

¹⁷The quiet words of the wise are more to be heeded than the shouting of a ruler among fools.

¹⁸Wisdom is better than weapons of war, but one bungler destroys much good.

10 Dead flies make the perfumer’s ointment give off a foul odor; so a little folly outweighs wisdom and honor.

²The heart of the wise inclines to the right, but the heart of a fool to the left.

³Even when fools walk on the road, they lack sense, and show to everyone that they are fools.

⁴If the anger of the ruler rises against you, do not leave your post, for calmness will undo great offenses.

⁵There is an evil that I have seen under the sun, as great an error as if it proceeded from the ruler: ⁶folly is set in many high places, and the rich sit in a low place. ⁷I have seen slaves on horseback, and princes walking on foot like slaves.

⁸Whoever digs a pit will fall into it; and whoever breaks through a wall will be bitten by a snake.

⁹Whoever quarries stones will be hurt by them; and whoever splits logs will be endangered by them.

¹⁰If the iron is blunt, and one does not whet the edge, then more strength must be exerted; but wisdom helps one to succeed.

¹¹If the snake bites before it is charmed, there is no advantage in a charmer.

¹²Words spoken by the wise bring them favor, but the lips of fools consume them.

¹³The words of their mouths begin in foolishness, and their talk ends in wicked madness;

¹⁴yet fools talk on and on. No one knows what is to happen, and who can tell anyone what the future holds?

¹⁵The toil of fools wears them out, for they do not even know the way to town.

¹⁶Alas for you, O land, when your king is a servant,^a and your princes feast in the morning!

^a Or a child

as an unpredictable event. 13–16: An illustration that wisdom provides no guarantee. Wisdom may be better than might, but wisdom may not be heeded because of issues of social class. 15: Delivered, better “might have delivered.” The text concerns lost opportunity. This wise man might have saved the city, but no one thought of him because of his lowly status. 17: A proverb that can only be understood ironically in light of v. 16. 18: The relative virtue of wisdom is negated by a single fool. 10.1: With a slight emendation, the text reads “a fly that dies” instead of dead flies. Just as a single fool might negate the value of wisdom, so a single dead fly could ruin a pot of precious ointment. 2: Right . . . left, indicate opposite sides, but may also carry ethical connotations of what is good and right on the one hand, and what is bad and sinister on the other. 5–7: A world turned topsy-turvy (see Prov 26.1; 30.21–23; Isa 3.4–5). 8: The hunter who digs a pit to trap animals is most vulnerable to his own trap. A farmer who breaks down old walls to build new ones is susceptible to dangers that come with that task. 9: Whoever quarries stones or splits logs is vulnerable to occupational hazards. 10–11: Just as precautionary measures might help avert accidents, so wisdom is desirable. Yet, sometimes the precautionary measure may come too late or where there may be no advantage in taking the measure at all (as with snakes that cannot be charmed).

10.16–11.6: Living with risks. First political risks are discussed (10.16–20), then economic risks (11.1–6).

¹⁷ Happy are you, O land, when your king is a nobleman,
and your princes feast at the proper
time—

for strength, and not for drunkenness!

¹⁸ Through sloth the roof sinks in,
and through indolence the house leaks.

¹⁹ Feasts are made for laughter;
wine gladdens life,
and money meets every need.

²⁰ Do not curse the king, even in your thoughts,
or curse the rich, even in your bedroom;

for a bird of the air may carry your voice,
or some winged creature tell the matter.

11 Send out your bread upon the waters,
for after many days you will get it back.

² Divide your means seven ways, or even eight,
for you do not know what disaster may happen on earth.

³ When clouds are full,
they empty rain on the earth;

whether a tree falls to the south or to the north,
in the place where the tree falls, there it will lie.

⁴ Whoever observes the wind will not sow;
and whoever regards the clouds will not reap.

⁵ Just as you do not know how the breath
comes to the bones in the mother's womb, so you do not know the work of God, who makes everything.

⁶ In the morning sow your seed, and at evening do not let your hands be idle; for you do not know which will prosper, this or that,
or whether both alike will be good.

⁷ Light is sweet, and it is pleasant for the eyes to see the sun.

⁸ Even those who live many years should rejoice in them all; yet let them remember that the days of darkness will be many. All that comes is vanity.

⁹ Rejoice, young man, while you are young,
and let your heart cheer you in the days of your youth. Follow the inclination of your

10.16–17: Your king is a servant, or “your king is a boy” (the Heb word has both meanings). The point is that incompetent people have gained power (cf. 9.17–18; 10.5–6), and other leaders, too, have proven themselves unqualified because of their indiscretion. 18–19: The house leaks, or, “the house collapses”: subversive political commentary in the guise of an innocuous proverb. The saying appears to be about the ruin of a house because of the owner’s laziness, but the house may have political overtones, suggesting the incompetence and indiscretion of the leaders. Similarly, v. 19 may be read as a proverb affirming life’s pleasures and rewards, or as a critique of the irresponsible lifestyle of the elite. 20: The Heb verb for curse used here simply means “to denigrate” or “to vilify.” The author warns against the kinds of subversive activity suggested by the “inside jokes” of vv. 18–19. Even cryptic and private criticisms will become known to those in power. 11.1: Send out your bread upon the waters, a parallel from an Egyptian wisdom text suggests that this is about spontaneous good deeds. Generosity is expressed by the image of bread that is voluntarily given up, released upon the waters, where it will either float downstream or sink. One may do something without thinking much about it, yet one may not lose all in such an action. 2: Divide your means seven ways, or even eight, lit. “Give a portion to seven or even to eight.” This is a numerical saying (Prov 6.16; 30.15–33; Am 1–2); seven and eight together signify a large, though indefinite, amount (cf. Mic 5.5). The point is to be generous “although” (instead of for) one does not know what the future may bring. 3–4: Clouds and wind are mysterious things that mortals do not control. When clouds are saturated it will rain, and when a tree is blown by a north wind or a south wind it will fall accordingly. People are powerless either to cause these natural phenomena or to prevent them from happening. The farmer who waits for the perfect weather conditions to sow or to reap will never do so. 5: The Heb word for breath is the same word used for “wind” in v. 4. The word used for mother (lit. “full one”) echoes the reference to the clouds being “full” (v. 3). Just as the movement of the wind is a mystery, so too the way the life-breath enters a body is a mystery. Likewise, the activity of God is a mystery beyond human understanding (cf. Ps 139.13–16). 6: Instead of waiting for the perfect timing, one should be willing to work at any time—in the morning or at evening.

11.7–12.8: Conclusion: enjoy life while there is still time to do so. 8: All that comes is vanity (see 1.2n.), i.e., nothing is permanent. 9: But know that . . . God will bring you into judgment: the translation implies that enjoyment is contrary to the will of God. For the author, however, enjoyment is a divine gift (2.24–26; 3.10–15; 5.18–20; 9.7,9). A better translation is: “and know that . . . God will bring you into judgment” for failure to accept heart and the desire of your eyes, but know that for all these things God will bring you into judgment.

¹⁰ Banish anxiety from your mind, and put away pain from your body; for youth and the dawn of life are vanity.

12 Remember your creator in the days of your youth, before the days of trouble come, and the years draw near when you will say, “I have no pleasure in them”; ² before the sun and the light and the moon and the stars are darkened and the clouds return with^a the rain; ³ in the day when the guards of the house tremble, and the strong men are bent, and the women who grind cease working because they are few, and those who look through the windows see dimly; ⁴ when the doors on the street are shut, and the sound of the grinding is low, and one rises up at the sound of a bird, and all the daughters of song are brought low; ⁵ when one is afraid of heights, and terrors are in the road; the almond tree blossoms, the grasshopper drags itself along^b and desire fails; because all must go to their eternal home, and the mourners will go about the streets; ⁶ before the silver cord is snapped,^c and the golden bowl is broken, and the pitcher is broken at the fountain, and the wheel broken at the cistern, ⁷ and the dust returns to the earth as it was, and the breath^d returns to God who gave it.

⁸ Vanity of vanities, says the Teacher;^e all is vanity.

⁹ Besides being wise, the Teacher^e also taught the people knowledge, weighing and studying and arranging many proverbs. ¹⁰ The Teacher^e sought to find pleasing words, and he wrote words of truth plainly.

¹¹ The sayings of the wise are like goads, and like nails firmly fixed are the collected sayings that are given by one shepherd.^f ¹² Of anything beyond these, my child, beware.

^a Or after; Heb ‘ahar

^b Or is a burden

^c Syr Vg Compare Gk: Heb is removed

^d Or the spirit

^e Qoheleth, traditionally rendered Preacher

^f Meaning of Heb uncertain

the gift of enjoyment. 12.1: The mention of the creator anticipates v. 7. The Heb for your creator (“bore’eka”) sounds like the word “cistern” (“bor”) in v. 6. The call to remember points back to the injunction to enjoy while one is able (11.7–10), but it also points forward to the scene of death at the end of the passage and to the creator who gave and will receive the human life-breath (v. 7.) 2–7: In a poem that uses eschatological language, the author takes poetic license in arguing that mortals should enjoy what they can while they still have a chance, for a time may come when no one can enjoy. With poetic exaggeration, the author depicts the end of human life in terms of the end of the world. 2: The language of the darkening sky is reminiscent of prophetic eschatology (cf. Isa 5,30; 13,10; Ezek 32,7–8; Am 5,8; 8,9; Mic 3,6). The Heb text says that rain clouds return “after” (not with) the rain, a sign of disaster, perhaps implying the return of the Flood (Gen 7,11–12; 8,2). 3: In the day when (cf. Mal 3,1–3). Even the strong and valiant are terrified of what is happening (cf. Rev 6,12–17). The women who work the mills suddenly stop work (cf. Mt 24,40–41; Lk 17,34–35). Women look out the windows in despair (cf. Judg 5,28). The domestic routines are interrupted. 4: The doors of the street-bazaar are shut; the mills that produce meals are silenced. One rises up at the sound of a bird, better “the sound of the birds rises,” a reference to the cacophony of birds of prey descending. Thus, while the salutary sound of the mill drops, the unsavory sound of the birds rises. Moreover, the birds actually descend when they see the terror on the ground (v. 5). 5: The translation of this difficult text depends on the interpretation of the scenario. The consonantal text of the Hebrew suggests the decline and dying of several types of trees. Thus, it is not the blossoming of the almond tree, but the tree becoming “hideous.” The “locust” tree, too, “droops” (NRSV: the grasshopper drags itself along), while the caper-berry tree defoliates (NRSV: desire fails). In short, nature languishes (Am 1,2; Joel 2,12; Hab 3,17; Rev 6,12–14), as humanity marches toward the grave, their eternal home and an imaginary funeral takes place. 6: Symbols of the permanent end of life. 7: See Gen 2,7; 3,19. 8: Vanity of vanities, the words echo 1,2, which together with this verse frame the body of the book.

12.9–14: Epilogue. An assessment and apology for the author and the book. 9: The author is a typical sage: He teaches, gathers wisdom sayings, and works with them. 10: Like a sage, the author’s words have been deliberately chosen and rightly presented. 11: The words of the wise are hard to hear but, like goads and nails, they have been deliberately applied as by a shepherd to his flock. 12: A formulaic conclusion to establish the

Of making many books there is no end, and much study is a weariness of the flesh.

¹³The end of the matter; all has been heard. Fear God, and keep his commandments; for that is the whole duty of everyone.

¹⁴For God will bring every deed into judgment, including^a every secret thing, whether good or evil.

^a Or into the judgment on authority of the text. Everything intended by the author has been laid out. 13: The end of the matter, these words originally ended the epilogue and, hence, the book. The words beyond this point are later additions. The call to fear God is found elsewhere in the book (3.14; 5.7; 8.12–13), but the call to obey God's commandments is not.

THE SONG OF SOLOMON

NAME OF BOOK AND LOCATION IN CANON

The Song of Solomon (Heb “Song of Songs”), also known as Canticles, appears in the Megillot, or “five scrolls” (Ruth, Song of Songs, Ecclesiastes, Lamentations, Esther), in the third part of the Jewish canon, the Writings. In the Christian canon it is among the Poetical and Wisdom books.

AUTHORSHIP, DATE OF COMPOSITION, LITERARY AND HISTORICAL CONTEXT

The Song of Solomon, the Bible’s only love poem, offers no clues about when, where, or under what circumstances it was composed. Its author is unknown. The traditional attribution of the book to Solomon probably derives from references to Solomon in the poem (1.5; 3.7,9,11; 8.11,12) and his reputation as the composer of songs (1 Kings 4.32) and owner of a large harem (1 Kings 11.3).

Speculation about the date of composition ranges from the time of Solomon (tenth century BCE) to the Hellenistic period (fourth to second centuries BCE). Some scholars see the Song as a collection, in which case the various love poems would come from different authors and different times.

Similarities to Mesopotamian (3000–1000 BCE) and, in particular, Egyptian love poetry (thirteenth to eleventh centuries BCE), indicate that the poet drew upon a rich cultural tradition of love poetry. Shared features include wishing, desiring, praising the beloved, metaphoric descriptions of the body, double entendre, nature imagery, and the appeal to the senses. Sometimes a dialogue format is used; frequently the lovers address each other as “sister” and “brother.” Many of the Mesopotamian love poems deal with the marriage of the goddess and her consort and were used in ritual contexts. In contrast, the Song, like the Egyptian love poems, is not about gods nor does it appear to have had anything to do with worship.

STRUCTURE AND CONTENTS

The Song is about how glorious it is to be in love. It looks at love from both a woman’s and a man’s point of view, and it consists entirely of dialogue, so that we learn about love through what lovers say about it. The dialogue format creates the impression that we are overhearing the lovers as they speak, and observing their love unfold. The poet seeks to immortalize a vision of love as strong as death by portraying the lovers as forever seeking and finding gratification of their mutual desire. They delight in each other and in the sights, sounds, smells, tastes, and tangibility of the world around them, making the Song a feast for the senses.

A third speaking voice belongs to the women of Jerusalem, a kind of chorus functioning as an audience within the poem and whose presence, because the lovers are aware of and encourage it, facilitates the reader’s entry into the lovers’ seemingly private world of erotic intimacy.

The poem begins and ends with short speeches in which the speakers change frequently, and the voices of the woman, the man, and, occasionally, the women of Jerusalem intermingle (1.2–2.7; 8.1–14). In between—although the structure is not rigid—are two cycles of long speeches, in which the woman speaks, then the man, with the woman interrupting his speeches at the end (2.8–3.11 and 4.1–5.1; 5.2–6.3 and 6.4–7.13).

INTERPRETATION

Allegory was the dominant mode of interpretation from the early centuries of the Common Era until the rise of critical biblical scholarship in the nineteenth century. Jewish interpreters typically read the Song as an account of the relationship between God and Israel, while Christians saw it as about the love between Christ and the church, or Christ (or the divine logos) and the individual believer. Modern scholars recognize its subject as human love, though some have argued that it originated as a liturgical text whose speakers are a god and goddess. Whether the Song was included in the canon because it had been allegorized or was allegorized because it had been included in the canon has long been debated. Allegorization alone cannot have been the reason the Song was included, since the text must have already achieved a certain status—perhaps as national religious literature—for anyone to have taken the trouble to develop an allegorical interpretation of it.

GUIDE TO READING

The Song is a lyric poem, not a record of events in the lives of two lovers. This means that unusual events or sudden transitions do not require explanation to make them seem more realistic or more intelligible. When we read lyric poetry, which is essentially a discontinuous form, we should not expect to find the kind of linear unfolding of events that produces a plot. The Song meanders, repeating themes, images, phrases, and sometimes whole sections. As we read the poem, we may feel that we get to know the lovers, for they each have their own distinctive way of talking about their love and its effect on them. She is lovesick (2.5; 5.8), and she tells stories in which he comes to court her and she searches for him (2.8–17; 3.1–5; 5.2–8). He is overwhelmed by her (4.9; 6.5), and praises her charms in detail (4.1–15; 6.4–10; 7.1–9). Yet even as we build a picture of them, we need to recognize that the woman and the man are personae created by the poet to represent all lovers. They appear in various guises—shepherds, vineyard keepers, royal figures—as well as appearing as themselves. Because they are not real lovers, their movements are not restricted. They effortlessly traverse the poetic landscape—vineyards, gardens, palaces, houses, rocky cliffs, the wilderness, Lebanon—finding pleasure wherever their fancy takes them.

Readers are meant to revel in the poem's sonorousness, rich vocabulary, and exotic images. Its dense metaphoric language and extravagant images are not reducible to simple prose paraphrase, and typically the metaphors the lovers use to describe each other's bodies hide as much as they reveal.

This is no private poem, intended for a lover's ears only. It invites its readers to participate in the wonder of love, along with the women of Jerusalem, whose presence serves as a reminder that what seems to be a closed dialogue between lovers is indeed addressed to the reader.

J. Cheryl Exum

1 The Song of Songs, which is Solomon's.

² Let him kiss me with the kisses of his mouth!

For your love is better than wine,

³ your anointing oils are fragrant, your name is perfume poured out; therefore the maidens love you.

⁴ Draw me after you, let us make haste.

The king has brought me into his chambers.

We will exult and rejoice in you;

we will extol your love more than wine; rightly do they love you.

⁵ I am black and beautiful, O daughters of Jerusalem, like the tents of Kedar, like the curtains of Solomon.

⁶ Do not gaze at me because I am dark, because the sun has gazed on me.

My mother's sons were angry with me; they made me keeper of the vineyards, but my own vineyard I have not kept!

1.1: Title. Song of Songs, a superlative, “the best song,” like “king of kings” (Ezek 26.7), the king above all kings; “holy of holies” (Ex 26.33), the most holy place; “vanity of vanities” (Eccl 1.2), the height of absurdity. Hebrew “shir” is a generic term for “song” or “poem.” Which is Solomon's could indicate authorship, or that Solomon is the dedicatee, or that the Song is connected with him in some way (compare the use of “of David” as an editorial superscription to many psalms).

1.2–2.7: A montage of short speeches. 1.2: The poem begins with a romantic relationship already in progress. The woman speaks about her lover as “him,” as though he were not there, then suddenly he materializes and she speaks to him of your love. Love, a plural form referring to physical lovemaking (4.10; 7.12; cf. Prov 7.18). Like wine, love is intoxicating (cf. Judg 9.13). 4: The king, i.e., the lover in his royal or Solomonian guise. Here too she speaks of him in the third person, as the king, and then in the second person “you,” as in v. 2. We, the lovers, or, more likely, the woman and the maidens mentioned in v. 3, who are probably also the “they” at the end of v. 4. She is besotted with him and imagines that other women are similarly affected. 5–6: Black and beautiful, her dark skin, she explains, is due to exposure to the sun while working in the vineyards. 5: Daughters of Jerusalem, the female inhabitants of Jerusalem (cf. “sons of Israel” for Israelites). Kedar, a northern Arabian tribe whose name means “dark.” 6: No reason is given for the brothers’ anger nor is any further reference made to it. My

⁷Tell me, you whom my soul loves,
 where you pasture your flock,
 where you make it lie down at noon;
 for why should I be like one who is veiled beside the flocks of your companions?

⁸If you do not know,
 O fairest among women,
 follow the tracks of the flock,
 and pasture your kids
 beside the shepherds' tents.

⁹I compare you, my love,
 to a mare among Pharaoh's chariots.

¹⁰Your cheeks are comely with ornaments,
 your neck with strings of jewels.

¹¹We will make you ornaments of gold,
 studded with silver.

¹²While the king was on his couch,
 my nard gave forth its fragrance.

¹³My beloved is to me a bag of myrrh
 that lies between my breasts.

¹⁴My beloved is to me a cluster of henna blossoms
 in the vineyards of En-gedi.

¹⁵Ah, you are beautiful, my love;
 ah, you are beautiful;
 your eyes are doves.

¹⁶Ah, you are beautiful, my beloved,

truly lovely.

Our couch is green;

¹⁷the beams of our house are cedar,
 our rafters^a are pine.

2 I am a rose^b of Sharon,
 a lily of the valleys.

²As a lily among brambles,
 so is my love among maidens.

³As an apple tree among the trees of the wood,

so is my beloved among young men.

With great delight I sat in his shadow,
 and his fruit was sweet to my taste.

⁴He brought me to the banqueting house,
 and his intention toward me was love.

⁵Sustain me with raisins,
 refresh me with apples;
 for I am faint with love.

⁶O that his left hand were under my head,
 and that his right hand embraced me!

⁷I adjure you, O daughters of Jerusalem,
 by the gazelles or the wild does:
 do not stir up or awaken love
 until it is ready!

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Heb crocus

own vineyard refers to the woman herself, probably with a sexual meaning, as also in 8.12–14: The lovers appear in the guise of shepherds. 7: Pasture your flock, there is no term for flock in the Hebrew, which reads, “Where do you graze?” This is one of many instances of double entendre in the Song: the man grazes or feeds among the lilies and in the gardens, figures for the woman herself (2.1–2; 4.12–5.1; see also 2.16 and 6.2–3, where NRSV also inserts “flock”). Veiled could refer to a disguise, or, better, read “one who wanders,” with some ancient versions. 8: Spoken either by the man or by the women of Jerusalem, who elsewhere address the woman as “fairest among women” (5.9; 6.1). 9–11: The man compares his beloved to a fine horse, a common form of praise in antiquity. 11: He will have the work done, without specifying who will do it (though possibly “we” could be the lovers or the man and the women of Jerusalem). 12–14: The woman speaks of her beloved as the king, as in 1.4. The fragrance of nard and myrrh, costly aromatics, blend with the natural scent of henna blossoms, which are strongly scented and grow in dense clusters. En-gedi, an oasis on the western shore of the Dead Sea. 1.15–2.3: Mutual adoration. The man (v. 15) and the woman (vv. 16–17) praise each other in similar terms. She compares herself to flowers we cannot identify with any certainty (2.1). He turns her self-description into a compliment (v. 2), which she returns in a way that echoes his words (v. 3). Sharon, either the coastal plain between Jaffa and Mount Carmel or simply “the plain.” 2.4: Banqueting house, lit. “house of wine,” where the lovers dwell in their mutual intoxication. 5–7: The woman addresses the women of Jerusalem. Faint with love, lovesickness, for which the cause, love, is also the cure. 6: Either a wish or a statement of fact; see 8.3. 7: See 3.5; 8.4. This resembles a conventional way of swearing an oath but lacks the solemnity: the word for “gazelles” looks and sounds like the word for “hosts” in the name “Lord of Hosts,” and Hebrew “aylot hassadeh” (“wild does”) recalls the divine name El Shaddai. Love is personified as something that has a will of its own.

⁸The voice of my beloved!
 Look, he comes,
 leaping upon the mountains,
 bounding over the hills.
⁹My beloved is like a gazelle
 or a young stag.
 Look, there he stands behind our wall,
 gazing in at the windows,
 looking through the lattice.
¹⁰My beloved speaks and says to me:
 “Arise, my love, my fair one,
 and come away;
¹¹for now the winter is past,
 the rain is over and gone.
¹²The flowers appear on the earth;
 the time of singing has come,
 and the voice of the turtledove
 is heard in our land.
¹³The fig tree puts forth its figs,
 and the vines are in blossom;
 they give forth fragrance.
 Arise, my love, my fair one,
 and come away.
¹⁴O my dove, in the clefts of the rock,
 in the covert of the cliff,
 let me see your face,
 let me hear your voice;
 for your voice is sweet,
 and your face is lovely.
¹⁵Catch us the foxes,
 the little foxes,
 that ruin the vineyards—
 for our vineyards are in blossom.”

¹⁶My beloved is mine and I am his;
 he pastures his flock among the lilies.
¹⁷Until the day breathes
 and the shadows flee,
 turn, my beloved, be like a gazelle
 or a young stag on the cleft mountains.^a

3 Upon my bed at night
 I sought him whom my soul loves;
 I sought him, but found him not;
 I called him, but he gave no answer.^b
²“I will rise now and go about the city,
 in the streets and in the squares;
 I will seek him whom my soul loves.”
 I sought him, but found him not.
³The sentinels found me,
 as they went about in the city.
 “Have you seen him whom my soul loves?”
⁴Scarcely had I passed them,
 when I found him whom my soul loves.
 I held him, and would not let him go until I brought him into my mother’s
 house,
 and into the chamber of her that conceived me.
⁵I adjure you, O daughters of Jerusalem,
 by the gazelles or the wild does:
 do not stir up or awaken love
 until it is ready!
⁶What is that coming up from the wilderness,
 like a column of smoke,

^a Or on the mountains of Bether; meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Gk: Heb lacks this line

2.8–3.11: The woman’s first long speech. The woman’s primary mode of speaking about love is to tell stories in which she and her lover are characters. As stories, these parts of the Song, unlike the poem as a whole, have plots. Here she tells three. 2.8–17: The first describes the man’s visit to her house and his invitation to her to join him outdoors to enjoy the springtime. The voice of my beloved, better, “Listen! My lover!” “Listen” and look create the impression of immediacy. His movements are captured in process as he draws closer: leaping and bounding, then standing and gazing. 11: Winter, the rainy season. 12: Time of singing may also be read as “time of pruning.” 14: She seems inaccessible, perhaps also shy and hesitant. 15–17: She answers his request to hear her voice. Foxes and vineyards, young men and young women. In v. 15 she speaks for women in general; in v. 16, about her relationship with her lover, which is exclusive and mutual. 17: Until the day breathes and the shadows flee could refer to either evening or morning. Whereas she seems to be saying that the time has come for her lover to return, over the mountains, from which he came (v. 8), cleft mountains (or emend to “mountains of spices” as in 8.14) alludes to the woman herself and the various pleasures her body offers, perhaps her breasts (see 4.5–6). 3.1–5: In her second story, she describes her nocturnal search for her beloved and its resolution when she finds him. 5: See 2.7; 8.4. 3.6–11: Her third story. A luxurious conveyance approaches, bearing her lover, whom she casts in the role of King Solomon on his wedding day. 6: Coming up, the procession is in motion. First perfumed with myrrh and frankincense, with all the fragrant powders of the merchant?

⁷ Look, it is the litter of Solomon!
Around it are sixty mighty men of the mighty men of Israel,

⁸ all equipped with swords
and expert in war,
each with his sword at his thigh
because of alarms by night.

⁹ King Solomon made himself a palanquin
from the wood of Lebanon.

¹⁰ He made its posts of silver,
its back of gold, its seat of purple;
its interior was inlaid with love.^a

Daughters of Jerusalem,
¹¹ come out.

Look, O daughters of Zion,
at King Solomon,
at the crown with which his mother crowned him
on the day of his wedding,
on the day of the gladness of his heart.

4 How beautiful you are, my love,
how very beautiful!

Your eyes are doves
behind your veil.

Your hair is like a flock of goats,
moving down the slopes of Gilead.

² Your teeth are like a flock of shorn ewes
that have come up from the washing,
all of which bear twins,

and not one among them is bereaved.

³ Your lips are like a crimson thread,
and your mouth is lovely.

Your cheeks are like halves of a pomegranate
behind your veil.

⁴ Your neck is like the tower of David,
built in courses;
on it hang a thousand bucklers,
all of them shields of warriors.

⁵ Your two breasts are like two fawns,
twins of a gazelle,
that feed among the lilies.

⁶ Until the day breathes
and the shadows flee,
I will hasten to the mountain of myrrh
and the hill of frankincense.

⁷ You are altogether beautiful, my love;
there is no flaw in you.

⁸ Come with me from Lebanon, my bride;
come with me from Lebanon.
Depart^b from the peak of Amana,
from the peak of Senir and Hermon,
from the dens of lions,
from the mountains of leopards.

⁹ You have ravished my heart, my sister, my bride,
you have ravished my heart with a glance of your eyes,

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Or Look

it looks like a column of smoke. Next comes an appeal to the sense of smell created by the fragrant aromas of myrrh and frankincense, suggesting that what is approaching from the distance might be a caravan laden with fragrant powders of the merchant. 7–8: Look, now the source of the smoke and the fragrance can be seen, a litter or palanquin (v. 9), an enclosed chair or couch carried by bearers, surrounded by an armed escort. 9–10: The trappings of the magnificent palanquin progressively come into view. Love is not a material for decorating, like wood, silver, gold, and purple, and should be emended to “precious stones” or “ebony.”

4.1–5.1: The man’s first long speech. The man’s mode of speaking about love is to look at his lover, tell her what he sees and how it affects him. 4.1–5: He describes parts of her body, using similes and metaphors. 1: Goats, moving down the slopes, flowing tresses of wavy black hair (goats were commonly black or dark colored). Gilead, a hilly region in northern Jordan. 2: Teeth, white and evenly paired, with none missing. 3: Cheeks, halves of a pomegranate, perhaps rosy cheeks glimpsed through a white mesh veil. 4: The image suggests a neck adorned with a necklace made up of several rows of beads. Tower of David evokes her regal quality; no such tower is known. 5: Elsewhere the man is described as feeding among the lilies, an erotically suggestive image in which the lilies signify the woman (2.16; 6.2–3). 6: He responds to her exhortation of 2.17. Mountain of myrrh, hill of frankincense, the woman’s breasts, the woman herself, and the place where the lovers enjoy love’s pleasures. 8: Bride, here and v. 11, and “my sister, my bride” (4.9,10,12; 5.1) are terms of endearment. Amana, Senir, and Hermon, peaks in the Anti-Lebanon mountain range, north of Israel, where lions and leopards make their dens, create a contrast to the accessible mountains of v. 6 and symbolize the woman’s inaccessibility and the awe she inspires with one jewel of your necklace.

¹⁰ How sweet is your love, my sister, my
 bride!
 how much better is your love than
 wine,
 and the fragrance of your oils than any spice!
¹¹ Your lips distill nectar, my bride;
 honey and milk are under your tongue;
 the scent of your garments is like the scent of Lebanon.
¹² A garden locked is my sister, my bride,
 a garden locked, a fountain sealed.
¹³ Your channel^a is an orchard of pomegranates
 with all choicest fruits,
 henna with nard,
¹⁴ nard and saffron, calamus and cinnamon,
 with all trees of frankincense,
 myrrh and aloes,
 with all chief spices—
¹⁵ a garden fountain, a well of living water,
 and flowing streams from Lebanon.
¹⁶ Awake, O north wind,
 and come, O south wind!
 Blow upon my garden
 that its fragrance may be wafted abroad.
 Let my beloved come to his garden,
 and eat its choicest fruits.

5 I come to my garden, my sister, my bride;
 I gather my myrrh with my spice,

I eat my honeycomb with my honey,
 I drink my wine with my milk.

Eat, friends, drink,
 and be drunk with love.

² I slept, but my heart was awake.
 Listen! my beloved is knocking.
 “Open to me, my sister, my love,
 my dove, my perfect one;
 for my head is wet with dew,
 my locks with the drops of the night.”

³ I had put off my garment;
 how could I put it on again?
 I had bathed my feet;
 how could I soil them?

⁴ My beloved thrust his hand into the opening,
 and my inmost being yearned for him.

⁵ I arose to open to my beloved,
 and my hands dripped with myrrh,
 my fingers with liquid myrrh,
 upon the handles of the bolt.

⁶ I opened to my beloved,
 but my beloved had turned and was
 gone.

My soul failed me when he spoke.
 I sought him, but did not find him;
 I called him, but he gave no answer.

⁷ Making their rounds in the city
 the sentinels found me;
 they beat me, they wounded me,

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

in him. 9: Ravished, either “stirred my heart” or “captured my heart.” He speaks of love in terms of conquest, describing his feeling of being overwhelmed by her as something she has done to him. 11: The scent of Lebanon, i.e., the fragrant cedars. 4.12–5.1: A cluster of metaphors create a picture of his lover as a fragrant garden, full of edible delights. 4.12: Garden locked, his private garden for his exclusive pleasure. 13–15: She is a paradisiacal garden, where exotic spice-bearing plants and trees from such faraway places as Arabia, Africa, and India grow side by side. 16: The woman interrupts him, first inviting the winds into her garden to whet the man’s appetite by stirring up its sweet smells, then inviting her lover to an erotic banquet. 5.1: Eating and drinking are symbols of sexual intimacy. Eat, friends, the women of Jerusalem encourage the lovers in their mutual intoxication.

5.2–6.3: The woman’s second long speech. Again the woman tells of a visit by the man followed by her search for him in the city streets at night. A dialogue with the women of Jerusalem enables her story to reach the desired outcome, union with her lover. 5.2–8: See 3.1–5. Her story is replete with sexual allusions. 5.2: I slept, but my heart was awake, a light sleep, in which the woman, desiring or anticipating her lover’s visit, is half-listening for his voice. 3: Either an explanation for her delay, addressed to the women of Jerusalem, or a playful reply to her lover (“I have put off my garment”). 5. Myrrh, with which the woman had anointed herself, or perfumed her bed (Prov 7.17), or both. 6: My soul failed me (lit. “went forth”) may refer to swooning or fainting (cf. the similar expression used of dying, Gen 35.18; Ps 146.4). When he spoke, better translated, “because of him” or “when he left.” 7: A forceful reminder of the perils of love, or of the willingness of love to suffer. No justification they took away my mantle,

 those sentinels of the walls.
⁸ I adjure you, O daughters of Jerusalem,
 if you find my beloved,
 tell him this:
 I am faint with love.

⁹ What is your beloved more than another beloved,
 O fairest among women?
 What is your beloved more than another
 beloved,
 that you thus adjure us?

¹⁰ My beloved is all radiant and ruddy, distinguished among ten thousand.
¹¹ His head is the finest gold;
 his locks are wavy,
 black as a raven.
¹² His eyes are like doves
 beside springs of water,
 bathed in milk,
 fitly set.^a ¹³ His cheeks are like beds of spices, yielding fragrance.
 His lips are lilies,
 distilling liquid myrrh.
